The Year of Jubilee, and the Sabbatical Year
among the Jews :

OR,

An ACCOUNT of TIME

From the Creation of the WORLD, to the Destruction of JERUSALEM ; as it may be proved from the Writings of the OLD and NEW TESTAMENT.

In a Method hitherto Unattempted ; and which was first proposed by the Learned Archbishop USHER.

In which the Hebrew Text is vindicated ; and the Objections against it, as consisting of many Mutilations, and numerical Alterations, are occasionally considered ; and the Authority of the Samaritan and

TO THE READER.

WHEN it pleased GOD to remove me from Bristol to a private Living in Somersetshire, where I had more Leisure for my Studies, I happen'd to read over the Preface of the most learned Archbishop Usher. to his Annals, in which he mention'd his (a) Opinion concerning a more exact Method of a Chronological System of the Sacred Scriptures by the Help of Astronomy, and a competent Skill in the Jewish Learning. I was far from thinking myself so well skill'd in either of these Studies, as to undertake a Work of this Nature ; however several (b) Texts of Scripture coming into my Memory, made me endeavour to attempt it. I made many Calculations to no Purpose, and bestowed many an Hour about it, with this View, that if it was above my Ability to perform it, it could but be buried in Oblivion ; but if GOD should enable me to do it, it (c) might be useful. Sometimes I despair'd of Success, and laid the Design aside ; at other Times I had Hope, and then fell to it again. At last I flatter'd myself, that I had succeeded, and then digested my Thoughts into some Method. After this, coming to London, to assist in the Correction of the Arabick Psalter, and New Testament, for the Benefit of the poor Christians in Asia, I shewed my Thoughts to some Friends, who advis'd me to publish Quod si quis ad ista studia, non modò sacræ & exoticæ Historiæ cognitione, sed etiam aliquantâ Astronomici Calculi & veteris Calendarii Hebraici notitiâ instructus accesserit : ut is non annorum tantum sed etiam dierum numerum ab orbe condito jam transactum possit assequi ; ego quidem inter χαλεπα, sed non inter ἀδύνατα ponendum censeo.

(b) Psal. 19. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. The heavens declare the glory of GOD, and the firmament sheweth his handy work. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge. There is no speech nor language, where their voice is not heard. Their line is gone out through all the earth ; and their words unto the ends of the world. In them hath he set a tabernacle for the sun ; which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber ; and rejoyceth as a giant to run his course. Psal. 89. 5. The heavens shall praise thy wonders, O LORD ; thy faithfulness also in the congregation of the saints. Acts 5. 18. Known unto GOD are all his works, from the foundation of the world. Acts 17. 24, 25, 26, 27. GOD that made the world and all things therein, who is LORD of heaven and earth, who giveth to all life and breath and all things, hath determined the times before appointed ; That they should seek the LORD, if haply they might seek after him, and find him, tho' he be not far from every one of us.

them; to which I comply'd, with a Design not to have exceeded fourscore or an hundred Pages in the whole. A few Sheets being printed off, I was inform'd, that a Work of this Nature was intended to be publish'd from the Papers of the most famous Sir Isaac Newton. Upon this I stopp'd, expecting great Assistance in my Design from that most able Hand. When it was publish'd, I found his Astronomical Observations to be very few, and even those not to be satisfactory. And as the Septuagint and Samaritan Versions would destroy the Authority of the Hebrew Text, by Placing the Date of the Creation too far forward; so I found, that Sir Isaac's Hypothesis would have the same Consequence, by bringing the History too far backward. Of this I shall only give two Instances: He (d) tells us, that the Canaanites, who fled from Joshua, retired in great Numbers into Egypt, and there conquer'd Thammuz King of The Lower Egypt, and reigned under their Kings Salatis and others, until the Days of Eli and Samuel. And that the upper Parts of Egypt were in the Days of Joshua under many Kings, which reigned at Coptos, Thebes, This, Elephantis, and other Places, which by Conquering one another grew by Degrees into one Kingdom, over which Misphragmuthosis reigned in the Days of Eli. In the Table of the Kings both of Upper and Lower-Egypt, there is no such Name as Thammuz. And they, who have Skill in the Oriental Learning, know that (e) by Thammuz is meant the Sun, which is at too great a Distance to be conquer'd by any of this Globe. But all this is brought to prove, that there were many Kings in Egypt like those in Canaan, and that the first King over all Egypt was he, whose Daughter Solomon married. But the true History is this: Mizraim the Son of Ham went into Egypt, where he reign'd as their first King, with others of his Posterity after him, and liv'd in Upper-Egypt. In Process of Time, a great Number of Shepherds going promiscuously out of the Land of Canaan, seize on the Lower-Egypt as fit for Pasturage, and call themselves Canaanites. This occasions a War between Upper-Egypt and them, and so to defend themselves, they choose Salatis, a famous Warriour, to be their first King. Many of them being tired out with long Wars, return again to Canaan before Abraham's Time; so that at his first coming thither, he found (f) that the Canaanite was then in the land. After this Abraham (g) goes into Egypt, and whilst he was there, these Canaanites divided themselves into two Bodies. One of them kept together in great Numbers, and applying themselves to Merchandise, were call'd Canaanites, which Word in Hebrew signifies Merchants. The other applied themselves to Feeding of Cattle, and separating into lesser Bodies were call'd Perizzites, or Villagers; and so Abraham at his Return from Egypt found, that not only the Canaanite, but also (h) the Perizzite was then in the Land; and these being formidable Enemies, as having been so long bred up to Wars, are so often (i) mark'd out by GOD for utter Destruction, with the rest of the Families of Canaan their Ancestor. Soon after (k) they set up a King over them, who dwelt in Gerar. About the Time of the Death of Abraham, Tethmosis or Amosis King of Upper Egypt, conquers these Pastors, shuts them up in the City of Pelusium, and

(d) Page 9. (e) Hence the Month of June is called חמון Thammuz, because the Sun is then in its greatest Height, and the two Tropicks are called חקופת חמון, or the Revolution of Thammuz, or the Sun; and the Women, who were weeping for Thammuz, Ezek. 8. 14. were only such as wept for the Declining of the Sun, as the Winter approached. (f) Gen. 12. 6. (g) Gen. 12. 10, &c. (h) Gen. 13. 7. (i) Gen. 15. 20, 21, and 34. 30. Exod. 3. 8, 17, and 23. 23, and 33. 2, and 34. 11. Deut. 7. 1, and 20. 17. Josh. 3. 10, and 9. 1, and 11. 3, and 12. 8, and 24. 11. and Judg. 1. 4, 5, compar'd with Gen. 10. 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20. (k) Gen. 20. 1, 2.

after a long Siege gives them Leave to retire into the Land of Canaan, and so takes Possession thereof by surrender. These coming from Pelusium to Canaan are call'd Philistines, and in the Land, which was afterward so call'd from them, Abraham (l) sojourn'd many days. In Isaac's Time they also had (m) set up a King over themselves, and he dwelt for some Time among them. These Wars occasion'd by Shepherds coming from Canaan to Egypt was the Cause, that afterwards in Joseph's Time, (n) every shepherd was an abomination to the Egyptians, and the same was also said of (o) the Hebrews, by which they meant all those, who came from Asia over the River Sihor into Egypt, and therefore in Derision they call'd them Hebrews, or (p) Runagates. This made Joseph (q) charge his Brethren with being Spies, and the Charge was most heavy, considering that the Canaanites, from which Land they came, had involv'd them into such a long and dreadful War, and had been but lately expelled from thence, and might be seeking an Opportunity to return thither again. Thus according to the Catalogue of the Egyptian Kings taken by Eratosthenes from the Egyptian Records, and the Account which we have of them in Manetho, as mention'd (r) by Josephus, every thing agrees with, and illustrates the Scripture History. But if, with this learned Author, we place Salatis the first King of Lower-Egypt after the Days of Joshua, it will be very hard to account for a (s) Pharaoh in Egypt in Abraham's Time, which was always the Name of their Kings; and that afterward Joseph was Governor over (t) all the land of Egypt under Pharaoh, which Country was so large, that (u) six hundred thousand men that were Israelites, besides women and children, could be kept in Bondage in a Part thereof, and who were miraculously preserv'd from (x) the Plagues which fell upon the rest of the Land at the same Time. Thus the Chronology of this learned Author puts the whole Scripture History into Confusion, and therefore he should not have mention'd in the least, that he had made his System agreeable to those sacred Writings.

I shall only add one Instance more from this Author. He tells us, (y) that GOD gave to Shishak מַמְלֶכֶת הָאֲרָצוֹת, the kingdoms of the lands, and puts down the Hebrew Words and the Text for a Proof of it, and prints the Words GOD gave to Shishak in Italick, as a Part of the Text. He labours very hard to prove Sesostris the King of Egypt, who succeeded Pharaoh-Amenophis, that was drowned in the Red-Sea to be the Shishak in Rehoboam's Time. This Sesostris made very large Conquests in Asia, like Alexander the Great. The Time when his Brother Danaus came into Greece, who from him were call'd Danai, fixes his Reign to a very great Certainty. Shishak did only come to Jerusalem, and did not touch any of the ten Tribes of Israel, where Jeroboam reign'd, who had (z) liv'd with him a long Time in the Reign of Solomon, and probably invited him to distress Rehoboam, against whom he had rebelled, that he might be the safer, when the Kingdom of Judah was impoverish'd. However, to make Shishak and Sesostris the same, this learned Author quotes for Scripture, that GOD gave to Shishak the Kingdoms of the Earth. But there is not such a Word in the whole Scripture. The (a) whole Verse, which he quotes, is this, Nevertheless they (the Jews) shall be

(l) Gen. 21. 32, 33, 34. (m) Gen. Chap. 26. (n) Gen. 46. 34. (o) Gen. 43. 32. his servants ; that they may know my service, and the service of the kingdoms of the countries. So that when this learned Author saith, that he hath made his Chronology agree with Scripture, he can only mean the Scripture of his own Making. Herodotus (from whence the Account of all the Actions of Sesostris is chiefly taken) tells us, that in the Countries which he conquered, he set up Statues to shew his Conquests, representing the Valour or Cowardice of his Enemies, that he set up some in the Land of Canaan, which branded the Inhabitants with the greatest Marks of Infamy, and that he (who was born above an hundred Years after the Babylonish Captivity) saw some of them standing in that Country. Now if they had been set up in Rehoboam's Time, in any Part of the Kingdoms either of Israel or Judah, can we imagine, that after Shishak and his Army (b) were gone out of the Country, the Inhabitants would not have pull'd down such Monuments of their own Shame ? But the true Story is this : Sesostris came to the Crown of Egypt, when the Israelites passed thro' the Red-Sea ; he marches with his Army into Canaan and other Places, which he conquers, and puts up such Marks as these of his Conquests. After this he puts up Viceroy's, in all the Cities, to gather Tribute, and send it to him. When he died, Busris (the cruel Tyrant, especially to Strangers) succeeded him in Egypt. His Cruelties occasion'd all these Viceroy's in the Land of Canaan to revolt, and set up themselves as Kings ; so that Joshua found (c) one and thirty of them in the Land at his Coming thither ; and this was the visible Providence, whereby their Strength was weakned, and Joshua was enabled to conquer them one after another. Whilst these Viceroy's continued in the Country, the Inhabitants dared not to destroy those Statues, and after Joshua's Time the Israelites let them stand ; because it was no Reflection upon them, but only upon the Inhabitants, which were before them, and so they remained until the Time of Herodotus.

But to return from this Digression. After a few Sheets of this Work had been printed off, I was advis'd by some Friends, contrary to my first Inclinations, to enlarge the Work by several other Additions, and particularly by a History of the World from the Creation, until the Time when Dean Prideaux began his learned Connection, and to add what could be found for this Purpose, in the Writings of the most authentick Eastern Historians, such as Sanctioniathô, Abul Pharagius, Elmachinus, Euty chius and Josephus ; and Proposals for Subscriptions were printed accordingly. As soon as Sir Isaac Newton's Chronology was extant, I found it contrary to all Mankind, and utterly destructive of the Scripture History, which made me oblig'd to confute it in (d) a small Octavo printed for that Purpose, and this delay'd the other Work for some Time. When I began to think on the Particulars promis'd in the Proposals, I found the Work to be much more difficult, and to require much more Time to finish it, than I at first imagin'd, and, as I fear, beyond my Abilities. However, I was oblig'd to perform what I had promised. I hope, that I have reconciled the Differences of Numbers throughout the Old and New Testament, so that there is no need to alledge, that any of them were alter'd by Transcribers, but that the Original is still preserv'd pure and intire. I hope, that I have reconciled the various Accounts of Time among the Chaldeans, Grecians, Persians and Egyptians, and made them agree with (b) 1 Kings 14. 25 to 29. 2 Chron. 12. 1 to 10. (c) Joshua 12. 9 to the End. Thus also there were five Kings of Midian in the Time of Balaam for the same Reason, Numb. 31. 8, and Josh. 13. 21. ## To the R E A D E R.

those of the Hebrew Bible, in Opposition to the Septuagint, and especially the Samaritan Version, who place their Account too high, as well as others, who place it too low: I have done my best to reconcile the Chinese Chronology with Scripture, from the English and Latin Authors already extant concerning this Nation; but I am told, that a Book is printing at Rome in Latin on this Subject, written by one who had been a Missionary in the Country for many Years, who learned the Language and Character, and hath spent most of his Time in Comparing their Historians for this Purpose, and that this Book when printed, will give entire Satisfaction, where we are yet in the Dark. I have endeavour'd to make the best Use, which I could, of the Eclipses mention'd during the Scripture History. I own, that those three mention'd by (e) Archbishop Usher, for which he quotes (f) the Prophet Amos, did not answer my Expectation, which I impute to my own Defects. However, I am told that Mr. Whiston intends a Discourse on this Subject, which will be satisfactory to the learned World; and when this Treatise, with the other just now mention'd, shall be publish'd, I know not what will be farther wanting to render our Chronology most complete, and exactly agreeing with the Scripture History. I hope, that I have prov'd, that the most solemn Acts of Devotion, and other religious Transactions mention'd in the Old Testament, especially from the Creation to the Time of Moses, were performed on that Day, which we call Sunday, and that the Sabbath was alter'd from the first to the last Day of the Week, only among the Children of Israel at their Departure out of Egypt, in Commemoration of so great a Deliverance; and that it was restor'd again to the first Day of the Week by Our SAVIOUR's Resurrection. This will, I think, more fully prove the Morality of our Christian Sabbath, since no other Nation in the World was ever oblig'd to observe the Jewish Sabbath, more than the Dutch, French or Swedes are oblig'd to observe the 29th Day of May, or the fifth Day of November, which we commemorate for particular Reasons. I hope also, that I have proved, that the Year of Jubilee was a Type of the Nativity of Our SAVIOUR, and that the Sabbatical Year was a Type of his Resting in the Grave, and that their Epochas corresponded with their respective Years; which not only serves to rectify and confirm our Chronology, but also shews the great Wisdom and Foreknowledge of GOD, in Appointing these Ordinances so long before. And I hope, that those Subscribers and others, who have been justly uneasy at these long Delays, will be satisfy'd, that it is publish'd at last. Besides the Difficulty of the Work, the Impression hath met with so many Misfortunes, and I have had so many Avocations and Distractions from my Study, and so much Sickness of my own, and in my Family, which if they were proper to be mention'd, would sufficiently plead my Excuse; however it gives me sufficient Cause to bless GOD, that I have discharg'd my Promise, and liv'd to finish it, as well as I could.

It is a great Satisfaction to me, and I hope it will be to others, that in the Scripture Chronology I never differ from Dr. Prideaux; and even from the Creation of the World, to the Destruction of Jerusalem, I never differ above five Years from Archbishop Usher, the late Bishop of Worcester, or Mr. Marshall. In Confuting the Samaritan Chronology, and also the Septuagint, I agree with Dr. Prideaux, and especially with the Editors of the Polyglot Bible, who were the most learned Men in the World, and by far the best Judges of this Case; who also thought, that there would never have been the least Room for such a Controversy. As for Sir Isaac Newton, he is contrary to all Mankind, and tears up all former Learning by the Roots. I know not of one Author, with whom he agrees, except Sir John Marsham, and with him only in making Sesostris the same with Shishak in Rehoboam's Time; whose Authority is the less to be regarded, because he rightly places Danaus the Brother of Sesostris contemporary with Moses above five hundred Years before the other.

(e) Archbishop Usher's Annals, pag. 79. Anno Per. Jul. 3923.

(f) Amos 8. 8, 9, 10.

In Framing this Work I cannot express the great Assistance, which I had from the Labours of those great Men, who paved the Way, and without whose Works it had been impossible for me to have done any thing of this Nature, particularly the most Reverend Archbishop Usher, the Right Reverend Bishops Cumberland, Patrick, Beveridge, and Kidder, as also the Learned Bochartus and Hottinger; beside those of our own Nation, as Dr. Lightfoot, Prideaux and Welles, Sir Walter Raleigh, Mr. Mede and Mr. Marshall, whose Writings are in the greatest Esteem in the learned World; and I should be ungrateful, if I did not express the many Civilities, which I received from the Reverend Mr. Reading, the Keeper of Sion-College Library in this City.

The Maps in Page 114, 115 and 117, being taken out of the Account which Strabo and Ptolemy give us of the antient Geography, differ very much from those at the End of the Book, which are taken from our latest Authors. The Reason of this Difference must be either because the Antients, or the Moderns have been mistaken, or that some of the four great Rivers leading to Paradise have changed their Courses in so great a Length of Time. The first of these Reasons seems to be much the more probable.

If any Expression seems severe, or written with too great a Warmth, the Reader will consider, that it is only where the Authority of the Sacred Scriptures is vindicated, and the Credibility of its History is asserted. The continual Attacks of these Books in this Age, beyond what was ever known before, are sufficient to raise the Blood of all Christians, and provoke their Indignation.

To conclude, If what I have done can be serviceable to vindicate the Authority of those Sacred Writings, and especially of the Hebrew Text, I shall have my End, and shall have cause to bless GOD, who hath enabled me to finish it. But if, thro' any Defect of mine, it shall happen to be otherwise, I have this Satisfaction left, that what I have done will only fall by it self, and what other Persons have wrote for the same End, may, notwithstanding my weak Endeavours, have its due Effect.

From the Creation of the World to the Flood.

Who considers the exact Motions of the heavenly Bodies, and especially of the Sun and Moon, may thereby be fully convinc'd, That the Orderer of them is a most wise and a most powerful Being; or, as we commonly say, That there is a GOD. And he who shall consider, how exactly these Motions do correspond with several remarkable Passages in the Sacred Scriptures, beyond all the Possibility of human Contrivance, cannot but be equally sensible, That these Scriptures were communicated to us by that GOD, who gave the Laws of Motion to these heavenly Bodies; and that from the first Creation of them, he infallibly foreknew whatsoever should come to pass in Time, until the Frame of this World shall be dissolv'd. And thus (a) The invisible things of him are clearly seen from the creation of the world, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and godhead, and most wise Providence; so that they, who deny it, are without any excuse.

Those Sacred Scriptures being therefore reveal'd to us by this GOD, they must necessarily be most certain and true: And as they give us an Account of Time from the Creation of the World; so they are the Ground of all Chronology. All other Tables must be rectify'd by them, and such Accounts, which cannot be reconcil'd to them, must be rejected as false. And as GOD did (b) from the Beginning of the Creation appoint the two great lights, of the Heavens (as they appear unto us) even the Sun and Moon, to be for signs, and for seasons, and for days, and for years, (tho' not in the Method of Judicial Astrology, as some have vainly imagin'd) so it may be surprizing to behold and observe the Harmony, which there is between the Motions of the Heavens, when compar'd with the Types and Prophecies, and the Transactions on the Earth.

And as GOD did (b) from the Beginning of the Creation appoint the two great lights, of the Heavens (as they appear unto us) even the Sun and Moon, to be for signs, and for seasons, and for days, and for years, (tho' not in the Method of Judicial Astrology, as some have vainly imagin'd) so it may be surprizing to behold and observe the Harmony, which there is between the Motions of the Heavens, when compar'd with the Types and Prophecies, and the Transactions on the Earth.

3. Before I proceed to demonstrate the Truth of the Scripture Chronology, by such Astronomical Observations as may illustrate it, it must be observ'd, That for the better Calculating the Place of the Sun, or Moon, at any Time given before our SAVIOUR's Nativity, (on which all or most of these Observations depend) the Year of his Nativity, according to the Vulgar Account, is called Annus Christi 00; the following Year is Annus Christi 1. and agrees with our Year commonly so call'd; and the Year before the said Nativity is Annus ante Christum 1. and is the same with the Year, which in other Tables is call'd Annus ante Christum 2. So that these Tables differ the Space of a Year from most, or all others, in their Reckoning of Time from the Creation of the World to the Birth of CHRIST; because others leave out the Year, which is here inserted and call'd Annus Christi 00. And so they make the Facts Anno post Christum 1. immediately to succeed the Facts Anno ante Christum 1. without the Space of a Year between them. And as they reckon'd the Birth of CHRIST to have been in the latter End of December; so they generally reckon'd that whole Year to have been the Year before his Birth; because the whole Year according to their Computation, except one single Week, was actually past, before he was born. However the Julian Period, being the same in all Tables, will plainly shew the Agreement or Disagreement, which is between these and any other, that shall be compar'd with them.

4. The first Advantage by inserting a Year, which is call'd Annus Christi 00. is, That as it was a Bissextile Year, so when an Allowance is made for a common Year, and for the Bissextile Day of that Year, then in all Calculations for the preceding Years (the fourth Year being then the Bissextile both before and after) our common Astronomical Tables will equally serve for the Years both before and after our SAVIOUR's Incarnation, if in calculating the Place of any of the heavenly Bodies for any Year given, which precedes the Birth of CHRIST, a Subtraction is made of a Year and a Day, as will be evident from the following Calculations. But the Method for calculating the heavenly Motions for any Time given, which follows the said Birth, is the same, which is us'd by all others.

5. Another Advantage by placing Ciphers for the Year of CHRIST's Birth is, That two Years being given, the one before the Birth of CHRIST, and the other after; and both Numbers being added together, the Total will shew the exact Number of Years between them:

Thus,

From the Year before the Birth	}	1
of CHRIST
To the Year after the Birth	}	1
		<hr/>
The Total is		2 Years.

Or thus,

From the Year 1. before the Birth	}	1 Year. of CHRIST to the Year of
of his Birth is
From the Year of the Birth of	}	1 Year.
CHRIST to the Year after his Birth is <hr/>
The Total is		2 Years.

Or thus,

From the Creation of the World	}	4007 Years.
to the same Day in the Year of the Birth of CHRIST is
From that Day to the same Day	}	1726 Years.
in this present Year are
Therefore from the Creation of	}	5733 Years.
the World to the same Day in this present Year are

And consequently the Sun being created on the twenty fifth Day of October, the Number of Days from thence to the twenty fourth Day of October inclusive, in this present Year, may be thus computed:

In 5733 Years there are of	}	2092545 Days.
common Days
In 5733 Years there are of su-	}	1433 Days.
pernumerary Days in the

Therefore from the Creation of	}	2093978 Days.
the World to October 24.

The not observing this Rule hath occasion'd the Error of a single Year in several Chronological Computations, which hath also spoil'd all such Astronomical Observations of these preceding Years, as proceeding from such a Hypothesis, in which a single Year is mistaken, by leaving out the Bissextile Year of CHRIST's Birth; and by leaving out that Year the Bissextile Years have been also set in their wrong Places.

6. But to proceed in such an Astronomical Method, as may serve in some Measure to fix the Year of the Creation of the World, and illustrate the Account which the Scriptures give us thereof, we must take it for granted, That the Sun was created on or near the Autumnal Equinox, which in that Age of the World usually happen'd upon the twenty fifth Day of October, if we reckon so far back by Julian Years, as may appear by (c) Calculation. The (d) Talmudists affirm, That the World was created in the Month Tisri, and that for this Reason the first Day thereof was a holy Festival. And they also add, That in the Month of Tisri, which was about the Autumnal Equinox, the Patriarchs were all born, and that in the same Month they all died; and that only Isaac was born about the Pass-over. In the Beginning of the Year, or of the Month Tisri, (e) Sarah, Rebekah, and Hannah had the Promise of a Son. In the Beginning of the old Year, or Tisri, Joseph was brought out of Prison. In Tisri the servile Labour of the Israelites ceased in Egypt. In Nisan their full Deliverance came, and in Tisri they shall be saved by the Coming of the Messias. But such Testimonies are not to be depended on. It is certain, that the Feasts in this Month among the Jews were more in Number, and more solemn than in any other Month of the Year besides; and if all which they say could be prov'd, they had sufficient Reasons to observe them. However, at the Autumnal Equinox all the Fruits of the Earth were fully ripe in their proper Season; and therefore the Earth was compleatly furnished for the Reception of all living Creatures. From this Time the Antemosaic World did begin the Year, until the Alteration took Place, which (f) was appointed by GOD at the Deliverance of the Israelites out of Egypt. And even the Jews do still observe this Method in their civil, tho' not in their sacred Years: So that according to their Way of Reckoning, as it hath been establish'd among them by (g) Rabbi Hillel, the full Moon immediately following the Autumnal Equinox is the Middle of the first Month. Thus the new Moon, or the Beginning of the first Month, sometimes comes before, and sometimes follows the Autumnal Equinox; but the full Moon is always fix'd immediately to succeed it.

7. Let us now consider the State of Adam at his Creation. He being a perfect Man must first observe a real Distinction between Day and Night, the Sun being visible in the one, but invisible in the other. Then he must observe, that, cloudy Weather excepted, the Sun did shine by Day, and that Darkness succeeded after the Sun was set; which gradually increasing for about the Space of an Hour and an Half, it was then totally dark, and the Stars appear'd; and thus the Light and the Darkness constantly succeeding each other, he might at first compute the Length of his Life by Days. And thus also the Distinction of twelve Hours darkness, and twelve Hours light, makes every Day to begin at the Evening, as it was from the Creation. After this (h) the Moon being past her full, Adam must behold it rising later and later in the Evening, until it disappear'd; so that Adam, being depriv'd for some Time of the Benefit thereof, could not but with Pleasure observe her Returning in the Evening and Increasing, when she was past her Change; and then Adam might properly begin the Computation of the next Month, and after that reckon his Life not by Days only, which would soon increase to a great Number, but by Months, and begin the Months successively, whenever the Moon did first appear in the Evening after her Change. Thus began the Computation by Days and Months, the Sun directing the one, and the Moon the other. Besides, when GOD had created the World in six Days, and rested on the Seventh, he consecrated it as a Day of religious Worship and Abstaining from Labour, and gave a Command to Adam and his Posterity to observe the same, which naturally brought in a Computation of Weeks. Adam, being also created when the Sun was near the Autumnal Equinox, might observe, that the Sun did rise and set in the opposite Parts of Heaven, and this Observation might easily be confirm'd by two Trees or other Marks, which stood directly East and West from each other; and by his taking Notice, that the Sun rising did cast its Shadow from the first to the second Mark, and that the Sun setting did again cast its Shadow from the second Mark to the first. Then he must observe, that the Sun in the Winter did not appear at Mid-day so high, as it had appear'd before in the Autumn, but that it gradually declin'd toward the South: He must also observe, that it rose and set more Southwardly, and consequently, that the Shadow from two such Trees, or Marks, at the Sun's Rising and Setting appear'd more Northwardly, until it came to its greatest Declination; and he might probably observe, that then the Days were shorter, and the Weather was colder. And perhaps the Sense of his Sin might occasion a Fear, lest he should be totally depriv'd of the Benefit of the Sun, and the World might return to its first State of Darkness again. But after this he observes with Comfort the Sun gradually returning to the Equinoctial Line, and that at the End of half a Year the Rising and Setting was exactly the same as at the Creation. This might occasion a Query, Whether this Space was not a sufficient Quantity of Time, whereby to compute a larger Revolution of the Sun, which we call a Year? But this Query might be soon answer'd, when he observ'd a southern Shadow at the Sun's Rising and Setting, which never happen'd before: And that, as after the Equinox at the Creation, the Sun at Mid-day appear'd lower, and gradually declin'd, and accordingly did rise and set more Southward, and that the Days were shorter, and the Weather was colder; so after this Vernal Equinox the Sun at Mid-day appear'd higher, and gradually ascended, and accordingly did rise and set more Northward, and that the Shadow appear'd more Southward, and that the Days were longer, and the Weather was hotter, until the Sun came to its greatest North Declination; after which Time it gradually declin'd again from the Summer Solstice, as it had ascended from the other, and this Declining continued until the Time of the Autumnal Equinox. But then it was easy to observe, that the Sun did rise and set again in the same Place as at the first, that the Shadow at its Rising was more and more Northward; that at Mid day the Sun appear'd lower, that the Days grew shorter, and the Weather colder; that the same Fruits were ripe again in their proper Seasons, and that a'l Things appear'd as they were at the beginning of the creation. And thus as a Lunar Revolution or a Month was fix'd before; so the Solar Revolution or the Year was fix'd now. Thus these (i) two great Lights, according to their original Intention, did distinguish the Seasons, the Days, the Months and Years. And thus began the Computation of Weeks by a divine Appointment, and the Computation of Days, Months, and Years by a natural Observation of the Sun and Moon, until in Process of Time several Nations did make particular Alterations in the Beginnings of their Days, Months and Years; yet still retaining a great Regard to the original Constitution. And as the full Moon, and not the Change, on the Year of the Creation, was very near to the Autumnal Equinox; so this might well occasion Adam's computing the succeeding Years by the full Moons, which happen'd either upon the Autumnal Equinox or the next after; so that the preceding new Moon should always begin the Year.

8. The Method being thus fix'd, it might be easy and natural about the Time of the Autumnal and Vernal Equinoxes to observe the Length of the Shadow of any Pillar, or Stick of Wood, particularly at Noon, and make Marks as Standards to fix thereby their Observations for future Years, and add such Elliptick or other Lines for this Purpose, as is usual in some Horizontal Dials, that so it might be known thereby, Whether the Sun's Declination was Northward or Southward? And whether it was much or little? This I take to be the great Perfection of the Chaldean Astronomy in the most early Times. And thus Adam, tho' he had but little Skill in that Science, might at first naturally begin a Computation of Days, and Weeks, and Months, and Years, the Number of which could not be mistaken, being fix'd by the diurnal Motion of the Sun, by divine Institution, by the Change of the Moon, the annual Revolution of the Sun, and the Seasons of the Year, which were consequent thereupon. And tho' the Number of Days in a Month or a Year was at first uncertain; yet being subject to future Amendments, it might frequently be corrected, and the future Observations of about an hundred Years might so far rectify their Numbers, as to make them a sufficient Direction for common Use.

9. Secondly, We must take it for granted, that the Garden of Edon, where our first Parents Adam and Eve were plac'd, lay near to that Part of the Land of Shinar, where Babylon was afterward built. This is fully prov'd in Latin by the famous Bochartus, and in English by our own Country-Man Sir Walter Raleigh, and is assented to by the most learned and best (k) Commentators, who allow, that the four Rivers mention'd by Moses might anciently meet near that Place, and could meet in no other. And the plain level Ground in all that Country, especially toward the South, East and West, might give an Opportunity to the Patriarchs at first, as it did to the Chaldeans afterward, to make their Astronomical Observations.

10. A late (l) learned Author in the Oriental Languages, and especially in the Arabick, gives his Opinion, that our Maps of Asia and Africa are very defective as to their Longitude and Latitude, except a few Places publickly known; and that they may be corrected and amended by the Arabian Geographers. What Use may be made of them in other Instances, I shall not determine; but, I think, that in the Case of Babylon they are very defective. First, Because they always reckon Babylon and Bagdad to be the same Place: And, Secondly, Because they differ among themselves in setting down the Longitude and Latitude even of the City of Bagdad.

11. That in the first Particular they were mistaken, is evident from the Testimony of (m) the famous Bochartus, and also (n) a late learned Country-Man of our own, whose Words I shall transcribe, viz. About the Year before CHRIST 293. Seleucus built Seleucia on the Tigris at the Distance of forty Miles from Babylon. It was plac'd on the western Side of that River, over-against the Place where now Bagdad stands on the eastern Side, which soon grew to be a very great City. For by Reason of the Breaking down the Banks of the Euphrates, the Country near Babylon being drown'd, the Branch of that River, which passed thro' the Midst of that City, being shallowed and render'd unnavigable; this made the Situation of Babylon at this Time so very inconvenient, that when this new City was built, it soon drain'd the other of all its Inhabitants. And in a short Time after the Building of Seleucia, Babylon became wholly desolated, so that nothing remain'd of it but its Walls.—It must be acknowledg'd, that there is mention made of Babylon, as of a City standing long after the Time where I have plac'd its Desolation, as in Lucian, Philostratus, and others. But in all these Authors, and wherever else we find Babylon spoken of as a City in being after the Time of Seleucus Nicanor, it must be understood not of Old Babylon on the Euphrates, but of Seleucia on the Tigris. For as that succeeded in the Dignity and Grandeur of Old

Babylon, so it did also in its Name. At first it was call'd Seleucia Babylonica, that is, the Babylonick Seleucia, or Seleucia of the Province of Babylon, to distinguish it from the other Seleucia's which were elsewhere; and after that Babylonia simply, and at length Babylon. That Lucan by his Babylon, in the first Book of his Pharsalia, means no other than Seleucia, or the New Babylon, is plain. For there he speaks of it as the Metropolis of the Parthian Kingdom, where the Trophies of Crassus were hung up, after the Vanquishing of the Romans at Carrhæ. which can be understood only of the Seleucian, or New Babylon, and not of the Old: For that New Babylon only was the Seat of the Parthian Kings, but the Old Babylon never. And in another Place, (i. e. Book 6. Verse 50.) he describes it as surrounded by the Tigris, in the same Manner as Antioch was by the Orontes. But it was the Seleucia, or the New Babylon, and not the Old, that stood upon the Tigris. And as to Philostratus, when he brings his Apollonius (the Don Quixot of his Romance) to the royal Seat of the Parthian King, which was at that Time at Seleucia, then call'd Babylon, he was led by that Name into this gross Blunder, as to mistake it for the Old Babylon; and therefore in the Describing of it he gives us the same Description, which he found given of Old Babylon in Herodotus, Diodorus Siculus, Strabo, and other Writers. But it is no unusual Thing for Romancers often to make Blunders and Mistakes in the Geography of the Places, where they lay the Scenes of their Fables. And that the whole Story of Apollonius Tyaneus, as written by Philostratus, is no more than a Romance and a Fable, is well known. ————— And perhaps the giving of the Name of Babylon to Seleucia was that which gave Rise to the present vulgar Error, that Bagdad is now situated in the very Place, where formerly Old Babylon stood: For when Bagdad was first built, it was truly upon the same Plot of Ground, where formerly Seleucia, or New Babylon stood. For as Old Babylon was exhausted by Seleucia; so afterward was Seleucia by Ctesiphon and Almadayen, and these two again by Bagdad, it being the Humour of the Princes of those Ages to build new Cities to be Monuments of their Names, and to desolate old ones in the Neighbourhood for the peopling of them. ——— So that they are much mistaken, who think Bagdad to be the same with Old Babylon. For that was upon the Euphrates; but Bagdad is upon the Tigris, at the Distance of forty Miles from the Place where that old City stood. Thus far this learned and judicious Author.

12. As to the second Particular it is evident from their own Authors. For Babylon, or Bagdad, according to Abu'l Feda, in a Manuscript given to the University of Oxford by the learned Dr. Pocock, is in Longitude 70<sup>d</sup>.

13. It may therefore be own'd, that tho' the Arabians might formerly have been eminent Geographers; yet they must not be intirely depended upon. Neither can it be deny'd, that the Christians now as far excel the Arabians in that Science, as the Arabians of old excell'd other Nations. And as degenerate as the Christians are; yet wherever they have gone, that Blessing seems to have attended them, that they have made more Discoveries in one Year in a strange Country, than the Gentile Natives have made in many Ages before. Our own Countryman Mr. Eachard puts London in 18<sup>d</sup>. 36<sup>d</sup>. of Longitude, as Babylon in 79<sup>d</sup>. 00<sup>d</sup>. and in the Latitude of 35 Degrees. As therefore they differ among themselves, and as the Difference of forty or an hundred Miles in Longitude, or even of nine or ten Degrees, will in the Case before us make no sensible Alteration in Astronomical Computations; so I shall rather chuse to confine my self to the judicious and learned Bochart, who in his Map (*) of Mesopotamia places Babylon in the Longitude of 77<sup>d</sup>. 46<sup>d</sup>. from which subtract the Longitude of London, and the Difference of 59<sup>d</sup>. 10<sup>d</sup>. which being reduc'd into Time is 3<sup>h</sup>. 56<sup>d</sup>. 40<sup>d</sup>. and he places it also in the Latitude of 34<sup>d</sup>. 15<sup>d</sup>.

14. Thirdly, In all Calculations before the Time of Joshua an Allowance must be made for the Sun's standing still twelve Hours at his Request; that is, the Earth mov'd in her annual Motion, but her diurnal Motion was stop'd for so long a Space, so that both the Sun and Moon seem'd to abide so long in the same Position. This gave the first Occasion for the Story of Phaethon, so well known in the Heathen World. The true Account whereof is thus set down in (o) the Sacred Scriptures, Then spake Joshua to the LORD, Sun stand thou still upon Gibeon, and thou moon in the valley of Ajalon. And the sun stood still, and the moon stayed, until the people had avenged themselves of their enemies. Is not this written in the book of Jasher, So the Sun stood still, and the moon stayed, and hasted not to go down about a whole day?

15. That this Day was about the Space of twelve Hours, whilst the Sun stood still, seems to have been the Opinion of the Son of Sirach, who (p) speaking of Joshua, saith, Did not the sun go back by his means? And was not one day, that is the Space of a natural Day, in which the Sun in those Countries did generally shine about twelve Hours, as long as two such Days? There (q) was once a thick darkness in the land of Egypt three days; when they saw not one another, neither rose any from his bed in three days. But this was not occasion'd by any defect of the celestial Bodies, either in Light or Motion, because at the same Time the children of Israel had (as usually) light in their dwellings. And there seems to be another Miracle of the same Nature in the Time of Hezekiah. But this did not happen by any retrograde Motion of the Sun, or rather by any retrograde Motion of the Earth; but only in the apparent Shadow of it. Neither was it thus in all Parts of the Earth alike; but only upon the Sun-dial of Ahaz. And this, tho' happening only to a private Dial, was sufficient, as it was intended, to satisfy a private Person. When (r) Hezekiah said unto Isaiah, What shall be the sign, that the LORD will heal me? And that I shall go up to the house of the LORD the third day? Then Isaiah said, This sign shalt thou have of the LORD, that the LORD will do the thing which he hath spoken. Shall the shadow go forward ten degrees? or go backward ten degrees? And Hezekiah said, It is a light thing for the shadow to go down ten degrees; nay, but let the shadow return backward ten degrees. And Isaiah the prophet cried unto the LORD, and he brought the shadow ten degrees backward, by which it had gone down in the dial of Ahaz. It is (s) certain, that the constant and uniform Motion of the heavenly Bodies receiv'd no Alteration in the Time of Hezekiah, as it is evident from the three Eclipses of the Moon, which were mention'd by Ptolomy (one about eight Years, and the other two about seven Years before it) the Calculation whereof, being computed backward from our Times; brings us to the same Time of the Day as it was then observ'd by the Chaldeans, in the same Manner as if no retrograde Motion of the Sun had happen'd at all. So that neither this in Hezekiah's Time, nor the other in the Time of Moses could make any Alteration in the Length of the Day or Night, or in any Astronomical Computations. And (t) there was no day like that, which was in the Time of Joshua, either before it or after it, that the LORD hearkned to the voice of a man, for the LORD fought for Israel. And therefore this alone, which was in the Time of Joshua, is to be observ'd in all the following Calculations.

16. Lastly, We must take it for granted, that the weekly Sabbaths, which were observ'd before the Time of the Mosaical Law, were observ'd on that Day of the Week, which we call Sunday, and not on that Day, which we call Saturday. This seems to me to be fully and plainly prov'd by a late Author, who (u) asserts, That all the Patriarchs from Adam to

Moses had stated Places for divine Worship, and a separate Maintenance for the Priests of the most high GOD. That they had set Times for their solemn Assemblies, and that these Times were weekly and of divine Institution; and that particularly when Cain and Abel sacrific'd, there was no other Computation of such Times, as related to their publick Worship, except by Weeks; and that Job himself observ'd a seventh Day. And then he endeavours to prove, that these weekly Sabbaths observ'd before the Mosaical Law, were Sundays and not Saturdays. To this end he particularly affirms, that the ancient Poets had Respect not to the Saturday but Sunday in their Encomiums of the seventh Day. That Tertullian, Justin Martyr, and Ignatius, among the primitive Fathers are exprefs for this Purpose; and that Justin Martyr affirms in an Apology to the best Philosophers then living, that the Christians celebrated Sundays as the prime Day, wherein GOD perfected the Creation. Hence he infers that there was a vast Disparity between the fourth Commandment, as (x) it was deliver'd by GOD, and as (y) it was deliver'd by Moses, the first being universal and perpetual, and the other particular and temporary. That the law, which CHRIST JESUS came not to destroy, had reference to the Antemosaical Sabbath. That the Saturday-Sabbath was only a Memorial of GOD's Deliverance of the Children of Israel out of Egypt, and that the Patriarchs celebrated the Sunday-Sabbath in Hopes of their own by CHRIST's future Resurrection. But the whole Book being professedly written upon this Subject, his Arguments are too many and too long to be here inserted.

17. Another learned and judicious Author (z) expounding the fourth Commandment saith, that nothing is therein expressly requir'd, but that after every six Days Labour there should be a Day of Rest, and that the different Method of computing Days for the fixing upon the Seventh for a stated Rest, is not inserted in this Law. That (a) the Explication of the Day, according to the Letter of the Law is thus, Six days shalt thou labour, and do all thy work. But the seventh (that is, after these six) thou shalt do no work. It is not said, The seventh Day of the Week as the Days are number'd in Egypt, or in any other particular Part of the World; but the seventh with reference to the six before mention'd. It is (b) therefore probable, that the Day instituted by Moses was not the same which had been observ'd before. If it had been the same, it would vastly have strengthen'd this Law of Moses to have inserted an Account of the ancient Practice. But when he seems so much concern'd to establish his Law of the Sabbath, and assigns as the main Reason the Israelites being brought out of Egypt, on the Day which he now fix'd upon ; and so obtaining Rest from their hard Labours, and also speaking of its being a Sign and Token of a farther Rest, which they were to be led into, and a Miracle must be wrought particularly to secure the Honour of the seventh Day, in GOD's giving them on the day before the bread of two days, that there might not be so much as their seeking for, or preparing their Bread on the seventh Day ; this seems to be a Point so much labour'd, because he fix'd on a Day different from that of the Patriarchs ; and therefore he never once mentions the Example of any one of them, tho' that might have done as much to recommend his seventh Day to the Seed of Abraham, as any Thing else which he alledg'd. However, this would have been such an additional Strength to his Law, that we can hardly think he would have omitted it, had his seventh Day and the seventh Day of the Patriarchs been exactly the same. The more he seems concern'd to secure the Observation of this Sabbath (and there is nothing about which he expresses more Concern than this) the more strongly will the Argument here conclude ; that he would have supported it by Alledging the Example of the Patriarchs, if their Example had been full to his Purpose.

18. However (c) it is evident, that the Measuring of Time by Weeks prevail'd every where in the World. Those Nations, which had no Knowledge of the Jewish Records, fell readily into this. And whatever Names they had to their Days, they had but seven to make up their Week. This plainly shews, that there must be some original Law and Foundation for such a Practice, before the Jewish Law was written.

19. And as they divided their Time into Weeks ; so they constantly observ'd one Day in seven as a Day to be kept holy. A Sabbath was so much observ'd all the World over, that a seventh Day (as Bishop Patrick tells us from Philo the Jew) was truly call'd ἑορτὴ πᾶνδνμ@, or the Universal Festival. Hesiod, one of the most antient Greek Poets, who is suppos'd to be cotemporary with Homer, saith, ἑπὶν ἱβδον ἡμᾶρ, The seventh Day is holy. Clemens Alexandrinus (d) hath prov'd by many Authorities, That the very Heathen knew, that the seventh Day was to be kept holy. Others quote Josephus, Aristobulus, Homer, Eusebius, and other Authors to this Purpose. And (e) Steuchius (a Man of so much Fame for general Learning, that he is said to be worthy of eternal Remembrance, and to be indeed the Ornament of Italy) affirms, as the Result of his great Reading and Observation in this Matter, That (f) a seventh Day was every where, and in all Ages accounted venerable and holy. So that when the primitive Fathers tell us, that the

Patriarchs did not sabbatize more Judaorum, they do not tell us that they kept no Sabbath at all, but only that they did not keep the same Sabbath with the Jews ; and when the heathen World exclaim'd against the Jewish Sabbath, they only blam'd it, because it was not the same Day, which others observ'd.

20. And now let us suppose a Day of Rest orderly observ'd from the Creation of the World, and then we must conclude, that the Day, which was in most common and universal Use, was most likely to be GOD's seventh Day. For when Nimrod (who is also Bel, Belus, and Baal) began to worship the Host of Heaven, and to set up Idolatry (whose Practice the other Potentates of Assyria and Chaldea afterward follow'd) it is most reasonable to imagine, that that Day would be appointed for the Worship of their chief God the Sun, which Day the antient Patriarchs had in the highest and greatest Veneration. This, no doubt, was the seventh Day according to their Account, which GOD at first bless'd. And therefore the Heathens call'd it Dies Solis, and we from them call it Sunday.

21. Against this it may be objected, that the seventh Day is mention'd, as the Day which was to be kept holy, and that this must be the seventh Day of the Week, the six first Days whereof were spent in the Creation of the World, and then the seventh Day was observ'd, which must have been the seventh Day of the Week according to the Jewish Custom, and not the first Day as we Christians do observe it. But to this it may be answer'd, that this seventh Day is no where said to be the seventh Day of the Week. We grant, that it was the seventh Day after GOD's six Days Work ; but yet it was the first Day of the Week from the Creation of Man, and so it hath continu'd ever since. In (g) the Beginning of the sixth Day GOD created the beasts of the earth after their kind, and cattle after their kind, and every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth after his kind ; so that Adam and Eve being the last of all the Creatures, were not form'd until the latter End of the sixth Day. And after the Creation of Adam he fell into a (h) deep sleep, so that he could not tell how that small Part of the Day pass'd away. The following Night and Day, or the evening and the morning of the seventh day, was therefore Adam's first Day. It was in reality the first complete Day of his Life and Being, which like the first fruits were to be dedicated to GOD. And as we cannot but imagine, that Adam would so number his days, that he might keep an exact Account how old he was, or how many Days he had liv'd, until Times were otherwise fix'd ; so he would begin the Measure of his Weeks, and the Number of his Days at the same Time. Thus his first Day was a Sabbath, when his Days and Weeks began, and so after six Days Employment about this Earth, he must go on to make every seventh Day, or the first Day of every Week to be a Day of holy Rest, as the first Day of his Life was; and thus it continu'd without any Interruption until the Time of Moses.

22. But when the Day, which GOD had set apart for his own Service, was every where perverted by the heathen World to serve their idolatrous Purposes, and devoted to the Worship of their chief Deity the Sun; and when GOD had chosen the children of Israel, as a peculiar people to himself, that they should worship and serve him alone, and had brought them out of the land of Egypt, and out of the house of bondage; then he particularly directed in the ten Commandments, that they should have no other gods but him; and that they should not make unto themselves any graven image, nor the likeness of any thing that is in the heaven above, or in the earth beneath, or in the waters under the earth, and that they should not bow down themselves to them, nor serve them; because he was the LORD their GOD. Thus he thought fit more effectually to break off the Israelitish Nation from Idols, and from the Heathen and Egyptian Superstitions; and that to this End they should go into a direct Opposition to them in the Day set apart for their religious Rest. For this Reason among others they must keep Saturday, when the heathen World observ'd the Day, which they call'd Dies Solis or Sunday. And in a Way analogous to the first Sabbath; as GOD created the World in six Days, and then rested the seventh day from all his works; so Moses gave them a Liberty, that six days they should labour, and do all that they had to do. But then he would have them worship the GREAT CREATOR of all Things on that Day, which according to the Egyptian Computation of the Week, was then also called the seventh Day. This occasion'd the great Aversions between the Jews and all other People, and that they were reproach'd as singular, for the Day which they observ'd and kept holy. By this Method they were set at the utmost Distance from the Worship of Idols, and were not to have any Communication with them so much as in the Time and Day of their chief Solemnities. And it must be acknowledg'd, that all this was little enough to preserve the Jews from falling into the Idolatry of the Nations round about them.

23. The particular Time, when this Alteration was made, seems plainly to be intimated in (i) these Words, And in the first day there shall be an holy convocation; and in the seventh day there shall be an holy convocation unto you: no manner of work shall be done in them. This particularly refers to the first and seventh Days of the Feast of unleavn'd Bread, which (k) began on the fifteenth Day of the first Month, and ended on the twenty first. And in the Year which the Children of Israel went out of Egypt, when this Feast was first appointed, it answer'd to the respective Days of the Week; so that on the first Day there might be a holy Convocation, as it was the antient Sabbath; and on the seventh Day there might be a holy Convocation, as it was the new Sabbath. And thus the (l) Children of Israel coming out of Egypt, on the Night which began the fifteenth Day of the first Month, might observe that Part of the Day, as long as the Sun appear'd, as a Time of Rest after so long and tedious a Journey. And in the same Manner passing through the Red Sea, on the Night which began the twenty first Day of the first Month, according to the constant Opinion of the Jewish Writers, and as it is approv'd by our best Chronologers, and seeing the next Morning the Egyptians dead upon the Sea-shore, they accordingly spent the remaining Part of the Day in praising GOD, and Resting from their Journeys, as they had done on the fifteenth Day of the same Month, or the first Day of the same Week. And thus, as we Christians observe the first Day of the Week, because on the first Day CHRIST rose from the Dead, and also we observe Easter Day, as the Day of the Year on which this Miracle happen'd; so the Jews observ'd the seventh Day of every Week, because on that Day of the Week their Deliverance was compleated; and they also observ'd the twenty first Day of the first Month, or the Feast of unleavn'd Bread, because it happen'd on that Day of the Year. But as the Jewish Sabbath was introduc'd, when the Israelites came out of Egypt; so I shall reserve the farther Discourse thereof for its proper Place.

24. I know, that it is the general Opinion, that the twenty second Day of the second Month, after the Israelites came out of Egypt was observ'd as a Sabbath, and several endeavour thus to prove it. The (m) Israelites came into the wilderness of Sin on the fifteenth day of the second Month after their departure out of the land of Egypt. Immediately upon their Coming thither they murmured against Moses, and GOD rain'd Manna for six Days, and the seventh Day was the Sabbath. So that according to their Computation the Sabbath was on the twenty second Day of the second Month, and consequently on the fifteenth Day of the same. Some urge this as an Argument, that the Sabbath was then alter'd from some other Day to the twenty second Day of the second Month, because the Israelites travail'd on the fifteenth, and rested on the twenty second as a Sabbath. And others plead from hence against the Morality of the Sabbath, because the Israelites travail'd on the fifteenth Day of the second Month, which must as certainly be a Sabbath, as the twenty second was. But in answer to all this, it is no where said, that the six Days, in which the Manna rain'd, are to be computed immediately from the fifteenth Day of the second Month, but from the Day on which they murmur'd; neither have we the least Intimation, that they murmur'd on that very Day, when they came to the Wilderness of Sin. Without doubt they brought Provision with them for one, two, or more Days, and they who had been so largely sensible of GOD's Mercies, would not murmur, until they were reduc'd to some Extremities. It is probable, that they murmur'd on the Sabbath Day, because it was an Act of the whole Congregation of the Children of Israel, when they were assembled for a much better Purpose; and then they had the Manna rain'd from Heaven the six Days following about their Camps. But the true Account seems to be this. They came to the Wilderness of Sin on the fifteenth Day of the second Month. Their Provisions lasted on the sixteenth, seventeenth, and eighteenth Days, and being then spent, they murmur'd on the nineteenth Day, which was their Sabbath. A judicious Author (n) tells us, that no other Reason can be giv'n for the mentioning the fifteenth Day of the second Month, but because the Sabbath did begin from thence. But another may argue with as much Force of Reason thus, It is certain that the Sabbath did not begin from the fifteenth Day of the second Month, because this Day is particularly mention'd, as a Day in which they journey'd, and not as a Day in which they rested. If one particular Person could not find out the true Reason; yet it doth not also follow, that the true Reason cannot be found out by another. It is a sufficient Reason to me, that Moses (o) reckoning up their Journeys, puts the Wilderness of Sin at the Time of the seventh Resting, which shews, that as they came so far in the Space of a full Month; so they might easily have enter'd Canaan in the Space of a whole Year, if their Sins had not caus'd them to wander in the Wilderness.

25. I have been so long on this Subject to prove, that the Patriarchs before the Time of Moses observ'd the same Day of the Week for a Sabbath, which we now observe; because the fixing of the Distance of several Years which happen'd before the Time of Moses, from the Birth of CHRIST, depends hereon; as particularly the Year of the Creation, the Year of the Flood, and the Year of the Promise given to Abraham, as well as the Year when the Israelites, departed out of Egypt, which will appear by the following Computations. And as such Epochas as these being the most ancient, are the most difficult Parts of Chronology; so when these are settled, the rest will be made more easy.

26. In these following (p) Chronological Ta- bles, I place the Year of the Creation in the 4007th Year of the World, before the vulgar Year of the Birth of CHRIST, which (by adding (q) a Year in these Tables for the Year of his Birth) is four Years before the Date hereof, as it is commonly computed, as was the 706th Year of the Julian Period. In Order to find out the Days of the Week for the respective Year, I divide the Sum of 706 by 28, or the Cycle of Years for finding out the Dominical Letter, whence it appears, that the Remainder is 6, which is the Number for the Cycle in the said Year, and consequently shews, (r) that the ancient Sabbatical, or our Dominical Letter for that Year was G. And as the Sun, on the twenty fifth Day of October near Noon, came to the Point of the Autumnal Equinox; so it is very remarkable, that this was upon a Thursday, or the fourth Day of the Creation, and consequently that this Day began about the Time of Sun Setting in the Evening before. And it is surprizing to find, how exactly the Place both of the Sun and Moon doth answer to every Thing in the before-going Hypothesis, as will appear from (s) the Calculation of both, for the twenty fourth Day of October, at six of the Clock in the Afternoon, in the Longitude of Babylon, being the Time in which the fourth Day of the Creation began.

27. It appears from this Calculation, that not only the Sun is at such a Distance from the Equinoctial Line, as to pass over it the next Day near Noon, which can happen but once in seven Years, on any particular Day of the Week; but the Position of the Moon is also as remarkable. The Creation of the Sun and Moon is (t) thus describ'd by Moses. And GOD made two great lights, the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night. And GOD set them in the firmament of the heav'n, to give light upon the earth. And to rule over the day, and over the night, and to divide the light from the darkness. And GOD saw that it was good. This Text seems to tell us, that the Moon was a great light; and so it was, being (u) not a Days Distance from the Place of her Full, and ruling over the Night, as rising within three Quarters of an Hour after Sun set, and thus giving Light unto the World. And as the Son of Sirach saith, (x) It was a light, which then decreas'd in her perfection. And (y) as the Moon was in North ascending Signs, with a great North Latitude; so it rose in the Evening of the sixth Day at about eight of the Clock, which was about half an Hour after the Twilight ended, and was sufficient to give Adam a clear Notion of the Evenings, with which the Days were to begin, and make him more sensible of the Benefit of the Moon, which was created for his Use. Besides, it is also remarkable; that this fourth Day of the Creation was the fifteenth imaginary Day after the Moon's Phasis, or of the Month, according to the ancient Way of Reckoning. This Adam might be sensible of after some Time, by keeping an Account of the Days of his Life. For as soon as he knew how many Days did make a Month, he might know how many Days were wanting to fill up the first Month, and so he might reckon, that the Creation of the Luminaries was upon the suppos'd fifteenth Day of the first Month. And this may be the Reason, that the Jews in Conformity to the ancient Patriarchs, when they began their Year, did not reckon from the new Moon, which began the Month. But that was always accounted the first Month, whose fifteenth Day was either the Day of the Sun's Transit over the Equinox, as at the Creation, or that which immediately follow'd. And such a Position (2) of the Heavens, as this was, in which the Sun passes over a Point given upon a particular Day of a Week, and a particular Day of the Moon's Age, is so rare, as not to happen above once in two hundred Years.

28. Such a Position makes it probable, that the Motion of the celestial Bodies, or of our Earth receiv'd no Alteration at the Time of the Deluge, notwithstanding what hath been asserted to the contrary. If such an Alteration should be granted, it would intirely spoil all the precedent Astronomical Calculations, particularly such as relate to the Creation of the World and the Beginning of the Flood. The Advancing of this Notion was occasion'd by another, viz. That the Deluge was caus'd by the Passage of the Comet, which was seen in 1680 so near the Earth, as to affect it in such a stupendous Manner by its Atmosphere; the Truth whereof depends upon two Suppositions, First. That the common Chronological Tables are true in Respect to the Year of the Flood, and Secondly, that this Comet's Motion is rightly calculated, and therefore admitting, that the latter Supposition is true; yet if I have rightly stated this Matter (and I hope it will appear so to be) this Comet came not to the Earth's Orb until four Years after the Flood, which intirely spoils all Notions of this Nature. They who look upon the Deluge as the miraculous Effect of an almighty Power to take Vengeance on a sinful World, may be fully satisfy'd, how it came to pass, without any farther Inquiry, and that the Destruction of every living Creature (those in the Ark only excepted) was all that was intended; and they who ask concerning any Particular, Why it was so? may receive a satisfactory Answer, Because GOD thought fit that it should be so. And they, who with all Modesty and Humility do inquire, How can these things be? may have all their Doubts and Scruples resolv'd from the Mouth of CHRIST himself in a few Words (a) With men it is impossible, but not with GOD; for with GOD all things are possible. But the many Attempts us'd of late to resolve it into the Effects of natural Causes, seem rather to be a Limitation of the GOD of Nature, as if in such an extraordinary Case he could not act without it, and is not only attended with such horrid Consequences, which I dare not mention, but hath prepar'd the Way to the boldest Attack upon the Credit of Miracles and all divine Revelation, which perhaps was ever seen or heard of since the World began. Philosophy, which was intended only as an Handmaid to Divinity, is too often exalted into the Throne to depose her Mistress, and too many Men treat of Scripture Truths by inquiring after them in such a Manner, as if the principal Thing, which they intended, was to prove them to be false. And the many Difficulties, which are rais'd about them in this Age of Infidelity, seem to have no other View, than to make them all suspected, and so to lessen the Authority of that Book, which gives us this Account; and if it can be exploded, then all Things must be false, which some private Persons say, that they cannot comprehend, and all Laws must be void, which they are not willing to submit to, which will lessen the publick Authority both of GOD and Man, and then the Creation of the World, and the Resurrection of our Bodies must expect to meet with the same Treatment, and at last all Notions of the Immortality of the Soul, and all future Rewards and Punishments will be look'd upon only as idle Fancies. That one large heavy Body will attract another from its own Orb is too evident to be denied; but the Wisdom, Power, Goodness and Providence of GOD seems to be very evident in this, that notwithstanding such an Alteration when the Earth and Planets return to their own Orbs, they go on in the same Motion, which they had before. Thus (†) The LORD is king, and the Governour of the whole World, he hath girded himself with strength, to prevent such Confusions, which would otherwise happen, he hath made the round world so sure, that it cannot be moved. And ever since the world began hath his throne been establish'd, and his Dominion hath been from everlasting. The Moon, which is the nearest Planet to us, is attracted out of her Orb by the Force of the Sun, either annually by the Sun's mean Anomaly or Distance from the Apogæum, or

(2) As there are seven Days in a Week; so the Sun could only pass over the Autumnal Equinox on a Thursday, probably but once in seven Years; and as there are at least nine and twenty Days in a Lunar Month, so by multiplying 29 by 7 it appears, that the fifteenth Day of the Month could probably happen at such a Time only once in 203 Years. But if we consider, that the Sun came to the Autumnal Equinox at or near Noon in that Day; and that the Moon came to her ascending Node, at Hor. 2. A. M. as if the one was to begin its Motion from a particular remarkable Point of the Equinoctial, and the other from a particular remarkable Point of the Ecliptick, notwithstanding their constant Variation from thence, and that the Moon in the Evening of the sixth Day, when Adam was created, had so great and such an increasing North Latitude, and was in North ascending Signs, which made her rise the earlier. All these Things put together make such a remarkable Position of these two Luminaries, that it is more than probable, that the like, in all Respects, hath not happen'd since the Year of the Creation. (a) Mark x. 27.

monthly by its Full and Change, which is call'd The Variation. Besides the Moon is drawn at every Change farther from the Earth, and at every Full nearer to the Earth by the same Force, and the Attraction at the Change is greater than at the Full, but yet all Things return afterward to a regular Order. And GOD hath given us above an hundred thousand Instances of this Nature in the Planet nearest to us, when no such Effect hath follow'd as hath been imagin'd, that we might not ascribe too much to a single Instance of the same Nature on another Occasion. Besides, If a Comet upon its Approach to the Earth's Orb should attract the Earth to a greater Distance from the Sun, yet after it had been equidistant from the Sun, it would attract it again toward the same Orb, and if upon its approach from the Earth's Orb it should attract the Earth nearer to the Sun; yet after it had been equidistant from the Sun with the Earth it would attract it back again, and leave it nearer its own former Orb. So before such a prodigious Alteration is asserted by the Coming of a Comet near the Earth, it should be well consider'd, Whether an Elliptick Motion, and an Aphelion and Perihelion being common to all the other Planets as well as to the Earth, this Phænomenon cannot as well be accounted for some other Way? Secondly, If the coming down of one single Comet should make so vast an Alteration in the Orb of our Earth, why the same Comet having descended seven Times, and above twenty other Comets, which descend more frequently should never since make the least Alteration (which we know of) in any one of the Planets either as to their Motion or especially their Latitude, which would be more easily discern'd? Thirdly, Whether such a Comet passing (as is suppos'd) from the Orb of the Earth to the Sun in about ten Days could have Time enough to draw the Earth both from and to the Sun at different Times so far that the Excess should be an Eccentricity of about 1350000 Miles, or four Times the Distance between us and the Moon? Fourthly, Whether any Comet is big enough for such a prodigious Attraction in so short a Time? Fifthly, Whether it would have been possible for any Creature to have liv'd in the Ark under such a prodigious Motion both to and from the Sun at different Times, as is supposed in such a Case? Sixthly, Whether such a prodigious Motion in so short a Space would not have destroy'd the Earth, and have scatter'd it into Atoms? And Lastly, If this Comet should make so great an Attraction in this Orb of the Earth, and comes always nearer to the Orb of Venus, whether at another Time it might not have came so near to Venus herself, as to have made a greater Attraction? Whereas at this Time tho' the Eccentricity of the Earth being in proportion to its Distance from the Sun is as 1 to 60; yet the same Proportion of Venus is but as 1 to 140. Concerning all which Queries I shall determine nothing, but leave it all to those who are more learned in these Studies to make the Computations, if they shall think it to be worth their Labour. There are others who tell us, that before the Flood the Poles of the Ecliptick and the Equator were the same, and consequently that there was but one Season, Ver erat æternum, throughout the Year. And yet the Scripture tells us, that (b) before the Flood, there was seed time and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, as constantly succeeding each other as day and night. Others tell us, that before the Flood there was only an intire Plain without either Mountains or Rivers, or Seas. But the Scripture tells us, (c) that on the third day of the Creation GOD commanded the waters of the Earth to be gather'd together in one place, and that the dry land should appear. And it was so. And GOD called the dry land earth, and the gathering together of the waters called he Seas. And GOD saw that it was good. That (d) a river went out of Eden, and from thence it was parted, and became into four heads; which are so describ'd by their Names, and by the Countries, thro' which they pass, that even at this Time we exactly know two of them, and can guess with the utmost Probability of the other two. And to urge no more Texts, (e) The Son of GOD, who was set up from everlasting, from the beginning, or ever the earth was, is thus describ'd as existing from the Creation. When there were no depths, I was brought forth; when there were no fountains abounding with water. Before the mountains were settl'd; before the hills was I brought forth: While as yet he had not made the fields, nor the highest part of the dust of the world. When he prepar'd the heavens I was there; when he set a compass upon the face of the depth. When he established the clouds above, when he strengthened the fountains of the deep: When he gave to the sea his decree, that the waters should not pass his commandment, and when he appointed the foundations of the earth. Then I was by him, as one brought up with him; and I was daily his delight, rejoicing always before him: Rejoicing in the habitable part of the earth. So that from these, and (f) the like Descriptions we may conclude it most agreeable to Scripture to affirm, that in the ordinary Course of Nature, (g) All things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation. And when (h) vain man would seem wise by advancing such Notions in Philosophy, which contradict the Scriptures, they need no other Answer but this, (i) Let GOD be true, but every such man be counted for a liar.

finding out of their Sabbath, or Days of Worship, I have added (k) two Tables; the Use of them is, to find the Day of the Julian Year, and also the Day of the Week, in which any given Day of the Patriarchal or Jewish Year did happen. Thus, Find by the Calculation of the Moon's  $\phi\acute{\alpha}\sigma\iota\varsigma$ , or first Appearance, (of which (l) afterward) or the first Day of the Patriarchal or Jewish Year given, as it is in the Julian Calendar. From thence take (m) the Number corresponding to the Day before, either in the Common or Bissextile Year. To this add (n) the Number corresponding to the Patriarchal or Jewish Year, and the Total is (o) the Number, which in the Julian Calendar shews the Day of the Month requir'd.

To find the Day of the Week, Divide the Year of the Julian Period by 28. and with the Remainder enter the second Table, where you will find a Dominical or Sabbatical Letter for a Common Year, or two Letters for a Bissextile or Leap Year, the first Letter answering to the two first Months, and the second Letter answering to the ten last Months. These Letters (p) will shew the Sabbaths, or LORD's Days, opposite to the respective Days of the Month, by which any other Days of the Week are easily found out.

An Example of this we have in (q) this present Chapter, and the Addition of the two following will be sufficient to illustrate this Rule.

First, The Flood began (r) on the seventeenth day of the second month, which was (s) seven days after GOD had (t) spoken unto Noah. Therefore GOD spake unto Noah on the tenth Day of the second Month. I desire to know, what Day of the Julian Year, and what Day of the Week this was.

Answer, According to these Tables the Flood began in the 2352d Year before CHRIST, I find by (u) Calculation, that the Year began upon the twelfth Day of October, the Moon being first visible on the Evening before. This being a Bissextile Year, the (x) Number corresponding to that Day is 286. and therefore the Number corresponding to the last Day of the Patriarchal Year is 285. The (y) Number corresponding to the tenth Day of the second Month is 40. which added to 285 is 325. and this (z) Number in the Bissextile Column answers to November 21. and was the Day of the Month when GOD spake to Noah.

To find the Day of the Week. According to these Tables the Flood happen'd in the 2361st Year of the Julian Period, which being divided by 28. the Remainder is 9. So that (a) C is the ancient Sabbatical Letter for the latter Part of that Year, and proves (b) that it was upon the Day of their Sabbath, when GOD spake unto Noah.

Secondly, In (c) the following Year on the twenty seventh day of the second month GOD spake again unto Noah. I desire to know on what Day of the Julian Year, and on what Day of the Week this also was.

Answer, I find by (d) Calculation, that the new Year began on the second Day of October. The (e) Number corresponding to that Day is 275. and therefore the Number corresponding to the last Day of the preceding Year is 274. The (f) Number corresponding to the twenty seventh Day of the second Patriarchal Month is 57. which added to 274 makes 331. which answers in a common Year to (g) the twenty seventh Day of November, on which Day GOD spake again to Noah.

To find the Day of the Week for the same Day in the same Year in these Tables. The Year of the Julian Period is 2362. which being divided by 28. the Remainder is 10. which Number (h) shews B to be the ancient Sabbatical Letter for that Year, and (i) that it was the Day of their Sabbath, when GOD spake again unto Noah.

				Embolimæan Year ends	Embolimæan Year ends.

Note, That 19 Julian Years make 6939d 18<sup>h</sup> and the twelve common Years among the Jews of 354 Days, with the seven Embolimæan Years of 184 Days, which are in the same Space of Time, make but 6936 Days; so that in nineteen Years among the Jews it must happen, that sometimes three Days and sometimes four Days must be wanting to make the Number complete: Hence it is evident, that not only some of the common Jewish Years must consist of 155 Days, but also that another Embolimæan Month must be inserted in about 152 Years. But I have taken no Notice either of the additional Day, or of the extraordinary Embolimæan Month in these Tables, because they are of no Use in the following Calculations.

30. How long Adam continu'd in the State of Innocency cannot be so easily determin'd. There are some who affirm, that he fell on the same Day in which he was created, and endeavour to prove this Assertion, from (k) the Words of the Psalmist, who having shewn the carnal Confidence of Man, proves it to be vain from this Expression, Man being in honour abideth not; or as others translate it, Adam being in honour lodged not there all night. But this is impossible. The most probable Account is this, Adam was created toward the latter End of the sixth Day, being the last of all the Creatures. On this Day GOD caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, took one of his ribs, and form'd Eve thereof, but conceals her from him. Immediately upon this follows the Sabbath, or Day of Rest. On the next, or eighth Day, GOD brings all the beasts of the earth, and all the fowls of the air to Adam, whilst he gave names to them all; but observing that all the other Creatures had Mates, he could not but be griev'd, because he alone was left destitute of such a Comfort and Assistant. Upon this GOD brings Eve to Adam, who presently knew who she was, and of what she was made, and is a plain Argument, that we shall know one another in Heaven, when we shall be restor'd to our primitive Innocency. Then GOD instituted the holy Ordinance of Marriage to continue to the End of the World, joyn'd Adam and Eve together in this State, took them from the Place where they were, and sett'd them in the Garden of Eden, which he had before made, to dress it, and to keep it, with a full Liberty to eat of the fruit of every tree in the garden, except the tree of knowledge of good and evil. On the ninth Day Adam and Eve follow their Work, and the Devil, envying their Happiness, contrives Means to make them lose their Innocency, and so to plunge them and their Posterity into Misery,

(k) Psalm xlix. 9, 10. ואדם ביקר בל ילין

and it was not long before he was too successful. Our Saviour saith, that (l) the Devil was a murderer from the beginning. The Syriack Translation, which Language CHRIST spoke, renders it from in the beginning, the common Phrase, whereby the Jews express'd the six Days of the Creation. The Jews, who stood by and heard these Words, could no otherwise understand them, than that the Devil was a murderer from that very Day in which Adam was made, or from a Time very near it. And since (m) whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer in the Sight of GOD; so in this Sense he murder'd our first Parents, at least intentionally, on the Day that they were created. And so CHRIST meant in these Words, as speaking according to the common and familiar Language of that Nation. It is therefore without all Question, that the Devil would lose no Time; but as he was fallen himself, so being full of Spite at the Happiness and Honour of Adam, he would hasten all that he could to bring him out of that State, which he so much envy'd. Besides, if Adam and Eve had been long practis'd in Obedience, they had not been so soon shaken, when they came to be try'd. And the Speech of Eve to the Serpent (n) as it is in the Hebrew, We shall eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden, and not We have eaten, seems to intimate that they had tasted but of few Trees before. And it is evident, that they had not as yet tasted of the Fruit of the Tree of Life, (which they could not but desire) tho' it grew in the middle of the garden. It is therefore most probable, that (o) the other Occurrences mention'd in the Scriptures, might take up so much Time, as until the tenth Day from the Beginning of the Creation, and that (p) on the tenth Day our first Parents fell from their original State of Innocency. And it is remarkable, that (as if it was to keep up the Remembrance of this great Misfortune) the tenth Day of the seventh Month among the Jews (which answer'd to the tenth Day of the first Month in former Ages) was appointed by GOD, as (q) a day of atonement, or a solemn Fast, (call'd (r) the fast by Way of Eminency) in which there was to be an holy convocation, and an offering made by fire, and every Person, whether he was one of their own Tribes, or a stranger, which sojourn'd among them, was oblig'd to afflict his soul, under the Penalty of being cut off from among his people. The great Afflictions and Humiliations, so solemnly to be perform'd, seem all to shew, that on this Day Afflictions began, and that they should be all humbled for that Sin, of which they were all guilty in their first Parents, and which was the first Cause of all the Miseries, that have happen'd ever since. However, the great Solemnities us'd (s) on that Day may induce us to believe, that there was a more than ordinary Occasion for them; and all other Accounts hitherto given (which I know of) are no Way satisfactory. Among all those Rites and Ceremonies, that of the (t) two Goats cannot be omitted. On this Day of Expiation the Scape Goat was presented, and the other was sacrific'd. On the same Day that Adam and Eve sinn'd, they were condemn'd but escap'd, and (u) GOD made them coats of skins, and cloath'd them. These Skins were suppos'd to be taken from the Beasts which were sacrific'd. Thus as Sin brought Death among the Creatures; so the first living Creature that died was a Type of CHRIST, who was (x) the lamb of GOD slain from the foundation of the world. On the Day that Adam sinn'd, he had the Promise of a Saviour, that (y) the seed of the Woman should bruise the Serpent's head. And on this Day of the Year alone the Jews thought it lawful that the sacred Name JEHOVAH should be pronounc'd by the High Priest alone, when he came out of the Holy of holies, and when the Promise seem'd to be repeated in the strongest Terms, (z) The LORD shall bless thee, and shall keep thee. The LORD shall make his face to shine upon thee, and shall be gracious unto thee. The LORD shall lift up the light of his countenance upon thee, and shall give thee peace. On the Day that Adam sinn'd he was liable to die; but he escap'd, and (a) a sin-offering interpos'd; and GOD appointed CHRIST JESUS for a Mediator, on whom as on the Goat the Lot fell, that he should be crucify'd and slain. The Jews tell us, that the Scape Goat was tumbl'd from a high Rock and dash'd in Pieces. For this there was no Command in Scripture, but only (b) that he should be sent into a land not inhabited. Josiphus saith, that he was (c) sent into a Desert without Bounds, (as the World was at first) which must be those Deserts of Arabia, that lay eastward from the Land of Canaan. Thus Adam was expell'd into a barren and an uncultivated Land, and he went eastward because (d) on that Side of the Garden the Cherubims were plac'd to prevent his Returning again. And the Hebrew Phrase (e) a land of separation to which the Goat was sent, seems more particularly to allude thereto. As he, who convey'd away the Scape Goat, was thereby render'd unclean; so all the Posterity of Adam was unclean by him. And as he, who was unclean by Accompanying the Scape Goat, was oblig'd to wash his cloaths and bath himself in water, before he was fit to come into the Camp, which might conveniently be done in the River Jordan; so CHRIST JESUS by being baptiz'd in Jordan, did (as our Church expresseth it) sanctify water to the mystical washing away of sin, and especially of that Original Sin, which we had by Adam, it being thus apply'd to such who had no other. Thus all Mankind, to whom Adam's first Transgression is imputed, must be baptiz'd with water, before they can come into the camp, be admitted into the Congregation, or esteem'd as Members of the Church of CHRIST. And tho' some Parts of the Jewish Law were dark and obscure; yet the Doctrine of Original Sin was (f) clearly reveal'd, and (g) plainly express'd. It may be objected, that it is very improbable, that Adam and Eve would stay so long in Paradise, and not eat of the Fruit of the Tree of Life. But to this it may be answer'd, that upon Supposition, that he was brought thither on the eighth Day, and fell on the tenth, he could be there but one whole Day and Part of two more before he fell, and made us all liable to Death; and so long was CHRIST JESUS in a State of Death, before he deliver'd us from it. But when Adam was in this happy State, he presum'd like St. Peter too much upon his own Strength, and perhaps might be willing to intitle his Posterity to eternal Life by his own Obedience; and so he neglected to taste of this Fruit, until he was hurry'd away by the Violence of the Temptation, and then he lost the Opportunity.

31. There have been some Men, who (considering the long Lives of the Patriarchs) have entertain'd an Opinion, that (h) the Years in that Age were not Solar but Lunar Revolutions, that is, so many Lunar Months, of which seven and thirty do make something more than three of our common Years. And thus they say, that (i) Methuselah, the oldest Man mention'd in the Scripture, liv'd nine hundred and sixty nine Years, or Lunar Months, so that he died, according to our Computation, when he was about eighty Years of Age. But he who only considers, that if this was true, then (k) five of the Antediluvian Patriarchs must each of them have a Son before they were nine Years old, and that also (l) Cainan, Mahalaleel, and Enoch, must each of them have a Son in the sixth Year of their Age, according to our Computation, may without any other Arguments be convinc'd, that this Hypothesis is impossible. Besides, the Genealogies between the Flood and Abraham, together with those of the later Patriarchs, will afford much greater Difficulties; all which will be easily remov'd upon this Supposition, that the Lives of Men did gradually grow shorter from the Creation to the Time of Moses, in the same Manner as the Scriptures relate them. Had the ancient Years been Lunar of one Month, and not Solar of twelve, by which the same Duration of Life had been differently measur'd in different Ages, the Number of Years which Men liv'd, must have alter'd on a sudden in the Proportion of twelve to one, when the Year was chang'd from being Lunar to Solar, which would no doubt have been refer'd to, and they could not have alter'd gradually and gently, as it is evident that they did. If the Years were Lunar, when the Patriarchs liv'd between nine hundred and a thousand, what Years must they be immediately after the Flood, when they liv'd between four and five hundred? Or after the Tower of Babylon was built, when they were shortn'd to between two and three hundred? Or in Jacob's Time, when their Lives were between one and two hundred Years? Or how can they account for the respective Years, in which these Patriarchs had Children? But St. Augustine (m) hath long since confuted this Notion in this Manner: How can it be said, that (n) the waters were upon the earth in the six hundredth year of Noah's life, in the second Month, and the seventeenth day of the month, unless the Months were the same as they are now? And if the Months were the same, Why not the Years? And afterward in the End of the Flood it is thus written, (o) The ark rested in the seventh month, on the seventeenth day of the month upon the mountains of Ararat. And (p) in the tenth month upon the first day of the month were the tops of the mountains seen. And this first Month, second Month, seventh Month, and tenth Month, happen'd in the (q) same Year of Noah's Life, who liv'd (r) nine hundred and fifty Years. And (s) in the second month on the seven and twentieth day of the month, GOD spake again unto Noah. So that here are ten Months in the same Year, and seven and twenty Days in the same Month. If then there were ten Months in the same Year, Why not twelve? And if there were seven and twenty Days in the same Month, Why not thirty? So that if the Years were twelve Times as short as they are now, then the Months also must be twelve Times as short, as they are now. And the same must also be said of the Days, since (t) the tenth Month is mention'd in one of the Years of Noah, and the (u) seven and twentieth Day in one of the Months. According to this strange Way of Reckoning, the Flood, which (x) the Scripture saith, was upon the earth forty days and forty nights, must be translated, three Days and eight Hours. But who can endure such a Vanity and Absurdity? Such a Method instead of Confirming the Scriptures, will destroy them, and by Attempting to solve one Scruple, will not only raise many, but leave them both unanswer'd, and unanswerable. And therefore (as he there adds) their Day must be the same with ours now, which is divided into twenty four Hours, and takes up the whole Space of Light and Darkness, in which the Sun passeth from any one Meridian to the same. Their Month must be the same with ours now, only determin'd by the Space of one Change of the Moon to the other. And their Year must be the same with ours now, containing all the four Seasons, and determin'd by the Revolution of the Sun to the same Point of the Ecliptick. And therefore there can be very little Difference between a thousand Years at that Time, and a thousand Years in any other Age of the World.

32. The Jews observe (as was (γ) before mention'd) that all the Antediluvian Patriarchs were born at Autumn, in the first Month of the Year according to their ancient Account. As this cannot be contradicted, so if it is granted, then Noah was entering upon the (z) six hundredth Year of his Life when the Flood came, and when he was (a) six hundred Years old complete, and entering upon the six hundredth and first Year of his Age, he was in the Ark, whilst the flood of waters was upon the earth; in which Year he also (b) landed on the Mount Taurus, or Caucasus, these being the highest of all those which are call'd The Mountains of Ararat, which also lie (c) eastward from Babylon. And therefore as Methuselah liv'd (d) to be in the nine hundredth and sixty ninth Year of his Age; so he died but a very short Time before the Flood, which the Jews do generally affirm, and (e) his Name seems to intimate. And as Adam was created in Autumn Anno Mundi 1. so he was one Year old in Autumn Anno Mundi 2.

33. The History of the Creation and of the Times before the Flood might, by Reason of the long Lives of the Patriarchs, be more easily conveigh'd down by Tradition, until a Method was found out to perpetuate the same in Writing. For Noah was born but an hundred and six and twenty Years after Adam died; and Methuselah liv'd two hundred and three and forty Years cotemporary with Adam, and near six hundred Years in the Time of Noah; so that he alone might easily communicate that Knowledge to the one which he had receiv'd from the other. And after the Flood Noah died but two Years before Abraham was born; and Terah, Abraham's Father, liv'd an hundred and twenty eight Years cotemporary with Noah, and seventy five Years with Abraham; so that Terah, Noah, and Methuselah alone might convey down the ancient Knowledge even from the Creation until the Time of Abraham, when an effectual Care (f) was taken to continue the same among his Posterity. And how far others also might be serviceable to such a Design, may be farther observ'd from (g) the following Chronological Tab'e.

N. B. That in all these Tables I reckon by Julian Years, each Year beginning on the first Day of January. I also place the Letter A to signify the three first Months of the Year, or rather the Winter Quarter, beginning at the Winter Solstice, and ending at the Vernal Equinox. The Letter B to signify the three next Months of the Year, beginning at the Vernal Equinox, and ending at the Summer Solstice. The Letter C to signify the seventh, eighth, and ninth Months, or the Summer Quarter, beginning at the Summer Solstice, and ending at the Autumnal Equinox. And the Letter D to signify the three last Months of the Year, or the Autumnal Quarter beginning at the Autumnal Equinox, and ending at the Winter Solstice. These Things consider'd, I suppose, that there can be no Difficulty in Apprehending the following (h) Chronological Table.

(a) Tho' there is no Time fix'd in Scripture for the Birth of Cain and Abel; yet as GOD had (a) given our first Parents this Blessing, to be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth; so it cannot be suppos'd, that they were long without Offspring.
(b) The Murder of Abel could not be long before the Birth of Seth, because (b) he was the next born of all the Sons and Daughters of Adam after the said Murder. It was always Customary to give Names to Children almost as soon as born, and in those early Ages the Names were given as a Memorial of something remarkable, which happen'd about that Time. And (c) the Name of Seth with the Reason thereof shews, that the Murder of Abel was then fresh in the Memory of Eve.

(c) That something of a very bad Consequence happen'd at the Birth of Enosh is plain, because his Name signifies sorrowful. And the Reason is given (d) Then began Men to deify other Creatures, or call them by the name of the LORD. This being the literal Interpretation of the Hebrew Text, and the Targum of Jonathan Ben Uzziel translating it in the same Manner; and both the Perisic Translation and the Septuagint, and many learned Expositors favouring the Sense, I take it to be the same with (e) They ascribed unto stocks and stones the incommunicable name. And the History of Sanchoniatho, as it is interpreted by the late learned Bishop Cumberland, gives very great Reason to conclude, that Idolatry, or at least the Worshipping of Deifying of Creatures, might begin about this Time in the Race of Cain, tho' it made but a slow Progress for some Ages after.

(d) That Noah was an hundred and twenty Years employ'd in Building the Ark, (f) seems very evident. And it is probable, that GOD directed (as (g) the Septuagint expresseth it) that it should be made of Square Beams, not of Boards, and as others say, of that Wood which was most lasting. The Word עץ in Hebrew may perhaps signify the Cypress by an easy Variation of the same into Greek and Latin, and other Languages. And the Arabick شجر signifies the same, according to the constant Opinion of the Moors and Arabians; as the learned Dr. Castle assures us in his Lexicon. It was a Wood both durable and fit for Shipping, and therefore (h) our Translators joyn it with the Oak for this Reason. And of this Alexander's Navy was built at Babylon, so that it grew in great Plenty in those Parts. GOD said (i) that his Spirit should not always strive with man by publick Punishments, for that he also is flesh, frail and mortal, and then the World would never be replenish'd. However he would make one Example of his Justice at the End of one hundred and twenty Years, which was the Time that the ark was preparing, and which if regarded might have led them to repentance. When GOD said, (k) The end of all flesh is come before me, it signifies no more than, that the End is determin'd, and shall come in its due Time, unless prevented by Amendment of Life, as appears from the latter Part of the same Verse, Behold, I will destroy them with the earth. The Placing of the present for the future Tense is very usual in the Scriptures, of which there are (l) several Instances. However, if Noah was an hundred and twenty Years in Building the Ark, then it is certain, that he began to build twenty Years before the Birth of either of his three Sons, and in this Sense also (m) By faith Noah, being warned of GOD of things not seen as yet, moved with fear, prepared an ark for the saving of his household.

(e) That Japhet was the eldest Son, Shem the second, and Ham the youngest, appears from the Texts quoted in the Table. Besides, (n) Japhet is expressly said to be the elder Brother, and (o) Ham is said to be the younger; so that Shem of course must be the second, Japhet, who was the elder Son, must be born when (p) Noah was five hundred years old, and therefore he must be in the six hundredth Year of his Age (q) at the Flood. Shem the second Son was two Years younger than Japhet; so that (r) he must be an hundred Years old, two years after the flood. There is no certain Account of the Age of Ham, but it is probable, that he was not much younger than the other two, because (s) he was also marry'd at the Time of the Flood. Tho' Shem was not the eldest; yet he (t) is always nam'd the first, because the Genealogies and the Chronology are kept up in his Line, and the principal Parts of the sacred History relate to his Family. The like Method is also observ'd at the Birth of Abraham, as will appear in its proper Place. Tho' Ham was the youngest; yet he is always nam'd next, because (u) he was the Father of the Canaanites, and (x) the Egyptians, which take up a considerable Part of the Mosaical History; and Japhet is named last, because none of the said History relates to his Posterity.

(f) The Placing this Year as the Year of the Flood is liable to two Objections, which at the first View seem so great, that I had not plac'd the Beginning thereof in this Manner, had I not been forc'd by Astronomical Calculations so to do. The first is, that Noah is (j) said to be six hundred years old, when the flood of waters was upon the earth; and in these Tables he is but five hundred and ninety nine Years old. But this Expression is (z) afterward explain'd, that it was in the six hundredth year of Noah's life, when he was more than five hundred and ninety nine Years old, and entring upon the six hundredth Year of his Age. Thus in many Cases we usually say, Anxus inchoatus pro perfectio habetur. A very famous (a) Author among the Jews lays down this as a Rule to be observ'd, that Part of the Month is as the whole, and Part of the Year is as the whole. This is evident from most of the (b) Expositors, who have treated on the Resurrection of our SAVIOUR, as mention'd in the Creed, or on those Texts, which afford any Difficulty in this Case, and whatever Cavils have been since made, it is plain, that the antient Jews and the Apostles understood all these Expressions only in this Sense. For when CHRIST said, (c) As Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly; so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth; and (d) After three days he shall rise again; his Enemies only desir'd, (e) that the sepulcher should be made sure until the third day. And (f) his Friends expected the Accomplishment thereof, when the third day came, since these things were done. The other Objection is, that Methuselah is said (g) to be nine hundred and sixty nine years old when he died. But in these Tables the Flood is plac'd at that Time, when he was nine hundred and sixty eight Years old. But this will also be explain'd by what is already mention'd. He was above nine hundred and sixty eight Years of Age, and entring into his nine hundred and sixty ninth Year. And if he was born in the Beginning of the Year, or at Autumn, (as the Jews assert) then he must be of the Age here mention'd, before (h) the second month and the seventeenth day of the month, when the Flood came, and consequently he died but (i) a little Time before it, or in the Week before it, if a Jew in this Case can be credited.

CHAP. II.

Of the antient Method of computing Years and Months.

BEFORE I proceed to such Astronomical Observations as will be necessary in the remaining Part of this Work, the Method of computing their Years and Months in those antient Times must be fix'd, as far as possible.

2. First, The World being created near the Autumnal Equinox, it is plain, that as the first Day and first Week, so the first Month and first Year began at that Time, and that the Years were so far fix'd, as to begin about the same Season, or at least, as near as they could compute, within about sixteen Days before it, or sixteen Days after it. When GOD created the Sun and Moon, he particularly appointed (a) that they should be for signs and for seasons, or to determine the Jewish Feasts, which happen'd upon the select Days of each Month, and for the Distinction of days and years; so that they could as certainly compute the Number of Years by Summers, as the Number of Days by Sun risings. And therefore if at first they might make a Difference of a Month or more in some Years, for want of that Skill in Astronomy which hath been in later Ages; yet the Number of their Years in general might still be the same, and these lesser Deviations would be so reckon'd in succeeding Years, that the Julian or Gregorian Year might serve for a just Computation without a sensible Difference from the Beginning of the World. Thus (b) a Year in Hebrew comes from a Verb, which signifies to repeat or double, because it is only a Repetition or a Revolution, and the Learned may observe the same in the Syriack and the Arabick, and more especially in the Chaldean Language. So that the Beginning of the Year was not moveable to all the different Seasons; and in this it not only differ'd from the Mahometan Year, which consisted sometimes of 354 and sometimes of 355 Days, but never of more; and thus in the Space of about 33 Years it gains a Year more than is in the common Account. And it also differ'd from the Era of Nabonassar, which, tho' at first it was thought to be exact; yet differing about six Hours from the true Time, and leaving out the Bissexile Day in every four Years, did in the Space of 1460 Years begin four Times on each Day of the common Julian Year, and so made one Year more than the other.

3. That the Jewish Year was thus fix'd to the Seasons by divine Authority, and consequently unalterable is very evident, because (c) GOD not only settled the Month in which the Year was to begin; but also expressly commanded, that the Feast of the ingathering of the Fruits should be always at the end of the year, and in that particular Season, when they had gathered in their labours out of the field, and was therefore as immoveable as the Harvest itself. The (d) Feast of weeks was to be of the first fruits of the wheat harvest, and the principal Solemnity of that Feast was to be observ'd seven Weeks after the Passover; and this Passover is describ'd (e) to be at the Time, when they did begin to put the sickle into the corn, which in those hot eastern Countries was at the Spring of the Year. And (f) on the Morrow after the Sabbath in the Passover Week, which answers to our Easter Sunday, they were requir'd to bring a Sheaf of the first ripe Fruits of their Harvest to the Priest, to wave the same before the LORD, which, as it was a Type of CHRIST, was always fix'd to the same Day in which he (g) rose from the dead, and became the first fruits of them that slept. So that their Feasts and the Years, which depend upon them, were as certainly fix'd to the Seasons of the Year, as our Easter is fix'd to be within a certain Space of Time after the Vernal Equinox, and our other Seasons are also fix'd, which depend upon it.

4. Secondly, As it is plain, that the antient Year did begin about the Time of the Autumnal Equinox, and that all the other Seasons were fix'd thereby, and even that the Jews have since observ'd the antient Method in their civil, tho' not in their sacred Years; so it is as evident, that (h) when the Israelites came out of Egypt, the Beginning of the Year was chang'd to the other Equinox, or from the Autumn to the Spring. The same Methods, by which they observ'd the Autumnal Equinox in former Ages, would afterward be of equal Use for Observing the Vernal Equinox in the other Computation. And as formerly the full Moon immediately after the Autumnal Equinox was the Middle of the first Month in many or all other Nations; so the full Moon immediately after the Vernal Equinox was the Middle of the first Month among the Jews. And to prevent any Variation of these Seasons, they added an Intercalary, or supernumerary Month (as Occasion requir'd, and as the Jews do still observe it) once in three Years, or more particularly seven Times in nineteen Years.

5. Thirdly, It is evident, that their Computation of Months at first was made by Lunar Months, which began upon the Evening, when the new Moon did first appear. Accordingly they reckon'd their Days from Evening to Evening. And this made the Feast of the new Moons to be so remarkably observ'd among them. Thus at the Creation the Evening and the Morning, or the Darkness and the Light made each Day of the first Week. For this Reason (i) the Jews were oblig'd to celebrate their sabbaths from even to even. This Method was also in Use among other Nations, who reckon'd by Lunar Months as the Athenians and the Mahometans. For as there was a Necessity of Beginning their Months from the Evening; so there was a Necessity of Beginning their Days from the same Time. This Computation of Lunar Months began from the Creation. And thus (k) the Moon was appointed for signs and for seasons, to determine when their solemn Feasts should happen, and accordingly when their Months and Days should begin and end. It is evident, that this was afterward the Method in Use among the Jews. GOD (as (l) the Son of Sirach observes) made the moon to serve in her season for a declaration of times, and a sign of the world. From the moon is the sign of feasts, a light that decreaseth in her perfection. The month is called after her name, increasing wonderfully in her changing, after the Month is begun, being an instrument of the armies above, and shining in the firmament of heaven. And thus from the Beginning the Month in Hebrew was call'd (m) the Moon, or (n) the Renovation of Light. And (o) the Accent, which somewhat resembles a Semicircle is call'd The Moon a Day old, or The Moon newly begun.

6. Fourthly, It is evident, that for the better Determining the Beginnings of some Months a due Care was taken in the respective Evenings to observe, Whether the Moon was then visible or not? and report the same to such, who had a Power to fix the Months. This was done in Greece to the ἑσπεροι or Magistrates at Athens, and in the Land of Canaan to the Sanhedrim at Jerusalem. This Method was certainly us'd in the old World until the Time of Moses at the Autumnal Equinox; and after that by the Jews at the Vernal. And it is very probable, that in Process of Time, when they were settl'd in the Land of Canaan, that they made their Observations also on the Beginning of the seventh Month (or at the Autumnal Equinox) because of the great Number of Feasts, which were therein by divine Appointment, that so they might be more exact in the due Time of their Celebration: And that afterward, when the the Number of their Feasts and Fasts did increase, Observations were also made in the other Months, in which they were celebrated: And that this was their Method until their famous Astronomical Year was settl'd by Rabbi Hillel about the Year of CHRIST 358. This Method, which they us'd, is exactly describ'd by the Talmud and Maimonides in this Manner. In the greater or outer Court of the Temple there was a House or Room call'd Bethjazek, where the Senate sat all the thirtieth Day of every Month to receive the Witnesses of the Moon's Appearance, and to examine them. And here they always had a Feast, provided for the Entertainment of those that came, to encourage them to come the more willingly. In antient Times they did admit of Strangers, and receive their Testimony, if it was approv'd of by Examination, as, How large was the Moon? What was the Distance of her Setting after the Sun? Which Way were her Horns turn'd? In what Part did she set? Were the two Ends of the Horns perpendicular to each other? Which Way did the upper Horn decline? And how much? And thus, they, who had some Skill in Astronomy, and had been us'd to ask such Questions, recorded the Answers, and made proper Observations from them, and might be able to detect a Fraud, if any was intended. In Process of Time they began to be more shy, and to admit of no Evidence, but such as were approv'd of to be of the Jews Religion. If there came approv'd Witnesses upon the thirtieth Day of the Moon's φάσις or Appearance, then the chief Man of the Senate stood up and said, It is consecrated, that is, that Day is a holy Feast, or the Month is begun, and the People standing by caught the Word, It is consecrated, and repeated it to one another. Whereupon there was Notice presently given to all the Country, which was done at first by (p) blowing of trumpets, and after that by Lighting of Torches from Mountain to Mountain; but afterward (to prevent Impositions by any of the former Methods) by sending Messengers from Place to Place over the whole Land. But if when the Consistory had sat all the thirtieth Day, there came no approv'd Witnesses of the Moon's Appearance; then they made an Intercalation of one Day, and decreed the following thirty first Day to begin the new Month. And yet notwithstanding, if after the fourth or fifth Day there should come some Witnesses from afar, who testify'd, that they had seen the Moon in her due Time, nay, sometimes if they came toward the End of the Month, and if the Witnesses remain'd constant, when the Sanhedrim had us'd all Means to frighten them from such a Testimony, that so, if possible, they might decline a new Consecration, that even then they were bound to alter the Beginning of the Month, and to reckon it a Day sooner, that is, from the thirtieth Day.

7. Fifthly, In later Ages the Jews thus observ'd seven Months and no more in the Year. As, 1. the Month Nisan, or the Beginning of their Ecclesiastical Year, that the People might know the right Day of the Passover. 2. The Month Ijar, because of the second Passover in that Month. 3. The Month Ab, because of the two Fasts in that Month for the Destruction of Jerusalem. 4. The Month Elul, that they might the better know how to begin the next Month Tisri, or their civil Year. 5. The Month Tisri, because of their new Civil Year, the Day of Expiation, and the Feast of Tabernacles. 6. The Month Cisleu, because of the Feast of the Dedication of the Temple, after it had been profan'd by Antiochus. And, 7. The Month Adar, because of the Feast of Purim establish'd by Mordecai. But the Reasons, why three of these Months were observ'd, plainly shews, that this Method could not be settl'd, until a considerable Time after their Return from the Captivity.

8. But, Sixthly, tho' this was the later Practice among the Jews; yet it is evident, that the Antients, when they had settl'd the Beginning of the Year, did afterward reckon thirty Days to each Month. This is abundantly prov'd by (q) a late Author; but whether his Inferences from thence are just, I shall not now determine, but leave it to others. At first it is very probable, that some Countries reckon'd a Day for a Year, and there seems to be no other Way to account for that, which is reported of the Chaldeans, viz. that they boasted of their Observations of the Stars in (r) Cicero's Time for four hundred and seventy thousand Years, which even according to this Way of Reckoning brings it back almost to the Days of Joshua, tho' it is certain that they made Observations of the Sun and Moon long before. After this their Years consisted not of a diurnal, but of a lunar Revolution, for which at first they reckon'd thirty Days, not reckoning the exact Time, and being willing to make it divisible into many other equal Parts, as 2, 3, 5, 6, 10 and 15; and thus it is observ'd of the Chal-

deans, (s) that in Things pertaining to their Art they made Use of Lunar Years of thirty Days. This seems to have been the ancient Method of Computation among the Egyptians, whose (t) Year at first consisted only of one Month. So Varro in Lactantius (u) giving an Account of the great Age of some Men in ancient Times, who are suppos'd to have liv'd a thousand Years, assigns this as a Reason, that among the Egyptians, Months are accounted for Years; that not only the Passage of the Sun thro' the twelve Signs may make a Year; but also the Passage of the Moon, who goes thro' the Zodiac (or rather from Change to Change) in the Space of thirty Days. It is agreed by most Authors, that when the Egyptians had found out the Form of the Year by the Course of the Sun, which (x) was attributed to the Heliopolitan Priests; yet the Year in common Use consisted only of three hundred and sixty Days, which in any great Period of Years must needs make a monstrous Confusion, because the Months must of Necessity change their Places, from whence arose that Egyptian Fable in Herodotus, that (y) in the Time of their eldest Kings (before the Year was settl'd) the Sun had twice chang'd its Rising and Setting, which was only caus'd by the Variation of their Months from the Course of the Sun, and not by any Variation of the Sun from its own Course, and which according to their Way of Reckoning must have happen'd in the Space of an hundred and forty eight of their Years, which would be near equal to an hundred and forty six of our Julian or Gregorian Years.

9. It is certain, that in the Beginning of the Reign of Nabonassar, or seven hundred and six and forty Years before the Vulgar Year of the Birth of CHRIST, that famous Æra was settl'd, which goes under his Name; so that afterward that Year did constantly consist of three hundred and sixty five Days, and this Computation seems to have continu'd until Julius Cæsar brought in that Year, which is still in Use among us, and was always us'd in the Roman Empire until Pope Gregory the Thirteenth, in the Year of our LORD 1582. introduc'd another Method now in Use in most or all the foreign Countries of Europe.

Year consisting of three hundred and sixty Days in the whole; to which they added five, which the Egyptians call'd Epagomenæ, or as it is in the Greek ἐπαγόμεναι superadded, and the Ethiopians call them Pagomen, which is but a Corruption of the same Word; and the Persians, who us'd the same Way of Reckoning, call'd them (a) Mustcraka, or Days brought in by Stealth, which plainly alludes to the former Method of Computation (as far as was possible in Solar Years and Lunar Months) by an equal Number of thirty Days. And as the Chaldeans from the Time of Nabonassar came into the same Way of Reckoning the Year by twelve equal Months and five odd Days, which they call'd (b) a Year; so they kept up their former Method of Computation, which they call'd (c) A Time. This Distinction was plainly observ'd by Daniel, who sometimes makes mention of (d) Years, and sometimes of (e) a time, and times, and the dividing of a time. And what he calls (f) a time, and times, and half a time, is (g) mention'd by St. John, and (h) explain'd by forty and two months, or (i) a thousand two hundred and threescore days, which supposeth the Month to be equally divided into thirty Days, as (k) will very evidently appear in the Table hereunto annexed.

And the most learned Bishop of Worcester makes Use of this Method to prove, (l) how Daniel's seventy weeks did shew forth the Time, when CHRIST was to be crucify'd, and did also point at the Destruction of Jerusalem, and that both these, with many other Particulars, were accomplish'd according to this Method of Computation.

11. Thus it happen'd, that several of these antient Kingdoms, finding that these Lunar Years first mention'd did not always consist of

(a) A Word deriv'd from the Arabick. See Castle's Lexicon on the Word مسترق from سرق Numb 13. under סרק (b) שנה (c) ימן (d) Dan. i. 1. Dan. ix. 2. and Dan. xi. 6. (e) Dan. iv. 25. an equal Number of Months, nor the Months of an equal Number of Days, did soon think of a Solar Year, which they made to consist of twelve Months, and each Month of thirty Days. And as the Number both of the Months and Days were equal; so it might occasion this Computation to continue the longer, until (the Year beginning at different Seasons, and fix'd to none) they found a Necessity of adding the other five Days, to rectify it exactly (as they thought) to the Solar Revolution.

12. And that this Method of Computation was us'd in the more early Times, will appear from what (m) Synceſſus tells us, that in the Time of Aſſis, or Hercules Egyptius, (who was cotemporary with Isaac and Jacob, who was also the last of the Phœnician or Canaanitiſh Paſtor Kings in lower Egypt, and held a vigorous War againſt upper Egypt for nine and forty Years, and at laſt carry'd of his Men with their Arms and Goods into other Plantations, and particularly into Canaan) the Year was reform'd, by adding to it thoſe five Days above the three hundred and ſixty, and that he was therefore reckon'd to have been a very learned Man. But I ſuppoſe, that he took this Method from ſome Computation in Uſe among the Egyptians, and only introduc'd it into the Country where he reign'd.

13. But that this Method of Computing the Years was us'd long before among the Egyptians, appears from the Account which Plutarch gives us under this Fable. (n) Mercury being once at Dice with the Moon, he got from her a ſeventy ſecond Part of the Year, which he afterward added to the three hundred and ſixty Days. Theſe were antiently the Days of the Year, which they call'd Epagomenæ, and therein the Feſtivals of their Gods were celebrated. The firſt of theſe Days was dedicated to Oſiris, the ſecond to Orus, the third to Typho, the fourth to Iſis, and the fifth to Nephtha, who was the Wife of Typho and Siſter of Iſis. This Mercury or Hermes was the ſame with the Egyptian Thoth or Athothes, and was one of the Kings of Egypt in Abraham's Time, if not before it. And if he ſettl'd the Year, then the Antiquity thereof is paſt Diſpute, he being the Son of Mifraim, and the Grandſon of Ham. And therefore the Story ſeems to be thus: When Ham the Son of Noah ſettl'd in Egypt, the Year then in Uſe among them conſiſted of three hundred and ſixty Days. But in the Space of about an hundred and fifty Years the Sun had twice ſhifted its Courſe, or the Beginning of the Year had paſſ'd twice through all the Signs of the Ecliptick, and came to the Place where it was at firſt, which Mercury the King of Egypt perceiving, he added the five Days, which are call'd Epagomenæ, that ſo the Year might be fix'd for the future. However, the Names of theſe Gods may ſhew us, about what Time theſe five Days were introduc'd. Oſiris is allow'd to be the ſame with Mifraim. Orus was his Son, Typho marry'd his Siſter in-Law, Iſis was his Wife, and Nephtha her Siſter, ſo that they were all cotemporary. And as the Months of July and Auguſt in our Calendar were dedicated to theſe two Roman Emperors in the Time when the laſt was living, or but newly dead; ſo the Dedication of theſe ſuper-numerary Days in the Egyptian Calendar is an evident Argument, whereby we may gueſs at the Time of this Dedication, and conſequently when theſe Days were inſerted. And from hence the Method was taken, which was afterward eſtabliſh'd in the Aſſyrian Monarchy in the Time of Nabonaſſar.

14. As therefore Mofes was (o) learned in all the wiſdom of the Egyptians, and well knew, that the Months of thirty equal Days were ſettl'd in Egypt by Athothes or Mercury, and in Canaan by Hercules; ſo it was but natural for him to retain the ſame Number. And that he did ſo is paſt Diſpute from the Account, which he himſelf gives us of the Flood, that (p) the waters prevail'd upon the earth an hundred and fifty days. Theſe Rains, he tells us, began (q) on the ſeventeenth day of the ſecond month with great Violence, and (r) the Effects of them in ſome Meaſure ceaſ'd, on the ſeventeenth day of the ſeventh month, when the ark reſted. They laſted therefore exactly five of theſe Months; ſo that there were thirty Days in each Month, and an hundred and fifty Days in the whole. And therefore our moſt learned Prelate did (s) rightly obſerve, that the Years of our firſt Parents, and of the antient Egyptians and Hebrews did conſiſt of equal Months, each Month conſiſting of thirty Days; and that it could not be prov'd, that the Hebrews before the Babyloniſh Captivity did make any Uſe of unequal Lunar Months.

15. The Method therefore obſerv'd by the antient Patriarchs was this: They began their Year with a new Moon, the full Moon whereof did immediately follow the Sun's paſſing over the Point of the Autumnal Equinox. This occaſion'd ſo many Ceremonies and ſo much Rejoycing on (t) the Day of the new Moon, and eſpecially on (u) that particular Month. For this Purpoſe they took the beſt Obſervations, which they were capable of, and when they had ſettl'd their firſt Month, they afterward reckon'd thirty Days to each other until the End of the Year. It is eaſy to ſee the Difficulty, Uncertainty, and Expence, which muſt attend the Taking of Evidence for the

Moon's Appearance on the first Day of every Month, and how easily such as were Judges thereof, might be impos'd upon. Hence a Necessity for an exact Number of Days in each Month did soon appear, to prevent that Confusion, which would otherwise arise from their Beginning their Months in a different Manner, as it must happen, when the Month began on a cloudy Evening, or when for other Reasons a Mistake might arise in their Observations. And as there is a Space of 29 Days, 12 Hours, and 44 Minutes, between the middle Changes of the Moon; so the Months must consist either of nine and twenty or of thirty Days. That they could not long fix upon nine and twenty Days is evident, First, Because it is such an odd Number, as cannot be divided into any equal Parts. Secondly, Because thirty Days was nearer to the true Time by four and forty Minutes than nine and twenty Days. And, Lastly, If they had reckon'd by nine and twenty Days, all the other Months would begin, before the Moon was visible, which was contrary to the Ground of all their Computations. But if they reckon'd by thirty Days, then the Moon would be always visible, before the Month began. And as twelve such Months make three hundred and sixty Days, but twelve Lunar Months make only three hundred and fifty four Days and nine Hours; so the last Month must be shorter than the rest, and sometimes consist of twenty four Days, but sometimes also of twenty five.

16. But as twelve Lunar Months were about eleven Days less than the Solar Year, and as the Patriarchs were confin'd to the Course of the Moon in reckoning of the Months, and to the Course of the Sun in reckoning of the Year; so they added, as Occasion did require, a thirteenth Month once in three Years, or rather about seven Times in nineteen Years, which Month the later Ages call'd an Inter-calary or an Embolimean Month. That they did thus is evident from the Necessity of keeping the Year fix'd to the Beginning of Autumn. As Moses wrote so short an Account of the History of the World in his Time; so it is no Wonder, that such a Particular is omitted by him. And as he never tells us the Names of one of the Months, nor the Number of Months in the antient Year; so it cannot be expected, that he should inform us any farther. And we may take his Silence in not giving us an Account of the Months of the Year, as he did of the Days of the Week, as an Argument, that the Days of the Week were always equal; but the Months of the Year were sometimes unequal. Neither is it to be wonder'd at, that there is no Account thereof before Solomon's Time; because, as it was a Month which came but seldom; so there was not one Feast to be observ'd in it. And as it was in the latter End of the Winter according to the Jewish Account; so it was not a Time for Action, and therefore the less Remarkable. But the Care which was taken to fix the Year according to the Lunar Months, and to begin in the Spring, shews, that it must be thus observ'd and computed from the Time of Moses. However, there seems to be a constant Observance of an Embolimean Year in Solomon's Time. And if so, then, as he made no Alteration in the Year; so this is an Argument, that it was the constant Method us'd in antient Times. It is said, (x) that Solomon had twelve officers over all Israel, which provided victuals for the king and his household: each man his month in the year made provision. And (y) their twelve Names being reckon'd up, there is added (z) וְנָצִיב אֶחָד אֲשֶׁר בְּאֶרֶץ. Our English Translators, not being capable of receiving any Light from the antient Versions, render the whole thus: Geber, the son of Uri, was in the country of Gilead, in the country of Sihon king of the Amorites, and of Og king of Bashan; and he was the only officer, which was in the land. Now it must seem very strange, that after the Reckoning up of the twelve Officers for the twelve Months, and appointing to each of them their several Parts in the Land of Canaan, from whence they should fetch Provisions for Solomon's Table, and naming this Geber, the Son of Uri, as the Officer for the twelfth Month, and after all the rest, and appointing to him that Part of the Country, which lay most remote from Jerusalem, and beyond Jordan, that it should be recorded of him in particular, that he was the only officer, which was in the land. But the Rabbins interpret this Expression thus, And one officer, which was in the land for the Embolimean Year, or for the thirteenth Month, which happen'd about once in three Years, and who was only nam'd upon that Occasion. This is a very literal Translation of the Hebrew Text, and then the Sense agrees with all the rest.

17. As the antient Patriarchs only made an annual Observation to rectify the Beginning of their Year, and then all the Months follow'd in their Course; so when the Alteration of the Beginning of the Year was made from Autumn to Spring, at the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, we may suppose, that for some Time after they only made an annual Observation to rectify their Year, which Observation was also made at the Beginning of the Year, or in the Spring. The Command for the Observation of the Passover, and of the Change in the Beginning of their Years was not given, until the Year was above half spent according to the old Account, and the first Month, according to the new Account, had been actually begun for some Time, and therefore could not take Place for that Year: And as the Israelites were continually removing from Place to Place in the Wilderness for forty Years; so they had not then such Opportunities to make those Astronomical Observations, to fix the first Appearance of the Moon, as might afterward be made, when they were settl'd in Peace and Quietness in the Land of Canaan.

18. However, in Process of Time they made two Observations to fix their Months, one at the Beginning of the seventh Month, and the other at the Beginning of the first. Tho' the Jews began their Computation of the sacred Year from the Spring, and kept to it in the Scriptural Accounts; yet they reckon'd their civil Year as formerly from the Autumn; and their Beginning the Year of Jubilee from that Time laid them almost under a Necessity so to do. Besides, there were so many remarkable Feasts in this seventh Month, as the new Moon itself (which was kept with greater Solemnity in this Month than in the rest) the Day of Expiation and the Feast of Tabernacles, both which seem to be fix'd to particular Days after the new Moon appear'd, or as the (a) Hebrew expresseth it, after the Renovation or φύσις, that it could not well be deferr'd for three Days later, as it must be, if they had made their Observations only in the Spring. Such an Alteration as this would make the Months more equal. For as before it the last Month did consist only of twenty four Days; so after it was made, the sixth and last Month would consist of seven and twenty Days, and therefore would differ but three Days from the other Months, which is no more than February among us differs from March or May. And as February among us hath sometimes nine and twenty; so one of these Months might sometimes have eight and twenty Days, and so differ the less from the rest. Neither can we suppose, that David, whose Heart was so set upon the publick Worship of GOD, who compos'd so many Psalms for that Purpose, who was so intent upon, and provided so much for the Building of the Temple, and who settl'd the Courses of the Priests, and the Method to be observ'd by the Singers, Porters, and other Officers belonging thereto, could or would have omitted so necessary a Regulation as this. Or that Solomon, who built the Temple, and afterward compleated all that was projected, who had (b) such a wise and an understanding heart given him of GOD, so that there was none like him before him, neither after him should any arise like unto him; and particularly (c) whose wisdom excelled the wisdom of all the children of the east country, and all the wisdom of Egypt, where all the liberal Arts and Sciences were advanc'd to the greatest Perfection, and who had such a prodigious Skill in Natural Philosophy, could have so little Knowledge of Astronomy, as not to be sensible of, and regulate so great a Defect in their Annual Computations, when the stated Times of divine Worship did so much require it. And as all the Astronomical Observations mention'd in this Treatise, from the Israelites entering into the Land of Canaan to the Destruction of Jerusalem, relate only to the first and seventh Month; so it is not worth our Inquiry, Whether any, or what Care was taken to regulate the other Months in the same Manner?

19. Lastly, I take it for granted, that GOD spake unto the Patriarchs, and the Patriarchs offer'd Sacrifices unto GOD, on the Day of their Sabbath, which was the same Day of the Week with our LORD's Day, as (d) hath been already mention'd. This he did in those early Times to keep this Day in a greater Esteem, and he hath even in the Time of the Mosaical Law, shewn it some particular Tokens of Respect. The first (e) holy convocation to be observ'd on a Week-Day was begun, when the Israelites came out of Egypt; and there is not the least intimation of any such Thing before. On this Day of the Week they therefore offer'd their Sacrifices, and perform'd their other Parts of divine Worship. It was on this Day, that they spake unto GOD, and it was on this Day, that GOD spake unto them. Particularly, it was on this Day of the Week, when GOD spake (f) to Abraham, and (g) to Noah, and (h) on this Day that Noah offer'd Sacrifices unto GOD, as will more fully appear in their proper Places.

20. I have already given some Account, how the Year of the Creation of the World, as before fix'd, corresponds with Astronomical Observations; and, I hope, that it will appear in the ensuing Discourse, that I have fix'd from the same Principles (together with what is mention'd in this and the next Chapter) the Year of Noah's Flood, the Year of the Promise given to Abraham, the Year of the Israelites departure out of Egypt, the Year of the Dedication of Solomon's Temple, and the Year of our LORD's Nativity. I have this Satisfaction, that I agree with our latest and best Chronologers, from the Death of Ahaz to the Nativity of our SAVIOUR (which was about seven hundred and twenty five Years, which was also but one and twenty Years after the Settling of the Era of Nabonassar, from whence Ptolomy's Canon, so much celebrated by Heathen and Christian Writers, began, and the learned Dr. Prideaux begins his Historical Connexion of the Writings of the Old and New Testament from thence; which was also but two and twenty Years after the Building of Rome, and about fifty Years before the setting up of the Olympick Games, being the two Epochas from whence the Latin and Greek Chronologies began, and before which they had but a very confus'd Account of Time) and that I differ not from them at most above five Years, in any Time since the Creation of the World. And if it shall farther appear, that the Year of Jubilee is a Type of the Birth of CHRIST, and the Sabbatical Year is a Type of his Death, which began at their appointed Times, and ended with their respective Antitypes; then I hope, that there will be no Occasion of any farther Demonstration to prove, that the Scripture Chronology is absolutely authentick, and others, when they differ from it, must be rectify'd by it. That the Hebrew Text is the true Original, and that the Septuagint and Samaritan Versions are erroneous. That the same GOD, who made this planetary System, and set forward the Motion of the Earth and Moon, is a GOD of infinite Wisdom and Power; a GOD, who governs all Things by his Providence; a GOD, who was the Author of the Scriptures, which we now have; and a GOD, who infallibly knew before the Foundation of the World all the Particulars, which have since happen'd in it: And, lastly, that the religious Observation of the LORD's Day, or Sunday, is of divine Authority, it having been observ'd by all Nations from the Creation, the Israelites alone excepted, to whom another Day was given for a Reason peculiar to themselves, and as a Type, to cease when the Antitype was exhibited. And this I shall endeavour to do by GOD's Assistance in the following Discourse.

CHAP. III.

Of the Astronomical Method of computing the Time of the Moon's first Appearance after the Change.

BEFORE I proceed any farther in this Matter, it will be necessary to fix a Method of Calculating the  $\varphi\delta\sigma\iota\varsigma$ , or first Appearance of the Moon after her Change, and so to find out by Astronomical Principles, whether she will be visible on any given Evening after Sun set, or not. Upon this depends the fixing the first Day of every Patriarchal and Jewish Year, together with all their holy Feasts and Fasts, and the Months, which are subsequent thereon.

2. Maimonides (a) tells us, that if the Moon is less than nine Degrees distant from the Sun, she cannot be seen at any Time; or if between the Change and the Full she is above fifteen Degrees distant at her Setting, she must be visible. But if in such a Case the Distance is more than nine Degrees, and less than fifteen, it is uncertain, whether she can be visible or not. To omit the Case of cloudy Weather, this Uncertainty (as far as it depends upon Astronomical Principles) ariseth from four Causes. First, The Earth may be nearer to the Aphelium or Perihelium, and consequently the Light upon the Horizon, which comes from the Sun, may be either less or greater. But this is inconsiderable. Secondly, The Moon may be nearer to her Apogæum or Perigæum, which will make her apparent Disk to be less or greater. This is also so small, as not to be minded, especially since we are not to consider the whole Disk; but only, as it were, one single Thread of Light on the North-Side of the Moon. Thirdly, The Moon might set nearer to or farther off from the Azimuth of the Sun, which will be owing to the different Angle, which the Ecliptick makes with the Horizon, and also to the great Difference in her North and South Latitude, and accordingly the Light of the Sun is greater or less at the Moon when setting in Proportion to the Square of the Sine of the Angle made by the Horizon, and a Line drawn from the Moon to the Sun. And, lastly, The Sun at the Time of the Moon's setting might be nearer to, or farther off from the Horizon, accordingly as the Angle which it makes with the Ecliptick is less or greater, which would occasion a less or a greater Degree of Light to the Point perpendicularly over it (and consequently to the other Parts of the Horizon) in Proportion to the Square of the Sine of its Distance.

3. But these Particulars being too critical for common Use, I shall propose a shorter Method, which is thus. As twelve is the middle Distance between nine and fifteen the two Numbers mention'd by Maimonides; so it must be granted in most Cases, that if there are above twelve Degrees Distance on the Equinoctial Line, or of the oblique Descension (that is eight and forty Minutes of Time, which in the future Calculations I call the Time of Visibility) between the Setting of the Sun and Moon, then the Moon will be visible; but if not, then the Moon will be invisible. So that if the Moon is in ascending Signs as at the Vernal Equinox, or hath North Latitude, then she will set the later, and consequently will be visible the sooner after the Change. But if the Moon is in descending Signs, as at the Autumnal Equinox, or hath South Latitude, she will set the sooner, and consequently a longer

(a) In his Treatise De ratione intercalandi apud Judzos (bound up with his other Treatise De Sacrificiis) Cap. 17.

Time after the Change must be requir'd to make her visible.

4. And therefore the Time of the Sun's Setting on any given Day being known by Calculation, when the Moon is not above fifteen Degrees distant from the Sun, find out first the Longitude and Latitude of the Moon 48 Minutes after the Sun Setting, calculate the Declination, right Ascension, ascensional Difference, and oblique Descension of the Sun; and in the same Manner calculate the Declination, right Ascension, ascensional Difference, and oblique Descension of the Moon for the Longitude and Latitude of the Place given. Then from the oblique Descension of the Moon subtract the oblique Descension of the Sun, and if the Remainder is more than twelve Degrees, and the Moon is between the Change and the Full, it is evident, that the Moon will be above the Horizon at that Time, and consequently visible at her Setting; so that the Month must then begin, and then the Day following is the first Day of the Month. But if the Remainder is less than 12 Degrees, it is as evident, that the Moon will be below the Horizon at that Time, and consequently invisible at her Setting, so that the Month must begin at least a Day later, than what was mention'd before.

5. But tho' the Moon might be visible; yet it might sometimes happen, that she was not seen, for want of a clear Evening, or of proper Observations: And therefore the Beginning of the Month might be deferr'd a Day longer; which is fit to be observ'd in disputable Cases.

C H A P. IV.

Of the Years and Duration of the Flood.

AS the Flood (a) began upon the seventeenth day of the second month, and (b) it appears, that the Year at that Time began at the Autumnal Equinox, and that Moses began his Computation of that Year from the new Moon, whose Full immediately follow'd the same; so the next Thing requir'd is to find the Day corresponding thereto, in which this Year began according to our Method of Stating the same by Julian Years. If we suppose, that the Year at that Time began from the Vernal Equinox; we must suppose one Miracle more than either the Scripture or Reason give us Ground to think of, which is that the Waters should increase, and be at their Height all the Heat of Summer, and abate and decrease all the Cold of Winter. Whereas the Supposal, that the Year of the Flood began from Tisri, or our September, or from the Autumnal Equinox doth bring the Rains to fall in the Beginning of Winter, namely, from the Middle of our November to the latter End of December, being the Time of the Winter Solstice; and makes the Flood to lie at High Water above the Mountains from thence to the Middle of our April, and from thence to be drying up all the Heat of Summer.

2. To fix the Years and Duration of the Flood it is evident, (c) that it began on the seventeenth day of the second month, when Noah was entering upon the six hundredth Year of his Age, and it ended on (d) the twenty seventh Day of the second month, when Noah was entering upon the six hundredth and first Year of his Age; so that it continu'd a Year and eleven Days, according to the ancient Computation; or an exact Year, according to the Julian Account.

3. As the Ark was probably built at a Place call'd Cyparission, lying about North North East from Babylon, between the Rivers Lycus and Caprus (of which I shall say more in a Chapter on this Subject) so the Beginnings of the Days or Months mention'd immediately before the Flood must be comput'd from that Place and no other, it being the Place where Noah was at that Time. Now this Place call'd Cyparission according to the Map (e) in Bochartus lies in the Longitude of 78 Degrees, or 59<sup>d</sup> 24' Eastward of London, which converted into Time, makes 3<sup>h</sup> 57' 36" and in the Latitude of 36<sup>d</sup> 30'.

4. The remarkable Days are either in the first Year of the Flood in the six hundredth Year of Noah's Life, or in the second Year of the Flood, which was in the six hundredth and first Year of his Life; And if each of these happen to be on the Day of the Antemosaical Sabbath, or on the Day which we call Sunday; then (f) it will appear, that these Years are well fix'd, as the Years of the Flood.

5. As to the first Year of the Flood it is evident, that (g) on the tenth day of the second month, GOD commanded Noah to come with all his household into the ark, and to bring the Fowls and Beasts with him. The following (h) six days of the Week Noah was constantly employ'd in this Business. The next Day being (i) the seventeenth day of the first month he rested from his labours according to GOD's Appointment, and (k) upon the same Day, which was the Sabbath, the Flood came, and so it will appear to be (l) by Calculation.

6. It appears (m) from these Tables, that the first Year of the Flood happen'd in the 2361st Year of the Julian Period, which Number (n) being divided by 28, the Remainder is 9; so that (o) it is a Dissextile Year, and the Dominical Letter for the latter Part thereof is C.

7. It appears also (p) by Calculation, that in the same Year the Sun came to the Autumnal Equinox on the thirteenth Day of October, and that the new Moon was then first visible on the Evening before, and consequently that the Year began on that Day, so that the tenth and seventeenth Days of the second ancient Month happen'd to be on the twenty first and twenty eighth Days of November, whose Letter (r) is C, which shews, that these Days happen'd on the Days of the Antemosaical Sabbath, as aforesaid.

8. To prove this I have calculated the Appearance of the Moon at her Setting on the eleventh Day of October for the same Year, which (s) leaves it uncertain, whether the Moon was then visible or not, or (a) the negative much more probable (the Difference between the oblique Descent of the Sun and Moon being 12<sup>d</sup>. 16') in the Place where Noah is suppos'd to have been. And as the Clouds did gather, before they emptied themselves on the Earth in such a miraculous Manner; so a thick Air, which is most probable in such a Case, might prevent their Observation, and cause them to defer the Beginning of the Year to the following Evening.

9. When the Ark was built about the Place call'd Cyprisson, its Difference in Longitude from London being 59<sup>d</sup>. 24' and being also in the Latitude of 36<sup>d</sup>. 30'; so when it floated from thence, its Course was most probably North East, for the South West Winds, which usually bring the greatest Quantities of Rain, and the Inundation of the Persick Ocean from the South, and the Mediterranean Sea from the West must of Necessity drive the Current of the Stream that Way, and consequently the Ark with it. But as the Ark was built in a Form and Bulk absolutely unfit for Sailing; so it is not probable, that it was carry'd very far; and therefore supposing that it went in the Arch of a great Circle for the Space of 9<sup>d</sup>. 32' and made an Angle of 45 Degrees with the Meridian; at its first setting out it would go so far North as to be in the Latitude of 42<sup>d</sup>. 44' and its Longitude 9<sup>d</sup>. 50' toward the East, and if the North Wind should bring it back again, when the Weather was clear to its former Latitude, it would fall upon the Hills of Ararat near Media, about the Longitude of 68<sup>d</sup>. 34' from London, and the Latitude of 36<sup>d</sup>. 40' and so it would come back to the Place where it landed, even to the Mountains of (b) Taurus or Caucasus, which is call'd in Hebrew (c) one of the mountains of Ararat, or a Part of those Ledges of Mountains, which did not only begin in Armenia, call'd in Hebrew (d) Ararat, (from whence the vulgar Error arose, that it landed in Armenia) but also extended themselves for above four thousand Miles toward the East South East, as far as the

Indies, and therefore any one of these Mountains might be call'd one of the mountains of Ararat. So that the same Providence, which preserv'd Noah and his Family, did afterward set them on Shore in the same Climate, and not far from their own Country. It is certain, that the old World after the Flood was (f) first peopl'd in the eastern Parts from the Plains of Shinar and Babylon, and that the Antediluvian Race of Mankind, went eastward from Paradise into the same Country, because (g) the flaming sword was plac'd on the same Side of Paradise to prevent their Return.

10. As to the second Year of the Flood, or (h) the six hundredth and first Year of Noah's Life the remarkable Days are the twenty seventh Day of the second Month, and the fourth Day of the third Month, On (i) the twenty seventh day of the second month GOD spake to Noah to come out of the ark, with all the living Creatures which were there. As he was six Days in bringing them in; so he may well be suppos'd to spend the same Time in Bringing them out. And on the Day following, or on (k) the fourth Day of the third Month he offer'd his solemn Sacrifice. And these two Days will appear to be on the Days of the Antemosaical Sabbath.

11. It appears more evidently from these (l) Tables, that this second Year of the Flood happen'd to be in the 2362d Year of the Julian Period, which number (m) being divided by 28, the Remainder is 10, so that (n) the Dominical Letter is B.

12. It appears also (o) by Calculation, that the Sun in the same Year came to the Autumnal Equinox on the thirteenth Day of October, as in the Year before, and that (p) the new Moon, whose Full did immediately happen after the Autumnal Equinox, began undeniably at such a Time, that she might be seen on the first Day of October in the Evening, and consequently that the Year began at that Time, and that the first Day of the new Year was the Day following; so that the twenty seventh Day of the second Month and the fourth Day of the third Month happen'd to be on the 27th Day of November, and on the fourth Day of December, whose Dominical (q) Letter is B, which shews, that these Days happen'd on the Days of the Antemosaical Sabbath as aforesaid. And as this was the Season, in which the Waters did continue to be dry'd up; so there can be no Doubt of clear Evenings, and such as were fit for Observations.

13. But for the better Regulating of these two Years, I shall subjoin (r) a Calendar of the ancient Months, as they were call'd by the Jews, and also the corresponding Days of the Julian Years, with the Dominical Letter and the Days of the Flood, as they are mention'd in the Scripture, to which I refer the Reader for his farther Satisfaction.

4	d	4	7	7	Noah offers Sacrifice, Gen. viii. 20.

14. From the Day that the Ark rested, to the Day when the Mountains were seen, were seventy five Days, when the Waters were abated fifteen Cubits. And from thence to the Time of Noah's going out of the Ark were an hundred and seven and forty Days, in which according to Proportion (especially the Winter coming on) the Waters could not abate above thirty Cubits perpendicularly. So that the Heights of the Mountains in those Countries must be very small unless they were seen from a considerable Distance, and then the Waters being circular might hinder the Sight of the lower Part of them, which is left to such, who are better skill'd in the Geography of those Countries to consider. But when Noah (a) looked on the ground, and saw it dry, he did not behold the whole Part of the Globe, which might afterward be visible to him; but only the adjacent Earth. For if all had been dry, there would not have been a Necessity of his staying in the Ark about two Months longer before he landed. In which Space of Time if we suppose, that the lower Parts of the Earth were under Water; yet this will not make these lower Parts to be above five and forty Cubits lower than the Mountain where the Ark rested, which is no more than the Height of a common Tower.

15. That the Ark was of a sufficient Capacity to contain all the living Creatures, and Food for them all, will be fully prov'd in (b) a particular Chapter in this Book on this Subject. To measure the Weight of the Ark, and of all the living Creatures in it, when it rested on one of the mountains of Ararat, will afford us another Curiosity, which may be guess'd at in this Manner.

16. When our Country-man the ingenious and learned Mr. Greaves travel'd into Rome, Greece, Palestina and Egypt, that he might be capable of discovering the ancient Weights, Mony, and Measures both of Length, Solids and Liquids, he measur'd the Pyramids in Egypt, and accordingly comparing the Account, which (c) Herodotus gives of them, he (d) found the Length of a Cubit to be 21.888 Inches, (which is accordingly agreed to by other (e) eminent Writers) and therefore tho' formerly a Cubit was reckon'd but 18 Inches, and consequently the Cube thereof to be but 5832 cubical Inches; yet now the Cube of a Cubit, as it is now plainly known, is 10267 Inches; and therefore the Capacity and Weight of Noah's Ark appears to be almost double of what it was once thought to be. Now when the Ark began to swim, the Waters seem (f) to be fifteen Cubits high, and (g) on the Day that the Waters began to abate of that Measure, the Ark rested on one of the Mountains of Ararat. But the Waters were (h) fifteen cubits, when they began to abate; so that the Ark drew fifteen Cubits of Water.

17. The Ark being as heavy as the Quantity of Water, which it drew, its Weight must be thus computed. Multiply the Length thereof (i) three hundred cubits, or 6566.400 Inches, by the Breadth thereof fifty cubits, or 1094.400 Inches, and the Total is 7849108.160 cubical Inches in the Square thereof, and multiply this Sum by the Water which the Ark drew, being fifteen Cubits, or 328.320 Inches, and the Total gives the Content of the whole, which was under Water, or 2359395562 cubical Inches. And as (k) 27.792 Inches of Water contain a Pint or a Pound; so by dividing the aforesaid Sum by 27.792, the Remainder is 84894774 Pounds in the whole. And if we may suppose, that all the Things contain'd in the Ark were equal in Weight to the Ark itself, then the Ark alone must weigh 42447287 Pounds, which divided by 2048 the Pints in a Tun leaves 20721 Tuns, and 679 Pounds for the Weight of the Ark. And as Noah was (l) an hundred and twenty years in Preparing the Ark, in which there were 37569 working Days, the Sabbaths excepted; so by dividing 42447387, by 37569, it appears, that one Day with another Noah and his Family might add to the Weight of the Ark about 1129 Pounds in Timber and other Materials; which if it was made of square Beams (as the Septuagint tells us) and in a square Figure (as the Scriptures plainly intimate) might have been practicable; but if it had been made of Boards, or in the Form of a Ship, so that the Timber must be bent to fit it for such a Use, it must have been a more difficult Task.

18. A late Author, who is always fond of Inventing and Publishing something new and surprizing, hath lately given us such an Exposition of the Curse upon (m) Cain and Lamech, as thereby to endeavour to prove, that the present Africans and Indians are their Posterity, and

(a) Gen. viii. 13. (b) Chap. ii. (c) Euterpe, pag. 69. (d) Greaves of the Roman Foot, page 40: The English Foot is 1034.13. and the Dera or Cubit at Cairo in Egypt is 1886.25. And therefore as 1034.13. is to 1886.25. so is twelve Inches, or an English Foot, to 21.888 Inches, or an Egyptian Cubit. (e) Arbuthnot on Weights and Measures, Tab. 4. and Bishop Cumberland of Scripture Weights and Measures, page 34, 40, and 43. (f) Gen. vii. 17, 18, 19, 20. (g) Gen. vii. 24. and Gen. viii. 1. compar'd with Gen. vii. 11, and Gen. viii. 4. (h) Gen. vii. 20. (i) Gen. vi. 15. (k) An Apothecary's Pound being a Pint of Wine Measure, is by the Statute of this Kingdom 27½ cubical Inches. Among us it is agreed; that our Wine Gallon most frequently us'd contains 231 solid or cubical Inches of our standard Measure, Cumberland, page 63: Rain Water being lighter than our Fountain Water, and of a more constant Equality in its Weight than Spring Waters are (which differ a little in Weight from each other) takes up a little more Room than so many Ounces of our Water will do: So that we reckon 1720 cubick Inches to 1000 Ounces of our Fountain Water; yet we may well allow 1747 such Inches to 1000 Ounces of the lighter rain Water, Cumberland, page 69. And as Part of the Water of the Flood was occasion'd by Springs, and Part by Rain; so I shall take the Middle between both, and suppose that about 1737 Inches might contain about 1000 Ounces; and therefore 16 Ounces or a Pound contains 27.792 Inches. (l) 1 Pet. iii. 20. and Gen. vi. 3. (m) Gen. iv. 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15. Gen. iv. 23, 24.

consequently that they were not destroy'd at the general Deluge. Had this Author confin'd himself to the Mathematical Studies, which was his profess'd Employment, as long as he liv'd, or at least until he had found out the Longitude at Sea, either by firing of Canons, by fixing of Hulks of Ships as a Landmark in the Ocean, or by the Dipping Needle, or by any other Method, which so prolifick a Fancy could invent, he had done himself a greater Kindness and the World less Mischief. But his Brain is like Hydra; so that as soon as one poisonous Heresy is confuted, several others do rise up in its Place; and whenever he proposes to write a new Book, the World must expect a new Monster. He rantacks all sorts of Learning, as if it was only in search after new Errors; when they are found they are vented; when vented, maintain'd and persisted in; and the Author never yields to the most solid Arguments. The first publick Attempt was against the Honour of our DEAR REDEEMER, in bringing in the Arian Heresy. For this Purpose all the former Councils, Creeds, and primitive Fathers must be censur'd and condemn'd. Those which have constantly stood the Test of the severest Criticks must be treated as spurious; and those, which are generally condemn'd as spurious, must be receiv'd as genuine. If it serves this Man's Turn, the Apocryphal Books must be added to the Canon of Scripture, and the Apostolical Constitutions and Canons, nay, the Book call'd The Doctrine of the Apostles (whose Original is lost, but it happens to be translated into Arabic, tho' whether by a Christian or a Turk seems not material in the Controversy) must be receiv'd, as of greater Authority than any of St. Paul's Epistles. And to make sure Work of all the Scriptures, our present Bibles must be look'd upon as corrupted to serve the Turns of the Jews, and to inspire Men with Prejudices against Christianity, and these must be corrected and amended by the Septuagint and the Samaritan Versions, by Josephus, and perhaps in Time by the Alcoran also. When he sets up to expound the Scriptures, the first Postulatum is, that they are corrupted, that the true sense is marr'd and spoil'd, and that he alone is able to correct it, and therefore he must be allow'd to make such Alterations as he sees fit, by adding in some Places, by leaving out in others, and by altering in many more, that so he may afterward by the Help of his Comment make it intelligible to the common Readers. Thus he mangles and confounds the whole, and then sets up for a different Method from all the World to restore the true Text of the Old Testament. And the great Misfortune of all is, that the Pretence of great Regularity and Humility is us'd as a Plea for his passing Sentence on all the divine Writings as false and spurious, and setting up himself as the only Man who can correct and amend them. From such daily Provocations of divine Justice, and the Effects of them GOOD LORD deliver us. It is not an open Enemy who can do the Scriptures this Dishonour; for then it might more easily be born with, neither is it a publick Adversary, that magnifies himself in this Manner; for such Things must be expected. But it is a Man that professeth the utmost Veneration for Scriptures, who thus tears them to Pieces, who with a Judas's Kiss betrays our Sacred Oracles to be derided, and who exposes all Religion to the Contempts and Scoffs of those who have none. Accordingly the Notion lately started concerning the Flood is this, that the whole World was not drown'd, as the Scriptures seem to relate, but only the Posterity of Seth, and that the Posterity of Lamech escap'd. To prove this he brings Scripture to contradict Scripture, and interprets the (n) Curse upon Lamech and Cain according to his usual Method to foretel the Preservation of their Posterity in the common Destruction. This he doth first by taking for granted, that (o) the Hebrew Text is corrupted, and that instead of (p) Therefore we must read (q) It shall not be so. And, secondly, by taking for granted, that (r) the Hebrew Text is defective, and that the Word Generations is left out to be supply'd by him, tho' the (s) Adjective with which it must agree, is of a different Gender. These Things allow'd, because he saith, It must be so, he interprets the Text thus, Cain shall have vengeance taken on him for seven generations, which ended, as he saith, when Cain was kill'd by Tubal Cain, and Lamech shall have vengeance taken on him for seventy and seven generations, that is, as he interprets it, until the Coming of CHRIST, when Lamech was as certainly kill'd by some Body or other; as that he liv'd so long. This brings down all the Gravity and Solemnity by which the Flood is describ'd in Scripture into little more than Grimace, or such a Flood as happen'd in Thessaly in the Time of Ogyges. This Notion makes GOD command Noah to build an Ark for the saving of his household, and he was employ'd an hundred and twenty years in such a Work; whereas he might have directed him to travail in less than a Month's Time, to a Place where he might have been safe with his whole Family. This Notion renders all the Care of GOD to have been but for little Purpose, in preserving two of each Sort alive to replenish the Earth; since there were thousands of each Sort alive in other Parts, by whom the Earth might be replenish'd. And this Notion makes GOD, when he would reward the Piety of Noah, to confine him and his Family to live a full Year with Lions, Bears, and Tigers, and other disagreeable Animals, and provide Food for them, without any Necessity for such a Slavery, and when his greatest Enemies were preserv'd without it.

19. The true Sense of the Texts, which he thus perverts, is this, (t) *The LORD said unto Cain, Where is Abel thy brother? And he said, I know not. Am I my brother's keeper? And he said, What hast thou done? The voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground. And now thou art cursed from the earth, which hath opened her mouth to receive thy brother's blood from thy hand. When thou tillest the ground, it shall not yield unto thee her strength; a fugitive and a vagabond shalt thou be upon the earth. And Cain said unto the LORD, My punishment is greater than I can bear: Or as some translate it, My sin is greater than can be forgiven. Behold, thou hast driven me out this day from the face of the ground; and from thy face shall I be hid, and I shall be a fugitive and a vagabond in the earth; and it shall come to pass, that every one that findeth me, shall slay me: Or as others render it, וְיָהִי אֵלַי וְאֵל כָּל אֶדְמוּמִי וְאֵל כָּל אֶדְמוּמִי וְאֵל כָּל אֶדְמוּמִי And I wish it may so happen, that any one, who findeth me, shall slay me. And the LORD said unto him, לָכֵן כָּדָרְהִיגָהּ Therefore because thou hast been guilty of this Murder, any Man may be the murderer of Cain. Blood requires Blood. Howbeit, he shall not die, but vengeance shall be taken upon him sevenfold, by a perpetual Banishment from the Church and People of GOD in the beforemention'd Manner. And the LORD set a mark upon Cain, lest any finding him should slay him. That the Word sevenfold only signifies in a greater measure, is evident from several other Expressions of the same Nature, where a stated Number is set for an uncertain; such as (u) twofold, (x) thirtyfold, sixtyfold, (y) an hundredfold, (z) seven times and seventy times seven. This Curse descending only upon Cain and his Posterity, Lamech, who introduc'd Polygamy into the World, and perhaps on that Occasion might have committed Murder, however he destroy'd his own Soul, whilst he was in the Prime of his Youth, and seeing how his unclean Example was follow'd, not only by the Posterity of Cain, but also by those of Seth, insomuch that the whole Earth was corrupted and fill'd with Violence, being prick'd in his Conscience for it, and dreading the Judgments of GOD, which should come upon the whole World for such Crimes, as were occasion'd by him, makes (a) this Speech to his two wives Adah and Zillah, Hear my voice, ye wives of Lamech; hearken unto my speech; for I have slain * a man to my wounding My Example hath infected all Mankind, or farther the whole World, and made them liable to* the divine Vengeance, which is my great Sorrow. And I have slain a young man to my hurt וְיָהִי, and particularly my own posterity, which is so great a Trouble to me. If then so great a Punishment fell upon Cain for one single Murder, that he and his Posterity were fugitives and vagabonds, What heavy Punishment must light upon Lamech, and his Posterity for so many Crimes, whilst they would take no Warning? Or what can they expect, but to be all destroy'd by some remarkable Judgments? The Hebrew Text will justify this Exposition without the least Variation. And if this is the Sense of the Words, which might have been spoken within five Years before the Flood came, it will be hard to prove from them alone, that any of Lamech's Family escap'd.

20. Let us now see what Account the Scriptures give hereof. GOD (b) said, I will destroy man whom I have created, from the face of the earth, both man and beast, and the creeping things, and the fowls of the air; for it repenteth me, that I have made them. And (c) GOD look'd upon the earth, and behold it was corrupt; for all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth. And GOD said unto Noah, The end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth is filled with violence through them, and behold I will destroy them with the earth. And (d) all flesh died, that moved upon the earth, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of beast, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. All in whose nostrils was the breath of life, of all that was in the dry-land died. And every living substance was destroyed, which was upon the face of the ground, both man and cattle, and the creeping things, and the fowls of the heaven, and they were destroyed from the earth: and Noah only remained alive, and they that were with him in the ark. So (e) unrighteous Cain perished in the fury, wherewith he murdered his brother. For whose cause the earth being drowned with the flood, the divine wisdom again preserv'd it, and directed the course of the righteous man in a piece of wood of small value. And (f) GOD spared not the old world, but saved Noah the eighth person, a preacher of righteousness, bringing in the flood upon the world of the ungodly. And (g) there were only few, that is eight souls, which were saved by water. To all these Texts this Author roundly replies, (h) That this is the Scripture Heaven, and the Scripture Earth. And therefore he adds, I do venture to observe, that the Limits of that whole World, and that whole Earth, and its whole Heaven not only in Scripture; but in all other the oldest Antiquity was not the same, which we now call so ; but excluded the South of Africa, and all America, and the South-East of Asia, and all China also ; and that consequently none of these Parts were destroy'd by the Flood. As for the Scripture Heaven, and the Scripture Earth, which he mentions, the learned in the Oriental Languages observe, that the Word  $\text{שָׁמַיִם}$  or Heaven, is deriv'd from the Arabick Verb  $\text{سَمِيَ}$ , which signifies to be above us, and the Word  $\text{אָרֶץ}$  or Earth is deriv'd from the Verb  $\text{רָצַץ}$  which signifies to be beneath us, and therefore he must first find out a Heaven, which is not over our Heads, or an Earth, which is not under our Feet, before he can find out that which is excluded from the Scripture Notion. However, I shall readily grant, that there is a Scripture Notion of an habitable Earth as distinct from the whole Globe. But it is such a Notion, as will utterly destroy what this Author asserts. The habitable Earth in the (i) Hebrew and (k) Syriack Languages is call'd  $\text{תְּבֵרָה}$  and is usually translated in the Septuagint by  $\text{ὁμοιωμένη}$  ; the whole Globe is call'd  $\text{אָרֶץ}$ , and is usually translated by the Word  $\text{γῆ}$ . Thus Buxtorf (l) in his Ottavo Lexicon saith,  $\text{תְּבֵרָה}$  est orbis habitabilis,  $\text{אָרֶץ}$  generale est. But whether the whole Earth was drown'd or not ; yet if all the habitable Part was drown'd, it is sufficient to prove, that Lamech and Cain and all their Posterity were destroy'd at that Time, unless our Author can prove, that they dwelt in a Country which was not habitable. Besides, as this latter Word  $\text{תְּבֵרָה}$  was never us'd in any of Moses's Writings ; so I take it for granted, that this Distinction was never known in Moses's Time ; and if so, it signifies little, what Notions happen'd to be in latter Ages. In every Account of the Flood the general Word  $\text{אָרֶץ}$  is constantly us'd, particularly in all the Texts already mention'd ; and to these I shall add some more. (m) In the beginning GOD created the heaven and the earth. And (n) bring forth with thee every living thing, and every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth, that they may breed abundantly in the earth, and multiply upon the earth. And (o) GOD blessed Noah and his sons, and said unto them, Be fruitful and multiply, and replenish the earth. And the fear of you, and the dread of you shall be upon every beast of the earth. And (p) the sons of Noah, that went out of the ark, were Shem, and Ham, and Japhet ; and of them was the whole earth overspread. And the Scripture seems to me to use this general Word in all these Places on purpose to cut off this particular Objection. Indeed, had Moses said (q) only, that  $\text{תְּבֵרָה}$  the whole inhabited World had been overspread by Noah, this Author's Objection might have been more plausible, and even then it might have been fairly answer'd. But since the same Word is us'd here with a Note of Universality, which is us'd through the whole Account of the Creation ; I must challenge him to produce a Part of this Earth, which was not created by GOD, before, according to the Scripture Notion, he can find out that Part of the Earth, which was not destroy'd by the Flood, and replenish'd by Noah. To support this Argument our Author tells us (s) that he is, and hath been long of this Opinion. This is a weighty Argument, and if true, who shall contradict him, or can confute him ? But if it had been conceiv'd above nine Months in his Brain, it is hardly possible, but it must have been deliver'd to the World before. To prove that this was his Opinion, he refers us to (t) his new Theory of the Earth. But in those Pages, which he mentions, he saith nothing to this Purpose. His Notion or Theory of the Flood is this, that it was occasion'd by a large Comet passing thro' the Earth's Orb (u) immediately before it began, that (x) the Waters and Matter at its Atmosphere and Tail at the Deluge retarded our Earth's diurnal Motion, and (y) alter'd the whole Orbit of the Earth from a circular to an elliptick Figure. Thus at one Time (z) the Force of a single Comet is in his Opinion so great as to occasion the Earth's Excentricity, or to move this whole Mass above a Million of Miles, or an hundred and fifty Diameters from its proper Place, which Alteration the Earth never recover'd to this Day ; and at another Time he thinks it so inconsiderable, as not to affect the South of Africa, nor any Part of America, nor the South-East of Asia, nor China. Thus we have his whole Theory at once confuted by himself ; and from such mountainous Projections, there doth not remain, in Proportion, the Quantity of a Moule. And as by this Notion he confutes all his Theory at once ; so in this Theory he utterly confutes all this Notion, which he hath been so long in Hatching. There he tells us, (a) That the Extent of the Deluge appears commensurate to that of the Creation. And (b) Mankind increas'd vastly more soon after the Deluge, than in the latter Ages of the World. So that it is evident, that the Antediluvian Fruitfulness must have prevail'd among the primitive Postdiluvians for some Centuries, or else no Account can be given of the present Numbers of Men upon the Face of the Earth, whereby the Veracity of Moses in his Account, and the great Importance thereof are mightily confirm'd. And (c) this Deluge of Waters was universal in its Extent and Effect, reaching to all the Parts of the Earth, and destroying all the Land Animals on the intire Surface thereof, those only excepted, which were with Noah in the Ark. And the Texts of Scripture which speak of the Flood, will put this Matter beyond Exception. And (d) having repeated the same Proposition, and solidly prov'd it, he makes this Conclusion; So that at last, the Deluge must have been universal, because every one of the Causes thereof appear to have been truly so. For (as (e) he saith) It is evident that the holy Books ought not to be tormented, or eluded, as to their obvious sense on every Occasion. But that this SACRED RULE ought for ever religiously to be observ'd, that we never forsake the plain, easy, obvious, and natural Sense, unless where the Nature of the Thing itself, parallel Places, or evident Reason, afford a solid and sufficient Ground for so doing. Thus far William against Whiston, and Whiston against William.

21. The Consequences, that he draws from his Notion, are such, which need not be regarded, until it can be better prov'd; but there are other Consequences that necessarily follow, which must provoke us to reject it with Abhorrence, and must be astonishing to every Reader.

22. For First, The Consequence of this Notion, that so many Families and whole Kingdoms escap'd the Flood, very much shakes the Authority of the Christian Religion. It gives such a Latitude to Interpretations of Scripture, as will utterly destroy the whole, and leaves every Man at Liberty to interpret one Text, or two at the most, in such a Manner, as shall contradict all the rest. Besides, St. Peter (f) compares the Ark to the Church of CHRIST, wherein few, that is, eight souls, were saved by water. The like Figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us. But the Consequence of the other Notion is this, that they who were near the Pale of the Church, or any Way related to it were all destroy'd; that they who were admitted into it by Baptism, may, indeed, be sav'd, but with great Difficulty and Trouble. And they who are at the greatest Distance from it, do fare best of all.

23. And Secondly, The other Consequence is as injurious to GOD's Justice, which Necessarily ariseth from this Notion. The Flood was always reckon'd an extraordinary Example of divine Vengeance. St. Peter saith, (g) that GOD brought in the Flood upon the world of the ungodly, and urgeth this as an Argument, that the LORD knoweth how to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punish'd. And (h) he brought it upon those which sometimes were disobedient, when the long suffering of GOD waited in the days of

Noah. In (i) another Place we are told, that the earth was drowned with the flood for the sake of Cain. And (k) the History of Moses is as full to this Purpose as any, GOD saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart were only evil continually. And it repented the LORD, that he had made man upon the earth, and it grieved him at his heart. The earth also was corrupt before GOD, and the earth was fill'd with violence. And GOD looked upon the earth, and behold it was corrupt, for all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth. And GOD said unto Noah, The end of all flesh is come before me: for the earth is filled with violence thro' them; and behold I will destroy them with the earth. The Corruption began and increas'd in the Posterity of Cain. Josephus (l) saith, that Cain was so far from being made better by such a Chastisement, that he grew worse and worse, indulging himself in his Pleasures, even to the Detriment of other Men, increasing his Riches by Force and Rapine, and gathering together Companions of Robbery and Iniquity, he was made their Ringleader in all Sorts of Mischief. And that even when Adam was alive, the Offspring of Cain grew most wicked, and every Age was worse than the former, not only imitating but also exceeding the Vices of their Predecessors, neither abstaining from War nor Theft; and they who abstain'd from Murder, did lead their Lives covetously and proudly toward others. But Seth being educated by his Father, when he came to be of Age to discern what was right, gave himself wholly up to the Study of Virtue: And as he was a good Man; so he left his Posterity like him, who being all of a good Temper inhabited the Country without Strife, and Sedition, and for their Piety were call'd The Sons of GOD, whilst the other were call'd The Sons of Men. In short, the History of Sanchoniatho, as well as of Moses, tells us the Crimes, which the Posterity of Cain were guilty of, such as barbarous Murder in Cain himself, which was afterward imitated and doubl'd by his Descendant Lamech; also Polytheism and Idolatry, together with Polygamy, Incest, Adultery, and Uncleannefs. And as it continu'd thus for many Generations; so in Length of Time the Posterity of Seth marrying with those of Cain became universally corrupt, and this total Depravation of Manners occasion'd the Flood. And now, when GOD most solemnly enters into Judgment for these Things, according to this Author, he destroys all the Posterity of Seth except eight Persons, and saves the Posterity of Cain, but more particularly that of Lamech. He punisheth the smaller Faults, and winks at those which were of a Gigantick Size, as if he was afraid to meddle with them. This Flood is the Effect of the Sin of Cain; but Cain's Family escapes, and other Branches are destroy'd; and when GOD spar'd those People, he remov'd them from Vengeance to the remotest Parts of Africa, India and America, where they lay conceal'd 'till now, and would, no doubt, have been conceal'd (as the Posterity of Cain) to the End of the World, if this unlucky Author had not discover'd them. In short, The earth was fill'd with violence thro' the Posterity of Cain, which was the original Cause of all. GOD said to Noah, (m) The end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth is fill'd with Violence thro'

them: and behold I will destroy them with the earth. And this one Text will more plainly prove, that all these Authors of Violence were destroy'd, than all the Arguments, which have been brought, can prove the contrary.

24. As for those who have of late ridicul'd and expos'd the scriptural Account of the Flood, as contrary to the Notions of Philosophy, they only take the same Methods, which the Heathens formerly us'd to explode the Resurrection of the Dead. But of this I hope to give a satisfactory Account in (n) another Place.

CHAP. V.

The true Time of the Flood farther stated.

AS I have plac'd the first Year of the Flood in the 2352<sup>d</sup> Year before the Birth of CHRIST, which I take to be according to the true Intent and Meaning of the Hebrew Text, and have also plac'd it in the 1656th Year of the World, according as we find it (a) not only in the Original, but also in our common Bibles: And as the Septuagint and the Samaritan Versions differ several hundred Years from this Account, both in the Years before the Flood, and in the Years between the Flood and the Promise given to Abraham; so, I suppose, that it will not be unacceptable to the Reader to treat of the Difference between these three several Accounts. And for this Reason it will be necessary to state the Facts themselves, and the most probable Reasons for them, with some proper Inferences, from whence we may judge, whether the Hebrew or the Septuagint, or the Samaritan Copy is most to be depended upon.

2. The best Way to judge of the Facts themselves is to make two Tables, as in the following Manner, one from the Creation of the World to the Flood, and another for the Age from the Birth of Shem to the Birth of the eldest Son of Terah; and to divide these Tables into three Columns, the first for the Hebrew, the Second for the Septuagint, and the third for the Samaritan Version, and also to place the Texts of Scripture in a separate Column, and the Parents Names in another; and to place in the other Columns the Age of the Parents at the Birth of their recorded Son, the Length of their Lives afterward, and their Age at their Deaths. From whence it will appear,

(a) This appears from the Sums in Gen. v. 3, 6, 9, 12, 15, 18, 21, 25, 28. and Gen. vii. 6. added together.

Year from the Birth of Shem to the Birth of Terah's eldest Son.		390			1270			1040

3. First, That the Septuagint have added an hundred Years to the Age of Adam and Seth at the Birth of their Son mention'd, and also to the Age of all the other Parents, whose Sons are mention'd in the Hebrew Text to be born, before their Parents were an hundred Years old; so that in this Method they have added six hundred Years to the Time before the Flood.

4. Secondly, That they have made two other Mistakes between the Birth of Methuselah and the Birth of Noah, and made it fourteen Years less than the Time, which the Hebrew Text allows for it.

5. Thirdly, That where the Septuagint have added an hundred Years to the Lives of these Patriarchs before the Birth of their Son mention'd in the Scriptures, they have subtracted an hundred Years from the remaining Part of their Lives, in so much that their Age at their Deaths are the same both in the Septuagint and in the Hebrew, except Lamech, who died twenty four Years younger according to the Account of the Septuagint, than according to the Account of the Hebrew Text.

6. Fourthly, That the Samaritan Copy and Translation did never lengthen the Chronology of the Years before the Flood, beyond the Account of the Septuagint; but instead thereof have contracted every Generation, so as to make many of them equal to the Account of the Hebrew Text. And wherever the Hebrew Text mentions a hundred Years before the Birth of any in their Families, except Seth and Enosh, there the Samaritan Pentateuch hath always omitted the hundred: So that as the Septuagint hath enlarg'd this Chronology, the Samaritans on the other Hand have contracted it; and beside the hundreds, they have also taken off twenty Years between the Birth of Lamech and Methuselah, and nine and twenty Years between the Birth of Lamech and Noah. And thus as the Septuagint made the Time from the Creation of the World to the Flood 586 Years longer than it really was; so the Samaritans made it 349 Years shorter.

7. Fifthly, He who compares the Samaritan Copy with the Hebrew, may plainly see, that the one was originally copy'd from the other. But he who sees the vast Number of Alterations from the present Copy (as they are reckon'd up by Morinus at the End of the Polyglot Bible) may plainly observe, that the Copier was very hasty and careless, and did not take so much Caution, as a Work of that Consequence did really deserve. And as it may be seen in every Chapter of the Pentateuch; so it is much more visible in the Chronological Part, to which I confine myself.

8. Sixthly, In the second Table of the Chronology from the Birth of Shem to the Birth of the eldest Son of Terah, it is evident, that the Septuagint hath added an hundred Years to the Distance of every Generation, except between Shem and Arphaxad, and fifty more between the Birth of Nahor and Terah; and that the Septuagint hath also added an hundred and thirty Years for the Age of Cainan between Arphaxad and Selah. And as they had no Warrant from the Hebrew; so in this they are not follow'd by any other Translation.

9. All these Things put together make the Chronological Account of Time in the Septuagint Version to be eight hundred and eighty Years more than in the Hebrew between the Birth of Shem, and the Birth of the eldest Son of Terah, or which amounts to the same, between the Time of the Flood and of the Promise given to Abraham. And also in the Samaritan Copy and Version the same Account is six hundred and fifty Years more than what is in the Hebrew.

10. It is also evident, that in the Years after the Flood, where they have added an hundred Years to the Lives of the Patriarchs, they have also taken away an hundred Years from the remaining Part of their Lives; so that the Duration of Shem, Arphaxad, Peleg, and Reu, are the same in all these Copies and Translations. In the Age of Selah and Serug the Septuagint differs from the Hebrew, and the Samaritan agrees with it. In the Age of Eber, the Septuagint and the Samaritan agree, and both differ from the Hebrew. The Septuagint make Nahor to be an hundred and seventy nine Years old at the Birth of Terah; the Samaritan leaves out the hundred, and only makes him seventy nine; but in the Hebrew he is only twenty nine Years old at that Time. And so at his Death, the Hebrew makes him two hundred and twenty two Years old; the Septuagint make him three hundred and four Years old, and the Samaritan but an hundred and forty eight at his Death, which is one and thirty Years younger than the Septuagint place him at the Birth of his Son Terah. And it is also observable, that the Samaritan Version sums up the Ages of all the Patriarchs in these Genealogies at their Deaths in the same Manner as they are sum'd up in the fifth Chapter of Genesis before the Flood, tho' neither the Hebrew nor the Septuagint observe any such Method.

11. From so great a Variety of Alterations it is easy to infer, that it is impossible to reconcile these Chronological Accounts to each other. Had there been but one or two Differences, something of this Nature might have been attempted; but as they contradict one another in all these Instances, so two Accounts of the three must be false, and only one can be rely'd upon.

12. But Secondly, Supposing the Hebrew Text to be the true Account (which will afterward be prov'd) it is much easier to guess at the Reasons of these Alterations.

13. The Jews (who were the worst Chronologers in the World) when their famous Astronomical Year was settl'd by Rabbi Hillel in the Year of CHRIST 358. from the Observations of Hipparchus (whom they call Abraham) as they contracted the Years, and fix'd the Time of the Creation of the World to the Year

Year of the Julian Period 953. which was 248 Years later than it is plac'd in these Tables; so in former Ages they endeavour'd more extravagantly to enlarge it. The Egyptians, Chaldeans, Phenicians, and Greecians, out of a vain Affectation of Antiquity, endeavour'd to give many fabulous Accounts of their own Nations, and reported, that their Country was inhabited so long before, that if true, it must have been many thousand Years before the Creation of the World, as it is mention'd in the Hebrew Text. And therefore they exploded the Mosaical Chronology as ridiculous, and reckon'd the Jews to be a late and an upstart Generation. The Jews, who were as vain and as affected as other Nations, that they might come behind them as little as possible, enlarg'd their Account beyond the Hebrew Standard. Accordingly when Ptolomy Philadelphus order'd the Hebrew Bible to be translated into Greek for the Use of the Library at Alexandria, the Translators so far comply'd with the vain Humour of those Times, that they added the 1466 Years already mention'd to the Scripture Chronology, partly by putting in an hundred Years between the Births of several Patriarchs and the Births of their Sons, and partly by other Methods. And then supposing that the Transcriber for the Sake of his Memory, or for any other Reason, might have drawn a Table of those, who descended from Adam, and of those, who descended from Noah in two several Columns (as in the following (b) Manner) it will not be hard to say,

TABLE the Eleventh.
(b) 1 Adam .	1 Noah .
2 Seth .	2 Shem .
3 Enosh .	3 Arphaxad .
4 Cainan .	4 Cainan .

how Cainan might be inserted into the other Side over against Cainan the Son of Enosh, the one being plac'd at the very same Distance from Noah, which the other stands in from Adam. And it being plac'd thus by the Mistake of one Interpreter, another added the Years, and so it continu'd in the Copy.

14. However (c) this may vindicate St. Luke, who mentioning the Ancestors of our blessed SAVIOUR, inserts Cainan between Arphaxad and Salah. The Account, which he gives, is agreeable to that which is given by the Septuagint in the Book of Genesis. Before his Time this Version was common both among the Jews and Gentiles. It was written in a Language almost universally known, and particularly study'd by the learned World; whereas the Hebrew was a dead Language, known only to the Jews, and to but few of them in Comparison of the rest. The Evangelists therefore writing in Greek, and for the Sake of the Gentiles, who generally understood that Language, might make Use of that Version, which was common among them, as well as among the Jewish Hellenists. The putting down of Cainan, as he found it in a receiv'd Translation, doth not speak the Evangelist's Sense, but the Sense of those Interpreters, whom he truly cites, and lays before his Reader, without his own Observation or Remarks upon them. Not to do this might have brought him into some Suspicion with those, who had the Greek, but not the Hebrew Bible. But to do it as he hath done, ought not to be imputed to him as a Crime, when he there speaks the Sense of others only, and proceeds on Principles generally own'd and receiv'd. Besides, he doth not say, that one of these begat the other, as St. Matthew doth, or that one was the Son of the other, tho' we are forc'd in our Translation to add this Word. Or admitting that the Son of each must be imply'd; yet he doth not say the real Son; but ushers in the whole Genealogy with ὡς ἐνομίζετο, as it was supposed, or as it was reckon'd. And so it was, for it was found in their own Writings.

15. But to return from this Digression. As the Septuagint added an hundred Years to the Lives of the Patriarchs before the Birth of their Son mention'd; so they generally took off an hundred afterward. And the Reason is plain. That the Length of their Lives in general might appear to be the same, as they are in the Hebrew Text. And there is no Doubt, but that as the Samaritan Copy had lengthned the Chronology after the Flood almost in the same Manner with the Septuagint; so they contracted several hundred Years before the Flood, because they would bring the Account so much in general nearer to the Truth of the Hebrew Standard, altho' instead of mending the Matter, they made it worse.

16. There is but one Way to account for the other Alterations between the Birth of Methuselah and the Flood, which is this. That as these Translators did not pay such a strict Regard to Truth, as they ought, in a Concern of so great a Consequence as this, but voluntarily ran into Errors in Compliance with the vain Humour of the Times, and a Design of Gratifying their own People thereby; so it was just with GOD to permit them to fall into farther Errors, and such notorious Delusions, as might utterly destroy the divine Authority of their Work, and more effectually establish the Authority of the Hebrew Text. Accordingly they agree with the Hebrew in telling us, that all Flesh was destroy'd by the Flood, except Noah and his Family, which were in the Ark; and yet this their Chronology makes Methuselah to live fourteen Years after the

So that there remains of Methuse- }

17. From hence (saith (d) St. Augustine) came that famous Question, Where to lodge Methuselah all the Time of the Flood? To this he answers, that (e) some are of Opinion, that he was not upon the Earth, since all Flesh was destroy'd, whose Nature could not suffer them to live under the Water. And therefore they concluded, that he liv'd with his Father Enoch who was translated some time before. These Men are unwilling to derogate from the Authority of those Books, which the Church hath receiv'd with more renown'd Esteem; and think, that the Books of the Jews do mistake and err, rather than these. For (say they) it is not credible, that the Seventy two Interpreters, which translated at one Time, and in one Sense, could err, or would lie and err, where it did not concern them. But that the Jews for Envy, which they bear to us, seeing that the Law and the Prophets are come to us by their Interpretation, have chang'd some Things in their Books, that the Authority of ours might be lessen'd. This is the Opinion of some. But then he gives us his own in these Words. (f) When any Thing is found different in these Books, forasmuch as both cannot be true, as to the Credit of Things past; let that Tongue rather be believ'd, out of which a Translation is made into another by an Interpreter. (g) And this Variety of Numbers, which is found between the Hebrew Books and others, if it hath any Thing so different, that both cannot be true, the Truth of Things must be fetch'd out of that Tongue, from which that which we use is translated.

18. To this I cannot but add the Opinion of a late Author, who hath taken a great Deal of Pains to compare the Hebrew, Septuagint, and Samaritan Copies together, to demonstrate the Corruption of the Hebrew Text, and thereby to invalidate the Authority of the Sacred Scriptures, which by the Blessing of GOD we now enjoy, especially because he hath given us an Antidote against all his own Poison, in these Words. (h) The Years added in the Samaritan Pentateuch and Septuagint, to the Accounts of Time from the Hebrew Verity since the Deluge, are added without Reason, and are contrary to the Truth, and to the sacred Writings together. For whereas by the Hebrew Verity the Deluge is fix'd; in Case these eight or nine hundred Years, which the Samaritan and Septuagint have added, are to be allow'd for, all is thereby put into Confusion, contrary to the Faith and Agreement of all the Copies in the World. So that upon the whole, the intire Force of Reasoning conspires to confirm and give Attestation to the Hebrew Verity, and consequently to destroy the Authority of the Samaritan and Septuagint, so far as they contradict the same in Matters herein concern'd.

19. And in another Place, (i) Since by very reasonable Computations of the Numbers of the Inhabitants of the Earth at the Deluge according to the Hebrew Chronology, they appear to have been sufficient abundantly to replenish the intire Globe, and full as many in Reason, as the same could sustain, the Septuagint's Addition of near six hundred Years in this Period of the World to the Hebrew Accounts is so far from clearing Difficulties there-to belonging, that it greatly increases the same, and enforces the Allowance of more Inhabitants at the Deluge, than we could at all tell, where they could live or be maintain'd. And since according to the Hebrew Chronology from the Deluge till the Time of Abraham's going into Canaan was the intire Space of 427 Years, and the Lives of Men during that Interval were in a Mean 300 Years long, 'tis easy to prove, that there is no Need to recede from that Account, or introduce the additional Years of the Septuagint in that Period, to produce the greatest Numbers of Men, which in that, or in the immediately succeeding Ages any authentick Histories of those antient Times do require us to suppose.

20. And again, (k) The Hebrew Text of the Old Testament, being the Original itself, is as reasonably to be allow'd our most authentick Guide in the Chronology of the Old Testament, as the Greek Text of the New Testament, being the Original it-

Cap. 14.* Illa vero numerorum varietas, quæ inter codices Hebræos invenitur & nostros, si quid habet ita diversum, ut verum esse utrumque non possit, rerum gestarum fides ab eâ linguâ repetenda est, ex quâ interpretatum est, quod habemus. self is generally allow'd to be our most authentick Guide in the Harmony of the four Evangelists. Neither is it more reasonable to prefer the Septuagint's Translation of the one, than the Vulgar Latin Translation of the other to the Original Hebrew and Greek Copies of the Sacred Scriptures. Thus far once more William against Whiston, or the antient Christian against the modern Pagan.

21. And as it hath pleased GOD to suffer the Authors of the Septuagint Version, when they vary'd from the Truth, to fall into such Errors, as might destroy their own Authority; so hath he suffer'd the same in the Authors of the Samaritan Version. The Hebrew Genealogies are regular and plain. Their Lives were double before the Flood to what they were after it, and then they gradually decreas'd to what they are in this present Age; and the Times in which they had Children did bear an agreeable Proportion to the Length of their Lives. When they liv'd nine hundred Years, they had Children at sixty five and seventy Years of Age, and there are none mention'd sooner. And when their Lives were shortned to four hundred Years, they are recorded to have had Children at twenty nine, thirty, thirty two, and thirty five Years of Age. But in the Samaritan Account, among all the Patriarchs after the Flood, when the longest Liver did not exceed four hundred and thirty Years, there are but two recorded, who had Children, before they were an hundred and thirty Years of Age; and in the Years before the Flood, when they frequently liv'd to be above nine hundred Years old, there are but two (and they are the two first mention'd) who are recorded to have had any Children after they were ninety Years of Age, and others at fifty three, sixty two, and sixty five, which is such an Incoherence, as must destroy the Credit of this Version with any considerate Person.

22. From what hath been said we may plainly infer, that the Hebrew Text alone contains the true authentick Account, and therefore that the Version of the Septuagint, and both the Samaritan Copy and Version are false. But we may be farther confirm'd in this Opinion by considering, that all the other Translations follow the Hebrew. The Targum of Onkelos keeps close to it Word for Word in most Parts of the Pentateuch. The Paraphrase of Jonathan Ben Uzziel and the Jerusalem Targum confirm the Chronology, and in all other Places they favour the Hebrew more than any other Version. The Masorites find no Cause to correct any of their Chronology. Their Ceri and Cethib in all other Parts only correct the plain Erratas of the Scribes, where the Sense is marr'd. And their Care in Numbering the Books, Words, and Letters prove, that they had the same Bible, which we have now. The Latin of St. Jerom and the Perfick Translation confirm our Chronology. The Syriack, Arabick, and Vulgar Latin Versions, tho' in most Parts of the Old Testament they copy after the Septuagint, and generally with such a Disregard to the Hebrew Text, as if they had never seen it; yet in the Pentateuch they seem to stick to that alone. And there is not one Translation, which in the Chronological Part agrees either with the Septuagint or the Samaritan; so that each of them must stand or fall by its own single Credit. Indeed Josephus in his Antiquities sometimes favours the Chronology of the Septuagint; but when we consider that he wrote in Greek, when the Septuagint Version was common among all both Jews and Gentiles, and that if he had not comply'd with them in some Cases, he must have spoil'd the Credit of his own Writings, we can hardly think, that it would have been consistent with common Prudence for him to have done otherwise. But tho' (l) in the Beginning of his History he complies with the Humour of the Times; yet in other Places he hath given us sufficient Instances of his real Thoughts. In (m) reckoning the Years when the Foundation of the Temple was laid, he places it near the Time mention'd in the Hebrew, allowing only an hundred and twelve Years for his Mistake in the Time of the Judges, where the Septuagint and the Samaritan Copies are out of the Case. And in the same Chapter he also places the Distance between the Creation and the Flood (which is the Case in Question) but six Years different from the original Account. When (n) he reckons up the Genealogies from Shem to Abraham, he reckons them as in the Hebrew, and when he sums them up in the whole, he makes but one Variation by supposing Abraham to be born when Terah was seventy Years of Age, which Mistake was occasion'd by a false Interpretation of (o) one particular Text of Scripture, which at the first View seems to favour this Opinion.

23. But for the better Inquiry into the Authority of the Septuagint and the Samaritan Versions, the two following Observations may be of Use.

24. First, That one of these Translations took its Errors from the other. If it had not been thus, it would have been impossible for the Septuagint and the Samaritan Versions so to have agreed together in those Numbers, in which they so often differ from the Hebrew Text, as may be easily observ'd by any one, who views the Tables, where they are plac'd together. And therefore in these Versions either the Septuagint copy'd from the Samaritan, or the Samaritan from the Septuagint.

25. But 2<sup>dly</sup>, The Septuagint did not copy from the Samaritan. It is evident that the Copy from which the Sept. was translated, was not written in the Samaritan, but in the Hebrew Character, from the many Mistakes (p) which we find in the Greek, occasion'd only by the likeness of the Consonants in the Babylonish Hebrew Character, which are vastly different in the other.

26. Hence it is evident, that the Samaritan Copy which we now have, is of a later Date than the Septuagint, as copying from thence in several Places. This takes off much from its Authority, as a Standard to correct others by. For in this Case it is no Way material to enquire, Whether the Samaritans had a Copy of the Law ever since the Revolt under Jeroboam? For tho' we grant, that they had; yet if this is not to be found, and if that which we now have, appears to be altered and corrupted (q) to serve a Turn for the Establishing the Authority of their Temple at Garizim, in Opposition to the Temple at Jerusalem, as also by (r) Mistaking of Letters, and (s) Transposing of whole Places, and varying of others; tho' it may be of Use like other Translations to confirm the Hebrew Text, where they agree; yet it can be of no Use to correct and amend it, where they differ. The Authority of the Hebrew Text is so fully vindicated in the

Prolegomena to the Polyglot Bible, and in a set Discourse for that Purpose; that it is admirable, how any one since that Time can attempt to shake it. And the Defects of the Samaritan Version is so fully detected in another set Discourse, and so many Variations in every Chapter shewn by Morinus in the Appendix to those noble Volumes, that he who compares it with the other Works of the same Author, can never pretend to set it up for a Standard to try the Original by. As to the Samaritan Version, which is likewise added to the Hebrew Samaritan Text, I know of no Way to guess at its Antiquity, except (t) by comparing it with the Chaldee and Syriack, which if we do, then the Affinity of the Language with the Chaldee, will shew it to be long since that Countrey was subdued by the King of Assyria. The (u) Corruption of many Chaldee Words, which are intire in Onkelos, and the (x) inserting Words of their own will shew it to be of a later Date than that Version. And the late Words taken from other Languages will plainly shew it to be later than either the Chaldee or Syriack Versions. I have

He that will compare these four Languages together, may observe, that the Chaldee and Syriack agree more with the Hebrew than the Samaritan. The Chaldee hath but one Word, viz. Num. 10. which is not derived from the Hebrew, either in the Text, or from some other Word in the Hebrew Language, and the Syriack hath not one. But the Samaritan hath two, viz. Num. 2, and 10. The Syriack hath no less than fourteen Words, which are the same with the Chaldee; but the Samaritan hath but seven, viz. Num. 4, 6, 9, 14, 15, 19, 20. and it never agrees exactly with the Hebrew in any of the rest. And therefore as the Samaritan Language differs more from the Chaldee, than the Syriack doth, and more from the Hebrew than either; so we must allow a greater Time to make the Alterations, and consequently is of much later Date than the Syriack. Neither can we guess from the Language itself, that it is more antient than the Targum of Jonathan. For the Truth of this I appeal to the first Word of the Bible, In the Beginning. This in Onkelos is בקרמין from the Hebrew Word קרם before or formerly, Onkelos never leaves out the middle Letter; so that from him we plainly find the Derivation. The Targum of Jonathan leaves it out in Levit. xxiii. 11 and 15. and it is left out in the Talmud, as בנה קמא Porta prima. See Buxtorf's Lexicon Talmudicum under the Word קרם. But the Samaritan Language seems to corrupt the Word more than the other, and writes it בקאמורה, as if it was the latest of them all. (r) As קמאורה Gen. i. 1. of which before, with many others. given (y) a few Instances in the Margin ; and leave any one to Judge, what Antiquity that Version must be of, where (z) Tidal is expressly mention'd as the King or the Sultan of the Hamites. We may therefore as well set up to correct Greek Authors by their Latin Versions, or Latin Authors by their English Versions, or the Alcoran of Mahomet by the Latin and French Translations, as to correct the Sacred Text by any of these. Their Antiquity may be of good Use, whilst they lead us to those lively Oracles, which were committed to the Care of the Jews, and from them were handed down to us. But if a Suggestion, that the Jews had corrupted them, shall be sufficient to attempt daily Alterations, instead of fixing the Standard, we shall confound it ; instead of one Bible, we shall have as many as there are Criticks. We shall search after Truth until we have lost it, and play with this sacred Light, until we have put it out. And whilst we arraign GOD's Providence in suffering such Corruptions to be made, and the World be imposed on with a Scripture, as coming from him, a great Part whereof was none of his, we too justly provoke him to enter into Judgment for such unprejudiced Impieties, if not to remove his Candlestick out of its Place, and give it to a Nation, which will make a better Use of it.

And lastly, from the Hebrew by the Method aforesaid, or by altering a Letter in such Instances, where the Chaldee and Syriack make no Alteration, as if these Languages were before the Corruptions made by the Samaritans. As 1 חש arbor, Heb. עץ Gen. i. 12. 2 טבל corrupit, Heb. חבל Gen. xxxii. 5. 3 יחם pepercit, Heb. חום Gen. vii. 16. 4 יצר clausit, Heb. עצר Deut. xi. 17. 5 כוף corpus, Heb. גוף Gen. vii. 23. 6 כס calix, Heb. כוס Exod. xxv. 29. 7 כחבה humerus, Heb. כחף Num. vii. 9. 8 נפנף volavit, Heb. עופף Gen. i. 20. 9 נתר custodivit, Heb. נטר Deut. v. 32. 10 סבע septem, Heb. שבע Gen. v. 20. 11 סרוג corrigia, Heb. שרוף Gen. xiv. 23. 12 ענברה mus, Heb. ענבר Levit. xi. 29. 13 עו lignum, Heb. עץ Exod. xxv. 13. 14 עסר ligavit, Heb. אסר Exod. xii. 11. 15 עפר effodit, Heb. חפר Deut. xxxiii. 13. 16 רתע caluit, Heb. רתח Gen. xviii. 1. 17 שבט judicavit, Heb. שפט Exod. xviii. 13. 18 חהום terminus, Heb. חחום Exod. x. 14. It may be observed, that where the Chaldee and the Syriack alter the Letters of the Hebrew Words according to the Rules mentioned in the Beginning of the Chaldee Grammar, they generally change them into such other Words, as are seldom or never found in the Hebrew Language in any Sense ; as if a remaining Knowledge of the Hebrew Language prevented such Alterations. But these and such like additional Alterations, which were made in the Samaritan Language, were made into such Words, as were usual in the Hebrew, and in a different Sense, which shews, that all the Remains of the Hebrew Language were left, before the Alterations were made. And therefore the Language must be of a later Date. And tho' the small, or no Affinity of the Samaritan with the Arabick, where it differs from the rest, is a good Argument to conclude it not to be so late, as when the Arabick Language was in Use ; yet by the Nature of the Samaritan Language itself, it seems very clear, that that Translation could not be made before the fourth Century, or perhaps not long before the Time of St. Hierome, by whom (I suppose) it was first quoted. And the broken Hebrew, which runs through all the Parts of the Hebrew Samaritan Text, together with several exotic Words, the continual Varying from the Hebrew Text, and keeping so exactly to the Samaritan Version, seem to be sufficient Reasons to conclude, that the Samaritan Version was made in a very late Century, only to establish the Samaritan Worship, and then the Hebrew Samaritan Text was imposed upon the World to establish this Version. So that it cannot be of any greater Authority than the Jewish Talmud to correct the Hebrew Text by. And as the Primitive Fathers, who saw it, did always reject its divine Authority, and always kept to the Hebrew, which we now have ; so we have the utmost Reason, to follow their Examples. I shall therefore only add the Testimony of the Editors of the Polyglot Bible. De Samaritanis Versionibus, Sect. 17. De autoritate exemplaris Samaritani non opus est multa dicere : neminem enim novimus, qui authenticum facit, vel textui Hebraico generaliter præfert. Operam & oleum perdunt, qui magno molimine probare satagunt Samaritanum textum authenticum non esse, nec Hebraico præferendum ; hoc enim est cum larvis luctari, vel cum umbrâ propriâ contendere. Hæc itaque questio inter doctos nulla est. (z) Gen. xiv. 9. וחדער Versio. Samarit. Et Tidal rege, Sultano Hamamæorum. This Text is a plain Indication of the lateness of the Samaritan Version. For tho' the Word שרש in the Chaldee Language, Dan. ii. 10. Dan. iii. 2. they are called שרשונים. The Rulers of the Provinces among the Chaldeans. And it was used to signify a supreme Governour only in much later Ages. Unde Imperator Turcicus dicitur Sultan, Buxtorfii Lexicon Talmudicum.

27. The Sum of all is this, that the Heb. Text, which we have in our common Bibles is the only antient and authentick Standard, and is the same, which was written by Moses. That the Septuagint Version was written in the Time of Ptolomy Philadelphus King of Egypt, when the Translators were too negligent, and did comply too far with the vain Humour of those Times. That these Translators copy'd not from the Samaritan, but from the present Hebrew Character, since there are frequent Mistakes occasion'd by the likeness of Letters in the present Hebrew, which bear no Resemblance in the other Character. That the Samaritan Version was not made, until the Romans had been Lords of those Countries for some Time, and had introduc'd several Latin Words into that Language, and that it was a corrupt Translation of the Septuagint, by such who designed to justify their Separation from the Jews, and wrested some Texts for that Purpose. That by their Separation from the Jews, their long Captivity, their Mixing with other People, and their various Sorts of Idolatry occasion'd thereby, and by their Neglect of the Worship of the true GOD they had lost the Book of the Law; as the Jews had lost theirs, before it was found in the Time of Josiah. That the Hebrew being now a dead Language, and the Schism and Hatred between the Jews and the Samaritans increasing, some Person unknown translated the Samaritan Version into Hebrew the better to justify that Version, and lay aside the true antient Text, and the better to colour this Design, he frequently made Use of the Words and Sentences, as they are in the old Hebrew Bible; tho' he seems to be a careless Transcriber from a very corrupt Hebrew Copy. That the Septuagint Chronology since the Flood being in great Esteem, the Samaritan Translator did not think fit to vary from it. But there being still some Remains of a Tradition among them; that Abraham might be born about two thousand Years after the Creation, they were also willing to come as near to it as possible, for Fear of giving Offence to their own Country-Men. And that this was the Reason, why they not only shortned the Lives of the Antediluvian Patriarchs; but also omitted the second Cainan mention'd after the Flood by the Septuagint. If this is the true Account (as I very believe it is, and that the contrary cannot be prov'd) the Reader may judge, of what slender Authority the Samaritan Copy and Version must be, when it is set up as a Standard, whereby to correct our present Books of Moses.

CHAP. VI.

Farther Proofs concerning the Time of the Flood.

AS the Time of the Flood according to the Hebrew Account is (as I suppose) fully confirm'd by what hath been already mentioned in the former Chapter, and consequently, that the Authority of the Septuagint and Samaritan Versions, where they differ from the Hebrew, is fully confuted; so, I suppose, that it may not be disagreeable to the Reader, to establish the Truth of the Hebrew Chronology, as far as it relates to the Time of the Flood from the Testimonies even of (a) Heathen antient Authors, of which there are so many collected by our own (b) eminent Divines, that they put this Matter out of Dispute.

2. Among the Latins Varro was always accounted the greatest Person for sound Learning of any, that were ever bred at Rome, and he

(as (c) a learned Prelate assures us) testifies, that there were about sixteen hundred Years between the first Flood and the Olympiads. And as the first Olympiad happen'd to be in the Year of the Julian Period 2938; so if the Year of the Flood in these Tables, which is 2361. is subtracted from it, the Remainder is 1577. which is the true Distance between the Flood and the first Olympiad, and is within half a Century of what is mention'd by Varro, and consequently as near to it as possible; but this Number is exceeded by the Septuagint above 850 Years.

3. The next Country in our Travels from Italy toward the East is Greece. And here (d) Aristotle, who was the first Grecian, that ever taught the Eternity of the World contrary to the History of Moses, is the Man, who

(a) Abydenus, Berofus, Eratosthenes, Plutarch, Varro, &c. (b) Stillingfleet's Origines Sacrae, Book 2. Chap. 4. Grotii Annotationes in Lib. 1. De veritate Religionis Christianae. Vossii Isagoge Chron. Dissert. 4. Cap. 2, & 3. Bocharti Geographia Sacra, Lib. 1. Cap. 4. August. de Civitate Dei, Lib. 18. p. 12. & Ludovic. de Dieu, ibid. Eusebii *Chronicon, Pag. 5. furnisheth us with an Argument to support the Mosaical Chronology. He (e) took Care to send over into Greece the Astronomical Observations of the Chaldeans, by which it appear'd, that Babylon was taken by Alexander the Great about 1903 Years after its Foundation. Now this Calculation exactly agrees with that of Moses, who (f) gives us the Description of the Tower of Babel, or Babylon, and explains the Original of the Name of that City by the Confusion of Tongues, which then happen'd. Now Babylon was taken by Alexander in the 4390th Year of the Julian Period, from whence if we subtract 1903, the Remainder is 2487. And according to these Tables the Dispersion from Babylon happen'd in the Year of the Julian Period 2493; so that the City was (g) finish'd six Years before, and they spent these six Years in Building the Tower to that prodigious Height, of which it afterward appear'd to be. And this may be another Argument to prove, that I have plac'd the Dispersion from Babylon at the right Time, and that it ought not to be thirty Years before at the Birth of Peleg, as others have suppos'd. However we may thus prove (by the true and genuine Astronomical Observations of the Chaldeans, which the Children of Israel were altogether unacquainted with, when the Septuagint Version was written) that Moses in the Hebrew Text follow'd a Calculation, which was then generally known in his Time. And it must be very admirable, that the Heavens in their Motions should enter into a Confederacy with Moses to justify a Chronology invented by him, unless the G O D, who made the Heavens, directed him what he should write.

4. And as we are come from Greece into Chaldea; so it will be necessary to inquire, Whether we can there find any Footsteps of the Flood, or of the Ages before it? As to the Flood it is prov'd by (h) several Authors, that the Chaldeans had some Notion of it, and that among them the Memory of Noah was preserv'd under the Fable of Oannes, which had Part of a Fish and Part of a Man, as is evident from the Fragments of Apollodorus, Abydenus, and Alexander Polyhistor, preserv'd in Eusebius's Greek Chronica. Besides, Xisuthrus is the same with Noah; since if we change one Name for the other, the whole History of the Flood and of Noah's being sav'd in the Ark may be found in the remaining Fragments of Berosus and Abydenus. As particularly (i) that G O D reveal'd to Xisuthrus, that a great Deluge should destroy Men from the Earth, and begin on the fifteenth Day of the Month Desius, and therefore Xisuthrus was commanded to save himself and his Family, by entering into an Ark or Ship, and to take with him into the Ark all Sorts of Birds and Beasts, with necessary Food for himself and them. Which being done the Flood came, according as it had been foretold. And after the Rain had ceas'd, Xisuthrus sent out a Bird to see, if the Waters were abated, which return'd to him having found nothing to rest upon. And after some Time he sent out another, which return'd the second Time but with dirty Feet, whereby he knew, that the Waters were abated. And after this he sent out the Bird the third Time, which return'd not to him any more. That after this Xisuthrus open'd the Ark, and saw that the Ground was dry; so he, and his Wife, and Daughter, and the Pilot of the Ark came out, and then Xisuthrus rais'd an Altar and offer'd Sacrifices to the Gods; which being done, he and they disappeared, and were never seen again. His Children also came out and sacrific'd, and found, that the Ark rested on one of the Gordyeen Mountains, and Part of it continu'd in being, when this was written, And that after this Xisuthrus's Children journey'd toward Babylon, which City they built with several others, and also founded several Temples.

5. And as this Tradition of the Flood is clear and plain; so it is also as evident, that they had a Notion of the Ages before it. And here we are at first View presented with (k) an unmeasurable Account of Time among them in their first Dynasties, where the Time of their first Kings are reckon'd not by Years; but by Σάρα, Νέζοι, and Σώροι. Now according to them every Σάρα contain'd 3600 Years, Νέζοι 600, and Σώροι 60. Here is a very large Sum for the Chaldean Dynasties, when they reckon'd 120 Σάρα from the Beginning of the Reign of Alorus or Adam, to the End of the Reign of Xisuthrus or Noah, which, according to their Computation, reckoning for every Σάρα 3600 Years makes up 432000 Years. But then they confute themselves, when to this vast Number of Years they allow but ten Kings or Dynasties; and so many Patriarchs there are between Adam and Noah inclusive of both. Now by Years according to this Account it is plain, that they could not mean so large a Space, as we compute now. For who can imagine, that each of these ten Kings, namely, Alorus, and those ten from him to Xisuthrus could reign one with another 43200 Years? which must be so according to this Computation; since 120 Σάροι (reckoning for every Σάρα 3600 Years) make up 432000 Years, the tenth Part whereof is 43200. There have been only two Ways thought on of Dealing with these Computations. The first is the wholly Rejecting them as fabulous, and founded on no Evidence or Records of History; and only granting, that they (being so near the Place of the Settlement of Noah and his Posterity after the Flood) might retain the Memory not only of the Flood, (of which it is evident, that they had several Remainders preserv'd in their Traditions) but likewise of the Ages of Men preceding the Flood, wherein they were right, reckoning from Alorus the first to Xisuthrus, that is from Adam to Noah ten Generations; but being wholly ignorant of the Names of these ten Persons, and the Times in which they lived, through the Unfaithfulness of Tradition, they took the Liberty not only of coining Names, but also of setting those Ages to them, which they themselves pleased. And to this Purpose (l) Scaliger observes, that some of their first Kings are reckon'd before the Flood; which, faith he, is deny'd by Georgius Syncellus without any Reason. Thus far then we may admit of the Chaldean Dynasties, as to some Part of their Tradition; but rejecting their Names and Computations as fabulous. The other Way of Explaining their Dynasties is by the several Methods of Computation among them. For the learned Monks Panodorus and Anianus understood these vast Sums not of Years but of Days, and so they make a Σάρον to contain 120 Months of thirty Days each, in all 3600 Days (which, as Scaliger observes, make ten Chaldean Years) and a Νάρον 20 equal Months, and a Σωρον 2, according to which 120 Σάρον make but 1200 Years. But this Number will not agree with any remarkable Epocha. And therefore the learned Salmasius gives us (m) another Computation, according to whom every Σάρον contain'd no less than 6000 Years, as the Toman among the Persians contain'd ten thousand. That they might put Years for Days is no Wonder, since the Word in the Chaldean Language, which is put for a Year, signifies properly only a Revolution, and if meant of the Sun (as no Doubt it is) may signify either a diurnal or an annual Revolution. According to this Reckoning 120 Σάρον make 1973 Julian Years, and 348 Days, or near 1974 Julian Years. But neither did this Account any Way agree with the Distance of Time from the Creation to the Flood, either according to the Hebrew or the Septuagint or the Samaritan Pentateuch. And therefore since other Persons, when they reckon'd the Reign of these ten Kings from the Creation to the Flood, could never give a satisfactory Account of their Computations, I hope, that I may be excus'd in fixing this Epocha from the Time of the Cre- on of the World to the Time when Noah ended his Reign, that is, when he died, which was (n) 350 Years after the Flood, and in the 2006th Year after the Creation, or thirty two Years after these 120 Σάρον ended. And thus, if according to Salmasius each Σάρον consisted of 6000 Days, or something more than 16 Julian Years, then 120 Σάρον will consist of 720000 Days, which make near 1974 Julian Years, and differs but about two Σάρον from the Time mention'd, and this made them reckon (o) 120, as the nearest round Number, which did correspond to it. And thus the Distance of the Time from the Creation of the World to the Death of Noah is nearly fix'd from the Remains of Chaldean Antiquity.

6. From Chaldea let us now go down into Persia. And here we find them reckoning the twelve Signs of the Heavens in a different Manner from the western Parts of the World. For whereas we reckon Aries the first Sign, and Taurus the second, they (p) reckon'd Taurus the first Sign, and Gemini the second. The Reason why the Europeans reckon'd Aries to be the first Sign, was because in the Time of Hipparchus the famous Astronomer, who first brought Astronomy into any regular Method or Perfection, the first Star of Aries had the same Longitude with the Point of the Equator, where the Ecliptick Line cuts it, and from whence the Passage of the Sun over it begins the Vernal Quarter. And we may conclude, that the Persians began with Taurus for a like Reason. Now in the Beginning of the Bull there is a famous Star of the first Magnitude, which we call The Bull's Eye; and the Arabians call it (q) Aldebaran or The Leader, as if it introduc'd or lead up the other Constellations, so that from thence they began to compute or reckon the twelve Signs. This Star was in so great Esteem among them, that several of (r) the Arabians worshipped it. And as the Persians were very famous Astronomers, as appears from (s) several Books on this Subject translated out of the Persick Language into Latin; so it is probable, that they might observe the Precession of the Equinox, and take an Account of its Variation. And as it is probable, that they would fix their Computation from the most ancient Time, which they could reckon, and it is certain that they had a Notion of the Flood and of the Age of Noah, who was preserv'd in the Ark, and that this might be reckon'd by them as the Beginning of the new World, and that all the Astronomical Accounts of the Antediluvian World might be obliterated by Length of Time; so it is as certain, that at the Birth of Noah, this Star had the same Longitude with the Point of the Vernal Equinox, or as we now call it, was in the first Degree of Aries; which is the Reason, why they call'd it The Leader, or Director of the Rest, and had it in so much Veneration.

7. To this let us add the Notion, which the Antients had of the Pleiades, as cold watry Stars. The (i) Talmudists say, that unless there was the Heat of Orion, the World could not subsist because of the Cold of the Pleiades; and unless there was the Cold of the Pleiades, the World could not subsist because of the Heat of Orion. The Greeks call them Ἰαδὲς Hyades from their Verb ἵω to rain. And the Latins call them (u) rainy, sad, and watry Stars. These Stars were much taken Notice of in the Time of (x) Job, and (y) in later Ages in the East. And it is also observable, that in the Year of the Flood, these seven Stars were in the same Longitude with the Vernal Equinoctial Point, or in the first Degree of Aries, as the Bull's Eye was at the Birth of Noah; and their knowing that it was thus by Astronomical Computations from the Time of the Flood, might give Occasion for their Reckoning them as a watry Constellation. And as the Persians (z) were the Offspring of Elam the Son of Shem, and Grandson of Noah, and seem to have been soon settled not far from the Place where the Ark, landed in peaceable and quiet Habitations, and a great Part of their Country lay open to the Sea, not only upon the South, but also upon the East and West; so it is the more probable, that they might retain the Learning, which their Ancestors had ever since the Flood, and it is most certain, that they had greater Opportunities to improve their Astronomical Observations, than any People, who liv'd in an uneven Country.

8. From Persia let us return into Egypt. And here we have several Accounts of 36525 Years, of 27500 Years, of 23000 Years, of 11340 Years, and of 10000 Years. All which, as they do far exceed the Chronology mention'd in the Hebrew Text; so the Additions in the Septuagint and the Samaritan Copies signify nothing to mend it; but the largest of them come several thousand Years short of the Egyptian Computations.

9. But that the vast Computation of the Egyptian Antiquity, and their exorbitant Dynasties may be reduc'd to some Proportion, and in some Measure may be reconcil'd to Truth, it will be requisite to observe the great Variety of Months and Years among the Egyptians in those Times. The (a) Months in all Ages were either Lunar or Solar. The Lunar were either from the Moon's returning again to the same Point of the Zodiack, call'd περίοδος σελήνης, which was in less than eight and twenty Days, and was of no Use in civil Computations; or else from one Conjunction of the Moon with the Sun to another, which was call'd συνόδος σελήνης, which was also of no Use until such Time as Astronomy was brought into some Method; or else from the first Appearance of the Moon, which was generally on the second or third Day after its Conjunction, which was observ'd not by the Jews only, but perhaps by all Nations in the most antient Times. The Solar Months were either natural, such as were describ'd by the Sun's Passage from one Sign of the Zodiack to another, of which they could have no Use until they had found out the Sun's unequal Motion, and knew how to calculate it; or else the Solar Months were civil, whereby the Months were equally divided into thirty Days each, as in the Grecian and Egyptian Year. The Egyptian Priests, who had the Custody of such Records and Histories, which they most boasted of, and being desirous to be thought the most learned and antient People in the World, altered the Lunar Month to a Solar of thirty Days, and then they boasted, that they had found out the Course of the Sun, and made their historical Year to consist only of a Solar Month; and not only by this Distinction, but also frequently by direct Forgeries, unknown to Strangers, imposed upon those, who enquir'd of them concerning their History. That among them the Time of thirty Days was accounted a Year, is plain from (b) the Testimony of Plutarch, who saith, that the Egyptians had at first a Year consisting of one Month, and after that of four. And that this Method was us'd in the sacred historical Accounts, is evident from the same Author, who (c) speaking of the Egyptians great Pretence to Antiquity, adds this Reason for it, They reckon an infinite Number of Years in their Accounts, because they reckon their Months instead of Years.

10. First, (d) Altho' the Egyptians in their latter Times have maintain'd, that the World was eternal; yet they have sufficiently acknowledg'd, that it had a Beginning, since they make no mention of any Thing before their thirty Dynasties, which in all did at the most amount to no more than 36525 Years, which according to their Lunar Years of thirty Days, makes 2976 Julian Years and 266 Days, and if reckon'd from the Birth of Noah, Anno Mundi 1057. ends in the 26th Year of CHRIST; but if reckon'd from the Creation of the World (which was most certainly their Computation) ends in the Reign of David King of Israel. And as the Egyptians reckon'd thirty Kings succeeding each other in that Time; so (e) the Scripture reckons thirty three Generations from Adam to David inclusive of both.

11. The second Account is that of Diodorus Siculus, who tells us, (t) that the Gods and Heroes reign'd in Egypt for the Space of near 18000 Years, and that the last of them was Orus the Son of Isis, and from the Reign of Men in Egypt he reckons 9500 Years, or there about, to the Time of his Entrance into Egypt, which was the third Year of the 180th Olympiad, or the 694th Year from the Building of Rome, and consequently in the Year of the Julian Period 4659. Now supposing these to be Lunar Years of thirty Days, their 18000 Years make 1478 Julian Years, and 150 Days, and their 9500 Years make 780 Julian Years, and 145 Days; so that the whole makes 2258 Julian Years, and 295 Days, or near 2259 Julian Years, which being subtracted from the abovemention'd Period 4569, the Remainder is the Year of the Julian Period 2400, or 38 Years after the Flood, when Salah the Son of Arphaxad and Grandson of Shem, according (g) to these Tables, was one Year old. And as we may suppose, that Ham the Father of the Egyptians might have Grandchildren at the same Time; so their Authority was no longer confin'd as Parents to a single Family, but extended to their Grandchildren, and from hence the Date of their Reigns begin. And thus Mizraim (h) the Son of Ham might be born about the same Time with Arphaxad the Son of Shem; and Thoth or Athotes, who was the Son of Menes, Misraim, or Osiris, might be born about the same Time with Salah.

12. Thirdly, Diodorus Siculus tells us also, that the Egyptians reckon little less than 23000 Years between the Time of Orus the Son of Osiris or Mizraim, and the Conquest of Egypt by Alexander the Great. Now Alexander the Great conquer'd Egypt in the 417th Year of Nabonassar, or in the Year of the Julian Period 4383. But supposing also these to be Lunar Years of thirty Days, their 23000 Years make 1889 Julian Years after the Flood. And if Orus was born about the same Time with Salah, or about 37 Years after the Flood; then he was about 97 Years of Age at this Time, which (as Men usually in that Age of the World liv'd near four hundred Years) was a fit Time for some remarkable Action of Orus, from whence this Epocha commenc'd.

13. Fourthly, Herodotus (i) tells us, that he was inform'd by the Egyptians, that from their first King, or Priest of Vulcan, 'till the Time of Sethos (in whose Time Senacherib attempted the Conquest of Egypt) there had pass'd 341

Generations, and as many Kings and High Priests, and 11340 Years, reckoning three Generations to make up a Century. Now if we understand this prodigious Computation according to our common Form of Years, we may suspect the Egyptians of an Intention to deceive Herodotus and the credulous Greeks, and for this Purpose to have us'd an Equivocation, which in some Sense may be reconcileable to Truth. For according to this Account of a Solar Month or Year of thirty Days, 100 Years make 3000 Days, and a Generation one Thousand, and so many Days the Kings, or Priests of Vulcan may be allow'd to reign. According to this Reckoning 340 Generations of 1000 Days each, make up 340000 Days, to which if we add the 200 Days, which Sethos is suppos'd to have now reign'd upon Senacherib's Invasion, we have 340200 Days, which make up those Years of 30 Days each 11340 in the whole, and is the Number assign'd by Herodotus. Now Senacherib invaded Egypt in the Year of the Julian Period 4002; and these 12340 Years make 931 Julian Years, and 152 Days, which being subtracted from 4002 leaves the Year of the Julian Period 3071, or the Year of the World 2366, which happen'd about 147 Years before the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt; and in a Time when the Egyptians were freed from the Wars occasion'd by the Pastor Kings, and so were more at leisure to settle their religious and domestick Affairs.

14. Lastly, Diodorus Siculus tells us also, that the Egyptians reckon no less than 10000 Years between their Hercules and Hercules Bæotius the Son of Alcmena. Now Hercules Bæotius liv'd but one Generation before the Trojan War, for which we may allow 30 Years; and therefore it must be about the Year of the Julian Period 3500. But supposing also these to be Solar Years or Months of 30 Days, these 10000 Years make 821 Julian Years, and 130 Days, which being subtracted from the before mention'd Period 3500, the Remainder is the Year of the Julian Period 2679, or the Year after the Flood 317, Anno Mundi 1974, about which Time we may reckon, that this Assis, or Hercules Egyptius, was born. So that he was cotemporary with Terah the Father of Abraham, and if we allow him to live about so many Years as Terah liv'd, which was (k) 205 Years; his Age will be thus fix'd. Born Anno Mundi 1974. (l) Was made Governour or Ruler of lower Egypt, Anno 2131. Ætatis sue 157. Maintain'd a vigorous War in Egypt for nine and forty Years, from whence he drew off his Men, Anno Mundi 2180. Ætatis sue 206. and died soon after.

15. Another Form of Years in Use among the Egyptians was that, which consisted of four equal Months, or 120 Days. Thus Plutarch faith, (m) The Egyptians had a Year at first consisting of one Month, and after that of four. Diodorus Siculus also (n) gives an Account of this Kind of Year among the Egyptians. And Solinus (o) seems to mention this as the only Year in Request among them. And St. Augustine faith, (p) that the Egyptians are affirm'd to have had formerly such short Years, that they were ended in four Months; so that their fuller and truer Year, which is now common both to them and us, contains three of their antient Years. This renders the Egyptian Account more uncertain than before, and only leaves us to guess with the greatest Probability of Reason, what Form of Year was meant by them in their several Computations.

(e) Compare Gen. v. 1. to the End. Gen. xi. 10. to the End. Matt. i. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6. (f) Still- ingfleet's Origines Sacre, Book 1. Chap. 5. Sect. 1, and 2. Diodorus Siculus, Lib. 1. (g) Table 14. (h) Table 11. (i) Euterpe. (k) Gen. xi. 32. (l) Table 17.

16. As for Example. First, Diodorus Siculus (q) speaks very much in Favour of the old Egyptian Kings and Laws, and produceth this from the Egyptian Priests, as the best Evidence of the excellent Temper of their Government, that they had Kings of their own Nation for the Space of 4700 Years until the Time of Cambyse's Inroad into Egypt, which was in the third Year of the 63<sup>d</sup> Olympiad, and in the Year of the Julian Period 4188. Now these 4700 Years, taking them for 120 Days each, make 1544 Julian Years and 53 Days, which being subtracted from the Julian Period 4188. the Remainder is 2644. or the Year of the World 1948. which falls in with the Reign of Thoth or Athothes, the Son of Mizraim and Grandson of Ham, who was always look'd upon by the Egyptians with the greatest Esteem, as the Settler of their Government and Constitution, insomuch that the first Month of the Year was call'd by his Name.

17. Secondly, Vossius (r) tells us, that we are to reckon by these Years, what the Egyptians report of the long Lives of their antient Kings, when they attribute to each of them the Space of 300 Years. For these 300 Years, making 98 Julian Years and 215 Days, might well agree to the ordinary Age of Mens Lives in those Times, especially before Moses, when they generally lived longer than we do now.

18. And Thirdly, Diodorus Siculus also mentions from the Death of Proteus to his own Time 3400 Years, which was in the third Year of the 180th Olympiad, or the Year of the Julian Period 4569. Now these 3400 Years taking them for 120 Days each, make 1117 Julian Years, and 16 Days, which subtracted from the Year of the Julian Period 4569, the Remainder is 3542, for the Year of the Julian Period, which happens to be in the Year of the World 2839, when Elon judg'd Israel, about which Time Proteus may be suppos'd to live.

19. The last Form of Years in Use among the Egyptians is their Solar Year, which as it comes near the Truth in Respect of Time; so it will bring us nearer the Truth in Respect of History, and be of greater Use than either of the other to confirm the sacred Chronology of the Hebrew Text. Now (s) it is agreed by most, that when the Egyptians had found out the Form of the Year by the Course of the Sun, (which is attributed by (t) Diodorus to the Heliopolitan Priests) yet the Year in common Use was only of 360 Days, which in any great Period of Time must of Necessity cause a monstrous Confusion, because of the Change of the Months to the different Seasons; which Defect the Egyptian Priests at last observing, and that the Seasons had been twice thus alter'd, saw a Necessity of adding five Days to the End of the Year, which were therefore call'd ἐπαγόμενοι, or superadded, and implies, that they were not antiently in Use among them, being afterward inserted to make up the full Course of the Year. Of this the Egyptians give an Account (as (u) Plutarch tells us) under this Fable. Mercury (that is Thoth or Athothes, the Grandson of Ham) being once at Dice with the Moon, he got from her a seventy second Part of the Year. This he afterward added to the three hundred and sixty Days, which were antiently the Days of the Year, and they call'd them ἐπαγόμενοι, and therein they celebrated the Festivals of their Gods. This Year differs from the Julian Year but six Hours; so that it only adds another Year in 1460 Years, which is so small a Difference in so great a Run of Time, that it can make no great Alteration in the following Tables; and therefore we must at present have Recourse to this Sort of Year, as to that which will best serve to settle all Disputes.

20. As (x) Moses gives us an Account before the Flood of the Posterity of Seth unto Noah; and from thence to Abraham; so (y) Sanchoniatho (z) hath given us an Account of the Posterity of Cain until the Flood, and for three Generations after, which ends with Θωθ, or Thoth King of Egypt. And as the Design of Moses was to confirm the true Religion; so Sanchoniatho, being a Pagan, writes professedly in Defence of Idolatry. Accordingly he gives an Account, how Idolatry began and increased in the Family of Cain, and the Wickedness of those Generations, which is so far from Contradicting the Scriptures, that it very much confirms them. As Moses gives an Account of the Creation; so Sanchoniatho affirms, That the Principle of the Universe was a dark and windy Air, or a Wind made of dark Air, and a turbulent Evening Chaos, and that these Things were boundless, and for a long Time had no Shape nor Figure, and that from

hence were all Things produced. As Moses gives an Account of Adam and Eve; so Sanchoniatho tells us, That the two first Mortals were Protogonus Πρωτόγονος, and Æon, Ἄϊων. And Æon found out the Way of taking Food from Trees. This agrees with the Account, which we have in the Scriptures concerning the Fall of our first Parents; and is (as he calls it) The first Generation of Mortals. And those, who were begotten of them, were called Γέν and Γεζ, or Cainus and Caina, and dwelt in Phœnicia. As Moses reckons up ten Generations from Adam to Noah, who was the Grandfather of Mizraim in the Scriptures; so Sanchoniatho reckons up ten Generations from Πρωτόγονος. Protogonus to Ὀυρανός, or Uranus, the Grandfather of Μισαῖς, or Mizraim, and Great Grandfather of Thoth and the Κάβιροι Cabiri, by whom these Records were first kept, and from whom they were handed to others; so that this Account instead of confuting the Scriptures, as it was intended, doth very much confirm them. It may be (a) objected, that we have not in Sanchoniatho one Word concerning the Deluge. And indeed this is no Wonder. The Deluge was a Judgment upon the idolatrous World, and swept it away. The Worshippers of the true GOD gloried in this, and reproach'd the Heathens with it; so that they were desirous to conceal such a Matter of Shame to themselves.

21. But as the History of Sanchoniatho confirms the Scriptures; so we have no sufficient Ground to disbelieve it. Thoth the Grandson of Ham, and those who liv'd with him, might very well be supposed to be told by Noah, or at least by Ham the Transactions, which happen'd before the Flood. When these Things were fresh in their Memory, Thoth took Care to have them recorded at Berytus, and deposited these Records to be kept by the Cabiri, who were appointed by him to set down these Antiquities, before he went into Egypt to be King there. Now Sanchoniatho had a peculiar Advantage in this, that not only his own Time was many Centuries before all Historians; that we have now extant; but he also search'd these Records at his own Town at Berytus, which must be 800 Years, or more elder than his Time, and he had also view'd and compar'd his History with the Original Records kept at Diospolis or No Ammon in the Upper Egypt. And as it is uncertain, whether the Records at Berytus were continu'd down any longer than the Time of Thoth; so we find, that the History of Sanchoniatho ends with him.

22. To this Account of Sanchoniatho let us add (b) the (c) Chronological Table of Eratosthenes, who begins it with Menes or Mizraim, which was one Generation before the Time, when Sanchoniatho ended, and gives us an exact Account of eight and thirty Kings, and how long each of them reign'd, and will more fully confirm the sacred Chronology of the Hebrew Text. Any authentick Record of the Egyptian Kings, which will outweigh, or at least counterballance the Authority of their Priests, will do very good Service to any impartial Judge, if it shall be found to agree with Moses and Sanchoniatho, and also with the Greek and Western Historians. All these valuable Considerations may be met with in the Series of the Egyptian Kings of 1055 Years, who reign'd in Thebes or Diospolis, or Thebais, or The Upper Egypt, which was carefully gather'd and set in Order by Eratosthenes Cyrenæus at the Command of Ptolomæus Euergetes, illustrated with a Greek Interpretation of their Egyptian Names, which were commonly significant in the Nature of Titles. This Eratosthenes liv'd about 265 Years before the Vulgar Account of CHRIST's Birth, his Credit was great and unblemish'd, his Education was not entangl'd with the Interests of the Egyptian Religion. He was justly reckon'd a Master of all Sorts of Learning, and was the Keeper of the famous Alexandrian Library, and could easily inform himself and satisfy others by what Authority of Books he compos'd the Catalogue of Kings, which he left us, and these Books were always open for the Perusal of others, who could easily have detected any Falshood. He search'd into those Records, with a Desire to find out the Truth, and compar'd his Notes with the Original Records kept at Diospolis; and this was done by the Command of the King of Egypt, who was dissatisfy'd with the Account of the Egyptian Antiquities given in to his Predecessor Philadelphus, and therefore he employ'd Eratosthenes to correct and amend it, which he did in such a Manner, that it hath since met with the Approbation of all the learned World.

23. To this Table of Eratosthenes, I have added (d) a Table from Josephus and Manetho, of the Phœnician Kings or Pastors, and Canaanites, who reign'd in Lower Egypt, until the Destruction of Pharaoh and his Army in the Red sea, or the Space of 593 Years. And as they have set down the Years and Months of each King's Reign, and it appears that Pharaoh was drown'd in the Red-sea on the 24th Day of April, in the Year of the World 2513. (of which in its proper Place) so I have computed the Years backward from thence, according to the Egyptian reckoning of 365 Days, that is 30 Months of 12 Days, and five additional Days at the End. So that if their Account be true, I cannot err above a Fortnight or a Month at most, which is a Matter of no Consequence in a Case of this Nature. The Method of calculating the Days in the Column of the aforesaid Table is this.

Prob. I. A certain Julian Year being given before the Æra of Nabonassar, and a Number of Years in the Egyptian Year being given, to find the Beginning of the Egyptian Year in the imaginary Julian Year corresponding thereto.

(d) Table 13.
(f) Table 3.

(e) Beverigii Institutiones Chronologicæ, Lib. 1. Cap. 101. & Lib. 2. Cap. 16.

Prob.

Answer. First, Find the Day of the Beginning of the Egyptian Year or Æra of Nabonassar in the imaginary Julian Year requir'd, by finding the Number of the Bissextile Days, and adding them to the Number (e) 56, and the Total shews (f) the Number of Days from the Beginning of January, in which the Egyptian Year did begin in that Julian Year given; only a Day must be added in a Bissextile Year for the Months of January and February, if Occasion requires.

As for Example. To find the Day of the Beginning of the Year according to the Æra of Nabonassar, in the Year of the Julian Period 3218. when the Egyptians were drown'd in the Red-sea.

Answer. The Æra of Nabonassar began in the Year of the Julian Period 3967. when the Year began on the twenty sixth Day of February, or when 56 Days had been compleated since the Beginning of the Julian Year; from whence subtracting 3218, the Remainder is 749 Years, in which there are 187 Bissextile Days, which added to 56, the Total is 243 which in Table 3. and in a common Year answers to August 31. and shews, that the Egyptian Year, or their first Month Thoth did then begin on that Day:

Prob. II. A Num'cr of Years and Months being given according to the Egyptian Year, or Æra of Nabonassar, to be reckon'd backward from a certain Day in a Julian Year given, to find the Day in the said Julian Year, when the said Month began.

First, The Beginning of the Year being known by the former Problem, add the Number of Bissextile Days to the Day of the Julian Year given, which will reduce the same to be equally distant from the Beginning of the Year, according to the Æra of Nabonassar.

Secondly, From the Day thus found out subtract thirty Days for every Month, and the Remainder is the Day requir'd; only if the Egyptian Year happens to begin between the Day found out by the first Operation, and by this second, five Days more must be subtracted for the ἐπαγόμενοι.

As for Example, Pharaoh Amenophis was drown'd, on the tenth Day of April in the Year of the World 2513. after he had reign'd 19<sup>y</sup>. 66<sup>m</sup>. I would know when he began to reign.

Answer, To April 10. or Number 100. I add the Bissextile Days for twenty Years, or five Days and the Total is 105, from whence I subtract six Months, or 180 Days, by adding first 365 to 105, and then the Remainder is 290, which answers to the seventeenth Day of October. But the Egyptian Year beginning a little before, viz. on the fifth Day of September there is no Occasion for the ἐπαγόμενοι.

If there is a Necessity to add 365 Days before subtraction can be made; as in this Example, a Year must also be added to the Number of Years given, which subtracted from the Year first given, leaves also the Year requir'd, in which this Day happen'd.

24. As for the Confirming of the sacred Scriptures by this Table of Eratosthenes we must observe, that the first King of Egypt, who is Menes, is the same with Mizraim the Son of Ham. Sanchoniatho calls him Misor, the Hebrew Termination being left out, as is usual in altering of proper Names into other Languages, and that they both mean the same Person is evident, because Eratosthenes makes him the Predecessor of Athothes, and Sanchoniatho of Thoth. The (g) Letter A is arbitrarily prefix'd or omitted, and ES is only the Greek Termination. That (h) the Country of Egypt fell to the Lot of the Posterity of Ham, is evident, because it hath constantly carried the Name of Ham among the Gentiles. It was call'd so in Plutarch's Time. The Egyptian Thebes was call'd (i) Hammon No, which is the Name of the Egyptian Jupiter, as the Heathen Authors Herodotus and Plutarch do both testify, and in Greek Diospolis, or The City of Jupiter; and hence they call their first Kings (of which Menes was the first of all) the Offspring of the Gods. Now it is visible, that all this was for no other Reason, but because Egypt had fallen to the Share of Ham, Noah's third Son, who settl'd there, and call'd it (k) the Land of Ham, and whose Posterity did afterward people Africa, and gave it their several Names, as Moses particularly observes.

25. Besides, It is as evident, that Egypt hath more especially born the Name of Mizraim, (which it retains still in respect to one of its Parts) because of Mizraim the Son of Ham, who was the first King there. It is call'd, The Land of Mizraim throughout the whole Hebrew Bible, and in all the Oriental Translations, and is call'd so by the Turks at this Time. And no one can imagine, that all these Characters, given by Moses; would have been allow'd of in all the Eastern Parts of the World, except he had good Grounds to describe their Original as he hath done it.

26. Secondly, As Egypt could not be peopled before the Dispersion of Babylon; so it is certain, that no History places the Reign of Menes before that Time. And as the Scriptures give no Account of the Age of any of the Posterity of Ham, when they were born and when they died; so we can only observe, that their Generations were coremporary with Arphaxad, Salah, and Eber, who all liv'd above four hundred Years. If therefore we suppose Mizraim, the Son of Ham, to be born about the same Year with Arphaxad, the Son of Shem, or two Years after the Flood, and to live about four hundred Years, according to this Reckoning he must live about 270 Years after the Dispersion from Babylon, as Arphaxad did; and consequently, that no Account, which puts his Death sooner (which I suppose they all do) can be allow'd therein to contradict the Scriptures. And it is no Wonder to observe, that Historians in fixing those Times do differ a little among themselves in such dark and early Ages; but the Wonder is rather, that the Difference is so small.

27. First, (l) Dichearchus (who was the Scholar of Aristotle, as Athenæus and Suidas affirm, and who must therefore be elder in Time, than either Eratosthenes or Manetho himself, and was a Historian so considerable, that his Book concerning the Government of the Spartans was read every Year publicly before the Lacedæmonian Youth, in the Prætorium of their Ephori, as Suidas informs us, and who hath (m) since been honour'd with this Character, That he is to be esteem'd among the chief Fixers of the Greek Chronology) tells us in a Passage preserv'd to us by (n) the Scho-liast upon Apollonius's Argonauticks, where he affirms, That from the Reign of Nilus to the first Olympiad are 436 Years. This first Olympiad was in the Year of the Julian Period 3938, from whence subtract 436 Years, and the Remainder will be the Year of the Julian Period 3502. And as Nilus is the last but one in this Table of Eratosthenes, who died Anno Mundi 3546. and Menes or Mizraim began to reign Anno Mundi 2554. so there are 992 Years for the Interval between, which subtracted from the Year of the Julian Period 3502, the Remainder is 2510, which was the Year of the Julian Period, when Menes began to reign; from which Time subtract the Year of the Julian Period for the Dispersion from Babylon 2493, and the Remainder is 17 Years for the Space of Time, in which he travailed with his Father Ham from Babylon to Canaan, and afterward went into Egypt, and settled the Government there, to which add 62 Years for the Reign of Menes, and then according to this Reckoning he died 79 Years after the Dispersion from Babylon.

28. Secondly, There are (o) some Chronologers of considerable Note, who suppose, that the Number, which Dichæarchus puts for the Distance between Nilus and the first Olympiad is intended by him for the Distance from the Olympiads to the Destruction of Troy, and that he affirm'd Nilus's End to be cotemporary with that Epocha. If this be admitted; then, since it is certain, that Eratosthenes thought, that there were but 407 Years from the Destruction of Troy to the Olympiades, and that others agree with him, who (p) place the first of these in the Year of the Julian Period 3531, then if 992 Years are subtracted (as before) from 3531, the Remainder is 2539, when Menes began to reign. From whence also subtract the Year of the Julian Period for the Dispersion from Babylon 2493, and the Remainder is 36 Years, in which Space of Time he travail'd into Canaan, and then into Egypt, and settl'd the Government, to which add 62 Years for the Reign of Menes, and then according to this Reckoning he died 98 Years after the Dispersion from Babylon.

29. Thirdly, (q) Herodotus tells us, that Myris had scarcely been dead 900 Years, when he was in Egypt. The Time of his Travailing thither is not certainly determin'd. His Birth is fix'd by (r) Aulus Gellius; so that it is agreed, that he was born in the Year of the Julian Period 4230. Now if we suppose, that Herodotus was about 30 Years of Age, when he travail'd into Egypt, his Travails must be in the Year of the Julian Period 4260. From hence subtract 900 Years from the Death of Myris, and the Remainder is 3360. From thence subtract 760, the Time between the Death of Myris and the Beginning of Menes's Reign as in these Tables, and the Remainder is 2600, which brings us to the 107th Year after the Dispersion from Babylon, to which add 62 Years for the Reign of Menes, and then according to this Reckoning he died 169 Years after the Dispersion from Babylon.

30. Fourthly, (s) Pliny speaking of Menes calls him Meno, and cites Anticlidus, as proving by antient Monuments that he liv'd fifteen Years before the eldest Phoroneus, who was Brother to Ægialeus the first Sicyonian King, who began to reign in the 2625th Year of the Julian Period. If therefore from thence we subtract 15, the Remainder is 2610, which brings us to the 56th Year of Menes's Reign in these Tables, and the 117th Year after the Dispersion from Babylon.

31. Fifthly, (t) Eusebius tells us, that Ægialeus began the Kingdom of the Sicyonians 1313 Years before the first Olympiad in the Island of Peloponnesus. If then from the Year of the Julian Period 3938, being the Year of the first Olympiad 1313 is subtracted, the Remainder is 2625, which brings us to the ninth Year of Tboth the second King of Egypt, and is 132 Years after the Dispersion from Babylon; and plainly shews, that the remoter Countries from Babylon, and those, which pretended to the greatest Antiquity, were peopl'd since Egypt, which lay nearer to it, and which was soon inhabited by Ham and his Posterity, and so serves to vindicate the Account, which Moses gives us of the Dispersion from Babylon.

64 The SCRIPTURE CHRONOLOGY. Chap. VI.

32. Sixthly, Varro (u) the most learned Roman tells us, that the Kingdom of the Argives was begun in Peloponnesus by Inachus above 1100 Years before the Building of Rome by Romulus. And accordingly from the Beginning of Inachus's Reign he reckon'd 1102 Years, tho' others reckon 1108 Years distance between the Time of Inachus and the Feasts call'd Pa'ilia, begun at the Building of that City. And as this Kingdom of the Argives (x) was founded 1080 Years before the first Olympiad, which was 28 Years before the Building of Rome, Anno Per. Jul. 3966. as others affirm; so this brings it to the same Date; for by subtracting 1080 from the Year of the first Olympiad, Anno Per. Jul. 3938, or 1108 from the Building of Rome, Anno Per. Jul. 3966, the Remainder is 2858 for the Year, when Inachus founded this Kingdom, which in these Tables appears to be the Year before the Reign of Mares in Upper Egypt, which is 304 Years after the Beginning of the Egyptian Monarchy, and 365 Years after the Dispersion from Babylon, and so serves with the other Observation to confirm the Mosaical Account of the said Dispersion.

33. Seventhly, (v) It is evident, that the Invention of the Arts most necessary to human Life hath been attributed either to Menes the first King of Egypt or to his Successors. It was this Menes, or one of his Successors, who are said to have invented Laws, Letters, Musick, Wrestling, Physick, Hieroglyphicks, and Architecture, and to have improv'd Astronomy, and found out the Length of the Year. And Myris, or Meres (z) the 28th King from Menes, who is call'd the Philosopher, made the great Water-Curs between the Nile, and that stupendous Lake, which bears his Name, and is said to have invented the Elements of Geometry, which Pythagoras learn'd in Egypt, and carry'd back with him into Greece. All this plainly shews, that the Egyptians were Mistaken, if they had ascrib'd to the World so great an Antiquity, as some do think they did, by the vast Extent of Time, which was allotted to the Dynasties of their Gods and Heroes. The Overflowing of the Nile must have put them upon Thoughts of Geometry, that they might the better afterwards divide their Grounds, and settle their Habitations every Year, when the Waters were abated. But besides this, How could the World have continu'd so many thousand Years without those other Arts, which are so necessary for the Convenience of human Life? Or how could Men be so stupid during such a prodigious Succession of Ages, as not to have found out those Arts, the Invention whereof the Egyptians do generally ascribe to their first King, or to a few of his Successors during so short an Interval of Time?

34. Eighthly, (a) The same Decay of Religion, which Moses speaks of, is very evident in the History of Egypt. The (b) Antients unanimously agree, that the Egyptians at first had neither Statues nor Images in their Temples, and Moses records nothing of that Nature concerning the antient Times after the Flood. But they tell us also, that the Egyptians afterward made some Statues, and consecrated in their Temples the Figures of great Numbers of Animals. It is very probable, that this came from the Opinion, which they afterward entertain'd of the Transmigration of Souls into other Creatures, and which they thought to be a necessary Consequence of the Immortality of the Soul.

35. Lastly, (c) It is also observable, that as Moses represents Nimrod one of Ham's Posterity, as the Founder of an Empire in Assyria, where he founded the Manners of the Inhabitants according to the Platform of the Egyptian Principles; so (d) the Antients have observ'd, that the famous Assyrian Belus, who is suppos'd to be Ham himself, came out of Egypt. And it is natural to conceive, that there he planted Idolatry, which began even before Abraham's Time, if the Account of the (e) Arabick Historian can be depended on. Besides, the Jews affirm, that the Tower of Babel was afterward a Temple, in which an Idol was consecrated for the Worship of Belus. And this Conjecture hath a greater Probability, if we consider the Idolatry of the Babylonians toward this Bel, or Belus, whom (f) they worshipp'd as a God, according to the Pagan, and especially the Egyptian Custom of Adoring the Founders of Kingdoms after their Decease. Hence by Mistake of Names and Persons, arose the Story, that this Belus was the second King of Assyria, and that he was the first Man, who was ever made a God, and that his Son Ninus set up the Image, and caus'd his People to worship it; however all this serves to confirm the Mosaical History and Chronology, as it is handed down to us in the Hebrew Text.

36. But for the more exact fixing the Chronology, as it is in the Table, we must make Use also of another Catalogue, which is that of Manetho, as mention'd by Josephus, who gives us an Account of the Names of the Phœnician Pastors and Kings in Lower Egypt, who reckons not only the Years, but also the Months, which they reign'd. And it is also plain, that he reckon'd by Solar Years, because he sometimes mentions ten Months as a Part of a Year, whereas in the other Computations a whole Year consisted at most but of four Months. And here, if the Time of Tethmosis or Amosis (as some call him) can be fix'd to his Cotemporary in the other Table, the other Kings in both Tables will fall in of Course, and appear to be as they are settled from the Works of our learned Primate of Armagh and Bishop Cumberland. This latter tells us, (g) that Ptolomæus Mendesius a learned Egyptian Priest (whom Vossius affirms in his Book de Historicis Græcis to have liv'd in Augustus Cæsar's Time, and who is soon after cited by Apion in Tiberius's Time) doth affirm, that this Amosis took and ruin'd Avaris or Abaris the last Hold of the Pastors, and liv'd in Inachus's Time, when the Kingdom of the Argives was founded, which Testimony is also cited by Clemens Alexandrinus, Tatianus and Justin Martyr; so that it was valu'd as credible both by the heathen Apion, and the Christian Fathers. This Time mention'd is according to these Tables cotemporary with Manes King of Upper Egypt. And as the Design of this Author was to write a Book of the Egyptian Antiquities, which he call'd Χρόνοι or Chronicles; so he took good Care to express exactly the Time of this Amothis or Tethmosis, by affixing it to the Argive Æra begun in Inachus, and well known in Greece, in the Language of which Country he wrote for the Greeks Use.

37. As this Computation brings us near the Time; so it is also fix'd more exactly from the Time of the Departure of the Children of Israel out of Egypt. This must be in the latter End of a King's Reign, because he was drown'd in the Red-sea. This was (h) Pharaoh Amenophis the third, who is distinguish'd from others of that Name, as the Father of Danaus and Rameesses or Sethosis, the first King of the 19th Dynasty. This is prov'd by the two Heathen Witnesses Manetho and Cheræmon, who both affirm the Jews going out of Egypt from under Amenophis, as appears by the Words of both these Writers set down by Josephus against Apion, and their concordant Testimonies are the more Valuable concerning the Name of this Egyptian King, with this Distinction taken from his Son, because this was a thing, which they might certainly know from ancient Egyptian Records, and because it could no ways serve the Interest of their Religion, or their Hatred to the Jews to give us a false Name; and because the Time, when this Man liv'd is exactly agreeable to the Scripture Chronology, and connects the Departure from Egypt with the Time of Danaus's coming into Greece, which is well fix'd also in the Greek Chronology, and they (i) also describe this Amenophis, as a Man easily and strongly deluded even to his own Destruction by their Superstitious Priests. Now it appears by this Table, that from the Beginning of the Reign of Tethmosis to the Death of Amenophis was 333 Years, and therefore as the latter was in the Year of the Julian Period 3213; so the former was in the Year of the same Period 3180, and it is so fix'd accordingly by that learned Prelate.

38. And now to fix the Date of the Table of Eratoſthenes by this of Manetho, (i) a Note or Observation annex'd to the ninth King thereof, whose Name is Mares, and interpreted Heliodorus in Greek, will very much help us, which is there inserted in these Words, That there was then among the Egyptians (that is, of the Lower Egypt distinguish'd from Thebus) the sixteenth Dynasty, in which the Thebans reign'd 160 Years according to the same Copies, but 190 Years according to others. That is, That in the Time of Mares, or at farthest in the End of his Reign the Theban Dynasty in the Lower Egypt began; by which he certainly means the first Dynasty, in which the Thebans govern'd the lower Egypt upon the Expulsion of the Pastors by Tethmosis, who were in the last Dynasty. For the clearing of this we must observe, (k) that the Egyptians have reckon'd up but fifteen Dynasties to Jupiter the last of the Heroes, that is to say, but fifteen Persons to Jupiter, who is Ham the third Son of Noah, as in the fourteenth Table.

Dynasty	16.	Tethmosis.

This comes very near to Moses's Calculation, who reckons Noah as the tenth Man from Adam. For it is very likely, that those ignorant People after a long Process of Time did joyn Cain and Abel with Seth, and also joyn'd Shem and Japhet with Jupiter or Ham, who began the fifteenth Dynasty, and so made no Account of the Rest in Lower Egypt, until Tethmosis one of their own Country did settle there as a King, and so began the sixteenth Dynasty.

(h) Ibid, Page 397.

(i) Ibid, Page 401.
(k) Allix's Reflections

This will be farther evident, by observing that in (l) Scaliger's Greek Eusebius the Thebans are affirm'd to reign in the sixteenth Dynasty began by Amosis or Tethmosis. And as Mares reign'd 26 Years; so if we fix the Beginning of Tethmosis's Reign to any Year of Mares, there will be no Contradiction to the sacred Text; but if we fix it to the End of his Reign, or to the first Year of his Successor Anoiphis, as our learned Primate hath done, then all things will stand, as they are plac'd in the Table. And thus Menes or Misraim began to reign over Egypt in the 2554th Year of the Julian Period, or the 61st Year after the Dispersion from Babylon. To which add 62 Years for the Reign of Menes, and then he died in the 123<sup>d</sup> Year after the said Dispersion.

39. There is one thing more which cannot be omitted, and that is, that Manetho hath reckon'd up several other Kings and Dynasties deliver'd to us by Africanus, which runs backward not only beyond the Flood, but also beyond the Creation. But as (m) Salatis is reckon'd the first of these Kings by Josephus and others, who began his Reign in the ninth Year of Thoth the second King of Upper Egypt; so we may without much difficulty reject all the rest as fabulous.

40. For First, There is no Cause to believe, that the Lower Egypt was peopl'd sooner than the other, but rather the contrary, because the Upper Egypt was not so subject to Inconveniences by the overflowing of the Nile, it lying much higher, and yet lying so, as to receive great Benefit and less Trouble or Damage by its Inundations.

41. Secondly, The Tables of Eratosthenes and Sanchoniatho, tho' Heathens, contradict the Romantick Accounts of Manetho, by stating the Time of Misraim and of the Creation in such a Manner, as is agreeable to the Mosaical History.

42. Thirdly, The Credit of Eratosthenes in this Case must go beyond Manetho. Eratosthenes took his Accounts from the sacred Articles of Diospolis or Thebes it self, and from the Library of Alexandria, of which he was the Keeper. This the World knew, and therefore any one in that or the successive Ages could search the same Records, to see if he had dealt honestly by them; and so any Fraud might have been detected. But Manetho was an Egyptian Priest, and therefore partially inclin'd to advance the Honour and Antiquity of his Country and Religion, beyond the Greeks, Phœnicians and Jews, and had a strong Temptation to favour it by easily Believing himself, and Recommending to others such Traditions of the Priests, which were of this Nature; which Priests before him (as we find by Herodotus) did claim a most extravagant Antiquity; but shew'd him no Authentick Records thereof, only a great number of old Statues, which could give no sufficient Proof of what they were alledg'd for. Besides Josephus (n) hath assur'd us, that Manetho sometimes follow'd good Records (and so he might from the Time of Salutis's Reign) and sometimes Fables. Add to this, that Manetho doth not pretend to have search'd the publick Records, but (o) only flies from a Covert to the secret Places of the Egyptian Temples, where he pretends, that the second Thoth or Mercury or Agathodæmon laid up Books translated after the Flood into the Greek Language, from certain Monuments of Stone characteriz'd in the holy Dialect in Hieroglyphical Letters by the first Thoth or Mercury. They who can believe this to be true may easily believe any thing else, which he affirms, tho' ever so false. They were translated into the Greek Language by Thoth, when neither he nor any in Egypt in Thoth's Days knew a Word of the Greek Language; for he liv'd before the Trojan War, and in a Time, when there appears not to have been the least Correspondence between Egypt and Greece. Neither could Thoth write the History, which Manetho pretends to have had from him, unless we can suppose, that he could prophesy of things to come for 900 Years after his Death, and write a History of the Men that were not yet born, calling them all by their Names, and foretelling both the Year and Month, when many of them should die.

43. Fourthly, The Kings in Upper Egypt seem to have been call'd Pharaoh from the Beginning, which Name in the Egyptian Language is said to signify a King; because as they had none to oppose them, so they reign'd as such in their own Country. But (p) this Title was not giv'n to the Kings of the Lower Egypt until the Time of Apophis or Apiphanus, who was the third from Salatis, and liv'd until about three Years before the Promise was given to Abraham. And the Reason seems to be, because at first they were but in a weak and low Condition, when they set up for themselves; but when they grew stronger they took the same Title with their neighbouring Kingdom, which before they could not pretend to.

44. Lastly, (q) According to this Computation we may account for the Longevity of some of the Kings in Upper Egypt, by comparing them with their Contemporaries in Scripture, and so confirming the History of both. In the first Century after the Flood Moses hath recorded three Generations or succeeding Descendents to be born in Shem's Line. The first is Arphaxad the Son of Shem, born in the Year of the World 1659, to which we may suppose, that Menes or Misraim the Son of Ham was contemporary.

The Second is Selah the Son of Arphaxad born Anno Mundi 1694, to which we may suppose, that Athothes the second King of Egypt, and Son of Mizraim was cotemporary.

The third is Heber the Son of Selah born Anno Mundi 1724, to which we may suppose, that Athothes the third King of Egypt and Son of the other Athothes might be cotemporary.

As to the first, Arphaxad the Son of Shem liv'd 438 Years. If Mizraim the Son of Ham was born at the same Time with him, then since according to these Tables he liv'd to the Year 1911, his Age at his Death will be 252 Years, which is a fair Time for a Man, whom the Egyptians lament, as cut off in the Flower of his Age. For (r) they sung a Song like the Greeks, which they call'd Linus, or in the Egyptian Language Maneros, which was compos'd for this Purpose. And according to these Tables the Beginning of his Reign will not be till he was 191 Years of Age, which agrees well with those Times, wherein Men's Lives were so long. And there is no Reason to suppose him to begin to reign, when he was elder.

As to the second, Selah the Grandson of Shem liv'd 433 Years, If Athothes the Grandson of Ham was born at the same Time with him; then he came to the Throne, when he was about 217 Years old, and died when he was 276 Years of Age, which is a good Approach to the Longevity of those Times, tho' not so long as Salah's Life, which many Accidents might hinder. Salatis the first King of the Phenician Pastors did attack him very briskly; and Manetho in Josephus against Apion declares him to be such a formidable Warrior, as might probably shorten Thoth's Days. Plutarch calls him Orus the Son of Osiris (which is another Name for Misraim) and saith, that in the Egyptian Mysteries he was represented as torn to Pieces; which is so horrid a Thing, that he confesses, he left it out in his Narrative, as a Calamity which the Roman Ears could not endure to be said concerning a God. It is most probable, that he was taken in a bloody Battle, and that his Enemies in Revenge, and for a Terror to others, did inflict such a Death upon him. Thus the Egyptians did own, that their Athothes, or Orus was cut off by a violent Death, and consequently that he did not live so long, as according to the Course of Nature he might have liv'd in those Times.

As to the third, Heber the great Grandson of Shem liv'd 439 Years. If Athothes the second and great Grandson of Ham was born at the same Time, then he came to the Throne, when he was 246 Years old, and died when he was 278 Years of Age. And tho' he came not up to the Age of Eber; yet he outliv'd Peleg the Son of Eber, and all those, who are recorded in the Scriptures to have been born since that Time; and therefore he could not be put later.

We find but one more, whose Reign was very long, who was Apappus Maximus, and he reign'd an hundred Years. And as he liv'd in the Time of Moses and Aaron, who died at 120, and 123 Years of Age, and was born within a Century after the Death of Jacob, who liv'd 147 Years, so it is not improbable, but that he might come to the Throne at such an Age as to reign so long. And thus the Scripture Chronology of the Cotemporary Patriarchs, and that of these Egyptian Kings do by a wonderful Harmony support each other.

45. Thus have I labour'd to wash the Black-moor white, or reconcile the Egyptian History to Truth, especially to the Hebrew Text, as far as I can. It is now high Time to take our Leave of them, and travel into a farther Country. And I shall go but into one more, which is China. Here (s) we have several Accounts of an amazing Antiquity in this Country. Some make the Duration of the World to be no less than 3267000 Years to the Time of Confucius, who liv'd about five hundred Years before our SAVIOUR's Incarnation. And others make the World to have lasted near forty thousand Years. But all this will need no Confutation, when we only consider that the Chinese themselves, according to (t) Martinii's Account, do suspect all the Histories, and Chronological Accounts of their Empire before the first King Fohi, looking upon them as false and ridiculous, and affirm, that the People of that Country before him liv'd without any Settlement, Laws or Arts. That he caus'd Men to be distinguish'd from Women by the Difference of their Garments. And that Marriages were fix'd and regulated by him, whereas before his Time Men and Women liv'd like brute Beasts in a promiscuous Manner.

46. There is another Account given us by (u) Navaret, and which he would fain have to be the most authentick, which makes the Reign of Fohi several Centuries later than the former, and he tells us, That their best Records assure us, that the Time of their first King's Reign began (according to the European Computation) about an hundred and thirty one Years after the Flood, which was the Year of the grand Dispersion from Babylon. But since he doth not tell us, whether he doth reckon according to the Hebrew or Greek Computation, neither doth he tell us, from what Records he took the Chinese Account, we cannot look on his single Testimony to be of sufficient Weight in this Case; but only wish, that he had given fuller Proof of what he affirms, which Assertion would at once have determin'd the whole Controversy.

47. There is another History and Chronology mentioned both by Blarinius and Couplet, which makes Fohi to be their first King, who according to this Account reign'd an hundred and fifteen Years, and began his reign in the 2952<sup>d</sup> Year before the Nativity of our SAVIOUR, and since which Time the Chinese say, that they have been very exact in the History of their Kings and of their Nation.

48. To make this History more exact, they give us an Account of the Kings which reign'd in all that Time, the Year when they began to reign, and also how long they reign'd, and what remarkable Passages happen'd in the several Years of the respective Kings. They tell us that their Years were solar, and frequently began in the Spring; and that for their greater Exactness in this Matter, Hoamti their third King or the next but one after Fohi ordered a Cycle of sixty Years to begin from the Beginning of his Reign; so that for the Time to come, every remarkable Passage might be recorded both as to the Year it self, and the particular Year of each Cycle in which it happen'd, that if any mistake might happen in one Computation, it might be corrected and amended by the other. That their Accounts may be the less suspected, the Office of an Historian is (x) among them a publick Office. The History of a King is written after his Death by order of his Successor, who sometimes has been his Enemy; and not any History is publish'd, till the Race of the Kings, whereof it treats, is extinct, or at least driv'n from the Throne. It is not lawful for any Historian to call in question the History already written, nor for any particular Person to write History; but every one is at liberty to make Abridgments of the Histories already publish'd for his own private Use. There is therefore but one single general History and no particular Memoirs; and there is not the least Appearance, that they have corrupted the most important of the Events; and the Roman History cannot perhaps have been more faithful in what they have writ to the Honour of their Country, and the Shame of their Enemies. And as in their History the Beginning of the Reign of Fohi is plac'd some Hundreds of Years before the Flood; so others have thought it to be an undeniable Argument to lay aside the Hebrew Chronology of the old Testament, and establish the Septuagint.

49. It may be farther observ'd, That the Chinese retain some Notion of the Flood, and place it about three thousand and five hundred Years before the Birth of CHRIST, which is about five hundred and fifty Years before the Beginning of the Reign of Fohi their first King, and above eleven hundred Years more than the Account in the Hebrew Text, and differs not three hundred Years from the Account of the Septuagint.

50. And now, if the Chinese Historians had confin'd themselves to the Account of things done in their own Country, it is probable that their Errors had never been detected; but the Providence of GOD would not suffer it so to be; but ordered that the Stars in their Courses should detect the Falsity: For as the Chinese were from the Beginning addicted to the Study of Astronomy; so they have mention'd two very remarkable Positions in the Reign of their fifth and seventh Monarchs, which tho' not sufficient to fix them right, yet make them about five hundred Years later, than what is fix'd in their Chronology, so that these Errors being detected, we need not be at so great a Loss in the Rectifying of other Mistakes.

51. First, The Chinese Historians relate a (y) remarkable Conjunction of five Planets joyn'd together in the same Day, on which there also happen'd a Conjunction of the Sun and Moon and in the Sign Xe, in the Reign of their fifth Monarch Chuenbio, who began his Reign according to their Annals in the 2513th Year before the Birth of CHRIST. Now this Astronomical Character hath (z) been accurately examin'd by the famous Cassini, and been found to have happen'd in the 2012th Year before the Birth of CHRIST, which was about 500 Years later than the present Series of their Years do suppose, a particular Account whereof is as followeth.

52. As the Years and Constellations of the Chinese are different from the Rest of the World; so it is necessary first to give a particular Account of them.

53. For the right understanding hereof we must first observe, that the Years of the Chinese are lunisolar, some of which are common of twelve Lunar Months, and others are Embolimean of thirteen. The first Day of the Month is ordinarily the first Day after the Conjunction of the Moon with the Sun; so that the Eclipses of the Moon do ordinarily happen on the last Day of the Month, as may be seen in the Chinese Chronology. If the Beginnings of the Months do move from this Epocha of the Conjunctions, it is easy to restore them after an Observation of an Eclipse of the Sun. The Order of the Common and Embolimean Years is regulated by the Cycle of sixty Years, in which 22 are Embolimean, and the rest are common. The Year begins when the Moon's Conjunction with the Sun is nearest to the fifteenth Degree of Aquarius, or the Point of the Zodiack, which is at equal

(z) Loubere, page 257.

Distances between the Winter Solstice, and the Vernal Equinox, tho' this Beginning hath varied according to the Will of several Emperors, and they have been oblig'd to correct the Year from the Errors, which were crept into it. There may also be more Errors in the Epocha of the Years, than in the Epocha of the Months, because the Points of the Zodiack, which determine the first Month of the Year, are not immediately visible, as the Eclipses of the Sun are, which determine the Months. And as after a Period of sixty lunisolar Years, the Conjunctions of the Moon with the Sun return not to the same Point of the Zodiack, but they anticipate about three Degrees, which the Sun runs through only in three Days, and which in ten Periods of sixty Years amount to thirty Days; therefore to prevent the Beginning of the Year from removing above a Sign from the fiftieth Degree of Aquarius, it hath been a Custom among the Chinese at the End of every Period of six hundred Years to add a Month extraordinary more than the two and twenty Months, which are added to every Period of sixty Years.

54. And Secondly, The Manner of their reckoning their Constellations is also as remarkable. The Europeans divide the Heavens into twelve Signs or equal Parts by so many Semicircles from the Poles of the Ecliptick passing through the Ecliptick Line at right Angles beginning at the Vernal Equinox, and these we call the twelve Signs of the Zodiack. But the Chinese divide the Heavens into eight and twenty unequal Parts by so many Semicircles from the Poles of the Equinoctial, passing through the Equinoctial Line at right Angles, and each of them passing through the Center of some remarkable fix'd Star, which make these Constellations larger or smaller, according as the Distance of the Right Ascension of these fix'd

Stars is more or less from each other; and they begin their first Constellation or Kio from the remarkable Star of the first Magnitude call'd The Virgin Spike, which is now in twenty Degrees of Libra, so that the Longitude and Latitude, by which the Chinese describe the Heavens, is the same with the Longitude and Latitude, by which we describe the Earth. Now when the Jesuits in the last Century went into China to introduce a Religion contrary to theirs, they concluded, that for this Purpose they must have something extraordinary to recommend them, and accordingly proposed the Improvement of the liberal Arts and Sciences, especially Astronomy, according to the European Method, which proving more exact than any thing which they knew, caused that People to joyn with these Europeans for the Correction of their Calendar, and for this Reason the Emperor did heap continual Honours on the Fathers Licci, Shall, Verbieft and Grimaldi, who in the Time of his Absence in Italy was elected by the Emperor of China to be the Professor of Astronomy. Accordingly they corrected the Table of the Constellations in Use among the Chinese, and fix'd it to the Year of our LORD 1628, according to the Observations of Tycho Brahe, with whom they agreed not only in Degree, but almost in the same Minute. For there is no Probability, that unless they were taken from thence, they should be so conformable to them. Our Astronomers in this Age find Difficulty to agree in the same Minute in the Place of the fixed Stars, and it is known, that between the Catalogues of Tycho and that of the Landgrave of Hesse made at the same Time by excellent Astronomers there is a Difference of several Minutes. However the Constellations thus settled among the Chinese by the Jesuits at that Time are as followeth.

55. Accordingly the famous Monsieur Caf-ſini having reduc'd thoſe Stars, which Terminate the Conſtellation Xe among the Chi-neſe, viz. The firſt of the Wing of Pega-ſus and the laſt of the Wing of Pegasus to the Equinoctial in the twenty fourth and twenty fifth Centuries before the Birth of JESUS CHRIST, he could not find that between the Circles of the Declinations, which paſs'd through thoſe Stars, five Planets could be joyn'd together either in theſe Ages or in the two others either before or after, whiſt the Sun was in the Sign Aquarius, as the Chi-neſe History imports.

56. On the other Hand he found by Calculation, that Saturn, Jupiter, Venus, Mercury and the Moon met in that Chi-neſe Conſtellation determin'd by this Method, the Sun being in the twentieth Degree of Aquarius in the 2012th Year before the Epocha of JESUS CHRIST, on the twenty ſixth Day of February according to the Julian, or on the Ninth according to the Gregorian Account, and that the Day following at ſix of the Clock in the Morning at China happen'd the Conjunction of the Moon with the Sun, which muſt be that which was taken as the Epocha of theſe Chi-neſe Years.

For then in the Morning Crepuſculum at China according to the Catalogue of Tycho, and the Motion, which he gives to the fix'd Stars, the firſt of the Wing of Pegasus, which began the Conſtellation Xe, was at 26 Degrees and 50 Minutes of Capricorn, and the Circle of the Declination cut the Ecliptick at 24 Degrees of the ſame Sign; and the laſt of the Wing of Pegasus was at 12 Degrees and an half of Aquarius, and its Circle of Declination cut the Ecliptick, and carry'd it back to the eleventh Degree of the ſame Sign.

The Beginning of the Conſtellation }
Xe was

The End of the Conſtellation Xe ≈ 11

And in four and twenty Hours or thereabout happen'd the Conjunction of the Moon with the Sun.

Thus the Chi-neſe Chronology places the Conjunction of the Planets in the Time of their fifth Monarch Chuenhio, which was between the 2513 and 2435 Years before the Birth of JESUS CHRIST; ſo there is found a Difference of five Ages between the Time mention'd in this Chronology and the true Time, and this Chinese Epocha will be five Centuries later than their own Historians do suppose it. But of this more in the seventy first Paragraph.

Chap. VI. The SCRIPTURE CHRONOLOGY. 71

57. Secondly, The Chinese Historians (a) tell us, that in the twentieth Year of Tao the seventh Emperor of the Chinese, and which among them is reported to have been in 2341st Year before the Birth of CHRIST, the Winter Solstice was observ'd to be about the first Degree of the Constellation Hiu, which at present begins about the eighteenth Degree of Aquarius, so that since this Time the Solstice is remov'd above 48 Degrees from its first Place.

But to be more particular from the Calculations of Cassini. It appears (b) by the Table that this Constellation Hiu began with the Star, which is in the left Shoulder of Aquarius, which in the Year 1628 was at 18 Degrees and 13 Minutes of Aquarius; but in the twentieth Year of Tao it was in 29 Degrees of Sagittarius and some odd Minutes, when the Winter Solstice (which was always with us at the Beginning of Capricorn) was at the first Star of the Constellation Hiu. The Distance between these two Places of the Zodiack is 49 Degrees, 13 Minutes, which the fix'd Stars, according to Tycho's Table do make in 3475 Years, by their constant Motion of about 51 Seconds every Year, (tho' others will not allow so much) from whence having deducted 1628 Years at most, which were elapsed from the Epocha of the Birth of CHRIST to the Time when their Constellations were settled by the Jesuits and others in China, the twentieth of Tao would be the 1847th Year before the Birth of CHRIST, whereas their Annals place it in the 2347th Year, and so they make it more ancient by about five hundred Years. Thus there are about five Centuries distant between this Epocha as taken from the Chinese History, and the same as taken from the Motion of the fix'd Stars in the same Interval of Time, and is about the same Space, which was discovered in the other Observation. But of this also in the Paragraph beforementioned.

58. Hence it appears, that a too ready Belief must not be giv'n to the Chinese Annals, tho' they seem to be so specious and exact. Their History and Chronology is neither contradicted nor confirm'd by their Neighbours; so that it stands and falls by its own Strength, and no Argument can be drawn from their Silence. And therefore all that we have to do is to believe it to be true in the Gross, especially for some Centuries before the Birth of our SAVIOUR; but to reject it, whenever it contradicts our own Histories, especially the sacred Text, which is much better confirm'd, than any thing, which we can receive from those remote Countries.

59. To this I shall add another Observation from (c) Martinus's History of China, who saith that in the Time of Tao the same Emperor the Sun did not set for ten Days, and the Inhabitants were afraid that the World should have been set on Fire. And that on this Occasion there were very great Burnings, and probably of the same Nature, which happen'd at the River Eridanus when Phaethon was King. I take this to be an Account of the Sun's standing still in the Time of Joshua, especially because we are told in the sacred Text, (d) that was no day like that, either before it or after it, that the LORD hearkned to the voice of a Man, for the LORD fought for Israel. And tho' it is mention'd, that the Sun did not set for ten Days; yet it is no Wonder to find Historians enlarging beyond the Truth in those early Ages. They could not have fram'd such a Story without some Ground for it, and they could have no Ground for it but this. Now the Sun's standing still in the Time of Joshua happen'd in the Year before CHRIST 1454, which subtracted from the aforesaid Year, the Remainder is the Difference between the Scripture and the Chinese Chronology at that Time, and is at least 300 Years more than what was discover'd in the other Observations. But of this also in another Part of this Chapter.

60. Another Reason to prove the Chinese Chronology to be false, is because the Duration of the Reigns and Lives of the first Monarchs of China do by no Means agree to the Standard of human Life in those Ages, to which the present Series of their Years do affix them; which will appear from the Table of the Reigns and Lives of the first Kings of China at that Time, when compar'd with the Standard of Human Life as mention'd in Scripture. For Shem, Arphaxad and Eber alone liv'd as long as three of the Lives of the immediate Successors of Fohi, who according to the present Series of the Chinese History must have lived before these Patriarchs, and consequently must have liv'd longer like the Antediluvian Patriarchs.

62. As therefore the Chinese Annals and their Genealogies do not agree together; so their Disagreement doth weaken the Authority of the whole, in such Places where it contradicts our Sacred Writings. But yet all this doth not solve the Difficulty. Tho' these three Families are allow'd to be so near to their common Parent Hoamté as can be imagin'd; yet this will make no Alteration in the Account of their seven first Emperors, in whose Time the abovemention'd Astronomical Observations were made. These Observations will serve effectually to confute the Chinese Annals; but then they will be of no Use to confirm the sacred Text. For let us suppose, that the five Planets were in Conjunction in the first Year of the Reign of their fifth Monarch Chuenbio; yet

63. For the clearing up of all these Difficulties, and for the Fixing of the Chinese History so as to agree with the Hebrew Text of the Old Testament, I shall endeavour to prove these Particulars. First, That China was inhabited soon after the Flood. Secondly, That in the Pagan World Noah went under the Name of Saturn, and Jupiter under the Name of Ham. Thirdly, That when Ham drove Noah from his Habitation he retir'd to China. Fourthly, That Fohi, who was the first King of China is the same with Noah. Fifthly, That the Chinese might have from him their Notions, which are agreeable to the Scriptures. Sixthly, That the whole Chinese Chronology ought to be regulated from the Time in which the Sun stood still in the Time of Joshua, and in the Reign of their seventh Emperor Tao. And Lastly, That according to this Regulation the Ages of their Kings are agreeable to the Lives of the Cotemporary Patriarchs after the Flood.

64. The first thing propos'd is, that China was inhabited soon after the Flood. For the Proof of this we must take the Scripture History for our Guide, with such proper Inferences, as may be made from it. Accordingly when the Waters of the Flood abated, (k) the ark rested upon that Part of the mountains of Arrarat, which was since known by the Name of Taurus and Caucasus or Part of the Gordian Mountains, between the East Indies and Scythia, and which lay Eastward from Babylon; since (l) the new Inhabitants came thither from that Quarter. Noah being old, and consequently the less fit to travel long Journeys, resolv'd to fix himself near the Place, where he landed, and leave the rest of the World to be peopl'd by his Children, according as they should increase.

To supply himself and his Family with all Conveniences, he (m) betakes himself to Husbandry, and plants a vineyard, and indulging his Appetite too much in his Prosperity, he drank so liberally of the Wine, that he made himself drunk, and lay shamelessly expos'd in his Tent. Ham and his Son Canaan see it, and accordingly they do their utmost to make him ridiculous. For this End, Ham tells this Story to his two Brethren without the Tent; Shem was principally concern'd at this Misfortune, and soon prevails with his Brother Japhet to cover their Father in the most decent Manner, which they did by taking a Garment upon their Shoulders and going backward, until they came to him. So when Noah awakes out of his Sleep, and knew what his Sons and his Grandson Canaan had done, he in a prophetick Manner foretells, what should happen unto them in future Ages. Accordingly he cursed Canaan and Ham, and foretold that the Posterity of Canaan should be conquer'd by the Posterity of Shem or the Israelites, and they who remain'd, should be in a servile Condition, Hewers of wood, and drawers of water. And also that (n) the rest of the Posterity of Ham, who liv'd in Africa, and being generally Blacks, should be Slaves to other People, as many of them are at this Day to the Europeans in Europe, and a much greater Number in America. Then he blessed Shem, that the blessed LORD should be the GOD of Shem. The true Religion should continue in his Family, as it did among the Israelites, when Idolatry had prevail'd among other Nations. And last of all he blesteth Japhet, that GOD should make his Posterity, which inhabit all Europe, and also some large Kingdoms in Asia very populous, and that the true Religion should be propagated among them, and that (o) in due Time, (which I suppose will be at the Conversion of the Jews to Christianity) the Land of Canaan shall be conquer'd by the Europeans assisting the Jews, and that Branch of Ham's Family shall afterward be kept in subjection. After this when the Posterity of Noah was very numerous at the Birth of Peleg, and when his Blessing of some and Cursing of others had probably made such Feuds and Animosities among them, that they could not dwell peaceably together, Noah in the hundred and first Year after the Flood, divides the Earth among his three Sons; and first he orders his Son Shem to live near him in Asia, knowing that the true Worship of GOD would be continu'd in his Family: And he also allots Europe to Japhet, and Africa to Ham, and accordingly he sends them westward to take Possession of the Countries assign'd to them. In pursuance whercof Ham and Japhet with their Posterity come to Shenaar, build the City of Babylon, and set about the building of a Tower, when their Languages were confounded, and so they were oblig'd in the 131st Year after the Flood to travel farther to their respective Habitations. In the mean Time the Children of Shem encreasing were oblig'd also to seek for new Colonies. Thus Elam peopl'd Persia. And (p) as Ham and Japhet went westward; so others of the Posterity of Shem went eastward. Now the Chinese Histories affirm, that their Inhabitants first settled in the Province of Xensi, which contains five great and 192 small Cities, and is the most northwest Province of China, and the nearest to Mount Caucasus, upon which the Ark rested, and from which the Family of Shem might travel eastward to go to China. And (q) the Scituation of that antient and large Town of Taiquen, the capital City of the Province, which is in the West of China, doth demonstrate, that the Inhabitants came thither from the western Parts of the World, and consequently that they were of Shem's Posterity, according to the account of Moses in the tenth Chapter of Genesis. And as Nimrod the Grandson of Ham had laid an early Foundation for the Monarchy of Babylon, which was very near to the Posterity of Shem, from whence they might make frequent IncurSIONS to annoy their Neighbours, which their Revenge might naturally prompt them to; so we may suppose that the Sons of Shem being thus pent up on the west Side, might willingly remove to a considerable Distance from those ill Neighbours to such Places, where they might live in Peace and safety. And as the main Ocean hinder'd their going southward, and the Deserts of Asia and those Mountainous Countries hinder'd them from going northward; so they were oblig'd to go the farther eastward, and this Scituation of the World obliges them to go the sooner into China; and therefore we may well suppose it to be inhabited about the Time of the Dispersion from thence. And it is admirable to find, that Navaret happens to place it in this very Year, according

(as he tells us) to the Account of their most authentick Historians.

Or if we will not allow China to be inhabited so early as this; yet we may conclude it to be peopled by the Posterity of Shem by Travailing through a plain Country, as soon as the Posterity of Japhet could inhabit Germany by crossing the Hellepont. And there are Reasons to think, that the Inhabitants were settled there by Tuisco their first King, about sixty Years after the Dispersion from Babylon, which occasion'd some to believe him to have been one of the Sons of Noah born after the Flood.

65. From hence it is very probable, that whatever Remains can be met with of the Antediluvian Language and Writing, must only be met with among the Chinese. Their Ancestors came not to Babylon, when the Tower was built; and therefore their Speech could be no way affected by the Confusion, which happen'd there. They seem to have been always a distinct and unmixt People, and in a great Measure bounded by the Sea, and on other Parts by many Rivers running from the Lake of Kia, by high Mountains, and after that by a very large Wall; so that their Language seems to be less liable to be corrupted. All our Languages consist of Words and Syllables, which are made by a few Letters; but this is wholly different from the Way of Expressing intire Sounds and of Varying the Sense by Tones and Accents as among the Chinese. So that the Original of their Language is of such a Nature, as is no way consistent with any that are known among us, but it must be deriv'd from another Quarter.

66. And as to their way of Writing, Clemens Alexandrinus (r) tell us, That there are three Ways whereby the Antients did express their Thoughts by the Help of Pen, Ink and Paper. The first is by Hieroglyphicks. But this was only in use among the Egyptians. And as we find it there; so there we must leave it. The second is by Letters. This by many is attributed to Moses; and it is certain, that the Books, which he hath left us, are by far the most antient of any in the World. But others more justly attribute it to Thoth or the Egyptian Mercury, or their second King, who died near six hundred Years before Moses was born. In this Method the Records were probably written at Berytus, before he came from thence to be King of Egypt. And thus without Dispute the Wisdom of the Egyptians was transmitted to Posterity, in which Moses being learn'd was the better qualify'd to write his History from the Creation of the World. The Third Method is by Symbols, where each Character stands for a Word, or rather for a Thing; and consequently there are as many Characters, as there are Words or Things to be express'd. These Characters when rightly understood may equally be read in any other Language, as in the Language of the Writer. And thus the Inhabitants of Japan and the neighbouring Islands maintain a Correspondence with the Chinese by Writing, tho' they do not understand each others Language; and the Pen expresses what the Tongue cannot discover. As this is not so perfect a Method; so without Dispute it is the most ancient. This is therefore suppos'd to be the Character, in which is; Enoch the seventh from Adam recorded his Prophecy, and in which all the Antediluvian Monuments, whatever they were, were writ'n, which were afterward us'd by Noah and his Sons, and is the peculiar Character, which the Chinese and the neighbouring Nations use at this Time.

67. But to return from this Digression, The second thing propos'd is to shew, that in the Pagan World Noah went under the Name of Saturn, and Ham under the Name of Jupiter. It is certain that (t) a very learned Prelate endeavours to prove, that Chronus or Saturn is Ham, and consequently that Jupiter is Alizzarum. It may be so in the Tables of Sanchoniatho, on which he comments. And the the Heathens might by Mistake adapt some Stories to two particular Persons, and sometimes call the Father and the Son by the same Name. And it is still more probable, that the Egyptians, who were desirous to be thought the most ancient People in the World, might call Ham by the Name of Chronus Χρόνος or Time, thereby to imply, that there was no Time existent before him, who was the Founder of their Nation, and by this Means obliterate the Disgrace, which lay upon him for the Expulsion of his aged Father, and which other Nations did so much object against him. And thus in Egypt Ham went under the Name of Chronus or Saturn. But it is as certain, that the Generality of the World, and particularly the Greeks, who were the Offspring of Japhet, and who might have good and authentick Accounts from him of all these Matters, and lay under no Obligation to conceal the Miscarriages of Ham, had other Notions, and that they call'd Noah by the Name of Chronus, and Ham by the Name of Jupiter. This is (u) abundantly prov'd by learned Men, and their Arguments are these. 1. Saturn is stil'd πατριάρχης, The common Parent of Mankind; so was Noah. 2. Saturn was a just King, Noah was not only righteous himself; but he also is call'd (x) a preacher of righteousness. 3. The Golden Age was under Saturn, when all things were common and undivided; and so it was under Noah before the Dispersion of Nations. 4. All Men enjoy'd the highest

Peace both under Saturn and under Noah. 5. In Saturn's Time all Mankind us'd but one Speech, which the Heathens extend under Saturn both to Men and Beasts; and under Noah there was a Time, when all the Earth was of one Language. 6. Saturn's Wife was call'd Rhea or Earth, because Noah was call'd (y) אִישׁ אֶרֶץ A man of the Earth, or The Husband of the Earth, that is, according to the Hebrew Idiom, a Husband man, which the Mythologists took in the plain and literal Sense, and so call'd him Ὁ ἀνὴρ τῆς γῆς. 7. The Plantation of Vines is attributed to Saturn by the Heathens; and to Noah in the Scriptures. 8. Saturn is stil'd the President of Drunkenness from Noah's being drunk. 9. Hence came also the Saturnalia or Revels consecrated to the Memory of Saturn. 10. Saturn is mention'd by the Poets to be the Author of that Law, that none should see the Nakedness of the Gods without Punishment, which was but the Tradition of the Curse on Ham for Beholding his Father's Nakedness. 11. Saturn and Rhea, and those with them are said to be born of Thetis or the Ocean, which plainly alludes to Noah and his Company escaping from the Flood. 12. Hence a Ship is said to be the Symbol of Saturn, and Saturn is said even by Sanchoniatho to sail about the World. 13. Saturn is also said to foretel Deucalion's Flood, and to make use of a Dove, with several other Particulars answerable to those of Noah. 14. Saturn is also said to have devour'd all his Children except three, namely Jupiter Hammon, who is the same with Ham; Neptune, who is the same with Japhet; and Pluto, who is the same with Shem; and this seems to be nothing else but the Destruction of the old World except the three Sons of Noah. Lastly, Saturn by the Poets is call'd Χρόνος or Time. Time is a Space measur'd by the Motion of the Heavens, and hence Saturn was call'd the Son of Ὀυρανός or Heaven; and so was Noah reckon'd, because the Computation of Time in the new World began from him.

68. That Ham went under the Name of Jupiter in the Heathen World is much more easy to prove. He is call'd (*) in Greek Ζεύς; and tho' it is a Greek Word, yet the Original is Hebrew, answering to Ham the Son of Noah. For Ζεύς is deriv'd from Ζῆς Heat, and that from Ζῆς to be hot; which answers exactly to the Hebrew Word חם hot, from the Radix חם to be hot. Besides (z) Herodotus tells us, that the Egyptians worship'd Jupiter Hammon. Others (a) say, that Jupiter Hammon succeeded Saturn. And (b) that the Africans worship'd Ham under the Name of Hammon, and worship'd Noah under the Name of Saturn, whence Africa was call'd Hammonia, or the Country of Hammon. And this was so well known, that (c) the Latin Poet Lucan mentions Jupiter Ammon as worshipp'd also by the Ethiopians, Arabi-ans and Indians. Many other Testimonies might be alledg'd, but these are sufficient to prove, That the Name Hammon was given to Jupiter, and could have its Original from no other but Ham, to which Zed alludes.

69. Thirdly, When Ham drove out Noah from his Habitation, he retired to China. That Jupiter drove out Saturn from his Dominions, is a Story so well known in the Classick Authors, and the History of the Heathen Gods, that it is needless to insist upon it. And that it was true in Fact also concerning Ham and Noah seems probable from concurring Circumstances. When Egypt was settled as the Lot and Land of Ham, we find no Account of his Government there; but that his Son Mizraim was the first King of that Country. On the other Hand we find Nimrod the Son of Cush and Grandson of Ham very busie in establishing the Assyrian Monarchy at Babylon, and daily hunting after new Conquests. It is very probable, that Ham was with him at that Time, because we cannot find him in Egypt. When this Monarchy was settled, Ham, remembering the Curse, which Noah had pronounc'd against him, and finding that his Posterity were doom'd to the hot and barren Climate of Africa, whilst the Posterity of his two Brethren were allotted to live in a more fruitful and temperate Zone, might naturally resolve to revenge it, and easily take Forces from Babylon, set upon his Father by surprize, and drive him from his Country. And this I take to be the Reason that (d) his Image was set up in the Tower of Babylon with a Sword in his Hand as a Warrior, and call'd by the Name of Bel, or by the Lord. The Chaldeans (whose Testimony in this Case is most to be regarded of all profane Authors) say, that (e) Xisuthrus (for so Noah was call'd among them) coming out of the Ark with his Wife and Daughter and the Pilot of the Ship, or Shem and his Wife offer'd Sacrifice to GOD, and then that he and they disappear'd, and were never seen again. And as the Scriptures speak not a Word of Noah, the great Father of Mankind, after the cursing of Ham, excepting only the Years that he liv'd; so it seems to be a plain Intimation, that he had no farther Share in the Actions related in the sacred Scriptures; but that he was accordingly plac'd in a Region out of the Compass of that History. The Latins tell us, that when Jupiter drove out his Father Saturn, he forc'd him to flee into a Country call'd Latium from the Latin Word lateo to lie hid, because no one knew where he was; he was driven into a Country unknown to them, and beyond the Bounds of their Empire, History or Knowledge, as China always was. And as he was driven out of his Country by the Forces which came from the West; so he must flee the contrary Way, and this brings him toward China, from the Gordian Mountains, especially if we can find any Footsteps of him in those Countries.

70. Fourthly. The Chinese History gives an Account of their first King Fohi, that he reign'd an hundred and fifteen Years among them, and describes him in such a Manner, that we may conclude him to be Noah, and consequently we may by the Date of Noah's Death fix the true Antiquity of this their Empire. This depends upon the following Observations, First, The (f) Chinese Historians say, that Fohi had no Father, which agrees very well with Noah, because the Memory of his Father might be lost in the Deluge. However, he had no Father in the New World, tho' he had in the Old; and this might give Occasion to that Fable, that he had no Father at all. Secondly, Hence (g) he is call'd the Son of Ozeus or Heaven, because they say that he had a Mother and no Father, and that his Mother conceiv'd him by the Banks of a Lake near the Town of Lanthien, where as she was walking she saw the Footsteps of a Man upon the Sand, and was upon a sudden surrounded with a Rainbow. Thus even in Sancheniatho, Cronus is the Son of Ouranus. However, all this seems to be but an imperfect Tradition of the first Appearance of the (*) Rainbow to Noah after the Flood. Thirdly, The (h) Character and Appellation of Fohi among the Chinese agrees exactly with that the Scriptures affirm of Noah. Father Le Compte saith, that Fohi the first Emperor of China carefully bred up seven Sorts of Creatures, which he us'd to sacrifice to the supreme Spirit of Heaven and Earth. And that for this Reason some call him Paopbi, that is Ollation. Thus (i) Noah took into the Ark of every clean beast by sevens, of fowls also of the air by sevens the male and the female, to keep seed alive upon the face of all the earth. And after the Flood (k) Noah builded an altar unto the LORD, and took of every clean beast, and of every clean fowl, and offered burnt offerings upon the altar. It hath also been credibly reported to me by one, who was for some Time in those Parts, That the Chinese speak very much of the long Life of their first King. Thus Noah was above six hundred Years older than any one besides him in those Countries, for his Sons were settled in other Parts of the World. And as there are none born since the Flood, who are recorded in Scripture to have liv'd four hundred and fifty Years; so it is probable, that he might exceed the Age of any one in the Country by above five hundred Years, since he died when he was nine hundred and fifty Years old. And Lastly, (1) the Chinese Histories affirm, that Fohi settled in the Province of Xenshi, which is the nearest Part of the Country to Mount Caucasus, upon which the Ark rested, and consequently the most likely Place for Noah to settle in.

71. Fifthly, From hence it is evident, that the Chinese might have from Noah such Notions which they retain'd, as were agreeable to the Scriptures. Martinius (m) observes, That the common Opinion of the Chinese is, that the World had a Beginning, and that there was never any among them, who held the Eternity of the World, except such who liv'd since the Incarnation of CHRIST, and the Introduction of Idolatry into those Kingdoms. Secondly, He tells us, that they commonly acknowledge a GOD, whom they call Xangti, which is not the Name but the Epithet of GOD, and signifies the supream Governor both of Heaven and Earth. Thirdly, He saith, That they acknowledge a first Man brought forth out of the Chaos in one Night in the Spring, which Opinion some among them have made intricate by the Addition of their own Fables. Fourthly, He shews, that Sacrifices have been in Use among them. Fifthly, That they believe a Certainty of Rewards for Virtue, and Punishments for Vice after this Life. Sixthly, That they believe the Existence of good and bad Angels. Seventhly, That they do assign to some of them the Protection of Cities and Provinces, and pay them a great Veneration at the Instalment of their Magistrates. Eighthly, That they acknowledge them to be incorporeal Beings, and that it is but of late that they have crected and consecrated Statues to them. And Lastly, That they have a very great Knowledge of the Flood, which in their Account happen'd to be about three thousand and five hundred Years before the Birth of CHRIST. Such things as these their Ancestors might learn from Noah their first King. And as they kept an Account of his Actions in Writing; so they might also of his Instructions. All this makes (n) the Observation of Father Le Compte to seem very just. China, happier in its Foundation than any other Nation under the Sun, drew in the chief of the holy Maxims of their ancient Religion from the Fountain Head. The Children of Noah, who were scatter'd all over the eastern Parts of Asia (or rather Noah himself) who in all Probability founded this Em- pire, being themselves in the Time of the Deluge Witnesses of the Omnipotence of their Creator, transfitted the Knowledge of him, and instill'd the Fear of him into all their Descendants. And (as he adds) The Footsteps, which we find in their Histories, will not let us doubt of the Truth of this.

72. From what hath been said we may fix the History and Chronology of the Chinese Empire in this Manner. Noah or Fohi their first King died in the Year before CHRIST 2001, as appears from the Account in the Scripture. As he reign'd 115 Years, so he began to reign, and the Empire was founded in the Year before CHRIST 2116.

Secondly, The standing still of the Sun in the Time of Joshua happen'd to be in the 663<sup>d</sup> Year of the Chinese Empire, as appears from this Computation.

To the Death of Noah	115 Years.
To the Birth of Abraham	602
To the Year of the Promise	075
To the Departure out of Egypt	430
To the Entrance into Canaan	040
To the standing still of the Sun	001
Total	663

Now this according to the Chinese Chronology happen'd in the Reign of their seventh Emperor Tao, who reign'd 90 Years, and it really happen'd in the 76th Year of his Reign, as appears also from this Computation.

Fohi or Noah reign'd	115 Years.

Hoamti	100
Xaohao	84
Chuenbio	78
Co	70

Total is	663

These two Epochas being therefore thus fix'd it appears from them, that the Conjunction of the five Planets, which their Annals report to have been in the Time of their fifth Monarch Chuenbio or in the Year before CHRIST 2012, did not happen in his Time; but in the hundred and fourth Year of the Reign of Fohi or Noah, and eleven Years before his Death.

From hence it also appears, that the Observation of the Winter Solstice about the eighteenth Degree of Aquarius, which their Annals report to have been made in the Reign of their seventh Monarch Tao, and happen'd to be about the Year before CHRIST 1847 was not made in his Reign, but about the 14th Year of the Reign of the third Monarch Hoamti, as appears also from this Computation.

73. For a farther Confirmation of this Account it may be observ'd, that the Ages of the Kings of China according to this Computation are agreeable to the Lives of the Cotemporary Patriarchs after the Flood. This Observation was of Use to settle the Time of the Egyptian Kings, and may in this Case be of as great Use to settle the Scripture Chronology and that of the Chinese by comparing them together. And indeed the Wisdom and Providence of GOD cannot be sufficiently admir'd in ordaining the Lives of Men to be so long in antient Times, and afterwards gradually to decrease, and also in setting down a particular Account of them; that we might have a Standard in the sacred Scriptures, whereby we may try all such, as shall pretend to as great or a greater Antiquity. And as this is a remarkable and a principal Character, which we have, whereby to distinguish what pretended Antiquities are really genuine, and what are false; so if the Chinese Annals are understood and adjusted, as is beforemention'd, the Length of the Reigns and Lives of the first Monarchs will very exactly agree with the Duration of the Lives of Men in the same Ages, as they are recorded in the holy Scriptures, until such Time as the Lives and Reigns are generally of the same Length as they are at this Day; and so they are ever after in the Chinese Histories, when compar'd together, as will appear in Part by the following Table.

74. Thus for example, The Chinese are credibly reported to boast very much of the long Life of Fohi their first King. And it is certain, that Noah liv'd 950 Years, and there is no one recorded in Scripture born after his Decease, or among all the Kings of China, who liv'd two hundred Years. Secondly, After the Flood Shem, Arphaxad, Salah and Eber liv'd above four hundred Years, and if the immediate Successors of Fohi had been cotemporary with them, they would no doubt have liv'd to the same Age. Thirdly, according as they are plac'd in the Table, Xinnum the immediate Successor of Fohi liv'd in Abraham's Time. Abraham died at 175 Years of Age, and Xinnum reign'd 140 Years. Hoamti his Successor was cotemporary with Isaac. Isaac liv'd 180 Years, and Hoamti reign'd 100 Years; so that it is probable, that he might live more than 111 Years, as they are mention'd in the Table, especially since he was of such an Authority as to be able to drive out the other Family and reign in their Stead. Xaohao the immediate Successor of Hoamti was cotemporary with Jacob. Jacob liv'd 147 Years, and Xaohao reign'd 84 Years; so that it is probable that he liv'd more than the 100 Years, as they are mention'd in the Table. Chuenbio the immediate Successor of Xaohao was cotemporary with Joseph. Joseph liv'd 110 Years, and Chuenbio reign'd 78; so that it is probable that he might have liv'd more than the 91 Years assign'd to him in the Table, and consequently came up nearer to the Age of Joseph. Tico the immediate Successor of Chuenbio was cotemporary with Kobath; Kobath liv'd 133 Years, and Tico liv'd 105. Tao, who after a few Years succeeded Tico, was cotemporary with Moses. Moses liv'd 120 Years, and Tao liv'd 118 Years. Xun the Successor of Tao was cotemporary with Joshua; and each of these liv'd 110 Years. Tu the Successor of Xun liv'd 100 Years, and after his Decease the Lives of the Emperors of China, as they appear in the Catalogue, were much the same with their Cotemporaries, and as they are also at this very Time.

75. Thus have we found the Time when the Empire of China first began, and also the Time when several of their Successors liv'd. There still remains another Difficulty which is the Disagreement of the Time, according to the Chinese and the Hebrew Chronology. According to the Chinese Chronology, Fohi died in the Year before CHRIST 2837, and Noah, which is the same with Fohi, died in the Year 2001; so that here are 836 Years Difference between these two Accounts. Now it had been impossible to reconcile these together unless Father Couplet had given us not only the Annals of the Kingdom, but also the Genealogies of their Kings. By comparing these Genealogies it is easy to observe, That the Years of some of the Families of their ancient Kings were not successive to each other, but collateral or cotemporary with them or such who serv'd as Deputies to some of their ancient Emperors. The Annexing these Tables together on some unknown Occasion made others transcribe them in such a Manner, that they, who govern'd together at the same Time in several Provinces are mention'd in some Tables as succeeding each other in the whole Empire. This made some Pieces of the Egyptian Chronology so vast and extravagant. According to such a Way of Reckoning the one and thirty Kings in Canaan with their Successors, or the Princes over the Hundred and seven and twenty Provinces in Persia might have extended their Series of Years to a Prodigious Number. This is allow'd by (p) Martinius himself in the Chinese History of Fohi to have been the Occasion of the excessive and unreasonable Largeness of their most ancient Accounts. So that it is very likely that this so common and easy an Error hath been the Cause of the too great Length of their Computation since Fohi, as well as before him. But to come to Particulars. It hath been observ'd, that the Number of Generations, who are nam'd from the same common Stock to the third Family, is but two more than those, who are nam'd to the second, altho' (q) in the present Series of their Chronology there are no less than 644 Years distance between them. It is also remarkable that after the first Time of the Chinese Emperors, the Dominion came into the Hands of three famous Families, the Head of every one of which was descended from Hoamti the third Emperor. The Head of the first Family Tu began not to reign according to their Annals 'till three hundred and ninety Years after the Death of Hoamti, and the Monarchy is supposed to continue in this Family for seventeen Reigns and 441 Years. And yet in the Genealogy he is but the fifth by the Name of Hoamti; so that here we may suppose eleven Kings plac'd successively, who ought to have been collateral. The Head of the second Family Chimtam is suppos'd in the Annals to begin to reign at the End of these 441 Years, that is, 831 Years after Hoamti. This Monarchy is suppos'd to continue in this Family for 28 Reigns and 644 Years, and yet in the Genealogy he is but the seventeenth Person by Descent from Hoamti; so that here also we may suppose eleven Kings to be plac'd successively, which should have been collateral. But then the Head of the third Family Vuvum began not to reign by these Annals 'till a Succession of the before-mention'd 28 Kings and 644 Years were ended, that is 1475 Years after Hoamti; and yet he is still in the Genealogy but the Nineteenth Person by name from him; so that there are but two Genealogies allow'd for 644 Years, and all the rest are plac'd successively, who should have been collateral. It hath been therefore thought reasonable by some to suppose, that Tu the Founder of the first Family, and Chimtam the Founder of the second, and Vuvum the Founder of the third were nearer to their common Progenitor than they are there plac'd, and at such Distances as shall naturally correspond to six, seventeen and nineteen Generations respectively. And if to seventeen Generations they allow'd six hundred and forty four Years, then instead of 1475 Years for nineteen Generations, we ought to allow about 719 Years, which being subtracted from 1475 Years leaves about 756 Years for the Difference in which the Chinese History exceeds the Truth, in the Account these three Families, and which being subtracted from 836 the real Difference leaves an Error but of 80 Years in such a Rude Calculation, and if it is added to the Rest, (which will be but little more than four Years in each Genealogy) will then make the Scripture and the Chinese Chronology exactly to agree in all the successive Years, as in (r) the following Table.

76. There are some who (s) pretend, that those are only nam'd in the Genealogies, who were somewhat remarkable, tho' there were in Reality more Generations. But this looks like a meer Evasion of the Chinese Historians. For it doth not appear, that one half of those, which are nam'd, were any Way remarkable; nor is it likely, that if they had known the Names of any more, they would have conceal'd them from us. Genealogical Tables do not regard the Merits of Persons, but only their bare Names. And since we have but five Descents before the first Family, but sixteen before the second and but eighteen before the third in these Genealogical Tables, we may well suppose, that there were so many, and that there were no more. And it is as reasonable to conclude, that there are some Names left out in the Catalogue of the British Kings since William the Conqueror, as that there are any Names omitted in the Chinese Genealogies, since the Reign of Hoamti, from whence they begin.

77. In the midst of these Difficulties it might reasonably have been expected, that the particular Account of the Eclipses of the Sun, which is given us in their Annals, might have been of especial Use to have fix'd their Chronology; but by taking a more exact View of them, we may observe, that Errors have crept into those Accounts which must have been occasion'd by the Negligence or Carelessness of Transcribers. And since it hath thus happen'd in such Particulars, where they can have no Design in View; we have the greater Reason to suspect them in all other Parts; especially since they might be apt to enlarge their Computations like the Rest of the World, that so their Nation might seem more ancient than it really was. I shall only instance in the two first Eclipses of the Sun, which were recorded to have happened during the Reign of the third Family, even that of Vuvam. The first was in the Reign of Teuvam the twelfth King of that Family, in the second Year of the thirty third Cycle. The first Year of this Cycle was the Year before CHRIST 777, and consequently the second Year was the Year before CHRIST 776, or if according to the Method before propos'd (t) a Bissextile Year is inserted in the Year before CHRIST 00, it will happen in the Year 775. Now it is recorded by Martinus that Chuenhio the fifth Emperor (u) settled the first Day and Month of the Year, to begin after the Change of the Moon, which happen'd nearest the fifteenth Degree of Aquarius, which was in the middle Space between the Sun's being on the Winter Tropick, and the vernal Equinox. And gave this Reason, because about that Time of the Year, the Water began to be free from Ice, the Silk-worms began to appear, the Earth was now adorn'd with Flowers, and the Spring came on. And accordingly, this Method was ever since observ'd by the Chinese, tho' they often differ'd concerning the Time of the Day or Night, in which the Year was to begin. Now it appears by Calculation that in the abovemention'd Year, in the Province of Xenfi (which I take to be about the Latitude of 35 Degrees, and about the Longitude of 130 Degrees eastward from the Meridian of London) the Sun came to the fifteenth Degree of Aqua- rius about the fifteenth Day of February, and that the New Moon, from whose Appearance or φάσις the Year began, was on the tenth Day of February, and consequently the End of the tenth Month, when this Eclipse was to happen, was on the third Day of December, when the Position of the Heavens was as follows:

And the Moon's North Latitude 5<sup>d</sup>. 8<sup>m</sup>.

So that there could be no Eclipse at all about that Time.

78. The second Eclipse, which is mention'd, is a total Eclipse of the Sun, in the Reign of Huonvam the fourteenth King of the same Family, and in the ninth Year of the thirty fourth Cycle. The first Year of this Cycle was the Year before CHRIST 717, and consequently the ninth Year was the Year before CHRIST 709, or if (x) a Bissextile Year is inserted for the Year of CHRIST 00, it will happen in the Year 708, when the Sun also came to the fifteenth Degree of Aquarius about the fifteenth Day of February, as before, and the new Moon, from whose Appearance or φάσις the Year began, was on the twenty first Day of February, and consequently the End of the seventh Month, when this Eclipse is reported to have happen'd, was on the fourteenth Day of September, when the Position of the Heavens was as follows:

The Dragon's Tail in  $\zeta$  14. 22.
The South Latitude of the Moon 4<sup>d</sup>. 19<sup>m</sup>.

So that there could be no Eclipse at all about that Time.

79. But if it was possible to rectify this Total Eclipse, so as to find out the Truth thereof; yet after all the Distance between these two is such, that it is impossible to reconcile them. The Difference between these two Eclipses, or between Dec. 3. Anno ante CHRISTUM 775, and September 14, Anno ante CHRI-

STUM 708, is sixty six Years, and 285 Days, in which Time the Motion of the Dragon's Head is as followeth :

	s.	d.	m.	se.
Years 60	00	26	50	15.
Years 6	03	26	01	29.
Days 285	00	15	05	32.
Motion of ♄	05	07	57	16.
Distance of ♄ from ☿	00	22	02	44.

Difference of Latitude for the same Distance 1<sup>d</sup>. 52<sup>m</sup>. 16<sup>se</sup>. which is so great, that it is impossible, that there can be two Eclipses at such a Distance; and even the Addition of an Embolimæan Month, in which the Motion of either Node is only 1<sup>d</sup>. 38<sup>m</sup>. 30<sup>se</sup>. is not sufficient to alter the Moon's Latitude so much as to cause a Possibility of an Eclipse at both these Distances; but two such Eclipses might have happen'd, if we allow the Distance of another Year for a Mistake in the Transcriber; so that the total Eclipse being found out, the other might be rectify'd accordingly.

80. The Way therefore to regulate the Chinese Chronology must be thus:

First, Make a (y) Chronology according to the Scripture Account from the Reign of Fohi or Noah to the End of the first Family or that of Tu, which is about 932 Years. Then (z) make a Chronology backward from the Birth of our SAVIOUR, to the Beginning of the Reign of the third Family or that of Vuvam, which is about 1121 Years; and by these it will appear, that Vuvam the Founder of the third Family began to Reign but 17 Years after the first Family, or that of Tu was extinct; and consequently that the second and the third Families were generally cotemporaries, and therefore must reign together in different Provinces of China. So that Chimtam, who was of the third or youngest Branch of Ho-anti having put an End to the Government of the elder Family, and having reign'd thirteen Years, Vuvam in the fourteenth Year of Taikia the Successor of Chimtam raises a Rebellion against him, as being of the elder Family; and tho' he was not able to expel him from the Kingdom; yet he took a considerable Part thereof for himself, and so the Families reign'd together until the second Family was extinct, and then the third Family and their Successors reign'd as sole Monarchs.

81. From hence we may guess at the Method by which these Errors at first crept into the Chinese Chronology, and how to rectify them. At first the Records of the three Families were kept distinct, and the Genealogies from Ho-anti were regularly plac'd, and each Branch enter'd according to their Names. And after this some Transcriber plac'd them all successively, tho' several should have been collateral. Another regulates the Cycles according to the Order, in which they were then plac'd; and another endeavours to lengthen the Genealogies by putting in three Blanks or Cyphers for so many Genealogies before the Family of Tu, and fifteen before the Family of Vuvam, that so the Generations might appear to bear some Proportion with their Annals, and thus one Error naturally begat another.

82. The way therefore to regulate them must be to settle the Tables, as it is above-mention'd, and to leave out all the Blanks and Cyphers in the Genealogies. The respective Names might well be unknown, because there were no such Men ever living in the World, and the leaving them out will fix the Genealogies and the Annals at once. Thus from Chuenbio to Tu, the Head of the first Family, there will remain three Generations, and he was the second that reign'd after him at the Distance of 148 Years, which may well be allow'd for so many Generations in those early Times. Secondly, From Sie who was cotemporary with Tao to Chimtam the Head of the second Family there are thirteen Generations. In the Space of Time between the Beginning of each of their Reigns there are 521 Years; so that the Distance of each Generation one with another was forty Years. Thirdly, From Heucie, who was cotemporary with Tao, to Vuvam the Head of the third Family there are fifteen Generations. In the same Space of Time between the Beginning of each of their Reigns, when thus rectify'd, there are 538 Years; so that the Distance of each Generation one with another was six and thirty Years. And he that will compare these Distances, with those immediately after the Flood, as they are recorded in (a) the holy Scriptures, will find a very great Affinity between them; where if we reckon from Arphaxad the Son of Shem to Abraham's eldest Brother, there are eight Generations and 290 Years, or 36 Years to each Generation one with another: Or if we reckon from Arphaxad to Abraham himself, there are likewise eight Generations or 350 Years, which is 44 Years also for the Mean Proportion of each Generation.

TABLE the Eighteenth.

A Specimen of the Chinese Annals as they are begun in the Reign of Hoamti their third Emperor, and continued down for 10 Cycles or six hundred Years, taken out of Couplet's Confucius or History of China.
NB. That in the same Manner these Annals are continued down by him for 4380 Years, or until the Year of CHRIST 1683.

Cycle the first. Year before CHRIST 2697.	HOAMTI call'd also Hiven yven reign'd an hundred Years.	HOAMTI, that is the yellow Emperor, was born of his Mother Fupao , and the Founder of the Monarchy, began to reign, being chosen by the petty Kings. He had his Palace call'd Chochen in the Province of Pekin . He dedicated the Temple of Peace to Xangti , that is, to the supream Emperor or GOD, altho' after that it was a Custom to sacrifice in the open Air. He conquer'd the Rebel Chyen of the Stock of Xinnun in the third Battle. The Majesty of the Empire began under him. A Diadem and yellow Cloaths were now permitted to be worn only by the Emperors. By the Assistance of Tanao he perfected the Cycle of sixty Years. He invented a Table of Astronomy and Arithmetick, and also Mulick and Musical Instruments, also Weapons, the Bow, Nets, Chariots, Boats, the Carpenter's and the Potter's Art, and Measures and Weights. He cast twelve Bells of Brass, representing the twelve Months of the Year. He appointed Ciucum and Zamtie to keep an exact Series of Time, who also invented several Characters. He institutes six Colci or chief Ministers of State. He conquers twelve rebellious Princes. His Queen Luisu teaches to nourish Silk-Worms, to weave Silk, and to dye various colours.
Cycle the second. Year before CHRIST 2637.	2. XAOHAO call'd also Kintien reign'd eighty four Years.	HOAMTI wrote several Books concerning the Art of Physick hitherto in Use by observing the Pulse, and his Assistants herein were Kipe , Soven , and Luicum . The Bird of the Sun is seen in the Top of the Palace, and an Unicorn in the Woods, both which were accounted as Omens of great Felicity. He had five-and twenty Sons, and from them a long Generation of Grandchildren : And also 85 Emperors of three distinct Imperial Families for 2457 Years took their Rise from HOAMTI like Boughs from a Tree. In the fortieth Year of the second Cycle HOAMTI dies being 111 Years old, and was bury'd in the Province of Xantum . In the 41st Year of this Cycle XAOHAO Son of the deceas'd by Luisu his Queen succeeds him. His Birth, Palace, and Grave was in Kio-fen a City in the Province of Xantum .
Cycle the third. Year before CHRIST 2577.		When XAOHAO was Emperor, the Bird of the Sun was seen again, which he appointed to be the Banner of the Empire. Under him there was a long Peace. He appointed Cities, and encompasses them with Walls. He was the Author of a new Musick. He caused the Oxen to draw the Chariots. He

He distinguishes the nine Degrees of the civil Magistrates by several Kinds of Birds, and the six Orders of Military Captains by the Representation of Beasts, which Custom continues to this Time.

He had four Sons, who were Magistrates under the following Emperor.

Kienli or nine Potentates disturb the Method of their Sacrifices, and make the People mad with Ghosts and Apparitions. Here was the Beginning of more Superstitions, which brought the Empire into Danger.

XAOHAO dies in the fourth Year of this Cycle being an hundred Years old, and CHUENHIO the Grandson of HOAMTI by his Mother Kiukive succeeds him in the fifth Year of this Cycle.

His Palace was in the Town of Hoa in the Province of Pekin.

He was a pious and a Religious Prince, he conquers nine petty Kings, he reduces the Rites of Sacrifices to their old Customs, and takes away the late Abuses of them.

He appoints, that the Emperor alone should sacrifice to the supream Emperor of Heaven in a very solemn Manner.

He was the Author and Inventor of a Calendar, which is solemnly distributed every Year through the Empire from the Palace alone until this Day.

He appointed the Year to begin from the Beginning of the new Moon, which was nearest to the Spring, and which in China answer'd to the fifteenth Degree of Aquarius; which Order of Time was frequently chang'd, and sometimes anticipated by a Month or more; but at last it was regulated under the fifth Family, that of Han, Hiaovu being the fifth Emperor, and settled in the same Manner, as it is now observ'd.

A Conjunction of five Planets was then observ'd by him upon the same Day, in which there was also a Conjunction of the Sun and Moon.

CHUENHIO dies in the twenty second Year of this Cycle, being ninety one Years of Age, and was buried in the Town of Hoa in the Province of Pekin. His Epitaph is extant at this Time. Tico his Grandson by his Father Chaokie succeeded him in the twenty third Year of this Cycle.

His Palace was in the City of Tensu in the Province of Honan.

He was a Prince obedient to the Heavens, a great worshipper of Spirits, grave and liberal, with a kingly Aspect.

He us'd the same Habit and Worship with their wife Men.

Under him there was a long Peace. He makes his Brethren and their Children Governors in the Province of Suchuen.

He had four Queens by a new Example. The first having made a Vow to GOD, had a Son call'd Cie, who was a great Improver of Husbandry. The Second call'd Kim had a Son call'd Tao in the Fourteenth Month after her Conception. The third having offer'd a Sacrifice to GOD had a Son call'd Sie. And the fourth had a Son call'd Chi.

Cycle the fourth.

He appoints vocal Musick to stir up the People to mutual Love and the Study of Virtue. T I C O dies in the thirty second Year of this Cycle in the hundred and fifth Year of his Age, and was bury'd in Pekim. In the thirty third Year of this Cycle Chi his Son by the fourth Queen succeeds him, but because he was of another Stock, and not according to the Law, he is depriv'd of the Empire by the Princes in the fortieth Year of this Cycle, and therefore was not reckon'd among the Number of the Emperors. In the forty first Year of this Cycle Y A O the Son of T I C O is made Emperor. He reign'd alone seventy two Years, and reign'd also twenty eight Years with his Copartner X U N. His Palace was in the City of Taiyven in the Province of Xanfi. He was both an Emperor and a Law-maker, as also X U N his Successor was, and they both were Rules and Examples to all their Posterity; he was kind to the Poor, and respectful to the Aged, and it is believ'd, that it is owing to him, that a certain Number of Poor is at this Time maintain'd in every City by the Royal Magnificence.

By the Assistance of Astronomers Ho and Hi he appoints twelve Lunar Months, six of thirty Days, and as many of nine and twenty, and the intercalary Months, which happen seven Times in nineteen Years. He appoints six Courts of Justice, which continue to this Time, and also five Degrees of Titular Noblemen. He reign'd so affectionately for fifty Years, that it seem'd to be as if he had not reign'd at all. In the fortieth Year of this Cycle there was a great Winter Flood. Quen was appointed to take Care for the Letting out of the Waters; but he was put to Death for his Negligence herein. His Son Tu is put in his Place, who spent thirteen Years successively in draining the Waters into the Sea and other Places, and it was suppos'd by some, that he would gain the Empire by this signal Service. In the fiftieth Year of this Cycle X U N is brought out of the Country to a very great Dignity by Y A O, who had heard a great Report of his Dutifulness; and he gives him two of his Daughters in Marriage. In the fifty third Year of this Cycle X U N is prefer'd to be a Copartner in the Empire for eight and twenty Years. He as often as he view'd the Empire, did first offer a Sacrifice to Xamti or the supream G O D. He conquers four Rebels of the Race of Hoamti. He appointed five Kinds of Punishments, and in the Execution of them recommended Mercy. See Xukim.
Cycle the eighth. Year before CHRIST 2277.	6. X U N call'd also Tu reign'd alone fifty Years.	X U N makes a Sphere of the seven Planets of precious Stones. He divides the Empire into twelve Countries. In the twentieth Year of this Cycle Y A O dies, in the hundred and eighteenth Year of his Age, leaving behind him nine Sons. He was buried in Kiofeu in the

		the Province of Xantum. The People lamented him for three Years like a Father or a Mother. In the twenty first Year of this Cycle XUN is made Emperor, being design'd for it by his Predecessor. His Palace was in Puchen in the Province of Xenfi. He appointed three Examinations, for the Inquiring into the good and bad Deeds of every Ruler. In the thirty sixth Year of this Cycle new Stars were seen, one of them being like a half Moon, and several Clouds were seen spotted with several unusual Colours. He appointed a new Musick, and was himself skilful both in instrumental and vocal. In these Times it was customary to put the dead Bodies into a Faggot of Wood, or apply such restaceous Powders as were of an eating Nature. The following Emperor commanded these to be made of Wood only, which Custom continues to this Time. In the fifty fourth Year of this Cycle YU is chosen to be a Copartner in the Empire for seventeen Years. He gave leave for any Man that had been injured by him to declare his Grievance on a publick Table. There were eight of his privy Counsel of the Race of CHUENHIO, and as many of the Race of TICO. The famous Admonitions of Nobles Caotuo, Peye and Cie are now extant in the Book of Xukim.
Cycle the ninth. Year before CHRIST 2217.	1. YU reigns alone ten Years.	In the tenth Year of this Cycle XUN dies being an hundred and ten Years old, and was bury'd in the Province of Xenfi. In the eleventh Year of this Cycle YU or TAYU that is YU the great succeeds him, being of the fifth Generation by descent from CHUENHIO, and chosen by XUN before his own Children. He first founded the Imperial Family of Hia, which continu'd for 458 Years under 17 Emperors. His Palace was in the Town of Nganye in the Province of Xenfi. He was a pious and mild Prince. He divides the Empire into nine Provinces, and marks to what Government each of the twenty eight Constellations may answer. See in the Book of Xukim, what he hath written concerning the Division of Grounds and Husbandry. He casts nine great Vessels, to be as it were the Monuments of nine Provinces. He institutes Musick in praise of the two Legislators YAO and XUN. He forbids Wine, and chastises Uti, who was the Inventor of it. He plac'd a Drum and a Bell at the Gates of the Palace; at the Sound of which he went out to hear the Complaints of his Subjects; which Custom is also in Use at this Time.
	2. TIKI reigns nine Years.	In the twentieth Year of this Cycle YU dies being an hundred Years old. In the twenty first Year of this Cycle TIKI succeeds him being chosen by the Princes for the Merits of his Father, having rejected YE, whom YU the Predecessor had solemnly propos'd for a Successor. From him there was an hereditary Succession of Sons and Grandchildren. He appointed nine Orders of Musick and Dancing.

A Continuation of TABLE the Eighteenth.

	3. TAICAM reigns nine and twenty Years. 4. CHUMCAM reigns eight Years.	In the nine and twentieth Year of this Cycle TIKI dies, and in the thirtieth Year of the same his Son TAICAM succeeds him. In the thirty first Year of this Cycle he prefers his five Brethren to five Principalities: but he himself being given to Luxury and Hunting neglects the Concerns of the Empire. In the forty seventh Year of this Cycle, when he had hunted an hundred Days beyond the River Lo, his Retreat to the Court was intercepted by T one of the Princes, and his younger Brother CHUMCAM is declar'd Emperor, who notwithstanding refus'd to act, as long as his elder Brother liv'd. In the fifty eighth Year of this Cycle TAICAM dies, and CHUMCAM a prudent and a modest Prince takes the Government upon him.
Cycle the tenth. Year before CHRIST 2157.	5. TISIAM reigns seven and twenty Years. Hanzo an Intruder reign'd forty Years.	In the second Year of this Cycle, or as others say, in the sixth Year, there was an Eclipse of the Sun, which because the Presidents of Astronomy Hi and Ho being given to Wine did not discover, they were punish'd with Death. In the thirteenth Year of this Cycle CHUMCAM dies, and in the fourteenth Year TISIAM his Son succeeds him. He degenerates from the Institutions of his Father, and hath his Palace in XAMKIEU. He rashly commits the Government of the Empire to T a Prince, by whom he is soon after sent out of the World. In the eighth third Year of this Cycle TISIAM is kill'd by Hanzo, who usurps and keeps Possession of the Empire for forty Years. The Queen being great with Child flies to her Father, who was Prince of the Kingdom of Gem. She is delivered of XAOGAM, who after an Intermission of forty Years takes the Government upon him.
Cycle the sixteenth. Year before CHRIST 1797.	Second Family. 1. CHIMTAM reigns thirteen Years.	In this Manner are these Annals carried on by Father Couplet until the Year of CHRIST 1683. Here follows an Abstract of a few Particulars, which when compar'd with the Genealogies may serve to explain what hath been already mention'd. In the thirty second Year of this Cycle CHIMTAM is the seventeenth in order of the Race of HOAMTI. He comes to the Empire in the eighty seventh Year of his Age, and is the Founder of the Family of Xam, who held the Government 644 Years under eight and twenty Emperors. His Palace was in the City of Queite, in the Province of Honan.
Cycle the twenty seventh. Year before CHRIST 1137.	Third Family. 1. VUVAM reigns seven Years.	In the third Year of this Cycle there was an Earthquake for five Days, in which Year Veuvm dies in the fifth Year of his Principality and the ninety seventh Year of his Age, having left twelve Sons and among them VUVAM, who with seven hundred thousand Men destroys the Tyrant CHEU.

		In the sixteenth Year of this Cycle CHE U destroys himself voluntarily by Fire, and with him the second Family of Xam is extinct. In the same Year VUVAM founds the third Family of Chen, which held the Government for 873 Years, under 35 Emperors.
Cycle the thirty third. Year before CHRIST 777.		In the second Year of this Cycle and the tenth Month there was an Eclipse of the Sun. NB. That from this Time they began in their Annals to insert the Eclipses of the Sun and Moon, which if they had done sooner the Years of the other Emperors might have been more exactly determin'd.
Cycle the forty first. Year before CHRIST 297.	Fourth Family. I. CHUAMSI-AMVAM reign'd three Years.	In the forty third Year of this Cycle CHEUKIUN Coavam, the great Grandchild of the thirty first Emperor by the Brother's side, being Master but of a small Territory, abdicates himself, when his Affairs were desperate, and afterward leads a private Life without any Honour. With him the Family of Chen is extinct. In the forty ninth Year of this Cycle CHUAM SIAMVAM the Son of Hiaovenvam, (who only reign'd three Days) founds the Family call'd Sin, which held the Government for three and forty Years under four Emperors. In the fiftieth Year of this Cycle there was an Eclipse of the Sun.

CHAP. VII.

The History of Sanchoniatho before the Flood compar'd with the Holy Scriptures.

IN the twelfth Table of the preceding Chapter, I have plac'd the Genealogies of Seth and Cain together, as they are mention'd in the sacred Scriptures, and in Sanchoniatho as he is translated (a) out of Eusebius with proper Observations thereon by (b) the learned Bishop Cumberland. I shall now give a short Account of the History of the Posterity of Cain, as it is convey'd down to us by these Authors, and compare the same with the small Remains thereof, which we find in the holy Writings; that so we may also endeavour to fix the Times, as near as possible, even of such short and obscure Stories. And here it must be observ'd, that this Sanchoniatho was a profess'd Heathen, and accounted a most ancient and famous Historian, very much admir'd and made use of by the Philosopher Porphyrius, who was the shrewdest Adversary that ever Christianity met with. For he being of too great Learning to be satisfy'd with the vain Pretences of the Greeks, made it his Business to search after the most ancient Records to find out somewhat in them to confront the Antiquity of the Scriptures; but upon his most exact Inquiry he could find none of greater Antiquity than the Phœnician History, nor any Author, who could hand it down to us like this Sanchoniatho. This Author had a peculiar Advantage in this, that not only his own Time was many Centuries before all Historians, that we have extant; but also that he search'd at his own Town Berytus the Records, which were there deposited and kept by the Cabiri, appointed by Thoth to set down these Antiquities, before he went into Egypt to be King there. The Author therefore and Compiler of these Records, being confess'd by this Historian to be Thoth the Grandson of Ham, who liv'd near an hundred Years before the Flood, it is very probable, that he had this Account from his Grandfather, and possibly might have some Part thereof from Noah, since it is probable that he might be born about the same Time with Salah the Grandson of Shem, which was within forty Years after the Flood. And as he was not (c) only a Philosopher of the greatest Size, which those early Times afforded without the Pale of the true Church; so it is to be believ'd, that he took Care, that his Account should be such as best favour'd that Religion which he order'd to be exercis'd in that Kingdom. And accordingly it is very remarkable, that as Moses gives us an Account, how the Worship of GOD was kept up from the Creation of the World to his Time, that by this Method he might establish the true Religion among the Jews; so Thoth gives us an Account, how Idolatry began and increas'd from the Creation of the World to his Time, that is, first to the Flood in the Posterity of Cain, and afterwards in Canaan among the Posterity of Ham, that so he might the better establish it among the Egyptians. But here we may (f) see the wonderful Providence of GOD, that out of this eater came forth meat, and out of the Lion Honey, and the most considerable Testimones produc'd by Porphyrius to confute the Scriptures may serve to establish them; and consequently, that the Methods us'd to confirm his Pagan Religion may serve more effectually to confute it. Moses gives us an Account of the Creation of the World and of Man, and how GOD reveal'd his Will to our first Parents, employ'd them in daily Work, instituted the Sabbath, promis'd CHRIST to them, and taught them the Use of Sacrifices. And that after the Murder of Abel, Cain was separated from the Church of GOD, and his wicked Race mixing with the Posterity of Shem introduc'd all Manner of Impiety, which brought on the Flood, as a just Judgment for the same; so that here the true Worship of GOD continu'd from the Beginning, and its Antiquity is the plain Argument of its Truth. The Ancient Records of Berytus confute nothing of this, as indeed they could not, the History being too well known at that Time to be contradicted; but only gives us an Account of the Rise and Progress of Idolatry. And as it is natural for (g) evil men and seducers to wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived; so the late Original and continual Additions to it, as only mention'd by this Author might have convinc'd an unprejudic'd Reader, that the Religion was false, which he thus endeavour'd to establish.

2. Anno Mundi 1. Sanchoniatho the Heathen supposes or rather affirms (b) that the Principle of the Universe was a dark and a windy Air, or a Wind made of dark Air, and a turbulent Evening Chaos, and that these things were boundless, and had no Form nor

Chap. VII. The SCRIPTURE CHRONOLOGY. 93

Figure. Thus in the Scriptures, (i) In the beginning GOD created the heaven and the earth. And the earth was without form and void, and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the evening and the morning were the first day.

3. Sanchoniatho. (k) But when this Wind fell in Love with its own Principles, and a Mixture was made, that Mixture was called Desire or Cupid, Πῆγά. This Mixture completed was the Beginning of the Making of all things, Κτίσις. Of this Mixture with that Wind was begotten Môt, which some call Mud, others the Putrefaction of watery Mixture, and of this came all this Building, and the Generation of the Universe. Concerning this Môt the learned Bishop Cumberland rightly judges, that it comes from the Arabick Word, which may be found in Dr. Castle's Lexicon under the Root موت, where the thirty third and thirty fourth Words in the Arabick are مات and موت. The Verb signifies to stomp or macerate in Water, and the Noun denotes such a Dissolution, as is made thereby. In Scripture (l) The Spirit of GOD moved upon the face of the waters.

4. Sanchoniatho. (m) Thus shone out Môt, the Sun and the Moon, the greater and the smaller Stars. In Scripture. (n) And GOD said, Let there be light, and there was light. And GOD saw the light that it was good, and GOD divided the light from the darkness. And GOD called the light day, and the darkness he called night. And the evening and the morning were the first Day. And GOD said, Let there be lights in the firmament of the heaven, to divide the day from the night, and let them be for signs and for seasons, and for days and for years. And let them be for lights in the firmament of the heaven to give light upon the earth: and it was so. And GOD made two great lights, the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night; he made the stars also. And GOD set them in the firmament of the heaven to give light upon the earth. And to rule over the day and over the night, and to divide the light from the darkness. And GOD saw that it was good.

5. Sanchoniatho. (o) But there were certain Animals which had no sense, out of which were begotten intelligent Animals, and were called Zophesemin, זופי שמי, that is, the Spies or Overseers of Heaven, and were form'd alike in the shape of an Egg. And the Air shining thoroughly with Light, by its fiery Influence on the Sea and Earth, Winds were begotten and Clouds, and great Defluxions of the heavenly Waters. And when all those things first were parted, and were separated from their proper Places by the Heat of the Sun, they all then met in the Air, and dash'd against one another, and so were broken to pieces, whence Thunders and Lightnings were made, and at the Stroke of these Thunders the before-mentioned intelligent Animals were awaken'd and frighten'd with the Sound, and Male and Female stir'd in the Earth and in the Sea. This is their Generation of Animals. In Scripture (p) The voice of the LORD is upon the waters; the GOD of glory thundereth. (q) And GOD said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life, and fowl that may fly above the earth in the open firmament of heaven. And GOD created great whales, and every living creature that moveth, which the waters brought forth abundantly after their kind, and every fowl after his kind: and GOD saw that it was good. And GOD blessed them, saying, Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the waters in the seas, and let fowl multiply in the earth. And GOD said, Let the earth bring forth the living creature after his kind, cattle and creeping thing, and beast of the earth after his kind: and it was so. And GOD made the beast of the earth after his kind, and cattle after their kind, and every thing that creepeth on the earth after his kind. And GOD saw that it was good.

6. Eusebius. (r) After these things our Author (Sanchoniatho) goes on, saying, These things are written in the Cosmogony of Taautus (that is of Thoth) and in his Memoirs, and out of the Conjectures, and surer natural signs, which his Mind saw, and found out, and wherewith he hath enlighten'd us. Afterwards declaring the Names of the Winds, as North and South, and the Rest, he makes this Epiloguc. But these first Men consecrated the Plants shooting out of the Earth, and judg'd them to be Gods, and worshipp'd them, upon whom they themselves liv'd, and all their Posterity, and all that were before them: To these they made their meat and their drink Offerings. And then he concludes. These were the Devices of Worship agreeing with the Weakness and Want of Boldness in their Minds. Here it is observable, (s) that this Author reports the first Introducers of false Worship to begin their Religion with a devotional Respect to Plants, their Food which grew out of the Ground, as to their most immediate Benefactors in the support of their Lives. It is also observable, That by The first Men cannot strictly be meant the first Pair, because the Author immediately adds, that those who were before them, liv'd on Plants. Now none can be before the first Pair strictly taken; so that he must mean more largely several Men, who liv'd in these eldest Times, and probably whilst this very first Pair were living, tho' they themselves were guilty of no such Facts.

7. But Sanchoniatho not once mentioning the Providence of GOD as concern'd in the Creation of the World, or as appearing to manifest it self in the first Ages, he therefore represents the Worship paid at first to Pagan Deities, as such Devices, which only agreed with the Weakness and Want of Boldness in Men's Minds, that is, until such Time as Paganism was improv'd to a greater Perfection. But we who know, that GOD created the World and all the things therein, and that he reveal'd himself and his Will to Adam and Eve, and was also known both to Cain and Abel, can give another Account of the Rise and Progress of Idolatry, viz. not from any Want of knowledge, but from the Abuse of that Knowledge, which they had. They could have no Notions, how the World was made, and how intelligent Animals were produc'd, but either by immediate Revelation from that GOD who made them, or as it was handed down to them from such, to whom it was immediately reveal'd; so that at first they had the same Means of Knowledge in common with others. But (t) because when they knew GOD they glorify'd him not as GOD, neither were thankful, but became vain in their imaginations, and changed the glory of the incorruptible GOD into an image made like unto corruptible man, and to birds and four footed beasts, and creeping things, because they changed the truth of GOD into a lie, and worshipped and served the creature more than the creator, who is GOD blessed for ever; and because they did not like to retain GOD in their knowledge, therefore their foolish hearts were darkned, and therefore GOD gave them over to a reprobate mind, to do these things, which were not convenient. Hence we may suspect, that at the Beginning they did not pay any such devotional Respect to Plants, and that Sanchoniatho only inserted this Clause out of his own Head, thereby to justify that sordid and foolish Superstition of the Egyptians. It seems to be agreed upon by all, that Paganism began at first with the Worship of the Sun, as the most glorious Being which they daily beheld, of whose light and heat they did constantly partake, and by whose Influence it is evident, that all things were made to grow for their Use; and therefore when they were resolv'd to worship visible Objects, there were none so likely to attract their Devotions. After this they worshipped the Moon and the Stars, as being shining Lights in the Firmament of Heaven; and whom next to the Sun tho' they falsely worship'd, yet it was with a greater Shew of Reason, than the Worshipers of Images can pretend to. An Image is known to be but Wood and Stone; but these being at a greater Distance from us, they could not tell what they were, and therefore might think them to be intelligent Beings, and that consequently they might be (u) the Gods which govern the World. And therefore their Devotion to Plants seems to be only (x) a consecrating them to the Sun, Moon and Stars, and other Parts of the Universe (to be protected by them from all Injuries of the Weather or Insects) and that the Sun, Moon, and Stars were the only Gods, that were then most known, and most publicly worshipped. The learned Dr. Hyde in his Religio veterum Persarum hath fully prov'd, that the ancient Persians were not Idolaters. And as they were the Offspring of Elam the Son of Shem; so it is most probable, that when they fell off from the true Religion of their common Parent, they fell into that false Way of Worship, which was in Use in the most early Times.

8. Sanchoniatho. (y) Of the Wind Colpias, and his Wife Baau (in Hebrew (z) בָּהוּ Bobu void) were begotten two mortals Protogonus Πρωτόγονος and Æon Αἰών (in Hebrew חַוָּה Eve, the Gutturals being taken away and the Termination added to make it declin'd as a Greek Word) And Æon found out the Way of taking Food from Trees. This is the first Generation of Mortals. In Scripture thus. (a) And the LORD GOD formed man out of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul. And (b) when the woman saw, that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof and did eat, and gave also to her husband with her, and he did eat.

9. Sanchoniatho. Genealogy 2. (c) Those, which were begotten of these were call'd Genus and Genea. (Γένος and Γενεά Cain and his Wife, or Cainus and Caina. And thus in the civil Law Caius and Caia stand for a Man and his Wife) and they dwelt in Phœnicia. But when great Droughts came, they stretch'd their Hands up to Heaven toward the Sun; for him (he saith) they thought to be the only Lord of Heaven, calling him Beel Samin בְּעַל שָׁמַיִם, which in the Phœnician Language is The Lord of Heaven. Here seems to be the Beginning of Idolatry, of which a Worship paid to the Sun (as afterward in use among the Persians) was certainly the eldest Sort. And this Posture of religious Worship joyn'd with such Thoughts can import no less than a Deprecation of those violent Heats from the Sun, which was the natural Cause of such Droughts, and so occasion'd such Devotions. In the Scripture GOD curs'd Cain for the Murder of his Brother Abel, saying, (d) When thou tillest the ground it shall not henceforth yield unto thee her strength. A fugitive and a vagabond shalt thou be upon the earth. And Cain said unto the LORD, My punishment is greater than I can bear, Behold, thou hast driven me out this day from the face of the earth, and from thy face shall I be hid. Accordingly, the Scorching of the Earth with violent Heats, and a Barrenness consequent thereupon seem to be but the natural Effect of this Curse. And therefore Cain, judging himself to be forsak'n of GOD, applies himself to the Sun, which was the immediate Cause of these Misfortunes, and dedicates the Plants of the Earth to it, as a Way to keep them secure from such Calamities for the Time to come. This seems to be about the 235th Year of the Creation, for in the Year following (e) unto Seth there was born a Son, and he call'd his Name Enoch (which signifies sorrowful) for then began men לקרו' בשם יהוה to call others even Creatures by the name of the LORD. It was a Cause of Mourning, that Profaneness came on so fast, and that they (f) ascribed even to insensible Creatures the incommunicable name.

10. Sanchoniatho, Genealogy 3. (g) Afterward from Genus the Son of Protogonus and Æon other mortal issues were begott'n, whose Names were Light, Fire and Flame. (Φῶς, Πῦρ and Φλόξ) These found out the Way of Generating Fire by the Rubbing of Pieces of Wood against each other, and taught Men the Use thereof. As Cain is suppos'd to be born soon after the Creation, and it was very usual to have Children in that Age of the World at about an hundred and thirty Years of Age; so, I suppose, that he might have Children much about the same Time with Seth the Son of Adam, Anno Mundi 131. But Enoch the Son of Cain could not be born so soon; because at his Birth the Family of Cain was so numerous, that (h) he built a city and called it after the name of this his son Enoch; so that we may suppose the Birth of Enoch the Grandson of Adam by Cain to be cotemporary with Enosh the Grandson of Adam by Seth, Anno Mundi 236: And that the other Sons, viz. Light, Fire and Flame might be born about the same Time. In this third and fourth Generation this Author gives us no Account of the Progress of Idolatry. It is plain that now it began; but he placeth it under the second Generation to make it more venerable upon the Account of its Antiquity, and it began with the Worshipping of the celestial Bodies, as mention'd before, but it went no farther. And as for this Reason the Son of Seth was call'd Enosh, or Sorrowful; so the Names of the Sons of Cain are as remarkable, especially since it was usual in that Age to give Names to Men from something remarkable either done or invented by them, or at that Time. Thus in Scripture the Names of Cain's Son or City, which he built, was call'd Enoch, or a Dedication, as if about that Time the Plants of the Earth were dedicated to the Sun to save them from Misfortunes, and the Names of Light, Fire and Flame did as plainly shew the Deities, which they then began to worship. And thus the Names of (i) Ur, (k) Uri, (l) Beor, and (m) Lebabim signify Fire and Flames, and are mention'd in Scripture as Names in after Times.

11. Sanchoniatho, Genealogy 4. (n) These begat Sons of vast Bulk and Height, whose Names were given to the Mountains, on which they first seiz'd; so from them were nam'd Mount Cassius, Libanus, and Antilibanus, and Brathys. These Sons are call'd Κασσιος and Λιβανος. Cassius and Libanus. Here two Generations are suppos'd to be omitted in the Scriptures in the Race of Cain, and the (o) Scripture Expression, being of a different Style from the Rest of the Genealogies, seems to favour this Notion. Cain begat Enoch, And Irad begat Mehujael and Mehujael begat Methusael, and Methusael begat Lamech. So that these were the immediate Sons. But it is said, that (p) unto Enoch was born Irad, which might be equally true of a third or fourth distant Generation. The first of these, which are omitted, might be cotemporary with Cainan, being the fourth Genealogy from Adam in the Race of Seth, and so he might be born about the Year of the World 326. As the Mountains were call'd by their Names; so (q) Seir, which was a Name of Esau at his Birth, was given (r) to the Mountain, which he possess'd. Of this Genealogy the Scriptures give us this Account, (s) There were giants in the earth in those days, and also after that, when the sons of GOD came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children unto them; the same became mighty men, which were of old, men of renown. The Wickedness of these Men in so early an Age of the World might occasion a Resolution taken by GOD to destroy the whole Race of Mankind; if it had not been deferr'd by the exemplary Piety which was now kept up in the Race of Seth. And as Cainan was born in that Time and in that Family, which signifies Mourning and Lamentation; so it seems to point out unto us, that they then mourn'd for the Iniquity of that Age, as practis'd in the other Family, and that by their Prayers and Tears this Judgment was deferr'd. And tho'

(t) the wickedness of man was very great in the earth; yet (u) all flesh had not as yet corrupted his way.

12. Sanchoniatho, Genealogy 5. (x) On these were begotten Memramus and Hypsuramus; but they were so nam'd by their Mothers the Women of those Times, who without shame lay with any Man, whom they could light upon. Then Hypsuramus inhabited Tyre (not the Town, which was long since built in the Island; but more probably some Place, which was built near it on the Continent) and he invented the Making of Hutts with Reeds and Rushes, and with the Paper Reeds. And he fell into Enmity with his Brother Ufous, who first invented covering for his Body, made of the Skins of wild Beasts, which he could catch. And when violent Tempests of Winds and Rains came, the Boughs in Tyre being rubb'd against each other took fire, and burnt the Wood there. And Ufous having taken a Tree and broken off its Boughs, was the first who was so bold, as to venture to put it into the Sea. And he consecrated two Στήλαι ruder Stones, translated Pillars to Fire and Wind, (probably to those violent Storms, which had burnt the Wood) and he bow'd down to, or worshipp'd them, and pour'd out to them the Blood of such Wild Beasts, as had been caught in hunting. But when these (Hypsuramus and Ufous) were dead, those that remain'd, consecrated to them Πύλαι, Stumps of Wood, and Στήλαι, Monuments of Stone, and kept anniversary Feasts to them.

As the former Generation was suppos'd to be cotemporary to Cainan in Seth's Line, who was born Anno Mundi 326; so these may be suppos'd to be cotemporary with Mahalaleel, who was born Anno Mundi 396, and whose Name signifying A Praiser of the LORD, shews, that Religion was still kept up in the Family of Seth, notwithstanding the Degeneracy in the Family of Cain. According to this Supposition the Persons now born might, like the Ages of their Cotemporaries, live until about the Year of the World 1350, which was within a Century before Noah began to build the Ark. And after the Death of these Men their Canonizing of Saints began. Tho' the Names of these and their Cotemporaries are not mention'd in the Scriptures; yet in this Generation there are several Things remarkable. First, Their Immorality in the ordinary Prostitution of their Bodies, as a Thing common among the Women of this Line. The Consequence whereof is in (y) the Scripture said to be the Debauching of The Sons of GOD, that is, the Posterity of Seth, which was the better Line, and this brought in all Impiety and Immorality among them; so that there sprung up a wicked and strong Issue, which fill'd all the Earth with Corruption and Violence. And it came to pass, when Men began to multiply upon the face of the earth, and daughters were born unto them; that the sons of GOD (the Children of Seth) saw the daughters of men (the Children of Cain) that they were fair, and they took them wives, of all which they chose. There were giants in the earth in those days, and also after that, when the Sons of GOD came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children unto them, the same became mighty men, which were of old men of renown. And GOD saw, that the wickedness of Men was great upon the face of the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart were only evil continually. Secondly, Hypsuramus fell into Enmity with his Brother Ufous. Thus (z) the earth was also corrupt before GOD, and the earth was filled with violence. Thirdly, Memramus invented the making of Hutts of Reeds and Rushes and of the Paper Reeds. This shews, that the Art of Architecture was very mean in those Days, and consequently that it could not be many Ages before, when Cain built (a) the first City, and called it after the Name of his Son Enoch. Fourthly, What is recorded of Ufous, not only to have invented Cloaths taken from the Skins of wild Beasts, and to have been the first Man, that ventur'd upon the Sea in a Tree, that was blown down, and that Hypsuramus first invented the Making of Hutts of Reeds and Rushes, together with other Inventions in succeeding Generations, do all shew, that the World was then but newly inhabited according to the Mosaical History. Fifthly, The Progress of Idolatry is here also describ'd. The Worshipping of the Sun was begun before, and dedicating of Herbs and Plants to it, thereby putting them under its Protection; but now they proceed further. Ufous consecrated two Pillars to the Wind and to the Fire, referring to that Wind and Fire, by which the Wood there mention'd was burnt, and which was afterward attended with violent Rains. I cannot but add here the Words in the Apocrypha, which the Reader may compare, with what went before concerning the Rise and Progress of Idolatry, (b) Surely vain are all men by nature, who are ignorant of GOD, and could not out of good things that are seen, know him that is, neither by considering the works did they acknowledge the workmaker. But deemed either fire or wind, or the swift air, or the circle of the stars, or the violent water, or the lights of heaven to be the gods, which govern the world. However, Ufous (c) ador'd these Monuments, and pour'd out unto them the Blood of wild Beasts, which he had took in Hunting. This seems to be the first Offering of Blood to inferior Deities. And because it is affirm'd to be the Blood of hunted wild Beasts, who were kill'd upon the Spot, and so could not be preserv'd alive to be slain at these Monuments, and of whose Blood there could hardly be gott'n any Quantity to be pour'd out of Bowls or Basons; therefore we may infer, that he offer'd some Part of their Flesh with their Blood, yet partly contain'd in their Arteries and Veins, and so dropping out of their Limbs. And since there is no Reason to doubt, but as he offer'd a Part; so he also eat a Part of what he had thus taken in Hunting; so this is the first Example of eating Flesh before the Flood; after which GOD granted Leave to Noah to use such Food. But we must observe, that it was granted with a Restriction, (d) Flesh with the blood thereof, which is the life thereof, shall ye not eat. Which antient Law seems to intimate, that the wild Antediluvian Sons of Cain had fall'n into the Barbarity of ἀμωφύλας the eating of raw and bloody Flesh, forbidden therefore to Noah and his Posterity both in the Case of Sacrifices and of ordinary Diet to prevent all Correspondence with their savage Practices. And as Moses gives us (e) an Example of an earlier Sacrifice made to the true GOD by Abel of the Firstlings of his Flock; and there is no Doubt but that Adam had sacrific'd long before, thereby representing (f) the lamb of GOD, who was slain from the Foundation of the world, and that he was at first cloath'd with the Skins of Beasts thus slain; so these Pagans offer'd the same Methods of Devotion to these false Gods, which they had formerly heard to have been paid to the true one.

13. Sanchoniatho, Genealogy 6. (g) After many Years from the Generation of Hypsuranius (which is the fifth) came Agreus and Halius the Inventors of the Arts of Hunting and Fishery, from whom Huntsmen and Fishermen are nam'd. Here we may observe, that the Connexion (h) of this Generation with that which goes before it is more ambiguously express'd than any other in the whole Pedigree by these Words χρόνους ὑπερὸν πολλοῖς after much Time. But as all the Antediluvians, Noah excepted, mention'd in the Scripture had their Children mention'd before they were two hundred Years old; and yet Noah was five hundred Years old before the Birth either of Shem, Ham or Japhet; so if we allow such a Space as about five hundred Years for the long Time mention'd by Sanchoniatho, then as the former Generation might be born about the Year 396; so this Generation might be born about the Year 900, 896 or rather 875, and so they might be cotemporary with Lamech the Father of Noah. In the Scripture we have no more of this Generation than the Name (i) Irak. As Hunting was begun in the former Generation; so it was improv'd and grown more common in this, and their Method at that Time was only with Nets. The Greek names us'd in this and other Generations are only a Translation of Eastern Names of the like Signification, and it is possible, that they were of the same Signification with Sidon in after Times given to one of Canaan's Sons, who built the City of Sidon near to Tyre. For the Word ῥῖς in Hebrew signifies both Hunting and Fishing, and the Word (k) Bethsaida a Town near Jordan, is no other in Sense than The Place of Fishing.

14. Sanchoniatho, Genealogy 7. (l) Of these were begotten two Brothers, the Inventors of Iron and the forging thereof. One of these call'd Chrysor (whom he affirms to be Hephaestus or Vulcan) exercis'd himself in Words and Charms and Divinations, and he found out the Hook, Bait and fishing Line, and Boats slightly made; and he also was the first of all Men that sail'd. Wherefore he also was worshipp'd after his Death for a God, and they call'd him Diamychius; and some say, that his Brothers invented the Way of making Walls of Brick. If we allow the same Distance between this sixth and seventh Generation in the Line of Cain, as is between the sixth and seventh Generation in the Line of Seth, which is between Jared and Enoch, or 162 Years, then we may conclude these to have been born about the Year 1037, or about twenty Years before the Birth of Noah. But of this more will be said afterward. In Scripture we have no more of this Generation than the Name Mekujael.

15. Sanchoniatho, Genealogy 8. (m) Afterward from this Generation came two Brothers, one of which was call'd Technites, that is, The Artist; the other, Geinus or Autochthon, The Home born Man of the Earth. These found out the Way to mingle Stubble or small Things with the bricky Earth, and to dry them with the Sun, and so made Tiling. If here we also allow the same Distance between the seventh and eighth Generation in the Line of Cain, as between the seventh and eighth Generation in the Line of Seth, which is between Enoch and Methuselah, or 65 Years, then we may conclude these to have been born about the Year 1102, or about five and forty Years after the Birth of Noah. In Scripture we have no more of this Generation than the Name of Methusael.

16. Sanchoniatho, Genealogy 9. (n) By these were begott'n others, one of which was call'd Agrus a Field, and the other Agrouerus or Agrotus an Husbandman, who had a Statue, which was very much worshipp'd, and a Temple carry'd about by one or more Yoke of Oxen in Phoenicia. And among the People of Byblus he is eminently call'd Hypsistus, or the greatest of the Gods. These found out how to make Courts about Men's Houses, and Fences, and Caves or Cellars. Husbandmen and such as use Dogs in hunting derive from these. And they are also call'd Aletæ or Titans, and a little after, (o) Hyppistius dying in Fight with wild Beasts was consecrated, and his Children offer'd Sacrifices and Libations to him. If we allow here also the same Distance between this eighth and ninth Generation in the Line of Cain as between the eighth and ninth Generation in the Line of Seth, which is between Methuselah and Lamech, or 187 Years, then we may conclude these to have been born about the Year 1289, or 232 Years after the Birth of Noah. In Scripture we have this Account of Lamech the Son of Methusael, that, (p) he first brought Polygamy into the World, of which he repented, when he saw the cursed Effects, which follow'd his Example.

17. Sanchoniatho, Genealogy 10. (q) From these were begotten Amynus and Magus, who shew'd Men to constitute Villages and Flocks. And (r) about this Time was first invented the Building of a compleat Ship, or Πλοῖον. If we allow the same Distance between this ninth and tenth Generation in the Line of Seth, which is between Lamech and Noah, or 182 Years, then we may conclude these to have been born about the Year 1471 or 414 Years after the Birth of Noah. These might therefore be contemporary with the Children of Lamech of the Race of Cain, of which the Scripture gives us this Account, (s) And Lamech took unto him two wives, the name of the one was Adah, and the name of the other was Zillah. And Adah bare Jubal, he was the father of such as dwell in tents, and of such as have cattle. He is not said to be the Father of all, because Amynus and Magus had such Flocks as were brought home to the Villages; but he was the first, who had Tents for the Conveniency of Herdsmen and Shepherds, who before liv'd in Huts made of Reeds and Rushes, and of the Paper Reeds. And his brother's name was Jubal; he was the father of all such as handled the harp and organ. Now as Nature sets the Pattern for Art to imitate; so the Original of vocal Musick must be suppos'd to be as ancient as the other; and according to the Opinion of the Eastern Nations it came from the same Family. This is the Reason (as a learned Arabian hath long since observ'd, that (t) a Song in the Syriack Language is call'd (u) Cinta, and a Girl, who is a Singer, is in the Arabick call'd (x) Cainat. And it is farther observable, that each of the three Letters in the Hebrew Word קַיִן or Cain are preserv'd intire in both these Languages, that so we might more certainly know, from whence these Words were deriv'd, and from whence vocal Musick was deriv'd also. And Zillah, she also bare Tubal-cain, not the Inventor of any Art, but the Improver of it, and the Bringer of it to Perfection; and thus he might be the Instructor, or as it is in the Hebrew, the Whetter on of every artificer in brass and iron. And the sister of Tubal-cain was Naamah. I shall only add the Words of (y) a very learned Prelate, who speaking of Ham saith on this Occasion. Give me leave also to suggest that Plutarch tells us, that some call'd his Wife Nemaus; which I cannot read, but the Word Naamah comes to my Mind, and I cannot chose but ask, Was not this the famous Woman, of whose Birth alone in all Cain's Line Moses takes notice of, and saith, that she was the Sister of Tubal-cain, and the last Person mention'd in that Line? If she was the Wife of Ham, we may give a very probable Reason for his falling into Idolatry, notwithstanding his Father was so free from it. This Wife taken out of the Idolatrous Line of Cain before the Flood might seduce him afterward, as the idolatrous Wives of Solomon withdrew that wise Man from following the Steps of his Father David. There are Reasons to believe, that this Generation, in which Naamah was, liv'd in the Time of the Flood, when Ham was married. And it is not probable, that Moses would have noted this Woman rather than any other of Cain's Line, if she had not been a Person of great Fame in the World. According to the above Computation Ham might be born, when Lamech the Father of Naamah was about three hundred Years old, and therefore Naamah might be born at an agreeable Age to be the Wife of Ham. Neither can the early Deaths in the seventh and ninth Genealogy be any Objection; because Hyppistius died a violent Death in the ninth Generation. And as for Chrysur in the seventh, he might be cut off by GOD in the Midst of his Age, for particular Reasons. And tho' some may live to a great Age; yet nothing is more common, than for their contemporaries to die young.

18. As (z) Jabel is recorded by Moses, to be the father of such as dwelt in tents, and of such as had cattle: so it is probable, that the Rechabites took up the Custom from them, of which the Prophet Jeremiah (a) gives us the only Account, viz. That Jonadab the son of Rechab their father commanded them, saying, Ye shall drink no wine, neither ye nor your sons for ever. Neither shall ye build house nor sow seed, nor plant vineyards, nor have any; but all your days ye shall dwell in tents, that ye may live many days in the land, where ye be strangers. Accordingly they obey'd the voice of Jonadab the son of Rechab their father in all that he charged them, to drink no wine all their days, they, their wives, their sons, nor their daughters. Nor to build houses for them to dwell in. Neither had they vineyard, nor field nor seed. But they dwelt in tents, and obeyed and did according unto all that Jonadab their father commanded them. But when Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came up into the land of Canaan, they agreed to come up together to Jerusalem for fear of the army of the Chaldeans, and for fear of the army of the Syrians, and so they intended to dwell at Jerusalem, till the Danger was over. Now these Rechabites (b) were not any religious Sect, as some pretend, but were begun by a mere civil Ordinance founded upon a national Custom. For (c) the Rechabites were of the Race of the Family of Hobab the Kenite Moses's Father in Law. And these Kenites were Midianites, and the Midianites were Dwellers in Tents from the Beginning. This may be prov'd, First, because the Arabians were such both then, and still are at this Time. Secondly, The Ishmaelites and Midianites dwelt together, insomuch that their Names are confounded in Scripture, or interchangeably us'd the one for the other. Thus (d) those Merchants to whom Joseph was sold, are promiscuously call'd sometimes Ishmaelites, and sometimes Midianites, as if they were both one People; as indeed they both descended from Abraham, the one by his Handmaid Hagar, and the other by his second Wife Keturah. So (e) the Midianites, whom Gideon vanquish'd are call'd Ishmaelites. They had golden earrings (saith the Text) for they were Ishmaelites. Now it is evident from Scripture, that the Ishmaelites or Hagarenes us'd to dwell in Tents. Thus (f) it is said, that the Reubenites in the Days of Saul made War with the Hagarites, who fell by their hand; and dwelt in their tents throughout all the east land of Gilead. Besides, those famous Scenite Arabians, mention'd (g) so often in Scripture, and call'd The Tents of Kedar were of the Ishmaelites. Such therefore as the Ishmaelites were, such may we also suppose the Midianites to have been, who dwelt with them. And to put it quite out of Doubt, we have so much told us in Scripture, in (h) the Prayer of Habakkuk, I saw (saith he) the tents of Cushan (or Arabia) in affliction, and the curtains of the land of Midian did tremble.

19. This Custom of their Nation and Country was still observ'd by that Midian Tribe of the Kenites (of whom was the Father in Law of Moses) after they came to live in Canaan with the Israelites. And thus (i) Heber the Kenite, which was of the children of Hobab the father in law of Moses, had severed himself from the Kenites, and pitched his tent unto the plain of Zaanaïm, which is by Kedesh. And they seem'd to have retain'd this Manner of Living, partly to be a Badge or Cognizance of the Nation from whence they were descended; and partly to live the more securely in the Land, where they were Strangers, either from the Envy of the Jews at Home, or Danger of Enemies abroad, to whom by this Means they should be the less subject, as having neither Houses to be burnt, nor Lands to be taken from them; but only Cattle wherewith they liv'd, and Tents which they remov'd hither and thither, as Opportunity serv'd for Pasture to feed them. In this Manner Abraham and the Patriarchs liv'd, whilst they sojourn'd as Strangers in the Land of Canaan, and in Imitation of whom it is probable, that this Custom was deriv'd to the Midianites, who were also the Children of Abraham.

20. However in Length of Time it seems probable that those Kenites, allur'd by the more pleasant Living of the Israelites, began to change this Custom of their Ancestors, which occasion'd Jonadab the Son of Rechab a famous Kenite to renew it again, and bind his Posterity to observe it: and to that End he forbade them altogether to drink any Wine, lest the Desire thereof might occasion them to plant Vineyards, and to build Houses as the Jews did, and so to forsake the Custom of their Nation; as perhaps the too great Use of Wine had before caus'd many of them so to do. For it is certain that Jonadab only renew'd that, which his Ancestors had observ'd long before he was born. So that in short, it was no Order of Religion, which they bound themselves to, but only the keeping up of a civil Custom, and therefore when the Romanists urge the Example of the Rechabites to warrant their affected Poverty and Abstinence us'd by some Orders of Men among them; they may add if they please, the Example of the wild Arabians and Tartars, who at this Day live in the same Manner, and which will be as much to their Purpose as the other.

21. From hence we may also observe the Rise and Progress of Idolatry in the antediluvian Age. Cain paid the first false Adoration to the Sun, and consecrated the Plants to him, thereby to put them under his Protection, and this was about the Birth of Enosh. Ussus born about the Year 396, and of the fifth Generation consecrated two Monuments of Stone to the Fire and Wind, and he bow'd down to them, and worshipp'd them, and pour'd out to them the Blood of such wild Beasts as he had taken in Hunting. After his Death, which might probably be in the twelfth Century, he had Worship paid to him, and was one of the first Men, which we read of, who was consecrated and honour'd with Pillars in Commemoration of him, and joyn'd with Adoration and Bowing down to them as such. But after the Death of Tubal-cain or Vulcan, which might probably be in the fifteenth Century, he was worshipp'd as a GOD, which is more than is affirm'd of any before him; so that now Idolatry came in like a Flood, and this forc'd God to pass the Sentence of their final Destruction. And much about this Time Hypsisius, dying in a Fight with wild Beasts, was consecrated, and his Children offer'd Sacrifices and Libations to him. So that now every Family seems to set up for Gods of their own, which might soon increase the Number.

22. To this we may also add, that every Trade doth now consecrate Gods for their own Worship (as it was also with the Pagans in later Ages) of which there are two remarkable Instances, viz. the Smiths and Husbandmen; and they seem to deify the first Inventors of their respective Arts. Thus Chrysor in the seventh Generation, being the Inventor of Iron and the Forger thereof, was ador'd for a God by those of the same Art in the ninth, and without Doubt by the Direction and Promotion of Tubal-cain. His Name Chrysor comes from the Hebrew Verb חרצ to whet on, to sharpen, and to act fiercely in what a Man is about. Hence comes the Participle חורץ, which we render an Artificer, Χρυσός beaten or cut Gold is acknowledg'd to be deriv'd from hence, and here we may observe, that they were willing not only to acknowledge him as a God, but also to call themselves by his Name. Thus Tubal-cain was לוטש כל חורץ a Whetter on of every Chrysor or Artificer, not only to improve their Trade; but more probably to adore the first Inventor thereof for their greater Credit and Reputation; and perhaps with this View, that as those in the fifth Generation, who deify'd the Fire and Wind, were afterward deify'd by others; so it might fare with him. And it is evident, that so it happen'd; for (k) Vulcanus, the God, who was afterwards worshipp'd under this Denomination, as the God of the Smiths, is the same with Tubal-canus only by a common and easy change of B into V being Letters of the same Organ, and casting away the first Syllable, as from γάλακτος lactis, and from ἀγρα τῶν rura.

23. Neither were the Husbandmen backward in imitating such a vile Example, as it is evident from Agrus and Agrouerus in the ninth Generation, who had a much worshipp'd Statue or Idol, the first of this Sort that we read of, and a Temple, which was also an Original carried about by one or more Oxen in Phœnicia; and among the People of Byblus he is eminently call'd The greatest of the Gods. Something like to this, was (l) among the Philistins the Successors to the old Phœnicians in their Religion and Abode, when they sent back the Ark of GOD upon a new Cart, and order'd it to be ζυγοποιήμενον, or drawn by two milch Kine. This Ark was the Epitome of the Tabernacle or the moveable Temple of GOD, and is sent back in this Manner by the Order of the Canaanitish Priests. Like to this also was (m) that of Moloch, and of his Star Chium or Remphan, of which (n) St. Stephen saith, that the Israelites carried them in the Wilderness to bow down unto them or to worship them. This Idolatrous Practice they us'd there, as common both to Egypt and Canaan, and including both the Worship of an immortal GOD, of a Planet, and of a mortal consecrated Man, which was the Summe of all Idolatry. The Names of the Men, who are thus deify'd, are Ἄγρος and Ἀγροῦς, which signify Gods of Husbandry, as Pan, and Pales, and Sylvanus among the Greeks and Romans, and Oxen are very agreeably employ'd to draw their Tabernacle, because they were the eldest Servants in Husbandry. Thus Plutarch mentions not only Pan, but also Aroueris, as a most ancient Deity among the Egyptians, whose Country was near, and their Religion and Parentage from Ham was the same with that of the old Phœnicians. And as these Men liv'd in the ninth Generation; so there is no Reason to doubt, but that their Consecration as Deities, and their Images and Temples were made in the tenth Generation, immediately before the Resolution of GOD to destroy them all with a Flood. The Men, whom Sancho-niatho names in this Generation, are Amynus and Magus, and their Names are likely to signify such an idolatrous Practice; Amynus seeming to signify a Defender from Enchantments, and Magus a Sorcerer. And tho' the Words were capable of a more favourable Construction; yet in those lowest Dregs of Cain's Race we may believe the worst that the Words can bear. So that in this last Generation idolatrous Falling off from GOD, and violent Practices toward Men were grown to such a Height, that GOD resolv'd to destroy them all, and accordingly forewarn'd Noah to save himself and his Family by building of an Ark. And so the Race of Cain, who propagated such Impieties, were all swept away by the Flood. And therefore it is evident, that tho' Sancho-niatho was so far from intending to write such an Account as might agree with Moses, that he openly owns other and opposite Teachers, and his whole Intention was to propagate Idolatry; yet there is nothing contain'd in his Works, but what may be of Use, if rightly apply'd, to vindicate the Creation, the History of the World, and the Worship of the true GOD which Moses mentions.

CHAP. VIII.

Of the Place of Paradise.

HAVING thus giv'n an Account of the History of Sanhoniatho, and compar'd it with that of Moses, I should now proceed to give a farther Account of the antediluvian Age, as far as we have any Footsteps thereof especially among the Eastern Historians. But before I treat on this Subject, it is necessary to fix the Place of the World, where our first Parents Adam and Eve were settled, when they were first created, which was in Eden, and often call'd the Garden of Paradise. And this I suppose to have been on the east Side of the Tigris and opposite to the Place, where the Tower of Babel, or the City of Babylon was afterwards built. For the Proof whereof Moses must be our principal Guide, who saith, that (a) the LORD GOD planted a Garden eastward in Eden, and there he put the man, whom he had formed. Here he tells us, that this Garden was in Eden, of which the Prophet Amos seems to take notice, (b) when he divided Syria into three Provinces, the first of which he calls Damascus the second is the Plain of Aven, and the third is the House of Eden call'd Calosyria, or the hollow Syria, because the Mountains of Libanus and Antilibanus take all the Length of it on both Sides, and make it look like a deep Valley. But this is not the Eden, which Moses mentions, because it did not lie eastward from Judea, or from the Desert of the Amorites, where Moses was, when he wrote those Books, but northward; and it lay so near to these Parts; that it could not be so unknown to the Israelites, as to oblige Moses to be particular in Describing the Place where it was. We must therefore bend our Course eastward to find it out. The next Country to Judea was Arabia petrea or the Stony; but here Moses himself was, when he wrote this Story. The next, which lay eastward to that, was Arabia deserta, or the desert, both which Countries in Respect of the Unfruitfulness of them, could not be this Garden of Eden; neither have the Arabians any such Rivers, as are here express'd, which run out of their Country; and therefore Eden must of Necessity lie eastward from those Places, and if we travel much farther that Way, we soon come to Chaldea, and to a Part of the River Euphrates, which Moses mentions, on the Banks whereof the City of Babylon is known to stand. But because Eden is only nam'd in Genesis by it self, and only describ'd by its Fruitfulness and by the Rivers, which are near it, therefore it will be convenient to seek for it first in other Places of Scripture, where it is better describ'd by the Addition of its neighbouring Nations. In the Speech of Rabshekah, where he personates Senacherib, it is (c) thus describ'd, Have the gods of the nations deliver'd them, which my fathers have destroyed, as Gozan, and Haran, and Rezepb, and the Children of Eden, which were in Telassar. And Ezekiel (d) thus prophecies against the Tyrians, They of Haran and Canneh and Eden the merchants of Sheba, and Ashur and Chilmad were thy merchants. In the first of these Texts Rabshekah speaks of several Parts of the Babylonish Empire, which fell from the Obedience of Senacherib in his Life Time, and were utterly separated from the Assyrian Monarchy after his Death, as Gozan, and Haran and Rezepb, and the Children of Eden, which were in Telassar. These at that Time made a feeble Resistance against the Assyrians, tho' they were almost conquer'd by them. But it appears plainly, that after the Death of Senacherib, and after his vast Army, (which was commanded by Rabshekah and lay before Jerusalem) was miraculously destroy'd by the Angel of GOD, those Nations, which before were much discourag'd, took Heart again, and freed themselves from that Subjection, to which they before were liable; and Merodach Baladan, who was then King of Babylon sent to Hezekiah, both to congratulate the Recovery of his Health, and his Victory obtain'd over the Assyrians. After which Overthrow Senacherib himself was slain by his own Sons in the Temple of Nisroch his God, and Esharhaddon his Son reign'd in his Stead as King of Assyria; whilst Merodach Baladan reign'd in Babylon over those Countries which had revolted from the other Empire. When he sent his Ambassadors to Jerusalem, King Hezekiah shew'd them all his Treasures, which afterward invited the Kings of Babylon to undertake the Conquest of the Land of Canaan, and reduce that Government under the Babylonian Empire. But when the Wars between Babylon and Assyria began to break out, the Assyrians took an Island in the Euphrates almost on the west Side of Babylon, which they endeavour'd to fortify, and call'd it Telassar, which in the Hebrew Language signifies A Garrison or a Fortification of the Assyrians designing thereby to streighten the Babylonians. But the Children of Eden, who dwelt near it, forc'd them to surrender the Fort, and afterward kept the Possession of it, and made it much stronger so as to be a Bulwark against the Affyrians and a Security from their Incurſions on that Side, and it is probable, that they call'd the adjacent Country, where the Children of Eden dwelt, by the ſame Name. This is the ſame Place, which Amianus Merceſſinus in (e) the Hiſtory of Julian calls Thilutka inſtead of Telaffir (which might very eaſily be done ſince אֶתֶר Atter or Atbur was the Chaldean Name of Affyria) who deſcribing the exceeding Strength of it, ſaith, that it is ſeated in an Iſland of the Euphrates, upon a ſteep and unafaultable Rock, inſomuch as Julian the Emperor durſt not attempt it, and therefore it was a convenient Place for a Garriſon againſt the Affyrians, being alſo a Paſſage out of Mefopotamia into Babylonia, and in which the Edenites of the Country adjoining were lodg'd to defend the ſame. This Place Ptolomy (f) calls Terdata, having Reſeph (which he calls Reſpha) and Canneb (which he calls Thelbecanneb) on the right Hand, not far from whence is alſo found the City of Manucanneb upon the Tigris, and all theſe are ſeated together in the ſame Manner as the Prophets Iſaiab and Ezekiel and the Author of the Books of the Kings have plac'd them.

2. There is alſo another Expoſition, which (g) the learned give of (h) theſe Words of Mofes, And the LORD GOD planted a garden בְּעֵרְן בְּקֶרֶן in Eden on the eaſt ſide thereof. So that if we can but find out the Country of Eden, let it be either large or ſmall, but eſpecially the eaſt Side thereof, then we ſhall certainly know the Situation of the Garden of Paradiſe.

3. Our firſt Guide in this Inquiry muſt be that River, which is the moſt known of any that were parted from thence, and this is the River Euphrates; a River which is frequently mention'd in Scripture, and in moſt Hiſtorians, not only Oriental, but alſo both Greek and Latin, and by all Geographers, who treat of Aſia, and a River which conſtantly kept its ancient Name in all theſe Languages without any Alteration. The Name of this River (i) originally ſignifies fruitful, or making fruitful, or increaſing, and therefore will more naturally lead us to that Garden, whoſe Name ſignifies Delight and Pleaſure, and where (k) the LORD GOD cauſed to grow out of the ground every tree, that is pleaſant to the eyes, and good for food. In going from Canaan toward the River Euphrates the firſt remarkable Place is the great City of Damaſcus, which is ſituated in ſuch a wonderful and fruitful Soyl, and ſo ſweet and temperate an Air, that (l) they who deſcribe it ſay, that it may be deſervedly call'd, as it is by many Writers, the terreſtrial Paradiſe. But this is to place it at too great a Diſtance from the other Rivers, which Mofes mentions. When we are come to Euphrates, there is a neceſſity of paſſing over the River, in order to come to the other Rivers, which are to be joyned with it, and then we come directly into Mefopotamia, a Country water'd with the Euphrates on the South Side, and with the Tigris on the North, and which hath its Name in the Greek from lying between them both. This is reckon'd as fruitful as any Country in Aſia, and the farther we go on toward the Eaſt, the more fruitful it is. In paſſing along the Tigris we come to the great City of Nineveh built by Nimrod on the Eaſt Side of that River, where it bends Southwardly, on the Weſt Side whereof (as Benjamin the Jew ſaith in his Itinerary) is plac'd the City of Maſul the Metropolis of that Country, which from thence takes the Name of מוּסוּל (m) in the Arabick Language, and is alſo call'd Aſbur, or Aſſur the great, which gave the Name in Hebrew to all the Country of Affyria; and certainly that muſt be a very fruitful Soyl, which is able to maintain two ſuch large Cities, between whom there was only a Bridge over the River Tigris, which open'd a Communication to each other. It is obſervable, that Nineveh is no other than נִינְוָה the Habitation of Ninus the Son of Nimrod, and it is more evident, becauſe he was there worſhipped as a God by the Name of Bel, who built the City, and called it by the Name of his Son Ninus, as Cain had before built a like City, and call'd it after the Name of his Son Enoch. And as he fix'd it for the Habitation of his Son, ſo we may ſuppoſe, that he fix'd it in the moſt fruitful and pleaſant Country, that he could meet with. But as here are only two of theſe great Rivers, and they are not yet met; ſo we muſt go farther yet to meet with the other two.

4. In going on farther we come to the Place, where the Tigris and Euphrates joyn, and make one very large Stream, on the Weſt Side whereof lies the Country of Babylonia and Chaldea, and on the Eaſt Side the Country of Suſiana, and this we may ſuppoſe to be the River, which went out of Eden to water the Garden, becauſe as there were two Streams, which came into it; ſo it parted into two more, which emptied themſelves into the Persian Gulph, incloſing the Iſland of Teredon, now called Baſſara.

5. This was firſt diſcover'd by Calvin, who ſaith, (n) that it was a certain Country, and not extended throughout the whole World. And then he adds, That (o) it is not of any great Consequence, whether Adam was plac'd before the Confluence of these Rivers toward Babylon and Seleucia, or in the upper Part; it is sufficient, that he dwelt in a Country well water'd. And it is not hard to tell how this River is divided into four Heads. For there are two Rivers, which come together into one, and then they separate again into two more. And at last he concludes, That the saying of Moses is plain (and not allegorical, as some would have it) that the Garden of which Adam was the Possessor, was water'd by a River, which pass'd that Way, and was afterward divided into four Channels. Thus far Calvin, to whom Bochartus and others agree, and which I mention more at large, because he was the first Person, who made this Discovery.

6. To this may be added, that as the Country of Eden and Garden of Paradise was certainly a very fruitful Country; so all ancient Authors, who treat of Babylonia, give it the same Character. Herodotus, who was an Eye-witness of it, saith, that (p) where Euphrates runs out into Tigris, not far from the Place where Ninus is seated, that Region was of all, that he had seen, the most excellent. And he adds afterward, It is so fruitful in bringing forth Corn, that it yieldeth two hundred fold, the leaves of Wheat and Barley being almost four Fingers broad. As for the Height of Millet and Sesame they are even in length like unto Trees, which (saith he) although I know to be true; yet I forbear to speak hereof, well knowing that those things, which are reported of its Fruitfulness, will seem very incredible to those, who never were in the Country of Babylon. They have commonly in all their Country Palm-Trees growing of their own accord, the most of them bearing Fruit, out of which they make both Meats and Wine and Honey, ordering them as the Fig-Trees. To these three (q) Strabo adds a fourth Excellency of this Palm-Tree, that it also yields Bread, and particularly confirms the Testimony of Herodotus in these Words, The Fields in the Neighbourhood of Babylonia, yield three hundred Grains for one, and the Palm-Tree alone is sufficient for the Support of Life, since Bread, Wine, Honey, Vinegar, and woven Garments of many Sorts are made out of it; and there is a Copy of Persick Verses, in which it is reported to yield three hundred and sixty several Commodities. Others tell us, that from this Tree there is drawn a Kind of fine Flax, of which the People make their Garments, and of which in the East-Indies they make Ropes for their Ships. And particularly Athanasius in the Life of Antonius the Monk, confesseth, that he received a Garment made of this from Antonius himself, which he brought with him out of this Country. So that those Trees, which are so much admir'd in the East-Indies, do grow in the Plains of Babylon of their own accord, and are as common as any Trees in the Field. And he farther adds, That there are Palm-trees, which grow naturally over the whole Country. Pliny saith, (r) that the Babylonians cut their Corn twice, and seed it the third Time, or otherwise it would only produce Leaves, and thus a barren Soyl brings forth Profit fifty Fold in the Harvest, and repays the diligent Husbandman an hundred and fifty. Neither is there any great Difficulty in watering it to a considerable Distance. For it may be easily water'd by the Tigris and Euphrates, which makes it very plentiful, and leaves no Mud behind it like the Nile in Egypt. And Quintus Curtius (s) describing this Country, when Alexander came toward it, adds, that as Men travail on the left Island of Arabia, which is so famous for Plenty of sweet Odours, there lies a champion Country between the Tigris and Euphrates, which is so fruitful and fat a Soyl, that they are said to drive the Cattle from the Pasture, lest they should breed Distempers by too much Plenty. And Niger also saith, That the Babylonians cut their Corn twice every Year. And therefore as Lot came with Abraham out of Chaldea or Mesopotamia, so it is probable that this Country was in his Mind, when it was said of him, that (t) Lot lifted up his Eyes, and beheld all the plain of Jordan, that it was well water'd every where, before the LORD destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, even as the garden of the LORD, or as the land of Egypt as thou comest unto Zoar.

7. But the Scituation of Eden as near to the City of Canneh (which was also call'd Chalneb) is still more plain from the Account, which (u) Moses himself gives us of it, who saith, that Nimrod began to be a mighty one in the earth. And he was a mighty hunter after Dominion and Government before the LORD, insomuch that it is said as a common Proverb in the eastern Countries to describe an ambitious and a tyrannical Man, Even as Nimrod the mighty hunter before the LORD. And the beginning of his kingdom was Babel or Babylon and Erech, and Accad and Calneh in the land of Shinar. And out of that land he went forth westward into Assyria, as the Margin of our English Bibles doth rightly express it, and built Nineveh, and the city Rehoboth and Calah, and Resen between Nineveh and Calah: the same is a great City. Here Moses shews the first Composition of the Babylonish Empire, and what Cities and People were subject to Nimrod, as Erech, Accad and Calneh in the Land of Shinar. So that this Valley of Shinar is that Tract of Land, which was afterward call'd Babylonia and Chaldea, and it is still more plain from (x) the Words of Moses, And it came to pass as they journeyed from the east, that they found a plain in the land of Shinar, and they dwelt there, and there they built the Tower of Babel.

8. It is now Time to see what farther Light we can have in this Matter from the Prophet Ezekiel, who saith that (y) Tyrus was a merchant of the People for many isles; and accordingly (z) the merchants of Sheba and Raamah were her merchants, they occupied in her fairs with the chief of all spices, and with all precious stones and gold. Haran and Canneh and Ed'n, the merchants of Shebah, Assur and Chilmad were her merchants. These were her merchants in all sorts of things, in blue cloaths and brodered work, and in chests of rich apparel bound with cords, and made of Cedar among her merchandise. Among these which were concern'd with Tyre (a) Persia is reckon'd as one of the first. And it hath ever been the Custom, (b) that the Persians conveigh'd their Merchandise to Babylon and to those Cities, which were upon the Euphrates and Tigris, and from thence transported them into Syria, and so to a proper Port of the Mediterranean Sea; as in ancient Times the City of Tyre, so since to Tripoly and now to Aleppo, from whence they embarked them at the Port of Alexandretta in the Bay of Ifficus, now call'd Laiazzo. Now the Prophet Ezekiel, in the Description of the Magnificence of Tyre, and of the exceeding great Trade, which it had with all the People of the East, with whom they had Commerce, doth also mention what Commodities every Country yielded. And having counted the several Countries and People, he adds the particular Trades, in which each of them was employ'd. That Arabia felix being a very rich Soil for Cattle, and all the Princes of Kedar, where Flocks were very plenty, (c) traded with her in lambs and rams and goats. That (d) the merchants of Sheba and Raamah were her merchants with chief of all spices, and of all precious stones and gold. Now these are indeed the Riches, which Persia and Arabia felix did afford; and because Sheba and Raamah are those Parts of Arabia, which bordered upon the Sea, call'd The Persian Gulph, therefore did those Nations vend such Spices, sweet Gums and Pearls, which were the Product of their own Country, and having also a Trade with their Neighbours in India, they had from them all Sorts of Spices and Plenty of Gold. The better to convey all these Commodities to that great Market of Tyre, and to receive from them in Exchange the Product of those Countries, and especially such Goods as were brought thither by Sea from Europe, the She- bans or Arabians enter'd by Boats by the Mouth of Tigris, and from the City of Teredon (built or enlarg'd by Nebuchadnezzar, and now call'd Balsara) sent up all those rich Mercandises from thence to Babylon. From thence they went along the great River Euphrates, as far as it bended westward, and afterward by a Branch thereof within three Days Journey of Aleppo, which was formerly call'd Hierapolis, and then they pass'd over Land to Tyre, as they did afterward to Tripoly, and so from thence to Alexandretta. Now the Merchants of Canneh, who were also call'd Schenitæ both by (e) Pliny and (f) Strabo, and whom the Prophet Ezekiel joyns with Eden, inhabited farther up the River, and receiv'd this Trade from Arabia and India, besides those proper Commodities, which they themselves had, and which they receiv'd out of those Parts of Persia, which lay nearest to them. Pliny placeth the Schenitæ upon the River Euphrates, where it begins to be fordable, which is towards the Borders of Syria, and after it ceaseth to be the Bounds of Arabia deserta on the north Side, and where the River Euphrates turns back from the Desert of Palmirena. For those People of Canneh inhabited both the Borders of Euphrates stretching themselves from their own City of Canneh in Shinar westward along the Banks of that River as far as the City of Thapsacus, where Ptolomy also placeth the Foords of Euphrates; and this also agreeth well with the Description of them by Strabo, who saith, That the Merchants, which travail from Syria to Seleucia and Babylon, take their Way by the Schenites. St. Hierome by Canneh understands Seleucia, which is seated upon the Tigris and not far from Euphrates, and which took that Name from Seleucus, who made thereof a most magnificent City. This Seleucia (as Appian and others tell us) was anciently call'd Chalanne, the Name by Time and Mixture of Languages being chang'd from Chalneh or Canneh to Chalanne, of which Name there are two other Cities standing in a Triangle with Seleucia and almost the next to it, viz. Thelbecanneh and Mann-canneh, the one a little to the West of Seleucia, and the other opposite to it, where these Rivers of Tigris and Euphrates are ready to joyn. Which therefore of these the ancient Canneh was (they being all three within the Bounds of the Valley of Shinar) is uncertain; but it is an evident Sign not only of the Importance of the Place, but also of the certain Seat thereof, that so many Cities did retain the Name for so many Ages after, with some Additions for Distinction sake, as is known also to be the Custom of other Countries.

9. As therefore Shinar and Babylonia were the same Country, and Canneh in the Beginning of Nimrod's Greatness, before he had subdu'd any distant Countries, was one Part of his Dominion, and also nam'd by Moses to be in Shinar; so it is evident that Canneh was adjoining to Babylonia, which also the Prophet Ezekiel joyns with Eden, as Merchants who traded with the Tyrians in the same Manner of Merchandise, and consequently as near Neighbours.

10. The next City joyn'd with Eden is Haran, the Place where Abraham sojourn'd. It is call'd Haran in Hebrew and Charran in Greek, especially by the Septuagint and by St. Stephen, who told the Jews (g) that the GOD of glory appeared to our father Abraham when he was in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran. Hence it was call'd Carræ in Latin, and as it lay nearer to Judæa and other Places of Note, and it is frequently mention'd in the Scriptures, as lying in the Road from Mesopotamia to Judæa; so the Situation of it cannot be doubted of. The Roman Authors (h) make it famous for the Death of Craſſus and the Overthrow of his Army there. It only directs us to the Country of Eden, as it lay not far out of the Road from thence to Aleppo and Tyre, and therefore the Merchants of all these Parts could have a better Communication with each other, which is the Reason that Asshur or Assyria is also nam'd, as being the Country, through which they must travel.

11. There are three other Countries also nam'd, viz. Sheba, Raamah and Chilmad. Concerning these we may observe, that Moses tells us, (i) that the Sons of Ham were Cush and Misraim and Phut and Canaan. And the Sons of Cush were Seba and Havilah and Sabtah, and Raamah and Sabtecha. And the Sons of Raamah were Sheba and Dedan. And Cush begat Nimrod. Now there were four Nations, which had the Name of Seba or Sheba, which they took from the Name of their first Founder, according as Moses mentions them. The first of them was Seba the (k) Son of Cush and Grandson of Ham, whose Name is written in Hebrew with a Samech, and all the Rest with a Shin. The second was Sheba the (l) the Son of Raamah or Rhegma. The third was the (m) Son of Jocktan the Son of Shem; and the fourth was (n) a Grandson of Abraham by his Son Jockshan. The first and the second were seated by the Persian Sea, and the third near the Red-Sea, from whence came the Queen of Sheba to visit Solomon; and the fourth were seated in the very Entrance of Arabia felix, as Strabo tells us, who saith, that they and the Nabatei were the very next People to Syria, and were wont to make Excursions upon their Neighbours, as they did upon Job, whilst the rest were a People giv'n to Trade. The Sheba which the Prophet Ezekiel mentions, was the second of these, or the Son of Raamah, because he joyns them both together; as they lay contiguous to one another, and carried on a Trade to Babylon, and so to Tyre. At the Dispersion from Babylon (o) Raamah or Rhegma took that Part of the Country which adjoin'd to Shinar on the North Side, and to the Persian Gulf on the South Side, which was afterwards call'd Raamah and Sheba from the Father and the Son, who possess'd it. So that Sheba was that Tract of the Country, which parted Arabia deserta from Arabia felix, and which joyn'd to the Sea, where the Tigris and Euphrates fall out, and render themselves to the Ocean. This Part and the neighbouring Country Strabo (p) calls Catubria, where the best Myrrhe and Frankincense is gather'd, and this People have an Interchange of Trade with Elana lying on the East side of the Persian Gulf. By this it appears, who were the Sabeans spoken of by the Prophet Ezekiel, and said to have been the Merchants of Tyre for Gold and Spices and precious Stones, of which they had not only Plenty of their own, but were also furnish'd from that Part of India call'd Elana for Exchange of their Aromaticks and other proper Commodities. For (saith Strabo) Eratosthenes affirms, that in the Beginning of the Persian Gulf there is an Island, in which there are many precious Pearls bred, and in others very clear and shining Stones.

12. These People of Sheba the Prophet Ezekiel names with those of Eden, because they inhabited upon the Outlet of the same River, upon which the Children of Eden were plac'd; and so those of Sheba toward the Sea Coast and upon it, pass'd up the Country by Tigris and Euphrates, being joyn'd in one main Stream, and so through the Country of Eden, which was bounded on one Side by Tigris, thereby the better to convey their Merchandise toward Tyre. And as the Cities of Haran and Canneh lie on the West and North West Sides of Eden; so is Raamah and Sheba on the South, and Chilmad on the North East. For Chilmad is a Country in the upper Media, as appears by the Chaldee Paraphrase, which Country by the Geographers is call'd Choromitena, by the Change of L into R, which Alteration the Likeness of Letters doth often produce in such Words, as are out of the Hebrew into the Chaldee Language.

13. Thus have we found out the Country of Eden by the neighbouring Countries, which lie round it. To this may be added, that the Name of Eden is also found in Places near those Parts. In the two Epistles sent to the Pope by the Nestorian Christians, which inhabited Mesopotamia in the Year 1552, they speaking of the Island of Eden in the River Tigris, or at least Tigris in both of these Epistles is call'd The River of Eden. Masius, who translated these Epistles into Latin, saith in his Preface, that it is commonly call'd Gozoria, and it is ten Miles in Circuit, and was sometimes wall'd round about. And that above the River not far beyond this Island, there is the City of Hazan Cepha or The Strong Rock, and that below it, it hath the City of Mosel, which is not above twelve Miles distant from it. The Arabians describe it thus, That it is the Name of a City and a Country, which joyns Mesopotamia and Babylonia (situate on the Eastern Bank of Tigris, to which Ninreth is opposite in the East, and hence the whole Country of Mesopotamia in the Arabick Language is call'd مصر or Mausel.

13. Besides, other Authors make mention of the City of Adana upon the Euphrates; and the Name of Eden was in the Time of Amos, tho' he speaks not of Eden in the East, but of the Eden in Celofyria; And tho' it is certain that none of these Places was the very Place of Paradise; yet it plainly shews the Opinion of the Men in the East and in ancient Times, that Eden and Paradise were in those Parts, and therefore they give this Name to such Cities, on purpose to bring the Travellers thither to spend their Money, and to report when they came Home, that they had seen the Place where the Garden of Eden anciently stood.

14. As therefore we are come so near to the Garden of Paradise by the Help of other Guides; so by the Description, which Moses gives us (q) we may find the Place with a greater Certainty. He saith, that the LORD GOD planted a garden eastward either from the Land of Canaan, or from the Place, where Moses tarried, when he wrote this Book, as Babylonia is known to be, and there he put the man, whom he had formed. And out of the ground made the LORD GOD to grow every tree, that it is pleasant to the sight and good for food. It was in a most pleasant Country, where there naturally grew the greatest Variety of the choicest Plants, Flowers and Fruits to gratify at once the Sight, Taste and Smell. And such a Country Babylonia was. And there were Rivers, by which it was well water'd, and of which there was a great Plenty in those Parts. And a river went out of Eden to water the garden, and from thence it was parted, and became into four heads. (r) These Words afford us such a Key to open to us the Place, where this Garden was planted, that one can scarce doubt whereabout it was. For the Garden lay in the Country of Eden, and we are directed to find that out by this remarkable Circumstance, that a river went out of it. Which doth not signify, that the Spring of the River was in Eden, but that the River ran through that Country into the Garden to water it. The Garden therefore was a Part of the Province of Eden, and was water'd by that River, which came from it. The only Difficulty is to find what River this was. Now there is a River on the east side of Babylon running from North to South, which is sometimes call'd Phasitigris, or by a compounded Word Phison and Tigris, on the North Part, where the two great Rivers Tigris or Hiddekel and Euphrates joyn, and so make this one great River; and afterward on the South Part, it is divided into two other Rivers, namely Pison, and the other call'd Gihon, which both empty themselves into the Persian Gulf, and these will appear to be the Rivers, which Moses mentions, and which ran along to water the Garden. Now it may be observ'd, that Moses doth not say, that this River runs through the Garden, neither is it probable, that our first Parents at that Time could go from one Side of it to the other, but only that the River ran to water the Garden, which might effectually be done if it ran on one Side of it, and Channels might be commodiously cut from thence into other Parts for that Purpose. So that the only remaining Difficulty is, Whether the Garden lay on the East or the West of this River. And that it lay to the Eastern Part of it is evident from Moses's own Words (s). When our first Parents were driven out of Paradise GOD placed at the east of the garden of Eden cherubims, to keep them from returning back again. But had the Garden been on the west Side of the River, the Cherubims must have been plac'd on the west Side of the Garden for this Purpose, or if he had gone over the River, there would have been no need to place any Cherubims there at all, since the River alone would have prevented his Return. And that which renders this the more certain is, that this River for its Breadth, Depth, and rapid Stream, occasion'd by the joyning of so many Rivers which ran into it, excelling the Rhine or the Danube, must needs have hinder'd our first Parents from going out of the Garden eastward, if they had had their Habitation in the western Part of it, since they had neither Bridge nor Boat to cross over the River, as having not the least occasion for either. (t) It is said that after Cain went forth from the Presence of the LORD he dwelt in the land of Nod on the east of Eden. But if Adam had liv'd westward of it, and had been driv'n westward out of it, which then must have been the only Way that he could have gone, Cain could not have gone to the east of Eden, without passing through Eden it self; and we cannot but suppose, that in such a Case he would have settled in that Country without crossing so dangerous a River to seek for unknown, and both less pleasant and less fruitful Habitations.

15. And now it is very easy to comment on these Words of Moses, when he describes the Scituation of Paradise. A river went out of Eden to water this garden, and so ran along the west Side of it, and Part of the Work, which Adam and Eve was employ'd in, was to cut Ditches and Channels from this River for this Purpose. And from thence, that is, above and below this Garden it was parted, and became into four heads, two above the Garden on the North Side, and two below it on the South Side. Here Moses doth not mean Springs, for they are not said to be parted from Rivers, but from Mountains and other Places, where they begin, and to run into Rivers, Lakes or the Main Ocean; but he only speaks of the Beginning of their Division from this first grand Stream, and which we commonly call the Mouth of a River, or according to the Eastern Phrase the Head of the River. If the Beginning of the Water be out of a Fountain, then is the Fountain tak'n for the Head; if it is out of a Lake, then the Lake is tak'n for the Head; and if any Branch is separated and divided from a main River, then where that Branch doth first bound itself with new Banks, that Part of the River where the Branch forsakes the Main Stream, is call'd the Head of that River. So that tho' we have no Accounts of the Eastern Bounds of Paradise, yet it was bounded on the West by a long River, it extended it self southward to the Place, where this River parts it self into two others, and on the North to the Place where two Rivers unite and so make this one. And of these four Rivers,

16. The Name of the first is Pison. This is that Branch which runs westerly, and being nearer than the second to the Place where Moses wrote on the other Side of Jordan is first mention'd by him. It is call'd (u) Phison by the Son of Sirach. It is a long Time since both this River and Gikon, which is the next, have lost these Names; for the Greek and Roman Writers call them still after their Parting by the Name of Euphrates and Tigris, which were the Names that they had before they met. However Xenophon calls it Physeus, in which the Name of Physon is plainly retain'd, and which continu'd 'till the Time of Alexander the Great. For Quintus Curtius commonly calls the Tigris it self by the Name of Phasis, and saith, that it was so call'd by the Inhabitants thereabout. This in all Probability was at first the Name of this other River Pison, tho' in length of Time the Name was extended beyond what is meant at first. However we need not be at a Loss in finding out this River, since Moses tells us, that this is the same River, that compasseth the whole land of Havilah, and therefore if we know where this Country was, we certainly know the River Pison, which encompasseth it on one Side. Now there is a Country of this Name, which stretcheth it self from La ybute and so on Southward into that Part of Arabia felix which borders upon this Stream. There (as Bochartus (x) observe.) Pliny call'd Cacaelai. Eratosthenes in Strabo saith, (y) that the Nabataei, Chaulotæi and the Agariæ lay near to Arabia felix from the City of the Heroes as far as Babylon, and in Dionysius they are plac'd in the same order. But that which makes it more plain is, that the Isbmaelites (who inhabited Arabia deserta) are (z) describ'd by Moses that they dwelt from Havilah as thou goest toward Assyria, unto Skur, that is before Egypt, גורלן scilicet ויפול. And his lot fell, or when (a) Abraham sent him to take a Possession in the East Country, the Lot which fell to him happen'd to be near or in the presence of all his brethren, the Sons of Abraham by Keiurab. And Saul in after Times found them in the same Scituation, when (b) he smote the Amalekites from Havilah, until thou comest to Skur, which is over against Egypt. So that they were bounded by Euphrates on the North and by the River on the East. This is also a Country, where there is Gold. For nothing is more famous than the Gold of Arabia, where Diodorus Siculus (c) saith, that it is digg'd up in great Lumps, as big as a Chestnut. And the gold of that land is good. It is very excellent. For the abovemention'd Author saith, that it is of such a flaming Colour, that it adds much to the Lustre of the precious Stones, that are set in it. There is Bdelium. This most probably is a Pearl; and as Part of Havilah contains some Part of Arabia, which lies toward the Persian Gulph; so it is observable that at Catipha there was a great fishing for Pearl. The Manna also wherewith the Israelites were fed in the Wilderness is describ'd (d) to be round like the Coriander Seed, and of the Colour of Bdelium, and in another Description of it Moses (e) tells us, that it was white; so that it was of the Shape and Colour of Pearls. There is also the Onyx Stone. Some reckon the Hebrew Word to signify the Sardonyx. But let it be which it will (f) we are told, that that Part of the Country was famous for both.

17. The name of the second river is Gihon. There are no Footsteps of this Name, which have been yet discover'd by learned Men; but we are directed to find it out by the Country, which it is said to compass. For this is the same River that compasseth the whole land of Ethiopia, or rather, as it is in the Hebrew, the whole land of Cush according as it was scituated in the Time of Moses. Many People mistaking Cush for Ethiopia have look'd upon this River to be the River Nilus in Egypt, and mistaking Havilah for that Part of the East-Indies have look'd upon Pison to be the Ganges; but this is to make the Garden of Eden to contain the greatest Part of Asia and Part of Africa, and so it could not be describ'd by any Rivers at all as parting from it, or it might have been describ'd by hundreds more. But this is so wild an Imagination, as to deserve no Confutation. There was another Country call'd Cush, which without Doubt was (g) plac'd in Arabia near the Red-sea, in the South Part of Judæa, and in the Road from thence to Egypt, in which there are several Rivers, as Besor, which runs into the Mediterranean Sea, Rhinocorura, which runs into the Sorbonian Lake, and Cotys, by which Cambyfes came from Babylon into Egypt, and was also so near the Midianites, as to be joyn'd with them by (h) the Prophet, who said, I saw the tents of Cushan, or Cush in affliction, and the curtains of the land of Midian did tremble. Of this the Prophet Isaiak speaks thus. (i) Wo to the land of Egypt shadowing with wings, where there are many Ships which spread their Sails like Wings, and which is beyond the rivers of Cush, as Egypt really was, tho' not beyond the Rivers of Ethiopia, but rather on this Side of them. It was (k) this Kingdom, which Tirhakah was King of, when he came out against Senacherib King of Assyria after he had departed from Lachish, and was warring against Libnah. It was (l) this Kingdom of Cush, which Zera was King of, when he came up against Asa King of Judah with a very great Army, and with three hundred Chariots, which had been impossible for either of them to have done, if they had been Kings of Ethiopia, unless they had conquer'd and overran Egypt, which lay in their Way. Besides we are also told, (m) that when Asa had vanquish'd this Zera and all his Army, he pursu'd them unto Gerar and sinote and spoil'd all their cities, which were round about Gerar, which City all allow to be plac'd in Arabia Petraea and near the South Part of Judæa. And when the Prophet Ezekiel threaten'd an utter Destruction to Egypt, he said (n) I will make the land of Egypt utterly wast and desolate, from the tower of Syene, which stood upon the Nile in the West Part of Egypt, not even to the borders of Ethiopia, which were adjacent to it, but even to the Borders of Cush, as it is in the Hebrew, which lay on the Red-sea toward the Eastern or opposite Part of the same Country. But tho' this Country was thus call'd in later Ages, yet it is most probable, that it was not so call'd in the Time of Moses, because in all his History of the Travels of the Patriarchs into Egypt, or of the Children of *Israel*s going out from thence the Name of this Country is not once mention'd. We must therefore seek for it nearer to Babylon, and especially nearer to the River Pison. And we must also seek for the ancient Country of Cush among the rest of his Brethren, and especially near to his Son Havilah, whose Families lay on the West Side of the River Pison. Accordingly, Sir Walter Raleigh finds a Place call'd Chaduca or Chusca on the West Side of the River Gihon, which I take to be the Reason that made him mistake one of these Rivers for the other, and it is very probable, that this was the ancient Seat of Cush among his Children. But when Joktan and his eleven Sons seated themselves in Arabia deserta, or when Abraham had sent Ishmael and his Children by Keturah, to (o) take Possession of those Countries, and had by this Means streighten'd the ancient Inhabitants, or rather when Nimrod the Son of Cush began the Assyrian Monarchy, and went out from Babel, and built (p) Erec or Arecca on the East Side of the River Phison among the Posterity of Shem, and Accad also in the Country of Sittacene to secure his Interest on that Side, and Chalne on the Northern Parts of Babylonia, and went forward into Assyria to distress another Branch of Shem's Family, and there built Nineveh and other Cities to secure his Conquests, that then Cush his Father, willing to secure what his Son had gotten, went with some of his Family to the other Side of Gihon, and seated themselves in the Champion Country round about Erec or Arecca, and thus it happen'd that the Name of Cush was soon lost in Babylonia or Chaldea, but retain'd in Elam or Persia. Tho' therefore there are no Footsteps of the Name of the River Gihon remaining in that Country, as yet found out by learned Men; yet we are directed by the Country (which it is said to compass or exclude from the rest of Ham's Posterity, and the Western Parts of Asia) to take it to be the Eastern Stream, which arose from the Parting of the Euphrates and Tigris, as Pison was the Western. This therefore is the River, which runneth along by the whole land of Ethiopia or Cush, who in this Manner happen'd to be seated more eastward than the Rest of his Sons Havilah, Sheba and (q) the rest, upon the Borders of this River. For as when People began to spread themselves they first kept as near to great Rivers as they could, for the better Communication one with another; so there was a greater Necessity for Cush to do the same, that in Case he should be attack'd by the Posterity of Elam, in order to regain the Country which was unjustly taken from them by his Son Nimrod, the rest of his Children might be at hand to afford him sufficient Succour and Assistance in due Time. It is therefore probable that he gave that Name to the Country of Susiana, which the Greeks call Kiosia Cissia, and it is now call'd by the Persians Chuzestan or the Province of Cush. So that here we must seek for this River Gihon, and here we can find none, which can claim the least Pretence to it, except that which is already mention'd.

18. And the name of the third river is Hiddekel. This River is call'd by Daniel (q) the great River Hiddekel, and it can be no other than the Tigris itself, which (as Pliny saith) was call'd Diglito in those Parts, where its Course was slow, and where it began to be rapid, it took the Name of Tigris. And the Arabians call this River دجلة from the Hebrew Word Hiddekel, as they do in the Version of (r) this Text of Moses, and (s) in other Places. And Rauwolf in his Travels, (t) saith, That when he was at Carach in the Confines of Media (which was something more than an hundred Years ago) Tigris was then call'd Hiddekel in their Language. However, it is farther describ'd, by its going before Assyria. The Hebrew Word קדמת which we translate toward the east may only signify over against as deriv'd from קד before; and the Septuagint, who knew best the Situation of the Country and the Nature of the Language, only renders it by κατέναντι τῆς Ἀσσυρίας over against, or before Assyria. And it is certain, that Tigris did run before Assyria, for Nineveh the chief City of that Country did stand upon the East Side of that River. And if we consider the Place where Moses wrote, there was no going from thence into Assyria without crossing first the Tigris, which ran along before it. So that the Situation of Hiddekel exactly agreeing with Tigris, it seems past all Doubt, that these are two different Names for the same River.

19. And the fourth river is Euphrates. There is no Doubt, but that the River, which is call'd in the Hebrew Pherath is the same which hath for many Ages been call'd Euphrates. This lay the nearest to Judea, and the Course of it was so well known in those Days, that Moses did not think it necessary to describe it. This and the Tigris sprung out of one Mountain, viz. Niphates in Armenia, Tigris springing out of the Southern Part, and Euphrates out of the Northern Part, where they turn about and hold different Courses, Tigris running by the North Part of Mesopotamia and Euphrates by the South Part, from the Course of which Rivers the Country took its Name, as lying in the Middle between them; and so Euphrates run along not only by Babylon, but also in another Stream to the Northward of it, until it was joyn'd with the River Tigris opposite to the North Part of the Garden of Paradise.

20. From hence it is evident, that there were Mountains and Rivers before the Flood, and consequently that the Earth was not perfectly round before the Creation, nor the Flood occasion'd by the breaking in of the Plain Superficies, and letting out an Inundation of Waters, as some have imagin'd. The same Rivers, which point out to us the Bounds of Paradise at the Creation, remain'd in the very same Places after the Flood. There is no Doubt, but it was a great Comfort to Noah, and that (u) it is mention'd by Moses as such, that after a long Fatigue, when the Ark swam upon the Waters, at last, the tops of the Mountains were seen; but if he had not known that they were Mountains (and he could have known it, if he had not seen such before) it could have been no Satisfaction, but rather a Surprise. The Flood is (x) thus describ'd, that the rain was upon the earth forty days and forty nights, and the waters increased accordingly, first to cover the earth, then the ark swam upon the face of the waters, then all the high hills which were under the whole heaven were covered, and after that the Waters were fifteen cubits higher than the highest Mountains; and this would be a strange Description, if there had been no such Thing before. Besides Solomon speaking of the eternal Son of GOD, and his having an Existence before the Creation of the World, describes it thus, (y) I was set up from everlasting, from the beginning, or ever the earth was. When there were no depths I was brought forth, when there were no fountains abounding with water. Before the mountains were settled, before the hills was I brought forth. When he had not as yet made the Earth, nor the fields, nor the highest part of the dust of the world. When he prepared the heaven I was there: when he set a compass upon the face of the depth. When he established the clouds above: when he strengthened the fountains of the deep. When he gave to the sea his decree, that the waters should not pass his commandment; When he appointed the foundations of the earth; Then I was by him, as one brought up with him; and I was daily his delight, rejoicing always before him. And all this plainly shews, that the Heavens, the Earth, the Seas, the Mountains, and the Hills were all created at the same Time. And therefore as on the third Day of the Creation (z) the waters of the Earth were gathered together into one place, and the dry land did appear, and accordingly GOD called the dry land earth, and the gathering together of the waters he called seas; so the other main Parts of the Earth were plac'd at the same Time in the same Order, in which we now behold them.

21. Lastly, What hath been said in this Chapter, will also help to explain that (a) remarkable Passage of Moses concerning the Habitation of Cain and his Posterity. And Cain went out not voluntarily, but by the Force of the Divine Curse from the presence of the LORD, from the Family of Seth and from those People in whom the true Worship of GOD continu'd, and to whom he frequently appear'd in a gracious Manner; and he dwelt in the land of Nod. He dwelt as a Stranger in the Country, which had the Name of Nod from his wandering up and down like a Vagabond, restless and moveable from one Part to another for a considerable Time. This Country lay on the east of Eden. He still went on Eastward from that Country where Adam was settled, when he was thrust out of Paradise. Adam did not go far from thence, having a longing desire to return thither again, insomuch that the Cherubims were plac'd by divine Providence to keep him out. Cain went farther into that Tract of Ground where the Nomades afterward dwelt, or rather into that Part, which was call'd Susiana, and at this Day Susan. And Cain knew his wife, and she conceiv'd and bare Enoch, and he builded a city, and call'd it after the name of his son Enoch. Who this Wife was when Cain married her is not particularly mention'd. It is probable, that he was marry'd to her before the murder of Abel, because afterward every one would abhor the Thoughts of being so nearly related to such a Murderer, to one who was accurs'd of GOD, and condemn'd accordingly to be a Fugitive and a Vagabond. It is also most probable that she was his Sister by our first Parents Adam and Eve, and not one of their Grandchildren, because they were the (b) Parents of all living, and besides those whose Names are mention'd in Scripture, they had (c) several sons and daughters, and it is usual and most agreeable to marry with Persons of near an equal Age; neither can we suppose that any would be long in a single State, when there were so few Persons in the World, and they had so lately a particular Command from GOD to increase and multiply that so they might replenish the Earth and subdue it. However, she conceived and bare Enoch. As this Name signifies a Dedication, so we may conclude that he was born at the Time, when Cain fell off to Idolatry, and dedicated the Plants and Fruits of the Earth to the Sun, which was at the same Time that Enosh the Son of Seth was born, whose Name signifies sorrowful, because then Men began to call other things by the name of the LORD, and to ascribe unto Stocks and Stones or other insensible Creatures, the incommunicable Name: And as this was in the two hundred and thirty sixth Year of the World; so by this Time the Posterity of Cain became very Populous, insomuch, that he builded a city and called it by the name of his Son Enoch. It may reasonably be presum'd, that the City of Shusan or Susan was afterwards built upon the Ruins of this City, where there was the Royal Palace of the Kings of Persia, and from whence the whole Province was call'd Susiana, because it lay Eastward from the Garden of Eden upon the River Eleus call'd (d) Eulai by Daniel, and where Cain was stopt in his Flight from the Presence of the LORD, that he could go no farther. And indeed when People first began to spread themselves, they built their Cities as near to great Rivers as they could for the better Communication one with another and for affording mutual Succour, and especially where they could not want Water, and where for this Reason the Earth was much more fruitful than in the dry and barren Wilderness. Thus Babylon was built on the Euphrates, Nineveh and Calneh upon the Tigris, and Erech upon Pison, and it may be observ'd even in our Modern Maps of barren Countries, that all the Cities and Towns are plac'd near to remarkable Rivers.

THE Place where Noah and his Family built the Ark, was (a) most probably in the Land of Shinar, near the River Tigris on the North-east Side of Babylon. For as it is evident from the Description of Paradise in the former Chapter, that our first Parents inhabited in these Parts, so it may be supposed that these Parts of the World were first peopled, and fill'd with Inhabitants, before they went farther. As (b) the Ark rested upon the Mountains of Ararat about four or five hundred Miles to the east north east of Baby-

(a) Bocharti Phaleg. lib. 1. cap. 4. (b) As Cyparission, where the Ark was built, was about the Longitude from London of  $59^{\circ} 24'$  and the Mountain of Ararat was in the Longitude of  $68^{\circ} 34'$ ; so the Difference of Longitude is  $9^{\circ} 10'$ . And as Cyparission lay in the Latitude of  $36^{\circ} 30'$ , and the Course of the Ark is suppos'd to be North East, until it came to the Longitude of Ararat; so supposing it went in the Arch of a great Circle, and its Departure from the Meridian was  $45^{\circ}$ , its Course and utmost Latitude may be measur'd by Spherical Trigonometry thus. In a Triangle, whose three Sides are the Course of the Ark, the Distance of Cyparission and of the utmost North Latitude of the Ark from the Pole, or the Complement of the Latitude of each, there is given, First, the Complement of the Latitude of Cyparission  $53^{\circ} 40'$ . Secondly, the Distance of the Course from the Meridian or  $45^{\circ}$ . Thirdly, the Angle at the Pole, or the Difference of Longitude  $9^{\circ} 10'$ . and therefore by the 4th Case of oblique angl'd spherical Triangles, the nearest Distance of the Ark from the Pole is  $47^{\circ} 16'$  or in the Latitude of  $42^{\circ} 44'$  in the Longitude of Ararat, which happens to be over the Caspian Sea, and the Length of the Course, as the Ark went North East was  $9^{\circ} 32'$ . And as it appears by the late Observations of Monsieur Cassini, that the Circumference of the Earth is 24930 English Miles; so the Ark in the 40 first Days went 626 Miles, which is at the Rate of  $15 \frac{1}{2}$  Miles in a Day. And as it came with a South Course to the Mountain of Ararat, so by subtracting the Latitude of Ararat or  $36^{\circ} 30'$ , from the utmost North Latitude  $42^{\circ} 44'$ , the Distance from thence is  $6^{\circ} 14'$  or 430 English Miles which the Ark went in the other 110 Days, which was at the Rate of  $3 \frac{1}{11}$  Miles in a Day.

lon, and was made in the Form of a great Chest, three hundred Cubits long, fifty Cubits broad and thirty Cubits high, and drew fifteen Cubits of Water, without either Keel to cut the Waves, or Rudder to guide it, or Sails to take the Advantage of the Wind, so it lay floating like a great Log upon the Water, and could not go far, but only mov'd as the Winds and especially the Stream did drive it, which we may reasonably allow one Day with another to be about fifteen Miles and a half in a Day until it went to the Latitude of 42<sup>d</sup>. 44'. But as (b) the waters prevailed upon the earth an hundred and fifty days, and as before the End of those Days, GOD (c) was pleas'd to send a North wind to pass over the earth and assuage the waters; so this North wind must bring the Ark back again southwardly in a slower Motion, of less than four Miles in a Day, until it struck upon the Top of one of those Mountains and so landed. Now the Flood is thus describ'd, (d) that the Fountains of the great deep were broken up, that is, the Waters made a great Incurfion upon the Land from the Persian Ocean, which lay South of Babylon and nearer to it, and therefore came from thence in great Quantities, as it did from the Mediterranean Sea, which also lay West from Babylon at near an equal Distance, and made another Inundation. And as these Inundations might have been equal, so the Stream must have gone North east after they had met together. Besides this, Moses tells us, (e) that at the same Time the windows of heaven were opened, And the rain was upon the earth forty days and forty nights. There is no Reason to doubt, but that also during this Space of Time there might be a very brisk if not a stormy South, or South westerly, or West Wind, which might be instrumental to drive the Ark the farther into the contrary Quarter. It is easy to observe, that when the Wind is South, or between that and the West it usually brings Rain, and that all violent Storms come from the South west. The tempestuous Wind call'd (f) Euroclydon, is what the Seamen which sail in the Mediterranean Sea, call a Levant Wind, which blows either from the South or West, and its Name seems to be tak'n, because Τὸν ἑυρον κλύζει it washes the east, and consequently begins from the opposite Quarter. This occasion'd a most violent Tempest when St. Paul sail'd to Italy, that neither sun nor stars appear'd for many days. And it is more plain that it was such a Wind, because it was contrary to their Design and (g) Purpose, when they design'd to sail from Crete to Italy. It was a common Observation in those Countries, that when (h)

they saw a cloud rise out of the west (which was afterward brought to them by a West wind) they presently and rightly concluded, that Rain would follow. So that the Course of the Ark tho' slow, must be toward the North East, because (as we usually say) both the Wind and Tide would drive it that Way, and therefore it must come from the contrary Quarter, and not far from the Place where Babylon is situated.

2. To this the most ancient Writers, Berosus, Abydenus and Polyhistor do agree, who say, that Xisuthrus by which they meant Noah, sail'd from Assyria into Ararat, as appear'd from the public Writings deposited at Heliopolis in Sippara. This Sippara was a Town between Naardes and Seleucia upon the Euphrates in the Neighbourhood of Babylon, and took its Name from the Chaldee Word ספריא or the Books and Writings, which were there preserved. It is not improbable, that when Ham and Japhet came with their Offspring to Babylon, they might endeavour to record the History of the former Times, and especially of what had been transacted in the same Country, and from thence these ancient Historians might have their first Notions. We find, that there were exact Records kept at Berytus by Mizraim the Son of Ham, and after that by Thoth the Son of Misraim. The Persian Monarchy took a particular Care to have every thing remarkable recorded soon (i) after the Facts were done, and (k) kept in Achmetha or a Chest in the Palace for their greater Security, and why should we doubt but that the Assyrian Monarchy might also take the same Method? When Caleb (l) took Debir, it is said, that the name of Debir before was Kirjath Sepher, the City of Books or Records, and the Chaldee Paraphrase calls it in both Places Kirjath Arche, (m) or The City of Records or Archives. And if we may allow the (n) Arabick Language to be of any Weight in this Case it must signify such Records as began the History from some remarkable Æra, as from the Creation of the World, from Noah's Flood, or the building of Babylon, and was continu'd down to successive Ages.

3. To this may be added (o) that Noah was commanded by GOD (p) to make him an ark of Gopher wood. The (q) Word in the Hebrew Language seems to imply that the Wood was of a bituminous or pitchy Nature, and consequently more capable of resisting Wet or Moisture; and St. Chrysostome particularly calls it (r) ξύλα τετραγώνα ἀσπίλα, square Wood not liable to rot. The learned (s) Fuller rightly concludes it to be the Cypress from the Affinity of the Word. For Cypress in Greek is κυπάρισσος, from whence if the Termination is taken away Cuphar or Gopher consists of such Letters, as are often chang'd into each other. Neither is there any other Wood less subject to Rottenness and Worms than this is, as all Writers do allow. Pliny (t) saith, that the Cypress Wood is not sensible of Rottenness or Age. That it will never split nor cleave asunder, except by Force, and that no Worm will touch it, because it hath a peculiar bitter Taste. And therefore Plato advis'd, that all Records, which were to be preserv'd for the Benefit of future Generations should be written upon Tables of Cypress. Martial (u) saith, that it will last for an hundred Ages and never decay. Thucydides (x) saith, that the Chests were made of Cypress, in which the Athenians carry'd away the Bones of those, who died in War for their Country, and the Scholiast gives this Reason for it, because it would never decay. And the Pythagoreans abstain'd from making Coffins of Cypress, because they certainly concluded, that the Scepter of Jupiter was made of this Tree. And no Reason can be assign'd for such a Fiction among the Poets, but because it was the fittest Resemblance of that eternal Power and Authority, which they attributed to him. Theophrastus (†) speaking of those Trees, which are least subject to decay, adds this as a Conclusion, that the Cypress Tree seems to be most durable of all, and that the folding Doors of the Temple of Ephesus being made thereof, had lasted without Damage for four Generations. In this Pliny (z) is more particular, and saith, that these Doors were made of Cypress, and they had lasted 'till his Time, which, he saith, was near four hundred Years, and still look'd as if they were new. And Vitruvius (a) speaks both of the Cypress and the Pine Tree, That they kept for a long Time without the least Defect, because the Sap, which is in every Part of the Wood, hath a peculiar bitter Taste, and is so very offensive, that no Worm or other consuming Animal will touch it. He also tells us, that such Works, as are made of such Wood, will last for ever. And therefore (b) he advises, that the Beams of all Chambers should especially be made of Cypress Wood, because such as were made of Fir, were soon consum'd by the Worm and Rottenness.

4. And as it was such a lasting Wood, so it was also very fit for the Building of Ships. Peter Martyr of Angloria (c), as he is cited by (d) the learned Fuller, saith, that the Inhabitants of Crete had their Cypress Trees so common, that they made the Beams of all their Houses, their Rafters, their Rooms and Floors and also their Ships of this Wood. Plutarch (e) saith, that the Ship-carpenter in the first Place useth the Pine from Isthmus, and the Cypress from Crete. And Vegetius (f) adds, that the Gal-lies are built chiefly of the Cypress, and the Pine Tree, or of the Larch and Fir. And in the Epistle of Theodoricus (g) to Abundantius the Prefect, in which he gives him a Commission to build a thousand Barks for fetching Provisions or Bread-Corn, he commands him to enquire throughout all Italy of proper Artists for Wood fit for such a Work, and wherever he should find the Cypress or Pine Trees near the Shore, that he should buy them at a reasonable Price. Neither was it thus only in Crete and Italy, but Diodorus (h) proves, that in Phœnicia there was Timber sufficient to build Ships, because Libanus near Tripoly, and Byblus and Sidon were full of Cedar Trees, and Larch Trees, and Cypress Trees, which were very admirable for Shew and Greatness. And Plato (i) among the Trees which were fit for Ship-carpenters to use, places the Cypress next to the Pine and the Larch Tree. And even in later Years, we are told, (k) that the Saracens did hasten from Alexandria to Phœnicia to cut down the Cypress Wood, and fit it for the Use of the Ships.

5 And as the Cypress Tree was so very fit for this Use; so it grew in great Plenty in Assyria and Babylonia. And therefore (l) Arrianus and (m) Strabo speak particularly of it, and that the numerous Fleet, which Alexander the Great built in those Parts, was made of the Cypress, which he cut down, and which grew in Babylonia. For there was, as they say, a great Plenty of these Trees in Assyria, and that they had no other Wood in that Country, which was fit for such a Purpose.

6. And as it is common in the Hebrew to give Names to Places from the Things, which grew plentifully in them (thus אלון Elon was so call'd from the Oakes, בַּכָּה Baca from the Mulberry Trees, שִׁטִּים Shittim from the Thorns, רִמּוֹן Rimmon from the Pomgranate Trees, and תְּמָר Thamar and דִּקְלָה Diklah from the Palm Trees) so it is not improbable, that the Place, where these Trees grew, might by call'd Gopher from the great Number of Cypress Trees, which grew there. Now Strabo (n) tells us, that there is a Place in Assyria call'd Cyparissos, which he describes in these Words. About Arbela is the City Demetrias. After this there is the Fountain of Naphtha, and a burning Lake or Mountain, and the Temple of Anaxa, and Sadracæ the Palace of Darius the Son of Hyaspis and Cyparissos, and the Bridge or Gate of Caprus, and these Places do belong to Seleucia and Babylonia. At these Bridges were Gates, which were call'd The Gates of the Rivers, and near them strong Fortifications to secure the Passages. Thus Herodotus saith, (o) That the River Halys rakes in Phrygia, and near to it there were Gates, through which there was a Necessity for those to pass, who would go over the River, near which River there was also a Fort. Such Gates there were near to Nineveh, and the Prophet Nahum seems (p) to describe them, when he prophecies of the fearful and victorious Armies which should come against it in these Words, The gates of the rivers shall be opened, and the palace or Fort shall be dissolved. Such a Bridge there was over the River Caprus, and probably many more over the Tigris and Euphrates near to Babylon, to open a free Commerce in Time of Peace, with sufficient Forts to secure the Country in Time of War; and in this Place the Cypress Trees might be cut down for the Building of the Ark, and others might be brought thither from the Banks of Caprus and Tigris for the same Purpose.

7. From hence we may observe the Course, which the Ark took in the Time of the Deluge. The Inundations of the Mediterranean and the Persick Ocean together with the South West Winds drove it North West, whilst the Flood continu'd; and when the Flood abated, the North Wind brought it back again, until it landed on the Mount of Caucasus. And here we may admire the Providence of GOD in causing the Waters to be soon at their Height and so slow in abating. They were at the Highest in the Space of forty Days, but Noah was a full Solar Year in the Ark before the Earth was habitable. Now GOD could have made the Waters to abate as fast as they increas'd, but he would not. It was an hundred and fifty Days in all, or an hundred and ten Days after the Waters were at the highest before the Ark landed, when it drew but fifteen Cubits of Water; and seventy three Days after that, before the Waters were so abated as to make the Tops of the Mountains seen, which might be equally high with that, on which the Ark rested. But it so happen'd, that the Ark went farther in the forty Days of the Flood, than in the hundred and ten Days afterward, because a swift Stream carried them Northward, and perhaps there was only the Benefit of the Wind to bring them back, lest if the Passages of the great Deep had been open'd to let in the Water, as they were open'd to let it out, either the Ark might have been broken to pieces at its Landing, and the living Creatures which were in it, might have been terribly affrighted if not bruised or kill'd by such a violent Concussion; but by such a slow Returning to the Place of Landing they were all preserv'd safe and sound.

8. Lastly, We may also observe a probable Reason, why the Posterity of Noah at their Dispersion fix'd at Babylon and did not go farther to the particular Places assign'd them. When the Ark landed on the Mountains of Ararat, the adjacent Countries and especially the Mountains of Caucasus and Taurus were such that the Poets (q) always describe them as barren, hard and unfruitful, and therefore Ham and Japhet coming near to these Parts, which they knew before, might be more apt to persuade, and more easily prevail on their Posterity to fix in a Country, which they knew to be pleasant, healthy and fruitful, rather than run the Hazard of going farther into a Land, which might be much worse, or like to that, which they first arriv'd at after the Flood.

C H A P. X.

*The History of the World from the Creation to the Flood, as it is (a) principally taken out of the Eastern Historians.*Anno Mundi
I.

THE (b) eternal, infinite, all-knowing, and Almighty GOD being always most perfectly happy in and of himself, but willing to communicate himself to others, did form all other things out of nothing, at such Times as he thought most convenient; and thus in the preceding infinite Time (c) he created a vast number of other Worlds in the immense Space of the Universe. But when the Time came in which he thought most proper, that our solar System should have a Beginning, he fram'd out of no visible preexistent Matter, all these Planetary Regions, whose Motions we now observe, by uniting the dislocated Particles into one Body within their proper Orbs, and giving them constant and regular Laws of Motion, which they were always to observe; and thus

(as(*) the Apostle saith) the worlds were framed by the word of GOD; so that things which are seen, were not made of things which do appear. Accordingly at this Time he form'd the (d) Heaven, or that Part of this World, which we behold above us, and (e) the Earth, or that Part of this World, which we behold below us. This Part of the World, which we see below us, was a (f) confus'd indigested Heap, without any Order or Shape, having no Beasts, nor Trees, nor Herbs, nor any thing else, wherewith we now behold it adorn'd, and nothing could have been seen for want of Light, except by him (g) with whom the darkness and the light are both alike. Upon this there was a vehement Commotion, which separated the heavy Parts of this Mass or the Earth from the lighter Parts, and accordingly the heavy Particles sunk down, and the lighter

(a) Here it is fit, that the Reader should be inform'd, that to what I have mention'd in this Chapter, which is contain'd in the Scripture, especially in the five Books of Moses, I have also added what may be found in other antient oriental Authors, but that I lay no Stress hereon for the confirming of the Sacred Text. In this Case every Man is left to his own Liberty, to judge as he thinks most proper; only it is fit, that he should observe, that every thing contain'd in the Sacred Scriptures may be true, tho' every thing which is added to them, especially in the Historical Part, by such Authors as these, is false. As they make no mention of the Authorities, from whence they had such Accounts; so on the one Hand it is possible, that they might have forg'd them out of their own Heads, or on the other Hand it is possible, that they might have had them from ancient Authors of undoubted Credit, which are now lost, or from Libraries and Records which have been long since destroy'd. The Story of Jannes and Jambres two of the Magicians of Egypt their withstanding Moses, as it is mention'd in the Babylonish Targum upon Exod. 7. 11. is as ill attested as any of the Rest, and yet the Fact was undoubtedly true, since no less an Author than St. Paul speaks of it, 2 Tim. 3. 8. Among these Eastern Authors I shall chiefly confine my self to what I find in Josephus, Eutychius, Abulpharagius, and the Jewish Targums. As for Josephus, he was a learned Jew and acquainted with all the Antiquities of that Nation; he was also well skill'd in the Egyptian Learning, as appears even from the Authors, which he quotes, and he so well understood the Greek, the learned Language of that Age and their Historians, that he wrote all his Works in that Language. As for Abulpharagius he was a Physician of Malatia in Lesser Armenia, of the Christian Religion, and Sect of the Jacobites. He is an Author of good Esteem in the East, as well among Mahometans as Christians, and wrote in Arabick about the End of the thirteenth Century. As for Eutychius, he also wrote in the same Language, and was a Christian Author of the Sect of the Melchites. He was born at Cairo in Egypt, Anno Domini 876, and became very eminent in the Knowledge of Physick, which he practis'd with great Reputation, being reckon'd by the Mahometans themselves, to have been one of the eminentest Physicians of his Time. But toward the latter Part of his Life, giving himself more to the Study of Divinity he was Anno Domini 933 chosen Patriarch of Alexandria for his Sect (for there was another Patriarch of that Place at the same Time) and there he first took the Name of Eutychius, before which Time he was call'd Said Ebn Barrik, and died about seven Years after. The History and Annals of both these Authors were publish'd at Oxford by the learned Dr. Pocock. As for the Targums, they were all written originally in Chaldee, and are publish'd in our Polyglot Bibles. The first is Onkelos, whose Style is clean and neat, and which comes nearest to that of Daniel and Ezra. He wrote on the five Books of Moses and is generally only a bare Translator thereof, rather than a Paraphrast; so that very little can be collected out of him. The other two upon the Pentateuch are of a much later Date; but they seem to be skill'd in the Learning, which either the Land of Canaan or the Assyrian Monarchy could furnish them with. And as none of them could have any Design in falsifying any Story; so we may the better depend upon their Sincerity, in what they relate. And it is probable that whatever material History was to be found in Judea, Egypt, Greece, Assyria and Arabia, and consequently in all the East concerning those antient Times, may be met with in one or more of these Authors. It is plain that all of them are guilty of Romancing, tho' some more than others, and therefore they cannot be so well depended on in such Relations, which have a Shew of Truth. However it is hop'd, that the Particulars mention'd in this Chapter, such as they are, will not be altogether unacceptable.

(b) Gen. 1. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. (c) This is according to all our modern Observations in Philosophy, for which see Dereham's Astrotheology. (*) Heb. 11. 2. (d) and (e) This is the Meaning of these two Words the Heaven and the Earth, as is evident from their Derivations out of the Arabick Language. (f) Patrick upon Genesis. (g) Psal. 139. 12.

Parts ascended, so that the Earth was cover'd with the Waters. Then the Spirit of GOD exerted itself, that by its Incubation like a Bird upon Eggs, for to this the Word כְּרוּחַת in the Hebrew alludes, it might not only separate those Parts, which before were confus'd, but also give a particular Virtue and Power to them to produce such Things from them, as GOD had before intended. The first Thing that appear'd was a dimmer Light from the Place of the Sun; for the Earth or this whole Mass having now receiv'd its diurnal and annual Motion, and having turn'd about for near the Space of twelve Hours, this Light appear'd in the East, and at the End of twelve Hours more did seem to set in the West. Thus it pleas'd God to make a Distinction between Day and Night, so that from hence we compute the Time from the Creation of the World. And this was the Work of the first Day.

2. The next (h) Thing which GOD commanded to come forth of this Chaos, was the Air, particularly that Region next to us, wherein the Fowls do fly, and where the Clouds and Vapours do appear, and accordingly he fix'd a particular Distinction or Superficies between them, which plainly separates the Earth and Waters from the Air, Clouds and Vapours. This is the Meaning of Moses, (i) And GOD made the firmament or Expansion, and divided the waters, which were under the firmament, from the Waters which were above the firmament: and it was so. And this was the Work of the second Day.

3. On (k) the third Day GOD collected into one Body by themselves all the Waters, which continu'd mix'd with the Earth, and cover'd the Surface of it, so that the dry Land, or the Earth and the Seas did appear distinct and separate from each other, in the same Manner as they have been ever since. Upon this the Earth, without the Influence of the Sun, brought forth Grass, which comes up every Year without sowing, and Herbs bearing Seed, as all Sorts of Corn, and whatever else is sown, with a Power to produce such Seed yearly, that so their Kinds may be continu'd, and also Trees, which bear Fruit, and these Trees have also some Seeds growing upon them, which either fall off of themselves, or are inclos'd as Kernels in Fruit, that so their Kinds might be continu'd, especially such as are not planted nor taken Care of by Art. And this was the Work of the third Day.

4. On (l) the fourth Day GOD condens'd into one solid Body this dimmer Light, which appear'd on the first Day, so that in the Morning the Sun shone out in a Glorious Manner, as it hath done ever since. After this he plac'd a Solid Substance in an Orb nearer to the Earth to move round it, upon which the Sun shining might in the Night Time also reflect its Light upon the Earth for the Comfort of the Inhabitants when the Sun was absent, and then the Moon was a great Light, or just at its Full, and rising at Sun set, gave Light upon the Earth during the whole Night. These two GOD was pleas'd to appoint for the Measuring and computing of Time, that a speedy and swift Motion round in four and twenty Hours, should make a Day, that the Time from one Change of the Moon to the other, or some Space of near the same Time should make a Month, and the apparent Revolution of the Sun to the same Point of the Ecliptick Line should make not only a Year, but also a grateful Variety of Seasons in the several Parts of the Earth, which by this annual Motion are all visited with the Sun's Beams. Accordingly the Sun was the greater Light, which so rul'd the Day, that during its being above the Earth in the Day Time the Light of the Moon and Stars were not regarded. And the Moon was the lesser Light, which so govern'd the Night, that whenever she appear'd in the Absence of the Sun the Light of the Stars were not minded. The (m) Jews thus paraphrase on the Text. And GOD said, Let there be lights in the firmament of heaven, to separate between the day and the night, and let them be for the Signs and Times of Feasts, for the sanctifying of the New Moons and the Beginnings of the Years, and the Intercalations of Months, and Years, the Revolutions of the Sun, the New Moons and Cycles. At this Time he also made the other five Planets of this Solar System and their Satellites or Attendants. And this was the Work of the fourth Day.

5. On (n) the fifth Day GOD proceeded to form the lower Sort of Animals or living Creatures, viz. the Fish and Fowl, which are in many Respects inferior to Beasts. These were form'd out of the Waters, and of these he created some vastly big, as Whales, and some extremely small, as such which cannot be seen but through a Microscope. That the one might shew his Power over all, and the other his Providence in taking Care of the minutest Particle. After this GOD created out of the Earth the Cattle both great and small for Man's Use, and the Beasts, which were afterwards wild, as also such Creatures which crept upon the Earth, as Serpents, Snails, &c. And this was the Work of the fifth Day and Part of the Sixth.

6. On (o) the latter Part of the sixth Day, when the World was now like a noble Palace and ready furnish'd with all Conveniences, then GOD proceeded to make a more noble Creature, who should be Lord of all. He doth not say of him as he did of the Rest, Let the Waters, or Let the earth bring him forth; but he doth, as it were, advise and consult about his Production. He said, Let us make man.

(h) Gen. 1. 6. (i) Gen. 1. 7, 8. (k) Gen. 1. 9, 10, 11, 12, 13. (l) Gen. 1. 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19. (m) Targum Jonathanis Ben Uzziel in Gen. 1. 14. (n) Gen. 1. 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25. (o) Gen. 1. 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31.

Not to signify any Deliberation within himself or any Difficulty in the Work, but to represent to us the Dignity of Man, and that he was made a far more noble Creature than any other upon Earth, made with admirable Wisdom and great Prudence, and that a greater Power and Skill was employ'd in producing a Creature of such Beauty and Majesty. He was to consist of two Parts, a Body like other terrestrial Creatures, and a Soul which was peculiar to himself. This Soul is said to be after the Image of GOD, not only his moral Image, as it was at first perfectly pure and holy, but also his natural Image. It was a spiritual Substance, endu'd with Understanding, Reason, Freedom of Choice, Immortal, capable of apprehending Things invisible to the Body, and communicating its Apprehensions to other Creatures, especially those of its own Kind by the Benefit of Speech; and we may also add, that as GOD is infinite in his Nature, so is the Soul infinite in its Desires and can be satisfy'd with nothing less. Then GOD made man of the dust of the ground, that when we are apt to be lifted up because we are made after GOD's image the Thoughts of the Dirt, out of which we were taken, may humble us and keep us low. Then GOD breath'd into his Nostrils the breath of life, which being said of no other Creature, leads us to consider, not only that the Soul of Man is a distinct Thing, and of a distinct Original from the Body, but that a more excellent Spirit was put into him by GOD, than into other Animals, and from whence he is peculiarly call'd (p) The father of Spirits. Here Moses tells us, that GOD breath'd into Man the Breath of רוח חיים Lives in the plural Number, both temporal and eternal, both were inspir'd into him at the same Time, and thus Man became a living Soul. Life was the immediate Result of the Union of the Soul with the Body.

7. Thus was created by GOD the Woman's Soul also, tho' it is not expressly mention'd. For if her Soul had been made out of Adam as her Body was, he would have said not only she is bone of my bone, but also Soul of my Soul, which would very much have improv'd the Bond of Marriage, and heighten'd a conjugal Affection.

8. When the first Man was thus made he was call'd Adam, which (q) Josephus saith in Hebrew signifies Red, because the Earth, that he was made of in the virginal Perfection of it is of that Colour. It is certain that the Clay is of this Colour, and where it is said, (r) that the LORD GOD, formed man of the dust of the earth, the Hebrew Word צָוָה formed is a Root from whence the Noun צָוָה or a Potter is derived, as if it was to shew, that he formed Man of the Earth as a Potter forms his Potts of Clay, and therefore (s) As the Clay is in the potter's hands; so are we in his hand. And the Word (t) Ground is in the Hebrew אדמה Adamah, which properly signifies the red Earth or Clay, and seems to put us in Mind of that particular Earth, out of which Man was at first form'd.

9. When (u) Adam was thus created, GOD commanded all living Creatures both Male and Female to appear before him, who call'd them all by their Names, and the Jews tell us, that the Names, which he gave them at that Time, they bear to this Day.

10. Adam (x) was all this while alone, and uneasy in that Condition, for want of a suitable Companion, there being none as yet provided for him, when all the rest of the Creatures enjoy'd themselves in Pairs. To prevent the Inconvenience of such a Solitude (y) GOD caus'd a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept; and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof. And the rib which the LORD GOD had taken from the man made he a woman. In this Sleep it is probable that Adam continu'd till the next Day, and Eve being thus form'd, slept also during the following Night. So that the Works of the six Days Creation being finish'd, GOD taking a Review of what he had done, was pleas'd with every Part of his Work, as suitable to all those wise and good Ends for which he intended it.

11. On (z) the Beginning of the seventh Day from the Creation, (which was now the first Day of Adam's Life, and consequently the first Day of the Week, and the Day from whence Adam began to compute the Days, Weeks, Months and Years of his Life.) GOD brings the Woman, which he had made, to Adam, (a) who immediately knew what she was, and in what Manner she was created. Upon this Adam said (b) At this time only was this Woman form'd from me. But Women hereafter shall not be form'd from Man. She is bone of my bone; and flesh of my flesh; she shall be called (c) woman, because she was taken out of man. Upon this GOD institu-

Job Ludolphus also hath made it probable that the Word signifies Elegant or Beautiful, in his Historia Aethiopica, lib. 1. cap. 15. Num. 17, 18, and in his Commentaries upon that Chapter. That when these two Letters are join'd together, they make יהוה the Name of the Great GOD, to shew that GOD is in reality with such, who are thus join'd together, especially in his Fear and Love, and according to his Institution. But if it is not so, and GOD is not amongst them, there only remains אִשָּׁה or Five in common to both.

Chap. X. The SCRIPTURE CHRONOLOGY. 121

ted the holy Estate of Matrimony, and joyn'd together Adam and Eve as Man and Wife.

12. The (d) Heavens and the Earth being now finish'd, and all the Creatures contain'd in both being of a vast Variety and plac'd in a wonderful Order, and Adam and Eve being joyn'd together for the mutual Society, Help and Comfort of each other; and GOD having so compleatly finish'd his Work, that there remain'd no more to be done, he now determines and appoints this seventh Day from the Creation, being the first Day of the Week, to be observ'd from the Beginning of the World to the End (the Case of the Israelites only excepted) in Commemoration of the miraculous Creation of the World in general, and of Man in particular, or of greater Blessings to be bestow'd upon Mankind on this Day; that we might not only rest from our Labours, but also set it apart and dedicate it to a holy Use, to be spent in religious Duties, as a Day of blessing and praising God for all his Works of Wonder, and a Means of procuring his Blessings on all those, who piously worship him on this Day. And thus did our first Parents dedicate the first Part of their Time to him, from whom they had receiv'd the whole, leaving us an Example worthy of our Imitation.

13. In (e) the mean Time GOD had taken Care, that in a Part of the Country call'd Eden, which lies on the East Side of Babylon, beyond the common Meeting of the Rivers Tigris and Euphrates in the North, and Phison and Gihon in the South, in the Country call'd (f) Susiana, should grow a pleasant Garden, call'd The Garden of Paradise, wherein were all Sorts of Trees, Herbs and Flowers, which were any Way delightful to the Eye, the Taste, or the Smell.

14. On (f) the eighth Day of the Creation or the second Day of the Week it is probable, that GOD took our first Parents from the Place where they were form'd, and plac'd them in this delightful Garden to preserve it by their Care and Labour in the Condition in which they found it. And that they might have an ample Reward for all their early and innocent Labours, GOD gave them full Liberty to make use of all the Delights, which were there; and to eat the Fruits of any Tree, which was in the Garden. But to prove their Obedience in the midst of such Plenty, he laid one Restraint upon them, saying, (g) But of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil thou shalt not eat of it; for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die, and the more effectually to prevent the Eating of it, he gave them an Injunction (h) that they should not touch it. Here Life and Death were set before them. If they had continu'd obedient for some Time, they might after that have eaten of the Tree of Life, which was in the midst of the Garden, and liv'd for ever. But if they did eat of the forbidden Fruit, they must (i) unavoidably and immediately perish, unless some Miracle of Mercy should interpose, which they then knew nothing of. Thus (k) GOD created man to be immortal, and made him to be an image of his own eternity. And at the Beginning (l) the Generations of the world were healthful, and (m) perfect: and there was no poison of destruction in them, nor the kingdom of death upon the earth. At this Time our first Parents stood as the common Representatives of all their Offspring, and the Covenant was made with them not only for themselves but also for all their Posterity, that if they had continu'd obedient, they and all mankind to the End of the World, should by them and their Obedience, obtain a State of Righteousness, Happiness, and eternal Life, but if they were disobedient, then this their Fall should involve all Mankind in a State of Sin and Misery, and make them liable not only to temporal, but also to eternal Death.

15. But the Devil (n) envying the Happiness of Mankind, and resolving, if possible, to bring him out of this State and to work his Ruin, enter'd into a Serpent, which in those eastern Countries is a very large and beautiful Creature, adorn'd with lovely and delicate Spots, and with a wonderful Variety of the most admirable and shining Colours. Among them there are a Sort of Serpents which have Wings, and shine very brightly like Fire. These by Isaiab are call'd (o) fiery, flying Serpents, and by Moses (p) Seraphims, and they were call'd fiery, because they appear'd like Fire when they fled in the Air. Hence it is that the Word Seraphim signifies also the highest Sort of (q) Angels call'd The Angels of the Presence, which probably appear'd in some such Form with flaming Wings. Thus the Devil made use of such Kind of Serpent (but of a more surpassing Brightness than any which are now extant) that he might resemble one of the most illustrious Angels, who appear'd sometimes in the like Shape. This mov'd Eve the more readily to hearken to the Voice of the Serpent, taking it to be one of the heavenly Seraphims, which she had sometimes seen in such a splendid Form, attending (as usual) upon the divine

 (g) Gen. 2. 17. (h) Gen. 3. 3. (i) The threatned Punishment is doubled in the Hebrew Language מותה Thou shalt die the death, to shew the Certainty and the Unavoidableness of it. (k) Wisd. 2. 23.
 (l) Wisd. 1. 14. (m) It hath been long since observ'd, that in Gen. 5. 1. the Hebrew Word דורות or Generations is written with a ו after the נ, and is perfect according to the Rules of Grammar, to shew that the Generations of Men were perfect in the Day when GOD created them, and made them after his own image. But in all other Places of Scripture the ו after the נ is always left out, and sometimes the other also, to shew that after the Fall the Generations of all Men are imperfect, and that there is in many a double Imperfection, both by the Fall of our first Parents, and also by their own Immortality. (n) Gen. 3. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7.

Glory or Majesty. And she thinking it to be an Angel that wish'd them well, was the sooner deceiv'd. For she was not so simple as to think, that Beasts could speak, much less, that they knew more of GOD's Mind than himself. Nor doth it seem at all credible, that she could have been deceiv'd, but by some Creature, which appear'd so gloriously, that she took it for an heavenly Minister, who came, as she thought, to explain to them the Meaning of the divine Prohibition and the Liberty otherwise granted. Thus he comes to Eve, who had spent the eighth and ninth Days of the Creation, or the second and third Days of the Week in working with Adam in the Garden, as GOD had appointed, and was now at some Distance from him.

16. The Devil coming thus to Eve, represented himself as one of the heavenly Court, who either came or was sent to congratulate the Happiness, which GOD had bestow'd upon them in Paradise; which was so great, that he could not easily believe that he had deny'd them any of the Fruit of the Garden. He desir'd therefore to be satisfy'd from her own Mouth of the Truth of what he pretended to have heard; or to know how they understood the Command of GOD. The Woman or Eve perceiving such a delicate creature coming toward her, was surpriz'd at such a Sight, and hearing the Devil speak out of him, was the more amaz'd, and (r) being thus deceiv'd, so as not to suspect any ill Design, was the more willing to enter into a free Discourse with him. Accordingly she seems to have understood him as if he thought that GOD had forbade them to eat any Fruit in the Garden, and therefore gives him the full and true Account of the Prohibition in these Words. We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden. But of the fruit of the tree, which is in the midst of the garden GOD hath said, ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die. The Devil intimates to her that she was under a Mistake, and that Death would not be the certain Consequence of the Eating this Fruit; and that the GOD who made them, was too good to inflict so heavy a Punishment for so small a Fault. On the other Hand they should be great Gainers by Eating of it. That they should immediately discover abundance of things, which they at present were ignorant of, and they should also be like unto (s) the Angels of GOD, who are call'd Principalities and Powers knowing good and evil (t) in a greater Perfection. And therefore GOD himself did only keep them in Awe by his Threatning, but would not be so severe as to execute it, when he saw them much improv'd, and not impair'd by Eating it. All this while Eve look'd so long upon the forbidden Fruit, 'till she not only had an Appetite to it as excellent food, but was also taken with its beautiful Colour; and was strongly possess'd by the Persuasion of the old Serpent, that her Mind would be no less pleas'd than her Palate by an Increase of Knowledge and Wisdom. Upon this she yielded, and took of the fruit thereof and did eat, and gave also to Adam, who return'd to her as she was eating the Fruit. Upon this she us'd the same Argument to him, which the Devil had us'd to her, who not seeing as yet the ill Consequences, which did attend her Disobedience, and resolving to live and die with one, whom he most passionately lov'd, as being the chief or only Comfort, which he had among all the Creatures, and whose Condition without her would be worse than theirs, he took of the Fruit from her Hands, and did eat with her.

17. Before our first Parents fell from their State of Innocency the Jews (u) tell us, that they were cloath'd with bright Rays shining like Onyx Stones, which made them like unto the Angels, insomuch, that they were dreaded by all the Beasts of the Earth. But (x) now this glorious Apparel fell off from them, that they were more like to the Beasts, than to what they were before, and the Beasts ceas'd to have that dread of them, which they had at first, and some of them cast off their Subjection and became Enemies to Man, because Man was now become an Enemy to GOD. But now they soon had a different Apprehension of their State from what at first was promis'd. They found themselves stripp'd of all their Intellectual and Moral Ornaments, and blush'd to see their external Glory so much debas'd, insomuch that they took the Leaves of Fig-Trees (which in the Eastern Countries are very broad, and as Strabo tells us, (y) as big as a Shield) and joyning them together in the best Manner that they could, they made for themselves מאוירית such Coverings, which they girt about them. This happen'd (z) upon the fourth Day of the Week, or upon the Tenth Day of the first Month in the ancient Year, which was always to be observ'd among the Jews as a Day of solemn Fasting and Humiliation, by the Command of GOD himself.

18. Tho' the eating of a single Fruit might be reckon'd in itself to be but a small Matter; yet this very thing did aggravate the Offence and made it more heinous, because our first Parents refus'd at that Time to observe so easy an Injunction. And if we look upon it in all its Circumstances, it contain'd a Complication of the most enormous Impieties. There was Stubbornness and Disobedience against the express Command of GOD, so that it was knowingly and wilfully. There was Pride against GOD, and an Admiration of themselves, because not content with so happy a Station they desir'd to be equal with him. There was

Chap. X. The SCRIPTURE CHRONOLOGY. 123

Unbelief and Contempt both of his Justice and Mercy, and giving Credit to the Devil, who told them the Contrary to what GOD had reveal'd. There was Unthankfulness for all the Benefits receiv'd at the Creation, when they were made after the Image of GOD and capable of eternal Life, with all other Privileges which could be desir'd, this one excepted. There was Unnaturalness and want of Love to their Posterity, because they knew, that as they had receiv'd those good Things both for themselves and their Posterity; so if the Sentence should be deferr'd, they should forfeit all those Benefits for themselves, and those, who should descend from them. And there was a total Apostacy from GOD to the Devil, whom they set up in the Place of GOD, and believ'd and obey'd rather than GOD; and therefore the utmost Penalty which could be inflicted, was no more than what was justly due for this single Offence.

19. Thus fell our first Parents, and thus they involv'd themselves and their Posterity in a State of Sin, and made them liable to all Manner of Miseries, and even to Death itself both temporal and eternal. And as (z) from this common Root sin entered into the world and death by sin; even so death passed upon all men, because all had sinn'd, and were defil'd by this Original Pollution.

20. And (a) as before they enjoy'd a free Communication and Converse with GOD, whilst innocent, and had a clear View of the Divine Majesty; so their Guilt made them afraid to appear, and they trembled at his Justice. So that when they heard the Sound of the Majestick Presence, or the Glory of the LORD approaching nearer and nearer to the Place where they were, they ran into the thickest and closest Places, which they could find in the Garden, to hide themselves from his Presence. This is said to be in the cool of the day, or as the Hebrew Word expresseth it ברוח היום in the Wind of the Day, that is, toward the Evening, when the Fierceness of the Sun Beams were spent, and when it was usual for a gentle Breeze of the West Wind to blow in that Country. And this usually being a soft and gentle Gale, the Sound, which they heard was the more surprizing. However, GOD call'd him in such a Manner that he could not but own, that he was ashamed and afraid to appear. And taxing him with his Guilt, he confess'd it, but laid the Blame upon Eve, and Eve laid the Blame upon the Devil or Serpent, which had deceiv'd her. Upon this GOD first pronounc'd a Sentence against that Serpent, into which the Devil enter'd, That he should not be so noble a Creature after the Fact as he was before, but should be chang'd from (b) a flying Seraph into a foul creeping Serpent, not moving high in the Air but creeping upon the Ground, and licking up the Dust together with its Food, whatever that should be. Josephus (c) taking all this Story to signify literally no more than a terrestrial Serpent, saith, That for the Punishment of the Serpent's Malice, GOD took from him the Benefit of Speech, put Venom under his Tongue, condemn'd him to the Loss of his Feet, and to crawl upon his Belly, declar'd him to be the Enemy of Mankind, and commanded Eve also to tread upon his Head, both as the Fountain of all our Woes, and as the Parr, where he most easily receives a mortal Wound. Upon this he also curses the Devil, who was the Contriver of all our Ruin, and tells him of a SAVIOUR, who should be born of a Woman, should conquer the Devil, destroy all his Works, and deliver Mankind from all the Effects of his Malice; which Promise Adam and Eve laying hold on by Faith, were, before the Sentence was pronounc'd, deliver'd from that which otherwise must have been the immediate Effect of their Sin, so that he now only condemns the Woman to Sorrow in bearing of Children, and Subjection to her Husband for the Future, and the Man to Toyl and Labour in his several Callings, and all to a temporal Death at the Time appointed.

21. When the Devil and those apostate Spirits had thus been guilty of such gross Sins, and had seduc'd our first Parents also to fall from that first State of Innocency in which they were created, they then (d) lost their first Habitations, they could not indure to behold the glorious Presence of GOD. The Sense of their Guilt made them astonish'd at what they had done. GOD could not but look upon them with an angry Countenance, and Heav'n it self could no longer be Heav'n to them. Upon which GOD pass'd an irrevocable Sentence of Condemnation upon them, or as the Apostles stile it, he spared them not, but cast them down into hell, and reserved them in everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment of the great day. And as for the rest of the Angels who did not joyn with them in this great Rebellion, GOD so confirm'd them in their original State of Righteousness and Happiness, that it was now no longer possible for them to fall from the one or to forfeit the other.

22. And as for our first Parents Adam and Eve, after they had been cloath'd in Paradise with the Skins of Beasts which had been slain for Sacrifices, as an Atonement for their late Offences, GOD drove them forth from the Garden of Eden or Paradise to inhabit that Mountainous and barren Country, where they were at first created, that so they might labour and till that Ground from whence they were taken, and so the Curse might more literally light upon Adam, to which he was condemn'd for this Transgression, than if they had liv'd in a plentiful Soyl, viz.

(f) Because thou hast hearkned unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree of which I commanded thee saying, Thou shalt not eat of it: Cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life. Thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth unto thee; and thou shalt eat the herb of the field. In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return to the ground, for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return.

23. It was the constant Tradition in the East, that Adam was immortal at his first Creation, but by his Transgression he caus'd the Sentence of Death to pass upon all Mankind. They say, (g) that Adam by his Rebellion was the Cause of Death; and that (h) the First Man rebell'd against his Maker, and brought Mortality in the World. Accordingly they make the Name of the Prince of Devils, and the Deceiver of our first Parents to be Samael, whom after the Fall they call the Angel of Death for this Reason. So that tho' Josephus has taken the Story only to relate to a material and terrestrial Serpent; yet others look on the Serpent as the passive Cause only. And that the Devil was the Agent. One of them saith, (i) that we ought to know, that the Rabbins in their Midrash expound it thus; that the Serpent was only the Beast, which was rode upon, and was about the Bigness of a Camel, and that his Rider was Samael, who deceiv'd Eve, and is often call'd by the Name of Satan.

24. Here then we may find out the Place where our first Parents were created. It was not in Paradise, because (k) the LORD GOD took the man from another Place, and put him into the garden of Eden, to dress it, and to keep it. It could not be at a great Distance from it, because they were so soon brought thither. There could be no Rivers to part these Places from each other, because they had no Boats nor Bridges to enable them to pass over them, and there was no need of a fresh Miracle on this Occasion. It could not be in the Mountain of Moriah, as the (l) Jews affirm, because there were too many Rivers to pass, and it lay too far distant toward the West; neither could it be toward the West at all, because the great Rivers of Phison and Tigris lay on that Side. It could not be on one of the Mountains of India, as (m) the Arabians think, because they lay too far distant toward the East. It could not be Southward, because that was a very plentiful and fruitful Country. It could not be on the East, because that was a Country inhabited by (n) Cain, after he had separated himself and his Family from his Father's Country. It could not be exactly Northward, because the Tigris came down from thence, and Pliny saith (o) that it made a great Bend Northward in his Time about Apamia. And therefore it must lie on some Mountain toward the North East Side of Paradise, and being but a little Distance from thence, GOD to deter them from attempting to come near this Place again, for fear of being consum'd, plac'd Cherubims all along the East Side of the Garden, where there was no Inclosure by Rivers. These were some of the heavenly Ministers, that waited upon the Divine Majesty, and seem'd (p) to be of a more admirable Sort than the rest. And he there plac'd also a flaming Sword or one of the Seraphims or flying Angels, which appear'd like a flaming Fire, (as (q) God's Ministers did, whole Body moving in the Air resembled the Vibrations of a Sword, who was appointed with the Cherubims to guard the Entrance of the Garden, and whose Motion was so very swift and glittering, that devouring Flames seem'd to come streaming out on every Side. The Design of all this was (as the Scripture saith) to keep the way of the tree of life, or to secure the Passage into the Garden of Eden, where this Tree was, that none should dare to attempt a Reentrance, thinking that thereby they might have an Opportunity by eating thereof to live for ever.

25. It is the constant Opinion of the Eastern Writers, that Adam was restor'd again into Favour with GOD, and agreeably thereto Mahomet (r) places him in the first Heaven with Noah, Joseph, Moses, John the Baptist, and CHRIST himself. Accordingly the Tradition runs very current, that when our first Parents had forfeited their original happy State, and found themselves condemn'd to such a World of Labour and misery, and that Death in due Time would unavoidably follow, they plung'd themselves into the deepest Sorrow for a long Space, bewailing their Sins with the utmost Signs of true Contrition, and the lowest Postures of an humble Penitent. Josephus (s) saith in short, that he begg'd Pardon. Another saith, (t) that he did great Penance. And (u) a third adds, that he continu'd a whole Week in very dismal and deplorable Circumstances. The (x) Targums put these Words into his Mouth. O LORD, I beg Mercies from before thy Face, let us not be accounted like the Beasts to eat the Grass of the Earth. We will arise now and labour with our Hands, and we will eat the Fruit of what we thus labour for, that in this Respect there may be a Distinction between us and Beasts. And accordingly GOD (y) granting him this Petition, that he might eat Bread, gave him thereby some Hope of future Favours, if he continu'd humbly and heartily to ask for them. Another (z) makes him pray after this Manner, O thou LORD of the whole Universe, I pray thee, let my Sin pass from me, and receive my Repentance, that all Ages may learn what it is to repent, and that thou wilt accept the Repentance of those, who truly turn to thee. Which Prayer they tell us that GOD accepted of, put forth his Hand, took him up, and accepted of his Repentance, according to the saying of the Psalmist, (a) I acknowledged my sin unto thee, and mine iniquity have I not hid. I said, I will confess my transgressions unto the LORD, and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin. Others (b) say, that lest Adam should be wholly destitute of all Comfort, the most merciful GOD immediately dispatch'd an Angel to comfort him, and to assure him of his future Favour, and (c) some are so particular as to affirm, that the Name of the Angel, which was sent on this Errand, was Razel. And thus as Adam fell by the subtle Insinuation of evil Angels; so he was comforted and assur'd of Favour by the Ministry of good ones. The Syrian Writers say (d) that the Cherubims and Seraphims and the rest of those noble Orders were grievously troubled at the Fall of Adam, and that (e) the Trees themselves did bow down their Heads, because a Prince of the Creatures, and the Head and Chief of all Nations and Families had thus made Shipwreck of himself in the very Haven of Happiness.

26. However, there is greater Reason to believe, that Adam after a due Repentance and Humiliation, did not only betake himself to Husbandry, as Anno Mundi 1. GOD had appointed; but did also soon set up the Worship of his Creator in his Family, that so he and they might obtain an eternal Happiness, instead of the temporal Paradise, which they had lost by his Disobedience. A certain (f) Author endeavours to prove from the Testimony of the Jewish Writers, that Adam was well skill'd in all human Learning, that he was a Divine, a Philosopher, a Physician, an Astrologer, a Chymist, and a Mathematician, and that he was taught these Things by an Angel; and (g) that he had receiv'd of GOD the Knowledge of the Embolimean Year, that (h) he had six Precepts given him, which he taught his Son Seth, who was born after his own Image and Likeness, and the rest of his Children, and so they were handed down to Noah, to whom (i) the seventh Precept, (viz. of abstaining from Blood) was given immediately after the Deluge, and thus the Law was handed down to Abraham and the successive Generations, until the Time of Moses. And for this Purpose GOD was pleas'd to lengthen the Time of the Antediluvian Patriarchs, and of others, who liv'd immediately after the Flood, insomuch that Adam liv'd two hundred and forty three Years in the Time of Methuselah, and Methuselah liv'd three hundred and sixty nine Years in the Time of Noah, and Noah died but two Years before the Birth of Abraham. Thus Adam instructed his Family in all those Duties, which GOD had giv'n him in Charge, and in the Knowledge and Expectation of the MESSIAH, who was to conquer the Devil, and deliver all Mankind out of the State of Sin and Misery, into which they were thus unhappily plung'd.

27. Now there are three Things necessary to keep up the publick Worship of GOD, viz. A Person to officiate, and the Time and Place for such an Exercise. The Person officiating was Adam himself, who being the Father of all Mankind acted at such a Time both as Priest and King, and was succeeded in these Offices by the Father and eldest Person in each respective Family. The Time was before settled by GOD himself, being the seventh from the Beginning of the Creation, or the first Day of the Week, which was appointed as (k) a Day to be kept holy, and that no manner of Work should be done in it. Because in six days the LORD made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested on this as on the seventh day. Wherefore the LORD blessed the seventh day, and hallowed it. As for the Place, it was in all Probability, on the East Side of the Garden of Paradise, and not at so great a Distance, but that the Cherubims, which were plac'd there, were visible to him, and from thence it is probable, that the GOD of Glory or the Divine SHECHINAH appear'd to him, who is often represented, as (l) sitting, or (m) being conversant among the Cherubims, and as a Representation whereof the (n) Cherubims were plac'd with their Wings as covering the Mercy Seat.

28. This seems to be the first Original of Worshipping the Divine Majesty toward some Particular Part of the World, and was an excellent Method to prevent in the Family of Seth, that Idolatry of worshipping the Sun, especially at its Rising, so soon began in the Race of Cain, and which so much prevail'd in the early Ages of the World. Thus when the Israelites were in the Wilderness, tho' they travell'd different Ways, yet the Holy of Holies, toward which the People worshipp'd, was always plac'd at the west Side of the Tabernacle, and when the Temple was built, it had the same Situation. And as this was look'd upon as the Place, in which GOD was (o) pleased to dwell, b. cause he had a delight therein; so they who worshipp'd GOD at a Distance from thence, did usually direct their Faces that Way. Thus David declar'd his Resolution, (p) that he would not only come into the house of GOD in the multitude of his mercy, but at a great Distance he would in his fear worship toward his holy temple. Solomon desires GOD (q) six Times to bear the supplication of those, who shou'd pray toward the house, which he had built. When (r) Daniel was in Babylon, which lay eastward from Jerusalem, his windows were open toward that City and the Temple, whilst it was his constant Custom to pray and make supplication before his GOD three times a day. And the Prophet (s) speaking of a Reformation in the Israelites from Idolatry, describes it thus, They shall go and seek the LORD their GOD. They shall ask the way to Zion with their faces thitherward, saying, Come and let us join our selves unto the LORD in a perpetual covenant, which shall not be forgotten. In the Time of the Law the holy Place was toward the West and the People worshipp'd that Way, to put them in Mind of the Progreſs of Religion in that Quarter, and the Situation of the Church in the Time of the Gospel: But our Chancels are toward the East, and we turn that Way, when we repeat the Creed, to put us in mind of that Place, from whence the Gospel came. They look'd forward towards us, and we look backward toward them. They look'd to the Fulfilling of the Prophecies in our Days, and we look to the Prophecies which were given to them of us. We all look toward Jerusalem, to shew that we are the same Church, and since the earthly Jerusalem hath been long since destroyed, we should now raise our Minds to heavenly things, and think on that (t) City, which is above, and which is the mother of us all.

29. But to return from this Digression, Our first Parents living in this religious Manner had (u) several Sons and Daughters. For having a Command from GOD (x) to be fruitful and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it, they could not be long without Issue, (y) lest the beasts of the earth should increase upon them.

30. An (z) Arabick Historian tells us, that Cain was born thirty Years after Adam was expell'd out of Paradise; but it is not probable, that the Distance was so long. The Name קין signifies an Acquisition or Obtaining, and therefore he in all Probability was the eldest Son, and the Words of Eve in our English Translation, (a) I have gotten a man from the LORD, can imply no less. The (b) same Historian saith, that Eve brought forth Twins, a Son and a Daughter, and she call'd the Son Cain, and the Daughter Azrûn. Another (c) calls her Clinia, and adds, Anno Mundi 11. that after thirty Years more (which is more than can well be allow'd) she brought forth two other Twins, Abel and Lebuda, whom the first Author calls Owain, which (saith he) in Greek is Laphura. And (d) when they were of riper Years, Adam said to Eve, Let Cain marry Owain, who was born at the same Time with Abel. And let Abel marry Azrûn, who was born at the same Time with Cain. But Cain said to his Mother, I will marry my Sister, and let Abel marry his Sister. For Azrûn was more beautiful than Owain. Which when Adam heard he was much displeas'd at it, and said, That it was against the Command of GOD, that either of these should marry with the Sister of the same Birth. How true this Story is let others judge. It is plain that the (e) Eastern Nations were sensible that Marriages ought not to be in the nearest Degree of Consanguinity; and tho' Cain and Abel could marry none but two of their own Sisters, and consequently Necessity might plead for the Lawfulness of it; yet they took Care to have it thought, that even Cain and Abel did not marry those, who, as Twins, were nearest of Kin to them, but such as were at a remoter Distance, and that Cain's Desire to have it otherwise, was the first Sign of his Stubbornness and Impiety. Thus (f) these two Brethren were of two different Tempers. Abel was a righteous Man and a keeper of Sheep, that so he might breed up fit Sacrifices to be offer'd to GOD, and have proper Cloaths to be made of the Skins, or perhaps of the Wool of those Creatures. Cain was a Tiller of the Ground, that so he might provide Bread for the Sustenance of human Life. Abel was a virtuous Man, and set GOD before his Face in whatsoever he said or did. But Cain was a wicked and Graceless Person. Now when both these Brethren were grown up to be Men, and had exercis'd these Callings for some Time, Adam Anno Mundi 130. said unto them, (g) Take of the Fruits of the Earth and of the Lambs among the Sheep, and go up unto the Top of this

Mount (which was the Place appointed for religious Worship) and offer your Gifts to GOD, and then each of you shall take your Wives. Upon this Cain brought of the Fruit of the Ground, and Abel took of the first and principal of his Flock, as their respective Oblations unto GOD. They brought them to the Place appointed for publick Worship, and to Adam, that he should offer them up accordingly. But (b) whilst they went up to the Top of the Mount, Satan put into the Mind of Cain, that he should kill his Brother Abel for the Sake of his Sister Azra. And the LORD was pleas'd graciously to accept of Abel, and his Offering was also the more acceptable, because he himself was accepted. There (i) came a Fire from Heaven, or rather a Stream of Light, or a Flame from the glorious Presence of GOD, to whom it was offer'd, which burnt up his Sacrifice. But he did not so much as shine upon the Sheaves which Cain brought, much less make them ascend up to Heaven in a Smoak, tho' he was the elder Brother, and brought his Offering first, which was of a more combustible Matter. Upon this Cain was very angry at Abel, and look'd upon GOD himself as partial, if not unjust, not considering that he could not have a Title to GOD's Favour by his Birthright, but by his Piety. And when he should have made severe Reflections upon himself, and have consider'd what it was which provok'd GOD to slight his Sacrifice, that so he might amend his Life, he was then meditating Revenge. (h) He hung down his Head with Shame and Discontent, and resolv'd to kill his Brother, when he should find a fit Opportunity for such a wicked Purpose.

31. But after he had (m) dissembled and conceal'd his Design for some Time, insomuch that Abel thought no Harm was intended, (n) Cain said unto Abel his Brother, Let us go into the Field. And when they were alone in the Field, Cain said unto Abel his Brother, I know that the World was created by the Mercy of GOD: but it is not govern'd according to the Fruit of our good Works, and there is Respect of Persons in Judgment. Why was thy Oblation favourably accepted, when mine was rejected? And Abel answer'd and said unto Cain, The World was created in Mercy, and is govern'd according to the Fruits of our good Works, and there is no Respect of Persons in Judgment, and my Oblation was more favourably receiv'd, because the Fruit of my Works were better, and more precious than thine. And Cain answer'd and said unto Abel, There is no Judgment nor Judge, nor any other World; neither shall good Men receive any Reward, nor wicked Men be punish'd. And Abel answer'd and said unto Cain, There is a Judgment, and a Judge, and another World, in which good Men shall receive a Reward, and wicked Men shall be punish'd. Upon this Debate there arose a Quarrel in the Field, and Cain rose (o) up against Abel his Brother, and gave him a violent Stroke upon the Forehead with a Stone, and kill'd him, (p) and bury'd his Body in hopes of concealing the Murder. GOD that knew what had pass'd, came upon this to Cain, enquir'd after his Brother, and what was become of him, because he had not been seen for several Days last past, whereas they two us'd to be frequently together. This Question at first put Cain to a little Stand, 'till upon Recollection he gave this Answer, that he had not seen his Brother for a great While, and could not imagine what should be the Reason of his Absence. Upon this Pretence the Matter was still laid closer to him, to which he had the Insolence to reply, That he was none of his Brother's Keeper, and none of his Council. Upon this Expostulation and Affront GOD was pleas'd to charge him downright with his Brother's Murder, telling him how wonderful a Thing it was, that he should not be able to give any Account of his Brother, when he himself had kill'd him. The Fact was now no longer to be deny'd, and therefore GOD proceeds to pass upon him for it a Sentence of perpetual Banishment from that Country, which was thus stain'd by the Blood of his Brother. And tho' he might propose to go into a more fruitful (q) Land than that where he was at that Time; yet it should prove otherwise. GOD oftentimes (r) turns a fruitful land into barrenness, for the wickedness of those that dwell therein. And therefore wherever he should flee, the Earth, which he tilled, should be barren, and not bring forth answerable to his Labour. And in that strange Country he should have no Rest, but wander unquietly up and down for a considerable Time, and not know where to settle. And Cain answer'd GOD, and said, This is too heavy a Punishment, for I sink down under the Apprehension of it, Or as others will have it, My Sin is greater, than that it can be forgiven. Behold, thou hast banished me from my native Country, and more than that, I am banish'd from thy

3 2. But notwithstanding all this Defect, which Seth and all Mankind have by Nature, it is (g) universally agreed upon, that he was a good Man, that he was (h) carefully brought up under the Tuition of his Parents, and that as soon as he was able to distinguish between Good and Evil, he deliver'd himself up only to the Study of Virtue. That he prov'd to be a wonderful Man, and his Children were the lively Images of so excellent a Father, and were all of them well bred and well dispos'd, and liv'd happily and peaceably with Respect to the Publick, and in a perfect Agreement with one another, and that (i) he inserted into his Offspring the Desire of that happy Life, which their Parents had in Paradise. Thus (k) they were devoted to the Worship of GOD, to Piety and Temperance. At this Time they had (l) no Labour, no Plowing nor Harvest, and the Fruits of the Trees were their Food. There was no Place among them for Injustice, Contention, Envy or Lying, and they daily worshipp'd GOD in the devoutest Manner; so that this in Reality seems to be the golden Age, which the Poets describ'd. Seth (m) is also said to be the Inventor of Letters and Writing, which so much exceeded all other Inventions, that for this he was reckon'd one of the highest Benefactors to Mankind. Josephus farther adds, that (n) he and his Family were the first that made their Observations upon the Motions of the Heavens, and the Courses and Influences of the Stars; and having been forerold by

Adam of an universal Deluge and Conflagration to come, they erected two Pillars, one of Brick and the other of Stone, which they were sure would be Proof either the one or the other of them against both Fire and Water. Upon these Pillars they engrav'd the Memorials of their Discoveries and Inventions, there to remain for the Benefit of Ages to come, lest the Traditions of the Sciences, which they invented, should be lost for want of fit Records. And (as the same Author saith) this their foresight and Providence was not in vain; for the Stone Pillar was to be seen in Syria in his Time. But the learned Bishop Stillingfleet (m) hath fully confuted this Notion, and prov'd, that it was only one of the Egyptian Pillars, and that Josephus mentions Seth instead of Thoyth; the Inventions of the Patriarchs; instead of the fabulous History of Egypt; and Syria, a Country too large for any one to know where to find these Pillars, instead of Seridica.

34. But Cain (n) after a tedious Wandering up and down about the Country, began at last to settle in the Land of Nod, which lay Eastward not only from Paradise, but also from the Family of Seth, tho' bordering upon them; and here he had several Children. But he was so far from mending his Life after his Afflictions, that he rather grew worse and worse, abandoning himself to his Lusts, and to all manner of Outrage, without any Regard to common Justice. He enrich'd himself by Rapine and Violence, and made Choice of the most profligate of Monsters for his Companions, instructing them in the very Mystery of their own Profession. He corrupted the Simplicity and plain Dealing of former Times with a novel Invention of Weights and Measures, and exchang'd the Innocency of that primitive Generosity and Candour, for the new Tricks of Policy and Craft, and he was the first that invaded the common Liberties of Mankind by Bounds and Inclosures. And as this was his Manner of Life; so nothing but the utmost Severity of the Curse, (with which (o) Adam was first, and he was (p) afterward threaten'd) could be expected. And therefore when he was settled in this strange Country, and betook himself to all the Parts of Husbandry, (q) the Earth did not produce what might have been expected in so champion and rich a Soil, nor in Proportion to the Pains, which were bestow'd upon it.

35. But the Glory of the LORD not appearing unto Cain, as it did when he was with Adam; and he being under an express Curse from the Mouth of GOD himself, and not expecting that it would be revok'd, he looks upon GOD as his Enemy, and concluding it to be to no purpose to call upon him, he resolves to set up some other Being in Opposition to him. The first Being, which in his Opinion stood in Competition with its Creator, was the Sun; by whose Heat we are daily warm'd, and by whose Light we are capable of transacting the common Concerns of human Life, whose Presence rejoices us, and whose Absence we lament, whose kind Influence causeth all Things to grow for our Use, and whose scorching Rays doth blast our Expectations, and which is in reality the most glorious Creature in the World, and was the best Resemblance that he could find of the Glory of the LORD, which was wont to appear in a flaming Light. And in after Times the Magi among the Persians, who liv'd in the same Country, worship'd Fire, as the best Emblem of the Sun, when it was absent, and built Temples, where Fires, which were before kindled only by the Sun Beams, might be continually preserv'd. So that, as Sachoniatho mentions (r), when great Droughts came, he stretch'd forth his Hands to Heaven toward the Sun, being now willing to own him as the only LORD of the Universe. This was the Beginning of all that Superstition, which, after the Flood, spread itself in the eastern Nations, and especially (s) among the Persians; for Idolatry or the Worshipping of Images was a later Invention. In this Posture he prays to the Sun to abate those violent Heats, which were the natural and immediate Cause of these Misfortunes, and having about that Time three Sons, he gives them the Names of (t) Light, Fire, and Flame, thereby plainly to shew those Deities, which they then began to worship: And as it is natural for wicked Men, and such as are justly forsaken of GOD for their Sins, (u) to wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived; so Cain proceeds farther, and dedicates the Plants of the Earth to the Sun, as the best Method which he could think of, to secure them from such Calamities for the Time to come. And the better to keep up the Remembrance thereof, he call'd the Name of a Son, who was born to him at that Time, Enoch, which Name in Hebrew signifies a Dedication. And now having rambled up and down like a fugitive and a vagabond in the land of Nod, now call'd Susiana, on the East Side of the Garden of Eden, and having a numerous Posterity, they people all these Parts, and whilst they employ themselves in Manuring and improving the Land, he still keeps himself on the eastern Side of the inhabited World, to be as far off as possible from (x) the Presence of the LORD, whom he had renounc'd, and as near as possible to the rising Sun, whom he had resolv'd to adore, and gracious Presence, excluded from thy Favour and Protection, and shall not have the Liberty to come before thy glorious Majesty, and therefore (s) I wish, that any Person, who lights upon me may kill me. But GOD said unto Cain, That (t) because he had committed such a barbarous Murder, any Person might in Justice be the Murderer of Cain, and Blood did require Blood, and the World being now of near an hundred and thirty Years standing, and Adam had a numerous Offspring, any one of which might kill him; yet it should not be so at this Time, his Life should be prolong'd in a miserable State, as an Example of divine Vengeance, and to deter others from committing the like Murder. Accordingly GOD was pleas'd to declare, that whoever did kill Cain, should suffer very severely for such a Fact; and thus GOD was pleas'd (u) to take Cain under his immediate Care and Protection, and strike (x) Terror upon others, as he did afterwards in the Case of Jacob and the Shechemites, that they who met with him, should not kill him. Thus Cain went away from the Rest of his Relations by the Force of that Divine Curse. He went from that divine Glory, which was visible in the West or in the Place appointed for divine Worship, and as Cain went eastward; so he never afterward enjoy'd the Sight of it again, but was banish'd from it. And tho' no one could hurt him; yet he being conscious of his own Guilt, wander'd about (x) fearful and trembling, and apprehensive of every thing, which he saw or heard. Some (y) farther add, that GOD stigmatiz'd him with a Letter of his Name in his Forehead, or set such a Brand upon him, as signified him to be accurs'd. Others say, that he look'd most frightfully, so that every Body avoided him, or that his Head shak'd continually, or that he had a Trembling in his whole Body, or that his Face was blasted by Lightning from the Presence of the LORD, and that he had some such notorious Mark of GOD's Displeasure. Some add, that (z) the very Ground shoke under him, which made People shun him, and run away from him, saying, This is the cruel Man, who kill'd his Brother. However, Cain (a) took to him his Sister Azrâh for a Wife, and liv'd in this Manner in (b) the Country of Susiana, which is on the East Side of the Garden of Eden, either hoping to have an early Opportunity to bring his Offspring into Paradise, or at least, that this being a plain level Country he might in some measure avoid the Curse, and receive the Fruits of his Tillage, and all his other Labours, in a greater Measure, than could be expected in a less fruitful Soil.

32. The Year after this Murder of Abel, Adam had a Son by (c) Eve, whom she call'd Seth, which in Hebrew signifies Appointed. As the Murder of Abel was fresh in her Memory; so she Anno Mundi look'd upon this Son as a Person 131. appointed and sent by GOD to make up the other Deficiency; and therefore she said, GOD hath appointed me another seed instead of Abel, whom Cain slew. The Arabick Historian (d) describes him to be of a beautiful Aspect, a strong Man, and of a perfect Stature, and the Father of the Giants, which were before the Flood. But the Scripture saith of him, (e) Adam begat this son in his own image, and after his own likeness, which he had since the Fall, and not (f) in the likeness and after the image of GOD, in which he was at first created. He was a sinful and corrupt Offspring of sinful and corrupt Parents. And as it was with him; so it is with all Mankind, who are descended from him.

32. But notwithstanding all this Defect, which Seth and all Mankind have by Nature, it is (g) universally agreed upon, that he was a good Man, that he was (h) carefully brought up under the Tuition of his Parents, and that as soon as he was able to distinguish between Good and Evil, he deliver'd himself up only to the Study of Virtue. coming to the River (y) Eulai formerly call'd Ulai, he was stopp'd in his Journey Eastward, as being unable to pass that River. Here therefore he fixes, and accordingly builds a City, having the Conveniency of a River on the one Side, that he might be supply'd with Water, and the Conveniency of a champion level Country on the other Side, that he might be supply'd with Provisions. This City he probably dedicates also to the Sun, and therefore calls its Name Enoch or a Dedication, which was the very Name that he had given to his Son before. And it is presum'd, that since the Flood, the City of Shushan was built upon the Ruins of it, which was afterward the Metropolis of the Empire of Persia.

36. The Family of Seth being educated in a true Sense of Religion, could not but be griev'd for such a Degeneracy in other Parts, altho' they kept themselves clear from such a Anno Mundi 236. Contagion; and therefore Seth having a Son at that Time, and it being usual for Parents to call their Children by such Names, as might signify some remarkable Occurrences, which then happen'd, he call'd his Name Enosh, which (z) signifies sorrowful or infirm, because of those Times. It being too evident, that (a) in these Days Men began to err, and made themselves Gods of their own Invention, and call'd those false Gods by the Name of the true one.

37. Concerning Enosh there is little mention'd by the Arabians; only in general they represent him to have been (a) well skill'd in natural Philosophy and Astronomy, a Man of singular Goodness, and one who neglected no Duty, whereby he might draw nigh to GOD; he also (b) during his Life Time govern'd his Family and preserv'd them in good Order, he set them a lively Example of Justice and the Fear of the LORD, which they practis'd accordingly.

38. At this Time the Family of Cain seems to grow worse and worse, at which Enosh being troubled, and *having a Son in the ninetieth Year of his Age, he call'd his Name Cainan, which signifies Lamentation and Mourning, and shew'd, that he was very much affected with the general Corruption of Manners and dreaded the Consequence. He is (c) also reckon'd to have been a good Man like his Father, and to have kept his Family in good Order. His cotemporary in the Race of Cain is not mention'd in Scripture, where it is not record-ed, that Enosh begat Irād, but in another Style, that (d) unto Enosh was born Irād, which might be equally true of a third or fourth distant Generation. But the History of (e) San- choniathō tells us, that the Parents of this Generation begat Men of vast Bulk and Height, whose Names are given to the Mountains which they first seiz'd; so that from them were call'd Mount Cassius, Libanus, and Antilibanus and Brathys. In the Days of these Men Instruments of War were invented, and the Posterity of Cain seems to have invaded their Neighbours, which put them upon a Necessity of defending themselves.

39. But tho' Cainan had his Name to signify the great Wickedness which was in the Family of Cain; yet he was not willing that it should be thought, that the whole World was as bad as that Family, Anno Mundi 396. and therefore being willing to leave a publick Testimony, that Religion was kept up by him, and having a Son when he was seventy Years of Age, he call'd his Name Mahalaleel, which Name in Hebrew signifies A Praiser of the LORD. It hath been the Opinion (f) of some, that Cainan gave this Name to his Son, because he was born after his Father had liv'd ten Weeks of Years, or when he was seventy Years old in the Beginning of the Sabbatical Year, which ended the eighth Jubilee after the Creation. Thus as there were Sacrifices and a Distinction of clean Beasts and unclean at that Time; so there might have been a Distribution of Years by Sevens, or Sabbatical Years, or Weeks of Years (as there were in after Times) from the Beginning of the World. But this can by no Means be inferr'd from the Age of Cainan at that Time, because the Jubilees or Epochas were not reckon'd from the Birth of any private person, but from some more remarkable Accident. If Mahalaleel had been born three Years after, in the Year of the World 399, this Conjecture had been more probable, because all Computations in those Ages seem to have began from the Creation, and the Years both of the Jubilee and the Sabbatical Years would have ended together; but as it happen'd three Years sooner, so the first of these do not fall right, and the other very wrong, and there can be no Certainty in such a Conjecture. This (g) Person is reckon'd to have been a King, and that he govern'd his People, walking with them in the Ways of Piety and Justice, and that his Father was a King, whose Sepulchre, as (h) the Jews fancy, was shewn to Alexander the Great in India; and when he dyed, he commanded all his Sons to come together to him, whom he blessed, and at the same Time declared his Son Jared to be his Successor. In the Time of Mahalaleel Idolatry had made a very great Progress (i) in the Race of Cain. For Usons, who was equidistant from Adam in the Genealogy, is reported to have consecrated the Stones, not so well polish'd as in after Times, or Pillars to the Fire and the Wind, which not long before had burnt the neighbouring Wood, and he bow'd down to them, and worship'd them, and pour'd out to them the Blood of such wild Beasts, as had been caught in Hunting.

40. When Mabalaleel was (k) sixty five Years old he had a Son, whom accordingly he call'd Jared, which signifies a Descending, because (l) the World grew worse and worse, and true Piety in his Time began very much to decline. But Jared being a good Man, and having a Name, which signify'd a general Corruption of Manners, had a (m) Son, when he was an hundred and sixty two Years old, and not being willing to give Anno Mundi Occasion to think, that all Man-
623. kind grew worse and worse, or that the Family of Seth were as bad as the Family of Cain, was willing to call his Son by a Name of a different Signification, and therefore he nam'd him Enoch, which Word signifies A Dedication. As Enoch the Son of Cain was so call'd, because at that Time the Plants and Fruits of the Earth were dedicated to the Sun, to preserve them from the Heat, and thus Superstition and Creature-Worship began; so Enoch the Son of Jared seems to be so call'd, because he was dedicated or devoted to the Service of GOD and the Exercise of Religion from his Childhood, as the Nazarites were in after Ages. Here we may (n) observe, that there is but little Difference between the Names of some of the Posterity both of Seth and Cain, that we should not fancy, there is an unaccountable fatal Omen in proper Names. The Wickedness of Judas Iscariot did not make the other Judas call'd by that Name, think the worse of it, or endeavour to change it for another, as had been done on other Occasions. Irak in one Family, and Jared in the other, have a great Resemblance; And Jared fear'd not to call his Son by the very Name of Cain's eldest Son. And Methuselah also gave his Son Lamech a Name which was us'd among the Posterity of Cain. However it is certain, that Enoch being thus dedicated betimes to the true Worship of GOD did lead the rest of his Life according to this Beginning. The Scripture saith of him, that (o) he walked with GOD, he (p) liv'd by faith, and had this testimony, that he pleas'd GOD. He was not only sincerely obedient to GOD, as we suppose his Forefathers to have been, but he was of an extraordinary Sanctity beyond the Rate of other holy Men, and he also persever'd in such a Course of singular Piety to the end of his Days, notwithstanding the Wickedness of the Age in which he liv'd. And (q) the very same Character being given of Noah may incline us to believe, that as Noah was (r) a preacher of righteousness; so Enoch being a Prophet was not only exemplary in his Life, but also severely reprov'd the Wickedness of that Age by his Word. As Writing is suppos'd to have been invented by Seth the Son of Adam; so Enoch is reported to have written several Books. The (s) Chaldee Paraphrase saith, that his Name was call'd Metatron, and seems to interpret it by the following Words a great Scribe: tho' (t) the learned Buxtorf is more inclin'd to interpret it by The Ambassador of GOD. Mahomet in his Alcoran (u) twice calls him Edris, and from him other Arabians call him by the same Name. The Word comes from a Verb, which properly signifies to fan or winnow Wheat, and Metaphorically to dispute or discourse critically on any Subject, and therefore signifies a learned and a judicious Person, an exact Disputer, and an accurate Searcher into difficult Truths, and the Reason of it (x) is given because of his manifold Knowledge. For the most high GOD sent thirty Volumes from Heaven to him, and he was the first who wrote with a Pen, and search'd into the Nature of the Stars. And another (y) saith, There are those, who affirm Enoch to be Edris the Prophet, to whom the Volume of the Law was sent down from Heaven, which goes by his Name. Origen (z) tells us, that some Part of Enoch's Works, which contain'd the Course of the Stars, their Names and Motions, were afterward found in Arabia felix, in the Dominion of the Queen of Sheba. And Tertullian affirms, that he had seen and read some whole Pages of them, and that there was a Book intitul'd The Revelation of Enoch, in which the Words were written, which were quoted by St. Jude. Celsus the Heathen quoted the same Book, and relates a Part of it, which (a) is mention'd by Origen, and (b) another Quotation is mention'd by Iræneus, and (c) later Authors of considerable Note do testify their Belief, that such Books were really extant. Tertullian (d) saith, that Enoch was before all other Writers, who foretold, that the Devils and the Spirits of the Apostate Angels, did turn into Idolatry all the Elements, and every thing else which is contain'd in the World, viz. the Heavens, the Sea and the Earth, and that they should be consecrated for Gods to the Dishonour of their Maker. And (e) he farther adds, That Enoch commanded his Son Methuselah to deliver to Posterity the Knowledge of those things, which we had learn'd by hereditary Tradition. Another Author (f) affirms, that he had seen the whole Book, and that therein he asserts, that the Angels were Apostates, who first taught Men Astrology, Divination and other Arts. The Jews believ'd that there was such a Book, it being cited by one of (g) their most ancient Writers. Georgius Syncellus had a Greek Book, which went under that Name, from whence Scaliger hath given us a large Account of it, in his learned Notes upon Eusebius, in which he speaks of those Arts which Men were taught by the Ministry of Angels. That (h) which shock'd the Authority of that Book, which was afterward extant, was because of its great Antiquity and of the Fables of Giants supposed to be begotten of Angels and others, and it was the more suspected, because, as (i) Tertullian (who affirms, that this Book might have been preserv'd by Noah) saith, that no such Book was found among the Canonical Scriptures, which were kept by the Diligence and Care of the Hebrew Priests. However, the Opinion of a (k) learned Commentator is most probable, who saith, that he believes the Book at first was very small, but that in Length of Time every one added to it, what they thought fit, to make their own private Notions pass the more current, as the Rabbins and others frequently did by Authors of Antiquity and Authority. But that there was such a Book written by Enoch is plain from the Authority of St. Jude, who (l) speaks of it as of a Book extant and undisputed in his Time, and that he spoke of the Judgments of GOD, which should fall upon the ungodly Men in such Expressions as might relate either to the Flood, or to the Destruction of Jerusalem, or the End of the World. And Enoch also the seventh from Adam prophesied of these, saying, Behold the LORD cometh with ten thousand of his saints, to execute his judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them, of all their ungodly deeds, which they have ungodly committed, and of all their hard speeches which ungodly sinners have spoken against them.

41. But that Enoch was a Prophet, and that it was reveal'd to him in particular not only that the World should be destroyed by a Flood, but also the Time when, is evident, because when (m) he was sixty five Years old he had a Son, whom he call'd Methuselah. For the first Part of the Name Methu evidently carries in it the Name of Death, signifying only He dies, and Selah signifies (n) The sending forth of Water. And therefore the Name Methuselah did plainly signify, that when he is dead, there shall happen an Emission or Inundation of Waters to the Destruction of the whole Earth, which is the Derivation us'd by (o) several Learned Men, and which happen'd accordingly. Since the Birth of Methuselah there is nothing remarkable concerning the Life of Enoch, but that (p) he carried on very grievous Wars against the Family of Cain. There is a long Story of him, which I shall set down in the Words of (q) the Author, and which must stand or fall by his single Credit, and it is thus. This Enoch was an observer of the pure Commands of GOD, and punctually perform'd them, he did that which was good, and avoided that which was evil, and continu'd in the Worship of GOD to the End of his Life. The Ancient Greeks (as he adds) are of the Opinion, that this Enoch was Hermes, who is call'd Trismegistus or the Author of a threefold Doctrine, because he describ'd GOD by his three essential Attributes, his Existence, Wisdom and Life. But the Arabians call him Eiris. And it is reported, that there were three Men, who were call'd by the Name of Hermes, of whom this is the first, who dwelt in Sais a Town of upper Egypt, and was the first of all Men, who treated of the heavenly Substances, and admonish'd the old World concerning the Flood, and fearing least Learning should perish, and the Arts should be forgotten, he built the Pyramids in which he engrav'd all the Arts, and the Instruments of each Art, and engrav'd on them the Orders of the Sciences, being desirous to preserve them intire to future Generations. The Second was the Babylonian Hermes, who dwelt in Calvada a City of the Chaldeans and flourish'd after the Flood, and was the first after Nimrod the Son of Cush, who built the City of Babylon. The third is Hermes (r) the Egyptian who is call'd Trismegistus, that is, possessing the third Part of Wisdom, because he was the third of the Wisemen, and a little of his Books have been translated, particularly his Speeches to his Disciple Tatius, being compos'd of Questions and Answers without any Connexion or Order, because the original Copy is worn out by the Injury of Time. But there is a Copy still extant in the Syriack Language. And it is now reported, that the first Hermes built an hundred and eighty Cities, of which Roba was the least, and that he prescrib'd to Men the Worship of GOD, Fasting, Prayers, and Alms, and that they should offer the best of all their first Fruits, of their Incense and Wine, and should abstain from Drunkenness and unlawful Food. But the Zabii think, that Seth the Son of Adam was the Egyptian Agathodæmon and instructor of this Hermes, and that Asclepiades was one of those Kings, who were instructed by Hermes, and that he was made by him a Governour of the fourth Part of the then habitable World, and which the Greeks possess'd after the Flood.

42. Concerning Methuselah I find nothing remarkable, but that as his Father Enoch liv'd the least Time of any in the Antediluvian

Age; so he liv'd the longest, even (a) nine hundred and sixty nine Years, and died in the Year, or as some say, in the very Week before the Flood, of which in its due Place. But when he was (b) an hundred and eighty seven Years of Age, he had a Son, whom he call'd Lamech, whose Name signifies, (c) a Man poor, humbled or smitten with Grief for the present Corruption and Fear of future Punishment. The Arabians frequently transpose (d) the Letters of his Name, and therefore call him Melek or a King. He was of the same Name with (e) one of Cain's Posterity, and therefore the acts of one are frequently ascrib'd to the other. But as this Lamech was of another Race; so he was the Grandchild and the Father of the best of Men in those Days, namely, Enoch and Noah, and his Father was the oldest Man mention'd in Scripture especially before the Flood, which was a Blessing suppos'd to be given him for his extraordinary Piety.

44. Tho' I rather incline to the History of Sanchroniatho, who makes but ten Generations before the Flood, and (f) consequently that there were two omitted between Enoch the Son of Cain and Irada, and that there was the Space of many Years between the fifth and sixth Genealogy; yet I cannot omit the Story of some of the Arabians, who make Lamech of the Race of Cain, like Enoch, the seventh from Adam, and consequently to be born about the Year 623, and tell us, that (g) when Adam was 30 Years old he was the Father of Cain, and (h) when Cain was 730 Years old, being old and weary, he frequently hid himself among Thickets and Thistles, and was dimsighted, and being always terrify'd at the Thoughts of his former Murder, he wander'd about and could not stay long in one Place. And Lamech also was dimsighted and was led about by a Boy, but being a Shepherd was us'd to cast Darts at a Mark, at which he was very expert. And being inform'd by this Youth, when he went a hunting, that he had seen something at a Distance, which appear'd to him to be like a wild Beast, and advis'd by him to shoot at it with his Bow, he shot at it with such Force, that the Arrow went through the Heart of Cain and kill'd him. And when he came to know the Truth, and that he had thus kill'd his great Grandfather Cain, he in a Rage for what he had done took up a Stone and fell upon the Youth, which had occasion'd the Mistake, with such Violence, that he beat him to Death. This Lamech was the first who (k) brought Polygamy into the World, and took unto him two wives, the name of the one was Adah, and the name of the other Zillah. And as the Use of Weapons was found out by one his Sons and grown common, and his Wives apprehended that some Body or other might make Use of them to slay him, he being in a vapouring Humour vindicates himself, and bids them be comforted and fear no Harm. He said unto his two Wives, Hear my voice ye wives of Lamech, and hearken unto my speech, for have I slain a man wilfully? or so much as a boy without a just Provocation that you should be afraid of my Life? If GOD hath guarded Cain so strongly, who was a deliberate and a wilful murderer, as to threaten long and great Punishments to those, who slay him, he would punish them far more, and pursue them with a longer Vengeance, who shall slay me, being a guiltless Person. If this History could be well attested, which St. Hierom saith, that several Christians in his Time believ'd to be true, it would clear up all the Difficulties in the Text; but since it is hard to find out the Occasion of that Speech of Lamech, every one is at Liberty to choose which he thinks best of the various Interpretations.

45. But as GOD at the Fall of our first Parents had (m) passed the Sentence of Death upon all men, because all had sinn'd, and had particularly told to Adam (n) that he must expect to return to the ground from whence he was taken; and that as he was dust at first, he should also return to the dust again; so now the Time comes that Adam must die. And (o) being himself sensible of it, he sends for Seth, Enosh, Canaan, and Mahalaleel, and charges them solemnly, that this was his Will, which he desir'd might be observ'd by all his Children, that when he was dead, they would embalm his Body with Myrrhe, Frankincense and Cassia, and place it in the Grave, which was call'd Alcanuz, which was in the Mountains near to Paradise. And that whoever of their Sons remain'd alive when they went away from the Borders of Paradise, they should also carry away his Body with them, and place it in the Midst of the Earth (or in Canaan, which lay in the Middle between Europe, Asia, and Africa, the former Division of the known World) For (saith he) from thence shall come my Salvation, and the Salvation of all my Posterity. Another Writer (p) adds to the Story thus, When the Death of Adam was near, he commanded his Son Seth to be present; and his Brethren and their Children and their Wives, to whom he gave a Charge, that they should dwell in the holy Mountain, which was opposite to Paradise, and that they should not go down from thence, or mix themselves with the Seed of Cain the Murderer, and he appointed Seth to be his Successor to govern his Sons and Grandchildren after his own decease; who embalm'd his Body as he was commanded, bury'd it in the Top of the Mount, and mourn'd for him forty Days. Some of the Jews (p) tell us, that GOD himself buried Adam, and seem to intimate, that no Man knew, where his Sepulchre was, lest his Posterity should abuse his Body, and make an Idol of it. But others, to make their own Country very famous, say that Adam was bury'd in the Cave of Machpelah, or the Double'd Cave, as the Word may be render'd, because the Pairs of Men and their Wives, namely Adam and Eve, Abraham and Sarah, Isaak and Rebecca, and Jacob and Leah were buried there, and that from these four Patriarchs (r) Hebron was anciently call'd Kirjath Arba, or the City of the four.

46. Immediately upon the Death of Adam, Seth (being weary'd with the Wickedness of the Family of Cain his Neighbours, and fearing that now they would prove worse and worse, and commit more publick and open Hostilities) retires from (s) the Plain, where they had liv'd before, and from the Family of cursed Cain. And Seth took his eldest Son Enosh, and Cainan the Son of Enosh, and Mahalaleel the Son of Cainan and their Wives, and brought them up into that high Mountain on the Top of which Adam was bury'd. But Cain and all his Posterity liv'd beneath in the Valley, where Abel was kill'd, and so they took Possession of those Countries which were forsaken by Seth. Upon this Seth was made the Ruler and Governour of those People, who went with him. And these Inhabiters of the Mountains became very famous for their Holiness and Justice and Purity. They were continually employ'd in the Praises of GOD, and (if my Authors can be believ'd) they were so nigh to the heavenly Paradise, when they were remov'd to a greater Distance from the earthly, that they heard the Voices of Angels celebrating the Praises of GOD, and joyn'd with them in those sacred Hymns, and heavenly Benedictions, and they with their Wives and Children were call'd by one common Name, The Sons of GOD. And whilst Cain and his Posterity did live upon the Fruits of the Earth, which they sow'd, these were detain'd by no servile Labours, they were not employ'd by Plowing nor Harvest, they liv'd contented with the Fruits of the Trees alone, which grew in these holy Mountains. They were absolutely free from all Envy and Desire of Contention. Their only Oath was by the Blood of Abel. They daily frequented the Top of the holy Mountain, where they prais'd GOD, and تباركوا بجد آدم they blest'd one another by the Body of Adam.

47. But as GOD had shewn an Example of (t) Mortality by the Death of Adam so he afterward shew'd an Example of Immortality by the Translation of (u) Enoch. This Moses expresseth thus, And Enoch walked with GOD, and was not, for GOD took him. Concerning this Translation there were various Opinions. One saith, (x) that GOD chose Enoch, and translated him unto himself. Another adds, (y) that when Enoch was exalted into Heaven, he measur'd the circular heavenly Orb, and view'd all the Constellations, and the twelve Signs, in which the Planets did move, and came down to the Earth again. And the same Author speaks as his own Opinion, (z) that Enoch abode in the Earth, after the Birth of Methuselah worshipping GOD in Purity. And he ask'd of GOD that he would translate him into the Paradise, in which Adam had been, and his Petition was granted; for GOD took him thither alive after he had liv'd 365 Years. The Author of the Book of * Ecclesiasticus, as it is in the Vulgar Translation saith, he went into Paradise, and upon this Supposition the Ethiopick Interpreter hath added these Words to the Text, GOD translated him into Paradise. And accordingly we find in the Kalendar of that Church, a Festival upon July XXV, call'd, The Ascension of Enoch into Heaven. As to the Manner of his Translation: Some say that he was taken out of the World by Death, and according to (a) the common Fate; others, that he was carry'd off both with Body and Soul, and still lives, as he did before; and others, that he was translated by the Change of a corruptible Nature into an incorruptible. This was certainly the Opinion of (b) St. Paul, the best of all the Commentators, on Moses, who saith, that By faith Enoch was translated, that he should not see death, and was not found, because GOD had translated him, for before his translation he had this testimony, that he pleased GOD. The learned (c) Bochartus hath prov'd, that the Greeks by Atlas meant Enoch. His Story was not therefore unknown to the Greeks inso-much that they had Anno Mundi 988. a Proverb (d) Ta Kāvvaia or Ta Kāvvaia, The things of Enoch or Chanoth, which is the same in the Hebrew, to signify something of the greatest Antiquity, or a very great Lamentation. It is said of him (e) that he foresaw the Flood, and therefore took that Occasion to admonish the Men of that Age to Mourning and Repentance. Another Author saith, (f) that

Enoch liv'd above three hundred Years, and when the Inhabitants of that Place inquir'd of the Oracle how long he should live, they had this Answer return'd, that when he died they should all perish. And therefore on his being taken from them, they made so great a Lamentation, that to weep for Enoch became a Proverb. It is certain that Enoch foresaw the Flood, and therefore call'd his Son Methuselah, which signifies, When he is dead, an Inundation shall be sent, and therefore they did interpret that of the Father, which was meant of the Son, and consequently did lament his so miraculous a Translation as a certain Sign of an universal Ruin and Destruction.

48. When Enoch was translated, the World immediately grew much worse than it was before. Perhaps when they saw not those Judgments come upon them, which at first they fear'd, they harden'd their Hearts and grew more secure in Sin. Josephus (g) saith, that for seven Generations (meaning till the Death of Enoch) Men liv'd in the Exercise of Virtue, and in the Love and Fear of one GOD the LORD of all things; but from thence forward they degenerated from the Ways of their Fathers, leading their Lives without any Reverence or Regard either to religious Duties or human Justice, and taking twice as much Pains to outstrip others in Wickedness, as they had formerly done to make themselves eminent for Goodness. This abominable Impiety drew down the Wrath of Heaven upon them, and (as he erroneously saith) the (h) Angels of GOD mixing with the Women begat an insolent Race, not much unlike (i) that of the Giants in the Greek Fables; overbearing Right with Power. Some of the Arabians say, that immediately after the Death of Adam, when the Family of Seth had withdrawn themselves from the Plain, and had dwelt in the holy Mountain, which they call'd Hermon; their Lives and Conversations were unblameable in all Godliness and Honesty. But that (k) in the fortieth Year after the Death of E-

noch, the Sons of GOD, or several of the Posterity of Seth, went down from this Mountain, when they despair'd of their Return into Paradise, and desir'd Wives, and when they, who were nearly related to them, despis'd them, and refus'd to give them Wives, the Family of Cain invited them to marry with them, offering their Daughters of their own accord, and accordingly Giants were produc'd of this Mixture, who were remarkable for Wars and hostile Engagements. Elmachinus (l) expresses it thus. In the Days of Jared, a Defection happen'd to a great Number of the Sons of Cain, who publickly had corrupted themselves; insomuch that the Noise of their Revellings was heard in the holy Mountains among the Posterity of Seth. Upon this an hundred Men of them being gather'd together were willing to go down from the Mountain to the Sons of Cain, at which Jared was very much concern'd, and endeavour'd to dissuade them from it. But they despising his kind Admonitions, went down, and joyn'd themselves to the Daughters of Cain. But Eutychius gives us the Story more at large (m) thus. As to the Posterity of Cain the Murderer, the Men did violently burn in Lust towards the Women, and in the same Manner, the Women without any Shame committed Fornication with the Men, so that they were guilty of all Manner of filthy Crimes with one another, and meeting together publickly for this Purpose, two or three Men were concern'd with the same Woman, and the ancient Women were, if possible, more lustful, brutish and wanton than the Younger. Thus the Fathers liv'd promiscuously with their Daughters, and the young Men with their Mothers, insomuch, that neither the Children could distinguish their own Parents, nor the Parents could know their own Children. Besides, they us'd all manner of musical Instruments, so that the Sound of their Noise and Mirth ascended to the Top of the holy Mountain, which when the Posterity of Seth had heard, an hundred of them agreed together, that they would go down to the Posterity of cursed Cain, whilst Jared endeavour'd to make them swear by the Blood of Abel, that they would not go down from the holy Mountain. But they little regarding his Words, follow'd their own Inclinations, and when they were in the Plains; they beheld the Daughters of cursed Cain, that they were fair to look on, and naked without Shame, and they burn'd with Lust toward them. Also the Daughters of Cain beholding these Men, that they were of a beautiful Aspect, and of a very large and Gigantick Stature, and being more brutish than the Beasts, defil'd their Bodies with them, and thus the Sons of Seth perish'd by committing Fornication with the Daughters of Cain. And afterward these Daughters of cursed Cain brought forth Giants to the Sons of Seth. And in Process of Time when the Sons of Seth, who had joyn'd themselves to the Daughters of cursed Cain, were willing to go back again to the holy Mountain, the Stones of the Mountain were turned into Fire, so that it was absolutely impossible for them to return to their Ancestors. And after that Time several of the same Family began one after another to go down from the Mountain to the Daughters of cursed Cain. This seems to be but a Comment upon (n) the Words of Moses. And it came to pass, when men began to multiply upon the face of the earth, and daughters were born unto them, That the sons of GOD saw the daughters of men (the Sons of Seth, who were call'd the Sons of GOD because of their Holiness, saw the Daughters of Cain) that they were fair; and they took them wives of all, which they chose. There were giants in the earth in those days; and also after that, when the sons of GOD came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children unto them; the same became mighty men, which were of old, men of renown.

136 The SCRIPTURE CHRONOLOGY. Chap. X.

49. About this Time in the Race of Cain, Agreus and Haliens, (o) the Inventors of Hunting and Fishing, had other Children, and two of them were Brethren, who first invented the Casting and Forging of Iron. One of these was call'd Chrysor, (which Name signifies, A Worker in the Fire, and Sanchoniatho affirms him to the same with Hephaestus or Vulcan) who exercis'd himself in Words, and Charms, and Divinations, and he found out the Hook, Bait and Fishing Line, and Boats slightly made, and he was also the first of all men that sail'd. And for these his Benefactions to Mankind he was also worshipp'd after his Death for a GOD, and they call'd him Diamychius; and some say, that his Brethren invented the Way of making Walls of Brick. In Scripture we have no more of this Generation than the Name of one of them, who was call'd (p) Mebujae!

50. And now the Time comes, when Seth the Son of Adam must also die, who (q) a little before his Death lends for Enosh, Canan, Mahalaleel, Jared, Enoch, and their Children, and their whole Families, whom he blessed, and commanded them by his last Words, that they should worship the GOD of their Father Adam, and caus'd them to swear by the holy Mountain, or suffer any of their Children to go down, or especially to be joyn'd in Marriage with the Children of Cain that accursed Murderer. He also made his Son Enosh his Successor over his Children, and after that he died on the third Day of the Month Ab, which answers to our July or August, in the nine hundred and twelfth Year of his Life. And his Sons embalm'd his Body, bury'd him in the private Cave, where Adam was buried, in the holy Mountain, and mourned for him forty Days.

51. When Lamech was (r) an hundred and eighty two Years old he had a Son. And as it was revealed to Enoch, at the Birth of Methuselah, that at his Death the whole Race of Mankind should be destroy'd for their Wickedness; so it was reveal'd to Lamech at the Birth of his Son, Anno Mundi 1057. that he and his Family should be preserv'd from the common Destruction for his Piety, and so he should be the Father of the new World. Accordingly he calls his Name Noah (which in Hebrew signifies a Comforter) and gives this Reason for it. That this very Man should be a Comfort to them. Some think Lamech expected, that Noah should be the blessed Seed promised to Adam, which should bruise the Serpent's Head, or that it should spring immediately from him. But it is the Opinion of most, that Lamech expected some inferior Consolation from Noah. He should comfort them concerning the work and toil of their hands, because of the ground, which the LORD hath curs'd. And the Hebrew Interpreters generally expound it thus. He shall make our labour in tilling the earth less toilsome and more easy to us. There was a general Curse upon the Earth for the Sin of Adam, and a particular Curse upon some Part of it for the Sin of Cain; and now GOD foretells that he would take them both off in a great Measure, and bless the Earth to the Posterity of this Man, who perfected the Art of Husbandry, and found out fitter Instruments for plowing the Earth than had been known before. When Men were chiefly employ'd in digging and throwing up the Earth with their own Hands, their Labour was more difficult, which was afterward much abated, because the Work did then lay more upon Beasts than Men. And indeed Noah is call'd (s) a man of the earth, which we translate An Husbandman; because he improv'd Agriculture, as other famous Men had improv'd Pastorage, and found out other Arts. Besides we (u) read also, that Noah planted a vineyard, and the Text seems to intimate, that he was the first Inventor of making Wine, and in this Respect he might well be said to comfort them concerning the work and toil of their hands; because Wine cheers the Heart, and revives the Spirits of Men, that are spent with Labour.

52. But as Enoch the Grandfather of Lamech had foretold, that GOD would curse the Ground, by sending a Flood upon it; so in this Sense also Noah might very properly be call'd a Comforter, because he should be the Restorer and Father of the whole World, after it had been dispeopled by that dreadful Inundation. He should comfort them (x) in Respect to both Curses. He should give Men Rest from that Curse, which GOD had already inflicted, and which he intended farther to inflict upon the Earth.

Chap. X. The SCRIPTURE CHRONOLOGY. 137

53. From the next Generation in the Race of Cain (y) sprung up two Brothers, one of which was call'd Technites, that is, The Artist, and the other was call'd Geinus or Autochthon, that is, The Home born Man of the Earth. These found out the Way to mingle Stubble or small things with the bricky Earth, and to dry them with the Sun, and so made Tiling. In Scripture we have no more of this Generation than the Name (z) Methusael.

54. Enosh the Grandson of Adam finding that his Death was now approaching, (a) calls to him his Children, Grandchildren, and Great grandchildren, that so he might give them his Blessing, and when they were gather'd to him he commanded them, that they should live holily, and particularly cautions them, that they should not joyn themselves with the Offspring of Cain the Murderer. And after he had appointed Cainan to be his Successor, he died and was buried in the same Cave with Adam and Seth.

55. In the same Manner (a) when the Death of Cainan was near, he orders his Son Mahaleel to be brought to him, whom he adjur'd by the Blood of Abel, that he would not suffer any of his Children to go down to the Posterity of Cain, and when he (b) had appointed his eldest Son Mahaleel to be his Successor, he died in the fourth Day of the Month Cheziran, and was embalm'd and bury'd in the same Cave with his Ancestors, and they mourn'd for him forty Days according to Custom.

56. From the next Generation in the Race of Cain sprung up two other Persons, (c) one of which was call'd Agrus, a Field, and the other Agrouerus or Agrotus an Husbandman, who had a Statue, which was very much worshipp'd, and a Temple carried about by one or more Yoak of Oxen in Phœnicia. And among the People of Byblus he is eminently call'd Hyppistus or the greatest of the Gods. These found out how to make Courts about Men's Houses, and Fences, and Caves and Cellars. Husbandmen, and such as us'd Dogs in Hunting, deriv'd their Skill from these; and seem'd to own them as their tutelar Deities. And they are also call'd Aletæ or Titans. And Hyppistus dying in a Fight with wild Beasts was consecrated and made a God, and his Children offer'd Sacrifices and Libations to him. Here Idolatry makes a very great Progress in the World, especially in the Family of Cain. And such as had found out any useful Inventions, or had done any signal Service to the Publick in their Life Time, were afterward honour'd as Gods, whilst the Worship due to the true GOD was generally neglected by them.

57. Mahaleel the Son of Cainan finding that his Death was approaching, (d) commands his Sons to be brought before him, and appoints Jared to be their Governor after he had given them his Blessing, and (e) adjures his Son Jared by the Blood of Abel, that he would not suffer any of his Posterity to go down from the Mountain to the Posterity of Cain that cursed Murderer. And it is also reported of Jared, that (f) when the Time of his Death was near, he call'd to him Enoch, Methuselah, Lamech, and Noah and their Children, and said to them, Ye know very well what your Children have design'd, and how that laying aside the Commandments of their dying Parents, they have gone down from the Mountain, and being joyn'd with the Daughters of Cain they have defil'd themselves. Therefore take heed to keep yourselves undefiled, and go not down from this holy Mountain. And after he had blessed them, he appointed his eldest Son Enoch to be his Successor; (g) concluding with these Words. I know very well, that the great and good GOD will not leave you always in this Mountain. Whoever therefore of you shall go down from hence to the Place appointed for him, let him take with him the Body of Adam, together with proper Oblations, and bury him in the Place, where GOD shall command him to be buried. And after this he died on the twelfth Day of the Month Adar, which answers to our February or March.

58. From the next Generation in the Race of Cain (h) sprung up two other Persons who were call'd Amyrus and Magus, who taught Men to constitute Villages and Flocks; and about this Time was first invented the building of a compleat Ship. These might therefore be cotemporary with the Children of Lamech of the Race of Cain, who introduc'd Polygamy into the World, and was the first that adventur'd to transgress the (i) original Institution, which was for one Man to cleave to one Wife, and which seems to be observ'd by the Family of Cain until this Time. But when Men professedly break the solemn Commands of the first Table, it is not likely, that they should observe the solemn Obligations of the second, and they who were so eagerly bent upon a strange Worship, did also as eagerly pursue other strange Impurities. There have been some of Opinion, that his earnest Desire of seeing that blessed Seed, which was promised to Eve, might induce him to take more Wives than one, hoping that by the multiplying his Posterity, one or other of them might prove so happy as to produce that Seed. And this he might possibly think to be the more likely, because he might conclude, that the Right, which was originally in Cain the first born, might be reviv'd in him. And that he being the seventh from Cain had some Reason to imagine, that the Curse laid upon him of being punish'd sevenfold or for seven Generations was now expir'd, and his Posterity was restor'd to the Right of fulfilling the Promise. But this is not likely. None but a good Man could hope for such a Blessing, and a good Man could not hope to obtain so great a Blessing by such evil Means. Besides, it is most likely, that Idolatrous Worship, being begun long ago by Cain himself, might before this Time obliterate all the Promises, and most of the Precepts, which were given to Adam; and that Lamech being a wicked Man, and only to gratify his Lusts and Passions committed this Sin, and so improv'd upon those Impieties, which were too common in the World before. It is certain, (k) that Lamech took unto him two wives, the name of the one was Adah, which signifies adorn'd, elegant or neat, and the name of the other was Zillah, which signifies a Shadow or a Ghost, and consequently not a real Wife, being illegally joyn'd to him. His first Wife Adah had a Son, which he call'd Jabal, and was the first Inventor of making Tents, or at least an excellent Master in that Art, so that all others took their Patterns from him. He taught them how to fold their Flocks, and all other Sorts of Pasturage; which tho' it was begun by Abel, yet it was not brought to Perfection by him: or if it was, yet Jabal was the first in the Family of Cain, who was eminent in these Inventions. He taught Men to pitch their Tents, which were moveable Houses, that might easily be carried from Place to Place, when there was Occasion to remove for new Pasture. He taught them how to breed up and feed their Cattle. And tho' Men fed Cattle before in good Pastures; yet Jabal was the first, who by the Invention of Tents, made the more desert Countries servicable to them; where when they had eaten up all the Grass in one Place, they might in a little Time take up their Tents, and fix them in another. And he also taught them, how to defend themselves and their Cattle in these Tents from the Heat and Cold, and all other Dangers, to which they were expos'd in those desert Places.

59. Another Son of Lamech by his Wife Adah was call'd (l) Jubal. He was either the first who invented Musical Instruments, and taught Men to play upon them, or at least improv'd Musick to a much greater Height, and made it much more delightful than it was before, and he was also well skill'd in both Sorts, either the string'd Musick, such as the Harp, or in the wind Musick, such as the Organ was in those early Times.

60. And Zillah the other Wife of Lamech

had a Son, who was an Instructor (m) or a Whetter on of every artificer of brass and iron, to improve their Workmanship, and bring it to a greater Perfection. He is said to have found out the Art of melting Metals, and making all Sorts of Weapons, Arms, and other Instruments of Iron and Brass. The Name Tubal-cain in the * Arabick and Persick Languages signifies the Iron or Brass Plate of Cain, and so may mean One of the Race of Cain, who found out the Method of casting those Metals into Plates. And he had a Sister by the same Father and Mother, whose Name was Naamah, and is suppos'd to have been the same with Minerva or Venus among the Heathens, and Astarte or Ashtaroth the Goddess of the Zidonians, and also to have been the Wife of Ham, who made a considerable Figure in the World after the Flood. Her Name signifies beautiful, or fair, or one of a sweet Aspect, and the Arabian Writers represent her as such, and say, that she invented Colours and the Art of Painting.

61. But as neither a long Series of Prosperity, nor a long Continuance in Sin without Impunity, can always keep off the Terrors of an evil Conscience; so it seems, that (n) Lamech at last came to a Sense of his Sin, especially when he saw the fatal Consequences of it, in an Age that was so prone to all Manner of Impiety and so apt to follow any Example of that Nature. And being afterward in company with both his Wives he speaks to them in this Manner. Hear my voice, ye wives of Lamech, and hearken to my speech, For whilst I was in the Heat of Youth, I was guilty of that great Sin of Polygamy, of which you both are Witnesses, by which I have been the Occasion of my own Destruction; and my Example hath also been of fatal Consequence, it hath infected the Men of this Generation, and particularly my own Family, which adds to my Trouble. If therefore so heavy a Judgment fell upon Cain for the Murder of Abel, who was a good Man, so that he could only kill the Body, and his Example was imitated by no other, what Punishment must be inflicted on Lamech, who hath given so fatal an Example to others, and thereby hath occasion'd the Destruction both of the Bodies and Souls of thousands in Hell Fire.

62. Hitherto here was some Remorse of Conscience; but afterward the Arms and Weapons improv'd by Tubalcain, did contribute very much to heighten and enrage the Passions, and the Improvements of Musick by Jubal made them lay aside all serious Thought and Reflection. For (o) now the World beginning to be very populous and more freightned in their Habitations did endeavour to spoil and ruin one

I take the Word Tubal to signify the Name of the Person from his Employment, and the Word Cain to distinguish him from others in different Families; since the Wars, which were then in the World made it necessary for them all to endeavour to improve the Art of making Weapons, and consequently of Casting and Forging Metals to the greatest Perfection. (n) Gen. 4. 23, 24. (o) Gen. 6. 1. another another, and invade each others Properties, without any Regard to Right or Wrong. Among the Sons of Cain there were barbarous Murders, Polytheism and Idolatry, Polygamy, Incest and all Uncleanneſs. The (p) Great Men, Nobles, Rulers and Judges alſo, who were of the Family of Seth, and therefore were ſometimes call'd The Angels of GOD or his great Miniſters in the World, were allur'd with the Beauty of the Daughters of the meaner Sort, and took by Force and Violence as many of them as they pleas'd, being ſo powerful as to be able to do any thing with Impunity. For they, who ſhould have given a good Example, and puniſh'd Vice, were the grand Promoters of it. And (q) when they who were thus abus'd did endeavour to redreſs their Grievances in a judiciary Manner, the judges ſided with one another, that they might all eſcape. Bribes were taken, Juſtice was perverted, the Poor were oppreſſed by Force, and they who ſate in Judgment, were the moſt partial of any.

63. Neither were the Sons of Seth leſs guilty than the Sons of Cain, for they converſing with one another, and being exceedingly taken with the Beauty of their Daughters, made Matches with them, and perhaps took more than one a piece, without Regard to any thing except the Gratifying of their own carnal Luſts and Appetites, like brute Beaſts which have no Underſtanding. And now they, who had hitherto for the moſt Part kept themſelves unmingled with the Poſterity of Cain, according to a ſolemn Charge which their pious Forefathers had given them, without regarding the Oaths which they had made to the contrary by the Blood of Abel, were joyn'd to them in Marriage, and made one People with them. The Beauty of Naamah and others, and the Muſick of her Brother Jabal were Snares to them. For the Family of Cain ſpent their Time in Feaſting, Muſick, Dancing and Sports, which allur'd the Children of Seth to come down and marry with them. And thus all Manner of Impiety, Idolatry, Impurity, Rapine and Violence fill'd the whole Earth with the utmoſt Impunity. And the beſt of Men having deſil'd themſelves with ſuch a curſed Affinity, were alſo thereby corrupted with their wicked Manners. And Moses giving this Account (q) immediately after tells us the Names of Noah's three Sons, and ſeems to intimate thereby, that they were in ſome Meaſure guilty of the ſame Practices, and were only ſav'd from the Deluge for their Father's Sake. And if it was ſo with them, how great a Corruption muſt be expected in other Families?

64. At this Time there were alſo (r) Men of vaſt Stature and Strength, which tempted them to oppreſs others by Violence, who carry'd all before them by main Force, and fill'd the World with their Rapines, and Murders, and all Manner of Wickedneſs; they were Men of great Undertakings and adventurous Actions, which got them a great Name in ancient Time. Eusebius thinks that they had Society with the Devil in infernal Arts, which they introduc'd. Josephus calls them insolent Contemners of the Laws of GOD and Men. And the Arabian Writers ſay, that theſe Giants were produc'd by thoſe Men, who went down and mix'd with the Poſterity of Cain in the Days of Jared. And beſides thoſe which were before, this other and more univerſal Mixture of the Sons of Shem with the Family of Ham produc'd another Race of Men of the ſame Stature and Temper with the Former.

65. This Univerſal Corruption of Manners provokes GOD to enter into Judgment. He well knew, that (s) all Sorts of Wickedneſs had overſpread the whole Earth in an high Degree; and that there was no Hope of their Amendment, their very Minds being ſo ſet upon Wickedneſs, that they thought of nothing elſe but to ſatisfy their Luſts. The Deſigns and Contrivances of the Men of that Age both Day and Night were only Rapine, Filthineſs and all Manner of Evil. This made GOD angry (t) and concern'd, if we may ſpeak of him after the Manner of Men. He ſaw (u) no Fruits of his Longſuffering and Patience appear in their Amendment; and therefore he reſolves to puniſh them for their Wickedneſs. Accordingly he declares to the World, (x) that his Spirit ſhould not always chide and reprove them, and thereby endeavour to bring them to Repentance. He would not always ſpeak by his Prophets ſuch as Enoch had been and Noah was, or work inwardly in their Hearts as in the Caſe of Lamech. But he would leave them to their own Luſts, and in due Time proceed to deſtroy them. However, he would not deſtroy them immediately, but there ſhould be the Space of an hundred and twenty Years, during which Time the Ark was preparing, which might have been another Method to induce the diſobedient World to Repentance, if they had not been harden'd to the uttermoſt againſt all Means of Conviction. And (y) tho' they were the Creatures of GOD; yet being now transform'd into the Likeneſs of the Devil, he was reſolv'd to have no Pity upon them, but to bring ſuch a miraculous Punishment, as would in its own Nature ſweep all away, and leave nothing of the old World remaining, but only what ſhould be as miraculoſly preſerv'd as a Seed for the new one.

66. It is now high Time to come to the History of Noah the Preſerver of his Family in this univerſal Deſtruction, of whom Moses ſpeaks the largeſt of any except Adam before the Flood, and who is generally mention'd by the Prophets and Apoſtles with Reſpect and Eſteem. Moses ſaith of him, that (z) he was the ſingle Perſon, whom GOD reſolv'd to spare, because he continu'd untainted in the Midst of an universal Contagion. He was not guilty (a) of any of those other Sins, which every where abounded; but he led a pious, chaste, and virtuous Life, he continu'd constant in the Way of Righteousness; and the Reason was, because he always set GOD before his Eyes, he concluded, that there was a GOD, who would in due Time punish that wicked Race, and deliver and reward those, who serv'd him uprightly, and this made Noah live as in the immediate Presence of GOD, and as one who must give an Account of all his Actions to him. The Prophet Ezekiel (b) compares him to Daniel and Job, and saith, that if GOD did resolve to punish any Country with an universal Devastation either by Famine, Wild Beasts, War or Pestilence, such a Man would deliver his own Soul by his Righteousness. And St. Peter saith, (c) that when GOD brought the Flood upon the World of the ungodly he saved Noah and his Family, and seems to give this as a Reason, because he was a preacher of righteousness. He not only took Care of his own Life, but was as diligent to insill the Precepts of Piety, Justice and Temperance into others, and did his utmost to reform that wicked World. As he was of the Posterity of Seth; so he was born among them: And when they mix'd with the Posterity of Ham; so it is probable that he went down with them, not with a Design to joyn with them in any Impiety, but to dissuade them from it, and if possible, to keep them pure from such a Contagion. Accordingly GOD by his Providence caus'd him to settle in a Country call'd Cyparission on the North North East Side of the City of Babylon, not far from the City of Arbela, where Alexander the Great beat Darius and so put an End to the Persian Empire. This was a Country, where Cypress Trees grew in great Plenty, and from whence it took its Name, and also where great Quantities of Timber or other Materials might be easily brought by the Rivers Gorgus and Caprus, from the Tigris or Euphrates or either of the other Rivers which lead to Babylon or Paradise. Here GOD (d) reveal'd unto him, that he was resolv'd to destroy all Mankind with the Beasts and Fruits of the Earth in a little Time, and accordingly commanded him to make a strange Fabrick of Wood to dwell in upon the Water not fit for sailing like our Ships or Boats, but without either Rudder or Sails to guide it, and which therefore had a flat Bottom like a Chest, with a Cover or a Roof to carry off the Rain, and so large, that it might contain two of each sort of living Creatures, and seven of each sort, which were clean and accounted fit for Sacrifices, and large enough to contain Food enough for them all for above a full Year. And accordingly he made an Ark of such Dimensions as GOD reveal'd to him, and laid up Provision for all the Creatures, as he was directed.

67. As the Ark was begun to be built, when Noah was four hundred and eighty Years old; so it is very probable, that he had several Children born to him before that Time, who might be employ'd in this Work; but if so, they were all destroy'd in the Flood, or died before it: And as they might have Wives and Children before that Time, so they might dwell in separate Families, and like the (e) Sons in Law of Lot, might despise the Warning, which had been so often given them, and perish accordingly in the common Destruction. The Persons which were preserv'd by Noah in the Ark were his Wife, and his three youngest Sons, and their Wives, being (f) but eight in all, and the eldest of these was born twenty Years after the Ark was began to be built: and thus (g) by faith Noah being warn'd of GOD concerning things not seen as yet, but being moved with fear, he began to prepare an Ark for the saving of his household, which were not born as yet; by which (as the Apostle saith) he condemned the world, and became an heir of that righteousness, which is by faith.

68. The eldest of these Sons was Japhet, who (h) is therefore call'd the elder, and he was born (i) when Noah was five hundred Years old. The Second was Shem, who was born (k) two Years after, tho' (l) always mention'd the first of the three, because the Promis'd Messias was to come of his Seed. The youngest was (m) Ham who is expressly mention'd as such by Moses. The Time of his Birth is uncertain; but it could not be long after the Birth of Shem, because he was marry'd before the Flood, and in all Probability his Son Canaan was born soon after the Flood, about the same Time with Arphaxad the Son of Shem: And therefore as there were two Years between the Birth of Japhet and Shem; so we may reasonably allow about two Years between the Birth of Shem and Ham.

69. The Eastern Writers call the Wife of Noah by several Names, as (n) Titsiah, Naa-mah, and Aritsiah or earthly, because like the Earth she was the Mother of all living. Others call Noah Ouranus or Heaven, and his Wife Ge, or the Earth, as the Words are in Greek, or Adamah as it is in the Hebrew, and thus they interpret that of Moses, (*) Noah began to be an Husbandman, or the Husband of the Earth or of Adamah. Another Writer is so (†) positive as to say, that the Name of Noah's Wife was Haical the Daughter of Namusa the Son of Enoch; and that his three Sons took them Wives of the Daughters of Metushelah, and that the Name Shem's Wife was Salit, the Name of Ham's Wife was Nahlat; and the Name of Japhet's Wife was Arififah. It is probable, that the Wives of Noah, Shem and Japhet were of the Posterity of Seth, and that none of these marry'd into the Race of Cain, because they were esteem'd to be Men of Piety and Virtue, and therefore most likely to observe the command, which seems to be handed down from their Ancestors, that they should not marry into strange Families. As for Ham his Character was different from the Rest, and therefore a Curse was in-rail'd on his Posterity for his Immoralities. So that since (n) Plutarch tells us, that some call'd the Wife of Ham Nemans, it is easy to conjecture that she was Naamah the Daughter of Lamech, Sister of Tubal-cain of the Race of Cain, the last Person mention'd in that Line, and the only Woman before the Flood of whose Birth Moses takes any Notice of. It is probable, that Moses would not have mention'd this Woman by Name, if she had not been a Person of great Fame in the World. And if Ham was marry'd to her, we may give a very probable Reason, why both he and his Race fell so soon into Idolatry; notwithstanding his Father was so free from it; and especially how they came to worship the Sun, Moon and Stars, make Images of their Ancestors, and perform divine Worship to them; namely, because Ham himself might have been guilty of it, whilst he was conversant in the Family of Cain, and there he also learn'd the Vices of Oppression, Invading the Countries of their Neighbours by Force of Arms without any Regard to Right or Wrong, which was not so visible in the Families of Shem and Japhet after the Flood; but was very eminent in Ham and his Wife, who was afterward call'd Astarte; in Misraim and his Wife Osiris; in his Son Cush, and especially in his Grandson Nimrod the Founder of the Assyrian Monarchy.

70. As Mahomet himself hath forg'd many (o) idle Stories concerning Noah, thereby to give some Colour to his own Imposture; so it would be endless to reckon up what (p) the Commentators upon the Alcoran, and others have invented upon this Subject. They tell us, that as soon as he was born, his Father Lamech resolv'd to kill him, and for the Preventing such an untimely Death, he was hid in a Cave, and so lay conceal'd from all Men, 'til the Death of his Father, and after that he was brought forth, and liv'd the Life of a Shepherd. And that GOD had appointed him to be a famous Prophet, to warn the Idolaters of those Times of the Judgments of GOD which should come upon them, that so he might bring them off from Idolatry, and restore the true Religion among them. Josephus gives us the Story of (q) Noah, thus, He took those impious Extravagancies so to Heart, that after several Trials

Trials both by his Counsel and Authority to bring them to a Reformation of their Lives, and an Amendment of their Manners, and finding no Good to be done at last upon a Generation so incorrigibly obstinate, and abandon'd to their Lusts, but that on the contrary he himself and his Family were in manifest Danger of some mortal Violence for his good Will, he departed out of the Land himself and all his People. This good Man was highly in Favour with GOD for his Integrity; but the Corruption and Iniquity of the Age cry'd out so loud to Heaven for Vengeance, that GOD resolv'd within himself utterly to destroy the present Generation of Mankind, and to supply another and a better Race of Men in their stead. Elmachinus (s) saith, that there was such a general Corruption of Manners, that no one remain'd in the Mount except Noah and his three Sons, his Wife and his Son's Wives, so that they were but eight in all. And all the Sons of Adam going down into the lower Regions of the Earth were joyn'd with the Daughters of Cain, and being overwhelm'd in Wickedness they worship'd other Gods. And thus the Earth became corrupt and was fill'd with Wantonness. Upon this GOD reveal'd himself unto Noah (t) telling him, that he would send a Flood upon the Earth, and destroy all the Things which should be found alive, and commanded him, that he should go down from the holy Mountain, with his Sons, his Wife, and his Sons Wives, and build a Ship of Square Wood, whose Length should be three hundred Cubits, the Breadth fifty, and the Height thirty, and should pitch it within and without with Pitch, and distinguish it into three Stories, of which the lowest should be for the Beasts both wild and tame, the second for the Birds, and the highest for him and his Sons, and that there should be a Door in the Side of this Ship on the eastern Part, and that there should be in it Places to receive Water, and a Place for the Food. Upon which Noah entering into the Cave call'd Alcanuz, and having kiss'd the Bodies of Seth, Enosh, Cainan, Mahalaleel, Jared, (u) Methuselah and Lamech, he took up the Body of Adam (as (x) it lay in its Coffin) and carried it with them, with the proper Oblations, Shem carrying the Gold, Ham the Myrrh, and Japhet the Frankincense. And when they went from thence to go down from the holy Mountain, they lifted up their Eyes toward Paradise and wept, saying, O holy Paradise, farewell; and having kiss'd the Stones, and embrac'd the Trees, they went down from the holy Mountain, and Noah built the Ark. Upon this GOD commanded him, that he should make a Bell of the Wood of the Indian Plane Tree, three Cubits long, and a Cubit and a half broad; and that he should also make an Hammer of the same Wood; and that he should strike the Bell three Times every Day with the Hammer, First, in the Morning to call the Workmen to their Labour, after that at Midday to call them to Dinner, and last of all in the Evening, when they were to leave their Work. And GOD said to Noah, When they who hear thee striking the Bell, shall say unto thee, What is this which thou doest? then say unto them, The LORD will send a Flood. And Noah did as he was commanded.

71 In the fifth Year before the Flood Lamech the Father of Noah dies, and therefore the (y) Arabian Tale, which is spoken of him, tho' by an ancient Author, carry's its own Confutation, That Anno Mundi 1652.

Lamech before his Death sent for his Son Noah, and said unto him, The great and glorious GOD will not suffer thee to continue always in this Mountain. Therefore when thou shalt go down from the Mountain, thou shalt take with thee the Body of Adam, and with it three Oblations, Gold, Myrrhe and Frankincense, and thou shalt command thy Son, that immediately after thy Death, he shall take the Body of Adam, and place it in the Middle of Earth, and shall appoint one of his Sons to perform religious Offices, who shall be a religious Man, and unmarried, he shall not pour out Blood, nor offer either Bird or Beast for Sacrifice, but only Bread and Wine. Because from this Place shall come the Salvation promised to Adam, and he shall be call'd The Priest of the LORD, meaning Melchizedek. And when Lamech had commanded his Son Noah to observe these Things, he died on the LORD's Day in the nineteenth Day of the Month Adar, and Noah embalm'd him, and bury'd him in the Cave of Alcanuz, and mourn'd for him forty Days.

72. And as Enoch had before prophesied of Methuselah, that when he died, the Flood should come; so he died in that very Year.

And therefore the Story (z) confutes it self, that he was bury'd whilst Noah was in the Mountain, and that Noah and Shem embalm'd him, and bury'd him in the Cave call'd Alcanuz, and mourn'd for him also forty Days. A Jew (a) relates the Story thus, When Noah had enter'd the Ark, he stay'd there for some Time, and the Flood came not, which when he perceiv'd he said unto GOD, O thou LORD of the World, wherefore hast thou brought me into the Ark? either that thou shouldest kill me, or that thou shouldest preserve me alive? And GOD answer'd him, That I might preserve thee alive. And Noah said again, If it is so, why do we sit here in the Ark, and the Flood doth not come? It had been better for us to have tarry'd on the earth. And GOD answer'd again and said unto him, There is still one old Man upon the Earth, who is perfectly just, and for his sake the Flood cannot come upon the Earth, as long as he lives. And Noah said again, O LORD of the World, Who is that just Man? And GOD answer'd him, It is Methuselah thy elder. And Noah said, Since this is so, bring him in to us, that so the Flood may come upon the World, as thou hast said. And GOD answer'd, He shall not live above a Week, and when he is dead and bury'd, the Flood shall immediately follow. Within which Space of Time Methuselah died, and the Flood came accordingly.

73. By this Time the Reader is too much tir'd and amus'd with the Eastern Stories. I shall conclude all with the Words of (b) one of the most judicious Historians among them. I affirm, that whatever Account is handed to us of things done before the Flood, which is not founded upon the Words of the Prophets, is but a meer Conjecture and Opinion; since there is no one in those Times, that we know of, who hath committed any of these things to Writing.

CHAP. XI.

Of the Form and Dimensions of the Ark.

IT is now Time to give a more full Account of the Dimensions and Form of the Ark, it being a Fabrick so remarkable not only in those Days, but ever since. It was of a vast Bigness, and there was an absolute Necessity for it. The whole (a) Remainder of the old World, and the Seed of the new was to be preserv'd in it, and it was to be a Refuge for Noah and his Family. These indeed were few in Number; but beside these there were two at least to be taken in of all Sorts of Animals, who otherwise must have perished in the Waters; and the Number of these which are known, are so large, that they could not be contain'd but in a most large Fabrick. They were oblig'd to tarry there for a full Year, and they must have sufficient Food for so long a Time and more; since the Earth being cover'd with Mud could not immediately bring forth its proper Fruits, as soon as the Waters were return'd into their proper Channels. And as they could not live without convenient Food ; so it must be kept in distinct Granaries, and the Beasts must be plac'd in their distinct Cells. Peace must be kept between so many different Creatures, of whom some were wild, and some were tame, some were strong, and some were weak. And as they were not of the same Temper, so neither were they of the same Bigness ; so that the same Racks and Mangers could not serve them all alike. Besides, the Food of different Kinds being mix'd together would have soon decay'd, and therefore they must be laid up in distinct Repositories. Those Things which requir'd more Care to preserve, and those Things which could be preserv'd with less Care must be kept distinct, and also the proper Food for Beasts and Birds of all Sorts. These Cells ought not to be equal, but according to the Bigness of the Animals which lodg'd in them, having sufficient Room to come at them as Occasion did require, and thus the Places for Hay and Straw ought to be larger than the Places for Corn. And as the Ark was fifty Cubits high ; so it could not be all contain'd in one Floor, but there must be several Stories one above the other ; and the Ark, tho' of so great a Bigness, must be so firmly built, that there could be no Danger of its breaking to Pieces. Besides there must be also a free and pure Air in every Room for all the Creatures to breathe in, or else they must have died for Want of it, and Conveniencies to feed, water and cleanse every Beast, or else they would have been poison'd with their own Nastiness. And it is probable, that some Years must be spent in Cutting down Timber, Squaring it, and Bringing it to the Place, and also in Digging Bitumen or Providing Pitch to pitch it with ; so that it could not have been contriv'd but by GOD himself, nor undertak'n but by one, who was fully assur'd, that GOD would assist him in so great a Work, and bring it to Perfection.

2. The Command of GOD to Noah was to make this Ark of (b) Gopher or Cypress Wood, which grew very plentifully in the Plains of Babylon, and especially in Cyparission, where the Ark was built, and was a lasting durable Wood, fit for such a Purpose ; and that it might be more durable, it was made of square Beams, and pitch'd within and without with Pitch. Not with such Pitch, as was the Product of the Pine Trees, of which there could not be a sufficient Quantity in the World ; but with the Bitumen or fat Clay or Slime, which was of the same Nature with Pitch, being very glutinous and tenacious to keep things close together ; and of which there was so vast a Quantity in those Plains, that the Tower and even the Walls of Babylon were built with it instead of Mortar. And therefore the Septuagint (*) use the Word ἀσφαλτος in this Place, which is the very same, that they use in the Description of (c) the building of the Tower of Babylon. Others say, (d) that this Bitumen is a most solid Glue, and when any Wood is besmear'd with it, it is not eat'n with Worms, nor clov'n with the Sun or Wind, nor decay'd with Water. Diodorus Siculus (e) tells us, that Babylonia contains many things worthy to be seen and admir'd ; but among those things the Quantity of Bitumen, which ariseth out of the Earth, is very remarkable ; which is so great, that it doth not only suffice for so many Buildings, but is gather'd in great Quantities by the People, and when it is dry'd, it is burn'd like Wood. And tho' it is gather'd by an innumerable Multitude of Men, as from a large Store, yet the Quantity is never exhausted. Others say, (f) that it had a very grateful and pleasant Smell, and therefore properly us'd as a Remedy against all Scenes, that might arise from the Excrements of the Animals, which were confin'd there. Pliny saith (g) that it is of a Shining Nature. That it hath the same Qualities with Brimstone, it strengthens, it dissolves, it contracts and heals. When it is burnt it drives away Serpents with its Odour. The Bitumen of Babylonia is a Remedy against Webs or Pearls in the Eyes, and also against the Leprosy, Ringworm and Itching of the Body. When it is taken in Wine, it is good against an old Cough and Shortness of Breath, and when mix'd with other Medicines, it is also useful in many Distempers, which he reckons up. And therefore GOD commanded Noah to plaister the Inside of the Ark with it to make it less dark, and to give a wholesome Scent among so many Beasts ; and also to plaister the Outside, to keep the Wood from decaying, and prevent the Water from running in at the Chinks.

3. As for the Fashion of the Ark, the (h) Length thereof was three hundred cubits, and the breadth of it fifty cubits, and the height of it thirty cubits, so that it was six Times as long as it was broad, and ten Times as long as it was high ; and almost twice as broad as it was high : And as it had neither Sail for the Winds to drive it, nor Rudder to guide it, nor Conveniency to cut the Water ; so it was admirably contriv'd to lie upon the Water without Tumbling about, or Going to a great Distance. And as a Cubit is (i) known to be 21 Inches, and 888 Decimal Parts ; so the Length of it was 517 Feet, or about 31 Perch ; the Breadth of it was 94 Feet, or about six Perch, and the Height of it was 55 Feet, or above three Perch of our English Measure.

4. As the Ark was made of Square Timber, so that the Pieces might probably be of about a Cubit square, and they might be fasten'd to Pieces, which went cross them both in the Bottom and at the Sides, like the Ribs of a Ship, and the upper Part might be contriv'd like the Rafters of a House in Fig. 2. But it seems probable to me, that to make the Ark more firm to support so great a Weight, all the Pieces of Timber in the Bottom and the Sides might be contiguous to each other, and if so, then there must be the Thickness of two Cubits to each. And as we cannot suppose that the bare Pitching it within and without could be sufficient to hold together such a Bulk; and as the Inventing and Forging of Iron was begun by Chryſor about the Year of the World 1037, and brought to a great Perfection by Tubal Cain about the fifteenth Century; so there is no Doubt, but that there were Iron Bolts or Pins made to fast'n all these Pieces of Timber together, in the same Method as is usual in our large Men of War. And as the Breadth of the Ark was about 94 Feet; so it is possible, that to make it more firm, there might be several Pieces of Timber so long as to reach from one Side to the other. Pliny saith, that there was seen at Rome a Beam of Larch Wood, an hundred and twenty Roman Feet long, and two Feet thick in every Part, which Tiberius Cæsar plac'd upon the Naumachiarian Bridge. And another is mention'd to be cut in Cyprus to make a large Galley for Demetrius of an hundred and thirty Feet long, and almost six Feet in the Diameter. And tho' such Beams may be accounted Miraculous, and there was no Necessity to have many for this Purpose; yet GOD by his Providence might provide as many as was sufficient in those Parts; since Buteo, who wrote at large of the Measures of the Ark, saith, that there is no need to go far for Credit in this Case, since there are Fir-trees commonly seen in the Mountains of Daphne above eighty Feet high.

5. The Bottom of this Ark was smooth or plain, not round or oval, that so when the Water came under it, it might the more easily lift it up (and for this Reason it is suppos'd to have had Props under it to keep it from the Ground, as in Fig. 2. (a). and also that it might be less subject to be toss'd or tumbl'd about by the Violence of the Wind or Waves, and might fix firmly upon the Land when the Flood was over, without Falling on the one Side, as Ships do, when the Water is gone from them. And all this was necessary in this Case to preserve all the living Creatures safe and sound, not only upon the Water, but also when they came to Land.

6. In this Ark (k) Noah is commanded to make a Window. As this Word is us'd but once in this Sense throughout the whole Hebrew Bible, and even the (l) Window, which Noah look'd out at to view the Earth is call'd in Hebrew by another Name; so it hath occasion'd great Difficulty among Expositors to explain it. As the Verb from whence it is deriv'd in the Chaldee Language frequently signifies to shine, or give light; so Jonathan their Paraphrast expounds the Command thus. Go thou to Philon, and take from thence a precious Stone, and place it in the Ark to give Light unto you. But this is an Exposition too far fetch'd, and instead of giving any Light in this Case, makes the Text more dark and obscure than it was before. There is no Doubt, but this Window, whatever it was, was design'd to let in the Air, that all the living Creatures which were therein, might breath freely, and live wholesome, and also that there might be Light enough for them to see their Food and their Drink, and for Noah and his Family to perform all the Work requir'd of them, in all the distinct Rooms and Places of the Ark. But this could not be done by one single Window. And therefore some have been of the Opinion, that if it could be conceiv'd, that one great Window could be so contriv'd as to be sufficient to let in the Light into their several Apartments; yet it is not so meant as to exclude many little ones here and there for a greater Conveniency. But there is no Necessity for so many, if (m) we may be at Liberty to contrive such a Form of the Ark, as agrees with all those Particulars, which are mention'd in Scripture, and will at the same Time be most Convenient both for the Men and all the Sorts of other Animals, which were contain'd in it. And therefore the Account hereof might probably be this. All the opposite Sides of the Ark were equal and parallel to each other. Part of this Ark was under Water, and this Part was firmly encompass'd about with Timber, and secur'd with Bitumen both within and without, that no Water could come into it, to hurt the Provisions or other Necessaries, which were kept there. But the upper Story, in which the Animals were contain'd, enjoy'd a free Air like the Seamen, when they walk above Deck, and were not shut up in wooden Walls, but only encompass'd with Latices and Rails, to prevent the Birds from flying out, or several Creatures from Leaping into the Water, or other living Creatures from Coming into the Ark at the Beginning of the Flood, more than could be contain'd therein. And here the Animals might have the whole Light of the Sun, and breathe in such an open Air, which could not be corrupted by any ill Scent, and where the Wind did daily blow through it, to keep it sweet and wholesome, as in Fig. 1.

7. But to this it may be objected, How the Ark could in such a Case be defended from Showers, Snow and Frost, and all other Inconveniences both of Wind and Weather? And to this it may be answer'd, that Noah

Chap. XI. The SCRIPTURE CHRONOLOGY. 145

cover'd the Ark with thick Cloaths, or Skins of Goats, Sheep, Bullocks or other Animals so sew'd together, and plac'd in such a Manner, that they might be easily drawn close in Case of Storms and cold Weather, or open'd again, whenever those Animals wanted either Light or a fresher Air to breath in. Upon this Supposition all the Difficulties are answer'd, which are rais'd from a close Confinement in the Ark. It may be farther objected. That there can be no Foundation for such a Fancy as this: And on the contrary it may be farther ask'd, What Foundation can there be to fancy, that they were all shut up as in a Dungeon? If it is farther urg'd, That the Scripture takes no Notice of such a Covering of Skins over the Ark. To this it may also be answer'd, That as it takes no Notice of it; so on the other Hand it doth not deny it; neither was it necessary, that it should be so particular in such little Circumstances as these, because it would swell this Part of the Story beyond any Proportion with the rest. It is plain, that (n) many of the Antediluvian Patriarchs dwelt in Tents; and if it was customary for the Tents of the Shepherds at that Time to be cover'd with Skins, as the Tents of Soldiers were afterward (and the contrary can never be prov'd) Noah might well use such a Covering to secure himself from Damage, as he saw was commonly practis'd in other Cases. Sanchoniatho tells us (o) that in the fifth Generation from Adam, Usons invented Covering for his Body made of the Skins of the wild Beasts, which he could catch, and why might not (p) Agrus and Agrouerus, when they made Courts about Men's Houses and other Fences, as well as Jabal, make them in the same Manner? The Latin Phrase of Living all Winter under Skins, signifies only Dwelling in Tents, like (*) the ancient Scythians; and Virgil (q) observes, that Goats were shorn for the Use of the Camps, and to be a covering to the distressed Seamen. And to make this Matter more plain, Noah is said (r) to remove the covering of the ark, and he looked and behold the face of the earth was dry. Where it is observable, that the Hebrew Word מִכְסָה was never us'd to signify the Roof of an House or any other Covering made of Wood, but always (s) us'd to signify the Covering of the Tabernacle, which (t) was made of Skins; so that this will justify such an Exposition of the Text, against all the Arguments, which can be brought to the contrary. If it is said, that the Ark could not be cover'd without an infinite Number of Skins, with which it was a difficult Matter to be furnish'd in those Times, when the Eating of Flesh was not very common. To this also it may be answer'd, That whatever Skins were necessary, Noah might be an hundred Years in Providing 'em or several Sorts of Cloath might be more easily had. It is true, that Men did not eat Flesh. However, Sacrificing of Beasts was very common in those Times, and very many might be offer'd by Noah, he being a just and a religious Man; and he having Power over the living Creatures, might kill the more for this Use, or purchase the Skins from his Neighbours at a reasonable Consideration. Or the Ark might be almost wholly cover'd with Boards, and leave only a few Places on the Top to be open'd to look out at as Occasion did require, and then there would need but a few Skins or Cloaths for this Purpose.

7. The next Particular spok'n of by Moses concerning the Ark is the command of GOD to Noah, (u) that in a cubit he should finish it above. As this Expression immediately follows, what we thus translate, A window shalt thou make in the ark; so there are some who interpret it thus, This Window shall be broad at the bottom, and grow narrower in such a Manner, that the Breadth on the Top shall be only a Cubit. But whatever Interpretations may be put upon any Translation signifies nothing, since it is certain that the Hebrew will not bear it, where the Word צֶהָר or Window is of such a Form, that we may suppose it to be of the Masculine Gender, and the Word תִּכְהָ is of the Feminine, with which the Particle It agrees, as the Word which it is nearest to, and it cannot agree with the other. So that the Sense of these Words must be thus. Tho' the Ark is fifty Cubits broad; yet there must be a Roof rais'd upon it, that the Water may run off from it; and this Roof must be so contriv'd, that the Middle, where the two Sides meet, must be but a Cubit broad, as in Fig. 3. And the door of the ark was to be set in the side thereof, as in Fig. 2, with a Bridge before it, on which all the Creatures were to go into the Ark, and the Door must be of such a Bigness, that the largest of all Animals, particularly an Elephant might go in at it. And Noah was also commanded to make it with lower, second and third Stories, so that here were three Floors directly over each other, beside the Roof, and what other Conveniencies were necessary for such a Design. And here all Sorts of Animals were to be preserv'd, with Food sufficient to last for a whole Year. For (x) Noah did according to all that GOD commanded him, and (y) the Command was very particular. Take thou unto thee of all food that is eaten, and thou shalt gather it to thee; and it shall be for food for thee and for thine. Of every clean beast thou shalt take unto thee by sevens, the male and his female, and of beasts that are not clean by two, the male and his female. Of fowls also of the air by sevens, the male and the female to keep seed alive upon the face of all the earth.

8. So far the Scriptures give us an Account of the Ark, and as to all other Particulars every Man is left at Liberty not only to frame such Notions as may be consistent with such a Design, but also to improve upon the Notions of others for such a Purpose. And as the Design of such a Fabrick was to preserve alive such a vast number of Animals, to bring them conveniently into the Ark when the Flood began, and bring them out when the Flood was over, and also to contrive Places proper for each of them to lie down in, and such Conveniencies, that their Food, their Litter, and their Water might be giv'n them, and they might be cleans'd every Day by eight Persons only; so the Contriving it exactly will require the Skill of a very able Architect, especially from those small Hints, which are afforded us in the sacred Scriptures.

9. For this Purpose we may first observe, that when the Ark landed upon (z) the Mountain of Ararat it drew fifteen Cubits of Water. The (a) waters prevail'd fifteen cubits upward, when all the mountains were covered; and so it lasted (b) an hundred and fifty days. And that very day when the (c) Waters began to assuage, the (d) Ark landed; so that its Draught of Water then was fifteen Cubits, and consequently it drew more at first, because it had then in it all the Food and Litter which was spent in all that Time, or the Space of five Months.

10. Secondly, Tho' the Scripture mentions three Stories in the Whole; yet we are under no Necessity of supposing each Story to be of an equal Height; but (if as in Fig. 3.) the Height from a to b is equal to thirty Cubits, the particular Stories may be of such a Length, as shall be most convenient. As therefore the Ark at its first Swimming might draw a large Quantity of Water; so the large lower Story might serve like the Hold of a Ship to store therein all the Corn, or any other heavy Goods, as should be proper for all the Animals, which were there, or might serve for Ballast, to keep the Ark upright and steady. And this I take to have had a firm and solid Deck, and so firmly secur'd by the Bitumen or Pitch, that when any Wave went over it, there could not any Water go into this Story. This Deck might be supported by Pieces of Timber of a Cubit Square, and ten Cubits Distance from each other, so that there might be four Rows of Supporters and twenty nine in a Row, or 116 in all. Over this Deck I suppose a void Space of about three Cubits high, supported in the same Manner, so that the Water might frequently wash it clean, whilst the Ark did swim, to cleanse away all the Dung and Filth, that should fall upon it from the two other Stories without any farther Trouble, and when the Ark was landed, any one might conveniently go down upon it and cleanse it, as Occasion should require. Over this I suppose square Beams to have been plac'd from Pillar to Pillar, to support the Floor of the next Roof, and that this Roof was made by other square Beams of a Cubit thick, with proper Holes or Drains, through which any thing that fell naturally, or was thrown into them might be convey'd to the Deck, to be carry'd off from thence by the Water, or otherwise as Occasion should require. And in this Manner Hercules is said to cleanse the Stalls of Augaus King of Elis, in conveying into it the River Alpheus, which in one Day wash'd the Filth clean away, and which otherwise had been an impossible Task. And after the Water was gone from the Ark, the Space between the Deck and the Floor of the next Story being four Cubits high, would be high enough for any Man to perform there such Works as should be necessary. From the Door at b to the Deck at c Fig. 2. I suppose a Bridge with Ledges nail'd thereon to drive up and down all such Animals, as were preserv'd in the Ark, and as it was above an hundred and forty Cubits in Length, and but twenty in height; so the Ascent would make but an Angle of  $8^{\text{d}}. 8^{\text{m}}$ , and therefore any Beast might pass or repass with Ease; and that in the same Manner a Passage might be made from the Deck to the next Story, and there might be other Perpendicular Passages, that a Man might go down into the Hold of the Ark by the Help of Stairs made for that Purpose; to fetch from thence whatever should be wanting, and all these must be well secur'd with Bitumen, or Pitch, as far as the next Story, that no Water might come in that Way; and of these we may suppose that there were about thirty plac'd at convenient Distances, and that each of these might be about three Cubits square, without including the Steps which probably might be a Cubit and a half more. And in each of these there might be plac'd two Buckers fasten'd to a Wheel with a Cord in such a Manner, that one of them might descend, when the other ascended, as in a Mine, and a Man below might fill such Grain, or other Materials as should be wanting for Food or other Uses, whilst another Person drew it up from thence, and landed it in another Story, as occasion did require. The Floor of the second Story being in this Method about five and twenty Cubits high, might contain Room enough for all the Animals of all Sorts, both Men, Beast and Fowl, and if it was three Cubits and a half high, it might be high enough for any living Creatures, the Elephant and some few others excepted, for whom in some particular Places, the Roof might be rais'd as Occasion did require. This might be supported by Pillars as the other, and if it was divided into Rooms or Cells to separate the different Animals, there might be an hundred and fifty Rooms, or thirty in Length and five in Breadth, of about ten Cubits square each, for the Reception of the different Kinds according to their Natures: And here might also be placed two Buckets and Pullies with a Cord and a Wheel to draw Water from the Flood, and pour it into such Channels, as might convey it into such Troughs, which would be sufficient for all the Animals when thirsty to drink out of. In this Story was the Window plac'd, as we translate it, tho' (e) the Word will equally signify the Splendor, The Light or Noon-Day. Here therefore we may suppose the second Story, in which all the Animals are plac'd, to have been quite open all round, except some Parts, which were grated to hinder the Birds from flying in and out. Or otherwise it was impossible, how they could have sufficient Light and Air, and a free Passage to it to prevent Stagnations of the Blood, and many other Inconveniencies; which in this Case would have been remov'd. And as to the Cleanliness, the Stalls for the Beasts may have been so open and shelving at the Bottom of them, that whatever Filth they may be suppos'd to have, might have been easily thrown down through Holes which might have at other Times been stopp'd by Doors or Hatches made for that Purpose.

10. We are now come nine and twenty Cubits high, so that there is but one Cubit left, which belongs to the third Story and must accordingly be rais'd by the Roof, so as to be made convenient for its respective Use. How high the Middle Part was from the Floor cannot otherwise be determin'd, but by considering what a Quantity of Hay and Straw was necessary to be plac'd there to serve for Provender and Litter for all the Beasts, which were in the Ark during their Confinement, and which might be tumbl'd down from thence with little Difficulty, as Occasion did require, through Holes made for that Purpose, and which being lighter than the other things might be easily plac'd in this upper Story. And in this Story some of the upper and open Parts were (f) cover'd with Skins and other Cloaths sew'd together, (as the Tabernacle afterward was) which Noah could easily let down, or roll up according as Rain or Storms, or Want of Air made it necessary. And thus Noah is said (g) to have remov'd the Covering of the Ark after the Flood; where the Hebrew Word מכסה properly signifies a Vail or Covering, like that of Skins, which cover'd the Tabernacle.

11. And now it is probable, that such an empty Fabrick as this might draw a large Quantity of Water. To give a near Estimate whercof, we must first take it for granted, that a Piece of Timber is lighter than the like Quantity of Water, because it will swim upon it. But it is probable, that such a Piece being besmear'd with Bitumen or Pitch both within and without, and fasten'd to other Pieces with Iron Pins and Bolts to join the whole Fabrick together, might then be as heavy as an equal Quantity of Water, and consequently such a Quantity may be thus computed.

OBJECTIONS answer'd.

THERE have been two Objections rais'd against this Part of the History of Moses, which hath been already mention'd. The first is, That there could not be so great a Quantity of Water in this Planetary System, as to cause such a Flood; and the other is, That the Ark could not be so large as to contain all the living Creatures, which are in the World, and Food for them all for so long a Time as is mention'd.

2. For the Answering this first Objection I shall endeavour to prove, that there was such an universal Flood, as that which Moses mentions in the Time of Noah, and then give an Account, from whence so great a Quantity of Waters might be had.

3. That there was such a Flood is evident from the Consent of all Nations, as it was handed down to them by their most ancient Traditions. Of this an eminent Author of our own hath given us an excellent Account in these Words, (a) *Concerning the Flood, that there hath been such an universal Deluge, nothing hath been more universally credited. One saith well, What Nation hath not believ'd it? Among the Egyptians, Phoenicians, Grecians and Romans, nothing was more common. And well may we suppose it should be so. For they, who attempted the Rearing of that Structure at Babel, had probably a particular Respect in what they did, to the Flood that was past, resolving to prevent the Danger of another, and therefore they had sufficient Occasion wheresoever they came to preserve and continue the Memory of it. NOAH'S ARK.

150 The SCRIPTURE CHRONOLOGY. Chap. XII.

Destruction by Water, in which the whole World perish'd, and saith, There were only eight Persons sav'd. Cyril in his first Book against Julian shews that Alexander Polyhistor, and Abidene, under the feign'd Names of Saturn and Xisuthrus, have writ for the most Part the same Story of the Flood, and of the Ark, and the Place of its Resting, which Moses hath mention'd. And in very many other ancient Authors, we have particular Narratives of it. And 'tis evident, that many Poetical Fictions and fabulous Stories, which we find among the ancient Heathen Writers, had their Derivations from thence. So that to doubt about the Fact of what Moses hath writt'n in this Particular is extreamly unreasonable. For it is to deny what is eminently witness'd to us by several Historians of several Countries, and to withstand the Stream of an universal Tradition. It is certain, that (b) Ovid writes of these Times, as if he believ'd the Mosaical Account hereof. He saith, that there were Giants in those Days, who wag'd War against Heaven, and that their Offspring were Contemners of the Gods, guilty of Murder and Oppression, and bloody in their very Natures. Upon which Jupiter having beheld all their Wickedness, calls a Council of the Gods, and tells them, that he would try some farther Methods for the Amendment of that wicked Age, but if they were to no Purpose, and the whole Earth continu'd as bad, and as universally corrupt as it was before, that he would destroy them all, and raise up a better Offspring in a miraculous Manner; and accordingly he sends a Flood of Waters on all the Earth, that the Rain pour'd down from Heaven, and there were prodigious Inundations from the Sea, which destroy'd the Corn, the Trees, the Houses and all Mankind, and prevail'd over all the Hills, only Deucalion and his Wife Pyrrha, who were good and just People, and great Reverencers of the Gods, were preserv'd by Sailing in a Boat to the Top of the Mountain of Parnassus. And when Jupiter saw them remaining, he took Pity on them, he restrain'd the Rain, and caus'd the Waters of the great Deep to return to their former Channels. And so from them two the World was repeopl'd. A late eminent (c) Author speaking of this Story makes this just Remark. It is not material, whether Deucalion among the Greeks is the same with Noah among the Hebrews, or whether in Reality there happen'd another Flood in Thessaly, when Deucalion was their King. It is certain, that this universal Flood remain'd in the Memory of all Men, and let Deucalion be who you please, or live when or where you please, such things are spoken of him, as can only agree to an universal Flood. And he, who reads the whole Story in Ovid, must acknow- *ledge, that in his Poem the true History of Noah's Flood is mix'd and interwov'n with the Fables of Deucalion. Varro the most learned of the Romans (as (d) Censorinus relates it) divided the Times into three Parts, which he call'd the three Differences. The first he reckon'd from the Beginning of the World to the first Flood, which because of the Ignorance of the things then done, he call'd The fabulous Time. The second Epochæ was from the first Flood to the first Olympiad, and because there were many fictitious Stories related of that Time, he call'd it The uncertain Age. The third was from the first Olympiad to his Days, which he call'd The historical Age, because there had been convey'd down to them a true Account of the Things done in that Epochæ. Seneca (e) plainly shews, that he had a clear Notion not only of the first Flood, for which he quotes Ovid as before; but he was apprehensive of a future Flood to destroy the Earth, and of another Destruction by Fire, and speaking at large about it, he saith, It may be ask'd; When that fatal Day of the Flood shall come; when great Part of the Earth shall be overwhelm'd with Water, whether it shall be done by the Force of the Ocean? or the Seas shall rise up upon us? or there shall be frequent Showers without Intermission? or a continual Winter having brok'n through the Clouds shall cast down an immense Force of Water? Whether the Earth shall pour out large Rivers, and open new Fountains? or, Whether there shall not be only one Cause to so great a Calamity? or every Thing shall agree together to bring it on? or all things shall rush as with an united Force for the Destruction of Mankind? And then he gives his Opinion, So it will be. There is nothing difficult to Nature, when it hast'ns to bring all things to an End. It comes slowly on to produce new Beings, but it brings all things to Destruction with a speedy Force. After this he farther adds, In some Places an harmless Tide flows along for some hundred Miles, and keeps its Order. It flows to its due Height, and then ebbs again. But at that Time it shall be free from all Laws and Bounds. If you ask, How shall it be? I answer, By the same Method, by which the World shall hereafter be burnt. Both shall happen when GOD shall think fit to ordain better things, and put an end to the old World. Fire and Water rule over earthly things. From these and by these all things were made, and by these all things shall be destroy'd. And therefore when it shall please GOD to make all things new, at one time he is pleas'd to destroy us by Water, and at another Time by Fire. And after he had describ'd the Flood very elegantly and at large, he adds, *Rivers shall spring out of the Mountains, and shake them with Violence; and they shall flow from thence with a silent Gale. Every Soil, and even the most high Mountains shall abound with Waters. And as in human Bodies the sound Parts turn into Distempers, and peccant Humours increase the Sore; so every thing that is near to such Springs shall be dissolv'd and flow into them, first by Drops, and then by greater Quantities. The Rivers shall spring out of Rocks in many Places, and shall turn into an Ocean. And there shall be no Borders to the Adriatick or the Sicilian Sea. And to make this probable, he farther adds, Consider now, what vast Lakes there are hid in the Earth. There are vast Seas under Ground, and Rivers which pass, we know not where. And these from all Quarters shall be the Cause of the Flood. And he farther adds, that this Flood shall also cease, The Waters shall not always have the same Liberty, but when the Beasts, and Men transform'd into Beasts shall be destroy'd, the Earth shall drink in the Water again. GOD shall cause the Sea to stand still, or only to rage within its own Banks; and the Ocean cast from the Earth shall retire into its secret Recesses. The ancient Order shall be recall'd. Every Animal shall be made new, and a new Race of Men free from Wickedness, and born for better Fortune, shall dwell on the Earth. Thus far Seneca, whose Apprehensions of things to come, was only occasion'd by the current Tradition of things past; for if he had learn'd it from the Writings of Moses, he must have known, that what was past, would not happ'n again.

3. Josephus (f) saith, We read of this Deluge and the Ark in all the Writers of Barbarian Histories, as in Berosus the Chaldean for one, who speaking of this Flood, writes to this Effect. They say, that there are some Remains of this Vessel to be seen upon the Mountains of the Cordyæans in Armenia to this very Day, and that several People scrape the Pitch off from the Planks as a Rarity, and carry it about them for a Charm. Hieronymus the Egyptian in his Phœnician Antiquities, Maricas and a great many others say somewhat of this Matter too. But Nicolaus of Damascus speaks to this Purpose, In the Province of Minyas in Armenia there is a high Mountain call'd Baris, to which Place there fled a great many People, as the Story goes in the Time of a Deluge for Sanctuary. There is a Tradition also, of a certain Man in a Vessel that struck upon the Top of this Mountain, and that several Pieces of Timber were to be seen there a long Time after. This perhaps might be the Man, that Moses makes mention of. Thus far Josephus. Whether the Ark landed in those Parts of Armenia is another Question. It is certain from hence, that they had a Notion of a Flood long before Josephus's

Time from Tradition. As for the Pieces of the Ark, they are reported to shew them at this Time, and no Doubt will shew them as long as they can find a rotten Piece of Timber in the Country, or People so credulous as to spend their Money to go thither and see it. However the same Josephus saith in (g) another Place, that this Berosus following the most ancient Writings declares the same with Moses concerning the great Flood, and the Destruction of Men thereby, and of the Ark in which Noah the Restorer of Mankind was preserv'd; when it carry'd him to the Top of the Mountains of Ararat. Strabo (h) saith, It was the Opinion of Plato, that after the Flood there were three Ways of Living, The first was plain and simple, in the Tops of the Mountains, when Men were afraid of the Waters, which then cover'd the Fields. The second was at the Bottom of the Mountains, when they took more Courage, and the Fields began to be dry: And the Third was in the Plains. And that this was the Flood, which was known (as Strabo saith) to Plato and all other ancient Writers, is evident; because there could be no other Particular Flood in which the Waters could rise so high, that there was a Necessity for Men to fly for refuge to the Tops of the highest Mountains. The Story of Noah among the Chaldeans by the Name of Oannes and Xisuthrus hath been (i) already mention'd. The learned Vossius tells us, that there is a Tradition among the Chinese, that one Puoncius escap'd with his Family out of the universal Deluge. And he supposeth Pu or Pi to be only a Præfix to the Name (or an Article, as it is in the Coptick Language, and so the Name Pu-o-nchus is the same with ΠΙ or αὐτὸς ὁ Νῶχ. Martinius also tells us, that the ancient Writers of the Chinese History speak much of the Flood. And (m) it now appears, that the Americans had a Tradition of it (as credible Authors Acosta, Herrera and others inform us) who affirm, that the whole Race of Mankind was destroy'd by the Deluge, except some few that escap'd. They are the Words of Augustin Corata concerning the Peruvian Tradition. And Lupus Gomara saith the same from those of Mexico. And (n) Johannes de Laet, tells us out of Lescharbotus, how constant the Tradition of the Flood is among the Indians not only in Peru, but also in New France and other Parts. Moses tells us (o) that Noah sent out a dove to see if the waters were abated from off the face of the ground. And the dove came in to him in the evening, and lo, in her mouth was an olive-leaf pluckt off: So Noah knew that the waters were abated from off the earth. To this Plutarch expressly refers, when doubting, whether the Sea or the Land Animals are hottest in their Nature, he mentions the Dove sent out of the Ark in the Time of Deucalion, and adds, That the Mythologists affirm, that her Coming into the Ark signify'd stormy Weather, and her Going out of the Ark signify'd clear Weather. And as the Olive Branch was a sign of Peace between GOD and Noah; so from hence so universal a Custom arose, that an Olive Branch was a Sign of Peace between Man and Man. Virgil saith of Aeneas (p) He brought the Bough of a peace making Olive Tree in his Hand. Polybius saith, (q) that when Hannibal pass'd the Alps the People brought him such Boughs as a Sign of Peace and Subjection. Livy saith, that the ten Ambassadors from Lorin, when the Consuls were in the Senate House stretch'd out their Hands with the Olive Branches, according to the Custom of the Greeks, and fell before the Throne on the Ground with a lamentable Cry, desiring Peace. And Columbus (s) tells us the same of the Americans upon the first Discovery of that Country, when they had no other Way to express their Inclinations. In short, there are so many things related by the Heathen Authors concerning the Universality of the Flood, the Saving a few Men in the Ark, and also of other Animals, the Sending out the Birds to see if the Waters were abated, the Opening the Ark to see if the Ground was dry, the Offering Sacrifices to God, the Disappearing of Noah, and the Building of Babylon by his Posterity, as must leave it past Dispute. And the most ancient Accounts hereof are collected from so many (t) other Authors, that no Man of Letters can be suppos'd to be ignorant of it. And therefore such as Dispute against the Possibility of such a Flood from Philosophical Principles, seem only to argue against that, which they themselves must know to be true.

4. The Truth of the Flood being thus confirm'd, there may be many Ways to answer this Question, How there could be such a Quantity of Water, as might be sufficient to cover the whole Globe in such a Manner? And the first Answer alone may silence all Disputes about it, which is, That it was miraculous. That GOD, who created the whole World out of nothing, could as easily create a sufficient Quantity of Water for this Purpose, and dissolve it again into nothing, or bring it from distant Places, and bring it back again to the same Places, where it was at first. Thus our Blessed SAVIOUR answers all such Inquiries, (u) With men it is impossible, but not with GOD : for with GOD all things are possible.

5. To solve this Difficulty, there are some who have affirm'd, that the Flood was not universal; others, that all the Waters of the Sea overflow'd its Banks, and consequently that the Seat of Gravity might not be in the Center of the Earth, but equally diffus'd through the Circumference, that the Water might be in no Place above fifteen Cubits deep, and in no Place less. But laying aside these Speculations, which serve rather to amuse the Reader, than to solve the Difficulty; I shall allow that the Flood was universal, and that when the Waters were at the highest, they lay in a plain Sphere, covering the Tops of the highest Mountains, and for proving the Possibility of the Flood from these Principles, it will be necessary to take a Survey of the highest Mountains, and then to prove, that either of these two Methods mention'd by Moses were sufficient to cover them, in the same Manner as Moses mentions, and consequently that both together could do it more effectually, when GOD thought fit by his Providence to order, that it should be so.

6. As for the Mountains the most of them are very low; very few are suppos'd to be a Mile high, and the highest not to be above four, taking the (x) Altitude of them from the Plain, which they stand upon. The Height of Olympus is so extoll'd by the Poets and ancient Greeks, that it is said to exceed the Clouds; yet (y) Plutarch tells us, that Xenagoras measur'd it, and found it not to exceed a Mile and a half, and about seventy Paces in its perpendicular. Much about the same Height (z) Pliny saith, that Dichæarchus found the Mountain Pelion to be. The Mount Athos is suppos'd to be of an extraordinary Height, because it casts its Shadow to the Island of Lemnos, which according to Pliny was eighty seven Miles; yet Gassendus allows it to be but two Miles in Height, and (a) Isaac Vossius will not have it to be above ten or eleven Furlongs at most. And it is certain, that (b) if we allow but 60 Miles to a Degree, the Shadow might have been seen so far upon level Ground at Sun rising or Sun set, if the Mountain had been but nine Furlongs, or a little more than a Mile high, and much more from any Hill in the Island. Caucasus by Ricciolus is said to be one and fifty Miles in Height, Gassendus, allowing it to be higher than Athos or Olympus, conceives it not to be above three or four Miles at most; but Vossius will not allow it to be above three Miles perpendicular, for which he gives this very good Reason, That there is no Mountain in Greece, which may not be ascended in a Day, and makes the highest Mountains there not to exceed ten Furlongs, which (saith Vossius) it is scarce possible for any one to reach in that Time, unless he be a Mountaineer born; but any other will scarce be able to ascend above six Furlongs perpendicular. For in the Ascent of any Mountain every Pace doth scarce reach to a Hand Breadth perpendicular. But if we do allow eight Furlongs to a Day's Ascent; yet thereby it will appear, that the highest Mountains in the World are not above three Miles in Height, because they may be ascended in less than the Compass of three Days. And this may be the easier believ'd, since it is reported, that in the Months of July and August Men frequently go to the Top of the Pike of Teneriff in that Space of Time, which Mountain is (c) suppos'd to be the highest in the whole World. Besides, the Spaniards tell us, that the Alps in Italy (which are so much talk'd of) are but Cottages in comparison of the lofty Mountains of Peru; and yet these lofty Mountains may be ascended in four Days Time. And therefore as no Mountain can be suppos'd to exceed four Miles in Height; so the Addition of fifteen Cubits more, will bring the Waters to the utmost Height, which Moses allotted for them.

7. Now Moses himself assigns two Causes for this Deluge, and each of these may be sufficient, for ought we know to the contrary. The first is (d) that the windows of heaven were opened. Sir Walter Raleigh expounds it thus, that (e) the Clouds only are meant thereby, and Moses useth the Word only to express the Violence of the Rains, and the Pouring down of the Waters. For whoever hath seen those Fallings of Water, which sometimes happen in the Indies, which are call'd, The Spouts (where Clouds do not break into Drops, but fall with a resistless Violence in one Body) may properly use that Manner of Speech, which Moses did. That the Windows or Flood-Gates of Heaven were open'd, or that the Waters fell contrary to Custom and that Order, which we call natural. GOD then loosen'd the retentive Power in the Air, and the Waters fell in abundance. Indeed they who think that there is no Water, but in the Clouds; may look on this as impossible. But we well know, that thick Air is easily turn'd into Water, and that round the Earth there is a thicker Air, which we call the Atmosphere; which the farther it is distant from the Earth the thinner it is, and so it grows thinner in proportion until it loseth all its watry Quality. How far this may extend, cannot be determin'd. It may reach as far as the Orb of the Moon for ought we know to the contrary. Now when this retentive Quality of Waters was withdrawn, Moses tells us (f) that the rain was upon the earth forty days and forty nights, and therefore some of it might come so far as to be forty Days in Falling. And if we allow the Rain to fall a little more than ten Miles in an Hour, or 250 Miles in a Day, then all the watry Particles, which were ten thousand Miles high might descend upon the Earth, and this alone might be more than sufficient to cover the highest Mountains.

8. To this Moses assigns another Cause, (g) The fountains of the great deep were broken up. Those Waters which were contain'd in vast Quantities in the Bowels of the Earth, being press'd upward by some Cause unknown to us, gush'd out violently at several Parts of the Earth, where they either found or made a Vent. There are vast Quantities of subterraneous Waters more than we know of. The Observation of Solomon (g) could never be contradicted, All the rivers run into the sea, yet the sea is not full; and unto the place from whence the rivers come, thither they return again. Tho' the Water is naturally lower than the Earth; yet every Cloud that we see in the Air will tell us, that it may be rais'd above it; and thus there is some accidental Cause in the Earth, which perhaps we can give no Account of, that raises the Water to the Top of the Surface, and lets it out in an infinite number of Springs for the Good of all the Animals, which are upon the Earth. That all the Earth is full of Water is evident, because Men dig in all Parts of it for Springs, and the deeper they dig, they are not only sure to find Water, but also greater Quantities of it. It is evident in (h) Ochye Hole in Somersetshire, and (i) the Peake in Darbyshire, that there are large subterraneous Passages of Rivers; and it is probable, that such as these in other Countries gave Rise to that Notion among the Heathens, that the Souls departed passed over the Stygian Lake, before they could enter into the Elysian Fields. There are some large Rivers which are lost by running under Ground, particularly some which run in the Lakes of Chaldea, and the swift Stream of the River Jordan, which overflows all its Banks in the Time of Harvest and is lost in the Dead Sea, and several others. Besides there are vast Numbers of Rivers, which run into the Mediterranean Sea of Europe, Asia, and Africa, and particularly from the Hellespont and the Euxine Sea, and tho' it might be thought that such a Mass of Water is sufficient to overflow the Earth; yet it generally runs in thither also from the main Ocean at the Straits of Gibraltar, and all this is emptied from thence in an unknown Manner. The Euxine Sea hath many Rivers constantly running into it, and so small a Passage out, as is not sufficient to empty the tenth Part of so much Water. The (k) Caspian Sea is reckon'd in Length to be above an hundred and twenty German Leagues, and in Breadth from East to West about ninety of the same Leagues. There is no visible Way for the Water to run out, and yet it receives into its Bosom near an hundred large Rivers, and particularly the great River Volga, which of it self is like a Sea for Largeness, and (l) is supposed to empty so much Water into it in a Year's Time, as might suffice to cover the whole Earth, and yet it is never increas'd nor diminish'd, nor is it observ'd to ebb or flow. This constant Plenitude hath giv'n Rise to many Speculations, especially that it must necessarily have a Subterranean Communication, either with the Black Sea, altho' that be an hundred and twenty Leagues distant, or with the Persian Gulph, tho' that is near two hundred Leagues from it. For this last Opinion Father Avril, a modern Traveller, brings this Proof, That near the Coast of Kylan there is in the Caspian Sea a mighty Whirlpool, which sucks in every Thing that comes near it, and consequently a Cavity in the Earth there; and in the Persian Gulph there are found to swim on the Waters a great Quantity of the Leaves of Willow Trees; but no Willow Tree grows near that Sea, and very many are seen on the Caspian, and therefore they are carry'd by a subterranean Passage from the one to the other. So that if the Fountains of the great deep or those subterraneous Passages were continu'd to be let loose, without any Reflux into them, as (m) Moses supposes during the Time of the Rain, which was forty Days and forty Nights, and the Waters ascended but a Quarter of a Mile in an Hour; yet in forty Days it would drain all the Waters for two hundred and forty Miles deep, which would no doubt be sufficient to cover the Earth above four Mile high. As for those, who contend, that such Quantities of Water may be drawn out of the

Caspian and Mediterranean Seas by the Influence of the Sun, as may prevent this Increase, I shall not dispute it, but only desire them to consider, that if such Quantities are extracted from the Caspian Sea, which is between 39 and 46 Degrees of Latitude, and from the Mediterranean Sea, which is between thirty and forty three Degrees of Latitude, Whether there might not be extracted by the same Method so great a Quantity of Water in the torrid Zone out of the main Ocean between Africa and America, as must long before this have turn'd the Sea into dry Land? Or if the Seas are kept within their Bounds by the Attraction of Waters occasion'd by the Sun, then the bare Suspension of such an Attraction for forty Days, might alone cause such a Flood as Moses mentions, and the (n) Return of such an Attraction with the Stopping the Fountains of the great Deep might alone dry up the Waters, as Moses describes it, and cause all Things to return again at the Time limited, into their former Channels. I shall conclude this with (o) the remarkable Words of Seneca. Where hath not Nature dispos'd of Moisture sufficient to attack us on all Sides, when it pleases? There are huge Lakes, which we do not see, much of the Sea that lies hidden, and many Rivers that slide in secret. So that there may be Causes of a Deluge on all Sides, when some Waters flow in under the Earth, and others flow round about it, which being long pent up overwhelm it, and Rivers joyn with Rivers, and Pools with Pools.----- And as our Bodies sometimes dissolve into Sweat; so the Earth shall melt, and without the Help of other Causes shall find in it self what will drown it, ----- Since there may be on a sudden, every where, openly, and secretly from above, and from beneath an Eruption of Waters. These Words of an Heathen are so plain, as if he had been directed to write a Commentary on the Words of Moses, and may be sufficient to end all Disputes of this Nature.

9. The other Objection is, That there was not Room in the Ark to contain the Number of Living Creatures, which Moses mentions, and Food of all Sorts for them all for so long a Time as he also mentions.

10. In answer to this it must be granted, That there were three Sorts of living Creatures, Men, Beasts and Fowls. Of Beasts and Fowls, some feed on Flesh, some on Hay, and some on Seeds or Roots. Of Birds and Beasts which (p) were not clean, there were two of each sort the male and the female, and of such as were clean there were seven of each sort, two of each Sort for Breed, two for their Food after the Flood, two for Sacrifices on solemn Days, and a Male of each Sort to be offer'd up by Noah (r) immediately after the Flood.

And the Food must be so much, as would last a Year. Now there was sufficient Room for the Placing all these Creatures in the Ark, and the Ark could easily swim under such a Burden.

11. For the Proof of this, I place the Roots and Grain in the lower Story, the living Creatures of all Sorts in the second Story, and their Hay and Litter in the third Story.

12. The second Story being three hundred Cubits long, and fifty Cubits broad, contains in the Whole fifteen thousand Cubits, which (1) is supposed to be divided into an hundred and fifty equal Rooms; and if the Ark is suppos'd to be two Cubits thick in the Sides, and the Partitions to be a Quarter of a Cubit thick, then the Total to be subtracted will be 2013 Cubits, so that the clear Space will be 12987 Cubits, which divided by 150, or the Number of Rooms, will leave the clear Space in every Room 86<sup>79</sup>/<sub>150</sub> Cubits, or 86 Cubits, and 53 Decimal Parts, which would make a Square Room of 9.304 Cubits. And as the Length of each Cubit is now known to be 21.888 Inches; so each Room would contain a Square of 16.97 English Feet, or 287.88 Feet in the Whole. The Computation is thus:

13. From the whole Number of Cubits	15000
Subtract one long Side 300 Cubits in length, and 200 Cubits breadth	600
Another of the same	600
One Side being the Breadth of the Ark, fifty Cubits in all, or 46 Cubits, when the Breadth of the Sides is subtracted, and two Cubits broad	92
Another of the same	92
Four Partitions, in Length 296 Cubits, and in Breadth a Quarter of a Cubit	296
29 Partitions from Side to Side, being in Length 46 Cubits each, or 1334 in the whole Length, and a Quarter of a Cubit thick, makes	333
Remains	12987

14. Of these 150 Rooms I allow four for Noah and his three Sons and their Wives, and two Rooms with Earth for those Animals that live under Ground, one for those which live on Herbs and Roots, and the other for those which live on Flesh, and divide the other 144 Rooms into three Parts, that is 24 for Birds, twenty five for Beasts, and the other ninety five for such Animals as are design'd to be Food for the Rest. In such a Case there will be Space sufficient for them, and also for Noah and his Family upon all Occasions to come in and cleanse them.

15. As for Birds the accurate and judicious (a) Bishop Wilkins hath divided them into nine Sorts, and reckons them up to be 195 in the Whole, thus:

1. Carnivorous Birds	60
2. Phytivorous Birds of short Wings	17
3. Phytivorous Birds of long Wings	18
4. Phytivorous Birds of short thick Bills	16
5. Insectivorous Birds the greater	15
6. Insectivorous Birds the less	12
7. Aquatick Birds near wet Places	17
8. Aquatick Fissipedes	16
9. Aquatick Palmipedes	18
Total is	195

Beside these we may suppose ten several other Species of large and especially foreign Birds, for which five Rooms may be allow'd. Of the Birds reckon'd by the aforesaid Author there are 66, which he calls carnivorous, and therefore they may all be reputed as unclean; so that two of each Sort may be sufficient to be kept in the Ark. And many of these being large, I shall only suppose twelve in a Room; tho' we may reasonably allow more. The Remainder being 129 I will enlarge to 150, and suppose them to be all clean, and that seven more were preserv'd of each Sort, so that there were 1050 in all, and if to each Room of near 188 square Feet there are allowed but 132 Birds, most of which are small, they will be easily contain'd within the Compass aforesaid thus:

Rooms for large Birds	5
Rooms for 132 carnivorous Birds twelve in a Room	11
Rooms for 1050 other Birds, 132 in a Room	8
Total is	24

16. To prove that sixty of the Rooms will be sufficient to contain all the Beasts, we must divide them into their several Kinds as the same Author hath done, and allow for every Ox seven Feet square or 49 Feet in the whole, and also allow for every Sheep five Feet square or 25 Feet in the whole, and the same for Wolves and allow every Ox to be seven hundred Pound Weight, and every Sheep or Wolf to be an hundred. This is the utmost Room and Weight, which can well be demanded, and in such a Case there will be Room enough to cleanse, feed and litter them, as Occasion shall require; and both the Space which these Beasts will take up may be guess'd at by the following Computation.

(1) Thus the Targum of Jonathan upon Gen. 6. 14. places an hundred and fifty Rooms in the Ark. Beasts

17. According to these Computations the Beasts which feed on Hay will make up 5462 Feet. The Beasts, which feed on Fruits, Roots and Insects will make up 525 Feet, and the carnivorous Animals will take up 675 Feet, which is in the whole 6692, which being divided by 288, the Number of Feet in each Room shews that they would all be contain'd in about 23 Rooms, tho' 25 are allotted for such a Purpose.

18. As for the Beasts, which are allotted for the carnivorous Animals for a whole Year, it is plain that they are computed at 27 Wolves, and therefore let us suppose them at 30, and allow one Sheep to six Wolves every Day, in such a Case the Number to be kill'd will be five in a Day, or 1825 in the whole, which would be sufficient for them and the carnivorous Birds also, and being multiply'd by 25, or the Feet allotted to each of them, makes 27375 the Number of Feet in the whole, and divided as before by 288 shews, that they will all be contain'd in 95 Rooms, which was the Number allotted for such a Purpose.

19. The next thing to be consider'd is, That there was Room in the Ark to contain Food sufficient for all these Animals. For this Purpose I place the Hay in the upper Story under the Roof, and a Quantity of Litter, which would take up as much Room as the same Quantity of Hay. Let us then to each Ox allow the Weight of forty Pound of Hay in each Day, and suppose, that as much was spent as 93 Oxen could eat; in such a Case they would eat 3720 Pound in a Day, and in 365 Days or a Year they would eat 1357800 Pound, or 679 Tun, and consequently there must be Room enough in the third Story to contain 1358 Tun of Hay and Litter. To this must be added (m) the Hay for 1825 Sheep for a Year, lessening their Number 5 in a Day, which will be equivalent to 333975 in the whole, which divided by seven, leaves an equal Quantity of Hay to what 47701 Oxen would eat in a Day, which at the Rate of 40 Pound a Day is 1908040

(m) As 365 is an odd Number; so there is an easier Way to find out the Number here mention'd, than by so tedious an Addition, thus. Take the next greatest Number to 365 or 366, and divide it into half, the Quotient is 183, by which multiply 365, and the Total is 66795, the progressive Number of 1 to 365 inclusively by the Addition of the whole Numbers together, which multiply'd by 5, the Total is 333975, or the Number before mention'd. Pound, Pound, or 754 Tuns more, and allowing an equal Quantity of Litter, makes the Space of 1508 Tuns, which added to the former Sum of 1358 makes 2866 Tuns in the whole, which could well be contain'd in the upper Story. Now it hath been observ'd by Buteo on this Occasion, that a Cubit square of well-press'd Hay, as in a Mow, will contain 40 Pound Weight, when the Cubit was computed at 18 Inches. But the real Cubit being 21.888 Inches, the Proportion of the other to this is as 1 to 1.798, and therefore such a Cubit will contain 71 Pound. So that the whole will take up a Space of 80450 Cubits, which may easily be contain'd in a Roof of a little more than eight Cubits high; tho' ten may well be allowed, and then the upper Part thereof will be eleven Cubits high from the Floor of the upper Story.

20. As for the Beasts, which feed on Fruit, Roots and Insects, they are reckon'd to be equal to one and twenty Sheep, or three Oxen, and consequently allowing to them an hundred and fifty Pound Weight every Day, the Weight would be 54750 in all. Let us therefore suppose the Weight of the Birds to be as follows:

66 Couple of Carnivorous Birds at 5 l. weight each 1050 of other Birds at 3 l. weight each 660

The Weight of the Birds, which feed on Herbs and Roots may be suppos'd at about 7000 Pound, and that they should eat their own Weight in ten Days or 700 Pound every Day; and allowing six Pound every Day to each Person in Noah's Family or 48 Pound in the Whole, allowing also a tenth Part of their Provender in Corn to the Beasts, which feed on Hay; or 144 Tun, or 789 Pound every Day, the Total will be 1687 Pound every Day; or allowing 2000 Pound Weight every Day, the Total, which will be spent in a Year, will be about 365 Tun, which may much more conveniently be plac'd in the lower Story, than the Hay and Straw would be plac'd in the upper.

21. Here then we may observe the constant Employment of Noah and his Family, which was to throw down about eight Tun of Hay and Litter every Day in the Racks and Stalls; to cleanse the Stalls by throwing down the Filth upon the Deck of the lower Story through Holes contriv'd for that Purpose, which might be an equal Labour with the other; to bring up about a Tun of Grain out of the lower Story every Day by the Help of a Pulley, and give it to the respective Animals; to give five Sheep every Day to the carnivorous Animals; and to draw up about eight Tun of Water by a Pulley; and to empty it into Channels by which these Animals might be water'd, which as it was a sufficient Task for them all; so if the Ark was contriv'd in such a convenient Manner, it was no more than what they could well perform.

22. It may be ask'd, What Necessity there was of so large a Space in the lower Story, since the Quantity of Provisions allotted for it might be contain'd in a much less? But to this it may be answer'd, That there was a Necessity of a large Quantity of Air below the Water to raise the Ark so much the higher, as might Ballance the Weight in the second and third Stories, or otherwise that Weight would have sunk the Ark so low under Water, that it must have drown'd all the Animals which were there preserv'd.

23. But here it may be also ask'd; Whether the Ark could swim with so great a Burden as all the Animals mention'd, and the Food for them all? And to this it may be answer'd; that all which is mention'd could not draw two Cubits of Water; so that if the empty Ark could swim in twelve Cubits, it could swim, when thus loaded, in fourteen Cubits Depth. For a Proof of this (m) if the Length of the Ark three hundred Cubits or 6566.400 Inches, is multiply'd by the Breadth fifty Cubits, or 1094.400 Inches, the Total is 7186268.160 cubical Inches, which multiply'd by 21.888 the Inches in a Cubit, makes 157293037.486 Square Inches in a Cubit Depth of the Ark; which being also divided by 27.792 the Inches of Water contain'd in a Pint or Pound, leaves 5659651 for the Number of Pounds, which will depress the Ark a Cubit in the Water. The additional Weight in the Ark may be computed as followeth:

Weight of Beasts feeding on Hay	64600
Weight of Beasts feeding on Roots	2100
Weight of Carnivorous Beasts	2700
Weight of 8 Men and Women	1440
Weight of Earth and Stone for Subterraneous Animals	} 20000
	90840
Food for carnivorous Animals	182500
Hay and Litter in the upper Story	5732000
Food for other Beasts, Birds and Men	730000
Total for a whole Year	6644500
Total of both	6735340

And as such a Quantity of Provision might serve for a Year; so 2730616 Pounds might be spent in 150 Days, which being subtracted from the other, may leave the additional Weight of 4004724, or about  $\frac{2}{3}$  Part of a Cubit.

24. Thus the Bulk of the Ark when it rested on the Mountain of Ararat, might draw 12 $\frac{2}{3}$  Cubits of Water, and consequently if (n) the Feet, upon which it is supposed to stand (not only

(m) See this Book, chap. 4. sect. 17. Page 39.

(n) Lamy de Tabernaculo, ut prius. S f that that the Water might more easily bear the Ark up, but also to prevent the lower Part from Rotting, and to make Room for Noah or others to plaister it with Bitumen for its better Security) might be  $2\frac{1}{2}$  Cubits long, they might be 15 Cubits deep in the Water, and consequently land on the Mountain of Ararat in the same Manner as Moses mentions. And therefore there is no Occasion to object against the Fashion of the Ark, since such a Draught may be giv'n in this Manner, as will sufficiently vindicate all that is writt'n thereof in the holy Scriptures.

25. In this Enumeration (to use the Words of (o) a reverend Prelate, to whose ingenious Observations we chiefly owe this Discovery) there is no mention made of the Mule, because it is a Mungrel Production, and not to be reckon'd as a distinct Species. And tho' it be most probable, that the several Variety of Beeves, namely those which are stil'd Urus, Bisons, Bonafus and Buffalo, and those other Varieties reckon'd up under Sheep and Goats, be not distinct Species from Sheep and Goat, there being much less Difference betwixt these, than there is betwixt several Dogs: And it being known by Experience, what various Changes are frequently occasion'd in the same Species by several Countries, Diets and other Accidents; yet to prevent all Cavilling, they are allow'd to be distinct Species, and each of them to be clean Beasts, and consequently such as were to be receiv'd in by sevens. As for the Morse, Seal, Turtle or Sea-Tortoise, Crocodile and Senembi, these are usually describ'd to be such Kind of Animals, as can abide in the Water; and therefore they are not taken into the Ark; tho' if that were necessary, there would be Room enough for them. The Serpentine-kind, Snake, Viper, Slow-worm, Lizard, Frog and Toad, might have sufficient Space for their Reception, and for their Nourishment in the Dreins or Sinks of the Ark, which were under the Floor for the Standings of the Beasts. As for those lesser Beasts, as Rat, Mouse, Mole, and also as for the several Species of Insects, there can be no Reason to Question, but that these may find sufficient Room in several Parts of the Ark, without having any particular Stalls appointed for them.

26. And tho' it may seem most probable, That before the Flood both Men, Beasts and Birds did feed only upon Vegetables, as may appear from (p) the Words of GOD, where he said, Behold, I have given you every herb bearing seed, which is upon the the face of all the earth, and every tree, in the which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed, to you it shall be for meat. And to every beast of the earth, and to every fowl of the air, and to every thing that creepeth upon the earth, I have given every green herb for meat: And that after the Flood, when the Productions of the Earth were become of less Efficacy and Vigour, and less fit for Nourishment, their Liberty was enlarg'd by these Words of GOD to Noah, Every moving thing that liveth shall be meat for you, even as the green herb I have given you all things: Yet because this Proof is not so very cogent to convince a captious Adversary, but he may be still apt to question, Whether the rapacious Kinds of Beasts and Birds, who in the natural Frame of their Parts, are peculiarly fitted for the catching and devouring of their Prey, did ever feed on Herbs and Fruits; therefore to prevent such Cavils, the Animals, which are now carnivorous, are suppos'd to be so from the Beginning, and accordingly a sufficient Space is allow'd not only for them, but also for their Food.

27. So that upon the whole Matter it appears the more difficult Task of the two to assign a sufficient Number and Bulk of necessary Things, to answer the Capacity of the Ark, rather than to find out sufficient Room for those several Species of Animals already known. Perhaps it might be made so large, that it might be the longer in Building, and give the old World a larger Time for their Repentance, or leave them wholly without Excuse, when they were destroy'd. But beside this, it may be presum'd, that there are several other Kinds of Beasts and Birds, especially in the undiscover'd Parts of the World, beside those which have been here reckon'd up, and therefore it is but reasonable to suppose the Ark to be of a bigger Capacity, than what may be sufficient for the Things already known; and it was also necessary to preserve the Grain, and other Things laid up for Food, sweet and good for so long a Time, that it should not lye in too great Quantities upon each other, especially in so moist an Air, as must then be suppos'd to be. And therefore it may be asserted, that if such Persons, who are most expert in Philosophy or Mathematicks, were now to assign the Proportions of a Vessel, that might be suitable to the Ends, which are here propos'd, they could not (all things consider'd) find out any Dimensions more accommodated for those Purposes, than those which are mention'd by Moses in the Book of Genesis.

18. Thus have I prov'd, That the Ark was of a sufficient Capacity to contain all the living Creatures, and Food for them all. To measure the Weight of the empty Ark, and the Quantity of Water, which it drew, when it began to swim, will afford us another Curiosity, which may guess'd at in this Manner.

29. When our Country-man the ingenious and learned Mr. Greaves travell'd into Rome, Greece, Palestina and Egypt; that he might be capable of discovering the ancient Weights, Mony and Measures both of Lengths, Solids, and Liquids us'd in those Parts, he measur'd the Pyramids in Egypt, and accordingly comparing the Account, which Herodotus, Strabo and others give of their Bigness, he found (a) the Length of a Cubit to be 21.888 Inches (which is accordingly agreed to by (b) other eminent Writers) and therefore tho' a Cubit was formerly reckon'd to be but 18 Inches, and consequently the Cube thereof to be but 5832 cubical Inches; yet the Cube of a Cubit, as it is now plainly known from this Experiment, is 10267 Inches, and therefore the Capacity and Weight of Noah's Ark appears to be almost double of what it was once thought to be. Now according to the former Account of the Dimensions of the Ark it was suppos'd when empty to draw 12 Cubits of Water, and being as heavy as the Quantity of Water, which it drew, its Weight must be thus computed. As (c) 27.792 Inches of Water contain a Pint or a Pound; so by dividing 10267 Inches, which are contain'd in the Cube of a Cubit, it appears, that such a Cube will contain 369.415

Pounds. And therefore since it appears, that the Weight of the Ark might be equal to 180000 Cubits of Water; so if this Sum is multiply'd by 369.415, the Total will be about 66494700 Pounds in the whole. And as Noah was (d) an hundred and twenty Years in Preparing the Ark, in which there were 37569 Days of Labour, the Sabbaths excepted; so by dividing the Sum of 66494700 by 37569, it appears that Noah and his Family might add to the Weight of the Ark about 1770 Pound Weight in Timber and other Materials every Day; which, if it was made of square Beams (as St. Chrysostome and others mention) and in a square Figure (as the Scriptures plainly intimate) might have been practicable, it being not above the Weight of a Piece of Timber of a Cubit Square, and five Cubits in Length. But if it had been made of Boards, or in the Form of a Ship, so that the Timber must have been bent to fit it for such an Use, it must have been a more difficult Task.

(q) Greaves of the Roman Foot, page 40. The English Foot is 1034.13, and the Derah or Cubit at Cairo in Egypt is 1886.25. And therefore as 1034.13 is to 1886.25; so is 12 Inches or an English Foot, to 21.888 Inches, or an Egyptian Cubit. (r) Arburthnet on Weights and Measures, Tab. 4, and Bishop Cumberland of Scripture Weights and Measures, page 34, 40 and 43. (s) Cumberland, page 63. An Apothecary's Pound, being a Pint of Wine Measure, is by the Statute of this Kingdom 27 $\frac{1}{2}$  Cubical Inches. And among us it is agreed, that our Wine Gallon most frequently us'd contains 231 solid or cubical Inches of our standard Measure. And again, page 69, Rain Water being lighter than our Fountain Water, and of a more constant Equality in its Weight than Spring Waters are (which differ a little in Weight from each other) takes up a little more Room than so many Ounces of our Water will do: So that tho' we reckon 1720 cubick Inches to 1000 Ounces of our Fountain Water; yet we may well allow 1747 such Inches to 1000 Ounces of lighter Rain Water. And as Part of the Waters of the Flood was occasion'd by Springs, and Part by Rain; so I shall take the Middle between both, and suppose, that about 1737 Inches might contain about 1000 Ounces; and therefore 16 Ounces or a Pound contains 27.792 Inches. ### OBSERVATIONS upon the Whole.

HAVING now by the Blessing of GOD, giv'n an Account of the most remarkable Occurrences between the Creation of the World and the Flood, as they are contain'd in the six first Chapters of Genesis; I shall in this Chapter and in the last Chapter of every Book, endeavour to observe this Method.

First, I shall mention such Observations, which may illustrate or confirm any Custom, which is us'd in the Church of England.

Secondly, I shall mention such Texts of Scripture, which speak of the Trinity.

Thirdly, I shall mention such Texts, which are alledg'd as Prophecies of some things to come, particularly of CHRIST JESUS; and such Persons or Things, as are suppos'd to be Types of him, and shew how they have been fulfill'd.

Fourthly, I shall make such Observations, as may be of Use to vindicate the Authority of the Sacred Scriptures.

Fifthly, I shall give the Reasons of the several Dislocations, which are to be found either in the historical or prophetical Part of Scripture.

And lastly, I shall propose a Chronological Method for the reading of the sacred Scriptures of the old Testament from the Beginning to the End.

First, As to such Observations, which may illustrate or confirm any Custom, which is us'd in the Church of England. And here at the first Opening of the Hebrew Bible, we find not only a Distinction of Books and Chapters, but also the five Books of Moses are distinguish'd into several large Sections, and three Hebrew Letters which we call Pe, plac'd at the Beginning of each, in this Manner, פ פ פ being the first Letter of (a) the Hebrew Word

(a) Buxtorfius de Abbreviaturis Hebraicis in literâ פ pag. 138.

160 The SCRIPTURE CHRONOLOGY. Chap. XIII.

פרשה Parashah, which signifies, A Distinction or Section, and to make it more remarkable, each of these Divisions are call'd by some remarkable Word in the Beginning of each Section. Thus the first (b) Section is call'd בראשית, or, In the beginning: The (c) Second is call'd נח or Noah; and the (d) Third is call'd לך לך, or, Get thee out, &c. The five Books of Moses were thus divided into so many Sections, that by reading one of them every Week, the whole was read over publickly to the Jews once every Year. And thus it is said (e) that Moses had of old time in every city those, who preached, or read him publickly to the People, because this was their constant Practice in their synagogues every sabbath day. Agreeable to this is the Usage of our Church, in which the old Testament is appointed to be read over once every Year, the New three Times, and the Psalms once every Month. But when Antiochus Epiphanes, who was the cruellest Enemy, that the People and Religion of the Jews ever had, had not only (f) profan'd the Temple, and made the daily Sacrifice and Oblation to cease, but also (g) burnt with Fire all the Books of the Law, which they could find, and put to Death those, with whom any such Things were found; then there could be no publick Reading of the Law, and therefore some Persons appointed such Sections out of the Prophets, which they thought to be parallel to them to be read on every Sabbath Day in their Stead; and when this Persecution ceas'd, so that the Reading of the Law was restor'd, the Reading of both continu'd every Sabbath Day, not only until the whole Jewish Polity was dissolv'd, but even during their Dispersion into other Countries; and from hence came the Custom of Reading such Portions of Scripture which we call Epistles and Gospels on every LORD's Day. Now these Lessons of the Law and the Prophets began their (b) Round one Sabbath before the Courses of the Priests, upon the Feast of Tabernacles, when all the Priests were present and serv'd, and thus by the next Feast of Tabernacles, or the next Year, all the Law was read over, whether the Year was a common or an Embolimæan Year. For if it was a common Year, the Sections in the latter End of Deuteronomy were made fewer and longer, but if it was an Embolimæan Year, then they were broke into more, according to the Sabbaths of that Year, that at the Feast of Tabernacles, Deuteronomy might be finish'd, and Genesis might be begun again. I shall here annex the Sections out of the Law and the Prophets, according as they are appointed by the Jewish Rubrick, and if the Reader shall think fit to observe the Harmony, between the two Portions, which were read at one and the same Time, he will find, that the Choice of the Sections out of the Prophets was of more than ordinary and common Discretion.

2. At the Beginning of every Day's Work of the Creation in the first Chapter of Genesis there is also in the Hebrew Bible prefix'd the Hebrew Letter ב, which plainly divides this Chapter into six Sections, and the Reason is, because in their Feast at the Beginning of the Year, they read these six Sections on the six Days of the respective Week, and on the Sabbath Day following they concluded the same by reading the three first Verses of the second Chapter. And as the Jews, celebrating their Sabbath to commemorate the Creation of the World, had particular Portions of Scripture to be read every Day in the Week, before that Sabbath in which GOD rested from his Works;
so we celebrating the Christian Sabbath in Commemoration of our Redemption by CHRIST JESUS do not only celebrate in a more particular Manner, that great Day in which he rose from the Dead, and so compleated that blessed Work; but we have Epistles and Gospels for every Day of the preceding Week, in which we commemorate those Sorrows and Sufferings, that happen'd to him in the Week before. The Jews

in their Liturgy had (z) a Psalm for the Sabbath Day, and we have (k) a Psalm to be us'd every Morning in which we have Divine Service. They had particular Psalms for (l) each Day of the Feast of Tabernacles, and for other Occasions. Their (m) Hallel was us'd at the Passover, and several other (n) Psalms were sung in their solemn Processions, when they went to the Temple at the Gate of Nicanor; and thus we have Psalms for particular Days selected for that Purpose. The Jewish Liturgy had a grateful Variety consisting sometimes of Confession, sometimes of Petition, and sometimes of Praise, sometimes of Portions out of the Psalms, sometimes out of the Law, and sometimes out of the Prophets, sometimes of short Ejaculations with Responses, and sometimes of longer and several Prayers, at the End of which the whole Congregation did say Amen: Thus the Service consisted of a grateful Variety to make it more easy and delightful; and so it is with us. They frequently pray'd, that the Messiah might come; and we daily return Thanks, because he is come. They had several Types and Sacrifices to foreshew his Coming, which were instituted by Moses; we lay these aside, because they were abolish'd by CHRIST, and use the same, and no other than what he hath instituted. They offer'd up Bulls, Lambs, and Goats; and we offer up to GOD (o) the Calves of our Lips, even the (p) Sacrifices of Praise and Thanksgiving. They had three solemn Feasts; and so have we. The Priests went daily to offer at the Altar of Incense, but the high Priest alone went only (q) once a Year into the Holy of Holies; but since (r) by the Death of CHRIST the Vail of the Temple, which made the Distinction, was rent in twain from the top to the bottom; therefore we not only perform Divine Service every Day in the Reading Desk, but also every Sunday, and as often as there are Epistles and Gospels read, the Minister goes to the Chancel or Communion Table for that Purpose. Thus under the Law (s) The HOLY GHOST signified this, that the way into the holiest of all was not as yet made manifest, while as the first tabernacle was yet standing, which was a figure for the time then present. But now under the Gospel, we shew, that (t) we have boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of JESUS, by a new and living way, which he hath consecrated for us, through the vail, that is to say his flesh; And that we have such a high priest over the house of GOD, that we may draw near with a true heart and in full assurance of faith. Thus the old Law directed the Jews to look unto CHRIST, and our Service may direct Christians to look unto the fulfilling thereof by him. Tho' we retain nothing typical; yet we retain several things us'd among them, which contribute to Decency and Order, and especially to Devotion, and whereby we may testify, that the Church of CHRIST consisting both of Jews and Gentiles is but one, and may prevail upon the Jews to come over to us, when the Time shall happen, which GOD hath appointed for their Conversion. The Prophet Jeremiah gives us (u) this Direction. Thus saith the LORD, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls. This justifies us, in making no greater Separation, than what was absolutely necessary, either from the Jews or from the Church of Rome, and may both invite and justify them, whenever they come over to us, at the Time of their Conversion. And as our SAVIOUR himself and his Apostles frequented the Temple, at the Time when the Jewish Liturgy was perform'd; so their very Example will justify us, who frequent the Liturgy of the Church of England, a Service the most pure and Apostolical of any in the World.

3. And as the Letters added by the Jews to the Beginning of the Hebrew Bible may suggest to us such Thoughts, as will vindicate our Service; so the first Verse in the Hebrew Text may furnish us with Matter to vindicate our Doctrine of the Trinity. (x) In the beginning GOD created the heaven and the earth. Here the Word GOD is us'd in the plural Number, and Christians generally make use of it as an Argument to prove some Plurality in the Deity, or what we call a Plurality of Persons, and the Verb is in the singular Number to shew an Unity of Essence, and if there is any Force in this Argument, there are (y) several hundred Instances to be found of this Nature in the old Testament, even as often as the Word GOD comes before a Verb in our English Translation. Thus (z) the LORD GOD formed man, and The LORD GOD planted a Garden; where the Word LORD is in the singular Number, and the Word GOD is in the Plural for the same Reason, and some Hundred of Instances may be also mention'd of this Nature, even as often as these two Words are found together in our English Bible. However, laying aside these Critical Observations, the divine Trinity may be thus prov'd from hence. The Work of Creation is attributed to GOD, and to GOD only. It is hard to conceive, how the Creator of any thing should be a Creature; and the Apostle tells us, (a) that as certain, as every house is built by some man; so certain it is, that he who built all things must be GOD. Now the Work of Creation is attributed in Scripture to CHRIST JESUS, the WORD or SON of GOD, and also to the HOLY GHOST. Thus (b) The SPIRIT of GOD is said to move upon the face of the waters. Or, The HOLY GHOST caus'd the same Effect in this rude and indigested Chaos, as a Hen doth, when she sits upon her Eggs; for so the Word literally signifies. This Spirit of GOD did not only separate those Parts, which were thus mix'd together, but also gave a vivifick Virtue to them, to produce what was contain'd in them. Thus Moses describeth the Eagle, that (c) she first makes her Nest, then she hatcheth her young ones (where this Word is us'd) then she covers them with her Wings, and after that she teacheth them to fly. The Psalmist saith, (d) that by the WORD of the LORD, or the second Person in the Trinity were the heavens made, and all the host of them by the breath or SPIRIT of his mouth, or the third Person, which proceedeth from him. And Job tells us, (†) that By his SPIRIT he hath garnished the heavens. The Psalmist saith (e) Of old thou hast laid the foundations of the earth, and the heavens are the works of thy hands. They shall perish, but thou shalt endure; yea, all of them shall wax old as a garment, and as a vesture shalt thou change them, and they shall be changed; But thou art the same, and thy years shall have no end. This the Apostle (f) applies to CHRIST JESUS, the SON of GOD, and calls him LORD at the same Time, and testifies of him (g) that he was the brightness of his FATHER's glory, and the express image of his person, and that he upheld all things by the word of his power, and was the Person, by whom GOD the FATHER made the worlds. And (h) in another Place. He is the image of the invisible GOD, the (i) first Bringer forth or Producer, or Creator of every Creature. For by him were all things created that are in heaven, and that are in the earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones or dominions or principalities or powers; all things were created by him and for him. And he is before all things, and by him all things consist. And St. John also (k) testifies of him, that In the beginning was the WORD, and the WORD was with GOD, and the WORD was GOD. The same was in the beginning with GOD. All things were made by him, and without him was not any thing made, that was made. An ancient Jewish Commentator on these Words, The Spirit of GOD moved upon the face of the waters, saith expressly (l) This is the Spirit of the MESSIAS. Thus In the beginning GOD the FATHER made all things by his eternal ΛΟΓΟΣ or WORD, (the same with the Νῆς of the ancient Philosophers) whose almighty SPIRIT agitated the vast confus'd Mass of Matter, and put it into Form. A (m) Jewish Exposition on the Psalms allows, that these three Words El, Elohim, and Jehovah are three several Names of GOD. For there this Question is ask'd, Why doth he mention the Name of the blessed GOD three Times? And the Answer is return'd thus, It is to teach thee, that the blessed GOD created this World by these three Names, which answer to the three Middoth (or Properties) by which the World was created; and they are these, Wisdom, Knowledge and Understanding. Wisdom, as it is said, (n) The LORD by Wisdom hath founded the earth. Understanding, as it is said, By understanding he hath establish'd the heavens. Knowledge, as it is said, By his knowledge the depths are broken up, and the clouds drop down the dew. And thus it is said, (o) I the LORD thy GOD (Jehovah, El, Elohim, are the Words there us'd) am a jealous GOD. Three answering to the three, by which the world was made. And thus the Children of Gad and the Children of Reuben say (p) El, Elohim, Jehovah; El, Elohim, Jehovah he knoweth. And why are these three mention'd twice? Because by these three the world was made, and because by these three the Law was given. So that tho' the modern Jews out of their Aversion to Christianity do explode the Doctrine of the Trinity with the utmost Violence; yet their Ancestors, who were the best Judges of this Doctrine, (q) were of a different Opinion. And (r) tho' the Jews do on this Occasion industriously avoid the Word Person; yet they call them (s) three Properties, or (t) Essences, or (u) Inward or Essential Modes or Forms, by which they can mean no other than we do.

 (i) This is the right Interpretation of the Text, if we only grant, that the Accent (which were all added to the Words long since the Apostle's Days) is misplac'd, and that instead of πρωτότοκος the first born, it should have been πρωτότοκος, the first Bringer forth or Former of every Creature. This alone will make the Sense of the Words clear and plain, and free them from all the Difficulties, which have arose from this Mistake. (k) John 1. 1, 2, 3.

4. When GOD determin'd to create our first Parents, he said, (x) Let us make man in our image, and after our likeness. Here we find the same Word which was us'd in the Beginning of the Bible, where it is said, that GOD created the heaven and the earth. The Grammatical Sense, which (a) ought not to be receded from without Reason, implies many, as appears from like (b) Expressions in the same Book; and in this Sense is the Text understood by the Jewish Doctors, who were best acquainted with the Nature of their own Tongue, and knew that it would not admit of any other Sense, except that which was literal. An (c) eminent Jew mentions one of their Doctors, who in (d) another Book says, That when Moses by GOD's Direction was about to write these Words, Let us make man, he cried out, O LORD of the World, why wilt thou give Men occasion to err about thy most simple Unity? To which he receiv'd this Answer, Write as I bid thee, and if any Man love to err let him err. Which shews, that their Doctors have been long puzzl'd with these Words, because they unavoidably suggested to their Thoughts more than one Person in the Deity, and that they could not return a satisfactory Answer to them. Philo the Jew acknowledges more than once, (e) That the Words, Let us make do plainly shew a Plurality as of Co-workers or Co-assistants, and the Jewish (f) Commentators, and other (g) of their learned and ancient Doctors do testify the same. So that if we can find the Persons in whose Image Man was made, we may also find the Persons concern'd in the Creation of him. First, Man was created in the Image of GOD the FATHER, Thus the Psalmist saith to him (h) As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness. Secondly, Man was created in the Image of GOD the SON. And thus St. John saith of him, (i) We know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him, for we shall see him, as he is. And Thirdly, Man was created in the Image of GOD the HOLY GHOST. And thus St. Paul saith, (k) We all with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the LORD (that is of (l) the LORD the SPIRIT) are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the SPIRIT of the LORD. And therefore as we bear the Image of the FATHER, the SON and the HOLY GHOST; so these are the Persons spok'n of when GOD said, Let us make man in our own image, and after our likeness. Accordingly the (m) ancient Christians look'd upon this as a plain Intimation of a Plurality of Persons in the Godhead. Epiphanius saith, (n) This is the Language of GOD to his WORD and only begott'n, as all the faithful do believe. Besides, it is certain that GOD the SON was concern'd in the Creation of Man, because St. John saith, (*) All things were made by him, and without him was not any thing made that was made. And Elihu testifies the same of the HOLY GHOST in these Words, (†) The SPIRIT of GOD hath made me, and the breath of the almighty hath given me life. And thus (o) Adam was form'd by the Hand of the FATHER, and of the SON and of the HOLY GHOST. It may be farther observ'd, that tho' GOD said, Let us make man in our own image, and after our own likeness; yet it immediately follows, so GOD created man after his own image. He was created after the Image of the three Persons as of many; and yet he was created after the Image but of one GOD; because they are all but one Substance.

5. And as both Jews and Christians acknowledge a Plurality in the divine Essence from these Words, Let us make man; so they acknowledge the same from the other Words, Behold the man is become as one of us. These Words, One of us (as (p) Philo saith) are not said of one, but of many. And Justin Martyr saith, (q) One of us, signifies Plurality, at least two, and is not figurative, as the Sophists would expound it, who can neither speak nor conceive truth. As the former Text gave to each Person an Equality of Power; so this Text gives them such an Equality of Knowledge, that we may easily perceive who they are that are meant thereby. First, It is said of GOD the FATHER, that (r) the LORD is a GOD of knowledge, where the Word is in the plural Number, and implies Knowledge of all Sorts and in the utmost Perfection. Secondly, The SON of GOD speaking of these Truths, which were necessary to be reveal'd, declares himself capable to reveal them all by this Expression, (s) All things, that the FATHER hath, are mine. And speaking of the HOLY GHOST he adds, (t) Howbeit when the Spirit of truth is come, he will guide you into all truth, for he shall not speak of himself, but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak, and he will shew you things to come. He shall glorify me, for he shall receive of mine, and shew it unto you. The FATHER communicates his whole Knowledge and Essence to the SON, and the FATHER and the SON com-communicate the same to the HOLY GHOST in the same Manner. And therefore (u) GOD is said to reveal the hidd'n Mysteries to us by his SPIRIT, for the SPIRIT searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of GOD, and the SPIRIT of GOD knows the things of GOD in the same Manner as the spirit of a man, which is within him, knows the things of a man. So that when GOD said, Behold the man is become like one of Us, to know good and evil; by the Word Us must be meant each of these three Persons, and can be meant no other.

6. I shall therefore conclude the Observations on this Head with the Words of (x) an eminent Divine of our own Church. It may be worth while to reflect on the Words, which the Serpent spoke to deceive our first Parents. GOD doth know (saith he) that (y) in the day you eat thereof, then your eyes shall be open'd and ye shall be as gods (or rather, as GOD, the one GOD) knowing good and evil: For the Word Elohim is so us'd from the Beginning of Genesis to this very Place for the one GOD, and the Design of the Tempter was to make them believe, that by tasting of the Fruit, which GOD had forbidden, they might come to the Knowledge and Wisdom of GOD, even of the same GOD, who gave them the Precept. When therefore GOD saith, The man is become as one of us, the Meaning is this, He is become as GOD; for he hints at the Promise that the Serpent had made, which was a Likeness to GOD and not to Angels. But one of us is an indefinite Term, and equally applicable to each of the Persons meant and comprehended in the Pronoun us. It will therefore follow, that each of the Persons is alike comprehended in the Name GOD, and consequently one with the true GOD.

7. And now it is easy to observe, that the ancient Jewish Paraphrasts did agree with the Christians in these great Articles of our Faith, and with what is spoken of them in other Places of Scripture. As for the Actions of the Deity, which are recorded before the Flood, sometimes they ascribe them to the LORD, and sometimes to the WORD of the LORD without the least Distinction, or as if they were both the same. We are told in the Scripture, that (z) In the beginning GOD created the heaven and the earth. The Jerusalem Targum expresseth it thus, GOD created the heaven and the earth in (or by) Wisdom, which among the Jews, was one of the three Properties, answering to the three Names of GOD, by which the World was created. If (a) St. John and (b) St. Paul call our Blessed SAVIOUR The WORD, they only borrow this Expression from the common Use of the Jews before their Time. And if they attribute to the WORD such Actions as can only agree to a living, a rational, and an almighty Being, they may be justified from the Language of their own Nation. They tell us, that (c) the WORD of the LORD created Man in his own Likeness: in a Likeness from the Presence of the LORD created he him. That (d) a Garden was planted from Eden by the WORD of the LORD for the Just before the Creation of the World. That Adam (f) and his Wife heard the Voice of the WORD of the LORD GOD walking in in the Garden in the Cool of the Day, and they hid themselves from the Presence of the LORD GOD among the Trees of the Garden, and Adam made this Excuse, I heard the Voice of thy WORD in the Garden, and I was afraid. That (f) when Enoch was born, it was the Age, in which Men began to err, and made themselves Idols, and call'd their Idols by the Name of the WORD of the LORD. That (g) the LORD blessed Man in the Name of his WORD. That (h) Enoch was withdrawn from the Earth into Heaven by the WORD, which was before the Presence of the LORD. That (i) The WORD of the LORD said, or (k) the LORD spake by his WORD. (l) The LORD repented in his WORD, or (m) There was repentance from the Presence of the LORD in his WORD. If St. John calls CHRIST JESUS, (n) the only begotten SON, which is in the bosom of the FATHER, the Jews have no Reason to find Fault, since (o) their own Targum hath this Expression. And the WORD of the LORD GOD said, Behold Adam, whom I have created, is the only one in the Earth, even as I am the only one in the highest Heavens----- Now therefore it is better that we cast him out from the Garden of Eden ----- so he cast out the Man. And as the SON of GOD is call'd (p) The angel of his presence, and by the Jews themselves, The WORD from the Presence of the LORD; so they call the HOLY GHOST, (q) the Spirit of Compassion from before the LORD.

8. The only Objection against this is, That these Expressions are not to be understood of the Substantial Λόγος or Word, but of the Command or Speech of GOD to Man, which is in the Hebrew express'd by דבר, and to which the Chalde Word מִימְרָא is suppos'd to answer. But this Objection is of no Weight, because (r) the Objectors bring not one Text throughout the whole Bible to support it. The Objection supposeth that for Truth, which is directly false in Fact, and he who looks on those few Instances already mention'd, and the many hundreds which may be added, will easily observe, that they must have an higher Meaning. Besides, it is certain, that in the Chaldee Language there is another Noun (viz. פתגם or פתגמא) which signifies a Word either written or spoken, and by which they always translate the Hebrew Word דבר. Elias the Levite, who very well understood this Matter, tells us (s) that this is the Chaldee Word into which the Hebrew Word דבר is translated by the Paraphrasts; and as he produceth several Instances to that Purpose, so he might have produc'd some hundreds more. But he makes no mention of the Word מִצְוָה upon that Occasion, which he would not (in all Probability) have fail'd to have done, if he had been able. There is (t) a remarkable Text to this Purpose. I (saith Moses) stood between the LORD and you at that Time, to shew you the word of the LORD. Onkelos and Jonathan turn the Text thus, I stood between the WORD of the LORD and you at that Time, to shew you the Word of the LORD. In both these Authors there is the same Expression. The Word of the LORD occurs twice, but in two different Senses. In the former Part of the Verse it is put instead of the LORD, and must signify The essential אלהים, and it is accordingly express'd by מִצְוָה; but in the latter Part of the Verse it signifies a Commandment, or the reveal'd Will of GOD, and it is express'd by דבר, which is the Hebrew Word us'd in the Text, and is translated by the Word פתגמא, which is the Chaldee Word, that answers to it not only there, but even throughout the old Testament. And therefore the Raising such an Objection can be only to impose upon the ignorant by such, who must know, that they, who have the least Skill in these Languages, can easily confute it.

8. The Texts, which in this Part of the holy Scriptures speak of CHRIST JESUS as the Saviour of the World, are two, and were giv'n to those, who had; and at a Time, when they had the greatest Need of such a comfortable Promise. The first was giv'n to our first Parents Adam, and Eve immediately after the Fall, when they had eat'n the forbid'n Fruit, and were justly liable to the threaten'd Curse, (t) In the day that thou eatest thereof, thou shalt surely die; which Sentence must have been executed accordingly, if the Promise of a SAVIOUR had not interven'd, and our Parents had not been sav'd by Laying hold on him through Faith. When therefore GOD had brought them both to (u) a Confession of their Sin, and that the old Serpent or the Devil was the Cause thereof, and having curs'd (x) the Serpent, whose Shape the Devil assum'd, he then proceeds (y) to pass Sentence upon the Devil himself, who was the principal Cause of all. I (saith GOD) will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed, and her seed. The Devil (z) was a murderer from the beginning of the World; and as long as the World lasts, so long (a) doth this adversary go about as a roaring lion seeking whom he may devour; sometimes (b) tempting us to Sin, and then (c) accusing us for Sin, and therefore he is justly abhor'd by all Mankind as their greatest Enemy. And then he tells the Devil, how all his Designs shall be disappointed. There shall be a particular Seed born of the Woman alone and not of the Man, that is, who shall be born of a Virgin, he shall bruise thy head; and thou shalt bruise his heel. Here the Pronoun he, the Verb bruise, and the Affix his are all of the singular Number, and therefore the Observation, which St. Paul (d) makes in another Case, may be very properly apply'd in this, GOD speaks not of Seeds as of many; but as of one, And thy seed, which is CHRIST. And accordingly (e) the Jewish Paraphrasts express it thus, There shall be a Remedy to Mankind, but there shall be no Remedy to thee the Serpent, but there shall be a Remedy to them in the latter Age of the World, even in the Days of King MESSIAH, (f) who shall remember what thou didst in the Beginning of the World. Maimonides a learned Jew justly admires, that the Seed of the Woman should be only mention'd, and not of Adam, (without whom she could have no Seed, and which must therefore be his Seed) and that it should be said of her Seed, not of his that it bruised the Serpent's Head. This (saith he) is one of the Passages in Scripture, which is most wonderful, and not to be understood according to the Letter, but contains great Wisdom in it. In which Words he wrote more Truth than he was aware of; but he could not unfold this hidd'n Wisdom, as we Christians (bless'd be GOD) are able to do. We know, that GOD did here promise, that this SEED of the Woman should deprive the Devil of his Power, and abolish his Tyranny. And as the Head is the Seat of Wisdom; so the Bruising the Head may also signify the Defeating of all his Designs and Contrivances, and Rescuing us from all his Snares. For (h) as the Devil was the Cause of Sin from the beginning; so for this purpose the SON of GOD was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil. But this Victory over the Devil was not to be gott'n without Blood. The Devil did all that he could to destroy this Seed, and (i) he enter'd into Judas Iscariot, and put it into his heart to betray him for that Purpose. But this was impossible to be done. He could only assault his lower Part (call'd here his

Chap. XIII. The SCRIPTURE CHRONOLOGY. 167

Heel) viz. His Body or Flesh, which by his Instruments he persecuted, despoightfully us'd, and at last crucify'd; so that they (k) pierced his hands and his feet. By which very Means (so admirable was the Wisdom and Goodness of GOD) through (l) his death he destroyed him who had the power of death, that is, the devil; And delivered them, who through fear of death were all their life-time subject to bondage. Besides, the Time when this Promise was made, was very remarkable, which was before GOD had rejected Cain and prefer'd Seth to him, and long before any Restriction was made to any Branch of Noah's Family, that all the World might look upon the MESSIAH as a common Benefit to all the Sons of ADAM. And the tender Mercy of GOD must also be here acknowledg'd, which gave our first Parents the Hopes of a Recovery on the Day when they fell, and gave them this gracious Promise of a Blessing, before he pronounc'd the Curse: Which Promise, tho' at first but obscurely deliver'd, grew clearer and clearer till CHRIST came.

9. Tho' it doth not appear from the Promise, that this our MESSIAH was to be GOD and Man in one Person; yet it is plain that Eve had a Notion that it should be so. For (m) when she brought forth her first born Son, she expected, that he should have been this very Person, and therefore she call'd his Name Cain, which signifies a Person obtain'd, adding this as a Reason, I have obtain'd or gotten a man from the LORD. The Hebrew expresseth it thus, I have gotten a man (who is) the LORD or JEHOVAH. And therefore one of (n) the Paraphrasts expound it thus. I have gotten the man, who is before the Face of the LORD, and (o) the other thus, I have gotten that Man, who is the Angel of the LORD, and is therefore call'd by Jacob (p) The Angel of his presence. But when Eve found her Mistake, and that the MESSIAH was not to be her immediate Offspring, and when (q) she conceiv'd again, and bore another Son, she call'd his Name Abel, which signifies Vanity.

10. As the first Promise was given to our first Parents Adam and Eve; so the second Promise was given to Cain their first Son, upon a remarkable Occasion. When (r) Cain and Abel brought their Offerings to the LORD, and the LORD had Respect unto Abel and to his Offering, then Cain was very angry, and his Countenance fell, or as some Translations render it, He hung down his Head for shame. Upon which GOD expostulates with Cain, and tells him of a better Offering, than that which he brought. He said unto him, Why art thou wroth? and why is thy countenance fallen? There is no Cause for him to be displeas'd, either upon his own Account, or upon the Account of his Brother. Not upon his own Account, for saith GOD, If thou dost well shalt thou not be accepted? And if thou dost not well, sin lieth at the door. Here we may observe, that the Word Sin is usually in the Hebrew of the feminine Gender, as ending in the Servile Letter ם; but when it is (s) in the Masculine Gender, as it is here, it may properly signify A Sin Offering, and so allude to CHRIST, who was to be slain for us, and was to be as (t) a Male out of the Flock to suffer in our Stead. And as St. Paul saith, (u) he was made Sin (that is, A Sin Offering) for us, tho' he knew no sin in himself, that we might be made the righteousness of GOD in him. This Sin Offering lay at the Door. It was represented by the Sacrifices, which were even then brought to the Place of Publick Worship, and afterward were brought to the (x) door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and it was to be a sufficient Sacrifice, not only for the Sins of Cain, but also for the Sins of the whole World. And thus one of the (y) Jewish Paraphrasts render the Words thus, And if thou dost not well, yet if thou shalt be converted, thy sin shall be forgiv'n thee. Neither was there any Cause to be displeas'd upon the Account of Abel's Person, for he was still the younger Brother. The Right of Primogeniture should lie in Cain, who should be Superiour to Abel. His (z) Desire should be subject to Cain, and Cain should have Power to controul his Desire. Cain therefore needed not to be displeas'd. If he was a good Man he should be accepted of GOD; if not, there was no Atonement promis'd for his Sins. And nothing of this should alter his civil Right, nor give Abel any Authority over him: But he should still retain the Privilege of his Birth-right; and needed not to fear any Harm from his Brother, who was still his Inferior.

11. The Types of CHRIST in this Part of the sacred Scriptures are of two Sorts, either Things or Persons. The Things, which were Types of CHRIST were the Sacrifices, the Design of them was to put the Sinner in Mind of that great Sacrifice, which should be offer'd, by which the Guilt of all their Sins should be

But Erpenius in his Arabick Grammar, lib. 5. cap. 1. sect. 5. gives us a Rule in that Language, which is observ'd in the other Orientals, that, If the last Word restrains the first from a general Sense to one that is more particular (as in this Text) the Article shall belong only to the second Word, and be omitted in the first; which is not contradicted by any Example, that Bythner alledges. done away, and their Persons and Works should be accepted in the Sight of GOD. When our first Parents were created, they were (a) naked. Their first Cloaths were (b) of the leaves of Trees. And the next was of the Skins of Beasts. For GOD having made (c) that most gracious Covenant before mention'd with them, it seems not unreasonable to suppose, that he also signify'd to them, that they should offer Sacrifices to him for the Confirmation of it: And by their Blood Covenants were ratify'd in after Times from this Example. For it is not likely, that the Beasts, of whose Skins these Coats were made, died of themselves, or that they were kill'd merely for this Use, much less for their Food, because they were (d) allow'd only to eat of Herbs, and the Fruit of the Trees, and (e) the first Allowance to eat Flesh was given after the Flood. And therefore nothing can be so probable, as that by GOD's Order they were slain for Sacrifices to him, the better to represent unto them their Guilt, and that the promis'd Seed should vanquish the Devil and redeem them by Shedding his Blood, and then GOD directed Coats to be made of the Skins of those Beasts to cloath them. Thus the (f) first thing that died was CHRIST in a Figure, who is therefore call'd (g) the lamb which was slain from the foundation of the world. Thus when the Time and Place for religious Worship was settl'd and a fit Person appointed to officiate therein, (h) Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering to the LORD. And Abel he also brought of the firstlings of his flock, and of the fat thereof. And the LORD had respect unto Abel and his Offering. But unto Cain and his offering he had not respect. Some say, that Abel's offering of a living Creature to be slain was a fitter Representation of the Death of CHRIST, and therefore it was accepted. But there were more than outward Qualifications, which made it acceptable. Abel offer'd with a pious Mind; Cain without a due Sense of GOD, and a sincere Affection to him. He offer'd the Fruit of his Ground; but he did not devote himself to GOD. Cain had only Respect to the Offering, which he made; but Abel had Respect to the Offering, which should be made by another, even by CHRIST, of which this was a Type. And this is the Reason, which the Apostle (i) gives of it. By faith Abel offered unto GOD a more excellent Sacrifice than Cain; δι' ἧς for the Sake of which Faith he obtain'd witness that he was righteous, GOD testifying of his gifts; and δι' αὐτῆς for the Sake of which Faith he being dead ἐτι λαλεῖται, is yet spoken of.

12. The Persons who were Types of CHRIST

in this Part of the sacred Scriptures are three, viz. Adam, Enoch and Noah. The first was Adam. For this Reason the Apostle saith of him (k) that he is the figure of him, that was to come; and CHRIST JESUS is call'd (l) the second Adam. Adam had no earthly Father, and therefore he is call'd the (m) the Son of GOD, being so by Grace only and Creation. CHRIST had no earthly Father, and therefore he is call'd the Son of GOD, being so by Nature and eternal Generation. Adam was (n) created after the Image of GOD, and CHRIST was (o) the brightness of his FATHER's Glory, and the express image of his person. Adam was the Owner of Paradise, the (p) Heir of the World, and the Sovereign Lord of all Creatures, to whom they came for their Names; CHRIST is Lord of Heaven and Earth, (q) the heathen is given to him for an inheritance, and the utmost parts of the earth for his possession. And (r) of him the whole family both in heaven and earth is named. Adam was the chief King, Priest and Prophet in his Family; and so is CHRIST in his Church. Besides, the Apostle fitly compares Adam with CHRIST, that as by viewing of the one we learn the Cause of our Misery; so by viewing the other and comparing of both we may learn the Cause of our Happiness. Thus (s) as Adam and by his Transgression all Men were liable to Death; so by CHRIST and his Obedience should all be entitl'd to eternal Life; And as by one Man came death; so by the other should come the resurrection of the dead. Thus (t) the first man Adam was made a living soul, to be the Cause of our natural Life; and the last Adam was made a quickning spirit a divine Principle to stir us up to a Life of Grace, that so hereafter we may obtain a Life of Glory. Thus (as (u) the Apostle saith) The first man Adam was of the earth, and earthly; but the second man CHRIST JESUS is the LORD from heaven. As is the earthly, such are they that are earthly; and as is the heavenly, such are they that are heavenly. And as we have born the image of the earthly, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly. And in (x) another Place he carries on the same Similitude) Death reigned from Adam, even over them who had not sinned after the similitude of Adam's transgression. Infants, and such as have no actual Sin like Adam, have died in all Ages; because the Guilt of Adam's first Sin hath been deriv'd to them. But not as the offence; so also is the free gift. This is of another Nature. The one brings a Curse, and the other a Blessing. The one brings Death, and the other Life. For if through the Offence of one many be dead: much more the grace of GOD, and the gift

by grace, which is by one man JESUS CHRIST, hath abounded unto many. And not as it was by one that sinned, so is the gift: for the judgment was by one to condemnation, to pass Sentence for the Sake of one Crime; but the free gift is of many offences unto justification, to pardon all those who belong to CHRIST, tho' their Sins were ever so many, or ever so great in themselves, or accompany'd with the greatest Aggravations. For if by the offence of one meer man, death reign'd by one, and for his Sake; much more they which receive abundance of grace, and of the gift of righteousness, shall reign in life by one JESUS CHRIST, who was GOD as well as Man, and therefore what he did and suffer'd, and still doth for us, is of an infinite Value, and as such it is sufficient of it self to procure Pardon of Sin, the Favour and Love of GOD, and an Acceptance of our Persons and our Duties. Therefore as by the offence of one, judgment came upon all men to condemnation; even so by the righteousness of one, the free gift came upon all men to justification of life. For as by one man's disobedience many were made sinners; so by the obedience of one shall many be made righteous. In short, a Covenant was made with Adam not only for himself but for all his Posterity, and a Covenant was made with CHRIST, not for himself but for all who believe in him. If Adam had continu'd righteous, we had been sav'd by his Righteousness; but since he sinn'd, we must be sav'd by the Righteousness of CHRIST. By the Sin of Adam we became liable to eternal Death, and by the Death of CHRIST in our Stead we are perfectly freed from it. By the Sin of Adam we are made Strangers to GOD, and by the Mediation of CHRIST we are made his adopted Sons, and thereby obtain a nearer Admittance into his Presence. By the Sin of Adam imputed to us we are shut out of Heaven. CHRIST by his Righteousness hath purchas'd the same again for us, and this imputed to us shall give us a full and perfect Title to it. And thus the Knowledge of our Misery by the first Adam gives us a clearer View of our Salvation by the Second.

13. The next Type of CHRIST is Enoch. Enoch is (y) said to have walked with GOD, (z) to have pleased GOD, and (a) to have been beloved of him. CHRIST JESUS is said (b) to be always his delight, rejoicing always before him, and (c) to do always those things that please him, and accordingly GOD the FATHER (d) testify'd of him by a Voice from Heaven in these Words, This is my beloved son, in whom I am well pleased. Enoch foretold (e) the Destruction of the old World for their Impiety and Obstinacy, and CHRIST foretold (f) the Destruction of Jerusalem for the same Reason. The (g) Body of Enoch was translated into Heaven, that he should not see death, and therefore was not found upon the Earth. And (h) thus CHRIST being raised from the dead dieth no more, death hath no more dominion over him, and therefore his (i) Body ascended into Heaven, and (k) is to be here no more until the general Resurrection and Day of Judgment.

14. The last Type of CHRIST is Noah. Noah is (l) said to be a just man, and perfect in his generation, and to walk with GOD; and the same may be said more truly of CHRIST. The Righteousness both of Noah and Enoch was the Righteousness of Faith and not of Works; but the Righteousness of CHRIST was his own, a Righteousness of Nature, Person and Heart. Noah was (m) a perfect and an upright man. He was not defil'd with Idolatry, false Religion, Opinions or external Crimes; but CHRIST was perfectly and absolutely Righteous, without fault, doing nothing amiss, and fulfilling all righteousness. Noah was righteous according to the Covenant of the Gospel, and CHRIST according to the strict Letter of the Law; and thus (n) they both walking with GOD found grace and favour in his Sight. Noah was (o) a Preacher of righteousness. He invited all Men to Repentance and to flee from the Wrath to come. He liv'd in a most corrupt Age, when there was a general Defection both of Doctrine and Manners; and all this was true of CHRIST. When the (p) old World despis'd the preaching of Noah, the Flood came and took them all away; and when the Jews despis'd the Preaching of CHRIST (q) the Romans came and took away both their place and nation. From Noah descended all the Inhabiters of the Earth; and through CHRIST we are made Inhabiters of the Kingdom of Heaven. And as the World was replenish'd by the Posterity of Noah; so every Member of the Church is call'd (r) the seed of CHRIST. Noah (s) built an altar unto the LORD, and offer'd such burnt offerings on the altar as were acceptable to the LORD, who was delighted with it, as Men are, when they smell a sweet Saviour. CHRIST (t) offer'd not up Birds nor Beasts, but that which was much better, more perfectly pure and holy, he gave himself for us, an offering and a sacrifice to GOD for a sweet smelling savour. And thus were we deliver'd from that Wrath of GOD; and restor'd to his Favour not by the Offering up (u) of corruptible things, but by the precious blood of CHRIST as of a lamb without blemish and without spot, not upon the Altar built by Hands, but upon one more perfect, the Altar of his Deity, which did most (x) perfectly and compleatly sanctify the Gift, that was offer'd upon it; not ascending to Heaven by ordinary Fire, (y) but offering himself without spot through the eternal Spirit, which (z) is compar'd to Fire. And therefore such an Offering as this must fully satisfy his Father's Justice, appease his Wrath, and make all other Sacrifices and Duties acceptable to him. And from hence it was that GOD did make a Covenant of Grace with both, not only for themselves, but also for all those, who should belong to them, that he would never break (a) out into such Wrath against them, as he did before, confirming the same unto the Posterity of Noah by the Sign of the Rainbow; and confirming the same to those, who are his own adopted Sons in CHRIST JESUS by the Sacraments of Baptism and the LORD's Supper. Noah (b) sent out a Dove, when the Waters were asswaged, and his Fears and Dangers were past, which brought in his Mouth an olive Branch, the Sign of Joy and Comfort; CHRIST JESUS when his Sufferings and Labours were ended, sent forth his holy Spirit (which (c) before had lighted on him in the Shape of a Dove) which brings Joy, Peace and Comfort into the Hearts of them that believe in him, and assures them that GOD's Wrath is appeas'd, and he will love them freely, and receive them into Favour.

15. And as Noah was a Type of CHRIST; so the Ark, which he built, hath been usually reckon'd as a Type of his Church. The Ark was toss'd about by the Waves, until it rested on one of the highest Mountains; and the Church is liable to many and great Afflictions, until it arrives safe in the Kingdom of Heaven. They who were in the Ark were sav'd, not for their own Sakes, but for the Sake of Noah, because he was a just man, and perfect in his generation, and one who walked with GOD; and they who are saved in the visible Church, are sav'd not by any Merits in themselves, but only through the Merits and Mediation of JESUS CHRIST. In the Ark there was not only good Shem and Japhet, but also cursed Ham; and in the visible Church the Tares grow up with the standing corn, the Chaff is mix'd with the Wheat, and it is like a Net cast into the Sea, which gathers of every Kind. As there was no visible Safety but in the Ark, for the Rest were all destroy'd; so there is no Salvation to be had in an ordinary Way but in the Church. As Noah the Builder of the Ark enters into it, and receives and saves all that go in with him; for which Purpose he is contented to be tossed up and down by the most violent Waves, and had no more Freedom from Fear and Danger than others which were with him: So CHRIST the Head and Founder of his Church enters himself into it by the Waters of Baptism, and was contented for the Saving of others, to be toss'd with the Waves of Affliction, Poverty, Labour, Shame and Infamy. That his Church might be in Safety with him, he is content to be in Danger with her; and that he might help her in every State, he was like unto her in every thing, Sin only excepted. Besides, St. Peter (d) makes the Saving this Family a Type of Baptism, telling us, that as in the days of Noah, few, that is, eight souls were saved by water; So the like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us (not the putting away the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward GOD) by the resurrection of JESUS CHRIST. If therefore we say, that Baptism is an Ordinance appointed by CHRIST himself as necessary to Salvation, where it may be had; and that (e) except a man be born of water as well as of the spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of GOD; If we say, that they who keep themselves and others from this Ordinance, do such a Mischief, for which they can never make Reparation: we have sufficient Grounds for such an Assertion. And as we baptize by Sprinkling, but do not condemn Dipping; so if some among us, who deny our Baptism as invalid, did but consider the first Type of it, as mention'd by the Apostle, when they who were in the Ark might be sprinkl'd with the Waves or Rain, but they who were dipp'd in the Water, were all drown'd, it might abate their Pride in their own Way, or cause them to be more charitable in their Censures.

16. The last Particular, which was propos'd, is to vindicate the Authority of the Sacred Scriptures from such Arguments as occur in the Reading of them; And this will be very evident, when we consider that excellent Variety of Knowledge, which is contain'd in them, the Harmony between so many Authors, who wrote in such different Stiles, in such different Times, on such different Subjects, and to such different Persons, and that the Subjects, which they wrote upon were of such a Nature, that if they had not been inspir'd, they must have betray'd their own Imposture, as Mahomet hath done in his pretended Miracle.

17. Thus to mention the Particulars in their Order. It was always reckon'd a Study worthy of the thoughts of the greatest Philosophers to consider how this World was made; and it is strange to consider, how confus'd they were in their Notions concerning it. They generally thought it had a Beginning, but could conceive nothing how it came to pass, but suppos'd it to be by Chance, or an accidental Motion of Atoms in a void Space, as if an accidental Tumbling down of Stones and Timber could form an House, or a Watch could be fram'd and rightly set without a first Hand or Mover. And the greatest Philosopher among them was most distant from the Truth, when he affirm'd, that it was eternal. But (f) the first Sentence of the Bible gives that Discovery, which could never be met with originally in any other Author. In the beginning GOD created the heaven and the earth. Thus (g) through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of GOD; so that things, which are seen, were not made of things, which do appear. We understand it through Faith, because it cannot be comprehended or found out by Reason; and yet as soon as it is reveal'd to us, we presently apprehend it as the most reasonable Account of any.

18. The vast Improvements, which have been made in the Study of Astronomy, especially by the Help of Telescopes, in the last and present Century, do furnish us with more noble and enlarg'd Thoughts, not only of the Heavens, but also of the Wisdom, Power, Immensity and Goodness of the GOD, who created them, if we consider the Exactness of their Motions, and the Regularity of the Laws, by which they are guided, their prodigious Bigness, their vast Distances from us, and from each other, and the various Uses for which they are design'd; so that an uninspir'd Author, if he had wrote in those Times on such Subjects, must certainly have fall'n into those Errors, which would now have been discover'd. Thus for Instance, It is evident to those, who are skill'd in that Science, that the Moon, Saturn, and Jupiter are inhabited by living Creatures; and it is very probable, that the fix'd Stars, not only those, which are seen by the Eye, and those which are discover'd with Instruments, but Millions more at an undiscernable Distance, may be as Suns to so many other Worlds. If so, what exalted Thoughts must this raise in us? And how must we be amaz'd to think, that the same GOD (whose Providence is seen in the smallest Animal upon Earth) preserves and governs them all, and is in every Place alike? Now, tho' Moses in that Age might have mention'd this Earth as the only Place of the Universe, which was inhabited, and might notwithstanding have pass'd for an inspir'd Writer; yet he meddles not with the Controversy. He saith, In the beginning GOD created the heaven and the earth, but there is not one Word to shew, that he meant any more than this Planetary System. By the Heaven is meant the things above us, and by the Earth the things below us, but he no more describes how far the Works of Creation do extend above us in the Heavens, than he tells us how far we are distant from the Center of the Earth. St. Paul tells us, that (h) the SON of GOD hath been appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds. and that (i) through faith we understand that the worlds were created, and the Worlds in the Original Being of the plural Number, may give just Occasion for such a Translation. And even Moses when (k) he saith, that GOD made the Sun and the Moon, he only adds, And he made stars also; but doth not say, that he made all the Stars; for which this only Reason can be given, That he who inspir'd him to write, would not suffer the least Word to fall from his Pen, which might give any Occasion of Cavil in future Ages, or raise the least Objection against those enlarg'd Notions of his Immensity, which might be the Effect of such Discoveries. When St. Paul speaks of (l) CHRIST JESUS, that he is the image of the invisible GOD, and the first Cause, Author or bringer forth of every creature: For by him all things were created, that are in heaven and that are in the earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones or dominions or principalities or powers, all things were created by him and for him. And when St. John saith (m) All things were made by him, and without him was not any thing made that was made, they neither of them mention, that all these things were made at one Time. And when Moses gives us an Account of what was done in the six Days of the Creation, he saith no more than what may be apply'd to this planetary System, and gives us not the least Hint, that then all things were created. GOD may every Week make other Worlds as large as this for ought we know to the contrary. Let us then think upon (n) our later Observations in Astronomy, that the Sun is no less than eighty one Millions of Miles from us in its Middle Distance, and yet we every Day are sensible of its Light and Heat. That the Distance of the Earth from the Sun is so great, that if a Bullet went toward it from the Earth at the Rate of five Miles in a Minute, or three hundred Miles in an Hour it would be thirty Years before it came thither; and yet the Rays of Light come thence in about seven Minutes and an half without occasioning the least Prejudice to the tender Eye by the Swiftmess of its Motion. That the Earth, tho' so large as it seems to be, would appear at the Sun but as a very small Star. That the Bulk of Saturn is 1651 Times bigger than the Earth, that of Jupiter is 3473 Times bigger, and that of the Sun is 1098600 Times bigger; and yet those Bodies so vastly big, and so vastly distant from each other, are so regular, as not to vary a Minute of their appointed Times in their appointed Motions, and that the whole Orb of the Earth round the Sun is undiscernable in comparison of the stupendous Distance between us and the fix'd Stars: When we consider these and many more such Particulars, we cannot but cry out with the Apostle (o) O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of GOD! We cannot but confess with him, that (p) it is GOD, who upholdeth all things by the word of his power, and (q) that the heavens declare the glory of GOD, and the firmament sheweth his handy work. And that (r) of him, and through him, and to him, are all things; to whom the glory of all must be ascrib'd for ever and Ever. And when we compare all this with the Account which Moses gives of the Creation of the things of the Earth, it will more and more evidently suggest to us the (s) Rapture of the divine Psalmist, O LORD how manifold are thy works! In wisdom hast thou made them all. And if we add the great Probability, that there may be (t) Millions of habitable Globes, like this in which we live, and probably as large or larger; and particularly that the Surface of Saturn is 45 Times, and the Surface of Jupiter is 57 Times bigger than that of our Earth, we may soon reflect, What a small thing is this Globe in which we live? And what an inconsiderable thing is Man, who is so small a Part of it? When we think, how many Millions of Worlds there may be? and, how many Millions of reasonable Creatures there may be in each of these Worlds? And perhaps many of them, who can do their Maker greater and much better Service than we, and perhaps never offended him as we have, and daily do; and yet that out of his mere Love and Goodness to us, he should send his dear and only Son to come into this World to live here and die for us, for no other Reason but to reconcile us to himself and satisfy his Justice for our Offences, how must we lose our selves in such Meditations as these? and say with the Psalmist (u) When I consider the heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained, What is man, that thou art mindful of him? or the son of man, that thou visitest him. Thus we see how the All-wise Being, who made all these things, and knew what Discoveries would be found out in this later Age, directed all the Penmen of the Bible to write in such a Manner, that we cannot but confess it all to be true, and admire that it is so.

19. This will farther appear if we only consider, how (x) Mahomet did plainly betray his own Ignorance and Imposture in these things when he wrote about them. What a monstrous Absurdity is that which he relates of himself, of his going from Mecca to Jerusalem, and from thence through the seven Heavens, and then Returning back to Jerusalem, and so to Mecca within the Space of the tenth Part of one Night. Here he fancies seven Heavens one above the other at an equal Distance and places Adam in the first, Noah in the Second, Abraham in the third, Joseph in the fourth, Moses in the fifth, John the Baptist in the Sixth, our SAVIOUR in the Seventh, and GOD himself at a great Distance beyond them all. He tells us, that the first Heaven was all of pure Silver, and he there saw the Stars hanging from it in Chains of Gold. In his first Heaven he tells us of a Cock in Colour as white as Snow and of so prodigious a Bigness, that his Feet standing upon the first Heaven his Head reach'd up to the Second. That there was another Angel, whose Feet being plac'd on the second Heaven, his Head reached to the third. He tells us the same of another in the fourth Heaven, and another extraordinary one in the seventh, which had seventy thousand Heads, and in every Head seventy thousand Tongues, and every Tongue uttering seventy thousand distinct Voices at the same Time, with which he continu'd Day and Night incessantly praising GOD. All these extravagant Stories plainly shew us, that he was not willing to diminish any thing from what he thought to be true; and yet in his Astronomical Accounts he is very defective. He places the fix'd Stars in the first or nearest Heavens, whereas we now know them to be at an immense Distance. He makes the fix'd Stars to be of the Bigness of Mount Noho in Arabia; whereas one of the Satellites of Jupiter is suppos'd to be as big as this Globe of the Earth, and yet is invisible by Reason of its Distance from us, tho' it may for ought we know, be five hundred Times nearer to us than any of the fix'd Stars. And if we suppose the Distance from the Earth to the first Heaven to be in his Account equal to each of the Rest, which he will have to be five Hundred Years Journey according to the Rate as we usually travel here on Earth, which, tho' we may suppose to be fifty Miles a Day; yet this would not carry him so far as the Sun. So strangely was he mistak'n in his Computations. Besides, this Impostor tells us, that in the third Heaven, he saw an Angel of so prodigious a Size, that the Distance between his two Eyes was as much as seventy thousand Days Journey according to our Rate of travelling here on Earth. But tho' he places him in one of his Heavens; yet the Distance between a Man's Eyes, being in Proportion to his Height but as one is to seventy two, according to this Computation, the Height of this Angel must have been near fourteen thousand Year's Journey, which is four Times as much as the Height of all his seven Heavens put together. And therefore such gross Mistakes in Astronomy and

Mathematicks, which we find in such an Author, may make us conclude, That it was only the Direction of an all-wise Being, which prevented all such Mistakes in the Account of the Creation as mention'd by Moses, and did so order it, that it can stand the Test of the most modern and nice Inquiry.

20. There is another (t) Text in the first Chapter of Genesis, which is mention'd in such a Manner as none but a divinely inspir'd Author could have thought of. And GOD said, Let there be lights in the firmament of the heaven to divide the day from the night; and let them be for signs, and for seasons, and for days, and for years. Here it is remarkable, that the Word Seasons is put in, and the Word Months is omitted. When Moses wrote this, the Months among the Jews, and perhaps among all the Nations of the World were only Lunar, and there was a natural Reason for them so to be. As the diurnal Motion of the Sun to the same Meridian measur'd the Length of the Day, and the annual Motion of the Sun to the same Point of the Ecliptick measur'd the Length of the Year; so the first Appearance of the Moon after the Change began the Month, which continu'd, 'til its first Appearance after the next Change began another. And thus the Son of Sirach saith of the Moon, that (x) The month is called after her name. But we reckon our Months in another Manner, and accordingly for Distinction Sake call them Solar Months. And none but a Being, infinite in Knowledge could have foreseen this. If therefore Moses had said, Let them be for months, he would have spok'n according to the Custom of those Ages, and the Resemblance between Days, Months and Years would have been more evident. But then we, who live in this Age, would have been apt to say, that it was not true; For the Moon doth not govern the Length of the Month now. But Moses, by the Direction of GOD, was guided to write such and only such Expressions as were true then, and true now, and will be true to the End of the World, and could be directed by no one but him, who as he knew all things; so he wrote in such Words as would be true in all Ages without Distinction. And as the Word Months was omitted; so the Word Seasons was inserted by the same divine Wisdom. The Word in the Hebrew constantly signifies solemn and stated Feasts, of which there were many among the Jews upon particular Days of their Month, and were accordingly determined by the Moon. Thus (x) From the moon is the sign of feasts. These if we respect the Solar Year, were moveable Feasts. And it is observable, that tho' all other secular Days of the solar Year are fix'd to certain Days; yet these solemn Feasts are determin'd from the Nature of the Jewish Months, as they were at first. So that Moses writes of the Moon, that she was appointed to determine the solemn Feasts; so it was with them, who us'd a lunar Year; and so it is with us, who use a solar Year; and none but a GOD, who knows all things, could foresee, that it would continue so, and consequently use such an Expression, as is exactly true in all Ages.

21. Thus to instance in other Particulars, what strange Notions had the Heathen concerning the Nature of their Gods? Confining them to Place, enlarging their Number without Measure and making the chief of them to be guilty of the vilest Immoralities. But the Attributes of the divine Nature are so clearly laid down to us in these Writings, that we cannot well be ignorant, or form wrong Conceptions of them. And as they knew not what GOD was; so they were as ignorant how he was to be worshipp'd, and were thereby led into the grossest Absurdities, as Idolatry, Superstition, Cruelty to themselves, and sometimes Murdering of others. But here we are taught such a Religion, as is agreeable to the Nature of GOD, and is easy, rational and delightful to us; and our blessed SAVIOUR hath comprehended all in few Words, (y) GOD is a spirit, and they that worship him, must worship him in spirit and in truth.

22. How many Disputes have been continually rais'd concerning the Original of human Souls? How we came to be endow'd with Reason beyond all other Animals, and also how we became immortal? This we seek for in vain in other Writings. But here we have a full Account of all in a few Words. (z) And GOD said, Let us make man in our own image, after our likeness. So GOD created man in his own image, in the image of GOD created he him. And the LORD GOD formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul. What dark Notions had the heathen World concerning the Being and the Nature of GOD? and yet how clearly hath he reveal'd himself, his Nature and Attributes in these sacred Oracles? The Notions which the heathen World had of Angels, was very confus'd. And it is no Wonder, that if they could not rightly apprehend the things which they daily saw; but they should be at a Loss to understand the things which were not seen at all. But here we are told the Cause of their Being, and as much of their Nature as we are able to apprehend. It is (a) GOD, who maketh his angels spirits, and his ministers a flame of fire. They are רוחות or like Winds, as the Hebrew expresseth it, of an invisible Nature, and an unaccountable Power; and like Lightning, fleeing in a most swift, irresistible and penetrating Manner. Here we are told their Orders. There are (b) Angels, (c) Cherubim, and (d) Seraphim, (e) Thrones, Dominions, Principalities and Powers. And here we are told their Office, (f) that they are all ministering spirits, sent forth to minister unto them, which shall be heirs of salvation. The Heathens could discern by the Light of Nature, that they were in an ignorant and a deprav'd State; but they could give no Account how they came to be so at first, much less how they could recover themselves out of it; how GOD came at first to be displeas'd with Man, and how he must be reconcil'd again. The Heathens knew that the Gods were angry, but had never any Notion of a fit Mediator to appease them; and yet Moses in (g) the History of the Fall of their first Parents gives us an Account of these Particulars. There is in all Mankind an utter Aversion to the Sight of Spirits, and it would have been difficult to have assign'd a good Reason for it, if Moses had not (h) giv'n us an Account, how the Devil seduc'd our first Parents to fall from their original State of Innocency, and that ever since (i) an Enmity was plac'd between this old Serpent and the Race of Mankind. And therefore this occasions an Antipathy, because whenever any such Spirits are seen, we are not sure but they are our Enemies, even when they appear in the Shape of Friends, and we also know, that (k) Satan can transform himself into an Angel of Light, and (l) he walks about day and night seeking whom he may devour. The Philosophers spent a great deal of Time and Pains in Inquiring wherein Man's chief Good did consist, and if they could have found it out, it would have been a sufficient Recompense for all. Varro saith, that there were in his Days two hundred and eighty eight Sects about it; and tho' there were so many Opinions, yet none of them were in the right. But one Verse (m) in these sacred Writings will inform us that, which they could never know. There be many that say, Who will shew us any good? LORD, lift thou up the light of thy countenance upon us. Thou hast put gladness in my heart, more than in the time, when their corn and wine and oyl increased. And (n) My flesh and my heart faileth; but GOD is the strength of my heart, and my portion for ever.

23. Thus also in Natural Philosophy, what Job saith, (o) GOD stretcheth out the north over the empty place, and hangeth the earth upon nothing, is a truth, which could never have been known at that Time without divine Revelation, especially if we consider, how much the Notion of the Antipodes was oppos'd, when it was at first discover'd. Let us also consider, How many Disputes have risen up concerning the Original of Fountains and Rivers? How many Notions have been confuted, and yet what Solomon did at first observe, hath stood the Test in all Ages, (p) All the rivers run into the sea, yet the sea is not full: and unto the place, from whence the rivers come, thither they return again.

24. And can we set light by such sacred Books as these, in whom are reveal'd all the Treasures of Wisdom and Knowledge, and especially those Truths, which are most necessary for us to know and believe? which shew us our real Happiness, how we lost it, and how we must obtain it? which even reveals to us such things of our selves, which we knew not before, and yet upon Inquiry find them to be true? There is no Book but this, which gives us an Account of the Creation of the World, at least in so perfect a Manner, of the Forming of Man, or of their ancient Habitation, or of the Time from the Creation to the Flood. And tho' there hath been a common Consent in almost all Nations, that there was an universal Flood; yet no other Person ever gave a satisfactory Account, from whence the Waters came, or whither they went, much less how all the living Creatures were preserv'd in such an Inundation. No other Writer ever gave an Account of the Dimensions of the Ark, and consequently of its Capacity; and if they had, they would certainly have made it either much too big or much too little for that Purpose, for which it was design'd. No other Writer ever hinted to us how long such a Fabrick might have been in building; and if they had, they would certainly have given more Occasions for Caviel, and very little Satisfaction.

25. But not to insist any longer on these Particulars, I shall conclude this Subject with a few Reflections upon the Dimensions of the Ark, as Noah was directed to make it from the Mouth of GOD himself; so that the Prejudices being remov'd which some Hereticks of old, and some Atheistical Scoffers in these later Times have rais'd, all their Arguments may be as Cannon turn'd upon the Enemy, and secure the Dignity of such Books, which they are labouring to destroy. It is (q) a great Difference between those Opinions and Apprehensions, which are occasion'd by a more general and confus'd View of things, and those which proceed from a more distinct Consideration of them, as they are reduc'd into Order. And therefore they, who urge the Impossibility, that the Ark could hold so many Animals, and their Food, may, upon a serious View acknowledge their Error, and the Wisdom of GOD so plainly legible in those Parts of the sacred Writings, which they thought were most liable to Objections.

26. He that looks upon the Stars, as they are confus'dly scatter'd up and down in the Firmament, will think them to be (as they are sometimes stil'd) innumerable, or of so vast a Multitude, as not to be determin'd to any set Number : But when all these Stars are distinctly reduc'd into particular Constellations, and describ'd by their several Places, Magnitude and Names, it appears, that of those, which are visible to the naked Eye, there are not fifteen Hundred in the whole Firmament, and never more than half so many to be seen at once in any Hemisphere, taking in the minuter Kinds of them, even to six Degrees of Magnitude. It is so likewise in other things. He that would put the Question, How many Sorts of Beasts or Birds there are in the World? would be answer'd, even by such as are otherwise knowing and learned Men, that there are so many hundreds of them, as could not be enumerated : Whereas upon a distinct Inquiry into all such as are yet known, and have been describ'd by credible Authors, it doth appear, that there are much fewer, than is commonly imagin'd, not an hundred Sorts of Beasts, nor two hundred Sorts of Birds.

27. And therefore from what hath been said in the former Chapter, (b) it may appear, that the Measure and Capacity of the Ark, which some atheistical irreligious Men make use of, as an Argument against the Scripture, ought rather to be esteem'd as a most rational Confirmation of the Truth and divine Authority of it. Especially if it be well consider'd, that in those first and ruder Ages of the World, when Men were less vers'd in Arts and Philosophy, and were therefore probably more obnoxious to vulgar Prejudices, than now they are ; yet the Capacity and Proportions of the Ark are so well adjusted to the things, which it was to contain : Whereas if it had been a meer human Invention, it is most probable, that it would have been contriv'd according to those wild Apprehensions, which (as was said before) do naturally arise from a more confus'd and general View of things, and have been as much too big, as such Men have been apt to think it too little for those Ends and Purposes, for which it was design'd.

28. In this Part of the History, there is one Dislocation, viz. (c) Tho' Man was created on the sixth Day of the Creation, and (d) GOD rested on the seventh day from all his works ; yet the (e) Creation of Man is not mention'd until after the seventh Day was ended. But the Reason of this is plain. Moses in the first Chapter of Genesis gives us an Account of the Creation of the World in general, and the Work of each Day of the Six, and particularly what Animals were created on each of these Days, That the Fish and Fowl were created on the fifth Day, that all the Beasts and creeping things were created on the Beginning of the sixth Day, and then (f) Man was created last of all, as the noblest Part of the whole Work, after which GOD rested on the Seventh Day. And then (g) there follows a short Repetition of the Creation of the World in general, and a particular Account of the Creation of Man ; because Moses, designing to write the History of Man from that Time to his, did so order it, that the Reader might have a full View thereof altogether, without any thing to interrupt it. And this is also the Reason that the (h) Description of Paradise is plac'd before the Creation of Eve, viz. that afterward there might be nothing to interrupt the whole Story.

C H A P. I.

From the Flood until the Promise giv'n to Abraham.

IN the 1656th Julian Year of the World the Flood began, Noah being (a) five hundred and ninety nine Years of Age complete, and entering upon the six hundredth Year. In the 1657th Julian Year, the Flood continues, Noah being six hundred Years old complete, and entering upon his six hundred and first Year. From this last Year the Years after the Flood are computed, and thus (c) Arphaxad is born two Years after this Year. And from this Year to the Year of the Promise given to Abraham are 426 Years, which added to 1657 Years, or to the Age of the World at the Flood shews, that the Promise was given to Abraham in the Year of the World 2083, as (d) appears from the following Table.

2. That this Year is rightly plac'd will be evient, if we consider, that as it is very probable, that (e) GOD spake to the Patriarchs only upon the Day of the Antemosaical Sabbath, and (f) that this Day was the same Day of the Week, with that which we now observe; so it is certain, that GOD spake to

Abraham on the fourteenth Day of the seventh Month, which among the Jerés in after Ages, when the Beginning of the Year was chang'd, answer'd to the fourteenth Day of the first Month Nisan or Abib. This appears from what is recorded (i) in Scripture. Now the sojourning of the children of Israel, who dwelt in Egypt, was four hundred and thirty Years. And it came to pass at the end of the four hundred and thirty years, even the self same day it came to pass, that all the hosts of the LORD went out from the land of Egypt. It is a night to be much observed to the LORD for bringing them out from the land of Egypt; This is that night of the LORD to be observed of all the Children of Israel in their generations. It is a Night to be much observ'd, because (k) on the Evening before they were always oblig'd to kill and eat the Passover. On this (l) self same Day of the Month the Promise was giv'n to Abraham; and from the Day of this Promise (m) St. Paul himself reckons up those very four hundred and thirty Years, and tells us, that they were compleated by the Children of Israel's Going out of Egypt, and by the Law being giv'n from Mount Sinai in the same Year.

3. Secondly, This fourteenth Day of the Month is (n) particularly mention'd in Exodus at the going forth of the Children of Israel out of Egypt, as the Day to be celebrated by them in Commemoration of their Deliverance, and no other is mention'd as such throughout the whole Chapter; and therefore (o) the very self same day mention'd as the Day of the Promise, must be this very Day of the Month, in which this Promise was fulfill'd, and can be no other.

4. Thirdly, This keeps up a greater Affinity between the Promise, the Type and the Performance. On the fourteenth Day of the first Month, according to the Jewish Account, GOD said unto Abraham, (p) In thy seed (which is CHRIST, and by Virtue of his Death) shall all the families of the earth be blessed. On the fourteenth Day of the first Month the Paschal Lamb was slain as a Type hercof. And on the fourteenth Day of the first Month, being the Day of the Passover, CHRIST was also crucify'd, and so he fulfill'd that, which before had been prophesy'd and typify'd of him.

5. To this it may be objected, that (q) the Departure of the Children of Israel out of Egypt is fix'd to the fifteenth day of the first month, and to the morrow after the passover. And therefore this seems to be the Day of the Promise given to Abraham. But to this it may be answer'd, That the Israelites were in actual Possession of the Promise on the fifteenth Day of the first Month, for then they march'd out of Egypt: But it was sign'd, seal'd, and made over to them on the Day before by their Killing of the Paschal Lamb. And therefore as we reckon our selves to be in the actual Possession of an Estate, from the Day in which the Writings are seal'd, tho' the Estate is not actually deliver'd up to us for some Time after; so it was in the Case of Abraham and the Israelites. Abraham could not but look upon himself as possess'd of the Land of Canaan, when he and his Offspring were (r) circumcis'd, which was a Token of the Covenant; and the Israelites might reckon themselves as departed out of Egypt, when they had eaten the Paschal Lamb, as a Sign and a Seal, that this Covenant should be perform'd the next Day.

6. The Promise, which was made to Abraham, was given to him when he was above seventy three Years of Age, and in the same Julian Year, in which he afterward compleated his seventy fourth Year, and when (s) he was in Ur of the Chaldees. In this Year GOD said unto him, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy father's house, unto a land which I shall shew thee. And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great, and thou shalt be a blessing. And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee. And in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed. Then came he out of the land of the Chaldeans, and brought with him (u) his Father Terah; and as Moses said, They came to Haran and dwelt there. This Dwelling supposes their Stay there for some Time, which could not be less than to the End of the same Year. There Terah Abraham's Father dies, (x) when he was now two hundred and five Years old, upon whose Death Abraham (y) being now full seventy and five Years old, departed from Haran, and came into the land of Canaan.

7. As the Scriptures give no other Date for these Transactions, except the Time when Abraham was seventy and five Years of Age; so all the Chronologers (which I know of) make them all to happ'n in the same Year. But this cannot be prov'd from Scripture. There is no Doubt, but the (z) Death of Terah in Haran, and the Departure of Abraham from thence happen'd in the seventy and fifth Year of Abraham's Life, and not after he was full seventy and five Years old. And to this may be apply'd that ancient saying of the Jews, (a) That with them a Part of the Month is as the whole, and a Part of the Year is as the whole. And in this Sense whatever was done in any Part of Abraham's seventy fifth Year, may be said to be done, when he was seventy five Years old. And if (as the Jews affirm) the (b) Patriarchs, Isaac excepted, were all born about the Autumnal Equinox; and as it is evident, that Abraham (c) was full seventy and five Years old in the Julian Year of the World 2084; so these Transactions must happen in the Beginning of the same Year. And therefore the true Account seems to me to be thus. Abraham was (d) seventy and three Years old about the latter End of the Year 2082. And perhaps about the same Time, if (e) the Arabick Historian may be credited, GOD heard his Prayers in a Time of publick Calamities, when great Numbers of Birds devour'd the Seed sown in the Ground, and their Idols could not help them. Thus the true GOD being known to him, he at the Command of GOD, and in his Zeal against false Worship, burnt an Idol Temple in one of the Cities of the Chaldeans, and most probably in Ur; and his Brother Haran coming to quench it, perish'd in the Flames. And thus (f) Haran died before his father Terah in the land of his nativity in Ur of the Chaldees. If this was true, then there was a visible Reason, why not only Abraham, but also his Father Terah, and Lot his Brother's Son and their Families should depart the Country, namely, for fear of being destroy'd by the incens'd Multitude, and accordingly to encourage them therein, GOD commanded Abraham (g) to depart, and gave him the Promise. Thus this Promise was giv'n, when Abraham was (h) seventy three Years old and an half, and in the Year of the World 2083. Upon this he travails in the Summer with his aged Father Terah (who could travail but slowly) and came to Haran, and being detain'd by his Father's Sickness and Infirmities, he (i) dwelt there. There he spends the Winter, and there in or near the Spring, his Father died, being (k) two hundred and five Years old. In the (l) Spring following, when Abraham was in his seventy fifth Year, he removes from thence, and travails into the Land of Canaan, where he settles for some Time. This seems to be the genuine Account mention'd in the Scriptures; and it not only places the Departure of the Children of Israel out of Egypt, which (m) depends thereon, so as to agree with Astronomical Observations (of which in its due Place) but it may be farther confirm'd by the Celestial Occurrences of the Epocha from the Creation of the World to the Flood, as in the former Book.

8. There are (n) some Authors of considerable Note, who look upon Ur, the Town from whence Abraham came, to be the same with Urchoa, and place it southward of Babylon, at some Distance. Others place it (o) to the North of Babylon, so that the Longitude of all three Places is almost the same. The Reason why Ur is plac'd Northward of Babylon I know not, unless it is, that Haran may lie less out of the Road from Ur to the Land of Canaan. But the (p) learned Bochartus places Ur of the Chaldees in that Part of Mesopotamia, which was nearest to Assyria in the Way from the River Tigris to Nisibis the capital City of that Country near the Latitude of 37 Degrees, and about five Degrees of Longitude eastward from Jerusalem. And his Reasons are two. First, Because according to this Situation Haran lies in the direct Road from Ur to the Land of Canaan. And secondly, It will best answer to the Description, which St. Stephen (q) gives of it, Th. GOD of glory appeared unto our father Abraham, when he was in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran. And he said unto him, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and come into the land, which I shall shew thee. Then came he out of the land of the Chaldeans, and dwelt in Charran, and from thence, when his father was dead, he remov'd him into the land, wherein ye now dwell. And therefore tho' the Moon was first visible at the Beginning of the Year abovemention'd on the same Evening in all Parts of Asia; yet I shall take the Place of Ur in Mesopotamia as assign'd by Bochartus, and not in Babylonia, for (r) the following Calculation; by which it will appear, that (s) this Promise of a Blessing was giv'n to Abraham on the Day of the Antemosaical Sabbath.

9. As therefore Jerusalem, according to our latest and best Maps is plac'd about 37 Degrees distant in Longitude from London, and about the Latitude of 31 Deg. 30"; so if five Degrees, being the Difference of Longitude between Jerusalem and Ur be added, the Longitude of Ur from London appears to be about forty two Degrees, which being reduc'd into Time makes 2<sup>h</sup>. 48'. for the Difference in Calculation.

10. It appears from these (t) Tables, that the Promise was giv'n in the 2788th Year of the Julian Period, and this Number (u) being divided by 28 the Remainder is 16, and (x) the Dominical Letter for that Year is B. And it also appears by Calculation, that (y) in the same Year, the Sun came to the Autumnal Equinox on the tenth Day of October in the Longitude of Ur of the Chaldees, and that in the same Year (z) the Moon was visible on the twelfth Day in the Evening, and consequently that the Year began on the thirteenth Day; so that it appears by the underwritten Computation, that the fourteenth Day of the seventh Month happen'd to be on the twenty fourth Day of April, whose (a) Dominical Letter is B, which shews, that this Day happen'd to be on the Day of the Antemosaical Sabbath, as aforesaid.

11. In the Tables at the End of this Book, I place the Time of Noah's Drunkenness in the Year before the Dispersion of his Family into new Colonies, for these Reasons. First, we may suppose it to have been some considerable Time, before Noah being so good a Man, one who always walked with GOD, and who was for his Piety so signally preserv'd from the Deluge, could so far forget so signal a Mercy, as to be guilty of so great a Sin. But Secondly, omitting this Argument, it is certain, that Canaan the Son of Ham was not born till after the Flood, and it might be several Years after before he was born, because he was (b) always plac'd the last of Ham's four Children, tho' his Posterity was so much spoken of in the Scripture History. This makes it very probable, that he was the youngest Son. And yet at this Time he was grown to so full an Age, as to be a Sharer in his Father's Sin, which makes him alone so particularly mention'd as a Sharer in his Father's Punishment. And Lastly, Noah's Cursing of Ham, his Blessing of Shem and Japhet, and his giving the greatest and first Blessing to Shem, who was not the first Born, might well cause such Feuds and Animosities between them, that it was high Time to think of separating them one from the other, in the same Manner, as it afterward happen'd to (c) Jacob and Esau upon the like Occasion.

12. In these Tables I also place the Confusion of Languages and Dispersion from Babylon in the hundred and thirty first Year after the Flood, whereas (d) others place it in the hundred and first Year at the Birth of Peleg. My Reason not to place it there is, because there being only the three Sons of Noah, and there could not be more than (e) three Generations sprung up from them to people the World, it cannot well be suppos'd, that the World could be so populous in that small Space of Time, as to inhabit the whole Country from the Place where the Ark landed to Babylon, and from thence to be dispers'd into remoter Kingdoms. Besides, they might be first divided into the Countries adjacent to the Habitation of Noah, and (f) after that over the whole earth; but they could not be divided into all Countries from Babylon, because many Countries, especially toward the East, from (g) whence they came thither, were inhabited before. Therefore it is more probable, that the Division at the Birth of Peleg was the first Division made by Noah, when he allotted the Northern and Eastern Parts of Asia, which was the greatest Part to Shem, the West and the Southwest Parts to Ham, that he might go from thence into Africa, and the Northwest Part to Japhet, that he might go from thence into Europe. This occasion'd the Posterity of Ham and Japhet to travail together Westward, and accordingly they came to Babylon, and endeavour'd to prevent the Design of the first Division by fixing there. Thus the Differences about Noah's Cursing Ham, and his Blessing of Shem and Japhet might occasion the first Dispersion at the Birth of Peleg. And Noah's Expulsion of Japhet the elder Brother together with Ham, might cause them to unite more firmly together, and so to contrive to build a Tower, and fix so near to the Posterity of Shem, that in Time they might revenge themselves upon them: And from hence did Ham set upon his ancient Father Noah, and drove him into China. And as this Tower might be thirty Years in Building; so I suppose, that the Dispersion from Babylon was thirty Years after, according as (h) Berosus, one of the most ancient Writers hath plac'd it.

13. But here it may be ask'd, Whether Abraham was the eldest Son of Terah? If he was not, Why hath Moses (i) nam'd him the first of all his Brethren? And if he was, then he was born, when Terah was seventy Years of Age, and not as these and other Tables place him an hundred and thirty.

14. To this it may be answer'd, First, That he is reckon'd to be the first of Terah's Sons, as Shem was the first of Noah's, not because he was the first in Time but the first in Dignity, both upon the Account of his Piety, and also because the remaining Part of the Scripture History relates principally to his Family.

15. But Secondly, He was not the eldest Son of Terah. For First, It is generally suppos'd, that (k) he marry'd his Brother Haran's Daughter, and (l) she was but ten Years younger than himself, which must have been impossible, if her Father was younger than he. Thus Lot was (m) Abraham's Brother's Son by his Father Haran, and yet (n) Abraham calls him his Brother, perhaps as marry'd to his Sister, and so being his Brother-in-law. And as it is usual in the Scripture for the same Person to have two Names; so it is generally thought, that Sarah the Wife of Abraham is the same, who (o) is call'd Ischah. And as GOD had blessed Abraham, insomuch that (p) he was reckon'd a mighty Prince in those Times; so when GOD gave Abraham the first Promise (q) of the Blessing, he might then call her Name Sarai, which might then signify my Princess, as it did since in the Hebrew Language with very little Variation. If so, then there is a very good Reason, Why she should be reckon'd among the Children of Haran; otherwise it will be difficult to shew, Why she should be mention'd there, and not in any other Part of the Scripture; and also to shew, Why she should be mention'd at all, since the Name of no other Woman was recorded from the Time of the Flood to the Time of Terah the Father of Abraham. This Exposition will make the Account of the Genealogy of that Family very plain and easy. (r) Now these are the generations of Terah. Terah was the Father of

Abraham, Nabor and Haran; and Haran was the Father of his Son Lot, and of his two Daughters, Milcab and Sarah, who is call'd Iscab. And Haran died in the land of his nativity in Ur of the Chaldees. And Abraham and Nabor took them wives; the name of Abraham's wife was Sarai or Iscab; and the name of Nabor's wife was Milcab; and these were the Sisters of Lot, and the Daughters of Haran, who was the Father not only of Lot, but also of Milcab, the Wife of Nabor, and also the Father of Iscab, or of Sarah the Wife of Abraham. Secondly, Abraham (s) is said to be but seventy and five Years old, when he departed out of Haran, and (t)

this was after his Father's Death. Now if he had been born at Terah's being seventy Years old, he must have been an hundred and thirty Years old, when his Father died, who was (u) two hundred and five Years old at his Death. We must therefore compute the Years backwards; and so by subtracting seventy and five Years, being the Years of Abraham when Terah died, from two hundred and five Years, being the Age of Terah at his Death, it appears, that Abraham was born, not when Terah was seventy, but when he was an hundred and thirty Years old, and so it is express'd in the following Table at the End of this Book.

CHAP. II.

Of the Place where the Ark landed.

HAVING in (a) a Chapter of the former Book endeavour'd to prove, that the Ark might probably be built at a Place call'd Cyparission between the Rivers Lycus and Caprus on the North North East Side of the City of Babylon, and that it sail'd from thence to the North East as far as the Caspian Sea, and then it came back by a Southern Course, 'till it came almost to the East of Babylon, at about nine Degrees Distance from it in Longitude, I shall now say something more on this Subject, to confirm that this was the Place where the Ark landed, because the Settling of this Particular will be of the utmost Consequence to direct us in Describing the Manner how the World was repeopl'd immediately after the Flood in their respective Nations.

2. As all the Heathen Writers are but of a very late Date in Comparison of the five Books of Moses, and as they have mix'd several Fabulous Stories with this, and describ'd several other Floods, particularly those of Deucalion and Ogyges, as if they had been this universal Flood, and as they have been partial in writing in the first Ages, to make their own Nation be accounted the first, and to be many thousands of Years more ancient than they really were; so none of these Authorities can be depended upon; and therefore the sacred Scriptures must be our only Guide in this Inquiry, and from hence we may observe three Particulars.

3. First, That (b) the Ark rested on one of the Mountains of Ararat. This we are told in express Words. It is (c) universally agreed by the learned, that the Word (d) Ararat doth in the sacred Scriptures signify the Country call'd Armenia first by the Greeks, and afterward by other Nations. And from thence the most receiv'd Opinion hath been, that the Mountains of Ararat signify'd only the same as the Mountains of Armenia; and this hath occasion'd so many Authors of the best Credit to affirm, that the Ark landed in that Country. The Chaldee Paraphrase (e) calls them the Mountains of Kardu, by which undoubtedly is meant the Gordian Mountains in Armenia the greater; and there is a Hill in those Parts, where the Inhabitants shew large Pieces of old rotten Timber, and tell those, who are willing to spend their Time and Money to see the Curiosity, that they are the Pieces of the Ark, which landed there. But in answer to this, there is a mighty Ridge of Mountains, that extend themselves far beyond the Country of Armenia, which are call'd, The Mountains of Ararat. Thus there are several Mountains, that divide Italy from France, which are call'd (f) The Alps; and there are several Mountains that divide France from Spain, which are call'd The Pyrenean Mountains. And thus it is also in Asia. That long Ledge of Mountains, which Pliny calls only Taurus, until they run along, and cross the Mountains of Imaus, are of one general Name. Ptolemy calls the long Ledge of Mountains, which are between the Caspian and Euxine Sea by the Name of Caucasus. And another Row of Mountains runs almost North and South for many hundred Miles, and are only call'd The Mountains of Imaus. And thus those Mountains, which run almost East and West beginning in Armenia, and ending near the East-Indies, are call'd The Mountains of Ararat. And the Manner of speaking in the Hebrew Language, The Ark rested on the Mountains of Ararat, leaves it undetermin'd in what Part to fix it without some other Testimonies. Thus GOD (*) overthrew the cities, in which Lot dwelt. i. e. In one of which he dwelt. And thus it is said of Jephtha in a like (g) Phrase, that he was buried in the cities of Gilead, meaning only as we translate it, one of them, and not determining which. So that we need not scruple to extend the Mountains of Ararat from Asia the less, to the Confines of Tartary, Persia and India.

4. The Ark rested on that Part of the Mountains of Ararat, which lay Eastward from Babylon. This will help us to a nearer Discovery of the Place, and is very plain from (b) the Words of Moses, And it came to pass, as they journey'd from the east, that they found a plain in the land of Shinar, and th y dwelt there, and they built a City, which was call'd Babel or Babylon, or Confusion, because the LORD did there confound the language of all the earth; and from thence did the LORD scatter them abroad upon the face of all the earth. They came from their first Habitation after the Flood, which was near the Place where the Ark landed, and they came also from the East to build the Tower of Babylon. For the Enforcing of (i) this Argument, it is very evident, that in most Places, wheresoever Moses makes a Difference of Countries, he generally names toward what Quarters of the World they are seated: as where he sheweth the Colonies of Joktan, he names (k) Sephar a Mountain Eastward from Mesha; And so it is. When (l) he speaks of Cain's Departure from the Presence of GOD, he adds, And he dwelt in the Land of Nod toward the East Side of Eden. And so it was. When (m) he describes the Tents and Habitations of Abraham after he departed from Shechem, he useth these Words, And he removed from thence unto a mountain on the east of Bethel, and pitched his tent, having Bethel on the west, and Hai on the east, and there he builded an altar unto the LORD, and call'd upon the name of the LORD. And so it was. And (n) in the next Verse he saith, And Abraham journeyed going on still toward the south. And this was the direct Course, which he took. Thus when (o) the Prophet Ezekiel spoke against Gog and Magog, he tells us in what Part of the World we may find them, by joyning them with the house of Togarmah of the north quarters, where they really dwelt. It is said in the (p) New Testament of the Queen of Sheba, that she came from the South to hear the Wisdom of Solomon. And so she did. And that (b) the Magi or Wisemen came from the east to Jerusalem by the Guiding of a Star to find out the Place where CHRIST was to be born. And so they did. And since in all other Places of Scripture, there is an exact Account given of that Quarter of the World, where the Places mention'd do really lie, we may the better conclude, that they who came to build the Tower of Babylon, came from the East, as it is plainly mention'd, and not from any other, especially distant Point of the Compass.

5. And Thirdly, As it was eastward from Babylon; so it could not be at a vast Distance from it. This is evident from the Time when they came to Babylon, which was at the Birth of Peleg, or (r) in the hundred and first Year after the Flood. It was always Customary to give Names to Persons soon after they were born, and Peleg had this Name giv'n him, because (s) in his days the earth was divided. The Reason of this Division was, because the Number of Families were then so great, that they must take up more Room upon the Earth: And as Bees drive out one another from their Hives; so the elder Families did drive the younger out to seek for Habitations at a greater Distance. But at this Time there were only four Families born from the Sons of Noah, by (t) whom the whole earth was overspread, and the Number of Men at that Time may be guess'd at from (u) a subsequent Table in this Book. And therefore tho' they did spread themselves abroad at a greater Distance (x) lest the beasts of the earth should increase upon them; yet we cannot suppose them to come from a greater Distance, than the nearest Mountains of Ararat, which lay Eastward from Babylon, and there the Ark is suppos'd to land.

6. From what hath been said, it is easy to confute the Opinions of those, who affirm, that the Ark landed in another Part of the World. The first Opinion is, (y) that the Ark landed in Phrygia near the Heads of the two Rivers Marস্যas and Meander, where there was a City call'd Celæne, in which there was a Palace of Cyrus. This Opinion is owing to some Verses of the Sibilline Oracles, where it is thus describ'd.

(z) A Phrygian Mount doth rise so very high, It may be said to touch the lofty Sky, Near to Celæne's stately Walls, where all Who live therein, do it Ararat call.

And if this Sibyll can be credited, this Mountain of Ararat was in Phrygia, and the particular Place is more exactly told, thus:

(a) Here Marস্যas springs to water all the Plains, And here the Relicks of the Ark remains Upon a Mountain high.

Chap. II. The SCRIPTURE CHRONOLOGY. 183

Now it is agreed upon by all the learned, that the Springs of Marsyas rise near the City of Celene, near to which Place, and from the same Mountain, riseth the River Meander so eminently known for its many Turnings and Windings, before it falls into the Aegean Sea. And this Sibyll must be a proper Judge in this Case, if she can be believ'd, since (b) she tells us her self, that she suffer'd many Storms and Tempests in the Ark, where she escap'd Death with her Father and Mother in Law, and her Husband's Brothers and their Wives. But it unluckily happens that she spoils her own Credit in the very Story that she relates; because when she speaks of her self as cotemporary with Noah, she takes Notice of the River Marsyas. What was the Name of this River at first is uncertain; but after the Death of Midas it was call'd the Fountain of Midus, and it kept its Name until the Time of Marsyas, by whom it was also alter'd, and this must be long after the Death of this Sibyll.

7. But Secondly, It is very probable, that the Mountain of Ararat was one of the highest in the Country, because when (d) the Ark rested upon it on the seventeenth day of the seventh month; yet the tops of the mountains were not seen until the first day of the tenth month. This Mountain the Sibyll describes as very high and broad. And when the Scythians contended with the Egyptians concerning the Antiquity of their Kingdom, they pleaded the Height of the Mountains in their Behalf, that (e) if all the Earth was overwhelm'd with Water, then as the Waters decreas'd, the highest Part would be first discover'd. But the first Geographers among the Greeks, and particularly (f) Strabo and Ptolomy tell us, that at the Place call'd Celene where the River Marsyas begins, there is no such Mountain, but only a Hill or a Heap, and (g) Stephanus seems to intimate, that it was made by Art as a Monument, and not by Nature, for he only calls it the Hill in which Marsyas was bury'd. And besides this the Scripture tells us, that they, who escap'd out of the Ark, came from the East, when they went into the Land of Shinar or Babylon; but they who would travel from Phrygia thither, must come from the West, so that there could hardly be a wider Difference in the whole Heavens.

8. But the learned Bochartus hath given us the Original of this Mistake, which is this, The City of Apamea was built near Celene either by Antiochus Soter or by Seleucus not far from the River Marsyas, into which they afterward transplanted the Inhabitants of Celene, and hence it happen'd, that several of the ancient Writers call'd both these Places by the same Name, and the Name of this Apamea was also call'd Κιβωτός, which is the Word by which the Ark is call'd in the Septuagint, and consequently from hence this Writer concluded, that this could mean no other than the Ark of Noah, so that he must certainly land here. But there are other Reasons giv'n, why this Place was call'd by this Name. It was inclos'd as in a Chest or Ark by the Rivers Marsyas, Obri-mas and Orgas, which ran into the Meander. And thus the Port of Alexandria was call'd Κιβωτός or an Ark from the Harbour, which inclos'd the Ships. And there is another Reason for this Name, because it was a Town of the greatest Dignity next to Ephesus, and the common Receiver of the Trade both of Italy and Greece.

9. The second Opinion is, That the Ark landed in Iberia, or that Part of Armenia, which extends it self from Armenia, and the Havens near the Mountains of Caucasus, as far as the River Tanais and the Palus Maotis, and as far as Scythia. But this Country was never call'd in Scripture by the Name of the Land or Mountains of Ararat, but the Land of Gog and Magog; and it doth not lye Eastward but Northward from Babylon.

10. The third Opinion is, that Ararat signify'd Armenia, and there are such a Cloud of Testimonies to prove not only that Armenia was call'd Ararat, but also that the Ark landed in Armenia; that it inclin'd the learned Bochartus to be of that Opinion. And here also there is some Difference. A few Authors among whom St. Jerome is the Chief, tell us, that Ararat is a plain Country of incredible Fruitfulness, through which the River Araxes runs, which empties it self into the South West Side of the Caspian Sea. And there the High Mountains of Taurus are plac'd, where Noah and his Family landed, and built a City call'd Cemains (from the Hebrew Word שמונה, which signifies eight) because it was at first built and inhabited by those eight Persons, who were sav'd from the Flood. But this Notion also places the Ark on the North and not on the East Side of Babylon.

11. But the (h) greater Number of Authors both ancient and modern, who take the Mountains of Ararat to be situate within the Country of Armenia, do agree, that the Ark rested in that Part of the Mountains, which in Greek and Latin Writers is call'd The Gordiean Mountains (or with some Variation, the Mountains of the Cordyæi, Corduani, Curduchi, Curdi, &c.) and which lye near the Spring of the River Tigris, or at most not very far from it. For the Proof hereof many Authors are quoted, Latin, Greek and Arabick, together with the Jewish Paraphrasts and primitive Fathers, whole Authority seems to be sufficient to carry all before them. For the Proof of this it is affirm'd by some, that there is a Part of a large Ship to be seen upon some of these Mountains, and many People take from thence some of the Bitumen or Litch, which they use for a Charm. But it is strange any such Wood should endure for so many hundred Years on the Top of a Mountain, and be thereby expos'd to all Sorts of Weather without being rotten. And that if there was such Virtue in the Bitumen, it had not all been scrap'd off many Years, before any of these Authors wrote about it. But the Story seems to be this. Several credulous People believe it to be true, and spend their Money to come and see it, and to carry away the Charm with them. The Country People very well know, that by this Trick they get Money, and therefore do not fail to help them to the Sight of a rotten Post, or a sufficient Quantity of Bitumen to scrape off from it, as long as there are any such in the Country, or People, who are able to carry it up by Night into the Mountain. We are also told, that in the same Neighbourhood there was a Town call'd Cema n or Thamana so call'd from these eight Persons which came out of the Ark. There are two Places of this Name, one at the Head of the Tigris and another near the River Araxis, and both there are above two hundred Miles Distance from each other; so that if for this Reason we can prove, that the Ark landed at one of these Places, we may for the same Reason prove, that it landed at both Places; and if we know not which is the right Place, we may suspect that both are wrong. It is certain, that these Pieces of the Ark did not decide the Controversy, even among those who affirm'd, that it landed in Armenia, some placing these Mountains at the Spring of the River Tigris, and others placing them much nearer to Babylon, even upon the North Part of Assyria, where (i) Theodor. t saith, there stands the highest Mountain in the whole World, and that by the Help of this Mountain, the King of Babylon, intended to ascend into heaven, and so to exalt his Throne above the stars of GOD, and to be like the most high. And (k) Benjamin the Jew saith, that he went two Days Journey from Nisibis, to the Island of the Son of Omarr, which is in the Middle of the Tigris at the Foot of the Mountain of Ararat, and is but four Miles distant from the Place where the Ark rested. And he adds, that Omarr, the Son of Alcitar carry'd off the Relicks of the Ark from that Place into the Island, and built a Diabometan Church with them. And this is enough to discredit the Stories of those Pieces, which are reported to have been seen in after Ages. Others say, that some Part of the Gordiean Mountains are call'd, The Corcyraean Mountains, and that the Inhabitants spoke a brok'n Arabick, in which Language قرقر Corcur signifies a very long and great Ship, and therefore the Mountains are call'd the Corcyraean Mountains, because the great Ship or Ark of Noah landed there. But other Reasons may be given for such a Name. Ships might come to the Bottom of those Mountains along the Tigris, and give them this Name. Karcor (l) was the Name of a Town, to which Zehab and Zalmunnab fled on the farther Side of Jordan, and there are two Islands call'd Corcyra, one in the Ionian and another in the Adriatick Sea, which might as well lay claim as the other. But if we must insist on the Signification of the Word in the Arabick Language, it is plain, that the (m) Word قرقر signifies a Country in which men live peacefully and quietly, and consequently, when the Inhabitants had came from the Eastern Parts thither, and resolv'd to settle there, they might resolve to give it this Name, rather for this, than for any other Reason. Josephus tells us, (n) that the Armenians call'd the Place where the Ark landed Apobaterion or the Place of the Descent. And he also adds, that (o) Nicolaus of Damascus speaks to this Purpose. In the Province of Minyas in Armenia, there is a high Mountain call'd Baris, to which Place there fled a great many People, as the Story goes in the Time of a Deluge for Sanctuary. And there is a Tradition also, of a certain Man in a Vessel that struck upon the Top of this Mountain, and that several Pieces of the Timber were to be seen there a long Time after. And to this Josephus adds, that this perhaps might be the Man, that Moses speaks of. And the learned (p) Bochartus and others agree, that Baris in the Armenian Language is the same with Apobaterion or a Descent in the Greek. Besides (q) one of the Gordiean Mountains, which is higher than the Rest is call'd Lubar, which in the Armenian and Egyptian Tongue signifies A Place of Descent, which Name is said to be taken from Noah's coming down from thence with his Family. But this is only a meer Supposition without any Proof, since any Hill from whence we must descend may be so call'd, and nothing is more common than such Names in Scripture. Here we have (r) Maalah or The going up of Akrahim, The (s) Going up to Adummin, The (t) Going up to Gur, The (u) Causey of the Going up, The (x) Going down to Bethoron, And (y) The Going down of Heronaim. And thus (z) among the Egyptians, Lubra signify'd a Synagogue, because it was commonly built upon some high Place, from whence also the Latin Word Delubrum may seem to be deriv'd. And (a) they who belong'd to the Synagogue of the Egyptians are call'd Libertini; so that there is no Arguing from Words of such a general Signification to any particular Meaning. So that the Name of Lubar might properly be giv'n to any Mountain, and especially to that, because the Passage up and down to it is reported to be more fair, than to any of the rest adjoining.

12. But our Countryman Sir Walter Raleigh (b) gives us other Reasons to confute the Opinion of the Ark's landing in Armenia. He saith, It is plain that (c) Noah planted a vineyard. And to this he adds, That the Fruit of the Vine did not grow naturally in that Part of Armenia, where the Ark was suppos'd to land. For if the Vine was a Stranger in Italy and France, and brought from other Countries thither, it is not probable, that it grew naturally in Armenia being a much colder Country. For Tyrrhenus first brought Vines into France. And at such Time as Brennus and the Gauls invaded Italy, there were few or no Vines in France. For Plutarch in the Life of Camillus tells us, that the Gauls remain'd between the Pyrænean Mountains and the Alps near to the Senones, where they continu'd a great while until they drank Wine, which was first brought them out of Italy, and most probably out of the Southern or farthest Part of it, or else they would have known of it sooner. And after they had tasted of it, they hastened to inhabit that Country, which brought forth such pleasant Fruit. And therefore the Fruit of the Vine was not natural in France, but brought thither either from the South Part of Spain or Italy. And it is plain, that Noah did not travel far to seek out the Vine. For the Planting of it is mention'd, before there was any Consultation how to dispose of the World among his Children; and the first thing mention'd of him, after he had offer'd Sacrifice to GOD is, that he began to be an husbandman, and he planted a vineyard. And therefore the Vine grew naturally, where the Ark rested, which could not be in so cold a Country as that of Armenia.

13. Besides, It is not certain from them, who place the Resting of the Ark in those Parts, where this Mountain of Ararat was. For the Books of the Sibylls set it in Phrygia, and Berosus in Armenia. And as for the Authority of Berosus, it cannot be sufficient on this Occasion, Secondly, The Authors themselves do not agree, in what Country the Gordyæan Mountains stood. For Ptolomy distinguishes the Armenian and Gordyæan Mountains, and calls those of Armenia, Moschici and Paryardes. But the Paryardes are situated in the Middle of Armenia, and the Moschici are those Hills, which separate Cochis Iberia and Albania from Armenia. Thirdly, It cannot be prov'd, that there is any such Hill in Armenia or in the whole World as Baris. For (as St. Jerome saith) Baris signifies a high Tower, and therefore all high Hills, and especially the highest of all may be more properly so call'd. And lastly, To say that the Ark rested on the Hill call'd Baris, because it was the highest Hill in Armenia, is nothing to the Purpose. For there were other Hills which did far exceed those in Armenia; and if they did not, yet it doth not follow, that the Ark should rest upon the highest of all. And tho' it is probable, that it landed upon one of the highest Mountains in the Country, because the others were not seen for a considerable Time after; yet it is much more probable, that it landed in a Country, where the Mountains were very low; for if they had been high and steep, it would not have been so easy a Matter, for such Beasts, as naturally live upon the Plains, and especially those, which were very large, as the Elephant, Horse and Cow to come down from thence.

14. There is one Way, by which we may guess at the Height of the Mountain, where the Ark landed, which is this. Moses tells us (d) that the Ark drew fifteen Cubits of Water, when it landed on one of the Mountains of Ararat, which was on the seventeenth Day of the seventh Month. On (e) the first Day of the tenth Month the Tops of Mountains were seen, which was seventy four Days Distance. And (f) on the first day of the first Month in the next Year Noah removed the covering of the ark, and he look'd, and beheld the face of the earth was dry. This was at fifty four Days Distance. Now let us suppose, that in these fifty four Days the Waters abated as much as in the other seventy four Days, and that the Mountains which were seen were near to the Mountain, where the Ark landed; in such a Case the Mountain, where the Ark landed, could not be above fifteen Cubits or thirty Feet high. Or supposing that the Tops of the Mountains were twenty Miles distance (which is as much as can be suppos'd, since they could that those Nations have communicated their Knowledge to us, and not receiv'd it from us. And Paulus Venetus reports of Japan, That the Islanders are exceedingly addicted to Religion, Learning and Philosophy, and the most diligent Searchers out of Truth. There is nothing more frequent among them than Prayer, which they use in their Churches after the Manner of Christians, and they acknowledge one King, and worship one GOD. So that their Antiquity, Magnificence, Civility, Riches, Sumptuous Buildings, and Policy in Government, is reported to be such, by those who have been employ'd in those Parts, that it seems to exceed all other Kingdoms of the World. All these may be probable Arguments, that the Country which lay eastward from Babylon, was first inhabited, and consequently that the Ark landed in those Parts. But they leave us at Liberty to fix the particular Place according as it shall appear from other Arguments.

18. To this Sir Walter Raleigh adds, the wonderful Resistance, which Semiramis, the Queen of Babylon found in the East-Indies. Diadorus Siculus gives us such a strange Report of her Army, that we may look upon the Number to be fabulous, and that the hundredth Part of them is most likely to be true, which is thirty thousand Foot, five thousand Horse, and one thousand Chariots. She was also the Wife of Ninus, the Son of Belus, and Grandson of Nimrod, the Founder of the Assyrian Monarchy and Builder of Babylon. But let her Army be what it would, she was engag'd in that War with an equal Army conducted by Staurobates King of India. If then these Numbers of Indians had been increas'd by a Colony sent out from Shinar, after the Dispersion from Babylon, it must be impossible, that there could be so great an Increase of them in so short a Time. This proves that the Eastern Parts were first inhabited after the Flood; but it doth not prove that the Ark landed near India, as Sir Walter Raleigh would have it, because other Reasons may be assign'd for the Populousness of that Country. When Nimrod establish'd the Assyrian Monarchy, he put those to the Sword who stood in his Way, which might cause those, who liv'd where the Ark landed, to retire farther from him toward the East. And as they were the Offspring of Shem, who instill'd into them the Principles of Piety and Religion, and was also instructed by Noah, who personally dwelt among them; so they liv'd together in Peace and Quietness, and thereby became more populous than those of other Nations near Babylon, who at that Time were destroying one another.

19. Another Reason to prove that the Ark landed near India is, that the best Vines naturally grew on the South Side of the Mountains of Caucasus and toward the East-Indies.

Strabo affirms, that in the neighbouring Country of Margiana, and under these Mountains there are the most excellent Vines in the World, the Clusters of Grapes containing two Cubits in Length. And Quintus Curtius tells us, that in these Parts near the Mountains of Meros, Alexander the Great did feast himself and his Army ten Days together, where he found the most delicate Wine that ever he met with. And to this may be added (i) an old and constant Tradition among the Inhabitants of the Region near Caucasus, that there is a great Vineyard in this Country, which was of Noah's Planting, after he was descended from the adjacent Mountain. But taking it for granted, that there was such a Vineyard, yet it will by no Means amount to any Proof, that the Ark rested on the neighbouring Mountain, because the Vineyard might be planted by another Person, and not by Noah. Neither do the Vines only grow in those Parts, but in all Places which lye in the same Climate or are either East or West from it. Thus in the same Latitude with Babylon, we find that (k) when Joshua sent Spies to search out the Land of Canaan, they came to the brook of Eshcol, and cut down from thence a branch with one cluster of grapes, and they bare it between two upon a staff. Thus the Vines naturally grow in Crete and other Southern Parts of Greece. Thus the Vinum Falernum so much talk'd of by the Poets, was made of Grapes, which grew in Campania in the Kingdom of Naples, and the best Wines in Spain are they, which are in the Southern Parts near the same Latitude. So that this can no more prove, that the Ark landed at Caucasus, than that it landed in any other Part, which lay Eastward or indeed Westward from Babylon.

20. It is therefore most probable, that the Ark landed on one of the Mountains of Ararat, which lay Eastward about nine Degrees Distance in Longitude, according as it is mention'd before, and that its Course from Cyparission, where it began to float was, as it is shewn in the former Map. For First, This is according as the (l) Scripture mentions, that they came from the east, and they found a plain in the land of Shinar, and they dwelt there, and built the City of Babylon. Secondly, The Scripture seems to intimate, that this was the first Plain which they came to, and therefore could not be so remote from it, as others place them. Thirdly, It is more agreeable to the Time, when they took this Journey, viz. at the Birth of Peleg, when the World was not so populous as to oblige them to travel farther. Fourthly, It will otherwise be difficult to account for the Course of the Ark, it being not probable that it could go North West into Armenia, because it would be met by the overflowing of the Mediterranean Sea, which would drive them another Way.

(k) Num. 13.

Neither could it go so far Eastward as some represent it, because the Persian Ocean flowing from the South would have driv'n it more Northward. Fifthly, The Ark landing so near to Babylon, makes the Children of Shem, namely, Elam, Assur, Arphaxad, Lud, and Aram, who inherited those Countries, much nearer to their original Seats. But the placing the Ark so far Eastward, makes all the Posterity of Noah travel Westward, without any Necessity for it, and leave a known Country for no other Reason, but to search after unknown Habitations. And lastly, If Noah landed so near to Babylon, he might have a Notion of the Country, where he was, because he liv'd near it before the Flood, and consequently he might be capable of giving better Directions to his Family how to disperse themselves, and replenish the new World as Occasion did require.

CHAP. III.

Of the Tower of BABEL.

WHEN the Inhabitants of the new World came to the Plain in the Land of Shinar, they built a Tower, which was first call'd Babel, and after that the Tower of Babylon, which was justly reckon'd one of the seven Wonders of the World. Herodotus, who (a) travel'd into those Parts, and probably view'd it, when it was in its Perfection in the Time of Artaxerxes Longimanus and Nebemiah, gives us the most exact Account of the Dimensions of it in this Manner, That in the City of Babylon there is a Temple with brazen Gates consecrated to Jupiter Belus, which was extant in his Time, being four square, and each side being two Furlongs in Length. In the Midst of this holy Place (as he calls it) there is a solid Tower (this is that which we usually call the Tower of Babel) of the thickness and height of a Furlong, upon which there is another Tower plac'd, and upon that another, and so one upon another, insomuch that there are eight in all. In the Outside of these there are Steps or Stairs plac'd, by which Men go from one Tower to another. In the Middle of these Steps there are resting Plac-s, and Rooms were made for that Purpose, that they, who go to the Top, may have Conveniences to sit down and refresh themselves. In the highest Part of the Tower there is another Chappel, in which there is a Bed nobly adorn'd, and a golden Table. But there is no image in this Chappel, neither doth any Person lie there by Night, but one Woman of the Natives, whom their God shall choose before the Rest, as the Chaldeans the Priests of this God do tell us. There are others who add, that in this upper Room, there was an Idol, with a large Sword in his Hand, whom they worshipp'd by the Name of Belus or Bel, and who is suppos'd to represent Ham or Jupiter Hammon, as he was call'd by other Nations.

And upon the Top hereof there was a large Room, where they made their Astronomical Observations. Josephus saith, that (b) the Project of Nimrod was the Erecting of a Tower to such a Height, that it should be impossible for the Waters ever to reach to the Top of it. Accordingly the People apply'd themselves immediately with Might and Main, and all Hands were at Work for the carrying on of this Design. The Height of it was to be prodigious, but the infinite Number of Labourers advanc'd it even beyond Imagination. The Breadth and Thickness of it being wonderfully firm and strong, appear'd so vast at Hand, that it made the Height seem the less for it. The Materials were burnt Brick cemented in the Joynts with a pitchy Matter to make it proof against the Waters. And he farther adds, That as to this Tower the (c) Sibyll makes the following Mention of it. At a certain Time when the whole World spake the same Language, the People of those Days gather'd together, and rais'd a mighty Tower, which they carry'd up to so extravagant a Height, that it look'd, as if they had propos'd the Scaling of Heaven from the Top of it. The most natural Account of the Tower seems to be this, that it was four square, That the Length of each Side was a Furlong, and the Height of all the Building was a Furlong, and there seem'd to be eight Towers standing one upon another, so that under these Towers there appear'd eight large Places on each Side, where Men did walk round it, or sixteen in all in both Sides, and as there is mention made but of one Room in the Middle from the Bottom to the Top, so these Rooms, which were over one another might be of the same Breadth with the Walk. As therefore a Furlong is 660 Feet long, so each of the Towers being the eighth Part of a Furlong must be eighty two Feet and a half high. And the Dividing of 660 by 17 shews, that each of these Walks,

And as seventeen of our Bricks will make about a cubical Foot in Building, so there might be about 2037895400 Bricks in the whole Fa-brick, as appears from the following Table.

3. It may not be improper to observe the Additions which are made to this Story, and the Reasons for them. The (e) Sibyll quoted by Josephus saith, that the Gods let the Winds loose upon this Tower, which with a violent Blast beat it down to the Ground, the Builders being also judicially struck with an utter Forgetfulness of their native Tongue, a new and unknown Language was substituted instead of it, wherein not one of them understood his fellow. And from hence it came to pass, that the City was call'd Babylon. (f) Eusebius tells us, that the City of Babylon was first built by those, who were preserv'd from the Flood; and that they were Giants, and built that Famous Tower, which being thrown down by the divine Power, these Giants were scatter'd abroad throughout the Face of the whole Earth. And (g) Abydenus writes to the same Purpose, saith, There are those who say, that the first Men, who sprung from the Earth, were proud of their Strength and Stature, and boasted themselves to be more powerful than the Gods, and accordingly built that high Tower, where Babylon now stands, and when they had rais'd it very near to Heaven, such Winds were sent from GOD as overthrow the whole Work, and accordingly the Name of Babylon was given to the Ruins. And when about that Time the Men were of one Language, GOD sent different Tongues among them. And a little after. The Place where they built the Tower is now call'd Babylon, because of the Confusion of Languages at that Time. For the Hebrews call Confusion Babel.

4. These things (saith (h) the learned Bochartus) are taken out of the Monuments of the Chaldeans, many of which are right and true; and whatever is superadded, seems to depend in some Measure upon the sacred Text. 1. They say, that Babylon was built by Giants, because Nimrod one of the Builders is call'd (i) גבור, that is a Giant, as many render it, and particularly (k) the Greek Interpreters. 2. They write that these Giants were sprung out of the Earth, because it is said of Nimrod (l) בן הארץ היה יצא He came forth from that earth. 3. That they carry'd on a War against the Gods, because it is said, that he was (m) ציד לפני יהוה a hunter before the LORD, that is as some, and particularly Rabbi Solomon Jarhi renders it, A warrior against the LORD. 4. They add, that they erected a Tower near to Heaven, as if by the Help thereof they would ascend thither, because it is said of that Tower (n) that his top should reach unto heaven. 5. They add, that GOD sent great Winds and scatter'd both the Work and the Workmen. This is taken out of the Chaldean History, in which it is said that this Dispersion was made בארבע רוחי שמים into the four Quarters of the World, or over the face of the whole earth, or by the four Winds of Heaven as the Instruments of GOD's Wrath. 6. And because the Verb פוצ or נפץ which Moses useth in the Text, doth not only signify to scatter, but also to break in Pieces, from (o) whence Lightning is call'd נפץ A Breaking in Pieces, from hence they say, that the whole Work was broken to Pieces and overturn'd. And Benjamin the Jew saith, that Fire fell down from Heaven into the midst of of the Tower, and tore the Bricks to Pieces.

5. It is observable, that tho' the Latin Writers had these Stories only at the third and fourth Hand, and accordingly confound the Story of the Giants before the Flood, with the Story of the Giants suppos'd to be at the Building of the Tower of Babel; yet they (p) particularly mention the Destroying of them by Lightning, together with their being sprung out of the Earth, and their Wars with the Gods. And thus these different Interpretations having some Shadow of Reason to support them from the Hebrew Text, may be of wonderful Use to us in this and many other Places to confirm the Original Scriptures.

C H A P. IV.

Of the first Dispersion of the Nations.

WHEN the Builders of Babel were disappointed by the Confusion of their Languages, that they could not understand one anothers Speech, it is said (a) that from thence the LORD scattered them abroad upon the face of all the earth, and so they left off to build the city. And therefore as the Sons of Ham and Japhet seem to be all concern'd in Building the Tower, and the Sons of Shem were originally seated not far from thence; so we must seek for the first Dispersion of the Nations, in such Countries which lay near to Babylon, and where we find any Remains of these Families at a greater Distance, we may conclude, that it was occasion'd by a second, third or fourth Remove, and not by the first.

2. The first Dispersion of these Nations is so excellently describ'd by (b) several learned Men in their select Discourses on this Subject, that I shall do little more than abridge what they have more largely said, and refer the Reader to them for his farther Satisfaction.

3. After the Families of Noah had seated themselves together for some Time, and were grown numerous, Noah at the Birth of Peleg order'd (c) the World to be divided among his three Sons. And the natural Situation of the Country seems to shew, that he intended to bound their Countries from each other by several great Rivers, which are in those Parts. Accordingly Shem who had the principal (d) Blessing from his Father, as a Reward for his singular Piety, seems to have a double Portion; and his Countries extended themselves eastward and northward throughout all Asia, being bounded on the other Side with Rivers from the Persian Gulph to the Head of the Tigris. And thus it continu'd till the Time of the Assyrian Monarchy. When Nimrod the Son of Cush (e) invaded Assyria or the Country of Asbur the Son of Shem, he then forc'd them to pass over the Tigris, and seat themselves on the Southward Parts of that River in the Country call'd by the same Name, or Asbur, and also forced the Posterity of Aram, another Son of Shem, to cross over the Tigris in the same Manner, and take Possession of Mesopotamia, call'd Aram Nabaraim or Aram between the Rivers, and the Rest of the Country even to Armenia; which occasion'd the Posterity of Japhet to make the greater Haste to settle in Europe. And about the same Time Cush the Father of Nimrod, (who was seated Southward of Babylon, in the Country which Sir Walter Raleigh calls Chuduca, and saith, it was sometimes call'd Chusca) pass'd over into Persia, and seiz'd upon that Country, which is call'd Chuzestan, or in their Language the Province of Cush, and so they forc'd the Children of Shem to go farther toward the Eastern Parts of Asia. And thus there was given to the Sons of Shem the Country, where Noah liv'd after the Flood, and the Country of Cyparission, where he built the Ark. And accordingly it was determin'd, that the Posterity of Ham should inherit all the Country from the Head of the Euphrates to the Persian Gulph, and so have a free Passage into Africa through Egypt, and that the Sons of Japhet should inhabit between the Tigris and the Euphrates, and so enlarge their Borders Eastward, until they had a free Passage into Europe over the Hellepont. And this seems to be the first Division.

4. But these Original Intentions being disappointed by the Building of the Tower of Babylon, and there being little Remains to enable us to form a Conjecture of these things, therefore the Scripture doth not begin the Dispersion of Nations till after the Rise of the Assyrian Monarchy, that by having a View of it at that Time, we might form the better Notion, how it continu'd whilst that Monarchy lasted. And this is the Reason, why the Rise of this Monarchy is so particularly (f) mention'd in that (g) Chapter, which tells us, how the Families of the Sons of Noah were settled after their Generations, in their Nations; and how by these the nations were divided in the earth after the flood.

5. But to proceed more regularly in this Inquiry, this tenth Chapter of Genesis must be our Guide, in which Moses first mentions the (b) Sons of Japhet, then (i) the Sons of Ham, and after that (k) the Sons of Shem, and at the End of each he tells us, that by these Sons the Earth was inhabited, after their families, and after their tongues, in their countries, and in their nations.

5. And here we must first observe, that this great Division of the Earth was perform'd regularly and orderly, and that they are very much mistak'n, who dream of an irregular and confus'd Dispersion, in which every one went whither he pleas'd, and seated himself where he lik'd best. Moses tells us, that by these Heads of Families was the Earth divided, which Word נפרד will bear the Force of an Argument for this Purpose, because it signifies not a Scattering, or a Confusion, but a most distinct Partition.

6. To this may be added several Circumstances of this Division for a farther Proof of the Regularity thereof. As first, The Custom, and as it were the Property of Almighty GOD, in all these Actions, in which he hath a special Hand, and directs by a special Providence, according to that saying, (l) GOD is not the author of confusion but of Order. And if his Providence is thus daily seen in other things, it may more especially be seen in this, it being so principal an Action, and as it were the Ground and Foundation of the Recopling of the Earth after the Flood.

7. Secondly, The End, for which GOD multiply'd the Languages, seems plainly to be, lest their Dwelling together should cause them to confound their Families, and mingle their Generations together, which GOD in his Wisdom did separate and keep distinct for very good Reasons. And that this should be one of the main Ends; appears very evidently from the proper Effect of Plurality of Tongues, which is to sort Men into Pluralities of Societies, as the Unity of one common Language had before knit them into one Community. And if this was the Purpose and Design of almighty GOD, then it must needs be, that for the Prosecution of such an End, every Family should dwell by it self, and so there might be an orderly Division.

8. Thirdly, The Wisdom of the Patriarchs, who were all alive at this Division, and were as Kings in their respective Generations, plainly shews, that it was regular and orderly. As there is a very apparent Difference in all the Parts of the Earth for the Goodness of the Soil and Temperateness of the Air; so it was their proper Business to prevent the Danger of Contention among their Sons, who should enjoy the most barren or the more fruitful Places. And this could no otherwise be prevented, but by Instituting an orderly Division, either by Casting of Lots, or by Choosing according to the Order of their Birthright, after they had tak'n some Survey of a sufficient Portion of the Earth, and allotted out the several Bounds of their Countries, first into three Parts according to the Number of the Sons of Noah, after that according to their Nations, and then according to their Families. For otherwise Magog would not have gone contentedly so far into the North, nor Arphaxad have been suffer'd by others to enjoy the pleasant Land of Shinar.

9. Lastly, The Scripture takes Notice of the very Method, by which this Division was made. It was after their families, and in their nations. For the right Understanding of which we may observe, that tho' the Word Families and Nations may in other Places of Scripture be promiscuously us'd; yet being here joyn'd and compared together, they must needs have a distinct Signification, and what that Signification is may be known from the Particle IN. For in this Expression, After their families, in their nations, the Families are plainly subordinate to Nations as Parts are to a Whole, or Specials to a more General. The Families are Parts of a Nation, and a Nation is an Offspring, which contains many Families. So that here was a twofold Order in this Division. First, They were rang'd according to their Nations, and then every Nation was rank'd according to his Families. Accordingly, every Nation had his Lot by himself, and in every Nation the Families belonging to it had their Portion by themselves. And thus the three Sons of Noah were the Fathers of the Nations, among whom the World was first divided into three Parts nearly equal. The Grandchildren of Noah were the Nations, which were anciently divided into (m) their respective Countries, and when (n) they called their lands after their own names. And the great Grandchildren were the Families settl'd in their respective Nations.

10. For the better finding out the original Plantations of the three Branches of Noah's Posterity and of their several Nations, there are ten Rules, which were first laid down by the learned Mr. Mede, and are of excellent Use.

11. First, When the Scripture doth expressly assign any Portion or Tract of Earth to any Branch of Noah's Posterity in general, or to any Nation or Family in particular, we must be assur'd, that the respective Branch, Nation or Family settl'd it self there, at least as to the Main or Bulk of it.

12. Secondly, We must seek these Original Plantations within a reasonable Compass of the Earth, and not all the World over. Let us suppose that this Division was made at the Dispersion from Babylon, the Number of Mankind was small, and according to (o) Computation, the Number of Men above twenty Years old could not well exceed an hundred thousand; so that it is not likely, that they took the whole World into the first Division or Plantation.

(b) Gen. 10. 1 to 6. (i) Gen. 10. 6 to 21. (k) Gen. 10. 21. to the End. (l) 1 Chron. 14. 33. (m) Gen. 10. 20. (n) Psal. 49. 11. (o) Table 24. D d d thou.

13. Thirdly, Those Nations, whose Families are nam'd by Moses, are chiefly to be sought in Places neighbouring to Judea. The principal Reason why Moses nam'd their Families, was, because they were such as the Jews would have to deal with, and that chiefly upon the Account of their Neighbourhood.

14. Fourthly, Where we find the Nation, there we must also look for the Families of that Nation; because the Families were rang'd in their Nations. And therefore,

15. Fifthly, For the same Reason where we find any one of the Families, there we must look for the Rest, and for the whole Nation. These five Rules abovemention'd we may take (as Mr. Mede observes) for sure Grounds, and use them as Landmarks in our present Discovery: But to them may be added five more of less Weight than the former, yet such as being joyn'd with them will help us to a greater Certainty. So that,

16. Sixthly, If we find that the Scriptures usually name two or more of these Nations together, it is a likely Argument, that they were seated together, and were neighbouring one to the other.

17. Seventhly, We are to observe the Fulfilling of Prophecies by Nations foretold under the Names of their Founders.

18. Eighthly, Because it is likely, that in this Division, there was a regard had by the wise Patriarchs for their future Colonies; therefore we are to think, that they order'd their Partition so, as to Nations, if not always as to Families, that when they were to vent their Numbers, and send forth new Colonies, they should not be forc'd to incroach upon one another's Inheritance, or one to pass through the Lot of another; but that they had either some narrow Branch of the Sea which was easily passable, or some empty Land every one upon some Part of his Borders.

19. Ninthly, The Testimony of the Ancients is to be consider'd.

20. Lastly, We are to regard the Remainers of ancient Names. And this is the ordinary Help, which every one follows. So that these are the ten Criteria, or Marks which we are to make use of in the present Discovery; and that which shall be found agreeable to all or the greater Part of these, if it will not be allow'd for evident Truth; yet it must be esteem'd as the most likely Conjecture, and the greatest Certainty which we can attain to.

21. Having thus laid down the Rules by which the ancient Situation of the Sons and Grandsons of Noah may be found out, I should have enlarg'd upon the Dispersion of the Nations, and prov'd from these Rules, which were the Original Settlements of the Nations and Families (p) mention'd by Moses; but finding it so exactly and judiciously done by (q) the judicious Dr. Wells in his Historical Geography of the old Testament and in our own Language, that I can see no Cause either to add or to alter, I shall here mention the Particulars, which he hath prov'd, and refer the Reader thither for full Satisfaction.

22. The first Nation, which Moses mentions of the Offspring of Japhet, is Gomer and his Sons, to whom the greatest Part of the Northern Tract of the lesser Asia is assign'd for their first Plantations.

From Gomer the Founder of the Nation came three Sons or Families. The first of these is (r) Ashkenaz, who was seated in the Western Part of the Nation of Gomer, or in the North-west Part of the lesser Asia.

The second Son is Riphat, who is suppos'd to have seated his Family in the Parts adjoining Eastward to his Brother Ashkenaz.

The third and last Son nam'd by Moses is Togarmah, whose Family was seated in the Remaining, and consequently in the most eastern Part of the Nation of Gomer.

23. Tho' these three Families kept themselves distinct, whilst they were in Asia the less; yet it is most probable that when they planted Colonies in Europe they mix'd together. For as those of Riphat and Togarmah could not come over hither without passing through the Country of their Brother Ashkenaz, and must be transported by them into such Countries, as had been before possess'd by them; so it was more natural and easy for them to unite in this Manner, and call themselves by the General Name of their Father Gomer. Thus this Name was kept up in Places inhabited by them, when the other Names were lost, only Germany was call'd by the Jews, the Country of Ashkenaz, not because they were of that Family alone, but because they came from that Country, which bore this Name. As for the Notion of some that Togarmah was the Father of the Germans, it is without any Proof, except the Affinity of the Name in our English Language, which can be of no Weight in any Inquiry into such ancient Antiquities. There can be no Reason assign'd why the Particle [the] should be made a Part of the original Word. Neither is it probable that Togarmah coming from the utmost Parts of their Eastern Limits, should travel so far Westward distinctly from the Rest; and it is very evident that the Word Germany is originally deriv'd from Gomer the Father of the Nation.

24. As for the Colonies, which were spread abroad from the Nation of Gomer, the same Author gives us a large and satisfactory Account to this Effect, That from their original Country they sent a Colony to the Maotick Lake on the North of the Euxine Sea, and as they were call'd Cimmerii in Asia; so they gave the Name of Bosphorus Cimmerius to the Straits, which we there meet with. After this, spreading farther they came along the Danube, and settl'd themselves in the Country, which from them hath been call'd Germany. These were first call'd Cimbri, a Word easily fram'd from Cimmerii, and the Inhabitants of the Peninsula on the North-west Side of Germany, now call'd Jutland, was anciently call'd Cimbrica Chersonesus. These People are call'd Germeans, and they call themselves Germen, which is but a small Variation from Gemren or Gomren, and this last is easily contracted from Gomeren, that is, the Gomeræans. For the Termination en is a plural Termination in the German Language, and from the singular Number Gomer is form'd Gemren by the same Analogy, that from Brother is form'd Brethren.

(p) Gen. 10. throughout.

25. From Germany they spread themselves into France. These were anciently call'd the European Galatæ or Gauls, and Josephus saith, they were originally call'd Gomerites, and others affirm, that they were also call'd Cimbri. And as it is not to be question'd, but that this our Isle was first peopled from those Countries of the European Continent, which lye next to it, and consequently from Germany or Gaul, that is France, or rather from France, as lying nearest of the two; so it is plain, that the South Britains, the ancient Inhabitants of this our Isle, were the Offspring of Gomer. And there seems to be no need of any other Evidence, since the Welch, the ancient Inhabitants call themselves to this Day by his Name, viz. Kumero or Cymro or Kumeri; And in like Manner they call a Welch Woman Kumeraes, and their Language Kumeraeg, which several Words carry in them such plain Marks of the original Name, from whence they are deriv'd, that if there is any Regard to Etymologies in Cases of this Nature (as undoubtedly there is) we must conclude, that the true old Britons or Welch are the Descendants of Gomer. And since it is observ'd, that the Germans were also the Descendants of Gomer, particularly the Cimbri, to whom the Saxons, especially the Angles, were near Neighbours: hence it follows, that our Ancestors also, who succeeded the old Britains, in the Eastern Parts of this Isle, were also descended from Gomer the Son of Japhet.

26. These Particulars being more fully prov'd by this judicious Author, are undoubtedly true concerning the greatest Part of these Islands, but to these I shall crave Leave to add something concerning Cornwal and those Western Parts of England, wholly submitting what I offer, to the Judgment of those, who are better skill'd in these Antiquities.

27. When Joshua was appointed by GOD to bring the Children of Israel into the Land of Canaan, he had a positive Command (s)

that When the LORD his GOD shall deliver them before him, he should smite them, and utterly destroy them, and should make no covenant with them, nor shew mercy unto them. And he had in this Case (t) the Promise of GOD's Assistance in these Words, The LORD thy GOD shall deliver them unto thee, and shall destroy them with a mighty destruction, until they be destroyed. Accordingly when (u) the kings, which were by the sea heard that the LORD had dried up the waters of Jordan from before the children of Israel, until they were passed over, that their hearts melted; neither was there spirit in them any more, because of the children of Israel. And this Fear was much increas'd, after they (x) had also heard how the Walls of Jericho fell down flat to open a free Passage for them into the City, and they had also tak'n Ai, and destroy'd their Kings and all their Inhabitants, and with what Difficulty and upon what Terms the Gibeonites had made a Peace, so that the same must not be expected at another Time. And therefore to prevent this inevitable Ruin many of the Inhabitants of Tyre, having been us'd to Sailing in the Mediterranean Sea upon the Account of Merchandise, went on Shipboard with their best Effects, and sail'd into Africa, and built a City, which they call'd Carthage, (or if I may have Liberty to conjecture) קרת חועים the City of the Wanderers; tho' the learned Bochartus saith (*) that it was call'd by the Ancients The new City, or as it is in the Chaldee and Syriack Languages קרתא חדתא to which I submit. This Building of Carthage not only appears from the common Consent of all Historians, but also from the Remains of the Carthaginian Language, which we have in (y) Plautus, where he brings in a Youth from thence, speaking in such a Manner, that many learned Men have prov'd it to be the Hebrew or Language of Canaan. And the Carthaginians are frequently call'd Phenicians and Tyrians, because they came from that Country. Being thus us'd to Sailing and Merchandise they soon carry'd on a larger Trade, and settl'd other Colonies near Gibraltar both in Asia and Africa. The learned Bochartus tells us, (z) that the Original of these Expeditions were computed to be in the Times of the Heroes. For the Phenicians are suppos'd to sail to Spain, and even as far as Cadis under the Command of Hercules the Tyrian, whom many People make to be cotemporary with Moses. And he gives his Opinion, that it was in that Age, when the Jews being Masters of the Land of Canaan, oblig'd the ancient Inhabitants to depart from thence; so that one Part went into Bæotia, and the other into Africa and Spain. This also is abundantly more evident from the (a) two Pillars, that were formerly seen at Tangier with a Pheni- rian Inscription, which mention'd their being erected by those, who fled from the face of Joshua the Robber the Son of (b) Nun. So that it is plain from the Inscription, that the Places near Cadix began about that Time to be frequented by the Phœnicians.

28. In Length of Time these Phœnicians enlarging their Trade, coasted along the Sea Shore of Spain, Portugal and France, and found out the Islands call'd Cassiterides. To these Places they carry on a Trade for Tin and Lead. These Islands Camblen (c) fully proves to be the Same with the Iteserides, call'd at this Time, The Islands of Scilly, situate to the Westward, and not far from the Lands End in Cornwall, of which (d) Strabo gives us this Account. The Cassiterides are ten in Number, close to one another, situate in the main Sea, northward from the Port of the Artabri. They have Mines both for Tin and Lead. At first the Phœnicians traded thither from Cadix, concealing these Voyages from others. The Romans to find out the Place, where they drove this Trade, made a certain Master of a Ship watch one of them. But he ran his Ship into a shallow out of Envy to prevent them, and after he had brought them into the same Danger, escap'd himself, and receiv'd the worth of his Cargo for his Pains out of the common Treasury. However, the Romans by many Attempts at last found out this Voyage. And as these Islands did so abound in the Tin Oar, hence they were call'd Cassiterides from the Greek Word Κασσιτερον Cassiteron, which signifies Tin.

29. The Phœnicians thus peopling these Islands could not be long before they discover'd The Lands End on the West Side of Cornwall, and so settl'd in that County, whose Excellency is, that it abounds in Tin and Lead, as it is well known at this Time. And that they did so is evident from two Reasons. First, The Affinity of this Language with the Phœnician or ancient Hebrew. The ancient Cornish and Welch were originally the same. But when they were driven so far West by the Romans and other Enemies, that they could not have a Correspondance with either, and the River Severn being very broad in those Parts, parted them asunder, their Languages alter'd by little and little, so as to be like different Dialects. And the Cornish Language being worn out in Time, its Remains can be only found in the Welch, which is very like the ancient Hebrew. The Welch always put the Adjective after the Substantive, which exactly agrees with the Nature of the Orientals, tho' contrary to our Custom in English. Their Way of Pronunciation is so like the Hebrew, and especially the Gutturals, which are peculiar to themselves, that it is reported, That Rabbi Solomon Jarchi the most learned of all the Jewish Commentators, being at Jesus College in Oxford said of them, That these ancient Britons spoke the holy Tongue with so great an Exactness, as if they were born in the Mount of Sinai. And I have been inform'd, that they, who have greater Skill in both these Languages, may make more Observations of this Nature. However, Dr. Edwards in his Welch Dictionary, hath given us so many and such surprizing Examples out of the Original Scriptures, both Hebrew and Chaldee, and compar'd them with the other, as puts that Matter beyond Dispute. And the different Languages spoken at this Time in the East and West of England, is a plain Indication, that they sprung originally from different Nations.

30. And secondly, Our present Parliamentary Constitution may serve for a Proof of this. The Kingdom of England consisting of two and fifty Counties, send five Hundred and thirteen Members to the House of Commons, which is the Proportion of nine Men to each County. They send two Members to represent each County and others to represent the ancient Burroughs and Corporations. Now the Western Parts send more Members than the Eastern, and the Eastern more than the Northern. But Cornwall alone sends four and forty Members, and Devonshire six and twenty. This shews, that they were anciently more populous than the Rest, and consequently first inhabited. And as it is not probable, that such a Multitude of People would leave those open Countries desolate, to be as it were confin'd between the Seas; so it is not to be doubted, but that these Parts of this Kingdom were first inhabited by Seafaring Men, in this Manner as is before mention'd.

31. But to return from this Digression. The (e) second Son of Japhet mention'd by Moses as a Father of the Nations, is Magog, who was the Founder of the (f) Scythians on the East and North-east Sides of the Euxine Sea, whose Colonies spread themselves to the Maotick Lake, and along the River Tanais. And some give him a Part of the North of Syria call'd Comagene; but this seems to be too great a Remove for some of them from the Rest of their Brethren.

32. The third Son of Japhet is Madai, who is suppos'd at first to have settl'd in Asia the less, and that the Mæsi or Myssi in that Country sprung from him; and when he came into Europe he peopl'd Macedonia, and that in Process of Time he also inhabited Sarmatia or Poland and Part of Russia.

33. The fourth Son of Japhet is Javan. He first settl'd himself in the Southern Part of Lesser Asia, call'd from him Ionia, and his four Sons or Families settl'd with him in the following Order.

The first is (g) Elissa, whose Family was settl'd in Caria on the South-west Part of Asia the Less, in and near Lydia, and the

(b) In the Original it is the Son of Nave, but that is the same with Nun, as appears from Ecclus. 146. 1.

Hellspont, and peopl'd most of the Isles in the Egean Sea, and scatter'd themselves in many Parts of Greece, as lying most commodious to enter into that Country, and take the first Possession.

34. The Second is Tarshish, who seated his Family in the Eastern Tract of the Southern Part of lesser Asia, and having settl'd their Posterity, call'd the Etrusci in Italy, afterward took Possession of Spain.

35. The Third is Kittim, who plac'd himself to the West of Tarshish, and also took Possession of the Island of Cyprus. But in Process of Time (b) wanting more Room, and therefore seeking out farther, and finding the lower Parts of Greece already inhabited by the Descendants of Elisha and Dodanim, they still proceeded farther, coasting along the western Shores of Greece, till they came to the upper or northern Parts of it, where the Getæ dwelt, which not being yet inhabited, some of them planted themselves there, whilst others of them spying the Coast of Italy, went and settl'd themselves in that Country. And hence (i) it comes to pass in all Probability, that both Macedonia in Greece and also Italy are meant by the Name of Kittim in Scripture.

36. The last is Dodanim, who inhabited the western Coast southward of the Family of Elishabab, and seem first to have tak'n Possession of the Island of Rhodes, and mix'd themselves among the Posterity of Elisha in Peloponnesus, and after that extended their Country on the western Shores of Greece, and went into France as far as the River Rhodanus or Rhone.

37. The fifth Son of Japhet mention'd by Moses is Tubal, who was plac'd northward from the Land of Canaan upon the Shore of the Euxine Sea, and is expressly affirm'd by Josephus to be the Father of the Asiatick Iberians. The Spaniards have a Tradition, that they are of the Race of Tubal, because Part of their Country was known by the Name of Iberia; but this seems to be too far distant, and to cross many Colonies of other Nations, before he could settle there. And the only Country which lay open for him to extend himself in, was between the Euxine and the Caspian Seas.

38. The sixth Son of Japhet mention'd by Moses is Meshech, who settl'd at first on the east Side of the Nation of Gomer in Part of Cappadocia and Armenia, near the Mountains call'd Moschici, on the south Side of his Brother Tubal. And as they are generally joyn'd together in Scripture, and had but one Way open for both to extend their Colonies; so in Process of Time they mix'd together, and peopled the Countries of Russia and Muscovy.

39. The last Son of Noah mention'd by Moses is Tiras. He is suppos'd to have seated himself not far from the Hellspont, between his Brethren Ashkenaz and Madai, and being quickly straighten'd for want of Room, he went over into Thrace and peopled that Country, and so spread himself on the north Side of the Euxine Sea. And thus were (k) the Isles of the gentiles (or the Nations which came to Judæa and Egypt by Sea) divided in their lands; every one after his tongue, after their families, and in their nations, who when they were straighten'd for Room in lesser Asia, cross'd the Egean Sea, and settl'd in those Parts of Europe, which were generally opposite to their ancient Habitations.

40. The second Son of Noah was Shem, who had five Sons, and they were the Fathers of so many Nations. The first Son of Shem mention'd by Moses was (l) Elam, who without Dispute, possess'd the Land of Elymais and all Persia as far as from the River Hiddikel to the South Sea, until at the Founding of the Assyrian Monarchy, Cush the Father of Nimrod invaded that Country, and took it for his Family, and built (m) Erc, Accad and Calneh, that thereby he might have more easy Passages over those Rivers to secure his Conquests, which forced the Elamites to go farther, and take Possession of Susiana and the Neighbouring Provinces, which were originally The land of Nod.

41. The second Son of Shem was Ashur. He at first seated himself on the North Side of the Tigris, near the River Lycus. But when Nimrod founded the Assyrian Monarchy, and drove him from thence, and built several strong Cities to prevent his Return, this Nation pass'd over the Tigris, and dwelt in the eastern Parts of Mesopotamia, and built Telassar or the Fort of the Assyrians upon the Euphrates, to prevent any future Incursions of the Enemy to disturb them in their Habitations.

42. The third Son of Shem was Arphaxad. He was seated in the more southward Part of Mesopotamia, where the Plain or Vale of Shinar lay upon the River Tigris, together with the Country of Eden; but when Nimrod seiz'd on these Parts, he remov'd his People more northward from thence into the Country call'd Arrapachitis. And thus Arphaxad being (n) born but two Years after the Flood, and consequently the eldest Son of Shem, took that Country for an Inheritance, where they liv'd before the Flood, and where Noah also liv'd when he built the Ark, and left it to his younger Brethren to travel farther. And from him the Line runs regularly down first to Abraham, then to David, and then to CHRIST.

43. This Arphaxad had two great Grandchildren, who were very remarkable. The name of the one is Peleg, because in his days the earth was divided, and his Brother's Name was Jektan, whom the Arabians call Cabtan, who had a numerous Offspring of thirteen Sons, and all of them were seated in the innermost Parts of Arabia Felix.

41. The eldest Son of Joktan was Almodad, who was situate near the Head of the River Lar, which empties it self into the Persian Gulph on the South Side. The second was Sheleph, who was remote from the Rest about the Middle of Arabia, not far from the Spring of the River Betius, which empties it self into the Middle of the Red Sea. The third was Hazarmaveth, who was seated not far from the Straights of Babelmandel, on the Southern Coasts of the Arabian Sea. The fourth is Jerah, who were seated near the Red Sea, and joyn'd to the South Side of the River Betius. The fifth was Hadoram, who took Possession of the most eastern Parts of Arabia, having the River Nar on the West, and the Persick Gulf on the north Side. The sixth was Uzal, who took Possession on the south Part of Arabia near the Straights of Babelmandel, between the Arabian and the Red Sea. The seventh is Diklah who inhabited the Country, the People whereof were since call'd Minai, and are seated at some Distance on the north Side of their Brother Uzal. The eighth is Obal, who is suppos'd to have pass'd the Straights at Babelmandel, which were not above four or five Miles broad, and to have tak'n Possession of the other Part of the Country upon the Confines of Africa. The ninth is Abimael, whose Posterity liv'd in the Main Continent on the north Side of their Brethren the Sons of Diklah. The tenth is Sheba, who took Possession of the southern Parts of Arabia upon the Red Sea, not far from the Minai or Family of Diklah, and northward from the Posterity of Uzal. From hence the Queen of Sheba is suppos'd to have come to hear the Wisdom of Solomon, who is therefore call'd (o) The queen of the south. The eleventh is Ophir, whose Country lay near to the Sabeans and is call'd by Ptolomy and others Cassanitis. The twelfth is Havilah, who was also seated on the Red Sea, on the north Side of Sheba, and southward of Jerah. The last was Jobab, who was seated on the Arabian Sea on the south Side of Hadoram, and the north of Hazarmaveth; and thus Moses tells us (p) that their dwelling was from Mesha, as Men went unto Sephar a mountain of the east. This Mesha, Musa or Muza was a famous Port Town in the Red Sea near Sheba, which the Egyptians and Ethiopians frequented in their Way to the Country of the Sapharites in the East; from whom they brought Myrrh, Frankincense, and such like Commodities. And Ptolomy's Tables do plainly shew, That from Musa the Sapharite lay directly East, and Saphar was the Metropolis of the Country at the Foot of the Mountain Climax. Which Mountain, it is probable, was call'd Saphar in old Times, because there is a City of the same Name at the Bottom of it. And thus Moses saith, that Sepher was a Mountain of the East, not eastward from Judea, but as Men went thither from Mesha. And he mentions these two Places, because they were the most remarkable, if not the only Places in that Country known to the Israelites at that Time.

45. The Reader may perhaps wonder at the Placing so many numerous Families of the Sons of Shem in the Country originally allotted for the Sons of Ham. But the Reason seems to be this. The Sons of Ham who were separated from Babylon could not go into Arabia Felix, but they must pass through Arabia Deserta. And it cannot be suppos'd, that they would send Colonies thither, when a more pleasant Country lay open to them in their Way to Canaan and Egypt; and therefore it is probable, that when Nimrod began the Assyrian Monarchy, all these Sons of Joktan, who might be seated near the Persian Gulph, went along the Shore to avoid the Wars, until they came to the Straights of Ormuz, where they pass'd the Sea, and came into Arabia Felix. And Obal being encourag'd by such good Success, might therefore be the more easily prevail'd upon to pass the Straights of Babelmandel, and settle in Africa. And thus finding the Country not yet inhabited, they took Possession without any Resistance. And the Sons of Ham lost a better Country, which was allotted to them by their Father Noah, whilst they to greedily thirsted for another.

46. The fourth Son of Shem was Lud. There are some, who say, that he seated himself in the Country of Lesser Asia, in the Country call'd Lydia. But this removes him too far from the rest of his Brethren the Children of Shem, and places him in the remotest Part of the Sons of Japhet. But the Name of Lud or Lydia might be given to that Country, not from the Father of the Nation, but from another Circumstance, viz. because the River Meander was seated there, which had a great many Turnings and Windings in it (some reckon them six hundred) and returns again almost to its Fountain Head; and therefore the River and the Country might be so call'd from the Hebrew Verb לָו to return, be crooked, or twist about, or rather from the Arabick Verb لَو of the same Signification. If I might have the Liberty of a bare Conjecture, it should be this, That the Posterity of Lud seated themselves to the North of Babylon in the Country of Arrapachitis. But when Nimrod began the Assyrian Monarchy, and invaded Babylonia from the south Parts, the Inhabitants being of the Nation of Arphaxad, fled thither, and perhaps drove them from thence, when seizing upon the Country, they chang'd the Names of the Places to the Names of the Conquerors; and the Children of Lud, going either eastward or to the southern Parts of the Caspian Sea, might call their new Possessions by the Names of their Leaders, and thus the ancient Name of the Patriarch might be lost in those Countries.

47. The fifth and last Son of Shem mention'd by Moses was Aram. He was at first seated near his Brother Asbur on the north Side of the Tigris, and extended his Country as far as the Head of that River. And as he lay on the east Side of his Brother Asbur, so when the Assyrian Monarchy was founded, and Asbur went to the south of the Tigris for his greater Safety, Aram also cross'd the same River, and lay west of Asbur as he did before. The Word Aram in Hebrew is usually render'd by Syrians in our English Bible, and is a Name not unknown to the ancient Greeks. For Homer mentions the Ἀρμῆ in his second Book of the Iliads; and so doth Hesiod; and Strabo saith, that many understand by the Ἀριμί, the Syrians. And the Syrians at this Day call themselves Aramæans. But Syria being so large a Name, that ancient Authors extend it to all those Countries, which lay between Tyre and Babylon; we must not suppose that all these were of the Posterity of Aram. For it is evident that some of them descended from Canaan, others from Asbur, and others from Arphaxad. And therefore they are thought to have come from him, to whom the Name of Aram is either prefix'd or subjoin'd, as (q) Aram-naharaim, or the Syrians between the Rivers, or as it is call'd in Greek, Mesopotamia. Add to this (r) Padan-aram, where Laban liv'd, also (s) Aram-zebah, the People of Palmyra, and the neighbouring Cities. Also (t) Aram-dammeseck, situated between Libanus and Antilibanus, whose chief City was Damascus. And lastly, (u) Aram-maacah, and (x) Aram-bethrehob, which were Places beyond Jordan, one of which fell to the Share of Manassah, and the other to that of Asker. And as these Countries lay near to Judea on the north Side, and are frequently mention'd in Scripture; so they are so evidently known, as to need no farther Description.

48. But the particular Account of the Country which Aram possess'd, will be better known from the (y) Families in this Nation, which Moses describes, and they are four. The first is Uz, who is generally thought to have been the Builder of the City of Damascus, and is thereby distinguish'd from the other two of the same Name. The first of which was (z) the Son of Nahor Abraham's Brother, whose Country was Ausitis in Arabia Deserta; and the Second was (a) of the Posterity of Edom. The second is Hull, whose Posterity possess'd the Country call'd Cholobathene or Cholbeth, that is, the House of Chol or Hull, which is a Part of Armenia. The Third is Gether: It is probable, that the River Getra, formerly call'd also Centrites, which is said to part the Canduchi from Armenia, might be so call'd from him. And after all it is not unlikely, but that Gadara the chief City of Peræa, which Ptolomy places in the Decapolis of Cælosyria, might be so call'd from this Gether. And the last Son is Mash, who is also (b) call'd Meshek, and was seated between Hull to the North, and Uz to the South in Mesopotamia near the Mountain Masius, which is call'd by Zenophon Masca, and the neighbouring Inhabitants are call'd Masieni. And (c) these are also the Sons of Shem, the second Son of Noah, after their families, after their tongues, in their lands, and after their nations.

49. The third or youngest Son of Noah, which Moses mentions, is Ham, who had four Sons, and were the Fathers of four several Nations. The First is Cush. His Nation is frequently mention'd in Scripture, and from the Description, which we there find, it is evident, that its first Settlement was in the Country adjoining to his Brother Canaan, on the South, or in Arabia. There are many Texts of Scripture, which render the Word Cush by Ethiopia; but it must be understood of Ethiopia in Asia or Arabia, of which (d) the Country of Midian was a Part, and not of that Ethiopia which was in Africa; and thus even Homer (e) divides the Country, and places one in the East and the other in the West. And it is very probable, that in Process of Time, some of the Family of Cush might pass over the Red Sea into the adjoining Parts of Africa, if they did not disperse some Colonies as far as Cossir, and the River Casa; and in this Sense, Cush may be said to be the Father of some of the Ethiopians. And when his Son Nimrod began the Assyrian Monarchy, it seems probable, that he went with his Father Cush from his original Habitation in Arabia to Chaldea, and first seiz'd on the Country which lay Southward of Babylon, which hath been call'd Chaduca and sometimes Chusca, and then he seiz'd on that Part of Persia which lay on the east Side of the great Rivers of Paradise, and hence this Country was call'd Chazestan, or the Province of Cush.

50. But these were but a small Part of the Posterity of Cush. It is certain, that the main Bulk of them seated themselves in Arabia, since there we find all his Children, according as Moses describes them. The first of these is Seba. Now there were four Nations, which had originally the Name of Seba or Shebah, one of them hath been mention'd already as the Son of Joktan of the Posterity of Shem, two of them are mention'd by Moses in the same Verse as the Son and Grandson of Cush, and the other will be mention'd in his proper Place as a Grandson of Abraham by Keturah. The three first of these were Nations giv'n to Trade, and the last was a Nation given to Robbery. Three of these were written with the Hebrew Letter ש or Sh, but this who is here mention'd with the Letter ד or S, and is more plainly distinguish'd from the Rest by the Psalmist, who saith of CHRIST (f) the kings of Tarshish and of the isles shall bring presents: the kings of Sheba and Seba shall offer gifts. This Seta was the Father of a People in Arabia, call'd The Semmites, and his Posterity, according as the (g) Arabian Geograph. r tells us, was plac'd on the west Side of the Country of Oman on the south-west Side of the Persian Gulph. These were but little known among the Ancients, because the Gerrhæi or Strangers, which came from Babylon, seiz'd upon that Nation for themselves, and accordingly alter'd the Names, whereby they might be known.

51. The second Son of Cush is (h) Havilah. There were also two Families, which were call'd Havilah. One of them was (i) the Son of Shem by Joktan, and the other is the Son of Ham by Cush. And as Havilah the Son of Joktan was seated in Arabia Felix among the rest of his Brethren; so Havilah the Son of Chus was seated near his Father, or near Chusca upon (k) the Banks of the River Phison, or the western Channel of the two, into which the common Channel of the Tigris and Euphrates is again divided, before the Waters thereof empty themselves into the Persian Gulph. Of this River Moses saith, (l) that it compasseth the whole land of Havilah, where there is gold; and the gold of that land is good: there is bdellium and the onyx stone.

52. The third Son of Cush was Sabta, who seems to have been settled in that Part of Arabia Felix call'd Leantia upon the Persian Sea, on the east Side, and afterward to have sent out Colonies into that Part of Persia, which lay on the other Side of the same Gulph near to Carmania.

53. The fourth Son of Cush was Raamah, who was seated in Arabia near the Straights of the Persian Gulf, and he had two Sons, viz. Sheba and Dedan, who were also seated near to him and to one another, Dedan liv'd toward the North near the Straights, and Sheba was plac'd more Southward and nearer to the main Ocean.

4. The fifth Son of Cush was Sabtechah, who was plac'd in Arabia among the Rest of his Brethren, especially since there is Room enough left for him in the Northern Parts of that Country. Dr. Wells is (m) of the Opinion, that his Descendants might be from him still at first by the Greeks, Sabtaceni; which Name might be afterward soften'd in the Saraceni, by which Name it is well known, that the People of this Tract were anciently denominated, and he seems to give good Reasons to support his Conjecture.

52. There is also another Son of Cush or Nimrod. What his original Name was at first is uncertain, and therefore it is not possible to fix the Place of the ancient Habitation. The Name Nimrod comes from a Hebrew Word, which signifies to rebel, and seems to point at him as a great Rebel or Robber, especially when he affected to be an universal Monarch, after which it is evident from the sacred Scriptures, that (n) he settl'd at Babylon, and extended his Conquests first toward the Southern Parts of Persia, and then into Assyria.

56. Here we may observe, how the Arabick Language at first became so very copious, as it is found to be. The Families of Shem by Joktan, and the Families of Ham by Cush settl'd in Arabia Felix almost promiscuously with each other, and thus the Languages of both were incorporated into one. It was a very rich and plentiful Country, and afforded great Stores of Merchandise, which could well be exported either by the Persian Gulph, the Red Sea, the River Euphrates, or the main Ocean. And it is also remarkable, that (o) Raamah, Sheba and Dedan, which lay in the South Part of Arabia, carry'd on a great Trade as far as Tyre, which was the most northern Part of the Land of Canaan, and they supply'd their Country with some of their nicest Commodities, as precious cloaths for chariots, the chief of all spices, and all precious stones and gold. Such a Commerce as this occasion'd the Roads to be very much frequented, and consequently a known Language to be communicated in all these Parts, into which the particular Countries inserted their own Words, as there was Occasion, or as Custom required. Thus the whole Country having a common and sufficient Language, it was increas'd in several Places, by the Addition of other Words, which being added together, grew to a vast Number, and many Words were also imported from all Parts of the Sea with their Merchandise. Thus the Chaldee and Syriack Languages grew more Copious by the Addition of so many Greek Words, the European Languages have been improv'd by the Latin, and the Spanish by the Arabick. Besides, when Abraham had several Sons by Hagar, and especially by his Wife Keturah, he (p) gave them gifts and sent them away from Isaac his son, while he yet lived, eastward into the east country, that is, into some Parts of Arabia. The Language of these was the He- brew Language, which mixing with the other, introduc'd that great Affinity between the Hebrew and the Arabick, which is evident at this Time.

52. The next Son of Ham is Mizraim. There can be no Dispute where his Offspring was seated; since Egypt in Hebrew is Mizraim, and the Land of Egypt is no more in Hebrew than the Land of Mizraim.

53. The first Son of Mizraim is Ludim. He was the Father of the Ethiopians, who lie on the most Southern Parts of the Nile of all that are mention'd. Next to these Northward, lay the Ananim, who are mention'd next by Moses; next to these also the Lehabim or Lybians, who lay on the Shore of the Mediterranean Sea; on the East Side thereof lay the Naphtubim, extending themselves on the Sea Shore toward the Nile. To these Moses adds the Pathrusim or Inhabitants of Pathros, which was also a Part of Egypt lying more Southward upon the River Nile. And the last, which I shall mention at present, viz. the Casubim, who were seated on the East Side of the River Nile, and extended themselves to the Mediterranean on the North, and Southward along the Red Sea, so that they kept the Passages from Egypt into Canaan, and being there straighten'd for Room, and the neighbouring Countries being inhabited by other Families, they were forc'd to send a late Colony as far as the Colchi, on the East Side of the Euxine Sea.

54. When the Wars rag'd between the upper and the lower Egypt, these Casubim built a City upon the Mediterranean Sea, near the eastern Entrance of the River Nile, which they call'd Pelusium; and they fortified it, to be not only a Pass to secure their own Country, but likewise to open a Passage into the Land of Canaan, as Occasion should require; and some of them going from Pelusium thither, that so they might live in Peace and Quietness, they settl'd themselves in the Land of Canaan on the Shore of the Mediterranean Sea, and so call'd themselves Philistins. And because this Pass was of a very great Consequence for the Defence of the Country, like the Chapiters or upper Lintels, on which the Weight of the whole Building did depend, and which in Hebrew are (q) call'd Caphthorim; therefore they call'd themselves by this Name, and on another such Occasion as before mention'd, they (r) destroy'd the Avims, which dwelt in Hazerim, and settl'd in that Country, where they also call'd themselves by the Name of Caphthorim.

55. The third Son of Ham is Phut. As Cush and Canaan were settled in Asia; so Mizraim and Phut were settled in Africa, and the whole Country was divided between them two. For all Egypt, and several other Parts of Africa, as far as the Lake of Trilonides (which divides Africa into two Parts almost equal) fell to Mizraim. And the rest beyond that Lake to the Atlantick Ocean was the Portion of Phut. But this Country lying beyond Egypt, and consequently at a Distance from the Land of Canaan, Moses takes no Notice of his Issue, and only names,

56. The last Son of Ham, which is Canaan, who dwelt with the greatest Part of his Families, in the Land which the Children of Israel afterward took for an Inheritance. Moses reckons eleven of his Sons as distinct Tribes in that Country, five of which are mark'd out for utter Destruction, viz. First, the Hittite, who dwelt about Helron and Beer She'a in the South of the Land of Canaan. Secondly, The Jelustite, who were seated near the other, and before King Davias's Time, were in Possession of Jerusalem as their Capital City, who from them was call'd Jebus. Thirdly, The Amorite, who possess'd the Mountainous Parts of Judaea, and many of them (s) pass'd over Jordan, and making War upon the Moabites and Ammonites, seiz'd upon all the Country between the Rivers of Jabbok and Arnon. Fourthly, The Girgashite, of which People there (t) was a Remnant about Gerasa or Gadara beyond Jordan, in our SAVIOUR's Time, who were known by the Name of the Gergasenes. And Fifthly, The Hivite. These (u) liv'd in and about Mount Hermom, who being toward the East of the Land of Canaan, were therefore call'd Kadmonites, that is, *Oriental*s. The (x) Gibeonites, and Sichemites, were Colonies from them, who dwelt more Westward. The first of these liv'd near to Jerusalem, and the other to Samarita.

57. To these Five Moses adds two Nations more who were mark'd out for Destruction by the Israelites, and they are (y) the Canaanites and the Perizzites; concerning whom we may observe, that when Abraham first came into the Land of Canaan from his own Country, by GOD's immediate Direction, there were no such Families mention'd at that Time; but after Abraham had return'd into Egypt, (z) the Canaanite and the Perizzite were then in the land. And as Abraham and Lot had liv'd comfortably together before; so now the Land being grown more populous by the Addition of these Neighbours, there was such a Strife between the Herdsmen of Abraham and Lot, that they were forc'd to part asunder. So that by this Account we may learn the Time, when these People came thither. By Canaanite in this Account, we are not to understand all the Posterity of Canaan the Son of Ham, for they were distinguish'd into their several Tribes, and then this Word would include the Rest; but it must mean something distinct. The Account hereof is thus. After Mizraim had settl'd themselves in upper Egypt, there were several Canaanitish Pastors, who went into lower Egypt, for the Conveniency of Pasturage, which occasion'd a long and bloody War between these two Kingdoms. These Canaanites being a mix'd Multitude, could well call themselves by no other Name, than such a one as would include them all. And when they were much press'd by the War, they retreated back again, and because they could not then mix with their own Tribes, they call'd themselves either by the Name of Canaanites or Perizzites.

58. The Canaanites were a People, who being long us'd to Wars kept in great Bodies, that they might the better defend themselves, or attack their Neighbours, as Occasion did offer. And because such great Bodies could not be maintain'd by the bare Product of the adjacent Country, therefore they apply'd themselves to Trade and Commerce, and for this Reason generally seated themselves in Cities near the Sea as the fittest for such a Purpose. And this is the Reason, that the Word (a) Canaan sometimes in the Hebrew signifies a Merchant. It is (b) very observable, that there are not many considerable Remains of them in the large Country, that was on the East Side of Jordan among the Amorites, and People of Basban, whom Moses conquer'd; which is an Argument that they enter'd not into Canaan on the East Side of it, as Moses did, but on the South Side of it, which lay next to Egypt. And here we find a distinct Body of them (c) joining to the Amalekites under King Arad; so that in all Probability they enter'd in that Way, and so they pass'd on settling Plantations as they found an Opportunity, either in the Midland, or by the Coasts of the Sea, or by Jordan.

59. When we come a little farther from the South, we find (d) a considerable Country mention'd as a Part of Joshua's Conquest, which was call'd Goshen, and reach'd as far as Gibeon. And this being the very Name of the Country in (e) Egypt, from whence the Canaanites were driv'n, it is reasonable to conclude, that it was giv'n by them to their new Plantation, when after their leaving Egypt, they came to settle there; as the Countries call'd New England, New Jersey and New York, have been lately nam'd by the Planters from the Places out of which they came. Others (f) settl'd themselves near the Sea; and near to Jordan for the Conveniency of Trade. The chief Body of them seem to be northward under (g) Jabin, who is call'd (h) King of Canaan, and he reign'd in Hazor, and Sisera was the captain of his host, who dwelt in Harosheth of the gentiles. By which we can understand nothing less than Foreigners, or People who came out of another Country, or which originally were not of that Land, this being the common Sense of the Name Gentiles. And he had (i) nine hundred chariots of iron, arm'd with Scythes, such as were invented by the Egyptians during the Time of their Wars in that Country. This is still the more probable, because we can find no other Foreigners, that would be under a King of Canaan, but these, who had not long before been bred in Egypt, and when they were press'd by the Wars retir'd into this Country. And tho' Joshua had (k) brok'n their Power about an hundred and fifty Years before, at the Waters of Merom; yet it appears by the (l) History of Judges, that they had recruited, and were grown strong enough to oppress Israel twenty Years before the Time of Barak and Deborah, and none were more likely to do so than these Canaanites, who were the Offspring of those that had been so long train'd up in the Egyptian Wars. And of these Sort of Canaanites may those be reckon'd to be, whom (m) the half Tribe of Manasseh (who were settl'd on the West Side of Jordan between Issachar and Ephraim) could not drive out; and those (n) also among the Ephraimites at Gezer, which (o) stood out 'til the Days of Solomon, to whom it was giv'n by Pharaoh for a Present with his Daughter. All which makes it very plain, who were anciently meant by the general Name of Canaanites in that Country; and that * after the Sons of Canaan had seated themselves according to their Families, these Families of the Canaanites were spread abroad, as it is already mention'd.

60. As the Canaanites were large Societies embody'd together for military Discipline and Trade either by Sea or Land; so the Perizzites were smaller Bodies of Men, who dwelt in Tents, and kept Cattle, and they had no settl'd Habitation, but mov'd from Place to Place, as the Conveniency of Pasturage did require. As they had two different Ways of Living in Egypt; so they had afterward two different Ways of living in Canaan. They who were actually in the Army kept together at their Return, and were call'd Canaanites: And they who dealt in Pasturage, separated themselves into smaller Companies, and were call'd Perizzites, which Word properly signifies small Villages. And as they continually mov'd from Place to Place; so they left no Towns call'd by their Names, from whence we might guess, in what Parts of the Land of Canaan they were principally settl'd. And to prevent any Mistake, where (p) the Names of Perez Uzza, and (q) Baal Perazim are mention'd, there are particular Reasons giv'n, why the Places were so call'd. And as these Shepherds in Egypt were expos'd to the frequent Excursions of the Enemy; so they also were train'd up to the Use of Arms, that they might the better defend themselves, which made them the more formidable, and is the Reason, that they are always (r) mark'd out together with the Canaanites for utter Destruction.

61. But beside these Sons of Canaan already mention'd, there are six Families more, which lay without the Country allotted to the Israelites, one on the South Side toward Egypt, and the other on the North Side toward Cæ'ossyria. That on the South Side was the Sinite; their chief City was call'd (s) Sin in the Syriack, and Pelusium in the Greek, both which Words signify a dirty Place, and it was really so, as standing in a low marshy Ground, where the western Branch of the River Nilus empties it self into the Mediterranean Sea; and it is probable, that they extended themselves to the Wilderness of Sin, which is (t) between Elim and Sinai, and is the eighth resting Place of the Israelites in their Journey to Canaan.

62. The First, which is mention'd on the north Side, is Zidon. He was the first born of Canaan, and was the Founder of the City call'd Zidon, which was famous for Merchandise, and is frequently mention'd both in the old and new Testament. To the North of Zidon is plac'd the Arkite, near that Part of Mount Lebanus, where the City of Arce is plac'd by Ptolomy and others. To the North of the Arkite is plac'd the Arvadite, where there is an Island in the Sea call'd Arvad, and by others Aradus, which they possess'd, together with a Part of the neighbouring Continent, and where there is a Place opposite to the Island, which is call'd Antaradus. Next to Arvad in the Neighbourhood, and upon the Continent did also the Zemarite fix, where there is a Town call'd Simyra. And it is most probable, that the Hemathite was seated more easterly in the Midland Country. There was a large City call'd (u) Hamath, and it had a King, who often had Wars with Israel; it lay adjoyning to the holy Land on the North Side, and therefore it is so often call'd (x) The entering in of Hamath. And as in Scripture it is frequently (y) joyn'd with Damascus; so we may conclude, that these two Cities were not very far asunder. And therefore I shall end this Chapter with the Words of Moses, (z) These are the families of the sons of Noah (viz. Japhet, Shem and Ham) after their generations, and by these were the nations divided in this Manner after the flood.

63. But here it may be ask'd, How came America to be peopl'd, especially since there are such vast Seas, which part it from the rest of the World? And to this it may (a) be answer'd, That as England might at first be inhabited both from the Southern Parts and also from the Western Parts of Europe; so America might also be peopl'd from the eastern Parts of China, and the northern Parts of Tartary. And this might be done by some Neck of Land not yet discover'd, which joyns some Part of Asia, or perhaps of Europe to the main Continent of America. And it is certain, that when the Spaniards first came thither, they found the Country full of Bears, Lions, Wolves, Foxes, Tigers, and such Sort of Wild Beasts. And it is not likely, that Men would transport such Creatures thither, tho' Men themselves might pass over thither by Shipping. This hath made some Men so bold as to say, that there were other People in America who were not drown'd by the Flood. But we need no farther Confutation of this Opinion than the Description of that Country. For tho' the Continent of America was found full of such Beasts, when the Spaniards first came thither; yet none of the Islands, tho' very large, which lay remote from the Land, had any such Creatures in them. And this is a Demonstration, that those Creatures were not originally from that Part of the Earth, for then the Islands would be furnish'd with them as well as the Continent, as they are with all sorts of Vegetables, and consequently the Continent it self was stor'd with those Creatures from some other Part of the Earth. Or if there is no such Neck of Land now extant; yet it might have been between the Southeast Part of China or the Philippine Islands, and the Southern Continent of that other Part of the World. And this might be destroy'd either by the Violence of the Sea, or by Earthquakes, which have made great Alterations in the World, and particularly St. Vincent, an Island in the West Indies, was thus swallow'd up and lost not many Years since. And he that observes the infinite Number of Islands lying between the Continent of China and Nova Guinea, the most contiguous to each other, hath probable Reasons to believe, that these were formerly one Continent, tho' now by the Irruption of the Sea, they are crumbl'd into many Islands.

64. Neither is it improbable, but that America might also in Process of Time, be inhabited from the northern Parts of Tartary, and particularly by the ten Tribes of Israel, who were carry'd Captives out of their own Land. To put this Matter in the clearest Light, we must consider, that the Conquest both of Israel and Judah by the Kings of Affyria and Babylon is describ'd in Scripture, as effected by the (b) Kings of the north; and their Return, as (c) coming out of the North, and we are told more particularly, (d) that when the king of Assyria took Samaria, he did not only carry them away into Assyria, but he also plac'd them in Halah and in Habor by the River of Gozan, and in the Cities of the Medes. Being despis'd wherever they came, because they were circumcis'd and had a different Way of living from the Rest of Mankind, many of these might go farther North into Tartary. This is not a bare Conjecture, since we are well assur'd, that (e) in the northern Counties of Russia, Sarmatia and Lithuania, there are found greater Numbers of the Jewish Nation than in other Places, and so the nearer to the Tartarians still the more. And Johannes Leunclavius, the most curious Searcher out of the Turkish Antiquities and Monuments, adds, as a farther Proof of the Descent of those barbarous northern People from the Jews, that in his Travels through Livonia into Lithuania, in the Country near to the Metropolitan City of Riga, he found there the barbarous People of the Lettoes quite different in Language from the other Country People of the Curons and Estons, no less barbarous than themselves, who had always in their Mouths a perpetual Lamentation, which they with doleful Moans daily repeated abroad in the Fields, Jeru. Jeru. Mosco. Lon. whereby they were thought to lament over Jerusalem and Damascus, as forgetful of all other things in their ancient Country, after so many Years, and in a desolate Place so far distant from thence. If we may suppose the Word Lon (f) to be deriv'd from להון Lehon, which in the Chaldee and Samaritan Languages signifies for these; then by the Addition of another Word, which is imply'd, we may render this brok'n Sentence thus, Jerusalem, Jerusalem, and Damascus, for these we lament. And thus a Part of their ancient Language remains, even when the rest might be lost: For Munster in his Description of Livonia, repeating the like Words, reports, that this rude People being demanded what they meant by these Words so often and so lamentably utter'd by them without any Cause, answer'd, That they knew no more, but that they had been so taught Time out of Mind by their Ancestors.

65. There being these Footsteps of the Jews remaining in Tartary, the Rabbins tell us, (g) that the ten Tribes have pass'd over the River Sanbat, where they have Linnen and Scarlet, with which they make themselves most beautiful Garments, and that they have a great Plenty of Silver and Gold and precious Stones. And they say, that this River Sanbat is a River, which runs all the Week with a violent Stream, and rolls down great Stones with it, so that no Man can pass over it, but it rests upon the Sabbath Day, when the Jews are also commanded to rest, so that they cannot either go or come to one another. Such a fabulous Story as this makes it plain, that the Jews have a Notion, that the Ten Tribes are pass'd over some River, but they know not where. Now there is a Passage in the North of Tartary into America call'd The Straights of Anien, and perhaps there may be more about Hudson's Bay, and this being in a Part of the World so little known, might be the River, which the Jews did so much talk of. Or there might be a Neck of Land in ancient Times, which is since wash'd away by the Sea. It is observable that the wild Americans swim about the Sea in small Boats, which they call Canoes, and are very much like to those, which are us'd in the Parts abovemention'd. And as there are such a vast Variety of Languages in the North of America, among the Natives, that a Man can hardly travel above thirty Miles by the Help of any one alone; so this seems to shew, that they came thither in different Times and from different Places. However, if it was possible to learn some of these Languages, and compare them with the Samaritan; if it was possible to have a right Notion of their Religion, and to compare it with the Idolatry of the Ten Tribes; or if it was possible to find out some of their Monuments, and compare them with the ancient Samaritan Character, and especially with those in ancient Use among the Jewish Coins, it might afford Matter for farther Speculations.

BEFORE I proceed any farther, it will be necessary to answer two Objections, which may be rais'd against this Part of the Chronology of the Sacred Scriptures. The first is, that there could not be Men enough so soon after the Flood to build such a prodigious Tower, as the Tower of Babel was, according as it is describ'd in a former Chapter. And the Second is, that there could not be Men enough in the Time of Abraham to people so many Kingdoms, as were inhabited at that Time. In answer to these, it must be own'd, that if the Time of the Dispersion from Babylon had been plac'd at the Birth of Peleg, as most have plac'd it, the first Objection would have had a much greater Force; but it is very much abated, by placing the Time thirty Years later according to Berosus; neither can there be any Inconvenience in placing it forty Years after, as upon second Thoughts I have adventur'd to place it in these Tables. And as to the second Objection, if (as formerly) the Birth of Abraham was fix'd to the Time, when Terah was seventy Years old, it would have occasion'd much difficulty; but since according to the Opinion of all our late Chronologers, it is plac'd sixty Years after, when Terah was an hundred and thirty Years of Age, it is much more easy to give a satisfactory Answer.

2. The first Objection is, That there could not be Men enough so soon after the Flood to build so prodigious a Tower, as the Tower of Babel was. This Objection may be fully answer'd, First, By taking a moderate Computation of the Number of Men, which might have been employ'd therein. And Secondly, By proving from thence, that such a Number of Men was sufficient in the Space of forty Years, which is the Time assign'd, to build so great a Tower, as that which hath been describ'd.

3. The first Thing propos'd is to take a moderate Computation of the Number of Men, which might have been employ'd in the building of this Tower. For the better taking an Estimate thereof, we must suppose, that the Posterity of Shem tarry'd in their own Country near to their Father Noah, and that only the Posterity of Ham and Japhet came to Babel. Secondly, That they came thither in the hundred and first Year after the Flood, and were dispers'd from thence in the hundred and forty first Year, so that they tarry'd there forty Years. Thus this second Dispersion will happen, when Peleg was forty Years of Age, and as the Scripture tells us (a) in his days, or whilst he liv'd. The Dispersion in this Year, will happen early enough to people the first Kingdoms, within the Time assign'd for it by the best Chronologers, and will also make the World so populous as to occasion a greater Necessity for such a Dispersion. Thirdly, We must consider, how many Men might have sprung from Ham and Japhet, and conclude them to be double the Number of the Children of Shem. Fourthly, It may well be suppos'd, that after the Blessing, which GOD (b) gave, and even repeated to Noah and his Sons to make it more certain, when he said unto them, Be fruitful and multiply, and replenish the earth, that they were more fruitful than at another Time, until the Earth was replenish'd. And therefore it may reasonably be suppos'd by a Moderate Computation, First, That after the Flood every Man might have a Child once in every Year, or Twins once in two Years, for the more speedy peopling of the World; so that in two Years Time there might be born a Male and a Female to each Man of a suitable Age, or of the Age of his Cotemporary mention'd in the Scriptures in the Line of Shem. This is but a moderate Computation, since it is possible, that they might have had Twins every Year, or have had Children much sooner. For the Scriptures speak positively of none, whose Names are mention'd in the Line from Shem to Abraham, that they were the first Born. And Secondly, That all these Patriarchs from the Time that they first had Children, had them in this Manner until after their Dispersion from Babylon. At that Time, there were none of them, whose Age we know, that had attain'd to half the Age of their Lives; and it is usual even in this Age of the World for either Sex to have Children until they attain to half the general Age of Mankind. And as the Space between the Flood and the Dispersion is suppos'd to be but an hundred and forty Years; so it is certain, that some Time after, when the Age of Man was shorten'd, that Abraham was born to Terah, when he was an hundred and thirty Years old. These Things being granted, it must be allow'd on the other Hand, that Noah had no Children after the Flood, he being then six hundred

(a) Gen. 10. 25. 1 Chron. 1. 19.

(b) Gen. 8. 16, 17, and Gen. 9. 1.

Years of Age, and that (c) the whole earth was overspread by Shem, Ham and Japhet. So that according to these Suppositions I have compos'd the twenty second Table; which shews, how many Males might be born to Shem in any second Year after the Flood. And I have also compos'd the twenty third Table from thence, to shew how many Males might be born either to Shem, or to both Ham and Japhet, or to all the three Sons of Noah in any second Year also. The Adding of all the Numbers together from the Top of the Table to any giv'n Year, will shew the Number of Males in any one Family, or in two, or in the whole World at that Time; and the Doubling of any Number, thus added together, shews the whole Number of Men and Women, which might probably be alive in any such Year, either from Shem alone, or in the Families both of Ham and Japhet, or of the whole World in any such giv'n Year. And now I suppose, that from the Time of the Coming to Babylon in the hundred and first Year after the Flood, to the Time of their Dispersion in the hundred and forty first Year, which was forty Years; an hundred and fifty Men might be employ'd every Day, one Day with another in the Building, as Masons upon the Walls, and that each of these might have twenty under Workmen employ'd in making of Brick and Mortar, and bringing it to them; there then remains only to be proved, that there would in such a Case, be also a sufficient Number of Men for the Building of the City, Manuring of the Ground, Dressing of Provision, and other Business of this Nature. Now by multiplying the hundred and fifty Workmen on the Walls by 21, the Number of Persons and Attendants in each Year, the Total is 3150, which also multiply'd by 40, the Number of Years, produces the Summ of 126000. And it will appear, that so many Men employ'd in one Year, or a proportionable Number employ'd for forty Years, would build a much larger Tower than what is mention'd; and that so many might be thus employ'd, and that there would also be a sufficient Number remaining for other Uses.

4. For the Proof of this I have also compos'd the twenty fifth Table, to shew how many Men above twenty Years of Age might be living in each respective Year of the Forty. Thus for the hundred and second Year after the Flood, I compute how many Men were born in and before the Year 82 from Ham and Japhet, and by adding the Numbers together, I find them to be 189191, from which the Number of Workmen or the Sum of 126000 being subtracted, the Remainder is 63191 or about a third Part of the other Sum; so that beside the Number of Workmen propos'd, a third Part of the Men in the World might be employ'd for the other Uses abovemention'd, besides all the Women, who were alive in the same Place (and who are suppos'd to be equal to the Number of Men) and all other Persons under twenty Years of Age.

5. The next Particular propos'd is to shew, that an hundred and fifty Masons well tended, are sufficient to build such a Tower, as the Tower of Babylon was, in the Space of forty Years. For the Proof of this it may reasonably be suppos'd, that as the Age, which Men liv'd in those Days, was much longer than it is now; so the Men at that Time were much larger and stronger than they are now, and consequently that they could be able to do much more Work in a Day, than they can do now. But I shall wave this Supposition, and look upon such who liv'd then, only as equal in Strength and Stature with the Men of this Age. Now it is generally agreed, that an able Bricklayer, well tended, can build a Rod of Brick Wall in four Days, which is a square Piece of sixteen Feet and a half broad, and thirteen Inches and an half thick, and contains in the Whole 306 cubical Feet, which being divided by 4, or the Number of Days, the Remainder is seventy six Feet and an half, or the Work which a Bricklayer can do in a Day. And tho' a Workman can fill the Middle of a Wall, which was generally the Case of the Tower of Babylon, twice as fast as he can take Care of the two Outfides, as in our common Buildings; yet I shall crave no Allowance upon that Account, but leave it to answer for any Extraordinaries, which can be thought of. I also suppose, that they observ'd one Day in each Week, as a Sabbath, or a Day of Rest; so that they had 313 Days for Labour in every Year, and 12527 working Days in the whole forty Years, including seven Days for Leap Years. If then one Brick-layer can finish 76 Feet of Work in one Day, it appears by Multiplication, that he can finish 952052 Feet of Work in forty Years, or in 12527 Days, and consequently that an hundred and fifty Workmen could finish 142807800 square Feet of Building in forty Years, which is more than the Sum propos'd at the End of the twenty first Table. And tho' this shews, that the Tower of Babylon might have been built, and the People dispers'd from thence in the 141st Year after the Flood, as it is plac'd in these Tables; yet it was absolutely impossible, that it could have been finish'd in the Year 101, and the People be dispers'd from thence at the Birth of Peleg, as it is generally suppos'd; since at that Time there were in the last Year but 810 Men in all, above twenty Years of Age, to complete it; and if we may suppose that they were forty Years in building it, they could not probably have more than six and forty Men of all Sorts above twenty Years of Age to begin upon it.

6. The Manner of composing the twenty second Table is thus. First, Make a Column of every second Year, from the Birth of Arphaxad, Anno Mundi 1659, to the Dispersion from Babylon, Anno 1799. Then supposing one Son to be born to Shem only in every other Year; opposite to the respective Years until the Birth of Salah, Anno Mundi 1694; place the Figure 1. Then in the Year 1695 a Son is born to Shem, and another to Arphaxad his eldest Son, so that there are two born that Year. In the Year 1697, a Son is born to Shem, and two more to two of his eldest Sons, so that they increase until the Birth of Eber in this Proportion. Eber being born in the Year of the World 1724, when Salah was thirty Years old, and finding opposite to the Year 1723, that sixteen only were born, whilst the Number did hitherto only increase by Unites (the Patriarchs now having Children at thirty Years of Age) from the Year 1725 I shall subtract thirty, and the Remainder is 1695, in which Year two Males were born, which added to 16 make 18 the Number born in that Year from the Stock of Arphaxad and Salah, as in the third Column. Then from 1727 I subtract 30, and the Remainder is 1697, in which Year three Males were born, which added to 18 makes 21, the Number born in that Year to the two Families. And so I proceed to the Birth of Peleg, except that for the Years 1755, 1757 and 1759 I only add 16, as I did for the Year before. Eber being born Anno 1724, and the Children of Salah having Children in the following Years at the same Age, I take another Column, viz. Col. 4, as before for these Children, so that opposite to 1725, there is 18 for the Branches of the two Families, and one for those of the third, which two Sums being added together, give the full Number for the respective Years, as in Col. 5; so that the full Number added together for the Year 1757 is 200, and after that these three Branches are carried on as united, Col. 3. In the Year 1758, Peleg is born, so that a fourth Branch begins, when the Posterity of Eber had also Children at 34 Years of Age; so that from 1759 I subtract 34, and the Remainder is 1725, when there was an Increase of 19, which added to 200 is 219. Thus also 23 added to 219, the Total is 242 for the Year 1761 in the same Manner, and then the third Column until the Birth of Ren will stand as in the same Table, and the fourth Branch or the Posterity of Peleg as in Col. 4. added to the Sum total, gives the Number of the respective Years for the Family of Shem in the same Method to the End of the Table; which being remov'd into the twenty third Table, and being doubl'd, gives the Number of Men born to Ham and Japhet, or multiply'd by 3, as in another Column. gives the Number of Males from Noah in the respective Years, until their Dispersion from Babylon.

7. The Manner of composing the twenty fourth Table is thus. To find the Number of Men alive above twenty Years of Age after the Flood, I subtract 20 from 102 the first Year mention'd in the Table, and the Remainder is 82, and adding all those together, who were born after the Flood in the Families of Ham and Japhet until the Year 82 inclusively, I find the Number to be 948, with which

I begin

I begin the third Column. The Numbers, which increas'd in the Family of Shem in the two following Years, viz. 83 and 84, or the Numbers increasing in both the Families of Ham and Japhet in one Year, I find to be 79, which added to 948 is 1027, for the Year after the Flood 103, and added to 1027 is 1106 for the Year 104. The Number increasing in the Family of Shem in the two following Years, viz. 85 and 86 is 91, which added to 1106 is 1197 for the Year 105, and added again to 1197 is 1288 for the Year 106, and so to the End.

9. The other Objection is, That there could not be Men enough in the Time of Abraham to people so many Kingdoms, as were inhabited at that Time. But this Objection may be much more easily answer'd; and for the clearing of this Difficulty I shall only suppose, that after the Dispersion from Babylon every Man might have a Child only once in two Years; at the Age when their Contemporaries had Children, as they are recorded in the Scripture; so that in four Years Space of Time there might be born only a Male and a Female to each Father in a Family, and that they continu'd to have Children in this Manner, until they attain'd to half the Age of their Contemporaries, as they are mention'd in the Scriptures. If this is granted, it may on the other Hand be allow'd, First, That Noah had no Children after the Flood, being then six hundred Years old, and that the whole World was replenish'd by Shem, Ham and Japhet. Secondly, That when one Patriarch left off from having Children, all his Predecessors left off also from having any. Thirdly, That when any Patriarch left off from having Children, all the Rest of that Generation shall be omitted, which might have been born before the Birth of the next Patriarch recorded in Scripture. And thus because Peleg might have no more Children after the Year of the World 1877, being then attain'd to half his Age, I suppose, that not only Shem and Arphaxad, but that also Salah and Eber had no Children after that Year, together with their Contemporaries, tho' they had not attain'd to half their Age 'til afterward. And I also omit all such Children, which might be born in that Generation, until the Birth of Reu. Thus also when Nahor arriv'd to half his Age, I suppose that Serug also had no Children afterward, tho' he was not then attain'd to half the Age of his Life. And I also omit all such Children, which might afterward be born 'til the Birth of Terah. Fourthly, That no Computation of Birth shall be allowed after the Year of Abraham's Life; tho' he was above seventy four Years old, when he enter'd into Canaan, and it is possible that the World might be above twenty Times as populous at that Time;

as at his Birth. Fifthly, That such a Number of Men in those Ages might die without the aforesaid Number of Children, as might be allow'd to strike off all the antecedent Generations, and only leave such a Number alive, as may be suppos'd to be born within the Years, at the End of which Abraham was born. And Lastly, that after this Computation and all these Allowances, all the Figures, except the first toward the right Hand, shall be reduced to Ciphers; that so the Remainder may be only a round Number.

10. And now, if notwithstanding all these Concessions, it will appear, that there might be a sufficient Number of Men born to Shem, which might people all Asia; we may as reasonably conclude, that a sufficient Number might be born to Ham and Japhet, which might have also peopl'd all Africa and Europe. Now the Number of Men from Shem, for the Peopling of Asia will be an hundred Millions, and of Women as many more. For the Proof whereof I have compos'd the twenty fifth Table, in the same Method as the twenty fourth Table was compos'd, which demonstrates the Possibility hereof beyond all Contradiction.

11. However, we need not crave so large a Number, since it is more than probable, that none of the Posterity of Japhet were dispers'd into Europe at that Time, but only situated in Asia the less from the Mountain of Amanus northward, and westward to the Euxine Sea, and that the Posterity of Ham had only peopl'd Canaan and Egypt, or perhaps the Lubims or Lybians had spread themselves into some Part of Ethiopia. Besides, when they first peopl'd the Country, a few Men took up a great Tract of Ground. At their first Division they were scatter'd into smaller Bodies, and so they planted themselves at a considerable Distance one from another, to prevent (d) the Increasing of the Beasts of the Earth upon them. These small Parcels had one Governour, who in Edom seems to be call'd a (e) Duke, and in Canaan a (f) King, and thus they had no less than one and thirty in that little Country; who, as they increas'd, did spread farther and farther into the adjacent Lands, until they had replenish'd them all. Thus Canaan was but thinly peopl'd, when Abraham came to dwell there. And tho' those, who call'd themselves Canaanites and Perizzites, thereby to be distinguish'd from the settl'd Inhabitants, were return'd from the Wars of Egypt; yet there was no Scruple to admit of more among them, when Abraham came thither. And tho' the fruitful Countries might be more full of People than others, as (g) in the Case of Abraham and Lot, when they parted asunder; yet other Countries were more desolate of Inhabitants; insomuch that long after that in Jacob's Time

(who was (b) increased exceedingly, and had much cattle, and maid servants, and camels, and asses) Hamor and Shechem told the Hivites (i) that the land was large enough for them all. And therefore it is the less to be wonder'd at, that (k) when Abraham and Lot came into Canaan, tho' they had flocks, and herds, and tents, that the land was not able to bear them, that they might dwell together; yet they found no such Difficulty, as soon as they were separated to settle in any Part thereof with the Rest of the Inhabitants.

12. As therefore it appears by a moderate Computation, that there might be in the World three hundred Millions of Men, when Abraham was born; so we may more readily grant them to be as many, at the Distance of seventy four Years after. And also for the Supplying of all these with Corn, Flesh, and other Provisions both for Meat and Drink, and also with Materials to make Cloaths, we may well allow as large a Tract of Land in Asia, as can be suppos'd to be habitable in that Time, considering what Abatements must be made for Rivers, Woods, Mountains, marshy Grounds, and large Deserts in that Country, especially since all the Inhabitants were confin'd in the north temperate Zone.

13. But tho' the World might possibly have been fully peopl'd in a less Run of Time; yet I cannot but add the Opinion of (l) an Historian of our own Nation, who saith, That it is not advicable to take away any Part of the three hundred and fifty two Years, allotted for the Time between the Flood and the Birth of Abraham, as many have formerly done, who made his Father Terah to be but seventy Years old at his Birth. For (saith he) If we advisedly consider the State and Countenance of the World, such as it was in Abraham's Time, or before Abraham was born, we shall find, that it was very ill done of any Man, by following an Opinion without the Guide of Reason, to pare the Times over deeply between Abraham and the Flood, because in cutting them too near the Quick, the Reputation of the whole Story might perchance bleed thereby, were not the Testimony of the Scriptures so supream, as that no Objection can approach it; and that we did but follow this Precept of St. Augustin, That wheresoever any one Place of the Scriptures may be conceiv'd disagreeing to the whole, the same is misunderstood by Ignorance or Misinterpretation. For in Abraham's Time all the then known Parts of the World were peopl'd, and all Regions and Countries had their Kings. Egypt had many magnificent Cities, and so had Palestina, and all the bordering Countries; yea, all that Part of the World besides, as far as India; and those not built with Sticks, but with hewn Stones, and defended with Walls and Rampiers, which Magnificence needed a Parent of more Antiquity, than those, which other Men have suppos'd. And therefore where the Scriptures are plainest and best agreeing with Reason and Nature, to what End should we labour to beget Doubts and Scruples, or draw all things into Wonders and Marvels, giving also Strength thereby to common Cavillers, and to those Men's apostish Brains, who only bend their Wits to find out Impossibilities and Monsters in the Story of the World and of Mankind.

The HISTORY of the WORLD.

WHEN the Ark was built in the Plains of Cyparissos, and made fit for Swimming, and for the containing in it all the several Sorts of Animals with proper Food for them all, according to the Directions which GOD had given to Noah; then (a) GOD commanded him to enter into the Ark with his Wife, his

This Sentence is quoted and approv'd of by the learned Bishop Stillingfleet in his Origines Sacrae, Book 3. Chap. 4. Sect. 9. On which Occasion he saith, That he cannot but subscribe to the Judgment of this judicious and excellent Historian, whose Words deserve Consideration:

That after some time it degenerated again into the same Language; but that it was preserv'd by one Jorham, who with seventy nine more were in the Ark with Noah, and so propagated it among his Posterity, and that this was the Reason, that the World was Peopl'd so soon after the Flood. But whatever they fancy, which is inconsistent with the Scriptures, must be reject'd, as Fables of their own Devising. Pocock. Orat. Praefat. in Carmen Tograi, et Specimen Hist. in accordingly (d) two and two into the Ark. And as there is no Doubt, but the Difference of clean and unclean Beasts with respect to Sacrifices was known and observ'd before the Law of Moses and before the Flood; so we have no Cause to question, but the same were reputed clean before the Law, which were declar'd to be so in the Law of Moses. So that the Number of Creatures, which went into the Ark by Sevens, were but small, and their Provision being proportionable could take up but little room. For by the Law of Moses only Beeves, and Sheep, and Goats among the Beasts, and Turtle-Doves and Pigeons among the Fowls were allow'd for Sacrifice. The Reason of this Number being enlarg'd seems to be, that they might have a sufficient Number for Sacrifice, when they came out of the Ark, and if need was, for other provision in case of Necessity, at least for Food after the Flood, when GOD enlarg'd their former Grant, and it could not be expected, that immediately after such a Flood, and during the following Winter, when they came out of the Ark, they could meet with any Herbs or Fruit for their present Subsistence. It is probable, That the taking in of Provisions had employ'd them for some time before, and that Noah spent a whole Week in bringing the Animals into the Ark, and placing them in the several Receptracles, which he had provided for them, and then he kept the next Day, being the usual Sabbath, as Holy to the LORD. On this Day, or more probably on the Day following, the Flood began; so that (\*) the Rain continu'd without the least Intermision for the Space of Forty Days and Forty Nights: During this time it is said, that (f) the LORD shut in Noah and his Family. He clos'd the Door, which was under the Water, so fast, that not the least Drop could enter thereby, tho' it was not pitch'd like the rest of the Ark. But beside the Rain, the (g) fountains of the great deep were brok'n up, there came violent Inundations of Water, not from every Sea or River, but from the large Oceans, particularly the Mediterranean on the West side and the Arabian Gulf from the South, which being joyn'd with a South West Wind, such as usually brings violent Rains, did in a little Time overflow the Land, and bear up the Ark, so that it went, until it came over the Caspian Sea; and tho' (h) the Rain was upon the Earth only for the Space of Forty Days and Forty Nights; yet it was (i) an hundred and ten Days more, an hundred and fifty Days in all, before there was a visible Abatement of the Waters, which was first perceiv'd at that Time by the Resting of the Ark upon (k) that part of the Mountains of Ararat which lay (l) Eastward from Babylon. In its first course, which was Northwest, from Cyparission, it (m) went at the Rate of  $15\frac{1}{2}$  Miles in a Day, because the Inundations from both Oceans took it up, when they were in their greatest Force. In its last course, which was South, and occasion'd by (n) the North Wind, it went (o) only at the Rate of  $3\frac{1}{2}$  Miles in a Day, because the Retreat of the Waters within the Earth in the same Channels through which it came out before, was at so great a Distance, that it could not greatly or suddenly affect the Ark.

2. Here we may conjecture, that there had been no Inundations of Water from the Caspian Sea, nor consequently from the Euxine, or the Heads of any other Rivers or smaller Streams. If the Waters had came out from any of these, there is no Reason to doubt, but they would have return'd again the same way, and then the Indraught of the Caspian Sea, would have prevented the Ark from going thence; and it would have been impossible for it to have landed Eastward of the City of Babylon. And accordingly it is remarkable, that Moses doth not tell us, that the Fountains of the smaller Seas or Rivers were brok'n up; but only (p) that the Fountains of the great Deep were broken up, which is so minute a Circumstance, that no one could have hit upon at that Time, but an Author inspir'd by him, who knew the Passages of all the Subterraneous Waters, and could alter or order their Courses, according as he in his Wisdom should think most convenient.

3. On Monday the eleventh day of July, when the days were at the longest, and just before the Entrance of the Sun into the Tropical Sign of Cancer, (q) the tops of the mountains were seen. It is probable, that Noah had spent the day before, being their Sabbath, with his Family in all the Acts of Religious Devotion, and particularly in Praying to GOD to shew them some visible Token of his Favour; and if so, then GOD was pleas'd to give on the Day following a visible Demonstration that he had heard their Prayers.

4. At (r) the end of forty Days, which happen'd to be on Saturday the twentieth Day of August, in the same Year, Noah sent out a Raven to make a discovery, whether the Earth was dry or not. For if it was, then the Smell of the Dead Carcases would entice it to fly away to a greater Distance: But this Raven spent his Time (s) in going forth and returning. And (d) Gen. 7. 9. That Seven Pair of clean Beasts, and not Seven in all, went in with Noah into the Ark seems to be more evident from the Hebrew Expression, Gen. 7. 2. Seven, Seven, the Male and his Female, which is very different from that which follows of the Beasts not clean, which were to be tak'n by two, and also from Verse 9 and 16 where the clean Beasts are said to have gone in two and two, that is, by Pairs and Couples. (*) Gen. 7. 4, 12, 17. (f) Gen. 7. 16. (g) Gen. 7. 11, and Gen. 8. 2. (h) Gen. 7. 12. (i) Gen. 7. 24, and Gen. 8. 3, 4. (k) Gen. 8. 4. (l) Gen. 11. 2. (m) See Book 1. Chap. 9. thus after many Flights finding nothing but Water, it still betook itself to the Ark; either entering into it or sitting upon it, 'till at last the Waters being dried up, (t) the Jews tell us, that the Raven found a Carcass of a Man upon a Mountain, and so would return no more. The Design of this Action on a Saturday was probably, that Noah might the better know how to suit the Devotions of the following Day, being a Sabbath, to his present Condition, either by Praying to GOD to shew some farther Token of his loving Kindness, or by Praising of him for the Tokens, which he had already shewn them.

5. At the end of seven Days, or on the next Saturday, Noah (u) sent forth a Dove, as a proper Creature to make farther Discoveries, being of a strong Flight, loving to Feed upon the Ground, and pick up Seeds, and constantly returning to it's Rest from the remotest Places. But the Dove was then forc'd to return without any good Token; for tho' the Tops of the Mountains were seen, yet they were either so muddy, that the Dove could not tread upon them, or else they were so far off, that he could not easily reach them. And this must oblige Noah to spend the following Day in Praying for farther Mercies.

6. And (x) he stayed yet other seven days, and again he sent the dove out of the ark. This was on Saturday the third Day of September. And the Dove seems to be sent out again at this Time, that so Noah might the better know how to perform the sacred Offices of the following Day. Accordingly the Dove return'd in the Evening, with an Olive-Leaf, or rather (y) a Branch pluckt off from the Tree, in her Mouth, which was the more easily cropt off, because it was now Summer Time, which brought forth new Shoots out of the Trees that were young and tender, especially after so great an Inundation. And thus Noah knew; that the Waters had left the lower Grounds, but that the Earth remain'd very chill and cold; that the Dove could not stay there without a very apparent Inconveniency. And thus as Noah had great Occasion to praise the name of GOD for the fresh Assurances of his Mercies; so he could not but spend a Part of the following Day in Praying for the Continuance of them. And as the Country of (z) Assyria, which lay between the Tigris and Euphrates was Famous for Olive-Trees, whose Fruit yielded great store of Oyl; so we may conclude, that the fruitful Plains of Babylon, where those Rivers meet, might abound with the same; which makes it the more probable, that the Ark did land not far from those parts of the World, at least not in the barren Mountains, where some have plac'd it.

7. After this Noah stay'd yet other seven Days, which was 'till Saturday the tenth Day of September, when (a) he sent out the dove, which return'd not again unto him any more. There was neither Food wanting for it to eat, nor a Nest, wherein it might repose itself. So that by this Noah understood, that the Earth was not only dry and fit to be inhabited; but also that it was not utterly ruin'd by the Flood, and would afford Food for all Creatures.

8. Noah having thus every Week receiv'd fresh Assurances of GOD's Favours, and the Dove returning no more, by which he might make fresh Experiments, he resolves to be an Eye Witness himself of the State of the new World. Accordingly he (b) pitches upon the first Day of the new Year for this purpose, and having observ'd the new Moon the Evening before, he on the next Day, being Sunday or their Sabbath, removes the Covering of the Ark, or a few Skins which were plac'd there, and might easily be tak'n away, and so he goes up to the Top of the Roof, where he might view round him at a greater Distance, when he beheld the Earth quite freed from Water, but yet so soft and muddy, that it was not fit to be inhabited. This happen'd to be on the second Day of October, and eleven Days before the Sun came to the Equinoctial Point of Libra. Thus Noah had a comfortable prospect of his future Rest in the new World, on the same Day of the Week, in which GOD rested from all his Works of Creation, and in which CHRIST JESUS by his Resurrection from the Dead hath open'd a Way for us into the new Jerusalem, or the Kingdom of Heaven. And therefore Noah might commemorate each of these Mercies at the same Time, which might give him Occasion to be more particular in his publick Thanksgivings to Almighty GOD.

9. But tho' Noah might afterward find that the Earth was fit to be inhabited; yet he waited for GOD's Order to go out of the Ark, as he had it for his Ent'ring into it, and therefore (c) on a remarkable Day, being the Antediluvian Sabbath, or Sunday Nov. 27. GOD, who appear'd to his Servants on this particular Day of the Week, did on this Day command Noah to go out of the Ark, with all the living Creatures that were therein. And as he spent six Days in bringing them into the Ark; so he spent six Days more in bringing them out; and when these Days of Labour were ended, then the set Day for Rest and the publick Worship of GOD return'd in it's usual Course.

10. Accordingly on Sunday Dec. 4. (x) Noah builds an Altar to the LORD, which might easily be done, because it consisted only of a few unpolish'd Stones, and took of every clean Beast and every clean Fowl, and offer'd thereon burnt Offerings, thereby giving Thanks to GOD for his Deliverance from the Flood, and endeavouring to turn away his Wrath so justly conceiv'd against the Sin of fall'n Man. And thus he restor'd the ancient Rites of Divine Service, and gave an Example for his Sons and their Posterity to follow the same, until the Will of GOD was more clearly reveal'd in the Mosaic Law. This (d) his Offering proceeding from a thankful Heart was as acceptable to GOD, as sweet Odours are to us. Accordingly GOD ceas'd from his Anger, and was appeas'd. And he determin'd or resolv'd within himself, that he would not again curse the Ground after this manner with a Deluge. And as long as the Earth remain'd, there should not be such a Year as this last had been; in which there was neither Sowing, nor Reaping, nor any Distinction of Seasons, and the Heavens were so cover'd with thick Clouds, which fell in dismal Floods till the Rain was over, that it need'd a nice Observation to distinguish between the Day and the Night.

11. And now upon this day the Divine Majesty (e) appears to Noah and his Sons, to assure them of his Favour and Protection, and to renew the Blessing bestow'd upon Adam, when Mankind was again reduc'd to so small a number, commanding them to increase and multiply, confirming to them the Dominion, which was giv'n at first to Adam over all the Creatures, enlarging their Grant concerning Food, that they might eat of the living Creatures, whereas before the Flood they were confin'd to Fruit, Herbs and Roots, only with this Limitation, that they should not eat the Flesh with the Blood thereof, thereby cautioning them against the idolatrous Customs of some People in the old World, who eat the Flesh, whilst it was yet warm from the Beast, out of whose Body it was cut, thereby the better preparing them to submit to that Law, in which the Blood was afterward reserv'd for the Expiation of Sin, and thereby making them more fearful of Shedding the Blood one of another, when it was not lawful to taste so much as the Blood of a Beast. Upon this GOD also forbids Murder, as directly contrary to the Command, which he had giv'n them to increase and multiply, and tells them, that the very Beast should die, who kill'd a Man, to make the Owners more careful to prevent any such Mischief, and therefore much more shou'd every Man, who was a Murderer, be liable to Death. And tho' GOD had formerly interpos'd in the Case of Cain the first Murderer, whom he banish'd, but suffer'd no one to kill him; yet now he having constituted Judges, and giv'n them Authority to call every Man to an Account for Murder, or other great Offences, such as Idolatry, Adultery, Theft or the like, and punish them either with Death, or other Penalties, which were proportion'd to the nature of their Crimes, and might be sufficient to deter others from being guilty of the like, he tells (f) them, that he shall leave those matters to their Determination, and shall not interpose any more in the same manner to screen Offenders from suffering the Punishment, which they shall deserve.

12. The Jews very frequently tell us of seven particular Commands, which they think might be given at this Time, and which they call The Seven Precepts of the Sons of Noah, some of which have been expressly mention'd, and the rest are taken from the Practice and Apology of Job. The first was (g) concerning Strange Worship, that they shou'd not give divine Honour to Idols, or the Gods of the Heathen. The second was (h) concerning Blessing, or Worshipping, that they should not Blaspheme the Name of GOD. The third was (i) concerning Shedding of Blood, forbidding all Sorts of Murder. The fourth was (k) concerning the Disclosing of Uncleanneſs, against Filthiness and Adultery, unlawful Marriages, and incestuous Mixtures. The fifth was (l) concerning Theft, and Rapine, the Invading another Man's Right and Property, the Violation of Bargains and Compacts, the Falsifying a Man's Word or Promise, and the Deceiving of another by Fraud, Lying or any evil Arts. The sixth was (m) concerning Judgments, or the Administration of Justice, that Judges and Magistrates should be appointed in every Place for the Order and Government of civil Societies, the Determination of Causes, and Executing Justice between Man and Man. And the last was (n) concerning the Members of any living Creature, that is, as GOD expresseth it in the Precept to Noah, they might not eat the blood or flesh with the life thereof. And tho' we cannot so far concur with the Jews, as to affirm, that these Precepts were by any solemn and external Promulgation deliver'd to the Antediluvian Patriarchs; yet it is plain, that the six first are a considerable Part of the Law of Nature, and contain the greater Strokes and Lineaments of those Dictates, which are thus imprinted upon the Souls of Men. And the last seems to be directly level'd against that idolatrous Worship, which occasion'd the Flood. And accordingly GOD immediately promises, (o) that there should no more be such a Flood to destroy the World.

13. And as he gave them his Word; so he also gave them a Token or Sign, that he would keep it, which was the Rainbow in the Clouds, occasion'd by the Reflexion of the opposite Sun Beams from the falling Drops of Rain. And as it now proceeds from a natural Cause; so there are many, who affirm, that since there were both Sun and Clouds before the Flood, that there must be a Rainbow also. But this is what we cannot positively affirm. It is not every Disposition of the Air, or every Cloud, that is fitly dispos'd to produce a Rain Bow. It is not every Cloud, which brings Rain, nor every Shower which produces a Rain Bow. The Interposition of any Cloud between the Sun and the falling Rain opposite to it, will naturally hinder this Effect; and as GOD causeth it generally to happen now; so he might have caus'd it constantly to happen then. And therefore as other natural Causes with their Motions and Dispositions depend upon the first Cause of all; so we, who acknowledge the Scriptures, have no Reason to think, that either the Clouds or the Air had that peculiar Disposition before the Flood, which is requir'd for the Production of the Rainbow, when it had no such Use or End as it hath had ever since. It was appointed by GOD to be a Witness of his Covenant with the new World, and a Messenger to secure Mankind from an Apprehension of Destruction by a future Deluge. But if it had appear'd before the Flood, the sight of it afterward would have been but a poor Comfort to Noah and his Posterity, whose Fear, lest the like Inundation might happen again, was greater than that it could be tak'n away by a common or an usual Sign. However, as natural Philosophy teacheth us, that the Rain Bow is a Sign that there will not be much Rain, after it appears; because it is never made in a thick Cloud, but in a thin; so the GOD of Nature chose this to be a Sign, that he would never thicken the Clouds again to such a Degree, as to bring a Deluge upon the Earth.

14. About a full Year after this, or (p) two full Years from the Time, when the Rain first began to fall, Shem, the second Son of Noah, had a Son, whom he call'd Arphaxad, and it is probable, that he might have a Child every Year, until he had arriv'd to half the Age of his Life, as it is recorded in the Sacred Scriptures. And the same may be said of Ham and Japhet. For tho' there are but few of their Sons mention'd in Scripture; yet we must not suppose that they had no more, but only that these were the principal Leaders of their several Families, into the distinct Colonies, which were afterward allotted for them.

15. The (q) Jews observe, That whilst Noah and his Family were in the Ark, the Men did not cohabit with their Wives, it being a Time of great Affliction, and therefore they kept asunder in separate Apartments. Their Inference is thus; When (r) they went into the Ark, it is said, Noah and his sons entered, and then Noah's wife, and his sons wives; so that here the Men are put together, and the Women together. But when they came out it is said, (s) Go forth, thou and thy wife, and thy sons, and thy sons wives with thee; so that here they are coupl'd together, as before they were separated. And so (t) Noah went forth, and his wife with him. And as there were only eight Persons recorded, who came into the Ark; so there are only eight recorded, who came out again. And the Command of GOD (u) to Noah, Bring forth with thee every living thing, that is with thee, of all flesh, both of fowl and of cattle, and of every creeping thing, that creepeth upon the earth, that they may breed abundantly in the earth, and be fruitful and multiply upon the earth, doth as plainly imply, that none of these living Creatures had any Young ones during the Time of their Abode in the Ark.

16. When (x) Arphaxad was five and thirty Years old, he had a Son, whom he call'd Salah; so that it is probable, that the eldest Son of Ham and also of Japhet might each of them have a Son at the same Time, and there might be (y) about sixty Male Children in the World at his Birth.

17. When (z) Salah was thirty Years old, he had a Son, whom he call'd Eber; and as it is probable, that the other Sons of Shem, Ham and Japhet might have Children at the same Age with Arphaxad, so there might be (a) about an hundred and seventy Male Children in the World at that Time.

18. And now Ham the Son of Noah had (b) four Sons, which are mention'd in Scripture; the last or youngest of which was Canaan, and he being grown to his full Stature, there happen'd a very remarkable Accident in the Family of Noah, which gave the first Occasion for their Dispersion through the World, and was this. Noah being six hundred Years of Age when he came out of the Ark, seated himself near the Mountain of Ararat, where the Ark landed, and there he liv'd in Peace and Plenty for an hundred Years. And as a long Series of Prosperity is oftentimes a Snare to the best of Men; so it was to him. The (c) Art of Husbandry being understood long before, he improv'd it very much, and brought it to a greater Perfection. And tho' there were Vines here and there before the Flood; yet he seems to have been the first, that made a Vineyard, and put them in Order, and perhaps the first that invented Presses to press out the Juice of the Grapes and make Wine. However, if he was not the Inventer of these, yet he was the Improver of them, as he was of Husbandry. But being unacquainted with the Strength of the Liquor, or else being old and unable to bear it's Strength, he was drunk, and lay uncover'd in his Tent in a most shameful Manner, being so fast asleep, that he knew nothing of it till afterward. Canaan the younger Son of Ham is suppos'd to be the first, who saw Noah in this indecent Posture, and first made sport at it with himself, and then with his Father Ham. Ham was so far from Reproving his Son, as he ought to have done, that he also made himself merry with it, and without any Shame in himself proclaim'd the Shame of his Father in the Street, and publicly before the People; but more particularly to his two Brethren Shem and Japhet. Shem proposeth to Japhet to assist him in Covering his Father, which Japhet readily consented to, and as an Argument of their Piety and dutiful Affection, they took a Garment, and laid it upon both their Shoulders, and went backward, and cover'd their Father, laying him in a decent Posture, and taking care to prevent the like Indecency, probably watching with him during the remaining Time of his Sleep, and telling him what had happen'd when he awoke. Upon this Noah curses Canaan the Son of Ham, and also Ham as represented by him, and blesses Shem and Japhet, telling what should happen to their several Families in succeeding Generations, according as it is explain'd in (d) the succeeding Chapter. Ham being of a proud-malicious and revengeful Temper, resolves upon Mischief, either to Noah, or more probably to Shem; and Japhet was very uneasy at the Loss of his Birth-right, and perhaps like (e) Esau upon a like Disappointment, might declare, that he would kill his Brother, and so frustrate what Noah had determin'd. Thus Fews and Animosities grew so great, that they could not live together, and the World being every Day more populous, so that there were (f) near nine hundred and fifty Males of above twenty Years old sprung from Ham and Japhet, beside the Posterity of Shem, Noah resolves to separate them (g) in a regular and orderly manner.

19. Accordingly he allots to Shem the Part of the World, where he then liv'd, and the Country of Cyparissos where he built the Ark, even all the Countries, which lay on the North of the River Tigris, and all which lay on the East of the same River from the Persian Gulf, as far as China, that his Posterity might extend itself into the greatest part of Asia; and thus they were settled in their ancient Habitations, and went no farther. He also allots to Ham all that part of Asia, which lay South of the River Euphrates, and extended itself from the Persian Gulf to the Mediterranean Sea, leaving a Passage open into Africa, where they were under the torrid Zone in a barren and dry Land, and fit for such to inhabit, who were accursed of GOD. And he also allots to Japhet that part of Asia, which lay between the Tigris and Euphrates, as far as the Egean Sea, from whence they might easily transport themselves into Europe; so that tho' they travel'd far from their Native Country, yet they were settl'd in the temperate Zone in a pleasant and fruitful Land, which was (h) afterward reckon'd to be the principal of the then known Part of the World, and was allotted to the Posterity of Japhet as a fit Reward for the Piety of their Father.

20. When Ham and Japhet with their Posterity were thus parted from their Father and the Posterity of Shem (who are suppos'd to have liv'd not far from the Mountain of Ararat, where the Ark landed, but to be seated in the Plains, which lay on the South Side thereof) they travel'd Westward for about four or five hundred Miles, and then crossing the Tigris a little above the Place, where it joyns with Euphrates, they came to a pleasant and fruitful plain Country, where they resolv'd to dwell, and not to separate according to the Direction of their Father Noah. Upon this they encourage one another to build a City, which was afterward call'd Babylon, and was the Seat of the first, which is commonly call'd the Assyrian Monarchy, and whose Tower was justly reckon'd one of the seven Wonders of the World. The Walls, which (i) encompass'd the City in after Ages, were in the Form of an exact Square, fifteen Miles on each side, or sixty Miles in the whole, eighty seven Feet broad and three hundred and fifty Feet high. But when they found that they had no Stone in that low and fat Soil, they then proceeded to the making of Brick, and those with which the Tower was built, are reported to be of an incredible Bigness, and that they were three Years in Making and Burning them, before they began to build. And all these were cemented together with Bitumen, or a glutinous Slime, arising out of the Earth in that Country, which binds in Building much stronger and firmer than Lime, and soon grows much harder than the Brick or Stones themselves, which they cement together. When Adam liv'd, he being the Father of all Mankind, was also their Governour, and acted both as a King and Priest, but when he died the Fathers of each respective Family took these Offices to themselves, and this was the ancient Patriarchal Government. Thus when Noah and his Sons kept together, there is no Doubt, but he acted in the New World, as Adam acted in the old. And when his Sons and their Posterity went from him, we may suppose, that every one in his respective Family would set up for himself. But this being like a Body without a Head, or rather like a Body with many Heads, it was impossible, that they cou'd joyn in any great Enterprize. Accordingly they (k) soon consulted together to establish an Order and Government among themselves, and each of them being willing to have some share therein, it was settl'd in an Aristocracy, in which every Father of a Family had the Liberty to give both his Vote and Opinion. The Arabian Historian (l) tells us, that their Number was seventy two, which were afterward divided into so many Languages, and then into so many Nations, after their Families. This was the Number of the great Council in lower Egypt, who carry'd on the Pastoral Wars against upper Egypt, in a Time, when some of them could remember what had been done at the Building this City and before they chose a King for themselves. This was the Number of those, who translated the Hebrew Bible into the Greek Language. And this was the Number, of which the Jewish Sanhedrim consisted. But the number is uncertain. Josephus (m) attributes all this to Nimrod, as their Head and Ringleader, and the Account, which he gives at large, is this: "That GOD in his Wisdom order'd them to spread and divide themselves into Colonies, as the more proper Method both for peopling the World, and Preserving Men in peace one with another; and to the End, that they might also take their Possessions at large, and enjoy more abundantly the Fruits of the Earth. Now these People, being an ignorant and a stubborn Generation, never heeded the divine Appointment, but continu'd still in the same Place, till they were overtak'n by a Judgment from Heaven, which gave them a sight of their Fault in their Punishment. They came in Process of Time to be numerous and strong, and G O D once again admonish'd and directed them as before, to disperse themselves into several Plantations; but they went on nevertheless in their Disobedience, not only forgetting the Author of all the Blessings and good things, which they were Partakers of, but also assuming to themselves the Glory of their Successes, in all the Greatness, which they had acquir'd, and which is worst of all, interpreting the 21. " The chief Incendiary (as he adds) that

" animated the People to this insolent Con" tempt of GOD, was Nimrod the Grandson " of Ham, who was the Son of Noah, a Man
" fierce and valiant, but of so extravagant a

" self upon it, and saying, that he had no Obl-" gation at all to the Goodness of GOD for " his present State and Reputation, but to the " Power of his own Courage and Virtue. This " (saith he) was his Way of insinuating him" self into a Tyranny, not doubting but that " the People might be easily brought to apostat-
" ize from GOD, if they could first be pre-

" And lest the Dread of another Inundation
" should deter them from it, he had an Expe-

" His Project was the erecting of a Tower to " such a Height, that it should be impossible for " the Waters ever to reach the Top of it. Be" sides, he also meditated a Revenge for the " Loss of those, who perish'd in the Flood.
" Upon this the Multitude was so satisfy'd with " this Vapouring of Nimrod, that they began " to look upon it as a Matter of high Indig" nity to think of living in Subjection to " GOD any longer. And upon this they set " themselves immediately with Might and " Main, and all Hands were at work for the " carrying on of this Design." But this is ve" ry improbable. We cannot suppose, that Ham and Japhet, being but just parted with their Posterity from Noah, could be ignorant of GOD and his Worship; or that they, who were sav'd from the Flood, or had been told it by their Parents, and how it cover'd the highest Mountains, could have expected to be secur'd from it by any Building upon the Plain. Neither can we suppose, that Nimrod could have any great Authority at that Time, because his Grandfather Ham and his Father Cush were both living.
We may therefore the better acquiesce with what we may gather from the Scripture History, which is this, Noah having before curs'd
Ham, and giv'n the Birth-right from Japhet to Shem, who was the younger Brother, and commanded them to seek out for strange and distant Habitations, they were very angry, and resolv'd not to obey, but fix so near, that they might take an Opportunity to be reveng'd upon their Father Noah, and distress the Posterity of their Brother Shem; which was afterward done, not only by Ham, but also by Cush and Nimrod.

Upon this, coming to the Plains of Babylon, and finding that a Part of them being surrounded by the Tigris and Euphrates lay very convenient to be fortified, so that they might not only defend themselves, but also annoy their Neighbours, whenever they thought fit, they resolve to settle there, and not only to (n) build a City, but also a Tower, a strong Place in the highest Part of the City, such as we commonly call a Castle or a Citadel; and to build it very high, that so they might view the Approaches of the Enemy at the utmost visible Distance, and being built in the midst of the City might the better command every Part of it, and being visible at a Distance, it might be a Place to which they might resort upon any Occasion, the better to carry on and continue their Combinations against their Brother. Thus their Design in Building was to get themselves a name, to make themselves dreaded and fear'd by the rest of the World, who should see such a perpetual Monument of their Fame; that other People should spread it far and wide, whilst they were alive, and their Names might live in this Monument, when they were Dead, when their Posterity should say, that such and such Persons were the Founders of the first and principal City in the World. Besides, it seems as if they apprehended, that the Posterity of Shem might have a Design to disperse them at first, that so they might fall upon them separately, and destroy them afterward, and therefore they resolv'd to prevent it by Uniting themselves in this Manner together.

22. There are others, who (o) conceive, that these Persons had also another Design in Building this Tower, namely, to consecrate it to the Sun, as the Cause of Drying up the Waters of the Deluge, or rather as the most illustrious and nearest Resemblance of the Divine Majesty, and that it was intended as an Altar on which they might sacrifice to it. It is certain, that the Hebrew Word Shem, or a name, is sometimes put in Scripture for GOD himself, and more frequently by the Jewish Writers. And they who are of this Opinion, expound the Text thus, Let us make us a Name, that is, Let us make us a GOD, and raise him a Temple. Herodotus, who saw it, tells us, (p) that a Temple was built round about the Tower, which stood in the midst of it. The Chaldee Paraphrase goes farther, and makes the Builders speak in this manner, Come, and let us build us a City and a Tower, whose Top may reach to the Height of Heaven; and let us make to ourselves an Image of Adoration in the Top thereof, and let us put a Sword in his Hand, that he may fight our Battles against our Enemies, before we are scatter'd from the Face of the Earth. It is certain, that the upper Tower was made use of in the most early Times for false Worship, and such an Image was afterward plac'd there, which they call'd, The Image of Bel or Baal the great God, which the Chaldeans and other Nations worshipp'd. But as this was the Name, which they gave to Ham, who is frequently call'd by Pagan Writers Bel, or Belus the first, therefore it is not probable, that this Image was put up until after his Decease, and that the first false Worship, which was there us'd, was the Worship of the Sun, Moon and Stars.

23. The (q) Arabick Historian tells us, that this Tower and City were forty Years in building, which is very probable; and indeed we can hardly think, that there were Men enough in the Families of Ham and Japhet to finish both much sooner. However, the Worship of the Sun, Moon and Stars put them upon Taking an early Account of their Motions, especially it being a Study so much in Esteem before the Flood, and they having a lofty Tower built in a spacious Plain, and consequently one of the greatest Conveniencies in the World for such a Purpose. And as they began their Years from the Autumnal Equinox, and the Change of the Moon at that Time made it necessary for them to take an exact Account of these two Planets; so it is probable, that their Priests were employ'd to make their Observations, and settle the Beginning of the Year accordingly. And as the uppermost Story of all the Tower was that which was most Sacred, and where their chief Devotions were perform'd; so immediately over that, or upon the Top of the Tower, there was (r) an Observatory, by the Benefit of which the Babylonians advanc'd their Skill in Astronomy beyond all other Nations, and came to so early a Perfection in it, as it is related. For when Alexander took Babylon, Calisthenes the Philosopher, who accompanied him thither, found that they had Astronomical Observations for 1903 Years backward to that Time, which carries up the Account as high as the 119th Year after the Flood, which was but eighteen Years after the Tower of Babylon was began to be built. This Account Calisthenes sent from Babylon into Greece to his Master Aristotle, as Simplicius (s) informs us from the Authority of Porphyrus.

24. When they came first to Babylon, Necessity oblig'd them to build the City first. When they had spent some Time in that Work, they began also to build the Tower. When they had been there 24 Years, they had finish'd the Building of the City, and then all Hands were at Work to finish the Tower, which when they had completed, and finding their Families increas'd, they resolv'd also to enlarge their City; and in this Work they were employ'd, (1) until they were dispers'd. And in the mean Time Reu the Son of Peleg is born, being the fourth Generation to Shem the Son of Noah.

25. But that GOD, who had giv'n a (ii) Blessing to the Posterity of Noah, that they should increase and multiply, and had commanded them to replenish the Earth, and subdue it, that is, to improve it by Husbandry, and destroy the Wild Beasts out of it; would not suffer, that what he had appointed should be disappointed by any Craft or Subtily of Man. They dreaded a Dispersion, and brought it upon themselves by their vain Attempts to avoid it. GOD made it appear by the Effects of his Providence, that he observ'd their Motions and knew their Intentions, and resolv'd to spoil their Project. Accordingly he alter'd

Anno Mundi 1798. their Languages, not into as many as there were Men, for this would have spoil'd all Manner of Society; but so, that every Family had its peculiar Dialect, or rather the same common Dialect was giv'n to those Families, whom GOD would have to make one Colony in the following Dispersion. To which Dispersion they were constrain'd by their not being able to have such a Familiarity, as they had before with every Body; but only with those, who understood their particular Speech. Thus as the Unity of one common Language had knit all Mankind into one Community; so GOD in his Wisdom saw, that Plurality of Languages was the best means to force them into a Plurality of Societies. Accordingly they dispers'd themselves first into the neighbouring Countries adjoining to Babylon; and by Degrees into those, which were more remote; according as their Families increas'd. And thus they desisted from their Enterprize, which naturally ceas'd, when they could no longer carry on the Building, especially if that be true which the Chaldee Paraphrase affirms, viz. That they quarrel'd with, and kill'd one another. For this Reason the Name of the City is call'd Babel, which in Hebrew signifies Confusion; and by adding the Syllable on at the End, to adapt it to one of the Greek Declensions, it was afterwards call'd Babylon. And then they dispers'd in a regular and orderly Manner, so that each Family and each Nation dwell by itself. This seems to be done either by the command of Ham and Japhet to their respective Families, or by choosing according to their Birthright, after the respective Portions of the Earth were set out according to the Number of their Nations and Languages.

26. At the same Time, when the Tower and City of Babylon was built, the Posterity of Shem seated themselves in those Countries, which their Father Noah had allotted for them, according to their Nations and Families, and call'd the Names of the Places, which they inhabited by their own Names, so that they might the better be discern'd to whom they belong'd. And the Country thus allotted to Shem was all that part of Asia, which lay both northward and eastward from the River Tigris, as far as from the Head thereof to the Place, where, after it hath joyn'd the River Euphrates, it empties itself into the Persian Gulph. And tho' it is very probable, that none of them were concern'd in the Building of that Tower; yet it is (†) evident, that their Languages were alter'd in the same manner with the rest, to favour a like Dispersion.

27. Accordingly (x) Elam the Son of Shem inhabited Persia, which is (y) always call'd Elam in the Hebrew Bible. Media was near to it, and therefore usually joyn'd with it in the Scripture; as (z) Medes and Elamites, and (a) Medes and Persians. They were call'd Persians, when they had made themselves famous for Fighting on Horseback, and for this Reason an Elamite was call'd پارسى a Persian, or an Horseman.

28. Asbur the second Son of Shem inhabited that part of Affyria, which was divided from the rest by the River Tigris, where (b) Nimrod afterward built Nineveh, Rebobotb, Calah and Resen. Accordingly this Country is call'd in Hebrew Asbur, and by other Authors Aturia, by changing the Hebrew Sh into T, as is usual in the Chaldee, Syriack and Arabick Languages, and it is sometimes also call'd Adiabene.

29. Arphaxad the third Son of Shem was seated in the more southern Parts of Mesopotamia, where the Plain or Vale of Shinar lay upon the River Tigris, together with the Country of Eden. But he left no mention of his Name there, being forc'd to depart from thence by the Invasion of Nimrod, who took Possession of those Countries, and probably call'd the Lands and Cities by other Names.

30. The great Grandson of Arphaxad was Joktan, who had a numerous Offspring of thirteen Sons, and were probably seated near the Persian Gulph, in the Country, which is since call'd Chuzestan. But he also left no mention of his Name there, being forc'd to depart from thence by the Invasion of Cush the Son of Ham and Father of Nimrod, who took Possession of those Countries, and probably call'd the Lands and Cities by other Names.

31. Lud the fourth Son of Shem did probably seat himself and his Posterity on the north

(†) Gen. 10. 31. (x) Gen. 10. 22. (y) Isai. 21.

Part of Babylon in the Country of Arrapachitis. But he also left no Mention of his Name there, because when Nimrod began the Assyrian Monarchy and invaded Babylonia from the southern Parts, the Inhabitants, being of the Nation of Arphaxad, fled thither, and perhaps drove them from thence, when seizing upon the Country they chang'd the Names of the Places to the Names of the Conquerors.

32. And Aram the fifth Son of Shem, as he is mention'd by Moses, was at first seated westward from his Brother Ashur on the north Side of the River Tigris, until Nimrod began the Assyrian Monarchy, and forc'd him also to remove to the other Side of the River, which he might more easily do, as being so much nearer to the Head of it. And as his Families did afterward inhabit distinct Tracts of Land in the other Country; so there is no doubt, but they kept themselves distinct in their first Plantations.

33. Tho' the Chinese History is full of many Fables, and their Chronological Accounts are most extravagantly false; yet Navaret, who liv'd many Years in that Country, frequently tell us, that they have an authentick History of their Nation from the 131st Year after the Flood. If so, then they seem to be a People before the Dispersion from Babylon, at least from near that Time. But this is impossible. China lies as far in Longitude to the East from Babylon, and perhaps from the Place where the Ark landed, as the remotest Parts of Europe and Africa lie toward the West, and therefore we may almost as easily suppose the one to be inhabited at the same Time with the other. They also tell us some amazing Stories of their first King Fohi, which agrees with the sacred History of Noah, and affirm, that he reign'd as their King for 115 Years. But this is also as impossible. Tho' we may grant, that Noah might be driv'n out of his Country at that Time by his Son Ham; yet it is incredible, that in such an advanc'd Age, he either could or would travel to such a vast Distance, and through many Countries, which must be uninhabited. Neither indeed can we suppose, that China was inhabited, until all that vast Tract of Land was inhabited first, which lay between that Country and the Place where the Ark landed. So that the true Account seems to be this. The Chinese using the ancient Way of Writing by Symbols, which was the Method in use before the Dispersion of Nations, and probably before the Flood, they might have an Account of this Dispersion. And as they lay the farthest eastward of any Nation from the Place, where the Ark landed; so they might always attribute to themselves the Transactions of the most eastern Nation until such Time as their own Land was really inhabited; and after that with a little Variation of some Circumstances, they might apply the Whole to their own Country.

34. But the Posterity of Japhet the Son of Ham, being confin'd between the Tigris and Euphrates, could not extend themselves like the Rest of their Brethren, and their Lot happening to be in a very fruitful Country, they had not the same Necessity. However, they kept their Families distinct, and inhabited from Babylon westward a considerable Tract of Ground, until the Invasion of Nimrod first, and that of Ashur and Aram being consequent thereupon, drove them into a more large and open Country, where they could with better Conveniency extend their Colonies.

35. Besides the seven Sons of Japhet mention'd in (*) Scripture, there are other Authors, which mention other Sons as born to him, the Time of whose Births we may conjecture to be after this Manner. The first which is mention'd is Nereus, whom some make to be one of his Sons, and others suppose to be Japhet himself. He might probably be born about forty Years after the Flood. The next is Prometheus, who by the Heathen Authors is reckon'd to be one of the Sons of Japetus, and might be born about four Years after the other. The next is Pontus, who probably might be about four Years younger than the other. And Posidon is also reckon'd as a Son of Pontus, as his Name is in Greek. He is call'd Neptunus in Latin, and is oftentimes mistak'n for Japhet. Anno Mundi 1697. Anno Mundi 1701. Anno Mundi 1705. Anno Mundi 1745.

And tho' there is no certain Time of his Birth; yet I have plac'd him in the one hundred and eighty eighth Year of his Father's Age.

36. Ham the younger Son of Noah being curs'd by his Father for exposing him in his Drunkenness, his Lot fell in a more barren and unhealthy Country. On the east Part and south of Babylon lay the Chaldean Lakes and Marshes, which were subject to many and great Inundations occasion'd by the Union of the two Rivers Tigris and Euphrates. For this Reason most of the (b) Grammarians agree, that the Name of the River Pison is deriv'd either from the Hebrew Verb פוש, Push, which signifies to run out, to be full, to increase or to multiply; or from פשה, which signifies to spread it self, because the Overflowings from the Land were so many, and the Tides were so violent and high at that End of the Persian Gulf, that the Trenches were not a sufficient Defence against their Irruptions into the neighbouring Grounds, which were very soft and low. So that (c) all that Coast is full of Lakes, marshy Places and Sands. And adjoining to this Country the Posterity of Shem inhabited the East, the Posterity of Japhet inhabited the North, Arabia the rocky lay on the West, and Arabia the Stony lay on the South. Accordingly Ham thinking that it might be better, and supposing that it could not be worse, takes the greatest Part of his Posterity with him and travels toward the North of Canaan, keeping the Euphrates near him upon his right Hand, this being the most plentiful Country, and the River being such a Guide, as might, if Occasion requir'd, direct him to return back by the same Way. And accordingly he left some of his Family in and near Babylon, to secure the Government thereof and of the Country round about, that it might be free from the Incurfions of the Posterity of Shem or Japhet.

37. When Ham comes to the northern Parts of Canaan and finds it to be a pleasant fruitful Country, he resolves to settle there, and here he builds a City and calls it (e) Hamath or Hamath, which is describ'd as (f) the Entring into the Land of Canaan, and (g) near to Damascus, so that there can be no Doubt of its Situation.

38. Soon after this Ham builds also two other Cities, which lay upon the Coast of the Mediterranean Sea to the North of Tyre and Sidon. The one was call'd Byblus, and the other Berytus. Accordingly he dwells sometimes at Byblus, and perhaps sometimes at Babylon, keeping the Sovereignty over all in his own Hands. He seems to place himself at Byblus, being the first City built in Phœnicia, that from thence he might have a Correspondence in Egypt and other Parts of Africa, where two of his Sons did afterward rule; and that on the other Side he might correspond with Babylon, where his Grandson Nimrod is suppos'd to live, himself being seated in the Middle of his Children, who were his Viceroys, or rul'd as Kings by his Consent.

39. And now Ham coming into a Land, which is frequently describ'd to be (h) a land that flowed with milk and honey, (i) a good land, a land of brooks of water, of fountains and depths, which sprang out of valleys and hills, a land of wheat, and barley, and vines, and fig-trees, and pomegranates, a land of oil-olive and honey. A land in which the Inhabitants did eat bread without scarceness, and they could not lack any thing in it, a land whose stones were iron, and out of whose hills Men might dig brass: And remembering that his younger Son Canaan was curs'd by his Father Noah together with himself, he resolves (if possible) to prevent it by Placing him in this good Land. For this End he settles them regularly, dividing the Country among the eleven Sons of Canaan according to their Names.

40. The first born of Canaan was (k) Sidon. The Sidonians sprang from him, who are (l) mention'd in Scripture, and either he was the Founder of the famous City of Sidon, or else some of his Posterity call'd it by this Name in Memory of him. Some reckon, that it was so call'd from the Plenty of Fish on that Coast; and thus the Town of Galilee call'd Bethsaida, lying upon the Lake of Genesareth, signifies the Place of Fishing with the Addition of a Syriack Termination. But as the Name of Canaan signified a Merchant, after the Return of the Canaanites from the Wars of Egypt, when they apply'd themselves to Trade and Commerce; and thus the common Words were deriv'd from the proper Names; so we may conclude, that the Hebrew Words, which originally signified Hunting, were by a Metaphor apply'd also to Fishing, by an easy Allusion to the Word Sidon, when they observ'd the Sidonians so eminent in that Employment. And tho' it stood in the Tribe of Asher; yet (m) it was never conquer'd by them. It was far more ancient and famous than Tyre. For we read of it in the Books of Moses, and Joshua, and Judges; but nothing of Tyre till the Days of David. Nor doth Homer mention Tyre, tho' he speaks of Sidon and the Sidonians in many Places.

41. When Sidon the first born of Canaan was thus settl'd, their Grandfather Ham proceeds to settle the Rest. To the North of Sidon he places the Arkite near Mount Libanus, where they built the City call'd Arca or Arce. To the North of these he places the Arvadite, who possess'd the Island in the Sea call'd Arvad, and by others Aradus, together with a Part of the neighbouring Continent call'd Antaradius. In Process of Time they became skilful in Navigation, and were a very warlike People, and accordingly very servicable to the (n) Tyrians their Neighbours in Advancing that City to its future Glory.

42. Next to the Arvadite he fixes the Zemarite upon the Continent, who built the Town, which was afterward call'd Simyra. And then he seated the Hamathite more easterly in the main Continent call'd the Country of Hamath, where there is also a City of the same Name; which City was afterward call'd Epiphania by the Greeks, and still retain'd the Name of Hama in the Arabian Geographer.

43. Next to the Zamathites he plac'd the Girgashites, who were afterward known by the Name of (o) the Gergasenes, of whom there continu'd a Remnant, beyond Jordan. And as the Soil of the Country, where they liv'd was fat, dirty and miry ; so from hence was deriv'd the Chaldee Word גַּרְגִּישׁ which signifies thick or white Clay. Next to them he places the Amorites, who were first call'd Emorites, and possess'd the mountainous Parts of Judaea. These seem to have been great Warriors. They (q) beat the Children of Israel, when they resolv'd to go into the Land of Canaan. Their northern Borders were extended near to the rest of their Brethren the Girgashites, and their southern Borders as far as the south Part of Judah. They forc'd the (r) Children of Dan into the Mountains, and would not suffer them to come down into the Valleys, and were almost a Match for them, when joyn'd with the Ephraimites ; and long before this (s) many of them pass'd over Jordan, and making War upon the Moabites and Ammonites they seiz'd upon Baschan and Heshbon, and all the Country between the Rivers of Jabbok and Arnon. And hence perhaps it is, that the Verb עָמַר in Arabick doth not signify to speak like אָמַר Amar in Hebrew, but to command, and the Word עֵמִיר Emir is us'd for a warlike Commander.

44. Next to these he placeth the Jebusite, from whom Jerusalem was anciently call'd Jebus, so that they liv'd near it. They were also a very warlike People ; for they kept the Fortrels of Zion, and the City of Jerusalem until the Time of David (t) in Defiance of all the Power of the Benjamites, and (u) when David besieged them, they mock'd at his Attempt.

45. Next to these he places the Hittites, or the Children of Heth, who are so often mention'd in Scripture, and dwelt about Hebron or Beersheba in the most southern Part of Canaan, which had been in the Possession of the Israelites. They were also a warlike People, and struck a Terror into their Neighbours. From whence the Hebrew Word חֲתָה seems to be deriv'd, which signifies a sudden Fright and Consternation, such as came upon the Syrians, when (x) they thought that the Kings of the Hittites were coming against them. In the southern Part of all his Dominions he placeth the Simite, who lay near to the Entrance into the Land of Egypt, and extended their Country from the City of Pelusium or Sin on the Mediterranean Shore, to the Wilderness of Sin, in the Way to Arabia. And to the north of these he places the Hivite. These were sometimes call'd (y) Avim or Avitis, and are said by Moses to dwell in Hazerim, or small Villages, even unto Azzah or Gaza. Gaza is set down, as the furthest considerable Place northward, which was within their Bounds. Their southern Bounds seem not to be mention'd by Moses because they were the known Limits of Canaan, which was (z) the River Sihor, and which was sometimes call'd the River of Egypt. They were a People very much addicted to Pasturage, and therefore they not only wander'd about with their Tents from Place to Place, as Occasion did require, but frequently settl'd among their Brethren. For this Reason we find some of them scatter'd into several other Parts of the Land, as in (a) Gibeon not far from Jerusalem, and in (b) Sichem near to Samaria ; and even (c) into the most northern Parts of Canaan, about Mount Libanus, from Baal Hermon unto the entering into Hamath. This rambling Life of theirs made them acquainted with the rest of the Shepherds throughout the Country, insomuch that they were the Ring-leaders of the Expedition into lower Egypt, and the Occasion of all the Wars which happen'd there ; and therefore the (d) Caphthorim, when they were forc'd to march out from Pelusium, in Revenge for the Mischiefs which had happen'd, destroy'd them all, and took Possession of their Land.

46. It is now high Time for the Sons of Japhet to look about. For as they were inclos'd on the north Side by the Tigris, whose Banks were inhabited by the Posterity of Shem, and on the south Side by the Euphrates, whose Banks were inhabited by the Posterity of Ham ; so if these Families should extend themselves as far as the Heads of these Rivers, which lay very near to each other, it would be impossible for Japhet to extend his Colonies, and so he would be depriv'd of that Blessing of (e) being enlarg'd, as his Father Noah had foretold of him.

Upon this, he with all his Posterity, at least as many as would go with him, remove from thence, and travel toward the West, taking Possession of Asia the less, and all the adjacent Countries, as far as the Egean Sea, which prevented them, that at present they could go no farther. Here therefore they resolve to settle, and accordingly they are divided into their respective Families, and gave such Names to the respective Places, whereby the first Possessors of them might be more easily known. And as they left but few Inhabitants behind them ; so this Country was afterward more easily subdu'd by Asshur and Aram the Sons of Shem, in their Flight from Nimrod at the Time, when he founded the Assyrian Monarchy.

47. Upon this, Gomer and his Sons take to the greatest Part of the northern Tract of the lesser Asia for their first Plantations, and call it Gomer. Now the Verb גָּמַר in Hebrew or Gamar signifies to consume, and the Chaldee and Syriack use it in that Sense, and hence comes the Word Gumra or a Coal. And thus the Greeks, coming afterwards to know the Sense of these Words, suppos'd that this Name Gomer was impos'd on those Parts, as signifying a Country of a Soil so black, as if it had been burnt to a Coal, and therefore call'd it by a Name of the same Signification in their own Language, or Φρυγία Phrygia (that is, the torrid or burnt Country) from φρύγην, which signifies to roast; and besides, there is a particular Part of the Country, which is call'd by them Φρυγία κακὰ κέρματα or Burnt Phrygia. Besides, Josephus tells us expressly, that (y) the Galatians (who liv'd in this Tract, and to whom St. Paul wrote an Epistle) were call'd Gomerites; and Herodotus tells us, that (z) a People call'd Cimmerii dwelt in those Parts, and Pliny speaks of (a) a Town in Troas call'd Cimmeris; which are all Words deriv'd from Gomer, and only corrupted by Length of Time, and by Changing them into other Languages from the Hebrew, in which the Vowels being not writ'n could be but little regarded by other Nations.

48. This Gomer had three Sons, who were all of Course seated in the Country, which was allotted to their Father. The first of these, as (b) they are mention'd by Moses, is Ashkenaz, who took his Portion in the northwest Parts of the lesser Asia, particularly in Bitunia (where we find the Footsteps of his Name in the Bay Ascanius, the Lake Ascanius, and the River Ascanius) and also in Troas and the lesser Phrygia; in which there was a City and a Province adjoyning anciently known by the Name of Ascania, and there were Isles lying on the Coast, which were call'd The Ascanian Isles. From thence they extended themselves to the Sea, which being by the People upon the Coast call'd Ashkenaz, was by the Greeks pronounc'd Ἀξενῶς. But this being an odious Name in their Language signifying inhospitable, and the Greeks being better acquainted with the Inhabitants of those Coasts, and finding them to be of a civiliz'd Temper; they chang'd the Name into Πόντος Ἐξενῶς, or the Euxine or Hospitable Sea, by which Name it is well known at this Time. Besides, it is very probable, that in Honour of this Ashkenaz, the Great Men of those Parts took the Name of Ascanius. Of which Name, beside Ascanius the Son of Aeneas, there is a King mention'd in the second Book of Homers Iliads, who came to assist King Priamus in the Siege of Troy.

49. The second Son of Gomer mention'd by Moses is Riphat, who is also (c) call'd Diphath, who was seated on the east Side of his Brother Ashkenaz, in the Country call'd Paphlagonia. If the Name is spelt with a D, the Change of it into T being very usual, this Name (d) is preserv'd in Tobata a City, and Tibion a Mountain, and Tibius the Name of an Inhabitant of that Country. If the Name is spelt with an R, it will be more observable. Pomponius Mela places the (e) Riphaces in this Country. Josephus tells us, that the Paphlagonians were originally call'd Riphateans, from Riphat. In Apollonius there is mention made of a River call'd Rhebaeus, which rising in this Tract empties it self into the Euxine Sea. This River by some is call'd Rhebus; Stephanus tells us of a Tract of Land of the same Name, and that the Inhabitants are call'd Rhebei. Pliny places here a People call'd Riphæi, and another call'd Armiphæi; and Mr. Mede is of Opinion, that another River in this Country call'd by the Greeks Parthenius, was originally call'd Riphatbenius. All which do plainly shew the Footsteps of their Father Riphat in that Country.

50. The third Son of Gomer mention'd by Moses, is Togarmah. The Prophet Ezekiel gives us three Signs by which we may know its Situation. First, It (f) lay north of the Land of Canaan. Gomer, and all his bands; the house of Togarmah of the north quarters and all his bands. And it is plain to any one who looks into the Map, that this is the Situation of Togarmah. Secondly, It (g) traded with Tyre. They of the house of Togarmah traded in thy fairs. And this it could as easily do by the Help of the River Euphrates which ran from it, as Persia (h) by the Help of the same River which ran to it. And Thirdly, Its (i) Commodities, which it yielded, viz. Horses and horsemen and mules. And it is evident, that Cappadocia, by which Name a considerable Part of the Country of Togarmah was known to the Greeks, was (k) very well stor'd with the best Horses and Mules, and the Inhabitants were esteem'd good Horsemen. To this may be added the Remains of the Name, whereby some of the Inhabitants of this Country were known to the ancient Writers. The Septuagint constantly write it Tborgamah or Torgama, from whence the Name of the Trocmi or Trogmi may be well deriv'd, who (as (l) Strabo saith) liv'd near Pontus and Cappadocia; and Ptolomy assigns to them several Towns lying on the East of the River Halys, and so in Cappadocia it self. Cicero calls them Trocmi, and Stephanus Trocmidi, and in the Council of Calcedon there is frequent mention made of Cyriacus Bishop of the Trogmades. All which are only the Remains of the ancient Name Togarmah.

51. The second Son of Japhet, mention'd by Moses as a Father of the Nations, is Magog. In the Revelations (m) Gog and Magog are joyn'd together, which hath giv'n Occasion for (n) a Conjecture, that they were two Words to express the same Thing, or rather the Land and the People, by calling the People Gog, and the Land The land of Magog. To him was allotted Scythia, which lay upon the east and north east Parts of the Euxine Sea. Accordingly the learned Bechartus (o) conjectures, that the Mountain call'd by the Greeks Caucasus took its Name from Gog, as inhabiting in or near it. And as he observes, the Word גוג Gog basan signifies in the neighbouring Oriental Tongues Gog's Fort, and from thence the Greeks took the Name of Caucasus. Besides, There is a People near the River Tanais, who are suppos'd anciently to have been call'd Magogini, and from thence in later Years Magini. And others conjecture, that the Mæotick Lake, into which the River Tanais runs, took its Name from the Descendants of Magog, who settl'd about it. Thus from Magog is regularly made Magogitis and by Contraction Magotis, which the Greeks might easily change into Maiotis, and so the Latins might call it Mæotis.

52. The third Son of Japhet mention'd by Moses as a Father of the Nations, is Madai. He is suppos'd by some to settle in Mysia, formerly call'd Mesia, a Country in Asia the less by the Hellepont, and bordering (p) upon Troas, through which St. Paul pass'd in his Journey thither. It is divided by Ptolomy into two Parts, viz. the greater call'd Olimpica, and the lesser call'd Hellepontica. And accordingly Mr. Mede is of Opinion, that (q) Madai was the Father of the Illyrians and the Masians (for so Pliny calls them) which he thinks comes near to Mathia. For th and s are changeable one for the other, as we see in Rutheni and Prutheni, whom we call Russians and Prussians. Bechartus thinks, that the Sarmatians were a Colony of the Asiatick Madai, and accordingly he conjectures, that the Name of the Sarmatians was originally compos'd of שאר מאדי Sear Madai, which in the Oriental Languages signifies the Remnant or Posterity, or Remainder of Madai. But as Macedonia in Greece was a Colony from Madai, and it is not probable, that his Posterity could come thither from Sarmatia; but might easily come from Mysia by crossing the Egean Sea, as the Rest of Japhet's Families did: So Mysia must be allotted to him, where lying in the Midst of his Brethren, and being streighten'd for Room, he soon sent a great Number of his Posterity into Sarmatia.

53. The Fourth Son of Japhet mention'd by Moses as a Father of the Nations, is Javan. As the Nation of Gomer seated it self in the northern Tract of Lesser Asia, and Madai in the Middle; so Javan was seated on the southern Parts. And as in the Greek Language there is neither J nor V Consonant, and the Hebrew V Consonant often supplies the Place of the Vowel O; so the Greeks could scarcely translate the Hebrew Word יָוָן Javan except by ἰών, Ion, and therefore they call'd the Country Javan in Asia, Ionis, which was so famous for the Ionick Dialect us'd by Homer, Hesiod and many other of the Greek Poets.

54. The first Son of Javan is Elisba, who was seated on the western Coast of the southern Tract of the Lesser Asia, in the Country allotted to his Father. In the northern Part hereof there were anciently seated the Eoles or Eolians, who as they carry some Marks of their Pedigree in their Name; so they are (r) expressly affirm'd by Josiphus to have been descended from Elisba. And as the Country, which was peculiarly call'd Ionis in after Ages, was joyn'd to that, which in the same Ages was call'd Eolia; so it is very probable, that Javan liv'd there near to his Son Elisba, and not with any of the Rest, and that the greatest Part of Ionis was peopl'd by him.

55. The next Son of Javan is Tarshish, who seated himself in the eastern Part of the southern Tract of the Lesser Asia. The chief Town in Cilicia, where St. Paul was born, was call'd Tarsus, and carries in its very Name sufficient Marks of its being founded either by Tarshish himself, or some of his immediate Offspring, who call'd it so in Honour of their Father. Josephus (s) expressly affirms, that not only this City was so call'd from Tarshish; but also that Cilicia and the Country about it was originally known by the Name of Tharshish. This was the Tarshish, to which (t) the Prophet Jonah thought to flee from the presence of the LORD; and it is mention'd (u) by the Prophets on the Account of its Trade with Tyre, for which Purpose it was most commodiously situated on the sea Shore.

56. The third Son of Javan is Kittim, who was plac'd on the west Side of his Brother Tarshish in Caria, Lycia and Part of Pamphylia. The (x) Name is of the plural Number, and consequently the Name of a People, the singular Number of which would be Ceth or Citti, who is thought to have been the Father of that Nation. Ptolomy tells us of a Country here, call'd Cetis, and Homer mentions a People call'd Cetii, who were thought to take their Name from a River Cetius in the same Quarter. And it is also (y) remarkable, that the Septuagint renders Cittim by κεῖτοι Ketii or Cetii; exactly agreeable to the Name mention'd by Homer. Besides, their being frequently nam'd in Scripture, argues that they were not far from Palestina. And there can be no other Place assign'd for them in all the Portion of Asia the less, which was thus inhabited by Javan, there being but one Tract of Land remaining for

57. The fourth Son of Javan, who by Moses is call'd Dodanim, or Rodanim, as we are told in (2) the Margin of our English Bible, it is in some Copies. And these must be fix'd on the southern Ocean of lesser Asia between their Brethren Elisha and Kittim. There we find (a) in ancient Writers a Country call'd Doris, which may not improperly be originally deriv'd from Dodanim; especially if it is a plural Word, as the Termination seems to import. And so the singular was Dodan, which being chang'd into Doran, the Greeks might easily frame from thence the Word Doras, whom they assert to have been the Farther of the Dorians. It is certain, that the D and the R are frequently chang'd one into the other. And as there is such an Instance actually extant of the Change of this Letter in the first Syllable of the Word, which we are speaking of; so the like Change might as easily happen in the second Syllable, and then some might write and pronounce Doranim instead of Dodanim. And as the Island of Cyprus, which (as Josephus tells us) was first call'd Chetima, is a plain Argument that their Forefather Kittim or Chittim was seated opposite to it on the main Continent, and at first peopl'd this Island; so the Island of Rhodes must be peopl'd from the opposite Country, and took its Name from Rodanim (as he is call'd by some) who liv'd in those Parts.

58. The fifth Son of Japhet mention'd by Moses, is Tubal. He was plac'd upon the south east Shore of the Euxine Sea, which contains the People call'd Albani, Chalybes and Iberi. Thus Josephus expressly affirms him to have been the Father of the Asiatick Iberians, and that they were originally call'd Theobeli from Tubal. And Ptolomy places here a City call'd Thubilaca. Mr. Mede tells us, that some think; that Chalybes is a Name corrupted from Thabyles, by losing the first Letter, and after supplying the Letter ch instead thereof; for in Strabo's Time they were call'd Alybe, and from hence came the Name of Albania, a Country in these Parts. And the learned Bochartus supposes the Tibareni (a People mention'd by old Authors in this Tract) to have been so call'd from Tubal, by the Change of L into R, which is very frequent, and of which he gives us several Instances.

59. The sixth Son of Japhet mention'd by Moses, is Meshech. As (b) he is frequently joyn'd with his Brother Tubal; so we may conclude, that they were situated near to one another, which must be on the south Side of Tubal and the East of Gomer. That which according to the present Hebrew Vowels is Meshech, was by the Septuagint and others render'd Mosoch; and hence it is probable, that they are the same who are call'd Moschi by the Greeks, who were seated in those Parts, and from whom the Moschick Hills in the Neighbourhood, mention'd by the old Geographers, took their Name.

60. The last Son of Japhet mention'd by Moses, is Tiras. He seated himself near his Brother Gomer not far from the Hellepont, where was the famous City of Troy, whose first King is said to have been call'd Tros, which Word both in Latin and Greek signifies a Trojan. And as this Word contains all the radical Letters of Tiras; so we may suppose, that he was originally either Tiras himself, or one of his Descendents so nam'd in Memory of him, and also that the Trojans in general were the original Descendents of Tiras, or such as were descended from him in the Country, where Tiras at first planted himself. Besides (as Dr. Wells observes) it is the common Tradition among the Greek Writers, that the Inhabitants upon the East of the Hellepont and Propontis were originally or anciently Thracians; which tho' understood by the latter Greeks, as if these Parts of the lesser Asia where inhabited by Colonies from Thrace in Europe; yet (as he observes) this seems as an Opinion arising from their Ignorance of the Plantation of the World. And the Foundation of this Tradition seems to depend really on the European and Asiatick Thracians being both descended from this same Tiras; who seated himself in these Parts of the lesser Asia, and from whence his Posterity did afterward send Colonies into Thrace and Europe.

61. And here we may take Occasion to admire the Providence of GOD in the first Division of the World. Shem and Japhet were both bless'd by Noah. This made their Posterity easy and contented, so that they did not envy one the other, but liv'd peaceably together, and therefore there were no natural Barriers to prevent a Communication with one another. Ham was curs'd by Noah, and both he and his Posterity were of a revengeful Temper. But they were not able to do much Mischief, because they were parted from the Posterity of Shem by the uninhabited Countries of Arabia the Stony, and Arabia the Desert; and they were parted from the Posterity of Japhet on one Side by the Sea, and on the other Side by the Mountains of Libanus, Antilibanus and Amanus. But as the Posterity of Ham and Japhet lay near one another, so sometimes they liv'd peaceably together, and sometimes they had Wars; which were generally of a short Continuance, because the Posterity of Ham fell out among themselves, and so the grand and famous Scene of Action lay between the Upper and the Lower Egypt.

62. When Japhet and his Posterity were thus employ'd in Settling themselves in the lesser Asia, and the Parts adjacent, we cannot suppose, that Ham and his Offspring were idle. Accordingly his Son Canaan having taken Possession of the Country allotted to him, and his Families extending themselves from Jordan to the Mediterranean Sea; the Rest pass'd on toward the South and the Tongue of the Red Sea parting that Country into two Divisions, one toward Arabia the happy, and the other toward Egypt: Cush, who seems to be the eldest Son of Ham, turns to the right Hand, leaving the Red Sea on the left, and settles himself in Asia, leaving the other two to travel into Africa. That this was the ancient Situation of Cush the Son of Ham, is evident. First, Jonathán the Challee Paraphrast reckoning up the Sons of Ham, and speaking of Cush, tells us, that Arabia was his Province. Secondly, Miriam and Aaron (c) are said to speak against Moses, because of the Cushite Woman (for so it is in the Hebrew) whom he had marry'd. But it is certain (d) that Moses's Wife was a Midianitish Woman, and it is granted, that Midian was a City and Country in Arabia on the Shore of the Red Sea. Secondly, The Prophet (e) saith, I saw the tents of Cushan in affliction, and the curtains of the land of Midian trembled; where Cush is the same with Cushan, only this latter is a diminutive Word of the former, and Cushan and Midian are us'd as equivalent Terms, Midian properly so speaking being only one Part of the Country of Cush. Thirdly, The Prophet Ezekiel tells us, that (f) GOD will make the land of Egypt desolate from the tower of Syene even unto the border of Cush. Now it is very plain, that by the Tower of Syene and the Border of Cush are meant the two Extremities of Egypt. But every one knows, who hath any skill in Geography, that Syene was the Bounds of Egypt southward toward Ethiopia in Africa. Therefore Cush, as being the opposite Bounds of Egypt, cannot possibly be the African Ethiopia, or Ethiopia properly so call'd; but it may properly signify Arabia, as bounding Egypt in its northern Part, and most remote from Ethiopia. Fourthly, We read (g) that when Sennacherib King of Assyria was besieging Libnah, Tirhakah King of Cush march'd with an Army against him. And (h) Zerah the Cushite came with a great Army against Asa King of Judah. But this cannot in either Place be understood of the King of Ethiopia commonly so call'd, as lying at too great a Distance from Judea, and having the Country of Egypt to pass through, before they could bring their Armies into Judea. But it may be well understood of the Kings of Arabia, as being the neighbouring Country. Lastly, Here we find the Places, where the five Sons of Cush and his two Grandchildren were seated, as Moses reckons them up, and plac'd in their Nation, according to their respective Families.

63. The first Son of Cush is Seba, who seated himself in the south west Part of Arabia, where the City of Sabe is call'd by his Name.

64. The second Son of Cush is Havilah. As it is probable, that Havilah the Son of Joktan seated himself in Arabia Felix; so it is hard to find out the ancient Situation of this other Havilah, because we find no other Remains of his Name. It is probable, that he seated himself with his Father near the Red Sea at the Entrance into Egypt, which Country is call'd Cushan. And when his Father remov'd toward Babylon to dwell in the Country call'd Chusca, this Havilah remov'd with him together with his Family, and seated themselves along the River Phison, or the western Channel of the two, into which the common Channel of the Tigris and Euphrates is again divided, before they empty themselves into the Persian Gulf.

65. The third Son of Cush was Sabta, who seated himself upon the Persian Gulf toward the east Side, where there was a City not far distant from the Sea, which is call'd by Ptolemy, Saphtha.

66. The fourth Son of Cush was Raamah. He also seated himself in Arabia upon the Persian Gulph. Tho' we render it Raamah; yet the Word in other Translations, and particularly by the Septuagint, is render'd Ρήγμα Rhegma; and this is very agreeable to the radical Letters in the Hebrew Language. Here there is a City call'd Rhegama in Ptolemy's Tables, and Stephanus mentions both the City of Rhegma and the Bay of Rhegma about the Persian Gulph.

67. Now Moses also tells us, that Raamah or Rhegma had two Sons, who must of Course be settl'd in that Part of the Country, which was allotted to their Father. The first of these was Sheba, and the other was Dedan. As for Sheba, he must be fix'd near to his Brother Dedan, which distinguisheth his Habitation from the Rest of the same Name, where Pomponius mentions a People call'd Sabai; and Arrianus speaks of a great Mountain not far off, call'd Sabo, from this Sheba, who is call'd by some Seba, and by others Saba. And Pliny mentions a River of the same Name. And Dionysius Periegetes speaks of a People call'd Sabæ. To distinguish him from the rest, we find him always mention'd with his Father or his Brother. Thus the Prophet Ezekiel (i) saith that the merchants of Sheba and Raamah were the merchants of Tyre, who occupy'd in her fairs with chief of all spices, and with all precious stones and gold. These were the Commodities of Arabia, and they might well trade therein, because they lay very commodiously for this Purpose upon the Persian Gulph. These are the People which he also mentions in the next Verse. Haran, and Canneh, and Eden, the merchants of Sheba, Asbur and Chilmad were thy merchants. So that as he joyns them with others who liv'd upon the Tigris and Euphrates, which ran into the Persian Sea; it is but reasonable to think, that the Posterity of this Sheba liv'd near the same Sea. And (k) in another Place he joyns together Sheba and Dedan, and the merchants of Tarshish.

68. Now these two Names Sheba or Seba being so much alike, and the Greeks having no Letter whereby to express sh, they quickly confounded the two different Families signify'd by them, and call'd them both Sabeans. Hence Pliny saith, that the Sabeian Nations inhabited those Parts, spreading themselves to both Seas, that is, from the Red sea or Gulf of Arabia to the Gulf of Persia. So that even from this Mistake we may the better learn the Situation of both. However, the sacred Writers do exactly distinguish them, and the Royal Psalmist speaks particularly of both, (l) The kings of Sheba and Seba shall offer gifts.

69. The last Son of Cush mention'd by Moses (except Nimrod, whom he names for another Reason) is Sabtecha. It is hard to find the Place of his Habitation. Without doubt he plac'd himself among the Rest of his Brethren, especially since there is Room enough left for him in the northern Parts of Arabia. His Descendents might from him be regularly at first called Sabtaceni by the Greeks; which Name might be afterward soften'd into Saraceni, by which Name it is well known, that the People of this Trade were formerly denominated. And this is the more probable, because Stephanus mentions a Country in those Parts called Saruca. The Reason, why no Mention is made in the Scripture of the Sabtaceni, may be, because these Parts of Arabia, lying near to the Holy Land, are always called by the Name of Cush; the Father of Sabteca, and who, in all Probability, settl'd himself in those Parts with this his Son.

70. The youngest Son being thus settled by his Father Ham in the Land of Canaan, to prevent, if possible, the Effects of his Grandfather Noah's Curse; and Cush, or the eldest, choosing according to the Rights of Primogeniture to dwell in Arabia Felix; there remains two others to be disposed of. And as the first two were seated in Asia; so it is certain, that Africa fell to the Lot of the other two. Accordingly Mizraim coming into Egypt, and finding it to be a fruitful and a pleasant Country, especially the upper Part, and being the elder Brother, he chooseth this for his Portion, and leaves his other Brother to travel further, and seek for a new Habitation. We need not doubt where Mizraim settl'd himself, since the Hebrew Text generally calls Egypt, either by the Name of the Land of Mizraim, or by the single Word Mizraim. The Word it self is known by its Termination to be of the dual Number, and therefore may properly signify the two Parts into which the Country is divided, viz. the upper and the lower Egypt. It is probable, that Ham came hither with his Son Mizraim, not only that he might prevent all Disputes, which might arise in their first Settlements; but also that he might afterward choose to dwell in that Country, which he lik'd best. And it is also probable, that he liv'd and govern'd here for some Time; and for this Reason Egypt is so often call'd (m) the Land of Ham. However, it could not be long before the Sons of Mizraim were settl'd in this Nation, according to their respective Families.

71. The first Son of Mizraim mention'd by Moses, is Ludim. The learned Bochartus hath prov'd at large by ten several Arguments, that Ludim settled in Ethiopia, and therefore originally the Ethiopians were a Colony of the Egyptians. And it appears by Diodorus Siculus, that they were near of Kin, having many Things common to both Nations; as that they esteem'd their Kings as Gods, their Care of their Sepulchres, the Forms of their Statues, the Characters of their Letters, the Habits of their Priests, the Names of their Gods, the Colour of their Skin and Hair, and that both Nations were circumcis'd. In Scripture (n) Lud or Ludim, are said to be very skilful in drawing the bow, which exactly agrees with the Character given to the Ethiopians, by many ancient Writers. Secondly, The Prophet Isaiab (o) joins Phut and Lud together; whence it may be probably inferr'd that they signified two People, or Countries adjoining to one another. And Phut may very well be thought to be the City and Country of Phila, situate not far from Syene on the Borders of Ethiopia. Thirdly, The same Prophet tells us in the same Place, that these Nations should be very early converted to the Christian Faith: This was begun by (p) Philip when he baptiz'd the Ethiopian Eunuch, which made Way for the Propagating of the Gospel in those Parts. And lastly, The Prophets (q) join Lud or Ludim with Cush and Phut; and therefore, as by Cush are meant the Arabians, and by Phut the Inhabitants of the Parts of Africa beyond Cyrenaica; so by Lud are reasonably suppos'd to be meant the Ethiopians, as lying between both.

72. The second Son of Mizraim is Anamim. These are supposed to be the Nomades or Shepherds, who liv'd about Ammon and Nasamonitis, where there was a Temple dedicated to Jupiter Ammon. These were called

(k) Ezek. 38. 13. (l) Psal. 72. 10. (m) Psal. 78. 51. Psal. 105. 23. 27, and Psal. 106. 22. (n) Isai. 66. 19, and Jer. 46. 9. (o) Isai. 66. 19. (p) Act. 8. 26, &c. (q) Jer. 46. 9, and Ezek. 30. 5.

Anamli from אֵם Anam, which signifies Sheep among the ancient Egyptians, as it doth among the Arabians. For the Nomades fed Sheep, as Herodotus tells us, and liv'd upon them; and their Garments also were made of Sheep-skins. Besides, the same Author expressly affirms the Ammonians to be the Descendants, partly of the Egyptians, and partly of the Ethiopians. It is probable, that from these Ammonii or Ananim, the Nazammones took their Rise and Name; and also the Amantes, the Garamantes, and the Hammanites, mentioned by old Writers in the adjacent Parts.

73. The third Son of Mizraim is Lehabim. It is probable, that Lehabim and Lubim are the same Word, with a little Variation; and that from thence was originally derived the Name of Libya, which tho' afterward extended to the whole Libyan or African Continent; yet at first it signified only the Country of Cyrenaica. And this Country lying over against Greece, hence the Name of Lub originally belonging to this Tract, was chang'd into Lybia, and so given by the Greeks to the whole Continent over against them on the other Side of the Mediterranean Sea. These are called by Ptolomy, Pliny, and others, Libyægyptii: And because they liv'd next to Egypt on the West of Thebais, in a sandy and dusty Soil, and burnt by excessive Heat; hence they probably had the Name of Lehabim. For Lehaba in Hebrew signifies both a Flame and Heat. And thus the Prophet saith, (r) The flame (Lehaba) or scorching Heat, hath burnt up a'l the trees of the field.

74. The fourth Son of Mizraim is Naphthim. His Family was seated in the Country adjoining to Cyrenaica, or Libya properly so call'd, toward Egypt, or in Marmarica: Here we find in Ptolomy some Remainder of the Name, in a Place call'd Aptuchi farum. And in the Heathen Fables Aptuchus is said to be the Son of Cyrene, from whom the City and Country of Cyrene took its Name. The Occasion of which Fable might be this, That Naphthim, call'd by the Greeks Aphthuchius, was the Brother of Lehabim, who first peopled Cyrenaica. Plutarch saith, that the Egyptians call the Country and the Mountains, which lie upon the Shore of the Mediterranean Sea in Marmarica, Nephthim, which plainly alludes to the Naphthim, whom Moses speaks of. And it is probable, that from hence came the Name of Neptune, who originally was a Libyan God, and known to none but that People.

75. The fifth Son of Mizraim is Pathrusim, who was settl'd at Pathros, which was a Part of the upper Egypt or Thebais, where Ptolomy places Pathyris, an inland Town not far from Thebais. And agreeably to this the Septuagint renders the Hebrew Pathros by the Greek Pathyris. Thus the Prophet Ezekiel (s) foretelling, that GOD would bring again the Captivity of Egypt, saith, that he would cause them to return into the land of Pathros, into the land of their habitation or nativity: That is, into Thebais, which Nebuchadnezzar had principally afflicted, carrying most of the Inhabitants of Thebes out of their own Country.

76. The last Son of Mizraim is Casluhim. He is very probably thought to have first settled in the Country, which lay nearest to the Land of Canaan, call'd Casiotis, where there is also a Mount call'd Casius; both which Names retain somewhat of the Word Casluhim. This Situation of them is confirm'd by what Moses adds concerning them, that out of them sprung the Philistins and the Caphthorim (for I should rather read the Text without a Parenthesis) the first of which made themselves Masters of the adjacent Tract of the Land of Canaan, the other (t) conquer'd the Avim, or Hivites; and both originally after some Run of Time came from this Country.

77. Mizraim and his Posterity being thus settl'd in Egypt, there remain'd but one more, which was Phut. He was seated to the west of Mizraim, and so he extended himself along the Anno Mundi Coast of the Mediterranean Sea, 1807. toward the Streights of Gibraltar, and especially along the River Niger, as far as the western Ocean about Cape Verd. There are some Footsteps of this Name in the Country; for in Africa, properly so call'd, below Adramentum, there was a City call'd Putea, mention'd by Pliny; and in Mauritania there is a River, which Ptolomy calls Phut. St. Hierom is very clear in this Matter, telling us, that there is a River in Mauritania, which in his Time was call'd Phut, and from which the adjacent Country was call'd Regio Phytensis, or the Country of Phut. And thus, when the two Sons of Ham came into Africa, they extended their Colonies two different Ways: The Posterity of Mizraim went southward along the Nile, and the Posterity of Phut went westward along the Niger: Both of them lay open to the Mediterranean Sea, and both of them had a large Tract of Land, in which they might extend their Colonies. And as they were divided into two Parts nearly equal by the Lake Trilonides, so we may conclude the Posterity of Phut to have been as numerous as those of Mizraim, tho' none of them are recorded by Moses.

78. Another Name by which the Inhabitants of Africa are call'd (u) is Lubim, whence came the Name of Libya. The learned Bochartus gives several Reasons for this Name; tho' after all, it might so happen, that it was a Nation descended from one of the Children of Phut, whose Name Moses doth not mention. And so the Name of a private Person at first, might afterward be given to his Nation, and then extend it self throughout the Country.

79. But

79. But to dispatch the ancient History of Africa, except Egypt, altogether. The Posterity of Mizraim, or the Egyptians taking Possession of their Country, spread themselves to the South along the River Nile, as being the fittest Part to live in, because it was plentifully water'd by that fruitful River: The Posterity of Phut observing which Way they extended their Colonies, and being separated from them by the Lake Trilonides, extended their Colonies the same Way, that so they might prevent any Incroachments from the Egyptians upon the Territories allotted to them. Upon this, coming far south of the higher Egypt, they meet with the Head of a very large Stream; and accordingly they settle themselves, as this Stream should direct them, well knowing that the most fruitful Parts of this barren Country lay near the River. There are some, who tell us, that the Nile is divided into two great Streams, one of which comes to the Mediterranean Sea, and the other no less considerable, tho' but lately known by the Europeans, runs directly west through the Regio Nigritarum, till it falls into the Atlantick Ocean about Cape Verd, in fifteen Degrees of north Latitude. But it is not probable, that this River sprung out of the Nile. A Spring, dividing it self into two Parts, will naturally wash away the softest Ground, and consequently forsake the other Channel; and it is certain, that our best Maps place the Head of it at a considerable Distance from the other. The Name giv'n to this River at that Time signified Black, and therefore it is call'd by the Europeans the River Niger, because it signifies the same blackish or muddy colour'd Water, which the name Melo, anciently giv'n by the Greeks to the Nile, imports. Herodotus (x) saith, that a Cyrenian told him from Etearchus King of the Ammonians, that five bold Youths of the Nasamonians travelling to make new Discoveries through the Deserts of Africa, were at last brought to a City inhabited by Blacks, by which ran a great River, whose Course was from the West towards the East, (that is, the Length of the River lay between these two Points) and there were Crocodiles in it, and Etearchus judg'd it to be the Nile. However the Inhabitants follow'd the Course of this River westward, as fast as they increas'd, whilst every one striv'd to be the first Possessor or Occupier of a great Quantity of such good Land; and therefore the succeeding Generations went farther westward than their Ancestors, until the main Ocean stopp'd their Progress. And this is the most probable Account of such early peopling this hot but well water'd Country.

80. When the Colonies were led westward as far as the Ocean, Atlas extended them northward along the Shore; and accordingly, like the rest of Mankind in those Ages, call'd the Country by his Name, as being really King thereof. And it is observable, that the Ocean adjoining to the Shore is at this Time call'd The Atlantick Ocean. However, coming northward, to the Latitude of thirty five Degrees, he fears himself near to a very high Mountain, which at this Day is call'd Mount Atlas; and it is so high, that the Top of it is often said by the Poets to reach to Heaven, and bear it up; and therefore he is frequently pictur'd like an old stooping Man with a Globe upon his Shoulders. There are (y) some who say, that he was the first Inventor of Astronomy, and therefore this Picture only signifies his maintaining the Science of it. But as this Science was long before in great Esteem in Babylon, so he could only be the Promoter and Encourager thereof in those Parts; and for this Reason might choose to inhabit near so high a Mountain, as the fittest Place, from whence others directed by him might make their celestial Observations.

81. There are some, who make this Atlas to be the Brother of Prometheus, and consequently the Son of Japhet; and Sanchoniatho makes him to be the Son of Ouranus or Noah. But this is impossible: It is very improbable, that any Son of Japhet could be alive, when Jacob came into the Land of Canaan; and as that Land was not overstock'd when he came thither, but there was Room enough among the Sichemites for him and his, tho' it lay near to Babylon, the Place of their first Dispersion; so it cannot be imagin'd, that the Posterity of Phut could extend themselves to the most distant Part of Africa in so small a Run of Time. The Cabiri, who make this Atlas to be the Son of Noah, say, that in his elder Years he was buried alive by his Brother Ham, and by the Advice of Thoth. It is certain, that the first Promoters of Idolatry did agree in such cruel Counsels, the better to establish and enlarge their own Dominions. This is suppos'd to be done to Atlas to secure to Ham, and afterward to his Posterity, among which was Thoth, the Dominion of the most western Parts of Africa, where the Atlantii were seated, and to prevent the Family of Atlas from having any Power there independent from them.

82. Antaeus the Son of Atlas is (z) said to be in great Favour with Mizraim, or Osiris, the King of upper Egypt; and living at that Time in one of the Nomi, or Shires of Thebais, call'd Antaeopolites Nomus in Pliny and Ptolemy, from his Name, he was sent from thence to govern Ethiopia and Libya. He is reported to have been the first Founder of Tangier, formerly call'd Tingis, near the Straights of Gibraltar on the other Side, and to have reign'd as a King in those Parts after his Father. It is suppos'd, that his Family claim'd to rule in the Right of their Father Atlas; but the Family of Ham would have them subject to them. If Antæus consented to be the Deputy of Osiris or Mizraim, as (a) the ancient Writers seem to hint, then the Right was on the Side of Ham; but as the longest Sword will not want Pretences to fight, so Hercules or Arcles, who is also call'd Affis, tho' not of Mizraim's or Osiris his Line, might take up the Title, such as it was, and invade Antæus.

83. Antæus being thus invaded by Hercules, defends himself with the utmost Vigour, and therefore is said to wrestle with him; and when he was beat'n, he frequently sent for fresh Recruits out of the Country. For which Reason it is said of him, that as often as he was weary or faint, he would but touch the Earth, and be in perfect Strength again. However, Hercules destroys him, and fixes a Colony in those Parts, which afterward retain'd the Name of The Promontory of Hercules. Hence the Sea is also call'd by the same Name; and in Commemoration of this Conquest he might set up those Trophies, which have been call'd Hercules his Pillars. And after that Antæus (b) had been bury'd for some Time, in or near Tangier; his Body was digg'd up, and it was found by his Bones, that he had been a Man of wonderful Bigness. Perhaps he might have sprung from a Race of Giants in those Days, and therefore the Name of his Father Atlas is suppos'd to be deriv'd from the Hebrew Word תלל to heap up, which in the Conjugation Hiphil, or the Chaldee Aphel, is contracted into Athal, and seems at least in Signification to be like our English Word tall, and is an Epithet which may be given to (c) either a high Hill, or a tall Man; and the Arabick Verb طال hath the same Signification.

84. Who this Atlas was, is difficult to determine; but as there are several Men of the same Name, so he could not be the fourth Son of Noah, as some have imagin'd, because (d) the whole Earth was repeopl'd from his three Sons, which were with him in the Ark. Neither could he be Atlas the Son of Japhet, and Brother to Prometheus, because he is said to (e) have been the first King of Arcadia, and to have come from the Mountain of Caucasus, which we know to be a Part of that vast Ridge of Mountains, on which the Ark landed, and was the first Habitation of Japhet, and his Family. Agreeably to this, Apollodorus owns Asia to have been the Wife of Japhetus, and the Mother of his Children; among whom he names Atlas first. And without doubt, this may mystically intimate only, that the Country now call'd Asia, was the Place of their Birth, and first Education, as the Earth is call'd our common Mother. And thus the eldest Writers of their mythical History might leave this Hint in calling the Wife of Japhetus by this Name, who (f) at another Time is call'd Thornax. And it is also evident from the Scripture Division of the first Nations, that we must seek for Atlas the Son of Japhet among the rest of his Brethren, and not in the remotest Distance of the Children of Ham.

85. But leaving the rest of Africa, whose ancient History is more barren than the Country, it is high Time to return back to upper Egypt, where we left the Children of Mizraim seating themselves in the southern Part of the Nile, and who had now built Thebes, or their first City in the Province of Thebais, so call'd from its Name. This City was at first call'd in (g) Hebrew, No, and which it was afterward overrun with false Worship, particularly the worshipping of their Father Ham, whom they call'd Jupiter Hammon; it was in Memory of him call'd (h) No Ammon, which we translate Populus No, and from thence by the Greeks call'd Diospolis, or the City of Jupiter.

86. One great Argument of the Antiquity of this City is the Purity of its Religion, which the Inhabitants had learn'd from their Father Noah, before they separated from him, and began to build the Tower of Babel. For tho' Ham, by marrying before the Flood, was inclinable to the false Religion of those Times, which soon occasion'd a general Corruption in most of his Posterity; yet those of Thebais; in and after the Time of (i) Thoth, own'd no mortal Being to be a God, and only ador'd Cneph, which seems to be the Name of their sovereign God, whom they asserted to be without Beginning and without End, the Maker, or Framer, Preserver and Governour of the Universe. The Etymology of this Name seems to come from the Verb كنس which in the Arabick Language signifies to preserve or cover any Way, especially like Birds with their Wings, and is therefore a Name very proper to the great Preserver of Men. They say, that (k) the Phenicians call'd him the good Demon, in the same Sense, in which the Egyptians call'd him Cneph; which seems, as if they thought the Word Demon to be a Phenician Word from מ Sufficiency, with the Greek Termination added to it. And if so, then the true GOD seems to call himself by this Name, in that (l) remarkable Expression to Abraham. I am אני the Almighty, or al sufficient GOD, walk before me, and be thou perfect. But in later Ages, when their Hieroglyphicks were in greater Esteem, they drew him as a Dragon or a Serpent, but put upon him a Hawk's Head. And therefore Epeis, call'd by them the greatest Hierophant and Scribe, faith of him, The first and most divine Being is a Serpent, having a Hawk's Head beautiful to look upon; who, if he opens his Eyes, fills the Universe with Light in his first born Region, but if he shuts them, he fills it with Darknefs. And he seems to be the same, which in Strabo is call'd Cnuphis, and had a Temple in Syene the remotest Part of Thebais. And the Worship of this supreme GOD prevail'd so much throughout that whole Region, that they paid nothing toward the Charge of those Animals us'd in other Places in the Service of their inferior Gods.

87. It is very probable, that many of the ancient Egyptians might worship the Sun, Moon or Stars, or even the Light or Fire; these being the Creatures ador'd in the early Ages, and in other Nations of the World, and bearing the greatest Resemblance of the divine Shechinah or Glory, which appear'd to the antediluvian Patriarchs, and also to Noah, and probably to other pious Men in that Age. This might be the Reason, why upon the Death of their first Kings, when they consecrated them for Gods, they came so early into the Method of translating them into particular Stars, calling the Stars by their Names, and placing their Residence there. There is no doubt, but the great Men in the antediluvian Age were worshipp'd after their Death, and had their Images erected for this Purpose. But as the Flood destroy'd all these Images, and was a signal Mark of GOD's Displeasure against this Vice; so it destroy'd all that idolatrous Worship, and whatever succeeded after it could not be begun until the Deaths of those, who either surviv'd, or were born after the Flood; so that nothing of this Nature could happen in less than two hundred, and very little in less than four hundred Years. It is certain, that they never pretended to make an Image of their God Cneph, because they look'd upon him, as a spiritual, immortal and infinite Being, and as such could not be represented by gross, corruptible and finite Matter. And they made no Images of the Sun, Moon and Stars, because they were visible, and therefore needed no such Representation. Lucian (m) tells us, that tho' the Egyptians were the first Makers of Idols, yet anciently they had none in their Temples. And (n) another Author affirms, that even in his Time the Philosophers avoid'd all fabulous Umbrages, when they spoke of the supreme GOD, or of the Mind, the second Platonick Person; and generally faith of the heathen Antiquity, that it made no Image of this supreme Being, tho' it had many of other inferior Deities. Intimating thereby that Images had much Fable in them, un-worthily belying the supreme Deity, when pretending to respect him. The first Image made at Babylon for idolatrous Uses, was that of Ham, with a Sword in his Hand, and plac'd in the upper Room of their Tower; but this could not serve for such a Use until his Death, which was not long before the Birth of Abraham. When the Dioscuri, having built some Ships, went to Sea, and being cast away near Mount Cassius, they built and consecrated a Temple in commemoration of their Escape; it was particularly observ'd in later Ages as an Argument of its great Antiquity, that no Idols were there. Even in Greece we are told, (o) that the Phliansians had a very holy Temple, in which there was no Image either openly to be seen, or kept in secret; and they had a sacred Account or Reason of this Practice, but that was not to be reveal'd. Upon which (p) a late eminent Author makes this Remark, That this was certainly a Mark of very great Antiquity, since the corrupt Practice of Worshipping by Images, grew very early in the World; and to worship without any Image was certainly the oldest and best Manner of Worship. And it is said (q) of the old Phœnician Melcartus or Hercules; that in his ancient Temple at Gadira or Gades, they had thus much of the Patriarcal Religion, continu'd in the Times of Silius Italicus and Philostratus, that there were no Images in it. And the Magi, whose Religion was the most ancient among the Persians, did abominate (r) all Images, and worshipp'd GOD only by Fire. The first Rise of Idolatry is (s) thus describ'd by an excellent Author of our own. The true Religion, which Noah taught his Posterity, was that which Abraham practis'd, the Worshipping of one GOD, the supreme Creator and Governour of all things, with Hopes in his Mercy through a Mediator. From hence the Necessity of a Mediator between GOD and Man became a general Notion, which obtain'd among all Mankind from the Beginning; who being conscious of their own Meanness, Vileness and Impurity, could not conceive how it was possible for them of themselves alone, to have any access to the all-holy, all-glorious and supreme Governor of all things. They consider'd him as too high, and too pure, and themselves as too low and polluted for such a Converse. And therefore they concluded, that there must be a Mediator, by whose Means alone they could make any Address unto him, and by whose Intercession alone any of their Petitions could be accepted. But no clear Revelation being then made, or perhaps forgott'n, of the Mediator, whom GOD had appointed, because he had not been yet so clearly manifested to the World, as he was afterward, they took upon them to address unto him by Mediators of their own choosing. And their Notion of the Sun, Moon and Stars, being, that they were the Tabernacles or Habitations of intelligent Beings, which animated those Orbs in the same Manner, as the Soul of Man animates his Body, and were the Causes of all their Motions, and that these Beings were of a middle Nature between GOD and Man; they thought, that these were the most proper to become the Mediators between GOD and themselves. And therefore the Planets being nearest to us of all these heavenly Bodies, and generally look'd upon to have the greatest Influence on this World, they made choice of them in the first Place to be such as should mediate for them with the supreme GOD, and procure from him the Mercies and Favours, which they pray'd for; and accordingly directed divine Worship to them as such. And here began all the Idolatry, that hath been practis'd in the World. They first worshipp'd them by their Tabernacles, and afterward by their Images also. By these Tabernacles they meant the Orbs themselves, which they look'd upon as the sacred Places, in which these Intelligences had their Habitations. And therefore, when they paid their Devotions to any one of them, they directed their Worship toward the Planet, in which they suppos'd he dwelt. But these Planets by their Rising and Setting, being as much under the Horizon as above, they were at a Loss, how to address to them in their Absence. To remedy this they had Recourse to the Invention of Images; in which, after their Consecration, they were taught, that these Intelligences or inferior Deities were as much present by their Influence, as in the Planets themselves, and that all Addresses to them were made as effectually before the one, as before the other. And this was the Beginning of Image-Worship among them. To these Images were given the Names of the Planets, which they represented, and they were the same, by which they are still call'd. And hence it is, that we still find Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, Apollo or the Sun, Venus, Mercury and Diana or the Moon, to be first rank'd in the Polytheism of the Ancients. This Idolatry was learn'd by the Israelites when they were in Egypt, and soon practis'd by them after their Deliverance from thence. And therefore the (t) Prophet upbraids them for it in these Words. Have ye offer'd unto me sacrifices and offerings in the wilderness forty years, O house of Israel? But ye have burn the tabernacle or Representation of the Orb of Moloch, and Chiun your images, which ye made to your selves; or as (u) St. Stephen saith, the star of your god Remphan, such figures, which ye made to worship them. Therefore will I cause you to go into captivity beyond Damascus, saith the LORD, whose name is the GOD of hosts. The learned Bochartus (x) tells us, that Moloch was the ancient Name for the Planet Mars; and he quotes Kircher for a Proof, that he was still call'd so in the Coptick Language, which was a Mixture of the Greek and Egyptian. And he also adds, that Aben Ezra saith, that Chiun signifies Saturn, both among the Persians and the Ishmaelites, and that (y) even in one of the Comedies of Plautus, Saturn is call'd Chiun. And he also adds, that Chiun is the same with the Egyptian Word Rephan or Remphan, which signifies Saturn. And therefore the Septuagint, who wrote in Egypt, and for the Use of the Egyptians, did more willingly use that Word, as best known among them. The Word in the Septuagint was Raiphaz; and in Process of Time, the Language was so alter'd in the Apostle's Days, that it was call'd Remphan. The Word Rephas was one of the peculiar Names giv'n to Ham, when he was worshipp'd; and it frequently in Hebrew signifies a Giant, because of all those, which were before and after the Flood, he was more especially deify'd and ador'd, and the mightiest Men of his Race glory'd in their Likeness to him, and therefore affected to be call'd Rephaim. And the Deriving of his Coptick Name Rephas from the Hebrew Word רפא Rapha, which denotes that healthy Constitution, that produceth long Life, Growth to great Stature and Strength, affords a farther Light to the Reason of this Name given to Ham, and the Rephaims descending from him. And as Ham, after his Death, was consecrated into the Planet Saturn; so the same Planet was first call'd Raiphaz and afterward Remphan.

88. The (z) Arabick Historian tells us, that the Worship of the Images of dead Men was also begun in the Days of Peleg and his Brother Joktan, and saith, that the first Cause thereof was, that when any Man happen'd to die, who was most excellent for Prudence and Counsel or Valour; the Survivors set up his Statue in their Counsel-House (perhaps to encourage others to imitate their Example) and then when any thing happen'd that was acceptable, concerning which they were to take Counsel, they met together to consult before that Image, as if the Image was present to give them Counsel, or infus'd into them his former Courage or Conduct. And thus they set up the Images of all their famous Ancestors; and being for a great while accusom'd to this Method, they fell into the Worship of them. After this (a) a Notion obtaining, that good Men departed had a Power with GOD to mediate also and intercede for them; they deify'd many of those, whom they thought to be such: And hence the Number of their Gods increas'd in the idolatrous Times of the World. This Religion first began among the Chaldeans, which their Knowledge in Astronomy help'd to lead them to. And from this it was that Abraham separated himself, when he came out of Chaldea. From the Chaldeans it spread it self over all the East, where the Professors of it had the Name of Zabii. From them it pass'd into Egypt, and from thence to the Grecians, who propagated it to all the western Nations of the World. And therefore (b) the Author of the Wisdom of Solomon betrays not only his Want of divine Inspiration, but also his own Ignorance, when he affirm'd that it was begun partly by Parents making Images of their own Children when dead, and partly by others, who made Images of their absent Friends when living.

87. But whatever Errors had crept into the Religion of upper Egypt, it is certain, that they always abhorr'd the Sacrifices of Men to their Gods as barbarous and inhuman; and therefore when Tethmosis, about the Time of the Death of Abraham, had reduc'd all lower Egypt to his Obedience, he abolish'd that Custom, and the better to please the People, he order'd Pictures, made of Wax, to be offer'd in their Stead.

88. But here it may be ask'd, How did these People behave themselves toward those, who differ'd from them in Matters of Religion? To this I answer, That where the Difference lay in things only circumstantial, there is no Instance of the least Trouble or Uneasiness on that Account. That where the Difference lay in the greatest Fundamental, even the Object of Divine Worship; yet when Men liv'd peaceably, they usually met with no Disturbance, which many Times prov'd to be of ill Consequence to the true Religion; and the greatest Opposition was, when the Actions of the one were really design'd to be an Affront to the other. To instance in Particulars. Whilst Melchisedek was the Priest of the most high GOD in his own Family, whilst he acted justly, and liv'd peaceably, he seems to be respected by all: And tho' he acted the Part of a Priest in Publick, being overjoy'd when Abraham, one of his own Perswasion, return'd from the Slaughter of the Kings; yet it did not create the least Uneasiness. The Egyptians well knew, that the Hebrews worshipp'd a GOD very distinct from theirs, and yet this was never made an Argument to oppress them, but all their Hardships arose from political Reasons. The Children of Israel were cautious of giving Offence, and therefore they had a full Toleration; insomuch, that (1) when Pharaoh allow'd them to go, and sacrifice to their GOD in the land, Moses scrupl'd it, and said, It is not meet so to do, for we shall sacrifice the abominations of the Egyptians to the LORD our GOD: Lo, shall we sacrifice the abominations of the Egyptians before th:ir eyes? and will they not stone us? The chief Animals, which GOD requir'd in Sacrifices, were Sheep and Oxen. Now the Egyptians abhorr'd both Sheep and Shepherds, because of the long Pastoral Wars in those Countries, and therefore would think it too great an Honour done to those Creatures to offer them in Sacrifice to the true GOD; and they would also reckon the Offering of a Bullock to be an Affront to their God Apis, and resent it accordingly. And this made the Israelites so cautious. The Troubles, which Abraham met with in Mesopotamia, were not, because he was of a different Religion, but because of his zealous Opposing the false Religion of the Chaldeans, and Endeavouring to bring them over to the true; and particularly his burning the Idol Temple, which oblig'd him to obey the Commands of GOD, and depart from that Country into the Land of Canaan: But after that, when he was among the Canaanites and the Egyptians, and did not intermeddle with their Religion, he met with no Disturbance from them. And even when the Patriarchs purg'd their own Households from their Idols, they were not molested; because others were of this Opinion, that every Man had a Right in his own Family. The Animosities in Religion between upper and lower Egypt was, because during the Time of their Wars, they both deify'd those Kings, which had done the others most Mischief; so that the Religion of the one was a Defiance of the other, both as to their Worship and even their State; and therefore they fail'd not to revenge it upon their Temples in their respective Turns. On the other Hand, the too easy Toleration of the Religion of the Magi among the Sons of Shem in Worshipping the Sun, Moon, Stars and Fire, was the Cause, that that Part of Asia was so soon overrun with that Worship; and the Toleration of the Egyptian Worship among the Sons of Japhet, was the Reason that their Idolatry so soon spread it self into all Europe, first in Greece and then in Rome. It was not therefore without great Reason, that GOD commanded the Israelites, when they came into the Land of Canaan (2) to destroy their altars, and break down their images, and cut down their groves, and burn their graven images with fire, and (3) make no covenant with them nor with their gods, because it would surely be a snare unto them; as it really was (4) frequently in the Time of the Judges, and afterward in the Time of the Kings of Israel. For when Solomon (5) went after Ashtoreth (or Astarte the Wife of Ham, who dwelt most at Zidon, and was therefore after her Death worshipp'd in those Parts, as) the goddess of the Zidonians, and after Milcom (or Moloch) the abominati- on of the Ammonites, it caus'd such an Inclination in the Israelites to Idolatry, that all the Zeal of the good Kings, who succeeded, could not root it out, until they were carry'd away Captives into Babylon. And when Jerobam had set up the golden Calves, there was such a Degeneracy and Increase of Idolatry, which occasion'd their utter Rejection. And therefore tho' Differences in Circumstantials may and ought to be allow'd for the Preserving of Peace; yet Errors in such Fundamentals as these, concerning the Object of our Worship, may be attended with the most fatal Consequences, especially if daily Endeavours are used to gain new Proselytes.

89. But to return from this Digression: It is high Time to take our Leave of Egypt, and follow the History of Ham. His Wife, which he had at this Time, was her, who had been with him in the Ark; even Naamah, the Daughter of Lamech, of the Race of Cain. Her Name in Hebrew signifies The fair one. As he travel'd with her into other Countries, he chang'd her Name to one, that in another Language had the same Signification, and call'd her Astarte, as it is in the Greek, or Astartoth in the Hebrew, which (c) Word signifies in Hebrew, Flocks of Cattle, Sheep or Goats. And as the Patriarchs in those early Times did generally lead a pastoral Life, and such especially had more Leisure to make Poems on what Subjects they pleas'd; so they generally compar'd the most beautiful Women to such Animals as these, in whom they most delighted. Thus Solomon himself compares (d) CHRIST the beloved Spouse of his Church to a roe or a young hart, who cometh leaping upon the mountains, and skipping upon the hills: And the Church to a (e) flock of goats, which appear from mount Gilead, or a flock of sheep, which are newly shorn, which came up from the washing, whercof every one bears twins, and none is barren among them. Lucian (f) sufficiently intimates, that he thought Astarte and Europa to be the same Person, to whom the Temple in Sidon was dedicated, and Bochartus (g) hath plainly shewn us, that the Word in the Phœnician Tongue signifies λευκοπρόσωπον the white fac'd, or fair one. Hence the Word in Greek (h) Βοώπις or Bull's face, so often us'd by Homer and others, became a respectful Epithet of Juno, and signify'd such Features, as were very agreable: And that Epithet may well belong to the Wife of Ham, of whom the Phœnicians, the best Judges of this Fact (as Sanchoniatho affirms) do assure us, that she was call'd by the Greeks Aphrodite, or Venus, or the Goddess of Love and Beauty. That she was sav'd in the Ark is plainly intimated, because (i) the Phœnicians, as we are inform'd by (k) an Eye-Witness, painted her in the upper Part like a Woman, and the lower Part like a Fish; which could allude to nothing but her being preserv'd in the Flood; and there was also in her Temple-Service at Hierapolis, a constant Commemoration of the Flood and its Drying up, as if she was one of those, who shar'd in that great Escape.

90. And now Ham, having divided the Country into several Nomi or Hundreds for the Benefit of Pasturage, and settl'd them in the Form of an Aristocratical Government, returns with her out of Egypt; and having pass'd thro' Anno Mundi 1810. the Country of his Son Cush, he settles on the east Side of Jordan for a Time, in the Country call'd by the Greeks Piræa, but in more ancient Times Basan, near the Land of Gilead. There he builds (m) two Cities, and calls the Name of the one Ham, in Memory of his own Name; and the other Astartoth in Memory of hers, which was afterward call'd Astartoth Carnaim, and (n) Carnaim for a particular Reason.

91. Ham having thus settl'd the Children of Mizraim in Egypt, of Phut in Ethiopia, and of Canaan between Jordan and the Red Sea, and of Cush on the Borders of Arabia; and having built these two Cities, that so he might take Possession also of the other Side of Jordan; he Anno Mundi 1812. leaves some of the Posterity of Canaan, who were call'd the Hivites, about Mount Hor, to settle there; and returns with his Son Mizraim, to the North of Canaan, and there he settles near the Sea shore at Berytus. The Reason, why he settled there, must be, that he might have an Opportunity to enlarge his Colonies by Sea, whenever he thought it convenient; and also might have a good Correspondence, not only with the Settlements of Canaan and Cush, but also with those in Babylon and Egypt, as lying at an equal Distance from both: And he kept his Son Mizraim with him, that he might have one at Hand to execute such Orders as he thought most proper; and he chose Mizraim rather than either of the other, because he and his Wife Isis were of the same ambitious and incroaching Temper with Ham and Astarte, as will appear from the Sequel of the Story.

92. Japhet seeing Ham so near him in Person, and fearing lest he should prove an ill Anno Mundi 1814.

And as Jupiter or Ham was the Husband of Europa; so I leave it to the learned to judge, whether the Greeks might not translate the Word Europa into a like Word of their own Language, tho' of a different Derivation, and call him so often εὐρώπια Ζεύς, or broad fac'd Jupiter. Neighbour, and take Possession of such Lands, which did of Right belong to him, begins to stir; and having before settl'd his Posterity between the Tigris and Euphrates, where, as

Anno Mundi 1800. their Families increas'd, they were straighten'd for want of Room, they soon extend themselves westward, and accordingly Part of Japhet's Family, together with

Anno Mundi 1815. himself, did soon settle in Natalia or Asia the less; being parted from the Posterity of Ham, by the Mountains of Libanus, Antilibanus and Amanus. After this they settle themselves in Lydia; then they people part of Phrygia; and afterward

Anno Mundi 1816. they enlarge their Dominions as far as the Hellepont. At this Time the Country was inhabited but by few People, it being but about an Anno Mundi 1818. hundred and sixty Years after the Flood; and about the Time when (o) Serug, the fifth from Shem of his Race, was born.

Anno Mundi 1820. Sometimes the Posterity of Japhet live peaceably with the Posterity of Ham, and sometimes they have Wars with each other; tho' these Wars were generally but of a short Continuance, because the grand and famous Scene of Action lay between the upper and the lower Egypt.

93. Here we may observe another Providence of GOD in the first Peopling of the World after the Flood. The Posterity of Shem and Japhet, being born of good religious Parents, seem to have something of their Temper, and accordingly liv'd peaceably and quietly with each other; and were therefore plac'd in such Countries, where they might have the freer Access to one another, having at most only the River Tigris between them. But the Posterity of Ham being wicked, bloody minded, and ready on all Occasions to incroach upon their Neighbours, were parted from them on the one Side by the great River Euphrates, and especially when it is made much greater by the Accession of the Tigris to it, on another Side by large and almost impassible Mountains, and on the other by the main Ocean; and they who affected an arbitrary Power, and to subdue their Neighbours, were torn to pieces by Wars among themselves, that they could execute none of their Projects. And thus GOD restrain'd their Fury in the same Manner, as he also set bounds to the Sea, by saying, Hitherto shalt thou come and no further.

94. The Land of Canaan being a very plentiful Country, the Inhabitants thereof soon betook themselves to Pasturage, and accordingly they were glad to receive any People among them, who had great Quantities of Flocks and Herds; because the Land being but thinly peopl'd, they had not enough to consume its Product. This made Abraham and Lot, and their Families find so easy an Admittance to live among them. These Shepherds had no Houses, but liv'd in Tents, which they could easily take down, and remove from Place to Place, as Occasion did require, for the better Convenience of Pasturage. Hence it is, that we read so often of the Tents of (p) the Patriarchs, but never of their Houses, and that (q) Abraham sojourned in the land of promise as in a strange country, dwelling in tabernacles with Isaac and Jacob, the heirs with him of the same promise. These Shepherds leading such a rambling Life, did not confine themselves to any particular Place, nor indeed to their own Tribes, allotted to each of the Sons of Canaan by their Father or their Grandfather Ham, and so contracted a general Acquaintance with one another; and it is probable, that they mix'd one with another, and so separated themselves from their Kindred: And hearing that the Children of Mizraim had only taken Possession of upper Egypt, and that the lower Egypt was uninhabited, they enter into a Confederacy to go thither and dwell there in one Body: And because they could not call themselves by any particular Name of one of the Sons of Canaan, therefore they call themselves in general by the Name of Canaanites. And as it was usual in those Times to call Persons and Places by such Names as signify'd the general Occurrences of those Days; so the eldest City, which Moses (r) mentions south of Jerusalem in the Way to Egypt, is call'd Hebron, which being built about this Time, signifies an Association or Uniting into Societies, and is directly opposite to the Way of Living scatter'd in Tents, as the Nomades or Pastors were.

95. In the mean Time the Casluks, or one of the Families of Mizraim, settled themselves in that Part of Egypt, which lay between the Red and the Mediterranean Sea, upon the nearest Branch of the Nile call'd the Ostium Pelusiacum. The Greek Word πηλῦσις signifies dirty, and indeed it lay in a very wet Ground, being so near the Nile and the Mediterranean Sea; and therefore it was sometimes call'd Ἰθ Sin, a Word of the same Signification, and sometimes it was call'd Raamses. It was also frequently call'd Abaris (from the Hebrew Verb אבר which signifies to pass over) and may therefore be taken for a Pass, or Passage, or a common Road. But why it was call'd Pelusium is not so easy to understand; only the common Notion that Pelusius and Palestinus are of the same Signification, makes it probable, that Pelusium was not of a Greek but Eastern Original, as Palestinus certainly is, and that they are both from the same eastern Root פֶּלֶס Peles, the same Radicals being found in them both; so that the Greeks learn'd the Name of those eastern People from the East, and did not give them a Greek Name, but only added two different Terminations to the same eastern Word, with a little Change of the Vowels, as it is common among them. Now this Word in Hebrew in the Conjugation Hithpabel, signifies a Be-smearing in Dust and Ashes, or a Rolling in the Dirt; from which the Greek Words πυλός and πυλῶσαν may be borrow'd; and which agrees well with the dirty senny Situation of Pelusium at the Mouth of the Nile; but in the Chaldæe and Syriack Languages it signifies publick, open, or a Passage; and in the Samaritan and Ethiopick, it signifies a Sojourning, or Removal from Place to Place. All which Notions agree very well with Pelusium as the great Passage, not only into Asia by Land, but also into both Europe and Asia by the Mouth of the Nile falling into the Mediterranean Sea. And all this not only agrees well with the other Names of Caphtor and Abaris already mention'd; but may teach us to observe the Time when the Town was built by the Caslubim, which was soon after their Travels were ended, and they were settl'd in this Country. However, the Town it self was always esteem'd as the great frontier Garrison of the Kingdom or Egypt; and therefore was the grand Scene of Action in the Egyptian Wars; and when the Inhabitants remov'd from thence into other Countries by Treaty, they usually call'd themselves Philistines, from the Name of the Place. Another Name, by which this Town was also call'd, was Caphtor. Thus the Prophet Jeremiah saith, that (s) the Philistins, were the remnant of the country (or the Isle) of Caphtor. And (t) the Prophet Amos saith of GOD, that he brought the Philistins from Caphtor. The Word (u) Caphtor signifies such an artificial, large Pomegranate or Globe, as was anciently at the Top or Head of their noble Pillars in stately Buildings; and accordingly the Septuagint renders the Word, Σφαῖράριος. Such were the Heads of Jachin and Boaz, the great Pillars in Solomon's Temple. Now because the Heads or Chapters of Pillars were their chief and peculiar Ornament, and most noted by Spectators, the several Orders of them are commonly distinguish'd by their Heads, and they give Name and Esteem to the whole Pillars, whether of the Dorick, Ionick, Corinthian or composite Order, and a violent Blow on the Chapter of a Pillar (such as from a battering Ram in old Times, or a great Cannon Bullet in later Days) threatens the Fall of the whole Pillar, and all the Building supported by it.

And because this well fortify'd Pass into Egypt was of such an Importance to the whole Kingdom; hence this Pass was call'd Caphtor, to intimate it to be the strong or nobly adorn'd Pillar at the Gate into the Kingdom, or (x) the Chapter of such a Pillar figuratively put for the Whole, and consequently the Support of the Kingdom. And that this Notion is truly ancient, and agreeable to the Conceptions of the eastern People, is evident from (y) the Prophet Amos, where he saith, Strike the Caphtor or Chapter, that the posts may shake, the Consequence of which Blow must be, that the πρόπυλα, all the Supporters of the Porch and Gates of the Temple may so shake, as to fall into Ruin. All which demonstrate that such Caphtors were great Marks of State and Honour, and consequently that the Name imported something remarkable to belong to that important Pass, City or Country that bore it, and consequently to the Caphtorims or Guardians of this honourable Place, which, we have no Reason to doubt, were chosen out of the ablest and best disciplin'd Men of the Family of Caslubim, who, when they were forc'd from thence by Treaty or otherwise, and went toward the Land of Canaan, call'd themselves Philistins, and the Country Palestina, which they inhabited, from the Name Pelusium; so when they went toward Arabia, they call'd themselves Caphtorim from the Name Caphtor. And hence it is, that Moses tells us, that (z) out of the Family of Misraim, call'd Caslubim, came the Philistim and Caphtorim.

96. These Phœnician or Canaanitish Pastors, having thus enter'd into a Confederacy, joyn themselves to as many others as they could pick up for this Purpose, especially with such as dwelt in the south Part of the Land of Canaan, who were partly Avites or Hivites, and partly Jebusites; being also joyn'd with some of the Horites, and others of the neighbouring Parts of Arabia, who are said (a) to dwell in Hazerim or small Villages, resolve to go into Egypt, and settle there. And the Caslubim, knowing that there was waste Ground sufficient for them, let them enter peaceably without the least Disturbance; and as the Country, from whence many came out of Canaan, was (b) call'd Goshen, so they who came from thence call'd the Country, which they possess'd, (c) the Land of Goshen. And others also settl'd in other Parts adjoining to the Mediterranean Sea. At their first coming thither, they live peaceably for some Time with those of upper Egypt, and call themselves by the general Name of Canaanites.

97. They had not been long there, before

Anno Mundi 1832. they begin to settle themselves in this Country, and leave off their wandering Life; and therefore they build a City, which they call Zoan, which Word is observ'd by (d) Dr. Castle, to signify a Removal from one Place to another, and seems to intimate, that these Shepherds about seven Years after their first Confederacy, when Hebron was built, did (as (e) Moses assures us) build the City of Zoan, which stood about the Entrance of Egypt, near that Ostium of the Nile call'd Taaniticum, taking its Name from Tanis, which is the Greek Name or Pronunciation of Zoan, most known in the Septuagint. Diodorus Siculus calls it (f) Thonis, and saith, that it was the ancient Mart of Egypt. And Bochartus in the Additions to his last Edition, proves it to have been the Metropolis or royal Seat of the Kings of Lower Egypt in the eldest Times.

98. Having thus fix'd themselves in a different Way of Living from what they had been formerly us'd to, they assume a greater Dignity, and call themselves Hyc-shi, which in the Egyptian Language signify'd Kingly or Royal Shepherds. They also divide themselves into thirty six Nomi or Pasturages, and having observ'd that Upper Egypt was govern'd by an Aristocracy at that Time, they form themselves into the same Manner of Government, and choose two out of each of the Nomi, or seventy two in all, who were to manage the whole Affairs of the Kingdom, and were call'd Typho by those of Upper Egypt.

99. The Reason, why they were call'd by this Name, was, because they chose one Typho to be the General of their Army in the first Egyptian Wars. Who he was, is uncertain. Sanchoniatho mentions one of this Name of the Line of Japhet, who might probably be alive at this Time, and is suppos'd to be the Man; but the Mystery is, how he came to be joyn'd with the Children of Ham. However, he was the Enemy and Destroyer of the Race of Mizraim, and is suppos'd to have came thither by Sea from the Country of Japhet, who inhabited the Isles and the Shores. Accordingly he is represented (g) in their mystical Theology, both vulgarly and among the wiser Priests of Egypt, to import the Sea that swallow'd up their Nile, and therefore they abhor it, and its Fish and Salt, as the Foam of Typhon raging, and they had such an Aversion to Seamen, that they would hardly speak to them. In the Fable in Plutarch, he is represented as the Brother to Mizraim; but in the History of Sanchoniatho, as his Cousin-german. This may be easily reconcil'd, because Brother's Children in the eastern and larger Sense of the Word, are call'd Brethren. He might come out of Japhet's Country on the north Side of Amanus by Shipping over

Sea, which the Egyptians call'd Typhon. Porphry tells us, that (i) the Egyptians represent him by an Hippopotamus, or a River Horse; and Manetho saith, that Mizraim was kill'd by such an one. Plutarch saith, (k) that Typho conspir'd against Mizraim with seventy two Associates or Assistants sworn to adhere to him. He is constantly represented as a Man of red Hair, and therefore the Egyptians call all red Men Typhos; and it was a Custom among them in the ancient Times to sacrifice such, as the Enemies of Mizraim, at his Grave, which was call'd Bufris. And the Word Typhon in all their later mystical Stories, represented the whole Canaanitish Power; not only before they had set up Salatis to be their King, but also during his Reign, and the Reign of the five Kings, which succeeded him. And therefore not only he who murder'd Mizraim, is call'd Typhon, but also the City of Pelusium, which Salatis fortify'd, was call'd Urbs Typhonia, as Josephus tells us, because it was inhabited by such gigantick Men, who fought against their Gods. Near to it on one Side is Hero, which Stephanus de Urbibus, interprets to signify the Blood of Typho, who was there wounded; and near to it on the other Side toward Canaan, is the Lake Sirbonis, where, Herodotus saith, it is reported, that Typhon is hid or bury'd; all which signifies no more, than that the whole Canaanitish Power was broken to pieces, when they were forc'd by Treaty to remove from Pelusium to go into the Land of Canaan, which Plutarch describes by Typhon's riding upon an Ass, after he was expell'd from thence, to found Jerusalem. The Greek Poets represented him (l) as a wild Boar, which kill'd Adonis the beloved of Venus, or Mizraim the Husband of Isis: And others represented him as a Bear, because the Stars call'd the greater Bear, appear'd to the Inhabitants of upper Egypt, sometimes over the Land of Canaan, and sometimes over lower Egypt, as if they were their Superintendent.

100. Whilst these Things were transacted in Egypt, the Posterity of Japhet were still pent up in a narrow Compass, being chiefly confin'd within the Bounds of Asia the less, having the Mediterranean Sea on the South, the Egean on the West, and the Euxine on the North; and the Posterity of Shem and Ham lying close upon them in the East. This Necessity obliges them to enter into Europe; and accordingly Gomer, with his Family, particularly Ashkenaz, being seated near the Straights of the Hellepont, where they could see a main Continent on the other Side, did most probably come over first into those Parts; and well knowing, that the Rest of the Sons of Japhet were planted to the Southward, and would probably pass over to the southern Parts of Europe, resolve not to be so straiten'd any more, and therefore they go round to the North of the Euxine Sea, and (as Herodotus tells us) they sent a Colony to the Meotick Lake in those Parts, and gave the Name of Bosphorus Cimmerius, from the Name Gomer, to the Straights, which run from thence to the Egean Sea. Besides, they extended themselves along the Danube, which lay in their Way, and following its Course, soon came to the eastern Parts of Germany, which Word is also deriv'd from Gomer by an easy Transposition of Consonants; and therefore the Jews call the Germans the People of Ashkenaz.

101. Next to Gomer, on the south Side of the Egean Sea, lay Tiras, who sent over their Colonies to the opposite Shore, viz. from Troy and the Parts adjacent, to Thrace, where there is a considerable River, which intirely preserves the Memory of the Father of that Nation, being call'd Tiras, by both Greek and Latin Authors; and there was also a City standing upon it of the same Name. The Inhabitants of these Parts are also call'd Tyritæ, until they mix'd themselves with some of the Posterity of the Getae or the Sons of Chittim, and so were call'd Tyrageæ.

102. Next to Tiras, on the south Side of the Egean Sea, lay Madai, who also sent their Colonies by Sea into the opposite Parts of Greece, which was call'd Macedonia, whose ancient Name (m) was Æmathia. If any Man question (saith (n) Mr. Mede) how Æ came into the Word, I would ask how Fu came into Euphrates, which the Hebrews and those of Mesopotamia call Pirath; or how Æ came into Egyptus, which the Egyptians themselves, and their Neighbours the Arabians, call Cuphti. It is possible (as he adds) that from the Hebrew Word מֶשֶׁךְ, signifying a Country, the Greeks form'd their Word αἴα, Aia, of the same Signification, and so Aimadai or Aimathia is the same with Aia Madai, the Land of Madai; and by turning the Greek Vowel into the Latin Æ, than which nothing is more usual, it was call'd Æmathia. Mr. Mede farther adds, that we read of a People in this Tract call'd Me'i, or Medi. Others tell us of the Medick Region in the Borders of Pæonia, and near to this was the Præfectura Medica, which we hear of in the Roman Histories. And Isocrates in one of his Orations, names one Medus as King of those Quarters, before they came to be a Greek Nation. So that we may suppose, that the usual Name of this Country, or Macedonia, was Madai; and the Inhabitants, who were call'd in Greek Μακεδναι, Macetæ, had a Name compounded from Madai and Cittim, whose Sons were in Time mix'd together in those Parts.

103. Next to Madai on the south Side, lay Javan and his four Sons, whom Moses reckons up. They had the Mediterranean Sea to the South of them, and therefore might extend their Colonies by Shipping; and as they lay in Asia, nearest to Canaan of any of the Sons of Japhet, which were in Asia the less; so they peopl'd the southern Parts of Greece, which lay nearest to the same Country; and the Jews trading to these Coasts, and being best acquainted with them, call'd all Greece, in their Language, the Country of Javan.

104. The Family of Elisba lying on the western Coast of lessir Asia, possess'd themselves of most or all the considerable Isles, which lay in the Egean Sea between Europe and Asia; first beginning with those which were in sight of the main Land, and then proceeding to others, which were in Sight of those, which (o) accordingly are call'd by the Prophet the isles of Elisba. And what he saith concerning the blue and purple brought from thence, is applicable to these Islands, since they abounded in this Commodity, and are taken Notice of as such by several Authors. And as the Isles of the Sea were originally known by this Name; so it is probable, that the Sea it self was call'd the Sea of Elisbah. And tho' it wore away in other Places, yet it seems to have been always preserv'd in that Part, which to this Day is frequently call'd the Hellespont, that is, Elisæ pontus or the Sea of Elisba. Their Numbers which they sent over were so great, that the Grecians in general were call'd Hellenes, and their Country Hellas. His Posterity founded the City and Province of Elis in the Peloponnesus, the City of Eleusis in Attica, and the River Elissus or Ilissus in the same Province; and we need not doubt, but the Elisian Fields, so much celebrated among the Greeks, took their Name from him.

105. The next Son of Javan, mention'd by Moses, is Tarshish. As he lay on the western Part of the Mediterranean Sea, so he was the remotest from Greece of any of his Brethren, and had better Opportunities to plant himself in Asia. For these Reasons he set out the later to people Europe. As therefore they were oblig'd to make longer Voyages, and to adventure farther into the open Sea, than others did in those Days; so they had Ships built for this Purpose of a different Make, both as to Size and Shape, from the Vessels commonly us'd by others. And hence it is probable, that all Vessels built for longer Voyages and greater Burdens, were call'd Ships of Tarshish; because they were built like the Ships of Tarshish, properly so call'd. These coming to Greece, finding it peopl'd by others sprung from Japhet, and having Ships so fit for Sailing, proceed farther into Italy, where they were anciently call'd Etrusci and Tusci. And as it is usual to add an initial E to several Derivatives, which did not belong to their Primitives; so the Word might originally be writt'n Thrusshi or Trussi, retaining all the radical Consonants of the Word Tarshish, and from thence be turn'd into Trusci and Etrusci, and thence into Tusci. Add to this, that these People were also call'd Tyrrbeni or Tyrzeni, which hath a very great Affinity with Tarseni, and might well be deriv'd from the original Word Tarsus or Tarshish.

106. The next Son of Javan, mention'd by Moses, is Cittim, who lay next to his Brother Tarshish, on the western Part of the Mediterranean Sea; and therefore being at a greater Distance from Greece than the other two, it was the later before he peopl'd any Part of the Country; so that finding the southern Parts inhabited by the Posterity of Elisha, and others by those of Dodanim, and lying open to the Sea only upon the South, and having planted their first Colony in the neighbouring Isle of Cyprus, (where they built the City of Citium) they coasted along the southern and western Shores of Greece, 'til they came to the upper or northern Part of it; which not being yet inhabited, some of them planted themselves there, whilst others espying the Coast of Italy, settl'd themselves in that Country. And this is the Reason, that the Macedonians in Greece, being partly inhabited by this People, and Italy also, are mention'd in Scripture by the Name of Cittim. That this Part of Greece is call'd by this Name is evident from the Author of the Books of the Maccabees, who saith, (p) that Alexander the Son of Philip the Macedonian came out of the land of Chettim, and (q) calls Perseus the King of Macedonia, King of the Chettims. And that Italy is call'd by the same Name is evident from the Prophet (r) Daniel, where he prophes'y'd, how the Ships of Chittim, or the Roman Fleet, should come against Antiochus, and oblige him to desist from his Design against Egypt. And that these Countries, especially Italy, were call'd by this Name in the Time of Moses, is evident from (s) the Prophecy of Balaam. And ships shall come from the coast of Chittim, and shall afflict Assur, and shall afflict Eber, which was literally true both in Respect of the Grecian and Roman Empires, but never so plainly fulfill'd by any other Kingdom. Besides, there are several Footsteps of the Name Cittim to be found in Italy among ancient Writers. As a City in Latium call'd Cetia, and another City among the Volsci call'd Echetia, and a River near Cumæ call'd Cetus. And there are (t) several Authors, who expressly affirm, that the Romans have had their Extraction from the Citii or Cetii. And it is also observable, that the Verb נָחַם Nichtam in Hebrew signifies (u) to be cover'd over, and the Word Chetim in Arabick, signifies a thing hidden: And therefore as the Greeks translated the Word Gömer, by Phrygia, a Word in their Language of the same Signification; so the Latins might call their Country by the Name of Latium, as being at first only a Translation of the old eastern Name Chittim.

107. The last Son of Javan mention'd by Moses, is Dodanim, or Rodanim, as he is sometimes call'd, who lying near to his Brother Elisha, might people part of Greece sooner than the other two; and being press'd by them on the other Side, was the sooner straightn'd for want of Room, and therefore peopl'd the Island of Rhodes, which lay over against them: But this being a small Island, they were soon oblig'd to go farther, and finding the south Part of Greece possess'd by the Families of Elisha, who lay over-against it, they went round the south Part, and sailing northward, they settl'd in the nearest Tract of Land adjoining to it; leaving the farthest Part to be inhabited by the Posterity of Cittim, who came after them. There was the Grove of Dodona, and the famous Oracle of Jupiter Dodonæus. Here we find in ancient Writers a Country call'd Doris, which may not improperly be deriv'd from Dodanim; especially if the Word is of the plural Number, as the Termination seems to imply, and so the Singular was Dodan. And as before they alter'd the first D into R, and call'd the Island Rhodes from Rhodan; so in this Case they might alter the second Letter in the same Manner, and frame from thence the Name Dorus, whom they expressly affirm to have been the Father of the Dorians. It is certain from the Greek Writers themselves, that the Dores or Dorians were a considerable Body of the Greeks, in so much that the Dorick Camp is mention'd by Virgil, to signify the whole Grecian Camp. The Dorick Dialect is us'd in their Pastorals, as the most common among the Shepherds; and even in the Chorus of the Tragedies perform'd at Athens, as chiefly spok'n by the country People. It is certain, that the whole western Part of Greece was peopl'd by the Posterity of Javan; and therefore that, which we now call the Adriatick Sea, was anciently call'd the Ionian Gulf, and the more southern Parts were call'd the Ionian Sea. And thus these People distinguish'd themselves from the other Families, by assuming to themselves the Name of the Father of their Family, as the others did. That this was the Extraction of the Dorians, and the Reason of their Name, may farther appear, from what the Greeks themselves say of Dorus, the Father of the Dorians, viz. that he was the Son of Neptune. For as among the three Sons of Noah, Shem is suppos'd to be Pluto, and Ham to be Jupiter; so Japhet might be signify'd not only by Japetus, but also by Neptune, and be esteem'd by them the God of the Sea, because his Posterity generally went off from Asia by Sea, and inhabited the Countries call'd by them the Isls of the Sea. Thus what they say of the Dorians being descended from Dorus the Son of Neptune, is very applicable to the Dodanim, descended from Dodan the Grandson, or, according to the usual Way of speaking among the Hebrews, the Son of Japhet. Thus also the Tracts assign'd to the Sons of Japhet in Europe, do very well agree with those in Asia. For first, as it is natural to suppose, that the Colonies of each remov'd into those Parts, which lay nearest to them, as yet unpossess'd, that is, directly westward, for all the other three Sides were inhabited: And secondly, as they who lay nearest Europe, would in all Probability first come over: And thirdly, as they who came over last, finding the nearest Countries inhabited, would take to the nearest which then lay void; so these reasonable Suppositions do fix them all in the Countries allotted to them: And this is farther confirm'd by the Likeness of Names, which they had to their Ancestors, and to each other in these respective Countries. If their Father Japhet came over with his Posterity into Greece, and peopl'd those Parts, which was, like a new World, divided from the rest by so great a Sea, it might well give Occasion to the Story so famous among them, That Japetus the Son of Prometheus or Noah, made Images of Clay, and stole Fire from Heaven, whereby he put Life into them; and so the World (according to their Notion) increas'd much faster in those early Times, than it did in later Ages. But that Greece was inhabited within a few Centuries after the Flood, will appear from the Name πέλαγος Pelagus, which they gave to the Sea, and the Name Pelasgi, by which the most ancient Inhabitants were first call'd. These two Words are deriv'd from the Hebrew Word פלג, which signifies a Division; and was the Name of the great Grandson of Arphaxad, who was born in the hundred and first Year after the Flood, and was so call'd, because at that Time Noah commanded his three Sons to divide themselves into the respective Countries allotted for them. Thus they call'd the Sea Pelagus, because it was the great Divider of several Countries from each other, particularly Europe, where they liv'd, from both Asia and Africa. Thus they call'd themselves Pelasgi (by inserting the Letter S, which was usually done in the most ancient Times) because they were thus divided from the rest of the World, and were some of the earliest Dispersers of themselves; and dividing Lands to one another as the first Possessors, and the first or second Planters after the general Dispersion. They were also distinguish'd by this Name from the Hyperborci, who were so call'd, because they came out of the northern Parts by the Land, which lies North of the Euxine Sea, and thence into Thrace, or over the Bosphorus, and so by Land into Greece. And they were also distinguish'd by this Name from all, who pretended to be the Ἀυτοχθόνες, either pretending to be sprung out of the Earth, or because their Ancestors had beyond all Memory of Men or Records, pretended to have been born in Greece; and also to distinguish themselves from those Societies of Men, who took their Names from their Commanders, as the Danai, and the Heraclidae did in after Ages. And as they were thus call'd from Peleg; so they call'd themselves so, not only because he was then alive, but because the Dispersion at his Birth was still fresh in their Memory.

(p) 1 Mac. 1. 1. (q) 1 Mac. 8. 5. (r) Dan. 11. 29, 30. (s) Num. 24. 24. (t) Eusebius, Chronicum Alexandrinum. Cedrenus in Annalibus, Suidas. (u) Jer. 2. 22. Castell. Lex. Polyg.

108. Thus the Inhabitants of Asia the less, or the Sons of Japhet, being Anno Mundi
saw themselves in the most noble and plentiful Country of Europe, which being known to Ham and his Posterity, they also resolve to take Possession of whatever Parts of the Country were left most expos'd on these Occasions; and also of what other Places they could find uninhabited. This they did, not out of any Necessity, (for a great Part of Asia was allotted to them, and they had all Africa before them without the Trouble of going to Sea) but out of an Ambition of Enlarging their Dominions, Incroaching upon their Neighbours, and Establishing an universal and an arbitrary Power to themselves. Accordingly Ham goes by Force of Arms into the Country of Japhet, and settles a Colony there, being the Posterity of Lud by his Son Mizraim, a great Part of them being already settled in Asia near to Ethiopia. From his Name the new Conquest was call'd Lydia. Here Ham governs for some Time, and then he makes his Son Mizraim King over these Ludims or Lydians, because (x) they were all his Issue, and consequently would be more subject to him, being the nearer Relation of the two. And as Mizraim was often call'd Menes or Mæon; so the Country was call'd from him Mæonia. The Posterity of Japhet resent their Proceeding, as contrary to all Justice and Equity, and a Regulation of the Countries made by their common Father Noah, and prepare to repel Force by Force. This was probably the Reason, that when Mizraim was afterward King of upper Egypt, Typho, their most famous Warrior, was sent from those Countries to joyn the Pastors of lower Egypt, and revenge themselves upon him for his former Injustice; so that he might neither have Leisure nor Power to oppress them at another Time. Ham being afraid to lose what he had thus got, has recourse to Politicks instead of Arms; and as an Equivalent, he quietly permits some of Japhet's Posterity to settle at Berytus, a seaport Town adjoining to the Mediterranean Sea, and lying on the Borders of both Countries, and his Son Mizraim marries Isis the Daughter of Japhet.

109. They had not been long here, before a new Set of Men were establish'd, whom they call'd Cabiri, and sometimes Dioscuri, or Corybantes or Samothraces:

Anno Mundi 1855. They were certain Priests appointed to take Care of the Affairs of Religion. That they were very ancient is most certain, but by whom they were first set up, or when, or with what View, is very difficult even to conjecture. It seems to be a pious Cheat of Ham, design'd thereby to give Laws to all other People in Matters of Religion, and so to subject them to his Power and Authority in Points of Conscience; and then when Ham was willing to be obey'd, they might give out, that there was an Oracle for it, and so end all Disputes. Sanchoniatho, to give them the greater Honour, saith, that they were the Posterity of Sydyc, or Melchisedek, who is suppos'd to be Shem; but the Difficulty is, how they all left their Father to come thither. He tells us, that there were seven of his Sons, and that their eighth Brother Æsculapius was he, who first of all set down in Memoirs, those things which their God Thoth (the Grandson of Ham) had commanded them. Their Name كاهن in Arabick plainly signifies Persons eminently great, either as to Nobility, Honour or Office; which plainly shews the Respect that they had, or which was intended that they should have. We are also told, that Jupiter the elder, and Dionysius the younger, or Mizraim, was among them, and also Ceres or Isis, Proserpina and Pluto; and as Thoth the Grandson of Ham was their President, so we may conclude, that they were under the Direction of the Grandfather, and therefore we can expect no Good from such a Body. It is certain, that they did not worship the one true GOD, the Creator of Heaven and Earth, and the first Cause of all things, but had many Gods of their own Invention. They endeavour'd to conceal the Manner of their Religion from the common People, as very mysterious and above their Capacity; and when it was spread into Lemnos and Samothracia, and other Parts of Greece and the adjacent Places, who worshipp'd the same Gods, it was found to be little else but an enthusiastick Madness, dancing in Armour, making a Noise with Weapons, Pans and Drums, and terrifying one another with horrid Sounds. Herodotus (y) speaking of their Worship, as us'd afterward among the Pelasgi, saith, that when they pray'd to their Gods, they sacrific'd every thing, that is, without any Difference, sensible or lifeless, Men or Beasts, and either those, which were reckon'd clean or unclean, without Distinction. And they had neither Name nor Sirname for their Gods, so that they worshipp'd in the strictest Sense, they knew not what, until the Names of their Gods were brought them out of Egypt; and afterward when they had consulted the Oracle of Dodona, whether they might use them or not, they were answer'd, that they might use them.

110. About this Time one Zabion endeavours very zealously to make an Improvement upon, or rather a greater Corruption of the Religion in the eastern Countries. It is probable, that he liv'd in Babylon, the Fountain of false Worship, or in the eastern Parts of Chaldea; and therefore the Word in Arabick, from whence the Name is deriv'd, صبو or صبوا signifies something eastward, and particularly a Wind, which blows from the Sun rising, especially when near the Equinoctial, which Derivation the learned Spencer approves of: And this Word might be more commonly us'd in Phœnicia, to signify one coming from the East, as they must do since the Flood and Dispersion from Babylon a little before this Time. The Word also signifies one who changes his Religion, and particularly apostatiz'd from the Truth. And the famous Commentator on the Alcoran saith, That the Zabii, or Sect nam'd from this Founder, were so call'd, because they went away from the true Worshippers, and turn'd aside from GOD to Idols, and from Truth to a Lie. The Religion establish'd by him was very ancient, and (b) generally referr'd to the Time of Serug, the great Grandfather of Abraham: It spread it self far and near, it was the Religion, in (c) which Abraham was educated, when he liv'd in Chaldea, as the Religion of that Country, and (d) a learned Author of our own writes one of his three learned Books to prove, that the great Design of GOD in most of the Rites, which he gave to the Jews, was to prevent this Infection from entering in among them. His chief Design seems to be the Invention of Images, of the Sun, Moon and Stars, whereby to worship them; and the Consecration of them, by using many Incantations to amuse the vulgar People, and make them believe, that thereby they did draw down those Intelligences, which were before suppos'd to live in the Stars, now to dwell in those Images, for whom they erected them, especially by their Power and Influence. And from hence (e) the whole Foolery of Telefms, which hath made so great a Noise in the World, had its Original. Hence it is, that the Arabians write so much of the Progress of Idolatry in the Times of Peleg, Ren, Serug and Nabor, as well as in the succeeding Generations. And hence arose all the Opposition, which they met with from the Magi, another Sect, who afterward had their Original in the same eastern Countries, who abominated all Images, and worshipp'd GOD only by Fire, which was preserv'd in Temples erected for that Purpose.

111. The Modellers of this new Religion at Berytus, had not been long set up, before they came acquainted with some of these Zabiri at Babylon; and therefore it is probable, that they sent thither for one to instruct them in their Rites, that so they might lick the new born Monster into a better Shape. Accordingly we are inform'd, (f) that Mizraim was not the first Inventor of this Religion, but was taught it by an Innovator in Canaan, and receiv'd all his allegorical Representations from one, who is describ'd by these Circumstances. First, He was the Son of Thabion, and therefore call'd Thabionides; as the famous Author among the Jews was the Son of Maimon, and therefore call'd Maimonides. This Thabion I suppose to be Zabion, the famous Author of this Sect, who is so call'd by a common Turn of the  $\Sigma$  or  $\approx$ , into  $\psi$  t, as usual in the Chaldean Language; and also, by the Change of the Greek  $\tau$  or t into  $\theta$  or th, which is also as common because the  $\theta$  or th hath the same or ninth Place in the Greek Alphabet from Cadmus, as the  $\psi$  or t hath in Hebrew. Besides, I suppose him not to be the natural Son of Thabion, but take the Word in a larger Sense, for one brought up in that Religion, of which the other was so great a Promoter, in the same Sense, as (g) Onesimus is said to be the Son of St. Paul. Secondly, He was the first Hierophant of the Phœnicians from the Beginning, or the eldest Declarer or Appointer of their sacred Rites. Thirdly, He allegoriz'd the historical Matters before-mention'd, (h) mingling them with the Occurrences, and Passions of Nature and of the World. That is, with such Parts of Astronomy and natural Philosophy, as related to the different Risings and Settings of the Stars and Planets, and especially the Sun and Moon, the burying of Grain by sowing it, and its Resurrection by springing out and growing, until it is prepar'd for the Harvest; with the Changes made in Heaven and Earth, by the Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter, and all the Accidents and Changes which happen to human Life: All which things Plutarch acknowledges to be represented in the Sacra Isia, or the Egyptian Rites, and Cicero owns to be in the Eleusinia Sacra, or the oldest Mysteries of the Greeks, beside the Passions and other Concerns of Dæmons; which Plutarch joins with the other, and earnestly contends for that Notion, that their Religion might look farther than human Objects. Fourthly, He deliver'd his Notions and Instructions to others, who are call'd  $\text{ὀργιστῆς}$  and  $\text{περφηταί}$ , Men in a Rage, and Prophets, both lower Sorts of Officers in the Pagan Religion, who increas'd the Innovations; which they might easily do, because these Things were committed to them as Mysteries or Secrets; and therefore the Word (i) Orgia is suppos'd to be deriv'd from the Chaldean Word  $\text{ארגא}$ ; which, according to its Derivation, must signify secret Mysteries. And lastly, He brought in the worshipping of the Stars by Images, which was an Idolatry afterward practis'd in the Land of Canaan, and gave Rise to the adoring the Images of their deceas'd Kings in lower Egypt, tho' the upper Egypt being settled before, and having less Correspondence with Canaan than the other, did not come so soon into this gross Way of Worship, notwithstanding all the Endeavours of Mizraim their first King, who brought in all the other Parts thereof among them.

112. Thus we see, how early this Mystery of Iniquity began, and these cheating Ways of darkning their Religion by Allegories and Representations, and representing it as a Secret not fit to be reveal'd. The Devil knew that there was no native Beauty or Worth in it, which might attract the Beholders; and was therefore willing to conceal it from the Vulgar, that they might admire they knew not what; and well knowing, that if they understood it, they would reject it.

113. As Berytus was a Town consisting of mixt Inhabitants, partly from Ham and partly from Japhet, who held a Correspondence with the rest of their Brethren; so the Religion there begun was soon propagated among the Posterity of Ham in Canaan and Egypt, and among those of Japhet in Greece, particularly in (k) Macedonia, Attica and Beotia. This might be done by Mizraim and his Wife Isis, who was with him in all his Progress in Greece to settle Plantations there, and afterward when he was King of Egypt. And therefore (l) a celebrated Greek Author tells us, that Prometheus the Son of Japetus, and Ætneus the Son of Prometheus were the first who settled the famous Heathen Mysteries of the Cabiri in Beotia; and that they receiv'd the sacred Depositum or Trust of these Mysteries from Ceres or Isis, as he thought he might tell us, tho' he durst not make known, what those Mysteries were.

114. These Cabiri having gott'n themselves into the Esteem of the common People, as the Settlers of their Religion, and as well skill'd in all the Secrets thereof; thought, that nothing could be of greater Service for them in Keeping and Increasing the Esteem, which they had got, than applying themselves to such Arts and Studies, which might be most useful in the Affairs of human Life. First, they build Ships, and improve the Art of Navigation, that so they might enlarge their Commerce, and plant new Colonies, as Occasion did require. After this they apply themselves to the Cure of human Diseases, as a most grateful Study to Mankind. At this Time Phut or Apollo (who is call'd Pythius) the Inventor of Physick, is among them, with his Son Æsculapius, who brought Physick to a greater Perfection. But the principal Thing worthy of our Enquiry is the Care which they took for the Advancement of Learning, under the Direction and Management of Thoth, who was their President. He was in Reality a Philosopher of the greatest Size, that those early Times afforded without the Pale of the true Church; which was so unusual a Character among the Egyptian Princes, that he stands as a single Instance for many Ages. He was call'd Hermes from the Hebrew Word עֵרְמֵי, which signifies the subtle or cunning, and sometimes the prudent, and sometimes Hermes trismegistus, most exceeding great and famous. He was call'd Orus after his Consecration, from the Word אֹרֹר Or, or Light, with Respect to that great Light of Wisdom, which they esteem'd to have been in him, and communicated from him. He was also call'd Anubis, and Hermanubis, and his Statues were made with a Dog's Head, the Symbol of his Sagacity, intimating him to be like a quick scented Hound. The Original (m) of the Name Anubis, is without Doubt from נַבָּח Nabab, which in the eastern Languages do signify to bark as Dogs do, when they challenge the Scent of that which they follow. And as he was a Man eminently learned, so he was a great Restorer and Encourager of Learning in others. His Father Mizraim began to invent Letters, and for this Reason is said to have invented three; and he brought them to Perfection by adding all the rest, which, in all Probability, were the Samaritan Characters. And that they might be apply'd to a good Use, he gives an Account to the Cabiri or Priests at Berytus, of all the Transactions since the Creation of the World, as he had them from his Father Ham and his Grandfather Noah; which he order'd to be writ'n and kept in the Records of that Town, and from thence Sanchoiatho transcrib'd his History. Thus he laid a Foundation, and gave an Example for future Ages to continue; that so there might be a complete History of all Transactions handed down to successive Generations. And it is probable, that he never intended them to be publick, but only wrote them for his own Use, and the Benefit of his Kinsmen the Cabiri, which they might only communicate to such, as were judg'd worthy of those Secrets, whilst he permitted his Father's allegorical Stories, mix'd with History and Fable, to be represented in the open Solemnities of that Religion which he had establish'd. And it is very probable that other Towns imitated their Examples. Hence we have the Town of Sippora or Books, near Babylon, and a (n) City in the Land of Canaan is sometimes call'd Kirjath Sepher or the City of Books or Records; and sometimes Kirjath Sannah from the Arabick سِنَّاء the City of Learning, the Law or Traditions; and also by the Chaldee, Kirjath Arche, the City of Records; and by the Greek, πόλις γραμμάτων the City of Letters. And (o) that these Cabiri might the better attend on the Affairs of Religion and Learning, they are said to have receiv'd Tythes from the Inhabitants.

115. About this Time, Pontus, who is suppos'd to be one of the Sons of Japhet, adventuring too far into the Sea in a Ship, was drown'd; upon which the Cabiri, falling from one Error into another, consecrate his Relicks; and in commemoration thereof, they cause the Sea to be call'd Πόντος by his Name; among the Posterity of Japhet. From these came the Corybantes, who first inhabited the Mount of Ida in Phrygia, and are there said to nurse up Jupiter; and they were also call'd Dioscuri Διόσκουροι, The Sons of Jupiter. By all which Expressions we may easily conjecture, they soon fell into the grossest Part of Idolatry, and worshipp'd Ham or Jupiter; and soon after that, Pontus, and without Doubt his Father Neptune, or Japhet the Brother of Ham.

116. About the same Time, some of the Cabiri having built some Ships of War, and also other Ships of Burden, sail with them into the Mediterranean Sea; but being overagainst Mount Cassius, they are cast away, and coming to Shore, they consecrate a Temple there, in which there were no Images, that Mystery of Iniquity being not as yet grown to so great a Perfection, as to be universally receiv'd.

117. The Cabiri being thus settl'd, and having so great an Authority among the People, that they might be able to keep them in Subjection; and Ham observing with what Success his Brother Japhet had peopl'd Greece, and having Ships at command, sufficient for such a Design, he resolves to try his own Fortune this Way, and to be beforehand in seizing for himself such Parts of the World, as were allotted by Noah to his Brother Japhet, and did in all Justice and Equity belong to him. Accordingly Ham, with his Wife Astarte, and his Son Mizraim, and his Wife Isis, pass over the Hellespont into Europe, where they leave one of the Sons of Mizraim to be King of Macedonia, the Country of Greece being so thinly peopled at that Time, that they made no Scruple of letting them have a quiet Possession.

(m) Thus Servius upon Virgil interprets his Latrator Anubis, by Mercury or Thoth. 15, 16. Jud. 1. 11, 12. Jos. 15. 49.

(o) So saith Dionysius Halicarnassensis;

(n) Jos. 14.

118. Ham being encourag'd with this Success, goes farther into Greece, where he gives Attica to his Daughter Athena. But this Part of the Country being better peopl'd than the other, because it lay nearer to the first Settlements of the Posterity of Japhet in Asia; the Inhabitants knowing that he had already taken Possession of one Country, and not knowing what might be the Consequence if he should take Possession of many more, resolve to keep him out. And therefore it is said, that he could make no good Title to it, because it was inhabited by the Sons of Japhet; or, as they said, Neptune had seiz'd upon it before with the Stroke of his Trident. Meeting therefore with Difficulties, and fearing a Revolt in Asia, he sends his Son Mizraim back to reign over his Posterity in Lydia, and secure the Government there. So that the Colonies planted by him being small, and enclos'd by the Sons of Japhet, are either soon driv'n out again, or mix'd with his Posterity; and so they are all lost except Lydia. Pausanias calls him Porphyryon, or a King wearing Purple; and affirms, that he built for the Lydians the Temple dedicated to Venus Urania, or to his Wife Astarte after her Decease; that so the being worshipp'd as a Goddess, it might make way the better for his being worshipp'd as a God. Athens being thus peopled partly by the Posterity of Japhet, and partly by the Posterity of Ham, was therefore call'd Athenæ in the plural Number. Thus the City of Thebes being partly peopled from the City Thebais, the Metropolis of upper Egypt, and partly from the old Inhabitants, was call'd Thebæ for the same Reason: And this I take to be the Case of all other Names of Places of the plural Number both in Greece and Italy.

119. It is not improbable, but Ham might soon after this make an Attempt upon Italy; but if he did, he fail'd in his Design, and so it came to nothing. However, his Son Mizraim conquers part of Phrygia, and settles some Inhabitants there, and Ham returns to Berytus. And the Posterity of Gomer the Son of Japhet, having extended themselves toward the West along the Banks of the River Ister or the Danube, come to the east Part of a Country, which they call Germany from the Name of their Father. This Country was chiefly inhabited by Ashkenaz the Son of Gomer; where they erect a Monarchy, and make Tuisco their first King, who reign'd an hundred and seventy six Years. Some make him to be the Son of Noah; but that is impossible, he having but three Sons, and they being all dispos'd of in other Places. However, as the Word Son in the Oriental Languages includes the Grandchildren; so he might be a Son in this Sense, being one of the Sons of Japhet, whose Names are not mention'd in the Scriptures.

120. We must now return into Egypt, where we left the Canaanitish Pastors settling themselves in the lower Country; but now they are setting up to be an arbitrary People, and turning the grand Scene into those Parts. They make War against the Inhabitants of upper Egypt, and surprizing them when they expected no such Usage, and had deserv'd better, they reduce them to great Extremities. This was the Beginning of a most famous War both by Land and Sea, viz. in upper and lower Egypt, and in the Mediterranean and Red Sea, and sometimes in the adjacent Countries of Ethiopia, Canaan and Arabia. It was carry'd on with variety of Leagues, Treaties, and Successes on either Side. It afterward proceeded to a religious War, which caus'd it to be manag'd with the greater Fury. It helps to explain several obscure Passages in Genesis and Deuteronomy; and the Explaining of them fixes the Chronology with the greater Certainty. The Kings were deify'd after their Decease; and therefore from hence arose all the Stories of the Giants fighting with the Gods. The Greeks (p) look'd upon them to be Men, who liv'd in the Time of the Golden Age under Saturn or Noah, who were Gods after their Decease, the Guardians of Mortals, observing good and bad Actions, going too and fro in the Earth, and the Givers of Riches. They were call'd Gigantes γγγγγγγγ, or Giants, as if they were sprung from the Earth, and consequently the eldest of the World. They were call'd Titans from the Hebrew Word טין which signifies Mud, and intimated that they were the nearest People to the Time of the Flood, and seem'd to have their Rise from the Mire and Dirt of it. Juvenal (q) plainly intimates, that Prometheus the Son of Japhet was one of the Titans; so that their Story of Titans warring with Saturn, and keeping him Prisoner until Jupiter releas'd him, is no more than those of lower Egypt warring with the upper, whose Kings were reckon'd as the direct Sons of Ham, until they were drove out of the Country. Plutarch (r) reckons Apophis, who was one of the Kings of lower Egypt that manag'd that tedious War, as one of those who fought against the Gods. In these Wars the fighting with Bows and Arrows were first invented; as also fighting on Horseback, and in (s) Chariots of Iron, which were arm'd with Scythes on each Side. And if we could have a full Account of this War, it would perhaps be, in all its Circumstances, the most remarkable which we have in the World. The Chronologer, who hath tak'n most Pains in the Egyptian History, confesses (t) of these Times, that these ancient Histories are obsolete by their Antiquity, obscure by doubtful Credit, and despis'd from the barren Accounts, which we have of them; and that to undertake such a Work, is (†) to follow the obscure Foot-steps of the most ancient Times, to collect the disorder'd Relicks of shipwreck'd History, and to survey the uncouth and crabbed Countries. And he saith in particular of Egypt, that (u) the most remarkable Antiquities of Egypt are so miserably perplex'd by Additions, Alterations and Diminutions, that they are involv'd in thick Darkness by the Historians of those Times, who have mangl'd and confounded one Part with another, to make it vie with the History of Moses, in such a manner as doth no way become a sober Writer.

121 And indeed we had been still in the dark, had not the Labours of (x) the right Reverend Bishop Cumberland afforded us a much greater Light into those Transactions than we had before. But to proceed: The Inhabitants of upper Egypt, being reduc'd to great Extremities, send Messengers to Ham into Canaan, to desire his Advice and Assistance in such a critical Juncture. Ham sends his Son Mizraim to govern upper Egypt, who is accordingly made their first King. He is call'd Menes by Herodotus, and by other Authors Osiris, Isiris, Hysiris, Shiran, Thammuz, and Adonis: He was a Lover of most Arts beneficial to human Life, and a good Judge of the Usefulness of such Inventions. He builds Memphis and makes it the capital City. His Wife Isis enlarges and fortifies the Town of Sin, or Pelusium, that so their Forces might march from thence, or retreat thither as Occasion might require, and be a Curb to all of Asia, whether Canaanites or Arabians, in their Passage to and from Egypt. For which Reason it was call'd Abaris, or (x) the Passage. And as it stood also on the Tanitic Mouth or Ostium of the Nile, so it was of great Consequence by Sea, as a Harbour for Ships, and was always esteem'd and fortify'd, as the frontier Garrison of the Kingdom of Egypt; and is (y) call'd by the Prophet Ezekiel, the Strength thereof. And it is observable, that either of the Kingdoms flourish'd or declin'd, according as they were in Possession or driv'n out of it. And this was (z) in the year before the Birth of Nabor, who was the Grandfather of Abraham.

122. The Kingdom of upp. r Egypt being now put into a Posture of Defence, and the Garrison of Pelusium cutting off all Correspondence and Recruits, which came to their Enemies from the Land of Canaan, the Inhabitants of lower Egypt were soon forc'd to be quiet for a little while, and to contain themselves within the Bounds of their own Kingdom. So that all things seeming to be in Peace on this Side, it is not improbable but Mizraim might pursue his former Design of Incroaching upon the Bounds of his Brother Japhet: And accordingly he and his Wife Isis might sail from Pelusium in Egypt into Greece, not only to secure his Government, but even to enlarge his Dominions in that Country.

Anno Mundi

123. Mizraim being made King of Egypt; Ham makes Demaroon, who was probably one of his Sons not mention'd in Scripture, to be the Governour of Lydia and Phrygia; and soon after he sails from Lydia into Italy, and reigns there for some Time. After this he leaves a Colony there, who by some are call'd The Aborigines, and by others the (a) Hammites or Umbri. And soon after that he sails into Sicily, where he reigns for a little while, and then he leaves a Colony there, and soon returns into the Land of Canaan. And it is probable, that the reason of his going to Sicily was, because Italy might be in some Measure peopl'd before from Tarshish the Son of Japhet. This made Ham look out for a new Colony, that in process of Time, they might be assisting to each other.

124. It is probable, that the most ancient way of Fighting was with Clubs and Stones; and perhaps with Swords and Spears. But the Inhabitants of Pelusium, who were now call'd Philistins, having Occasion to annoy their Enemies at a greater Distance in their Passage into Lower Egypt, invented the use of Bows and Arrows. With these they might form an Ambuscade, and either kill or wound their Enemies, before they were aware of them, which would make them more fearful of Traveling in the common Roads; and with these their stoutest Men were arm'd, who (as (b) the learned Bochartus tells us) were call'd Cherethites in the Phœnician Language. From them (c) a Part of the adjoining Country was call'd the Land of the Cherethites. Such as these were (d) of the utmost Service afterwards to the Philistines, when they conquer'd Saul and his Army upon Mount Gilboa; and therefore (e) when David taught the Children of Israel the use of the Bow, or to fight after the same Manner, his (f) principal Soldiers, and perhaps his Life-guard, were arm'd in this manner, and therefore call'd The Cherethites, which the Septuagint always translate by τοξοῦνται or Bowmen, and the Chaldee, Syriack and Arabick generally by Words of the same Signification. Mizraim in this his Expedition toward Greece, takes with him a considerable Number of these Cherethites, or Men arm'd with Bows and Arrows; with these he takes Possession of the Island of Crete, and leaving them there to keep it, they give it the Name; by which they themselves were call'd at that Time. And now Mizraim having weaken'd his Garrison at Pelusium by drawing his chief Men from thence, and seeming thus to neglect his own Domini-

Anno Mundi 1853. ons, by being intent upon new Acquisitions, the Pastors in Lower Egypt take this Opportunity to send for more Forces from Canaan, who accordingly came down to them, and joyn with the rest; so that they are now grown very formidable, and renew the War with greater Rage and Success, which turns the thoughts of Mizraim from farther Travels to enlarge his Dominions in Europe, and puts a stop to all these Anno Mundi 1855. Designs: So that the utmost, which he could afterward do, was to secure what he had thus gotten, and so he returns into Egypt, lest he should lose his own Kingdom.

125. Here we may observe the early Designs of Ham and his Son Mizraim to rob the Children of Shem and Japhet of their Colonies allotted to them by their Father Noah, and to establish to themselves an universal Monarchy; which in all Probability must have succeeded, and have occasion'd great Troubles to all the World in those early Days, if GOD the Defender of every Man's right, and the Punisher of Injustices had not prevented it, by suffering the long Wars to break out between the Upper and the Lower Egypt, in which the Posterity of Ham, instead of Oppressing their Neighbours, destroy'd one another.

126. However Mizraim not being willing to lose his Footing in Greece, sends Anno Mundi 1860. Triptolemus thither to take care of, and improve the Tillage in Attica by sowing of Corn, and probably to be accountable to his Son in Macedonia. And as this was done by the Direction of Isis the Wife of Mizraim; so from hence it happen'd, that she was worshipp'd in Greece by the Name of Demeter, and in Italy by the Name of Ceres the Goddess of Corn. And about this Time, Ham, in order to revenge himself of the Curse pronounc'd against him, sets himself up, as independent from, and undutiful to his Father.

127. But as restless Spirits cannot be long easy; so the Wars begin again to break out between the Families of Japhet and Ham, which Sanchroniatho thus describes: Damaroon (who was born in the House of Ham, and probably his Son, the Governour of Lydia and Phrygia) invades Pontus (the Son of Japhet, on the South Part of the Euxine Sea, with a design to enlarge his Dominions in Asia) but Pontus puts him to Flight, and Damaroon vows a Sacrifice for his Escape. This great Danger of his, makes him more cautious for the future, and so puts a stop to all Attempts on that side.

128. Ham being thus disappointed in his Projects in that part of Asia, removes to Babylon, where he sets himself up to be the Emperor of Assyria and first Founder of that Monarchy. He is therefore call'd בעל A Lord, or Baal, and the Idol so much worshipp'd in those Parts, was made to represent him. This Name was afterward chang'd into (g) Bel, and therefore he is often called Belus, by Pagan Authors, the first Founder of that Empire, where he reign'd about seven and thirty Years, and was then succeeded by his Son Cush, or Belus the second.

129. Soon after this Terah the Father of Abraham is born, and Mizraim King of Egypt invents three Letters. As he was a great Promoter of Learning; so it seems most probable, that he intended to commit to Writing the History of that Country, which was now very remarkable, and to preserve it in the Records of Thebais, in the same manner as his Son Thoth preserv'd the Records of Canaan at Berytus. It seems most likely, that the other Letters, which he had, were the same with those us'd by Thoth: And that tho' they were sufficient for the Canaanitish Language; yet they could not serve for the Egyptian without a farther Addition.

130. Whilst Ham was thus settling his Authority in Babylon, his Wife Astarte takes upon her to govern in the Land of Canaan in his Absence. This Sanchroniatho thus describes. But Astarte call'd the greatest, and Damaroon intitl'd Zeus, and Adodus nam'd King of the Gods, reign'd over the Country by the Consent and Authority of Ham. And Astarte put on her Head, as the mark of her Sovereignty, a Bull's Head. To this I cannot but add the Remark of (h) the learned Bishop Cumberland on this Occasion. 'I conceive, that by the

• Bull's Head, which our Author affirms Astarte
• to have put on, as a mark of Sovereignty, he
• plainly means the Bull's Horns. For it is cer• tain, that (i) a Horn in the Eastern Language
• is an Emblem or Expression signifying Pow• er, and especially royal Power. The eastern • Notion of this Symbol we may learn from • (k) the Words of Zedekiah, who put on • Horns of Iron, to express to Ahab, that with • such he should, as it were, push the Syrians
• until he had destroy'd them. The same De• struction did Astarte threaten by her Horns to
• the Enemies of the Family of Chronus or
• Ham, which first Name is plainly deriv'd from
• the Hebrew Word קרן Keren or a Horn.
• This may afford room for Conjecture, that
• the Stamp on the Sidonian Money, which
• Lucian de Deâ Syria assures us, was a Wo• man sitting on a Bull, did originally signify
• no more than the royal Power of Astarte,
• to whom their Temple was consecrated; al-
• tho' the Greek Mythologists have made a pro• digious Fable of it, concerning Jupiter being • turn'd into a Bull, and so carrying away Europa. Her Authority when living (l) made her afterward to be worshipp'd as the Queen of Heav'n, and the horn'd Moon was pictur'd over her Head. Hence she (m) was so often called the Goddess of the Zidonians. And as she was such a neighbouring Deity; so (n) the Children of Israel did frequently worship her, when they fell off to Idolatry.

131. And now Ham being at Babylon, and Anno Mundi resolving to revenge the Curse, 1892. which had been before pronounc'd against him, and being also jealous, that there was an Intention of planting more of the Sons of Japhet and Shem near him, by which means he might be more and more straightned in his own Dominions; he sets upon his aged Father Noah by surprize, and expels him by Force from his own Country.

Sanchoniatho relates the whole Story of Noah thus: That he taking the Kingdom of his Father, married his Sister (o) Ge, and had by her four Sons, the (p) last of which was called Atlas. That (q) Noah had many Children by other Wives, and therefore (r) his Wife Ge, being griev'd at it and jealous, reproach'd him, so that they parted from each other. That (s) Noah, tho' he parted from her, yet invading her by Force, and lying with her, whenc'er he thought fit, went away again; and (t) he also attempted to kill the Children which he had by her: That Ge (u) did also often defend and avenge herself, gathering auxiliary Powers unto her. But when Ham came to be of full Age, he us'd Hermes Tris-megistus (or Thoth, who was all this while with him at Berytus, and was his Secretary) and then he oppos'd his Father Noah, and revenged his Mother's Quarrel. After this Thoth, speaking to the Assistants of Ham with a great deal of Eloquence, stirr'd up in them a very great Desire to fight against Noah in the Behalf of his Wife Ge. And thus Ham warring against Noah, drove him out of his Kingdom, and succeeded in his imperial Power and Office. But after some Time Noah being in Flight or Banishment, sends his Daughter (x)
Astarte with two other Sisters Rhea and Dione, to cut off Ham by Deceit; whom Ham taking, made Wives of these Sisters. Noah understanding this sends, (y) Eimarmene and Hora with other Auxiliaries to make War against him. But Ham having gain'd the Affections of these (they being represented as Women) kept them also with himself. And (z) Noah

Story is taken out of Gen. 9. 20. where it is said, that Noah began to be an Husbandman; in Hebrew אִישׁ אֲדָמָה the Man or Husband of the Earth, in Greek γῆ Ge. (p) This is directly contrary to Scripture, particularly Gen. 9. 19 and 10. 32. and it is very improbable in itself, Noah being then above six hundred Years of Age. (q) As he was the only Person sav'd from the old World; so they look'd upon all, who were before the Flood, to be his Children by other Wives. (r) The Parting of Noah from his Wife Ge or the Earth, seems to be no more than what is mention'd Gen. 7. 17. The Waters increas'd and bore up the Ark (in which Noah was) and it was lifted up above the Earth, and so separated from it. And thus (s) his coming to her again refers to Gen. 8. 4. And the Ark rested on one of the Mountains of Ararat. So that the Heathens, who would fain abolish, what is mention'd of the Flood, the better to countenance their own Idolatry, do at the same Time declare, that they had a Notion of it. And thus will Truth at last appear throughout all Opposition. (t) Noah's attempting to kill the Children which he had by Ge, or the Earth, is no more than the Destruction of the old World by the Flood. And it is represented among the Heathens by Saturn's devouring all the Male Children, which he had by his Wife Ops. But she perceiving it, when she brought forth Twins, Jupiter and Juno, she sent only Juno to him, but sent Jupiter to be nurs'd in Mount Ida, or preserv'd by landing on one of the Mountains of Ararat; and by the same Trick she also sav'd Neptune and Pluto from her devouring Husband; which there answer to the three Sons of Noah, or Shem, Ham, and Japhet. (u) This signifies no more than the Repeopling the World soon after the Flood, Gen. 9. 19. by the peculiar Blessing of G O D. Gen. 9. 1. (x) Cumberland's Sanchoniatho pag. 31.
(y) Ibid. Thus by Sanchoniatho's Description Ham had many Wives, which Vice, it is probable, that he took from the Example of Lamech, whose Daughter Naamah or Astarte he married before the Flood. (z) Ibid.
Pag. 32. This seems as if Sanchoniatho represented Noah as the Promoter of Idolatry, the better to vindicate it by such an Example.

(whom he here calls a God) invented Batulia, or Stones, which seem'd to move, as if they had Life. And he makes War against Pontus, and being separated from him joins with Demaroon. And after this Ham, having laid an Ambuscade for his Father Noah in a certain midland Place, (a) wounds him, so that he died. There (saith he) Noah was consecrated, and his Spirit and Breath was separated, and his Blood drop'd into the Fountains and Waters of the Rivers, and the Place is shewn unto this Day.

132. Tho' Noah was (b) a just man, and perfect in his generation, and one who walked with God; yet it may be observ'd, that Sanchoniatho gives him no good Character. He saith, that Noah was very unkind to his Wife, that he had other Wives, and was parted from the first, and attempted to kill the Children, which he had by her, and that he was of a turbulent Temper. But the Reason of all this Calumny is plain: It was the Design of Sanchoniatho so to compile his History, that it might be a Vindication of the false Worship begun by Thoth at Berytus, and carry'd on in latter Ages. For this Reason it was necessary for him to thwart with the History of Moses, and represent Noah, the Preserver and Propagator of the true Religion, in a different Light. And he who would represent Noah as a Promoter of Idolatry (from which nothing could be more averse than Noah was) would never scruple to blacken his Character in any other Manner.

133. The Character which Sanchoniatho gives of Ham is, beside what is already mention'd, that he had Children (c) Persephone and Athena, the former died a Virgin, but by the Counsel of the latter Athena, and of Hermes, Ham made of (d) Iron a Scimeter and a Spear. After these Things, he (e) built a Wall round about his House, and founds Byblus the first City in Phœnicia. And after this, Ham suspecting his own Brother Atlas, with the Advice of Thoth threw him into a deep Hole of the Earth, and there bury'd him alive. And he also having (f) a Son call'd Sadid, dispatch'd him with his own Sword, having a Suspicion of him, and he depriv'd his own Son of Life with his own Hand. And he also cut off the Head of his own Daughter; so that all the Auxiliaries, who were on his Side, were amaz'd at his barbarous Inhumanity. That he begat on Astarte seven Daughters call'd Titanides, or Artemides, and he begat on Rhea seven Sons, the Youngest of which, as soon as he was born (dying in his Infancy) was consecrated as a GOD. He had also Daughters by Dione, and he had also two Sons by Astarte, who were call'd (g) Pothos and Eros. And (h) Ham was not only circumcis'd himself, but he also forc'd his Auxiliaries to submit to the same. And not long after that, he consecrated another Son, (immediately after his Death) which he had by Rhœa, call'd Muth; for so the Phœnicians call Death, or Pluto. And after these Things Ham gives the City of Byblus to the Goddess Baalit, which is (i) Dione; and Berytus he gave to Poseidon, and to the Cabiri, and to Husbandmen and Fishermen, who consecrated the Remains of Pontus in, or to Berytus.

134. Here we may observe the great Progress of the basest sort of Idolatry in the Time of Ham, even the making Gods of dead Men and Women, which without Doubt was to pave the Way more easily for his own Consecration after his Decease. And tho' this was the Religion, which Sanchoniatho professes to vindicate, and therefore would in Justice speak as honourably as possible of its Founder and Promoter; yet he represents him as a revengeful, bloody-minded, and unnatural Man; one who had many Wives (which Vice he probably learned from his Father-in-Law Lamech, before the Flood) and one, who like the Impostors of all Ages, would stick at nothing to obtain his Ends.

(a) Ibid. pag. 34. Sanchoniatho's Words are these. And Chronus (or Ham) having laid an Ambuscade for his Father Ouranus or Noah, and having got him into his Hands, cuts off his Privities near Fountains and Rivers. There Ouranus or Noah was consecrated, &c. Hence came the Story of Venus, springing from the Froth of the Sea (so much talk'd of by the Greeks and Latins,) when they cut off the Privities of Ouranus or Noah, and threw them into the Sea. And therefore she was call'd in Greek Ἀφροδίτη, from ἀφρός Froth. Thus Hesiod in his Theogonia, Verse 147, &c. where he speaks at large concerning the Offspring of Ouranus and Ge. (b) Gen. 6. 9. (c) Cumberland's Sanchoniatho Page 30. (d) Ibid. He was the Beginner of all the Wars since the Flood, and arm'd himself for this Purpose. (e) Ibid. He fortify'd Towns and Houses. (f) These his Cruelties after the Expulsion of his Father Noah, caus'd the Poets to feign, that then the Golden Age ceas'd, and a worse succeeded. (g) That is, Desire and Love, or a corrupted Story concerning Venus and Cupid. Or else it may mystically signify, that his Affection to his Wife Astarte, who was of a proud Temper, was the Cause of his eager Desire to enlarge his Dominions. (h) Hence it came to pass, that (as Herodotus tells us) the Ægyptians and Æthiopians, who were the Posterity of Ham, were circumcis'd; since it is absurd to think, that they learn'd it from the Posterity of Abraham, whom they always hated, together with their Religion, and all their Rites and Customs; and when the Israelites dwelt among them, they kept them in the utmost Subjection and Slavery. (i) Concerning this Name, and the others of Rhœa, Hora, and Eimarmene, the learned Dr. Cumberland, Page 333. saith, that he believes, they are Greek Translations of the Titles giv'n to them at their Consecration after Death, but not at their Birth. Accordingly we meet with these Names, or most of them, in the Memoirs, which we have of the Heathen Worship among the Greeks, deriv'd from the Eastern Idolaters. Among them she was reckon'd a Sea Nymph, the Mother of Venus by Jupiter, who was therefore call'd Dionæa by Virgil.

135. Noah being thus driv'n from his Habitation, if we will believe the Anno Mundi Chinese Historians, came to them, 1892. and reign'd among them an hundred and fifteen Years, by the Name of Fohi. But this is improbable. He who views the Map of Asia, and sees the vast Tract of Land between Babylon and China, and that they, who went that Way to plant new Colonies, had no Seas to hinder them in all their Journeys from Extending themselves either Northward or Southward, as well as Eastward, may justly question, whether China was inhabited at that Time. Besides, Noah was now eight hundred and thirty Years old, so that he was very unfit for Undertaking so great a Journey. And we may as well suppose, that a Man about seventy Years old in this Age of the World, being beat'n in Spain, would travel as far as Hungary in a Fright, as that Noah, being beat'n at the Foot of the Mountain of Ararat, would set out at once for China. The most probable Account of the Story is this. When Ham set upon his Father Noah, he came from the West, or from Babylon; and consequently, Noah flying from him, would fly to the East, and perhaps to the farthest Country inhabited at that Time. Here they receive him as their common Father, and make him their King. Now China being the most eastern Country of all Asia, and using the Manner of Writing first in Use since the Flood, had a real History of the eastern Kingdoms since the Building of the Tower of Babylon, and so they took the History of the most eastern Kingdom for the History of China, and perhaps made some Variations, the better to fit it for that Purpose, until China was really inhabited. However Noah goes so far eastward, as to be without the Bounds of all the eastern Historians in the Assyrian Empire, so that they knew not what was become of him, until he died. And hence arose the Story of Jupiter Hammon's driving his Father Saturn out of his Country into Latium, so call'd a latendo, because he lay hid there, and it was not known whither he went. However (k) the Chinese Historians tell us of Fohi, or Noah their first Emperor, that he was rais'd to so great Fortune, for his excellent Qualifications; that he was eminent for Virtue, and skill'd in Astronomy. He made good Laws for the Kingdom, fenc'd their Towns with Walls, and gave Names for the better Distinguishing of Families. He introduc'd a Distinction of Apparel for both Sexes, and appointed Marriage; whereas before they liv'd promiscuously like Brutes; he also prohibited Marrying with such as were near of Kin; he was the Author of a musical Instrument of thirty six Strings, and was succeeded by the second Emperor Xinnum.

136. However the Report going in Assyria, that Noah was dead, being generally believ'd, and the Place, where he was suppos'd to be kill'd, being shewn for a Confirmation of it, and there being a great Plague or Mortality, and the Country being probably afflicted with War at the same Time, Ham offers up his only Son (who is therefore call'd Jouh) whom he had by Anobret, a Nymph of that Country, to appease the Ghost of his Father Noah, who was then consecrated by Ham as a God, being suppos'd to be kill'd at this his Expulsion. The Reason of this Consecration was, because Ham thought, that it would be more honourable to himself to be believ'd, whilst he liv'd, to be the Son of a Deity, and that after his own Death it would also pave the Way for his own Consecration. This was the Origin of that inhuman Offering of their Children to the Idol Mooch in the Land of Canaan, when they were burnt to death; which was afterward practis'd among the Pastors in Lower Egypt: An Abomination, which the Israelites were notoriously guilty of in following such a curs'd Example, and which GOD frequently complain'd of; and perhaps from them the wild Indians in America might take up this Custom, who once a Year offer a Sacrifice to the Devil in this Manner, who appears to them on a Hut (call'd a Wigwam) made for this Purpose, when the poor Wretch after all the Torments, which their Priest (whom they call a Pauwaw) stirr'd up by the Instigation of the Devil, can invent, is cast alive into a Fire, prepared for that Purpose, and so burnt to Ashes.

137. About this Time Melchartus, or the old Phœnician Anno Mundi Hercules liv'd, who is reported 1895. by Sanchoiatho to be the Son of Demaroon, and consequently the Grandson, or rather the great Grandson of Noah, and was in Part contemporary with him. He was famous for finding out the purple Dye: Hence the Country in the North of Canaan is call'd Phœnicia. This Dye being invented and appropriated to Kings in the Reign of Ham, is a sufficient Reason, why the Greeks might call him Porphyrius, that is, a King wearing Purple. This is the Hercules, who went to Tangier, or Tingis, where he fought with Anteus the first Founder of the Place, and Governor there: But not being able to take Possession of that Country, he sails through the Straights of Gibraltar, and comes to an Island near the Spanish Coast, where he built a Temple, and call'd the Name of the Place Gadira from the Phœnician or Hebrew Word גדר or a Hedge, because it was a Place hedg'd in by the Sea, that he could go no farther. It was since call'd Gades, and now Cadis, and was reckon'd the utmost western Limits of the ancient World; as a Token whereof the Pillars call'd Hercules his Pillars were erected there, and a Part of Morocco was call'd the Promontory of Hercules, which seems to intimate, as if some of those at least, who sail'd with him, settled there. And it is a great Mark of the Antiquity of that Temple, that there were no Images in it.

138. The Town of Ashtaroth having been built by Ham, as is before mention'd, in respect to his Wife Astarte or Ashtaroth, and she having put on her Head a Pair of Bull's Horns, as a Token of her Authority and Power, she caus'd the Town to be call'd Ashtaroth Carnaim, or Ashtaroth with two Horns, as a farther Testimony of her Supremacy in her Husband's Absence.

139. But as Cain (l) after the Murder of his Brother was afraid, lest every one who met him, should slay him; so Ham, after this unnatural Act to his aged Father, seems very apprehensive of the like Misfortune; or at least, that as he had surpriz'd Noah, so the Children of Shem would surprize him, and return the Wrong done upon his own Head. To prevent this, he sends for some of his Posterity to come and live nearer to him, that so he might be the

Stronger in Case of any Design. It happen'd, that Cush his eldest Son with his Families were the most straighten'd for want of Room, having the Children of Mizraim and Canaan behind them, the Red-Sea on the one Side, and the River Jordan on the other, and the Deserts of Arabia before them. Accordingly Cush removes with a considerable Part of his Family to live near his Father, and settles in the south Part of Babylon, in the Country since call'd Caduca, but anciently Chusca from his Name. And as (m) the wicked are apt to fly when no man pursues, and there needs no Judge or Accuser, but a guilty Conscience; so Ham, being more and more terrify'd in his Mind, retires from Babylon, and returns into

Canaan, and so he leaves his Son Cush, who is also call'd Belus the second, behind him, to succeed in the Government of that Country, where he reigns five and fifty Years. And about this Time the rest of the Coptick Letters are said to be invented, which was fifteen Years before the Time of Ægialeus. About this Time more Canaanites go into Egypt and joyn with the Pastors, who were before in that Country; so, that they are very successful against the Kingdom of Upper Egypt, and reduce it to the last Extremities.

140. Upon this these Canaanitish Pastors being flush'd with Success, form a Conspiracy against Mizraim the King of Egypt, at which Time he is slain by (n) a Wound in his Thigh, of which he bled to Death. Upon this the Egyptians compos'd a lamentable Song, (n) which was call'd Linus, or in their own Language Maneros, whereby (o) they lamented his Death every Year, and made it a part of their sacred Rites. This occasion'd the Lamentation of Venus for Adonis among the Greeks, and the (p) Weeping for Tammuz among the Idolatrous Jews. The Story among some is this: That Typho, who is reported to be the Brother of Pontus and Son of Japhet, resolving to be reveng'd on his Kinsman Mizraim, for his Attempting to rob his Father Japhet of his Countries in Greece, and actually Seizing on Lydia in the Lesser Asia, and also resolving, if possible, to prevent such Invasions for the future, comes into Egypt by Sea, joyns the Phœnician Pastors, and kills Mizraim. For this Reason the Egyptians represent him as an Hippopotamus or a River Horse, and abhor'd him, and call'd all the Pastors by the Name of Typho, to shew their utter Detestation of them; and thus the City of Pe'usium or Abaris, which Salatis fortify'd, was call'd Urbs Typhonia. Isis, the Widow of Mizraim, puts his dead Body into a Coffin, and sails with it to Ham, who was then at Berytus, where he is honourably bury'd; and then Isis desires Directions from Ham, what she should do in these present Difficulties. Upon this Ham sends Thoth or Atthotes the Son of Mizraim to succeed his Father, as the second King of Egypt; and Cotys succeeds him, as the second King of Lydia.

141. Upon the Arrival of Thoth in Egypt, he meets with a vigorous Opposition; for the Canaanitish Pastors accuse him of being a Bastard, and consequently affirm, that he had no Right to the Kingdom, and then they absolutely refuse to be govern'd by him. And taking the Advantage before the Kingdom was thoroughly settl'd, they make an Inroad into the Provinces of Upper Egypt, and after they had encamp'd there for some Time, until the rest of their Forces had joyn'd them, they (q) carry all before them without Opposition, putting their Princes in Chains, cruelly laying their Cities in Ashes, demolishing their Temples, and miserably Oppressing their Inhabitants, of whom some were cut to pieces, and others with their Wives and Children were sent into Bondage.

142. Upon this, Isis the Widow of Mizraim makes a great Addition to the Egyptian Religion, by introducing those Rites, which were call'd the Sacra Isiaca. The chief Design of which was to animate their Subjects to a stout Defence upon a religious Account, representing the Pastors of Lower Egypt as Enemies to, and Fighters against their Gods. Mizraim is now consecrated into the Constellation of Orion, whom the Phœnicians and Pastors in Derision call'd (r) כסיל or the Fool. And Isis after her her Decease was consecrated into the Dog-Star. And as these Egyptians, at this Time, had no Images in their Temples; so they represented their Gods by such Animals, which might be most expressive of their Actions. And thus Mizraim was represented by a Cat, to signify his quick Dispatch, in Laying hold of all Opportunities to sieze the Enemy; so that a Cat was constantly kept in the Temples dedicated to him, and esteem'd sacred for his Sake.

143. In the mean Time Thoth neglects nothing, by which he might put his Kingdom into a Posture of Defence; which being done, he Anno Mundi 1917. prepares to attack his Enemies, and finds out the way of Fighting on Horseback; whereas before they only fought upon Asses, or chiefly on Foot.

At this Time some of the Phœnician Pastors being discourag'd, as expecting nothing but Wars, return into the Land of Canaan, where they hop'd to live in Peace and Quietness, which was a Weak'ning and a Discouragement to the rest. Thoth perceiving this, resolves to Anno Mundi 1918. take the Advantage of it, and being well prepar'd, he fights three several Battles with the Phœnician Pastors; the first of which lasted for several Days; and thus he reveng'd his Father's Death, and reduc'd the Pastors again to some Extremities. He was a Philosophical Man, and an eminent and a learned Writer. He was Secretary and Counsellor to Ham, and after his Death he was consecrated into the Planet Mercury, and was call'd by the Greeks, Hermes. He makes some Alteration in the Egyptian Religion, by causing the plain historical Account of the Allegories to be writt'n. He promoted all Learning, especially the Skill of Physick, whence Ibis was consecrated to him. His Mother, who taught him some Medicines, when he was young, and probably learn'd more of him, when he was old, was the Goddess of Health, and call'd Ἑγία in Greek, and Salus in Latin. And as he was of the same Temper with his Father in pursuing the Enemy; so a Hound, the Symbol of his Sagacity, was constantly kept in the Temples dedicated to him, and esteem'd sacred for his Sake. And in the later Years, when Images were worshipp'd, his Statue was made with a Dog's Head in Commemoration hereof.

144. The Character, which Santhoniathos gives of him, when he was in the Land of Canaan, is this, Thoth was the Son of Mizraim, who found out the Writing of the first Letters, whom the Egyptians call Thoor, the Alexandrians Thoyth, and the Greeks Hermes. And when Ham came to be of Age, he us'd Thoth as his Counsellor and Assistant (for he was his Secretary) when he oppos'd his Father Noah, and aveng'd his Mother. And after this the God Thoth, having formerly imitated, or represented Noah, made Images of the Countenances of the Gods Ham and Dagon, and form'd the sacred Characters of the other Elements. He contriv'd also for Ham the Ensign of his Royal Power, four Eyes partly before and partly behind, two of them winking as in Sleep, and upon his Shoulders four Wings, two as flying, and two as let down to rest. The Emblem was, that Ham, as a God, when he slept, was yet watching, and when waking, yet slept: And so for his four Wings, that even resting he flew about, and flying yet rested. But the other Gods had each of them two Wings upon their Shoulders, to intimate that they flew about with or under him. He had also two Wings on his Head, one for the most governing Part, the Mind, and the other for the Sense. But Ham coming into the fourth Country, gave all Egypt to the God Thoth, that it should be his Kingdom. These things (saith Santhoniathos) the Gabiri, the seven Sons of Sydyce, and their eighth Brother Asclepius first of all set down in Memoirs, as their God Thoth had commanded them.

145. Soon after this Egialeus founded the most ancient Monarchy in Greece, of which we have any historical Account, which was that of the Sicyonians, situated on the north west side of the famous Peninsula, which is best known by the Name of Peloponnesus. This Kingdom was first call'd Egialea, either from the Name of its first King, who probably came thither by Sea from another Shore or Country, or because it lay near the Shore, Ἀσιαλός on that side of the Peninsula.

146. And now the Pastors in Lower Egypt, finding that their Enemies had better Success against them under a Monarchical Government, than they had formerly under an Aristocratical, resolve also to follow their Example, and alter the Form of their Government. Accordingly they chose Salutis for their first King, whose Courage and Conduct answer'd to the utmost of their Expectation. By his Management he puts another Turn to the Face of Affairs, and having retak'n all that was lost in Lower Egypt, he marches into the upper Country. He takes the famous City of Memphis, and having subjected the upper and lower Provinces he lays them all under Contribution, and bends his Forces toward Thebes the capital City of that Kingdom, which he very much straightens, tho' he was not able to take it. During his Stay in the Province of Thebais, he puts Garrisons into all tenable Places. He plunders many of their Goods. He kills some of the Egyptians, and carries away others into Slavery. He riles some of their Temples, and pulls down or burns others; and particularly he destroys all the Dogs, Cats, and other consecrated Animals, which he could meet with, which was the greatest Affront, that possibly could be offer'd, and laid the Foundation for a religious War in succeeding Generations. For the Religion of Upper Egypt consisting in Magnifying and Adoring their Kings, which fought against their

Enemies,

Enemies, and in Representing them by the fittest Animals, which they could think of, and in Vilifying and Detesting the Pastors of Lower Egypt under the Name of Typho, occasion'd also those of Lower Egypt to deify their Kings, and make Images of them, which were set up in their Temples, and also to exclaim against the others in their Turns. Thus the very Principles of their Religion caus'd a mortal Hatred one of the other. And as the one destroy'd all these Animals; so the others took Care to revenge it, whenever they had an Opportunity, in Destroying the Temples, and Breaking down all the Images, which they could meet with. All which only serv'd to increase the Rage and Fury of one against the other.

147. Among the Captives which Salatis took, there were two Women, who were Priestesses, one of which he sells into Africa, who founded the famous Oracle of Jupiter Hammon there; and the other he sells into that Part of Greece, which was call'd Thesprotis; who so far prevail'd with the Pelægi there seated, that they founded the no less famous Oracle of Jupiter Dodonæus. They were call'd by the Greeks metaphorically two black Doves, who spoke with human Tongues and did chatter, or talk with such Voices, as at first they did not understand. Thus Jupiter Hammon came to be worshipp'd by the Sons of Japhet. And accordingly Herodotus (s) assures us, that when he was at Dodona, and inquir'd of those who liv'd there, and were best skill'd in their Antiquities, he found the Reports of their Religion to agree in Substance, with that which he had been inform'd concerning the same Matter by the learned in Egypt.

148. About this Time Ham dies (for we hear no more of him afterwards) and leaves his Son Canaan to be the Governor of that Country, which was afterward call'd from him, The Land of Canaan. After the Death of Ham, the eleven Tribes, which descended from him (being encourag'd by the Example of the Philistins, and the Phœnician Pastors, who settl'd among them in distinct Bodies) set up for themselves, and so they are divided into eleven Kingdoms distinguish'd from each other, according to their several Names, as (t) they are mention'd by Moses; and afterward they were sub-divided, so that there were no less than (u) one and thirty Kings, when Joshua took Possession of that Country.

149. Salatis finding the Town of Thebais impregnable, resolves to lose no more Time before it, but to open for himself an easy Passage to and from the Land of Canaan, that so his Army might be recruited, as Occasion should require. For this Purpose he lays close Siege to the Town of Abaris or Pelusium, the chief Security of those Parts, and takes it from the Inhabitants of Upper Egypt. Mianetho (v) thus describes it. He fortify'd to the eastward in a more especial Manner, for fear of an Invasion from the Affyrians, whom he was then afraid of, as the greatest Power in Asia, and as a much more formidable Enemy, in case of a Rupture, than the Egyptians. He found in the Country of Saites, a City formerly call'd Abaris, which was situated very conveniently for his Purpose, to the East of the River Bubastis. This City he improv'd and repair'd, and fortify'd it with strong Works and Walls, and a Body of two hundred and forty thousand Men to cover it. He made choice of harvest Time for the Execution of his Design, with Regard both to the Plenty of the Season for Provisions, and also to the Means of Paying his Soldiers. And he also took hereby, and by his excellent Discipline and Conduct, an effectual Care to secure himself against all Assaults and Invasions. During the Siege this Town was defended by the Philistins, who were one of the Tribes of Egypt, and particularly dwelt in those Parts. The Town took its Name from them; and they also call'd it frequently Caphtor, it being a Place of the utmost Consequence, which made them defend it with the greater Vigour. However being reduc'd to the utmost Extremities, they compound with Salatis to deliver up the Town to him, upon Condition that they might retire out of the Country. Accordingly they quietly retreat into the Land of Canaan. But when they were there, remembering that the Avim or Hivites had formerly stirr'd up their Brethren to come into Lower Egypt, and so had been the Ringleaders of all the Mischief there, these Philistins, in Revenge for their past Sufferings, fall upon them, and seize upon their Land. This Example, among others, Moses useth to encourage the Israelites to believe that GOD could, and would, according to his Promise, subdue the Canaanites before them, and place them in their Land. For (y) He had cast out the Zamzummins before the Ammonites, and the Horims before the Children of their Brother Esau. And as for the Avim, who dwelt in Hazerim even unto Azzah, the Caphtorim, which came forth out of Caphtor, destroy'd them, and dwelt in their Stead. These Philistins afterward divided themselves into five Lordships, under five Lords, who settle in five distinct Cities, namely, in (z) Ashdod, Gaza, Askelon, Gath, and Ekron, who sometimes had a King over themselves, as (a) Abimelech was in Abraham's Time.

150. When Salatis had reign'd nineteen Years, in so successful a Manner, he dies, and was succeeded by Bæon the second King of Lower Egypt, who reign'd four and forty Years; and he also carried on a vigorous War. It is probable, that about this Time they might invent the Way of Fighting (b) with Chariots of Iron, beset on each Side with sharp Scythes, that when the Horses ran with full Speed, they might cut in two those, who stood in their Way. Those look'd very formidable at first, and are (c) taken notice of accordingly in Scripture. But in Time, like the Elephants, they were found not to be so useful, as they were imagin'd, being too heavy for Speed, and even prejudicial to those, who rode in them, or their own Army, in case any Horse should be frightn'd, kill'd, or wounded; and so they were laid aside again.

151. However Thoth was not so intent upon the Wars, but he also took Anno Mundi 1940. Care for the Advancement of Learning, which seem'd to be his peculiar Talent. And therefore, having formerly settl'd the publick Records at Berytus, he takes the same Method, and founds a Library in Thebais, and appoints his Scribes to write down an historical Account of all the memorable Transactions of the World, and to preserve it there for the Benefit of future Ages. And as (d) Moses is expressly said, to have been learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians; so it is probable, that out of these Records he took the Account, which he hath mention'd in the Book of Genesis, and so proceeded to continue the History in the four other Books, whilst the HOLY GHOST assisted and directed him in this Undertaking, that he could not mistake.

152. We are now come to (e) the Birth of Anno Mundi 1954. Haran the Son of Terah, and eldest Brother of Abraham; about which Time also it is probable, that Cush, who was seated on the south Side of Babylon, passes over the Phasitigris, and invading Persia with his Forces, seizes upon that Country, which he afterwards call'd by his own Name Chuzestan, or the Province of Cush. Upon this Joktan, who was the Brother of Peleg, of the Race of Shem, having a very numerous Family situated in those Parts, being straightn'd for Room, and fearing such a powerful Invasion, passes over the Persian Gulf, and settles in Arabia the Happy, where he founds a Kingdom; and not only reigns himself, but (f) the learned Dr. Pocock reckons up out of the Arabick Writers no less than eight and forty of his Posterity, who succeeded him in the same. Here he changes his Name, so that he is no longer call'd Joktan, which signifies the younger Brother, but Kahlan. And soon after this Obal, one of his Sons, passes from thence into Africa over the Red-Sea, at Anno Mundi 1960. the Straights of Babelmandel, and settles on the other Side. And thus the Posterity of Ham, when they seiz'd on that Part which was allotted to Shem by their Father Noah, lost a better and larger Country, which they neglected, or perhaps knew nothing of, and so they paid dear for their Conquest.

153. About this Time Thoth rectifies and settles the Egyptian Year, of which I shall add this following Account. Tho' the Anno Mundi 1955. rest of the Oriental Nations had Lunar Years, yet it seems most probable, that the Egyptians, from the Time of their first inhabiting that Country, reckon'd only by those which were Solar, and consequently most easy to compute. Accordingly the Zodiack having twelve Signs, they divided the Year into twelve Months; and every Sign having thirty Degrees, they suppos'd, that the Motion of the Sun was always equal, and that it mov'd an exact Degree in a Day, so that they made every Month to consist of thirty Days. This Form being establish'd by Mizraim the first King of Egypt, one of the Months, by a Corruption of his Name, was call'd Mesori; and this, it is probable, was the first Month in his Time. Now their Year consisting of three hundred and sixty Days, was five Days and a Quarter shorter than the real Revolution of the Sun; so that in about seventy Years there were but sixty nine Revolutions, and the Beginning of the Year pass'd through all the Seasons, and came to the same Time again. From thence arose the (g) Egyptian Fable, that in the Time of their eldest Kings (or from the Time that the Kingdom was inhabited, which was in the Year 1815) the Sun had twice chang'd its Rising and Setting; which must happen in such a Case in 140 Years, and was only caus'd by the Variation of their Months, and not by any Alteration in the Course of the Sun. Now the Egyptian Priests observing this Defect, saw a Necessity of (h) adding five Days to the End of the Year, which were therefore call'd ἐπεσόμενοι or super-added, and implies, that they were not anciently in Use among them, being afterward added, to make up the Course of the Year. This was the Way of Computation in the famous Ara of Nabonassar, and perhaps continu'd in use wherever Solar Years took Place, until they were farther rectify'd by Julius Caesar. Of this the Egyptians give us an Account under this (i) Fable,

That Mercury (or Thoth) being once at Dice with the Moon, he got from her a seventy second Part of the Year, and these he afterward added to the 360 Days, which were anciently the Days of the Year, and therein he celebrated the Festivals of their Gods. And as Thoth succeeded Mizraim in the Kingdom, so the Month of Thoth succeeded Mefori in the Calendar, until they afterward chang'd the Order of the Months; when by putting Thoth for the first Month (for a better Commemorating of such an Alteration) which before might be the Second, the Month Mefori, which before was the first, came of Course to be the last of all, as it is in the present Catalogue.

154. Cush or Belus the Second being now dead, his Son Nimrod, who is often call'd Ninus by the Heathen Writers, succeeds him in the Empire of Assyria. It is certain, that he was not the eldest Son of Cush, but ingratiated himself into the Affections of the People, during the Life of his Father, and so seiz'd upon the Government at his Decease; and therefore Moses calls him Nimrod, or the Rebel. But when he had gott'n Possession by the Sword, he was willing to keep it by an Hereditary Right, and therefore call'd himself Nin or Ninus, נין or the Son, thereby shewing that he was the Son of the late King, and therefore had a Right to rule after him. He is reputed to be the Founder of the Assyrian Monarchy, and to have reign'd two and fifty Years. Hence we may conjecture, that Nimrod is the same with him, who among the Greeks was call'd Bacchus, this Name being but an Abbreviation of the Chaldean Words בר כוש Bar Cush or the Son of Cush; and therefore his Conquests in the East as far as India, are nothing else but the Expeditions of Nimrod and his Successors. The Arabians say, (k) that he saw the Resemblance of a Crown in Heaven, and sent for a Smith, who should make the like in Gold, and put it upon his Head. And the Report went of him throughout all the Country, that the Crown came down to him from Heaven. They also add, that whereas before his Time the Babylonians worshipp'd the Sun, Moon and Stars, he (l) was the first, that taught the Assyrians to worship the Fire, having seen an Emblem of the divine Majesty, which commonly appear'd in a glorious Flame; and he appointed a Priest, who should daily attend it, and frequently throw Frankincense into it; and that from his Time the Magi in the East were Worshippers of Fire. Ur a City in Chaldea seems to have had its Name from the Fire, which was there worshipp'd; and some of the Jews think, that Ur in Mesopotamia, whence Abraham came, had the same Origin-

nal. This Empire stood from the Time of Nimrod to the Time of Cyrus, who put an end to it, and establish'd the Persian Monarchy. It is represented in Daniel by (m) a Head of an Image, the first and principal Part made of pure Gold, the Emperor whereof was King of kings, to whom the GOD of heaven had given a kingdom, power, and strength, and glory, and had given all into his hand, and made him ruler over all; and also by (n) a Lyon, a Creature most fierce and terrible, which had eagles wings, to represent the Swiftnefs of its Conquests at the Beginning, tho' afterward the wings were pluck'd, and it conquer'd no longer, but even lost a considerable Part of the Empire; and it was lifted up above the earth, reckon'd greater than all the rest of the World, tho' afterward it was made to stand upon the feet as a man, continu'd it self within its own Limits, and a man's heart was given to it, its Government was more mild and gentle, and not so savage and barbarous as it was at first. And it is mention'd by (o) Joel, as the Palmer-worm, which afflicted the Israelites, when they were carry'd away Captives. As for Nimrod himself, Moses saith, (p) He began to be a mighty one in the earth: He was the first great Warrior and Conqueror; and as some will have it, a more severe Governor than any others had been, who only exercis'd paternal Authority. For he was the first, that put down the Government of Parents or elder Brethren, and laid the Foundation of sovereign Rule, which, as it must be begun with Violence, so it needed the greater Violence to support it.

155. To this Moses adds, that (q) he was a mighty hunter, or mighty in hunting, insomuch that it became a Proverb in his Days, when Men would express how exceeding great any Man was, they said, He was like Nimrod, the mighty hunter before the LORD. This shews by what means he came to be so great a Monarch. He hardned himself to Labour by this Exercise, which was very toilsome, and drew together a great Company of stout young Men to attend him in this Sport, who were hereby also fitted to pursue Men, as they had done wild Beasts. And it may be observ'd, that in this Age of Nimrod the Exercise of Hunting might well be the more highly esteem'd, and win the Hearts of Men, because he deliver'd them by this Means from those wild Beasts, to which they were very much expos'd, and by which the Country was much infested, whilst they were but few, and liv'd scatter'd up and down in the open Air, or in Tents weakly defended. The Destroying of wild Beasts, and perhaps of Thieves also, whom he might hunt, was a great Service in those Times, and made many join with him in greater Designs, which he had at last, to subdue Men, and make himself Master of the neighbouring Country. The Memory of this his Hunting was preserv'd by the Affyrians, in making Nimrod the same with Orion, and joining the Dog and the Hare with this Constellation.

156. When he had thus provided himself, he seizes on the City of Babylon. This Moses expressly (r) tells us was the Beginning of his Kingdom. Babylon was built before the Confusion of Languages, but it seems to have been but small; for (s) at that Time they left off to build it, which shews, that they intended to have made it larger. After this it is probable, that it might be enlarg'd by Ham and his Son Cush or Belus the Second; but all this was inconsiderable, to what Nimrod did afterward, when he resolv'd to make it the Capital City of the whole Empire. The Grandeur of this Town was extraordinary, and is exactly describ'd, by (t) the eminent Historian of our own Country. Particularly the Walls were every Way prodigious. For they were in Thickness 87 Feet, in Height 370 Feet, and in Length 480 Furlongs, which make Sixty of our Miles. This is Herodotus his Account of them, who was himself at Babylon, and is the ancientest Author, who hath wrote of this Matter. The Walls were drawn round the City in the Form of an exact Square, and surrounded on the outside with a vast Ditch fill'd with Water, and lin'd with Bricks on both Sides, and the Earth which was dug out of it, made the Bricks, whereby the Walls were built; and therefore from the vast Height and Breadth of the Walls may be inferr'd the Greatness of the Ditch. On every Side of this great Square there were 25 Gates, or 100 in all; and there were two hundred and fifty Towers, each of them being ten Feet higher than the Walls. So that it was justly reckon'd to be one of the seven Wonders of the World. It is very probable, that Nimrod began to build these Walls, as soon as he was in Possession of the City, not only for Grandeur and Magnificence, but also for Strength, and to secure himself in his Usurpations; and his Widow Semiramis finish'd them, from whence she was said by some to be the Builder of them: And indeed considering (u) how they were employ'd in other Affairs, it may easily be judg'd, that here was Work enough for them both.

157. Here we may observe, how exact Moses is in telling us, what Cities Nimrod built, and what he did not. The (x) Cities which he found already built were Erech, Accad, and Calneh in the Land of Shinar. As to Erech, there is no doubt, but it is the same, which is mention'd by Ptolemy under the Name of Aracca, and by Ammianus is call'd Aracca. Here were the Araccæi call'd mention'd by Tibullus. And from hence it is suppos'd, that the Country below it was call'd Iraque by the Arabian Writers. And here were the Colony of (v) the Archevites, mention'd by Ezra as Neighbours to the Babylonians; and it is plac'd by him at the last or most southern Turning of the Chanel of the Tigris and Euphrates, in the Country of Chuzestan.

158. The next is Accad, which lay Northward of the other, and probably at the common Joining of the Tigris and Euphrates. The Septuagint calls it Archad, and the Footsteps of this Name may be thought to remain in Argad a River of Sittacene in Persia. And it is probable, that when Cush fix'd upon the Provinces of Chuzestan, he built these two Towns upon the River, thereby to secure its Communication, and open Passes into his former Country, the better to bring Reinforcements over as Occasion should require; and so Nimrod found it in the same Condition, in which his Father left it.

159. The next is Calneh, the last of those, which are mention'd in the Land of Shinar. It was call'd by (z) Isaiab, Chano, and by (a) Ezekiel, Channeb. It is said by the Chaldee Paraphrast, and also by Eusebius and St. Jerom, to be the same with Ctesiphon upon the Tigris, about three Miles distant from Seleucia, and for some Time the Capital City of the Parthians. For this Reason the Country about Ctesiphon is by (b) the Greeks call'd Chalontis. And it is probable, that this Town was first built by the Posterity of Shem, to be a Curb to the Inhabitants of Babylon, and prevent their Incroachments; but when they were attack'd by Nimrod with a superior Force, they retir'd from it, and left him in Possession.

160. Nimrod having secur'd his Dominions in the East, by the Inlarging and Fortifying these three Towns, he now thinks of new Con-

(r) Gen. 10. 10. (s) Gen. 11. 8. (t) Prideaux his Historical Connexion, Part 1. Book 2: Page 95. (u) As Nimrod and Semiramis reign'd in all ninety four Years; so let us suppose that eighty Years were spent in building these Walls, in which there were in all 29220 Days. From hence subtract 4174 Sundays, which were spent in the Worship of the Sun, and the Remainder is 25046 working-days. On the other Hand, the Walls being 60 Miles round contain 316800 Feet, which multiply'd by 87 the Breadth, and 350 the Height, make in all 9646560000 cubical Feet. Let us then suppose, that one able Mason well taked would finish 100 cubical Feet in a Day, there will remain 96465600 Feet in all, which divided by 25046, the Remainder is 3851 Masons; and considering the Number necessary for dressing Provisions of all Sorts, digging Clay, making Morter and Bricks, and burning them, and bringing all Necessaries to the Workmen, from a considerable Distance, we cannot think the Number employ'd daily could be much less than 40000 Men, which were more than they could well spare at that Time. (x) Gen. 10. 10. (y) Ezra 4. 7. (z) Isai. 10. 9. (a) Ezek. 27. 23. (b) Strabo, Polybius, Dionysius Periegetes, and also Pliny.

quests in the West; and accordingly he (c) marches with his Army from Babylon on the north Side of the Tigris, and seizes on Assyria, which was allotted by Noah to Assur the Son of Shem. Here it is probable, that he found no Cities, but the Inhabitants dwelt in Tents, according to the ancient Custom of those Times; and therefore being overpower'd they fled from him without any Resistance. And passing over the Tigris they were forc'd by Necessity to seize on the Country of Japhet, where the Inhabitants were but few, because the greater Part had not only seated themselves in Asia the less, but had also peopl'd Greece before this Time. And thus from the Posterity of Assur the Country on the other Side of the Tigris is also call'd Assyria. And these observing with what Industry the Subjects of Nimrod built Cities upon the Rivers, to secure their Communication on the Tigris, to prevent the like on the other Side, they built a strong Fort in the Island of the Euphrates, and in the utmost Limits of their Country toward Babylon, which (c) they call'd Telassar, or the Fortification of Assur or the Assyrians.

161. Nimrod having thus seiz'd on the Country of Assur one of the Sons of Shem, goes on Westward, and attacks the Country of Aram, another of his Sons, with the same Success; who also pass the Tigris, where the Waters were more fordable, and seizes upon the other Part of the Country of Japhet, adjoining to what was seiz'd by Assur, and so forces them farther Westward. Hence that Country was call'd (e) Aram nabaraim (Aram between the Rivers of Tigris and Euphrates) and (f) Padan aram, or פדן ארם the Camp of Aram, also Aram of Zobab, Aram of Damascus, Aram of Bethrehab, and Aram of Maacha, all which we call the Syrians from the later Name of the Inhabitants of these Countries.

162. Upon this Nimrod sets himself to build Cities, and the first which he builds was Nineveh. Here he is suppos'd to have dwelt for some Time, the better to secure the Country, and therefore it was call'd בין נהר or the Habitation of Ninus. From whence we may suppose, that his real Name was Ninus, as he is call'd by Heathen Authors; tho' Moses calls him Nimrod or The Rebel, to describe his Temper: And whoever considers the Character of him giv'n by (g) Justin, and compares it with the Commentators on Genesis, may easily conclude it to be the same Person. This City really stood on the north Side of the Tigris, tho' in a Place where the Stream ran from North to South, and therefore is said to stand on the west Side.

163. Nimrod having before laid the Foundation of prodigious Walls in Babylon, in the Form of an exact Square, when he liv'd there, lays also the Foundation of vast Walls in this Town: And tho' the Situation would not allow it to be an exact Square like the other, yet he endeavours to resemble it as much as he could, so that it was made in the Form of a Parallelogram, and the whole Circuit of the one was exactly the same with the other. And and it is probable that by this Method he kept his Soldiers employ'd, that they might be more strong and hardy, and consequently the better able to fight, and endure the Hardships of a Campaign at another Time.

164. The Walls of this City were (g) an hundred and fifty Furlongs, or near nineteen Miles in length, and ninety Furlongs or somewhat above eleven Miles in breadth, and, like Babylon, an hundred an eighty Miles in Compass. The height of those Walls was an hundred Feet, and the breadth so much, that three Carts might go a breast on the Top thereof (which we may suppose to be about thirty Feet) and along these Walls there were fifteen hundred Turrets, each of them two hundred Feet high. But whoever compares them with (h) the Walls of Babylon, may observe, that the same number of Men, which would take up eighty Years to finish the one, would finish the other in eight Years Time. Hence it is call'd an (i) exceeding great city of three days journey, that is, not as to its Length, but as to its Compass, accounting twenty Miles for a Day's Journey, according to the common Estimation of those elder Times, as also of the Greeks and Romans in the succeeding Ages, as the learned Bochartus hath prov'd by many Instances. Against this (k) an Objection hath been rais'd from the following Verse, where it is said, that Jonas began to enter into the city a days journey, which seems plainly to intimate, that the measure of three days journey mention'd in the foregoing Verse, is to be understood not of the Compass, but of the inside of the City. But this Objection will be answer'd, if we consider, that the (l) Hebrew Word doth not only signify a Journey, but also a large broad Walk, such as was upon the Top of the Wall; and that, which we translate a Day, (m) signify's sometimes the first Day, and then the Sense will run thus: Jonas enter'd into the City in the nearest Part to the Land of Canaan, by passing over the Tigris, and he stood upon some part same; so the Breadth and Height of the one multiply'd together were about the tenth Part of the other. Thus the Height of the Wall of Nineveh, 100 Feet, multiply'd by 30 makes 3000. But the Height of the Wall of Baby- lon, 350 Feet, multiply'd by the Breadth or 87 Feet, is in all 30450, which is ten Times as much as the other.

of the Walk on the Wall, which belong'd to the first Day, or was near the Entrance.

145. However it may easily be suppos'd, that there were (m) in Nineveh more than six score thousand persons, who could not discern between their right hand and their left. For (n) Nineveh was without any void Ground, that we are told of, and (o) it contain'd 14400 square Furlongs, or 225 square Miles in the whole; so that if we allow but nine Infants to every square Furlong, or 533 Infants to every square Mile, reckoning those of two Years old and under, it will make up the whole Number: And this is so moderate a Computation, that the like or more may be observ'd in most of the Cities of England at this Time.

146. Nimrod being thus seated in Nineveh for some Time, his Subjects went farther into Assyria, and built three other Cities, which Moses (p) takes Notice of; and thus what is done by them, is more particularly said to be done by him their Emperor. But these having been since ruin'd, there is nothing mention'd of them, which will amount to more than a bare Conjecture. The first is Reboboth, which Word in the Hebrew signifies Streets, and hath the word City added, to shew that here it must be tak'n as a proper Name, distinct from those before and after. And there being no Footsteps of the Name in these Parts, but there being a Town call'd Birtha by Ptolomy, which in Chaldee signifies Streets, as the other doth in Hebrew, we may conclude, that they are only two different Names of the same City, which stood upon the Tigris at the Mouth of the River Lycus.

147. The next City built was Calab, which stood about the Head of the River Lycus, and was probably the capital City of the Country call'd Calachene, as it is mention'd by Strabo, and Calacine by Ptolomy. Here also Pliny mentions a People call'd Classitæ, which is most probably a Corruption from Calacbitæ. This Town with a little Variation was probably call'd Halab, and is therefore suppos'd to be the City and Country, into (q) which Sbalmanezzer King of Assyria transported some of the ten Tribes of Israel.

148. The last Town, as mention'd by Moses to have been built by Nimrod, was Resen, which is suppos'd to be mention'd by Zenophon, under the Name Larissa. For first, the Situation of this Larissa lying on the Tigris, agrees very well with the Situation of Resen, as it was mention'd by Moses, who tells us (r) that it was between Nineveh and Calab. Secondly, Moses observes, that it was a great City, and Xenophon tells us, that Larissa was a strong and great, but then a ruined City, being eight Miles in Compass, and its Walls an hundred Feet high, and twenty five Feet broad. Lastly, Larissa appears to be a Greek Name; but there were no Greek Cities in Assyria in the Days of Xenophon or before Alexander the Great, and consequently no Larissa. And therefore it is probable, that the Greeks asking what City those were the Ruins of; the Assyrians might answer, Leresen, that is, of Resen, which Word Xenophon might express by Larissa, a Word well known to him, being the Name of several great Cities, and particularly of one in Thessaly, where Achilles was born.

149. Nimrod having thus conquer'd his Neighbours the Assyrians, which lay on the North and West of Babylon, proceeds toward the (s) South west, where he meets with a People unskill'd in War, and consequently not able to resist him; by which means he makes an easy Conquest as far as the ancient Limits of Africa, and daily gathering strength by his new Victories, he is said to subdue all the People of the East; and so he establishes the Assyrian Monarchy, of which more hereafter.

150. It is not improbable, but Nimrod's Coming toward Egypt might cause Thoth to draw a great Part of his Forces toward Pelusi-um, and so secure the Passes into that Country; and they being veteran Soldiers, and advantageously posted, oblig'd Nimrod to lay aside all his Designs on that Country, which he saw, must be attended with Difficulty and Hazard.

However the Canaanitish Pastors take the Advantage of the Army being thus divided, and set upon Thoth, who being taken Prisoner, they most barbarously tear him Limb from Limb; and Thoth or Athoth the second succeeds him in the Kingdom of upper Egypt, where he reigns two and thirty Years.

151. Soon after this Baon King of lower Egypt dies also, and Apachnas succeeds him, who was always a stout Warrior, and reign'd seven and thirty years. And Tyrrhenus or Tyrsenus, the the fourth King from Mizraim inclusivly, begins to reign in Lydia. And not many Years after, the Chinese observ'd on the twenty sixth Day of February a very remarkable Conjunction of five Planets in the Sign Xe, and the Moon chang'd about six of the Clock in the Morning on the next Day; which, tho' the Chinese tell us, happen'd in the Reign of their Monarch Chuenbio, who according to

This appears by multiplying the Length 150 Furlongs by the Breadth 90 Furlongs, the Total whereof is 14400, by which if we divide 120000 the Quotient will scarce amount to nine; If also 14400 Furlongs is divided by 64, which make a square Mile, the Remainder is 225 Miles, by which if 120000 is divided, the Quotient will be 533, the number of Infants in a square Mile, as the other was in a square Furlong. able that he, or some of his Posterity in Memory of him, gave the Name to a Town upon Euphrates call'd Phalga, before his Grandfather Arphaxad and his Family were driv'n out of those Parts by Nimrod. It was situated not far from the Place, where Euphrates receives the River Chabar, mention'd by (1) Ezekiel, upon which Charrae or Haran stood, and was the Place through which Abraham pass'd in his Journey to Canaan. Peleg was the first Person, whose Death Moses mention'd before the Flood, and is suppos'd by (†) some to have been the Father of Melchisedeck.

154. We have now finish'd the History of the World for the first two thousand Years, concerning which it hath been anciently observ'd by Christians, and probably by the most ancient Jews, That (u) the World was created to last six thousand Years; that is, two thousand Years (x) before the Law, two thousand Years under the Law, and two thousand Years under the Messias; that these are the six Days of the Week before GOD, with whom (y) one day is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day. And thus the seventh Day or the Sabbath is an eternal Rest in the Kingdom of Heaven. If the latter Jews had kept to this Notion, there had been an end of all their Controversies concerning the Messias. But this Account is not exact. It is agreed by all, that the Law was giv'n in the 2513th Year after the Creation, and that from thence to the Birth of CHRIST is not full fifteen hundred Years. Others therefore divide it thus; Two thousand Years before the Promise was giv'n to Abraham, and two thousand Years before it was fulfill'd in the Birth of CHRIST. But this, tho' exacter than the other, is not exactly true, because the Promise was not giv'n until the Year of the World 2083. I shall therefore divide the Ages of the World in the following Method. First, I suppose, that at the end of two thousand Years Noah died, who was the Father of the new World, and was immediately succeeded by the Birth of Abraham the Father of the faithful. Secondly, that the six Days of Labour may represent a State of Labour and Trouble to the Church of GOD, for six thousand Years; and as the first three thousand Years did end in the Perfecting of the material legal Temple built by Solomon; so the other three thousand Years will end in the Perfecting of the spiritual evangelical Temple, of which JESUS CHRIST is the (z) chief corner stone. Or thus, Two thousand Years before the Birth of him, to whom the Promise of the MESSIAS was giv'n; two thousand Years before the Birth of the MESSIAS, in whom the Promises were fulfill'd; and under him, two thousand Years of Labour and Trouble, answering to the six Days of the Week, and one thousand Years of Peace and Rest, answering to the seventh Day or the Sabbath. This thousand Years, which immediately succeeds in the course of the History, may also be divided into two Parts nearly equal, that is, five hundred Years before the Law was giv'n, and five hundred Years before the Temple was compleated.

155. For an Introduction into the History of the next thousand Years, I suppose, that it will not be unacceptable to the Reader, to give him an Account of the Rise and Progress of Idolatry, strictly so speaking, in those early Ages of the World. When the Flood swept away all Mankind, Noah and his Family excepted, it swept away all the Remembrance of the Idols worshipp'd in those Days. But as Ham marry'd into the Idolatrous Race of Lamech, so he retain'd a strong Inclination to such a false Worship, especially after he was not only curs'd by Noah, but also separated from the Posterity of Shem, among whom the Worship of the true GOD consist'd. Ham being therefore willing after his Decease to be esteem'd as a GOD, resolv'd to introduce an Example of this Nature in his Life Time. And there being no one, who could be introduc'd, except Noah, Ham consecrates him upon his Expulsion out of his Habitation, and when the Report ran, that he was really dead. To make this the more observable, when there was a Plague and Mortality,

(1) Ezcl. 1. 1, 3, and 3. 15, 23, and 10. 15, 20, 21, and 43. 3. (†) Elmachinus. (u) The first Occasion of this Notion was the observing some of the Hebrew Letters in the first verse of Genesis thus, the first Letter is ב or Beth, which in Hebrew signifies the number two, and implies (according to the Rabbinical Fancies) that in the beginning GOD created two Worlds, viz. that which is present, and that which is to come. In this case there are also contain'd six א or Alephs, each of which signifies a thousand, and accordingly intimates, that this World, which was thus created, was to last six thousand Years. (x) This the Hebrews call'd עולם אבות or The Age of Emptiness. (y) 2 Pet. 3. 8. (z) Ephes. 2. 20.

lity, Ham offers his only Son, whom he had by a Nymph of that Country call'd Anobret, as a whole burnt Offering to appease the Ghost of his Father Noah; and as before they had worshipp'd the Sun, Moon and Stars, so to give the better Grace to this new Idolatry, Noah was consecrated into the Planet Saturn. Hence arose the Story of Saturn's being driv'n out of his Kingdom by his Son Jupiter, so much talk'd of among the Heathen Poets. And as none of their History went before the Flood, but the Account of Time began with the History of Noah; so the Planet Saturn was call'd Chronus or Time by the Greeks.

156. This Offering of Cain's Son by his own Father gave Rise to the (a) Offering of their Sons and their Daughters to strange Gods, both in the Land of Canaan and in lower Egypt, and (b) particularly to the Idol Moloch, so often mention'd in the Sacred Scriptures, where he is sometimes called Moloch, sometimes Molech, and sometimes Milcom, and was the reputed God not only of the Ammonites, but also of the Moabites: He had his Name from the Hebrew Word מלך which signifies a King or a Prince, and the Septuagint give him sometimes the one Title, and sometimes the other. And it is probable, that Noah was meant by this Word, because he was a King over the new World, and that Noah after he was consecrated, is probably thought to have been worshipp'd under the Name of Chronus or Saturn. His Temple was built (c) without Jerusalem in a separate Place, where he had seven Chappels, and his Image made of Brass was plac'd before them. He had the Face of a Bullock, and his Hands were spread abroad like a Man who opens his Hands to receive something from another, and they set it on Fire within, for it was hollow, and every Man severally enter'd according to his Offering. He who offer'd a Fowl went into the first Chappel, he that offer'd a Sheep went into the second, a Lamb into the third, a Calf into the fourth, a Bullock into the fifth, an Ox into the sixth, and he that offer'd his Son went into the seventh. When they sacrific'd their Children, they plac'd them in the Arms of this Image, which was made red hot by Fire in the Inside on Purpose to receive them, and so contriv'd, that they might clasp together and hold them fast; and at the same Time they did beat upon Tabrets or Drums, that the Cry of the Child might not be heard by the Father. For this Reason the Place was call'd תופת Tophet, from תוף which signifies a Drum; and the Chappels were in גי הנום Gehinnom or the Valley of Hinnom; and the Word γέεννα, Gehenna in the (d) Greek, which signifies Hell, alludes thereto; the restless Torments whereof were represented by the bitter Cries of those poor

Infants; as well as its Perpetuity, by the other Fire kept continually burning, for the Consuming of the dead Carcasses, and the Filth and Garbidge, which was brought out from Jerusalem. This is the God, to whom the (e) Se-pharvites burnt their Children in the Fire, by the Name of Adrammeleck, or אדר כלך the mighty Moloch, whom they repented, as an evil GOD, the Origine of Mischief, and a bad Genius, and therefore worshipp'd him for fear, as some Indians worship the Devil, reckoning him to be the Planet Saturn; to prevent whole Effects, they also worshipp'd Anammeleck, or אן מלך the Cloud, Protector or Defender from Moloch, whom they represented as a good GOD, the Origine of Blessings, and an happy Genius, and therefore worshipp'd him for Love, reckoning him to be the Planet Jupiter, or Ham the Expeller of Noah, by which Means the one grew into less Esteem, and the other into greater. And this may be the Reason, why Saturn is reckon'd the greatest malevolent Planer, and Jupiter the greatest benevolent among the Astrologers. It is probable, that Noah was worshipp'd by the Philistins under the Name of (f) Dagon, from the Hebrew Word דג, which signifies a Fish, and (g) it was made from the Navel downward in the Form of a Fish, but from the Navel upward in the Form of a Man. The Design whereof was to shew us, that he, whom they worshipp'd, had liv'd among the Waters of the Flood, which destroy'd the rest of the World, and afterward liv'd as a Man upon the Earth. And thus when Dagon was punish'd by GOD, and fall'n upon his Face to the Ground, we read of no Legs, which he had, but that the Head of Dagon and both his Arms were cut off upon the Threshold of his Temple, and only the Stump, or the fishy Part of Dagon (as it is in the Margin of our Bibles) was left unto him. But that Noah was worshipp'd, is plain from the Account, which Lucian gives us of the Adytum or most holy Place of the Temple at Hierapolis, where there were three Statues; the two outermost whereof he judg'd to be Jupiter and Juno, but they had no proper Name for the middle Statue; however he judg'd it to be the elder Deucalion, who came from the Mountains of Scythia and Ararat, and can be no other than Noah, the Father of this Ham or Jupiter. To confirm this he tells us, that there was a golden Dove, which stood upon his Head, and is a fair Intimation of Noah's Dove, which Bird was so sacred there, that they never did eat any Pidgeons about Hierapolis. This Dove (saith he) flew away twice a Year, as they reported, at the Time of the Commemoration there made of the Flood, by pouring out Abundance of Water, which not only the Priests but numberless other Men brought from all Syria, Arabia,

Arabia, from beyond Euphrates, and even from the Sea, which being pour'd down into the Temple ran all into a Chasm or Cleft of the Earth, which was formerly so great, that (as they said) it swallow'd up all the Flood, that drown'd the World. He doth not tell us, that he saw the golden Dove fly, that was only a thing told him, and its Flight was miraculously manag'd in the Temple, and directed by an Oracle; in which we may suppose, that there were many Arts of Delusion to abuse the credulous People. However the Story is so applicable to Noah, that any one, who hath read his History in the sacred Scriptures, will readily understand it.

157. The next in Order to be consecrated must be the Wife of Noah. As he is said in Scripture to be an Husbandman, or as it is in the Hebrew, the Husband of the Earth; so from hence the Greeks at first call'd his Wife Ge, or the Earth. And there being no fitter a Husband for the Earth than the Heavens, hence they call'd Noah by the Name of Ouranus or Heaven. And as they reckon'd all Creatures to arise from a Mixture of celestial and terrestrial Elements, hence they might reckon these two to be the first Producers not only of all Mankind, but of all other Creatures whatsoever. It is not therefore probable, that the Wife of Noah was consecrated into any Star, but only reputed to be the Earth it self; and as she was the Mother of all those, who in after Ages were reputed as Gods, so she was worshipp'd among the Lydians and Grecians by the Name of Cybele, the Mother of the Gods. The Head of her Image was crown'd with many Towers, to shew the many Towers and Castles built upon the Earth. In her Hand she carry'd a Key, because in Winter the Earth locks up those Treasures, which she brings forth with so much Plenty in the Summer. Her Garments were painted with several Colours, and figur'd with the Images of several Creatures; she was call'd Cybele, from a Hill of that Name, where she was chiefly worshipp'd, and Ops from Wealth and Help, because all Riches come from her, and she is still assisting of us. She was also call'd Rhea, from the Greek Word ῥέω to flow, because she abounds with all good Things, or perhaps from the Hebrew Word רָעָה to feed, as Shepherds do their Sheep; and hence the Greeks might learn such Epithets and Phrases, as do suit well with this Notion.

158. As Noah was thus deify'd, and his Wife (whoever she was) was reckoned the Mother of the Gods; so we may expect to hear the same of his three Sons Shem, Ham and Japhet. Accordingly we are told, that Saturn had three Sons by Ops, who were Pluto, Jupiter and Neptune, answering to the three other Names. As the Right of Primogeniture was lodg'd in Shem, tho' he was not the eldest, and he had the greatest share in his Father's Blessing; so he was the most hated by the other two. For this Reason they represent him so deform'd, that none of the Goddesses would marry him, and therefore he stole away Proserpina, and carry'd her off by Force. And to render him as despicable as possible, they represented him and his Wife as King and Queen of Hell.

159. The second which I shall mention, is Japhet or Neptune. As he and his Posterity pass'd over the Sea from Asia, and settl'd in Europe; so he was afterward represented and worshipp'd as the God of the Sea, and the Father of Rivers and Fountains. His Sailing into Greece is represented under this Fable, That he took Amphitrite or the Sea to Wife, but being repuls'd by her a great while he at last gain'd her by the Power of Flattery, and the Assistance of a Dolphin. To recompence which Kindness, the Dolphin was exalted to the Stars, and made a Constellation. The learned Bochartus derives his Name from the Egyptian Word Nephtbyn, which signifies the Extreme Parts of the Earth, and the Promontories, which touch the Sea. So that he was a God worshipp'd by the Africans, and no other People originally us'd this Word but they: And therefore it is probable, that when those Parts adventur'd to put to Sea, they worshipp'd Japhet under this Name, and the Latins took the Name from thence, when their Idolatry was propagated in those Parts.

160. But as Ham was the chief Promoter of Idolatry, and his Posterity was chiefly addicted to it; so he was the most celebrated Deity in those Times, and most universally worshipp'd. He was call'd Jupiter Hammon. Heav'n is said to have fall'n by Lot to him, and therefore he is frequently stil'd the Ruler and Governour thereof, and always honour'd with Phrases and Epithets of the highest Respect and Esteem, as The almighty Father, the Thunderer, the King and Father of the Gods and Men, with many more. The Polygamies of Ham gave Occasion to a Multitude of Stories concerning the Adulteries, Rapes and Whoredoms of Jupiter in several Shapes, so common among the Heathen Poets. He was at first consecrated into the Planet Jupiter, a Word from him in so great Esteem, that Varro saith, That there were in his Time no less than three hundred Gods, who were call'd Jupiter, and worshipp'd by this Name, and others count almost an innumerable Company of them; for there was hardly a Nation, which did not adore a Jupiter of their own, and suppose him to be born among themselves.

161. The first Image of Ham was made and set up in the Tower of Babylon; and is suppos'd by some to be contemporary with the Building of the Tower itself; insomuch, that (*) the Builders are said to speak to one another in this Language, Let us make to ourselves an Image to be worshipp'd. Let us set it upon the Top

Top of the Tower, and let us put a Sword in his Hand, and let him manage our Battles for us, before we are dispers'd over the Face of the Earth. Besides this (as Suidas (g) tells us from Achilles Statius) there was a Temple upon Mount Cassius near the north Part of Egypt, where there was an Image of Jupiter holding a Pomegranate in his Hand, which had a mystical Reason. And Pausanias (h) saith, that not far from the Ruins of Mycænæ, he saw an Image of Juno holding a Pomegranate in her Hand, the Explication whercof was a wonderful Secret. But the Mystery or Secret is no more than this, That the Pomegranate, when open'd disclosing a great number of it's Seeds, signify'd only, that these Deities, being long liv'd, were the Parents of a great many Children, and Families, which soon grew into Nations, whom they planted in large Possessions, when the World was newly begun to be peopl'd, and were Benefactors to them by Giving them Laws, and other Inventions to make their Lives comfortable. This was a Mystery not to be reveal'd by the Heathens, because it was so agreeable to the History of Moses, lest the Truth being known might have destroy'd their Religion, and establish'd the other in it's Place. Like to this were Images made in other Places, and as Rimmon in the Phœnician and Syrian Language signify'd a Pomegranate, hence the Idol itself was call'd Rimmon, and was (i) a God worshipp'd by the Syrians in the Time of Naaman. And as they call'd their Towns from the Names of the Gods, which were there worshipp'd; so we find (k) Gathrimmon, or the Winepress of Rimmon, and (l) Enrimmon or the Fountain of Rimmon in the Land of Canaan.

159. As it is natural for those, who are in Places of Authority, to take Names to themselves, by which their Authority might be known; so when Ham was at Babylon, and rul'd that Country, he took to himself the Name of Baal, which in Hebrew signifies a Lord or Governor. The Reason whercof may probably be, because (m) Cain in a Time of great Drought, worshipp'd the Sun, as thinking him the only Lord of Heaven, who could or would help him, and therefore he call'd the Sun בַּעַל שָׁמַיִם Baal Shamaim or The Lord of Heaven, and thus in Imitation hereof he might afterward stile himself בַּעַל הָאָרֶץ Baal haarets, or The Lord of the Earth, as a Word, which after his Death might make way for his own Consecration. And perhaps this Name being giv'n to him in common with the Sun, whom they call the Lord of Heaven, might, by Leaving out the last Word, be the Reason, why that Part of the Universe call'd Heaven might so soon be allotted to him for his Jurisdiction. This Word was soon contracted into the (n) Name Bel, the great Idol of the Babylonians: And hence Ham was call'd Belus the first; and his Son Cush, Belus the second by the Greeks and Latins of later Ages. And as he was also consecrated after his Death, and had Images made of him to be worshipp'd under the same Name with his Father; so it is impossible at this Distance of Time to guess, which of them were dedicated to the one, and which to the other. However they seem to be distinguish'd in the Time of the Israelites, and therefore they are (o) call'd בְּעִלִּים Baalim, which Word might originally be of the dual Number, and so signify both. To distinguish these one from the other, and sometimes for other Reasons, there is an Addition frequently to the Name. Thus Baalberith was an Idol of the Shechemites, who had (p) a Temple among them: And as the Word בְּרִית Berith signifies a Covenant; so the (q) Septuagint call him The God, unto whom they bound themselves by Covenant. I rather suppose, that by this is only meant Ham, who liv'd for some Time at Berytus, and was afterward worshipp'd there, and might therefore properly be call'd (r) the God of Berytus. And it is the Opinion of (s) a very Learned Prelate, that generally where Baal is set alone, and no other Circumstances determine it to another Deity, Ham, as the most eminent, is to be understood. There are also two other Titles, but such as must belong to Ham and no other. The first is (t) Baalzebub, or The God of Flies. This Idol was worshipp'd by the Cyrenians, but principally by the Ekronites; and they give this Reason for it, because whenever they sacrific'd unto him, the swarms of Flies died, which molested their Country, and therefore (u) the Inhabitants of Elis sacrific'd to Ham or Jupiter under the Name of ἀποκρύψ or the Driver away of Flies. But it is certain, that this was not the only Reason, for (x) they frequently consulted him as an Oracle. However the Word זִבּוּב in Hebrew signifies a Flye, and the Word Baalzebub may signify the master Flye, which hath Power and Authority over the rest; and in the new Testament it is (y) apply'd to him, who is call'd The Prince of the Devils. Some Greek Copies of the new Testament read Βεελζεβλ, Beelzebul, which Change is interpreted to shew the great Contempt of the Idol, by calling it, as it is in the Hebrew, The Lord of Dung, it being the despicable Place, to which such Insects usually resort. And lastly, he was also call'd Baalzephon, and was thought by the Hebrews, to (z) have been an Idol made by the Egyptian Magicians to observe and to stop the Israelites in their Departure from Egypt. Hence he was call'd Zephon or צפון from צפה Zapha, to watch, and observe in the manner of a Watchman; so that from this Office we may call him Baal speculator, as Jupiter among the Romans was call'd (a) Jupiter stator, because he was suppos'd to stop them, when they were flying from the Enemy. This must be Ham or Belus the first, the Father of the Egyptians, since Cush or Belus the second, was the Father of another Nation, and therefore would not be deify'd by them, or especially be look'd upon as their Protector or Guardian Angel. However (b) GOD commanded the Israelites in their March to encamp before him, that all might know, that none of those Idols could prevent, what he resolv'd to do.

160. But tho' Ham was call'd Jupiter in other Places; yet among the Egyptians he was call'd Saturn or Chronus, and was consecrated into that Planet. When he took to himself קרן Keren a Horn, or the Mark of Honour in those Nations, he might easily be call'd Chronus by a small Variation of the Word; and then the Egyptians, who in those early Times did boast, that they were the ancientest Nation in the World, were more fond of giving that Title to the Father of their Nations, which others gave to Noah the Father of the whole World.

161. And as the Wife of Noah was consecrated by the Name of Ge or the Earth; so Astarte the Wife of Ham was, after her death, consecrated by Ham himself, and a Temple built by him for her in Zidon. Hence she was call'd (d) Ashtaroth the goddess of the Zidonians, and being a very handsome Woman was the same with Venus the Goddess of Beauty among the Greeks and Romans, and was also reputed to be the Planet Venus. Lucian acknowledges, that her Statue bore upon her Head Beams and a Tower, and the Cestus, wherewith they only adorn Urania or Venus. The Phœnicians call'd her the greatest Goddess, and she was therefore most likely to be joyn'd with the Image of Ham their greatest Male Deity. Cicero saith, that (e) the Syrian Astarte is call'd Venus. She was sav'd with Noah and Ham in the Ark, and hath therefore been represented like Dagon, with the upper Part resembling a Woman, and the lower Part resembling a Fish, and in her Temple at Hierapolis there was constant Commemoration made of the Flood and it's Drying up in their Service. Sanhoniatho saith of her, that (f) travelling about the World, she found a Star falling from the Air or Sky, which she taking up, consecrated in the holy Island of Tyre. And Lucian, among other Ornaments of her Statue, tells us, that she had a splendid Stone upon her Head, which was call'd λυχνίς, which in the Night gave much Light to the Temple, but shone weakly in the day Time, and look'd like Fire. This no doubt was the same Star, and is suppos'd to be only a Carbuncle plac'd upon her Head, which (*) the Priests could by rubbing make to shine, when they thought fit to allow any Man the great Favour of seeing the Temple, and this Statue in it; that thereby the Image might become the more venerable to the Beholder, who must be presum'd to be prepar'd before-hand with great Devotion to receive this religious Cheat as a signal Favour.

162. As Ham was frequently call'd Baal, so he had a Wife, who was call'd Baaltis, which seems to be but a Translation of the same Word from the Masculine into the Feminine Gender. Who she was is uncertain. Sanhoniatho only saith, that Ham (g) gave the City of Babylon to the Goddess Baaltis, which is Dione, and (h) that he had Daughters by Lione. And some others say of her, that she was a Sea Nymph, and the Mother of Venus by Jupiter: For this Reason Virgil (i) calls her Dionea, and Julius Cæsar is also (k) call'd by him Dionæus, as descended at a great Distance from her.

163. When Ham was at Berytus, his Son Phut was with him, and most probably he was one of the Cabiri at that Time. After his Death he was deify'd, and call'd Apollo, and was reputed to be the God of Wildom, of Musick, of Physick, and Shooting with Bows and Arrows, and consecrated into the Sun: And as Ham retain'd both Names, and was call'd Jupiter Hammon; so it was the same with Phut, who was call'd Apollo Pythius, where each of the radical Letters are preserv'd, with such Alterations as are usual in Translating of such Words into different Languages. The Greeks and Latins reckon'd him to be the Son of Jupiter by Saturn: The learned Bochartus tells us, that there have been some among the ancients, who have writ'n, that Apollo was an African, the Son of Hammon, and the fifth of that Name. And he adds, that the History of the large Dragon kill'd by him is an Evidence of it, since there were hardly any Dragons to be met with of so great a Bulk, except in Africa or in India, which he suppos'd to be utterly unknown in those early Ages after the Flood; and all this exactly agrees with the first Situation of him and his Posterity in this Country, adjoining to Egypt, on the east Side. And therefore it is most probable, that he not only went with Ham to settle a Colony in Africa, but also accompany'd him in his Return to Berytus.

164. As Ham had many Wives besides Astarte, who was the first and most principal; so those seven Daughters, which he had by Astarte, were for Distinction Sake call'd Titanides or Artemides. The Word in the singular Number is Artemis, by which Name the great Diana of the Epefians was commonly known among the Greeks. The Word is of an eastern Derivation, and comes from חרטום Hartom a Diviner, by which Name the Chaldean Wizards in Daniel are often call'd, it being an honourable Title among them, altho' among us it is in deserv'd Contempt. She was afterward consecrated into the Moon. She was at first call'd triformis or one of three Shapes; because the Moon had no Light at the Change, had no dark Part at the Full, and was partly light and partly dark at other Times. Hence arose the three Names, which were giv'n her, and the three Places for her Abode; that she was Luna in Heaven, Diana upon Earth, and Hecate in Hell. Sacrifices were made to her in the open Streets, and in them the Athenians made a sumptuous Supper for her every new Moon, which was eat'n in the Night by the poor People of the City. She was call'd by the Egyptians Bubastis; her Feasts were nam'd Bubastea, and the City, where they were yearly celebrated, was also call'd Bubastis. And it is observable, that the Greeks and Latins did look upon all their principal Sorceries and Magick to (*) be perform'd by moon Shine.

165. I suppose, that these were the Idols, which the Israelites afterward worshipp'd, as Representations of the Sun and Moon. For tho' the very Bodies of those, and all the other Planets were worshipp'd by the Posterity of Shem in the more eastern Nations; yet this soon wore out, and was succeeded by Images to represent them. Besides, tho' the Posterity of Ham, soon went off to Idolatry; yet the Israelites who liv'd among them, were never charg'd in the old Testament for worshipping the Bodies of those Stars; and (l) when they were in the Wilderness, Chiun or Remphan, and Moloch or Saturn and Mars were worshipp'd by Figures, or Representations made for that Purpose. The Charge brought against them by (m) the Psalmist is, that they were mingl'd among the heathen, and learn'd their works, and serv'd their idols, particularly, the idols of Canaan, which were a snare unto them. For tho' strictly speaking, the Worship of these Idols was begun in that Part of Canaan, which the Israelites never conquer'd; yet there is no Doubt, but it spread it self throughout the whole Country of their common Father; and it was even begun and carry'd on in those Parts of the Land about Tyre and Sidon, with whom the Israelites always maintain'd a fair Correspondence. Besides, the Worship of the Sun and Moon began very late among the Israelites, and not until they were universally worshipp'd by such Images as these. It is certain, that Moses (n) forewarn'd them of this; but the first Account, in (o) which we find that the Children of Israel were guilty of it, was in the Days of King Josiah, who put down the idolatrous priests, whom the kings of Judah had ordained to burn incense in the high places to the sun, and to the moon, and to the planets, and to all the host of heaven. And he took away the horses which the kings of Judah had given to the sun, and he burnt the chariots of the sun with fire. It is certain, that Horses throughout all the East (p) were dedicated to the Sun, and it was a Custom among the Persians, Armenians, and Masagetæ to dedicate Horses, and sacrifice them to the Sun; and among others, to bring Horses forth early in the Morning, with a great deal of Pomp to meet the Sun rising; and thus the Horses of King Cyrus were brought forth to meet him on such an Occasion. And both (q) Xenophon and Herodotus tell us, that Horses were brought forth to the Sacrifices of the Sun, and a white Chariot was drawn after them, and therefore both the Horses and the Chariots were accounted sacred. And it is probable, that the most solemn Worshipers of the Sun did ride in those Chariots. Hence we read so often in the Heathen Poets of the Chariots of the Sun, and this might give the first Rise to the Story of the Sun's being drawn by (*) four Horses, and his Picture being frequently made in the same Manner. And tho' good King Josiah abolish'd these Horses and Chariots, yet the Idolatry continu'd still; insomuch that it was represented (r) to Ezekiel as the most heinous Provocation of the Israelites, that several of them were with their backs toward the temple of the LORD, and their faces toward the east, and they worshipped the sun toward the east.

166. And as Cain when he first worshipp'd the Sun, call'd him בֵּל שַׁמַּיִם the King or Lord of Heaven; so it is probable, that the Israelites might call him by the same Name, and from hence they might call the Moon, or the great Goddess Diana, whom they worshipp'd as her Representative, (s) The queen of heaven, for which Reason she was call'd Baal'tis or the Queen or Lady. Of this the Prophet Jeremiah complains, That the children gathered the wood, and the fathers kindled the fire, and the women knead their dough to make cakes to the queen of heaven, upon which they were suppos'd to make the Picture of the Moon at the Full, which might well be plac'd on any thing, that was round, and then to eat it as a solemn Commemoration of the Benefits, which they receiv'd from her. To her they also burnt Incense in the Night, of which she was the suppos'd Mistress, and were so obstinate in their Way, that after the Captivity of Babylon, the Remainder, which fled into Egypt, both Men and Women, with the Consent of each, practis'd the same, and not only vindicated it before the Prophet Jeremiah, but also declar'd their Resolution of continuing in it.

167. Phut or Apollo having marry'd one of these Artemides, who might probably be, not one of the Daughters of Ham, but rather one of his Grand-daughters, and call'd by the same Name, had a Son by her, whom he call'd Asclepius or Æsculapius. There are some, who make him to be the Son of Sydyck, or The Just, or Melchisedek, who is suppos'd to be Shem the Son of Noah, and that from him came the Dioscouri, or Cabiri, Corybantes, or Samothracis. But this is improbable. It is uncertain, that (t) Melchisedek left any Children behind him. It is unlikely, that he would leave them with Ham, who was so notoriously guilty of Injustice and Idolatry, he himself being so religious and just a Man; and if the Arabick Historians may be credited, he was not in Canaan, until after the Death of Noah. And therefore it is more likely, that he was the Son of Phut, or Apollo, by one of the Artemides, whom they call the Nymph Coronis, as she is commonly reputed to be. His Father took Care that he should be bred up to the Practice of Physick, which before his Time was but little understood; which Art he so much improv'd, that he was afterward reckon'd as the God of it. He was so successful in Restoring of Health to the Sick, and Safety to those whose Condition was thought to be desperate, that he was said to have the Power of Restoring the Dead to Life again. His Picture was made with many Dogs about him, as the Sign of the Distempers, which prey upon Mankind; and the Goats were sacrific'd to him, as Beasts which destroy'd the Vines, whose Fruit did cheer the Heart of Man. The Cabiri originally were but Seven; but he was Sir-nam'd Esmuni in Hebrew השמני or the Eighth; so that it is probable, that he was added to the Number. Apulcius, in his Book concerning the Virtues of Herbs, saith, that Phut or Apollo gave to Æsculapius the Herb Solanum or Nightshade, acquainting him (as it is probable) with its Virtues and Uses. And from his Name that Herb is call'd חצר השמני or the Herb of Esmuni, in the Auctuarium of Dioscorides. And therefore the Character which Sanchoniatho gives of the Children of the Cabiri, that they had Skill in Herbs, and the Cure of Bitings, and also of Charms, is very probable; since they might learn the one from Æsculapius, who was so well instructed by Apollo, and they might learn the other from the Artemides. He was worshipp'd first at Epidaurus (which was suppos'd to be the Place, where he was born) and afterwards at Rome, because when he was sent thither, he deliver'd that City from a dreadful Pestilence. For which Reason a Temple was dedicated to him at the Mouth of the Tiber, where he was worshipp'd under the Form of a great Serpent. And Pausanias in his Corinthiaca, mentions a Temple to Æsculapius, Apollo, and Hygieia or Health; and the Goddess Salus had a Temple built to her in Rome, near the Gate call'd Porta Salutaris, who was so much honour'd by the Romans, that anciently several Holy Days were appointed, in which they worshipp'd her.

168. Another Son of Ham was Canaan. He was suppos'd to be the (u) Planet Mercury. 1. Canaan was the Son of Ham, and Mercury the Son of Jupiter Hammon, or the same Person. 2. The Etymology of their Names is the same. Canaan in Hebrew signifies a Merchant, and Mercury in Latin comes from a Word, which signifies Merchandise. 3. Canaan was curs'd by Noah that he should be a servant of servants to his brethren, and Mercury is generally represented as a Servant to the rest of the Gods. 4. Mercury is reputed to preside over the Highways, and the Phœnicians, who were of the Race of Canaan, were the first, who adventur'd to sail into foreign Countries. 5. Mercury was always accounted as a Thief, and Ham the Father of Canaan was the great Ineroacher upon the Dominions of his Brethren. 6. Mercury was always esteem'd as a subtil cunning Fellow in all his Dealings, and the Phœnicians had the same Character among their Correspondents. 7. Mercury is esteem'd as the Father of Eloquence, and Sanchoniatho represents one of this Name as the first Inventer of Letters, which first came from Phœnicia or the Country of Canaan into Greece. 8. Mercury is said to be the Inventer of the Harp τῆς κιθάρας, and the Phœnician Word כנור plainly shews, from whence it had its Original. 9. Mercury is reckon'd by some to be the Inventer of Astronomy, and the Phœnicians directed the Courses of their Sailing by Astronomical Observations, and the Skill of Astronomy, as Strabo tells us, was transmitted from them to Greece. 10. Canaan was curs'd because he delighted himself with his Father Ham in viewing the Nakedness of his Grandfather Noah; and Mercury the Son of Jupiter is represented as a Pimp and Procurer to him in all his Intreagues. And lastly, Milk and Honey was offer'd to Mercury, the Cause whereof seems to be, because the Land of Canaan, which fell to his Share, is so frequently mention'd in Scripture as abounding with those Commodities.

(t) Heb. 7. 3.

170. The next is Nimrod. He was the Founder of the Affyrian Monarchy, the Capital whereof was Ba'y'lon, a Place most remarkable for Idolatry. He was the great Promoter thereof towards his Parents in his Life Time, and therefore it is no Wonder, if the same was paid to him after his Decease. After Nimrod (y) had conquer'd many Nations far and near, and had built the City call'd Nineveh, he in a publick Assembly of the Babylonians extoll'd his Grandfather Ham as the Founder of the City and Empire of Babylon in an extravagant Manner, as he usually did, and represented him not only as worthy of perpetual Honour among all Posterity, but also of Immortality among the Gods above. Accordingly to immortalize his Name, he exhibited a Statue of him, which was curiously and neatly made; and commanded, that they should worship him with divine

171. I shall only add farther, that Nimrod is the same, who in after Ages was (b) call'd Bacchus. For 1 Bacchus is the same with ברכוש Bar-cush, or the Son of Cush. and so was Nimrod. 2 Thus Barcus and Bacchus are the same; as in the Hebrew דממסֶק Dammesek and דרמסֶק Darmesek are both put for Damascus. 3 Bacchus was the Son of Jupiter, and Nimrod was reckon'd to be the Grandson, or Son in a larger sense, of Ham or Jupiter. 4 It is probable, that his Name was soon alter'd from Nimrod to נמרא Nimra, which Word in the Chaldæe signifies a Tiger, and hence the Poets feign'd the Chariot of Bacchus to be drawn by Tigers, and himself to be cloath'd with the Skin of a Tiger. 5 Others derive the Name from νεβρις Nebris, the Skin of a fallow Deer, and therefore (c) they call Bacchus, Nebrodes, as if he was

It may be further observ'd, that this Word is sometimes writt'n with an א in the Beginning and sometimes with a ה; and at the End, sometimes with a ל. and sometimes with a ר, as Adar, Hadad, and Hadar; and here Adodus, and the Words themselves in the Eastern Languages are very near of Kin. The Word אדיר Adair in Hebrew is The magnificent or mighty Potentate. אדד Hadad is suppos'd in the old Phœnician Language to signify the only one, from the Affinity of like Words in the Talmudick Writings and the Arabick Language, as Bochartus hath observ'd in his Canaan, lib. 2. cap. 9. pag. 731. And אדד signifies in Hebrew the Shouts of Joy and Triumph, with which the Kings (and consequently Nimrod) were met, when they return'd from their Conquests, and therefore they might properly belong to one, who had a Princely or rather a royal Title.* (*) Saturnalia, lib. 1. cap. 31. (b) *Bochart. cloath'd with such a Skin, not knowing that it was the very Name of Nimrod, as us'd by the Septuagint, Josephus and other Greek Authors. 6 The most ancient Name of Bacchus in the Greek Fables is Ζήρεος, which signifies a mighty Hunter; and this is the Character, which Moses gives of Nimrod. 7 Homer (d) tells us, that Bacchus was Born in Arabia, near the Rivers of Egypt; and this was the Country allotted to Cush and his Family, who probably liv'd there at the Time, when his Son Nimrod was born. 8 Bacchus was esteem'd to be the God of Wine, and Nimrod was the first, who reign'd in Babylon, and the adjacent Parts, where there was the best Wine, which the Ancients call'd Nectar, or the Wine of the Gods, who first liv'd in those Countries, and were afterward deify'd. And lastly, the Expeditions of Bacchus into the east as far as India, contain not only the Acts of Nimrod, but also of his Successors.

172. It is Time to leave Asia, and return to Egypt in Africa, where the Wars between the upper and lower Country brought in the Custom of deifying the Kings, who fought for them. Upper Egypt being peopl'd in the early Ages of the World, before Images were set up to be worshipp'd, they chose some Animals, as the fittest Representations of their decess'd Kings, which might best recollect their Tempers, or some Benefits, which when living, they had conferr'd on their Country. Herodotus (e) who travel'd into Egypt, was acquainted with their Priests, and by them instructed in their sacred Rites, assures us, that they did not ultimately terminate their Prayers in the Beast, which was consecrated for that Purpose, and before whom they paid their Devotions; but they directed their Prayers to the particular Deity, to whom each Beast belong'd. But if the religious Worship of dead and consecrated Benefactors was lawful, and it was also true, that such Worship was to be giv'n to the Image as belongs to the Person represented thereby, because it all passes to the Prototype (which are the current Doctrines in the Romish Church) all this Egyptian Service paid to Bulls, Cats, Dogs and Monkeys, will be excus'd from Blame; for it is all founded upon the same Principles.

173. But the Inhabitants of Lower Egypt not coming thither until Image Worship had spread it self in the Land of Canaan, they brought with them this Superstition; and as they renounc'd the Gods, which the others worshipp'd, as their utter Enemies; so they abhor'd the Manner, by which they worshipp'd them. And indeed all the other Heathens, especially the Roman, Greek, and Phœnician Idolaters detested this Folly of Giving religious Worship to Beasts, tho' it was declar'd to be only relatively, as consecrated living Images of Deities, and that Prayer was not directed ultimately to them. But then they would not be sensible, that they themselves did as absurd a Thing in Giving as much Adoration to Images of Wood, Stone, and Metal, which were without Life, and to idols Likeness to the Souls of the Heroes, whom they worshipp'd thereby.

174. Mizraim was call'd by several Names, as Osiris, Hysiris, Sbiran, Minaios, and Timaïos, with many others. As he was the great Improver of Husbandry in that Country; so he was represented by the Bull or Ox Apis, and Mnevis or Men's. And the Bull and Ox being the chief Helpers in Plowing the Ground, Carrying in and Treading out the Corn, according to their ancient Method, did bring him best into their Mind, who brought their Labours to so great a Perfection, and was so beneficial thereby. And after his Death he was consecrated into the Sun, the Bringer forth of all Fruits. In Scripture he is represented under three several Names, relating to the Worship giv'n him. The first Name is Meon. This is the same with Menes with a little Alteration, and the Country of Maonia was so call'd from him. The Name in Hebrew signifies a Dwelling-Place, a Refuge, or an Habitation, and might therefore at first be given to him as the Founder of the Egyptian Monarchy, and the Maker of it both habitable and fruitful. This Name in Moses his Time was thought to signify so great an Honour to this Deity, that (f) when the Towns of Nebo and Baalmeon were in the Possession of the Reubenites, on the other Side of Jordan, who rebuilt them, after they had been much ruin'd by the War, it was thought fit, that their Names should be chang'd, that they might the better observe (g) the Command, Make no mention of the names of their gods, neither let them be heard out of your mouth, especially such Names, which signify'd Respect and Esteem, as this did. Meon signify'd this false God to be the Founder of the Happiness of that Place, and therefore the Jews, and even Moses himself gives this Title to the true GOD, (h) LORD, thou hast been our dwelling place or refuge in all generations. And (i) Thou hast made the LORD, which is my refuge, even the most high, מְנוּ thy Meon or habitation. So that this Title was thought too great to be allow'd to the false God, within the Dominions of the Worshippers of the true one.

175. Another Title by which Mizraim was call'd as a God, was Baal p'or; or the Lord and Master of Nakedness and Obscenity. It is probable, that this Name was not giv'n him by any of his Worshippers; but it is often mention'd in Scripture, thereby to render the Image of him as contemptible as it ought to be. The Occasion whereof was this: As the Image of Ham or Jupiter was first made with a Pomegranate in his Hand to shew, that he was the Father of the Nations, which peopl'd all Africa, and Part of Asia; so Mizraim being the Father of Egypt, his Picture was made in the most beastly Posture, as a Token thereof. The Chaldee Paraphrase upon (k), the before mention'd Verse calls Baal-meon A City of Balak, in which Israel destroy'd the Idol Peor in the House of Altars, and the City, whose Walls encompass'd that Temple, and were remarkable for the Names of the Men, which were writt'n upon them, and (for the Name of) Shiran, Osiris or Mizraim. Here it is plain, that Baal-meon and Baal-peor was the same Idol, whom the Egyptians and all his Worshippers design'd to honour, when they call'd him Meon, as a Person who gave them Habitations, Estates, Refuge, and all the Benefits of a Colony. But Moses, and the later Jews call'd him Peor, to let us know, that he was the God, who shew'd himself boastingly and publickly in the most scandalous Manner, as a Friend to Debauchees. St. Hierome, who very well understood the eastern Learning, often tells us, that Peor is Priapus, the God of Gardens among the Romans, whose Picture was plac'd there to frighten away not only Crows and ravenous Birds, but (one would think) all rational Creatures, who had any Shame or Modesty left them. Lucian sufficiently derides this Image among the Egyptians. Herodotus describes it too scandalous to be translated, and tells us, that he had seen it, as the ordinary Image sacred to Osiris. Diodorus Siculus tells us, that in their Worship of him, not only toward his lifeless Image, but also toward the Goat at Mendes, and perhaps also in the Bull Apis, and in Pan or Faunus, the Sileni and Satyrs; they gave Thanks for the numerous Issue of their Progenitors. And Plutarch saith, that in the Feasts dedicated to Osiris call'd *Pamyli*a or Pamylitia, this shameless Image was carry'd in Procession.

176. Tho' the Children of Japhet and Shem had the same Reason to express their Gratitude for the same Blessing; yet no Heathens descended from them were anciently so shameless in their Religion, as those were, who descended from Ham and Mizraim; especially until the Time, when their Offspring mingling with them in after Ages, did corrupt some Part of Asia the less, and Greece also and Rome in some Measure, with a Mixture of their immodest Practices. And it is certain, that Moses took the best Course to secure the Memory and Acknowledgement of GOD's Increasing Mankind so wonderfully in the first Ages after the Flood, by a modest History of the whole World in general, without Applying it more particularly to any Place or Nation. And when there was an Occasion for a particular Commemoration, it was excellently and modestly done in a Psalm of David for that Purpose; in which this (l) one Verse, He increased his people greatly, and made them stronger than their enemies, proves to their Eyes, that the true GOD did multiply his People before the Faces of the Egyptians, and in their own Land; more than all the shameless Gods of Egypt were able to do for their Worshippers.

177. Another Title, by which Mizraim was call'd as a God, was Tammuz. For him there was an annual Lamentation, which the Scripture calls (m) Mourning for Tammuz. The Original of the Story is reported in this Manner. That Mizraim the first King of the Egyptians, and his Wife Isis, having built many Cities, secured their Land from the Damage of the Nile, improv'd the Art of Husbandry, and done many other good Acts, were so honour'd by the People, that they were thought to be immortal, because their Subjects wish'd, that they might be so. However he was kill'd in Battle by the Soldiers of Lower Egypt. His Wife Isis sought him a great while before she could find him, his Body being (as some say) cut into many Pieces. But when she had found him, she laid him in a Coffin, carry'd him first to Ham in Canaan, and then brought him back and laid him in a Monument in an Island near Memphis encompass'd by the Lake call'd Styx, which was therefore reckon'd sacred by the deity'd Gods of his Posterity, and afterward by all. This tragical Story was the Subject of an ancient Song, call'd in the Egyptian Language Maneros, from Manes or Menes one of the Names of Mizraim, which was sung solemnly once a Year, in which they lamented him as cut off in the Prime of his Youth, and was the Occasion of the Lamentation (n) of Venus or Isis among the Greeks, for the Youth Adonis, whom she greatly lov'd, which in Hebrew is אֲדֹנָי Adon, a Lord or Husband; and is the Word by which (o) Sarah call'd her Husband Abraham. And because when Isis sought her Husband thus dead, she us'd Dogs, who by their excellent Smelling might discover where he was hid, therefore the ancient Custom was, that Dogs went first in an anniversary Procession in Honour of Isis. After the Body of Mizraim was interr'd, the Story goes, that there appear'd to the Egyptians a stately beautiful Ox, which they thought was the Ghost of Mizraim, and therefore they worshipp'd it, and call'd it Apis, which in their Language signifies an Ox. And because his Body after his Death was, as some say, found shut up in a Chest, or put in a Coffin, call'd in Greek σός Soros, he was afterward call'd Sorapis, and then Serapis by the Change of a single Vowel. The Marks of this Ox or Apis were (p) these, His Body was to be all black, except a square Spot on his Forehead. He was also to have the Figure of an Eagle, as some say, or of a half Moon, as others tell us, upon his Back, a double List of Hair on his Tail, and a Scarabæus or Knot under his Tongue; and others say, that he hath Horns like the Moon in its Increasing. When they had found such a one, they brought him with great Rejoycing to the Temple of Mizraim, and there they kept him, and worshipp'd him for that God, as long as he liv'd; and when he was dead, they bury'd him with great Solemnity, and then the Priests shav'd their Heads, and mourn'd and lamented, and sought for another with the same Marks to substitute in his Room, which some Times it was many Years, before they could find. It was in Imitation of this Idolatry, that Aaron made the golden Calf in the Wilderness, and Jerooboam those in Dan and Bethel, and did set them up there to be worshipp'd by the Children of Israel, as the Gods who brought them out of the Land of Egypt.

178. Beside this, the Egyptians worshipp'd him also in the Shape of a Hawk, because they say, that this Bird carry'd once in his Beak to Thibis out of some remote Country, a Book writ'n with red Letters, containing several religious Ceremonies. Hence they say that their Priests us'd to wear a red Cap with a Hawk's Wing in it. Some think, that by the Ox and Hawk they only meant the Sun, who is strong as an Ox, or as (q) David saith, as a giant to run his course. And as the Hawk is swift in his Flying, and hath a piercing Eye; so the Sun is unspeakably swift in his apparent diurnal Motion, and is (r) the piercing Eye of the World, that seeth all Things. Some derive his Name from Os, which they say, in the Egyptian Language signifies much, and Iris an Eye, and if so, then Osiris is many ey'd, which also agrees very well to the Sun, who seems to have as many Eyes as he hath Rays, by which he sees, and makes all Things visible. And therefore his Image in some Places was a Scepter, on the Top of which was plac'd an Eye. In (s) other Places, a Flasket was plac'd upon his Head to signify the Advantages, which the Nation receiv'd by his Improvement of Husbandry; and near him lay a Creature with three Heads, a Dog's, a Wolf's, and a Lyon's between them, to signify his quick spying of Advantages in War, and Valour upon such Occasions. These were encompass'd by the Fold of a Snake, whose Head was near the right Hand of the Image, and seem'd to bridle the terrible Monster, to represent how his Courage and Valiant Acts were manag'd with Prudence and Conduct. They, who represent Egypt as many thousand Years older, than it really was, say, that the Egyptians were not so much overcome by his Arms, as oblig'd to him by his Courtesies and great Kindnesses toward them; but the true reason of his being their first King was, because he was the Father of the Nation. There was almost in all the Temples, where he was worshipp'd, the Image of Silence pressing it's Lips with it's Finger, and there were several Images of Sphinx about his Altar. Varro saith, that the Meaning of this was, that no one should dare to say, that these Gods had been Men formerly. And the Laws inflict'd Death upon him that said, that Serapis was once a mortal Man, tho' it might be prov'd by the Derivation of his Name. Others say, that the Reason of this Privacy was, because the Mysteries of this Idolatry were too filthy to be known; or, as the Apostle (t) saith, It is a shame, even to speak of these things, which were done of them in secret. When these Ceremonies were translated into Rome, much (u) Filthiness was committed in the Temple of Isis, which was near the Ovile, (for she had two other Temples at Rome beside this) as may be seen in (x) Ovid. And therefore (y) Tiberius, who was not the best of Emperors, overthrew that Temple, but Domitian set it up again, and (z) effeminate Otho was not asham'd in a white Garment to perform those Ceremonies. Mascha the Mother of Asa King of Judah (a) erected this Idol, which was call'd in Scripture כפליצת a horrible thing, and she was the chief Priestess at the Ceremonies. Chemosh, the (b) abomination of the Moabites, is (c) thought to be the same God, and the Name כמוש signifies Like one, who gropes about or feels for his way in the dark, as if his Delight was in the works of Darkness; and therefore a Grove was near his Temple, as the fittest Place for such Impurities: And to make it still more Abominable, there were (d) Houses erected for the vilest of these Purposes, near the House of the LORD, where the Women also wove Hangings for the Groves, that there might be more private Places, in which they might commit all manner of Iniquity.

so the Jews went into the same Custom, with a little Variation. The Prophet Ezekiel (e) describes it by Women weeping for Tammuz. As Mizraim was consecrated into the Sun, so Tammuz is suppos'd by some to signify the Sun. In Arabic it signifies the Summer; and the fourth Month among the Jews, when the Sun enter'd into Cancer was call'd Tammuz, and the entrance of the Sun at the Tropicks into Cancer or Capricorn is in the Jewish Astronomy call'd תקופת תמוז or the Revolution of Tammuz. In the Rites of Mizraim there were two things remarkable. First, the Death or Loss of him, and Secondly, the Finding of him again. Accordingly there was a great Lamentation at his Loss, especially (f) among the Women. And there was a great Joy at his Finding. And the Sun alters his Revolution or Course twice a Year. First, after he is in the Tropick of Cancer, or the farthest Degree northward, he goes from us; and Secondly, after he is in the Tropick of Capricorn, or the farthest Degree southward, he returns to us. And either of these in a different Sense may be call'd the Loss of the Sun, or the Finding it again. So that the Egyptians celebrated their Adonia, when the Sun was farthest southward, and had immediate Rejoycings, because they apprehended his Return again; but the Jews celebrated their Mourning, when the Sun began to depart from them; but we read of no Rejoycing afterward, because it did not return again until the following Winters.

180. Neither were the Solemnities of Isis the Wife of Mizraim, less regarded than those of Mizraim himself. After her Death she was translated into the Dog Star, and this might be the reason that the Image of her Husband Osiris or Mizraim was always attended with that of a Dog, and Mizraim himself might be reckon'd by some to be the Constellation of Orion, which was near it. She instituted the Sacra Isiacæ among the Egyptians, or those mystical Solemnities, which was a Commemoration of the prime Founders of their Monarchy, and especially of her own Husband, as Gods or Demons, who were honour'd and lamented as both doing and suffering much for their Country, and struggling under the Phœnician Powers. And as she began to honour others in her Life Time; so the same Honours redounded to her after her Decease. As she joyn'd with her Husband Mizraim in Improving the Art of Husbandry both in Egypt and Greece; so she was honour'd as the Goddess of Corn. She was call'd by the Greeks Demeter or the Mother Earth, and afterward by the Romans, Ceres, which word is often us'd for Corn itself. Sometimes she was painted with Horns, and therefore some reckon'd, that she represented the Moon, tho' perhaps the Reason was only because, like Astarte, she took to herself these Ensigns of Authority, as they signify'd in the east Countries, and govern'd the Country, whenever her Husband Mizraim was absent. She was cloath'd sometimes in white Garments, sometimes in black, and sometimes in red or yellow. They who attributed all this to the Moon, gave this reason, because she look'd white in clear Weather, but red against Wind, and her black Garment was to represent her Colour at the change, and in an Eclipse. But as she was the Goddess of Corn; so after Harvest she might be cloath'd in black, in the Summer in white, and at Harvest in red or yellow, to represent the Face of the Earth and the Weather at those respective Seasons. In her right Hand she held a Cymbal or musical Instrument, to signify, that Musick was first after the Flood invented or improv'd in that Country; and the Reeds, which grew in the River Nilus, contributed much to that purpose: In her left Hand she held a Bucket, thereby representing the annual Inundation of that River, and the Repletion of all the Channels. Her Head was crown'd with the Feathers of a Vultur, and they adorn'd the Tops of her Porches with the same. And therefore among the Egyptians this Bird was consecrated to her: Her Priests were call'd after her own Name Isiaci; they were initiated by Water and Blood, they abstain'd from Wine and the Flesh of Sheep, and us'd no Salt to their Meat; and perhaps the Reason of that might be, because they look'd upon the Sea, which sometimes might happen to overflow the lower Lands; as an Enemy to their Country. They shav'd their Heads and Beards, and wore paper Shoes, and a linnen Vest, because Isis first taught the use of Flax, and was therefore call'd Linigera. Upon the Pavement of her Temple, there was this (g) Inscription, I am every thing, that hath been, and is, and shall be, neither hath any Mortal open'd my Veil. Because she was brought to Egypt at first in a Ship; and did afterwards upon frequent Occasions sail in the Mediterranean, therefore they made her a Goddess over the Winds and Seas. They reserv'd her Hair at Memphis as a sacred Relick; and dedicated a holy Day every Year to the Honour of the Ship, which brought her first into that Country. Near to her Image also stood the Image of Harpocrates the God of Silence, who was reputed to be the Son of Mizraim and Osiris, intimating thereby that the Secrets of their Religion should not be divulg'd, but that their Priests should be silent; and it is probable, that they had this Reason for it, because they knew, that the less it was known, the more it wou'd be admir'd. Her Worship in Greece and Rome by the Name of Demeter and Ceres, the sacra Eleusinia, and the Nature of her Image is too well known to need any Description. Many of (h) the primitive Fathers dispute learnedly against the idolatrous Worship of Isis; and the Impunities in her Temple at Rome, which were transmitted thither from Egypt, and were blam'd, even by (i) their own Poets, as not to be endur'd.

181. It must not be omitted, that Herodotus tells us, of a Temple built by Menes or Mizraim to Hephestus or Vulcan. Vulcan was without Doubt the same with Tubalcain, of whom (k) Moses saith, that he was the Son of Lamech, the Brother of Naamah, who was in all Probability the Wife of Ham before the Flood, and consequently he was the Uncle of Mizraim, and he was the Instructor or Whetter on of every artificer in brass and iron. Sanchoiatho (l) tells us, that he liv'd in the seventh Generation before the Flood, and was call'd Chrysor, (a Word deriv'd from the Hebrew, צרש which signifies an Artificer) and is the same with Hephestus or Vulcan. He was the Contriver of several things useful to Mankind, and was therefore after his Death worshipp'd for a God, and they call'd him Diamichius, or Jupiter, the great Inventer or Contriver. His Name in the Egyptian Language was Pthah, and suppos'd to be of the same signification with the other, and from hence it is suppos'd, that the Greek Word was first deriv'd, tho' with much Change, as is very usual in Passing out of one Language into another, especially in Words of such great Antiquity. It could not be practicable for Mizraim to deify his Father or any of his Relations being then alive, and therefore he could think of no one more proper for him to honour in this Manner, than his own Uncle, who was accounted as a God even before the Flood. The Time when Mizraim did this, was most probably in the Beginning of the Egyptian Wars, when they had Occasion to make Swords, Spears and all sorts of Armour and Chariots. For then the Deifying of Tubalcain or Vulcan as the God of the Smiths, might whet on those Artificers to perform their Work with greater Care and Exactness, and invent more Instruments of War for the Service of their Country.

182. The next to Mizraim was Thoth the second King of Egypt. He was call'd Thouth, Atthobes, Orus, Hermes, Anubis and Hermanubis. He was said to be the Planet Mercury. A Dog was consecrated to him, and kept in the Temples dedicated to his Service. His Picture was like a Man, only he had the Head of an Hound, whose quick Scent was an Emblem of the great Sagacity, which was in him, when alive, and therefore he was call'd half a Man, and half a Dog. The Idol Nibbaz, which was worshipp'd (m) by the Avites, is suppos'd to have represented him.

The Word is sometimes Nibhan, and comes from a Verb, which in the Hebrew and Chaldee signifies to bark like a Dog; and is suppos'd to be the same with (n) Anubis in Virgil, which was so call'd, because he was painted with a Dog's Head.

183. The next to Thoth the second King of Egypt was Thoth the second of that Name, and the third King of Egypt. It is certain, that he was consecrated as a God; but very uncertain under what Shape, or in what Manner. And as in Babylon Belus the first had all the Rights perform'd to him, which were intended for Belus the second; so in Egypt Thoth the first, who was in Reality an extraordinary Person, seems to have eclips'd all the divine Honours intended for Thoth the second, or at least in Process of Time they were all appropriated to him. Thus the Children and Grandchildren of Noah were deify'd after their Deaths, which occasion'd the (*) Poets to say, that Berecynthia or Cybele, by which they meant Ge, the Earth, or rather the Wife of Noah had such a numerous Offspring of Gods.

184. And as they deify'd their Kings in the Upper, so they did the same in Lower Egypt, particularly Salatis, Bæon and Apachnas their three first Kings. But the Honours paid to them were not so lasting, as those which were paid to the others. For when the Kings of Upper Egypt had driv'n out the Pastors and their Kings, they would not endure long, that any such Respect should be paid to those, who had been in Effect, Rebels to them, and had giv'n them so much Trouble. In short, it was absolutely inconsistent to worship both; so that the Conquerors kept up the Worship of their own Kings, and the Gods of the conquer'd Nations soon dwindl'd into nothing.

185. Beside these, there were (o) four other Gods, whom the Samaritans worshipp'd, when a great Number of strange Nations had been mix'd among them. The first which I shall mention is Succoth-benoth, who was one of the Gods of Babylon. The Word Succoth signifies Booths, and is therefore the Name of one or more Places, where Booths had been built for the Conveniency of such, as stay'd there for some Time. Thus (p) Jacob journeyed to Succoth, and built him an house, and made booths for his cattle, therefore the name of the place was called Succoth. However it may probably be the Name of a Place, particularly in (q) Egypt, where this Deity was worshipp'd. The Words in the Original signify Booths of or for Daughters, and was us'd metaphorically to signify a Hen and Chicken, who were protected or cover'd under the Hen, as Children or the Young of any Creatures were protected by Booths from Wind, Cold, or Rain. The (r) Hebrew Commentators seem to agree, that it was the Picture of a Hen with her Chicken, and the Occasion of it might probably be thus. Before Idolatry or the Worship of Images was establish'd at Babylon, they might worship Ham, who had rul'd over them, and settl'd their Form of Government under this Representation; and the Egyptians knowing him to be their common Father, might continue the same Custom, and think, that they had greater Reason for it. Hence they might build a Temple; and the Place where the Temple was built, and such Animals as were kept therein, might be first call'd Succoth Benoth, and afterward only Succoth, because the Young ones were not always with their Hen. But because Succoth Benoth signifies The Tabernacles of Daughters, therefore others call them Houses or Temples dedicated to the Pleiades. It is certain, that the Babylonians worshipp'd the Stars, and were the first, who call'd the Constellations by particular Names. So that Succoth Benoth may not signify a God or Goddess, but rather the Tabernacle, and several Rites, which were us'd, when it was carry'd in Procession; and any of their Goddesses might be call'd Daughters, or κόρη, since it was the Name by which Proserpine was call'd among the Greeks. And thus Amos speaks of the Idolatry of the Israelites in the Wilderness, (s) Ye have born the tabernacle of Moloch, and Chiun your images, and the star of your God, figures which ye made to worship them. This Name gave afterward an Occasion for much Wickedness; for such Booths being call'd Booths for Daughters made lewd Men come thither to find such Women, and the Women to come thither on Purpose to be found by them. This grew up to be a Part of their Religion, which made (*) the Babylonians to become a vile and profligate People. Hence it was usual for the Women once in their Life to sit in a part of the Temple of Venus, which they call Succoth Benoth for the Use of Strangers. And when any Stranger came there, the Woman, whom he pitch'd upon, and offer'd Money to, let it be ever so little, was obliged to follow him, and lie with him. Besides, The men of Cuth made Nergal a God, who is suppos'd to have been worshipp'd under the Shape of a Partridge; and it is probable, that as Jupiter held a Pomegranate, so she might hold a Palm Branch in her Hand, or they who worshipp'd her, might carry such Branches in Procession, and hence they might be call'd Nergil by the Arabians and Persians. Others say, that Nergal was the constant Fire in the Temple, which was most carefully preserv'd, and worshipp'd by the Magi. Ashima the God of the Men of Hamath was a Goat, Nibbus one of the Gods of the Avites was a Dog, and the other call'd Tartak was an Ass. Adrammelech one of the Gods of Se-pharvaim, was a Mule, and the other call'd Anammelech was a Horse: To these may be added Nisroch, who was (t) the God of the Assyrians, and had a Temple at Nineveh. This is said (u) to be a great Idol made out of the Remains of Noah's Ark, and was call'd نسر نوح or the Eagle of Noah, because he was worshipp'd by the Assyrians under that Shape. Thus we may observe, that the Original of all Idolatry at first sprang out of Babylon and Egypt: And tho' it may seem ridiculous, that such brute Beasts should be worshipp'd as Gods; yet profane Authors sufficiently testify, that the same hath been practis'd in other Parts of the Heathen World. The (x) Cock was worshipp'd as a God among the Syrians; a (y) Goat by the Mendesii; and (z) a Dog by others; and they have added to the Number of their Gods Oxen, Lyons, Eagles, Wolves, Crocodiles, Cats, Rats, and Mice; and many other despicable Animals. And others have digg'd their Gods out of their Gardens, as (a) Garlick, Leeks, and Onions. So that when every Nation had the Liberty to consecrate as many Stars, Men, Beasts, or any other Creatures for Gods, as they thought fit, and to receive any Gods from all other Countries of the World, without Restriction or Limitation, it is no Wonder, if Idolatry increas'd at a prodigious Rate, and that the Number might be vastly more, than what is mention'd in our Pantheon. And if, as Varro saith, they had three Hundred different Jupiters, the Rest of their Gods might well be without Number. And therefore when the Jews learn'd Idolatry from the Heathens round about them, the Prophet Jeremiah might (b) without any Hyperbole use this Expression. According to the number of thy cities are thy Gods, O Judah.

186. I shall mention but one more, viz. Prometheus, who is suppos'd to be Magog. For 1. Magog is by Moses said to be the Son of Japhet, and Prometheus by the Greek Poets is call'd the Son of Japetus: 2. Prometheus is said to be fix'd to the Mountain of Caucasus, because that either he or his Posterity settl'd in Scythia near that Mountain; and this is true as to Magog and his Posterity. 3. Prometheus is said to have brought Fire from Heaven to the Earth, because when Metals were digg'd in Colchis or Iberia or the neighbouring Countries he found out the Art of Melting them by Fire, or restor'd it, as it was invented by Tubal-cain, and therefore Aeschylus the most ancient Greek Tragedian brings in Prometheus, using this Expression; Who

4. Prometheus with his Fire put Life into Clay; which is an Indication of the Necessity of preserving Life by Fire in such a cold Country, as Scythia the Country of Magog was. 5. For the Crime of Prometheus in bringing Fire from Heaven Jupiter is said to punish him with an Eagle, which was continually feeding upon his Heart or Liver. This is only an Allusion to the Word Magog, which (c) signifies to be dissolv'd or consume, and consequently to be brok'n or tormented either in Body or Mind. Thus (d) the P'su'mist uses the Word, when he spoke of Seamen in a Storm, Their soul milted away because of trouble; and Ezekiel (e) That their heart may faint, which the Chaldee and Septuagint render thus, That their heart may be brok'n or wounded. And Lastly, The City Aleppo or Hierapo'is is (f) by Pliny call'd Magog, and seems to have taken its Name from Magog or Prometheus, because Deucalion the Scythian, the Son of Prometheus, (g) is reported to have built it, and therein to have consecrated the Temple to the Syrian Goddess. And therefore the Name of Magog was giv'n to the City, either by the Founder himself, or by the Syrians in Memory of him, who was suppos'd to be the Son of Magog, and to have came into Syria from the Country of Magog or Scythia.

187. I have been much longer on this Subject, than I at first intended, because it not only gives an Account of the Original of the Idolatry of the Jews, so often complain'd of in the Scriptures, and consequently helps to explain several Texts; but also, because the pagan Worship not only in Europe, but in all other Parts of the World, of which there is so much Mention in all the Greek and Latin Authors, had their Rise from hence. It is now high Time to return to the History of the World, and here the first Thing worthy of our

Anno Mundi Observation is (h) the Death of 2007. Noah in the three hundred and fiftieth Year after the Flood, and in the nine hundred and fiftieth Year of his Age, whereas there was no one born after the Flood mention'd in Scripture who liv'd half so long. The (i) Arabick Historian gives this Account of his Death. That when it was near, he commanded his Son privately, saying, Take with thee the Body of Adam out of the Ark, and also take Bread and Wine for the Journey, and Melchizedek the Son of Peleg, (another (k) calls him Melchizedek the Son of Shem) for he shall be the Priest of the most High, and carry the Coffin and his Body, until ye lay it down in the Place where the Angel of GOD shall direct you. Command also Melchizedek to fix his Abode there, and that he may devote his whole Life to Piety, because the LORD hath chosen him for his immediate Service. He may not build him an House, nor offer in that Place the Blood of any Beast, Bird, or any other Animal, nor any other Offering there except Bread and Wine, which he shall offer to the LORD. Let his Cloaths be of the Skin of a Lion, let him not shave his Head, nor cut his Nails, and let him remain alone, for he is the Priest of the most high GOD. And the Angel of the LORD shall go before you until ye shall come to the Place, where ye shall bury the Body of Adam. And when Noah had giv'n this in Charge to Shem, he died. And Shem obey'd his Command, and the Angel of the LORD directed him to a Mountain, where they bury'd the Coffin and the Body of Adam, and Shem return'd to his own People, but Melchizedek stay'd behind, and there he built the City of Jerusalem, which he call'd Salem or Peace, and from hence he is call'd the King of Salem, that is, King of Peace, where he spent the rest of his Life, devoted to the Worship of GOD, liv'd a single Life, and his only Sacrifice was Bread and Wine. And in the Mountain where Adam was bury'd, CHRIST was afterward crucify'd. If any Credit can be giv'n to such romantick Stories as these, it is certain, that the Cabiri at Berytus, of whom Thoth was President, could not be the Sons of Melchizedek, since he came not into Canaan until almost an hundred Years after Thoth remov'd from thence into Egypt. There are some who suppose him to be Shem himself, and it is certain from Scripture Chronology, that Shem liv'd until Abraham was an hundred and fifty Years old. The Apostle rightly observes, (l) that the Name of Melchizedek is by Interpretation King of righteousness, and Shem is call'd by Sanchoniatho Sydyck or The Just, and by the Jewish Writers Shem the Just. I shall mention one (m) Quotation for this Purpose, concerning the City of Jerusalem, The Name of that Place is (n) Jehovah jireh. Abraham call'd the Place Jireh, Shem call'd it Shalem. Then GOD said, If I shall call it Jireh, it will displease Shem the just, If I shall call it Shalem, it will displease Abraham the just. I will therefore put that Name upon it, which was put upon it by both. Jireh Shalem (he shall see Peace) or (in the plural Number) Jeru-Salem. However Noah or Fohi (as he is call'd by the Chinese) dying, he was succeeded in the most eastern Kingdom at that Time, which the Chinese will have to be their own by Xinnun the second King or Emperor, who reign'd an hundred and forty Years, in the seventy sixth Year of whose Reign the Promise was giv'n to Abraham. He (*) was the Inventer of the Plough, and the Improver of Husbandry, and establish'd the Art of Physick among them. He was a very merciful Prince, particularly to a Traitor in his Kingdom, whom he freely pardon'd, and thought that the glory of a good Prince consisted in Justice and Charity. The first Wars in China were in the latter Time of his Reign, when his kindness to others did not meet with a suitable Return to himself; for he was kill'd by Hoamti, who succeeded him.

188. It was not long after Noah the Father of the new World was dead, before Anno Mundi 2009. Abraham the Father of the Faithful was born. For the Sake of Noah's Offering GOD promis'd (n) that he would no more destroy the earth with a flood: And for the Sake of (o) one who was to be of the seed of Abraham GOD promis'd, that all the families of the earth should be blessed.

189. About this Time Tyrrhenus or Tyr-senus the Son of Atys, and third Anno Mundi 2011. King of Lydia after Mizraim, takes with him a considerable Number of Men from thence, who from him were call'd Pelasgi Tyrrheni, and from their sacrificing Rites, they were call'd by the Greeks Thusci. With these he sails into Italy, and possesses that Part, which was call'd afterward Tuscany, and takes three hundred Towns from the Umbri, who were the most ancient People of that Country. They settl'd themselves near the River Tibur, which was therefore call'd (p) Lydius Tiberis by Virgil; and Horace, who reckons (q) Mæcenæ to be sprung from ancient Kings, plainly intimates, that they were Lydians. And Pliny reckons the Lydi amongst the old Planters of Tuscany. The Ornaments of their ancient Kings, which Tarquinius Priscus receiv'd from them, and with which they had been usually adorn'd, were a Crown of Gold, an Ivory Seat, a Scepter with an Eagle upon it's Head, and a Purple Robe embroider'd with Gold. This Country was a considerable Part of the Roman Empire, and the Assistance, which it had from thence, was a principal Cause of Raising it so soon to it's ancient Grandeur. And it is probable, that about this Time several of the Posterity of Tarshish, who before had settl'd a Colony there, and were well provided with Ships of large Bulk and good Sailing, according to the Model of those, which they brought with them from Asia the less, being also afraid of so potent an Enemy and Neighbour, might sail to Spain, and build the Town call'd by them at first Tarshish, and afterward Tartessus, a Seaport Town, lying to the north of Cadis, or Gades. Eusebius (r) speaking of Tarshish

the Grandson of Japhet saith, that from him came the Iberians, which Name it is probable came from the Phœnicians, who settl'd in Carthage, and spoke the Hebrew Language, and consequently call'd the Bounds or utmost Limits of any thing עֲבְרִים Ebrim or Ibrim, a Word often us'd in (s) the Syriack Translation of the old and new Testament. From whence it is not unlikely, that the Spaniards were call'd by this Name of Iberi, because they were thought to possess the utmost Ends of the Earth toward the West. Besides, Polybius repeating the Words of a League made between the Romans and Carthaginians, mentions a Place call'd Tarsejum, and Stephanus expressly saith, that Tarsejum; was a City near to Hercules his Pillars, the Situation whereof agrees very well with that of Tartessus. The Word might be easily chang'd to Tartessus by an Alteration of sh into t, than which nothing was more common in the Eastern Languages. Thus Assyria in Chaldee is Attyr, and Bashan in Greek is Butaniaa. The Prophet Ezekiel (u) speaks of Tyre, Tarshish was thy merchant by reason of the multitude of all kind of riches; with silver, iron, tin and lead they traded in thy fairs. This is generally suppos'd to be Tartessus in Spain. And the learned Bochartus (x) hath prov'd out of many Authors, that these were the Commodities, in which that Country abounded, and that in these particulars the Phœnicians were greatly enrich'd by Trading with them. And the extraordinary Riches of this Country might be the great Inducement to the Posterity of Tarshish to plant a Colony there, rather than in any other Country, which lay nearer to Italy.

190. Thus have we seen, how Italy was first peopl'd by Ham, Tarshish and Tyrrhenus. But as it lay open on all sides to the Sea, and especially to the East; so it was peopl'd at several Times, and accordingly it (y) contain'd many distinct Nations, the principal of which were the Sabines, Hetrurians or Tuscans, Umbri, Samnites, Campani, Apulii, Calabri, Lucanii and Brutii, and other of inferior Note; As for the rest of what is now call'd Italy, it was principally possess'd by the Gauls, who had driv'n out the Hetrurians, and settl'd themselves in those Parts, being distinguish'd into several Names, as the Senones, the Insubres, &c. This Part was almost the same with the present Lombardy, and went by the Name of Gallia Cisalpina and Togata, to distinguish it from Gallia Transalpina, which is now call'd France. But as Livy only begins his History from the Land-

Thus Virgil, Ænæid 8, vers. 475, makes Evander, tho' a Greek, to speak honourably of the Lydian Colony, which had been long in Italy before his Time, and were then more potent than himself. Sed tibi ego ingentes populos, opulentaq; regnis Jungere castra paro. ing of Æneas in Italy about three hundred Years before the destruction of Troy, from whence the first Epocha began in the Heathen World; so we have but little Account of what happen'd before, and all that is considerable relate only to those who were afterwards call'd Latines, and call'd themselves Aborigines. Neither was there any particular Excellency in them, only they were better known, and much more inquir'd after by all Historians. These (z) were of the Posterity of the Oenotrians, and came thither under the Conduct of Oenotrus the Son of Lycaon King of Arcadia, who had driv'n out the Siculi the first Inhabitants of those Parts. This Country was afterward call'd Italy from Italus a King of Sicily, who planted a Colony in those Parts, and made great Improvements there by Teaching the Inhabitants the Art of Husbandry. And when their Neighbours learnt this Art from them, they also extended the Name throughout the whole Country thus improv'd. At first the Country of Latium, which they possess'd, was but a small Country, situated near the River Tibur, about thirty Miles in Length and sixteen in Breadth, containing near a fourth Part of that little Province in the Pope's Dominions, now call'd Compagna di Roma. This Country was govern'd by their own Kings, above 1300 Years before CHRIST, and were the first Kings, which we hear of in Italy, or in all Europe, except Greece, and perhaps Germany. These Kings kept their Courts at Laurentum, which was a City about five Miles distant from the Mouth of the River Tibur, and were Governours of a mix'd People. First, some Pelasgi out of Italy settl'd among them; and we are told by some Authors, that Saturn came thither from Crete, when he fled from his Son Jupiter, which occasion'd their Changing of their Names to Latini, from Lateo, because of his Hiding there. Then came Evander from Arcadia, and afterward Hercules from Greece with their several Followers.

191. About this Time Nimrod or Ninus
 Anno Mundi the Founder of the Assyrian
 2012. Monarchy, having conquer'd almost all the People of the East, carries on a vigorous War against the (a) Bactrians, who inhabited a part of Scythia; and when he had slain their King he himself also died, leaving behind him a young Son call'd Ninyas, and his Wife Semiramis. The Shortness of the Mosaical History would not permit any farther Account to be giv'n of this Empire; but the Silence of this Writer is abundantly made up by other Authors. Upon the Death of Nimrod or Ninus, Semiramis was much perplex'd, what Course to take. She did not dare to commit the Government to a Child so young; she thought that so many and so great a People would not obey a Woman, who could hardly be govern'd at last by her Husband when alive; she was not willing to quit the Government, and had not Time to consider how to settle it. She therefore soon resolves to feign herself to be the Son of Nimrod instead of his Wife, and a Man instead of a Woman: Accordingly, being of an active and a masculine Spirit, she puts on man's Apparel, and was easily acknowledg'd so to be, by her chief Favourites, who were privy to the Design, and whom she could promote in the Empire. And it happen'd, that she had a manly Look, she was of the same Size with her Son, who was but short, and their Features did very much resemble each other; and the better to conceal this Design, she order'd him to be closely confin'd, and perhaps took a more effectual Care to send him out of the way. And as her Husband spent his later Years at Nineveh, by which Method he very much disoblig'd the Babylonians, and made them ready for a Revolt; so she at his Death remov'd immediately to Babylon, where neither she nor her Son were personally known, and therefore the Cheat could be the less discover'd, and by which Method she knew, that she should gain their Affections to stand by her in Case of Extremity. Upon her coming thither, she bestirs herself to do many great and glorious Actions, and when by these she had gain'd the Love of all her Subjects, that neither Envy nor Malice could detract from her real Merit, she confesses who she was, and whom she had counterfeited. This instead of Lessening her Character occasion'd the greater Admiration, that she being a Woman should excel not only her own Sex, but even all Mankind in such a prudent and popular Management. And her Acts are reported by all Historians to be many and famous. It is probable, that Ham himself began to build the Walls of Babylon, when the work of the Tower was laid aside, he having design'd it for the chief Seat of his Empire, and that after this they were carry'd on by his Son Cush, and his Grandson Nimrod in the Beginning of his Reign; but when he dwelt at Nineveh, and built the Walls of that City, the other were much neglected. Semiramis well knew, that she could not see about a more acceptable Act, than to repair the City, and finish the Walls, which she perfected to Admiration, having Brick well burnt instead of Stone, and a glutinous Slime call'd Bitumen instead of Mortar, which boyl'd up continually out of many Places in that Country. Upon this she follows the Example of her Husband Nimrod, being not content with those Kingdoms, which he had conquer'd; and as Justin tells us, she added Ethiopia to her Empire. It is certain, that by Ethiopia he doth not mean the Country now call'd by that Name, because she must have conquer'd Egypt in her way to it, which was never made a Part of the Assyrian Empire, but was always govern'd by Kings of their own. And therefore we must by Ethiopia mean those Places, which the Jews call the Country of Cush, and in the same Sense, as the Septuagint seems to understand the Word. And it is plain, that Strabo and Homer and the eldest Greek Writers, took the Word Ethiopia in that Latitude, that it took in all the swarthy-fac'd Nations, which were either to the East of the Tongue of the Red Sea, or the West of it, especially adjoining to it. Thus Plutarch (b) taking Occasion to commemorate the Heroical Deeds of Semiramis, affirms, that she built Navies, and sail'd round about the Red Sea, overthrowing the Ethiopians and Arabians; whereby he seems to imitate, that they were Neighbours to each other. And accordingly (c) in her latter Years she erected a Pillar with this Inscription, I reigning in Nineveh, made the River Inamane the Bounds of my Kingdom toward the East, and it is bounded toward the South by the Land which bears Frankincense and Myrrh. This River Inamane is without Doubt the same, which Pliny call'd (d) Iomane, and is by him placed in India beyond Ganges. The most southern Bounds were the most southern Parts of Arabia, which were remarkable for these Commodities, and it is plain, that the eastern Parts of Arabia, in which the Horites, and the Cushites dwelt, were within the Limits of her Empire.

192. Apachnas, the King of Lower Egypt dying about this Time, is succeeded by Apophis, who carries on the War against Upper Egypt with greater Vigour, which seem'd before to decline, either through the Age or Infirmities of his Predecessor. We are told, (*) that in his Successor's Time the Kings of Lower Egypt began to call themselves Pharoah, which is suppos'd in their Language to signify a King. But the warlike Acts of this King may make us rather believe, that he took the Name to himself, thereby to reject all Proposals of Accommodation with his Enemies, and oblige his Subjects to fight the more desperately, and hold it out to the last. Before his Time the War seems to be carry'd on principally by Land, but he resolves to attack his Enemies by Sea; and for this Purpose he invades the Coasts, which lay most expos'd, and frequently either plunders the Inhabitants or puts them under Contribution. Before his Time the Kings of Lower Egypt were content with their own Forces, or what they could get from their Brethren out of the Land of Canaan; but he invites Semiramis to assist him, and enters into a League for this Purpose, who having a little before extended her Conquests into the neighbouring Parts, resolves to lay hold on this Opportunity, not with an Intent to assist Apophis, but if possible, to Anno Mundi 2025. make herself Mistress of Upper Egypt; and for this Purpose, she joins with the Canaanitish Pastors in their civil Wars against that Country. The Egyptians call'd her Aso, Queen of the Ethiopians, and Plutarch tells us, that (e) Typho conspir'd against Osiris or Egypt, with seventy two Associates or Assistants, sworn to adhere to him, and had the foreign Aid of Aso, Queen of Ethiopia. These Ships were without Doubt built at Babylon, a Place remarkable for fit Timber for such a Purpose, and so they sail'd down the Euphrates to the Persick Gulph, and then into the Red-sea. And she might reasonably hope, that by Joining the Forces of her Subjects in Arabia to those of the Canaanites or Phœnicians, who were now warring in Egypt, she might bring that Kingdom into a perfect Subjection to the Assyrian Empire, of which she was Queen. It is also certain, that Diodorus Siculus reckons the Egyptians among the Nations, which were sometime subject to Ninus her Husband, who was now dead, and thence she had a Claim or Title to govern there, which we cannot think, that a Person, so eager to enlarge her Dominions, would easily recede from. Ham the Grandfather of Nimrod was the Sovereign Lord of Egypt, and sent them their two first Kings, Mizraim, and his Son Thoth; and Nimrod as Successor to Ham had a farther Claim to the Government; and his Title, descending to his Widow, makes it very probable, that she would send Forces to subdue those Egyptians, who were minded to set up their Kingdom as independent upon hers. Lastly, The greatest Part of the Canaanitish Pastors in Egypt were Horites, who were originally Hivites, and of the same Tribe with those, who (f) dwelt in Hazerim unto Azzah: Semiramis might have a peculiar Reason to assist them, because Diodorus Siculus saith, that she was born at Askelon, which was in their Country. And she might also be prompted to revenge her self on that Kingdom, because the Caphthorim, a Part of them (who came from Pelusium) had before fall'n upon some of these Hivites, and destroy'd them, and taken Possession of their Land.

193. But the People of Upper Egypt had so well secur'd the Banks of the Red-Sea, that the Fleets could either not attempt to land, or if they did, it was to no Purpose, but they were forc'd to put to Sea again: And tho' she pretended a great deal of Affection to Lower Egypt; yet Apophis who was the King there in her Time, was not willing to trust her, and car'd as little to be subject to the Assyrians, as to the Egyptians, and fortify'd the Passes so strongly against her Army, that it was not thought practicable to force them; so that she withdrew from thence, and bent her Forces against the Indians, into which Country, saith Justin, no one ever enter'd in such a Manner, except herself, and Alexander the Great.

194. The Number of Forces which she is said to bring with her is incredible; and yet the Historian tells us, (g) that Staurobates the King of India gather'd together a greater Number than those to oppose her. However she conquer'd him twice, once in a Sea Fight at the River Indus, and the other Time in a Land Battle, and took Part of his Country; but at last being conquer'd by him and wounded, and having lost a third Part of her Army, she retreated; and it is probable, that she made no more Attempts of the like Nature. And the Bounds of her Kingdom seem to be the same, as it was afterward in the Time of (h) Abashuerus one of the Persian Emperors, even from India to the Land of Cush, containing in all an hundred and seven and twenty provinces.

195. Thus have we seen the Rise of the Assyrian, or rather of the Babylonian Empire, begun by Nimrod, and enlarg'd to its utmost Bigness by his Widow Semiramis. This was the Palmer worm, which the Prophet Joel (i) speaks of, and which began to peel the Children of Israel, by Carrying of them Captives into Babylon. As it was the first; so in Nebuchadnezzar's Dream it is represented as the Head of an Image, which was made of pure Gold, whereas the other Parts were made of a baser Metal, or Mixture. For thus he saith to the Emperor then reigning, (k) Thou, O king, art a king of kings: for the GOD of heaven hath given thee a kingdom, and power, and strength, and glory. And wheresoever the children of men dwell, the beasts of the field, and the fowls of the heaven hath he given into thine hand, and hath made thee ruler over them all: thou art this head of gold. And (l) The tree, which grew, and was strong, whose height reached to the heaven, and the sight thereof to all the earth; whose leaves were fair, and the fruit thereof much, and in it was meat for all; under which the beasts of the field dwelt, and upon whose branches the fowls of the heaven had their habitation: It is thou, O king, that art grown, and become strong: for thy greatness is grown, and reacheth unto the heaven, and thy dominion to the end of the earth. And (m) The most high GOD gave unto him a kingdom, and majesty, and glory, and honour. And for the majesty, that he gave him, all people, nations and lan-

Besides, Daniel (n) speaking of the four Monarchies, which were to arise out of the earth, or be in the World, describes this, being the first of all, more exactly. The first under Nimrod and Semiramis was like a lion, a Beast of Prey, exceeding fierce, and had eagle's wings, very swift in their Conquest, extending itself like two Wings from India to the Borders of Egypt. I beheld, 'til the wings thereof were pluckt, it fled and conquer'd no farther; and at the end of the Reign of Semiramis it's Bigness was chang'd into Dulness, and it's Swiftness into Heaviness. It's Wings were pluckt at the fall of Sardanapalus, and a great Part of the Empire was divided from it. And it was lifted up from the earth. It was tak'n away, so that it was an Empire no longer, but it was subdu'd and succeeded by the Persians. And it was made to stand upon the feet as a man, they who before fled in the Air, and seem'd to despise others, as looking down from on high, contain'd themselves within their own Bounds, and were reduc'd to the common Lot of their Neighbours: כאנשׁ like a weak and feeble Man, and such whom they before had conquer'd. And a man's heart was given to it. It had no longer the Fierceness of a Lion; but according to the Description of (o) Isaiah, others might speak and say unto it, Art not thou also become weak as we? Art not thou also become like unto us.

196. During this space of Time we find but little recorded of things done in other Parts of the World. Sarah is born in Mesopotamia, who was afterward the Wife of Abraham, and (p) ten Years younger than he. In upper Egypt Diabies their fourth King dies, and is succeeded by Pemphos, who reigns eighteen Years: And in the eastern Parts of Germany Tuisco their first King dies, and is succeeded by Mannus, who reigns sixty six Years; in the sixtieth Year of whose Reign the Promise is giv'n to Abraham. And soon after this (q) Ren the Son of Peleg dies, being two hundred and nine and thirty Years old. Some pronounce the Word Ren by Ragau, who gave the Name to (r) a Field near Assyria, or as (s) Tobit saith, in Media. Beginning of the Affyrian Empire at Babylon by Nimrod. 2 The Beginning of the Kingdom of Germany or Bohemia, the Metropolis of which in later Times was Prague. 3 The beginning of the Kingdom of Egypt. 4 The Beginning of the Kingdom of the Amazons, which they say, continu'd to the Time of Alexander the great, and of which Justin gives us a more particular Account. 5 The Increase of Idolatry and false Worship of all Sorts. 6 The beginning of the Kingdom of Sheba as govern'd by Women, the first of whom is reported by them to have built the City of Sheba, and from her the same Form of Government continu'd until the Days of Solomon. 7 The Invention of Chymistry, and 8 The Making of Money and Appointing it to be us'd in Commerce between Man and Man.

197. After Pemphos King of Upper Egypt was dead, he was succeeded by Anno Mundi 2039. Toegar Amachus, their sixth King, who reign'd seventy nine Years, in the forty fourth Year of whose Reign the Promise was giv'n to Abraham. About (*) the ninth Year of his Reign there reign'd in Crete one Cres, who was one of the Curetes, who are said to have brought up Jupiter.

These built Gnossos in Crete, Anno Mundi 2048. and in it the Temple of Cybele the Mother of the Gods. From hence we may suppose, that this Cres was not a Cretian by Birth, but one who came from Lydia, and being also of the Posterity of Ham he was more easily admitted to live among them. For it is evident, that this Cybele was the great Lydian or Phrygian Goddess, and the Daughter, or rather the Wife of Mencs or Mizraim, the first Founder of that Monarchy, was was also afterward the first King of Egypt, and was the Mother of such Men, as the Heathens worshipp'd. The Likeness of his Name hath made some think, that he first planted a Colony in that Island, tho' the Island had been peopl'd by the Egyptians, as is before mention'd. The Likeness of the Name might be some Inducement to their Choosing him to be their first King, and his

but also to one who was in as great Esteem among the Egyptians, and consequently among the Cretians, was a politick Contrivance to engage and secure their Affections. In the eleventh Year of his Reign Serug the great of him, that he begun every Year to celebrate the Memory of famous Men, and commanded them to be honour'd as Benefactors. And it is suppos'd, that in Memory of him some of his Descendants might call that City Sarug, which, as the Arabian Geographer saith, lay near to Uran, the Place to which Abraham first came, when he departed out of his own Country.

198. Some Years after Semiramis had return'd from her Expedition into the East Indies, and seem'd resolv'd to spend the Rest of her Days in Peace and Quietness, her Brother Nimias Zames, (tho' Justin saith her Son Ninias) succeeds her in the Empire, who is said to have kill'd her under Pretence, that she would have lain with him. For when any Person is willing to obtain a Crown, either by Right or Wrong, and scruples not the Committing of Murder for such a Purpose, he will not long want Pretences. He being content with the Empire obtain'd for him by the Labours of his Predecessors, laid aside the Study of War, and as if he had chang'd his Sex with this warlike Queen, was seldom seen of Men, and spent his Age in the Company of Women. His Posterity also, following such an Example, are said to have giv'n themselves to Ease and Luxury, and gave Answers to foreign Ambassadors not in Person, but by their Agents; so that we have little left of them, but their Names, which are hardly worth Mentioning. And thus the Affyrian Empire continu'd for thirteen hundred Years, from the Founding of it by Nimrod to the Death of Sardanapalus, when the famous Era of Nabonassar began, and when it was divided into two Parts, viz. the Affyrian, and the Babylonian Empire, from which Epocha the learned Dr. Prideaux began his famous Connexion of the History of the old and new Testament.

199. Some Time after this Apophis the fourth King of Lower Egypt dies, and Janias succeeds him, who Successor constantly maintain'd the Title of Pharaoh, or King, until the Expulsion of their Subjects out of the Country, when they retir'd into the Land of Canaan, and after that the Kings of Upper Egypt kept the same Title throughout the Scripture History, and even until they were subdu'd by the Romans. At his first Coming to the Throne, his Kingdom was in a very unsettl'd Condition, either by Divisions among themselves, or Disadvantages, which they had receiv'd in those long and desperate Wars; so that many great Bodies of the Phaenician Pastors remove from thence into the Land of Canaan, which so dishearten'd and weak'n'd the Rest, that their Power afterward visibly declin'd, until they were totally dispers'd. And this happen'd to be near the Time when the Promise was given to Abraham.

(u) Suidas, Damascenus, Jacobus Genfus de victimis humanis prov. 1. cap. 2.

200. What hath been mention'd in this Chapter may serve to explain some Texts of Scripture, concerning the Canaanites, which have given much Perplexity to many Commentators, and some have affirm'd, that those Words were not inserted by Moses, but by another Person of a later Date, either Ezra, or Joshua, or they know not whom. But this instead of Solving the Difficulty makes it greater, and gives Occasion for fresh Objections. The first Text is, (x) where Moses gives an Account of the eleven Sons of Canaan, who were all originally settl'd in the Land, which was given to their Father. And then he adds, And afterward were the families of the Canaanites spread abroad. Now the Meaning of these Words is no more than this. The eleven Sons of Canaan were all settl'd according to their Families; out of all those a mixt Multitude went into Lower Egypt under the Name of the Canaanitish Pastors; these mixing together for about two hundred Years, could hardly distinguish of what Family they were, and coming back from Egypt, they were not willing to separate from their old Acquaintance, but kept themselves in large Bodies, and spread themselves into such Places of the Land of Canaan, as were not inhabited before. In this Sense it is, that (y) Moses tells us, that when Abraham came into the Land of Canaan, the Canaanite was then in the land, which Words are not only clear and plain, but are of great Use to fix the Time of their Coming thither. And as they were in great Bodies, and the Land was not fully inhabited at that Time; so Abraham had room enough for his Family and his Cattle. After this Abraham went into Egypt, and upon his Return (z) the Canaanite and the Perizzite dwelt then in the land. The Perizzite was not mention'd before and yet they are a Nation constantly mark'd out to be destroy'd by the Israelites. The Perizzites in Hebrew signify the Inhabitants of small Villages; these having liv'd a pastoral Life in Egypt, were willing to continue the same Employment, and separated into small Companies, for the Conveniency of their Cattle, whilst the Canaanites kept in large Bodies in a military Posture, and dealt in Merchandise. Now when Abraham came out of Egypt, the Perizzite, and the Canaanite were then there, the latter of these had fix'd themselves in Cities, which they had built; and the others had spread themselves abroad for the Conveniency of Pasturage. And this Moses gives as a Reason, why at Abraham's Return he was more straighten'd than before, which occasion'd a Necessity for him and Lot to separate themselves, according as it is describ'd in the sacred Scriptures.

201. Lastly, From hence we may observe the great Wisdom of GOD, in Setting down the Length of the Lives of those, who liv'd after the Flood; and his wonderful Providence, in Ordering them to be much longer than they are now, and also gradually to decrease 'til the Time of Moses, not only for the speedy Peopling of the World, but also for Settling the Chronology of those early Ages, and Vindicating the Authority of the Hebrew Text. We find Ham alive 'til about the Time of Abraham's Birth, and we find nothing of him, when Abraham came into the Land of Canaan, so that he must be dead before that Time, and therefore he might be about four hundred and fifty Years old, when he died. Now it is certain, that he liv'd not to the Age of Shem, for People born at the same Time, usually die before one another; besides being a wicked Man, his Age might be judicially shorten'd, and being of a turbulent Spirit, he might impair his own Constitution. However he liv'd something longer than Arphaxad, Selah and Eber born since the Flood, and therefore died at a fit Age for one that was born before them. In Greece we find the ancient Names of Places exactly agreeing with the Names of the Sons of Japhet; and thus it was in Asia the less, before Greece was inhabited; which is an Argument, that the Fathers of all these Families were then alive, and that these Countries were peopl'd in their Time, and perhaps by their Direction. In Babylon we may also observe, that Nimias Zames, who was Brother to, and contemporary with Nimrod the Grandson of Ham, died about the same Time with Selah the Grandson of Shem. In Germany we may observe, that Tuisco the first King came to the Throne about the Year 1847, and if we may suppose him to be then about sixty Years of Age, which was a fit Age for Conduct and Action, he will then be born about the same Time with Ren the Son of Peleg, and also die about the same Time with him. Mannus the second King reign'd sixty six Years. It is uncertain at what Age his Reign began; so that he might possibly live as long as Terah and Abraham, with whom he was contemporary. In Lower Egypt the five Kings after Salatis the first King reign'd two hundred forty one Years, and as Hercules Assis retreated from thence into Canaan about the Time of the Death of Abraham, so that it is uncertain how long he might live after; yet the Reign of each one with another is little less than fifty Years, which may give a near Approach to the Lives of their Contemporaries. In Upper Egypt the Case is more remarkable. Mizraim or Menes, being the Son of Ham, may be thought to be born near the Time, which is assign'd by Moses to Arphaxad the Son of Shem, whom all allow to be in the second Year after the Flood, or the Year 1659, especially when we consider, that he was first plac'd by Ham to reign in Egypt, a rich Country and known to him. Now the Egyptian Histories agree, (x) Gen. 10. 18.

(y) Gen. 12. 6.

(z) Gen. 13. 7.

that he was cut off by a violent Death, before the Course of Nature in those Days would have remov'd him. However the Table of Eratosthenes allows him to have liv'd to the Year 1912, from which if we subtract the suppos'd Time of his Birth 1659, his Age at his Death will be 253 Years, which is a considerable Time for a Man, whom the Egyptians lament to be cut off in the Flower of his Age, which is above half the Time that Arphaxad liv'd, or 438 Years. And according to this the Beginning of his Reign will not be 'til he was 191 Years old, which agrees well with those Times, in which Mens Lives were so long; and there is no Reason to suppose him to begin to reign, when he was older. The next is Thoth or Atthotes the second King, whom we may suppose to be born about the Time of Selah, Anno Mundi 1694, and the Beginning of his Reign being in the Year 1912, he came to the Throne at about 218 Years old, and died about 277, which is a good Approach to the Longevity of those Times, tho' not so long as Selah's Life, which many Accidents might hinder, particularly Salatis the first King of lower Egypt was engag'd against him, and Manetho declares him to be so formidable a Warrior, as must shorten his Days, since by all Accounts he died a violent Death. As to the other Kings, since they went always out to Battle, they might meet with the same Fate, or begin later to Reign, so that nothing can be guess'd at from them: however Toegar Amachus, who liv'd in the Time of Abraham, reign'd seventy nine Years, which shews, that his Predecessors either did, or might have liv'd longer, and that he might equal the Lives in the Race of Shem in those Days. So that even the Branches of Ham and Japhet, tho' omitted by Moses is a farther Confirmation of the Scripture Chronology, according to the Hebrew Text; and shews, that the Times, in which they liv'd, are rightly plac'd by our best Historians. Besides, there is another Branch of Shem as remarkable as any of the rest; I mean those, from whom China was afterward inhabited, Let us suppose Foki their first King to be Noah who died Anno Mundi 2008. He was succeeded by Xinnun, who reign'd an hundred and forty Years, and let us but suppose, that he came to the Throne, when he was between sixty and an hundred Years of Age, which was a fit Time in those Days, he will die between 200 and 240 Years old, which was the Age of Peleg, Ren, Serug and Terah his contemporaries, and near the Age of Abraham, who was born in the second Year after his Reign. So that all these Particulars coming from so many particular Kings, so remote from each other, and which had so little Correspondence with one another, and most of which pretended, that their Nation was the most ancient, and despis'd others for that Reason; I say, all these put together must infallibly confirm the Truth of the Hebrew Chronology; unless we can suppose, that Greeks, Egyptians, Chinese, Germans, Babylonians and Canaanites could agree together to impose upon the World in a Case of this Nature, or that they could have hit upon it by Accident.

1659	2349	2364	2	Arphaxad is born.
1694	2314	2399	37	Salah is born.
1724	2284	2429	67	Eber is born.
1757	2251	2462	100	Noah is drunk. He afterward curseth Ham , and blesteth Shem and Japhet .
1758	2250	2463	101	Peleg is born. Noah divides the Earth among his Sons. He allots all the Eastern and the Northern Part of Asia to Shem . He allots to Ham the Part of Asia , which leads to Africa and he allots to Japhet the Part of Asia , which leads to Europe . Accordingly they are sent abroad by him to plant new Colonies. The Posterity of Ham and Japhet travelling together westward toward their respective Habitations come to Babel , which was near the ancient Seat of Paradise, and settle there.
				At this Time it is probable, that the Sons of Shem did each of them take their respective Countries in Asia , after their families, after their tongues, in their lands, and after their nations.
1782	2226	2487	125	The City of Babel is built, and all Hands are employ'd in the Building of the Tower.
1788	2220	2493	131	Ren is born.
1798	2210	2503	141	The Builders of Babylon are dispers'd.
1820	2188	2525	163	Serug is born.
1850	2158	2535	193	Nahor is born.
1879	2129	2584	222	Terah is born.
1949	2059	2654	292	Haran is born.
1950	2058	2655	293	About this Time Cush removes from his first Habitation with Part of his Family, and comes to live in the South Part of Babylonia , in a Place call'd Chaduca but formerly Chusca .
1955	2053	2660	298	Cush having invaded Persia , and seiz'd upon that Part of Persia , which is since call'd Chuzestan or the Province of Cush , the numerous Family of Joktan , who was of the Race of Shem , being streighten'd for Room, pass over the Persian Gulph, and take Possession of Arabia Felix .
1960	2048	2665	303	About this Time Obal , one of the Sons of Joktan , passes from Arabia Felix into Africa over the Red Sea , at the Streights of Babelmandel , and settle on the other Side.
1998	2010	2703	341	Nahor dies.
2007	2001	2712	350	Noah admonisheth Shem his eldest Son, that Idolatry would overspread those Countries, and that the true Worship of GOD would be settl'd in the Land of Canaan . He adviseth Shem to put his Body into a Coffin, and remove with it into the Land of Canaan , and dwell there. And then Noah dies. The Truth of this and the following Story depends upon the Credit of Abu'l Pharagius and some other eastern Writers.
2008	2000	2713	351	Shem removes with the Body of Noah into Canaan , which he buries and then dwells at Salem , since call'd Jerusalem , and is a King there, as being the oldest Man in the World. He was a just Man, and was reckon'd to be the Priest of the most high GOD, and was call'd Melchisedek .
2009	1999	2714	352	Abraham is born.
2010	1998	2715	353	About this Time the Affyrian Monarchy having been establish'd by Nimrod , and he having invaded Affyria , or the Dominions of the Sons of Assur , they pass over the Tigris , and force the Sons of Japhet to go farther westward, and settle in the Country of Asia the less.
2015	1993	2720	358	The Affyrian Monarchy growing more formidable, the Sons of Aram , who lay on the west Side of the Sons of Assur , they pass over the Tigris , and force the Sons of Japhet to go farther Westward, and so they at last settle in the less Asia .
2019	1989	2724	362	Sarah is born.
2020	1988	2725	363	About this Time the Children of Assur , build a Fort upon the River Euphrates , which they call'd Telassar , or the Fort of Assur , thereby to prevent the Excursions of the new erected Monarchy, and the better to secure the Navigation of that River.
2027	1981	2732	370	Ren dies.
2050	1958	2755	393	Serug dies.

				The Scripture History with some Particulars from the Eastern Historians: Or, The Histories of the Families of Shem.
2083	1925	2788	426	GOD reveals himself to Abraham by the Name of the most high GOD, the Creator and Possessor of heaven and earth. Gen. 14. 22, and commands him publicly to pray to him, which Abraham did, and the heavy Judgment of the ravenous Birds is remov'd. Upon this GOD commands Abraham to burn the idolatrous Temple, which he did by Night, and his Brother Haran endeavouring to extinguish it, perishes in the Flames. The Inhabitants being enrag'd for this Fact, and vowing the Destruction of Abraham and his Family, GOD commands Abraham to depart from Mesopotamia, and go into a strange Country with the Promise of a Blessing. Accordingly Abraham sets out from Ur, and comes to Haran, and settles there.
2084	1924	2789	427	Terah, Abraham's Father dies, and Abraham having no Promise from GOD, that he should inherit the Land, where he then was, he departs from thence, and settles in Canaan, where he receiv'd a Promise, that GOD would give it to him, and to his Seed.

The Assyrian or the Chaldean History: Or, The History of the Families of Ham.

1758 2250 2463 101. Japhet and Ham departs with their Families or Posterity from Noah to inhabit the Countries appointed by GOD for them. They were sent away by Noah to avoid the Effects of their Rage, occasion'd by Japhet's losing his Birthright, and Ham's being curs'd. When they come to Babylon, they resolve to go no farther, but to build a Tower, as a Means to unite themselves under one Head, not only for their Security if another Flood should happen; but also to be near at hand, to revenge themselves on the Posterity of Shem, when Occasion should present. Ham is also call'd Belus the first, and is the Governour of the Babylonians, tho' the younger Brother, being of a more aspiring Temper. Ham having marry'd Naamah the Daughter of Lamech of the idolatrous Race of Cain, and being the principal Person in the Country, Idolatry is soon resolv'd upon. Ham governs the Assyrian Monarchy 137 Years.

1776 2232 2481 119. Astronomical Observations are begun by the Chaldeans from the highest of the Towers in Babylon.

1782 2226 2487 125. The City of Babylon is finish'd, and all Hands are at Work to build the Tower.

1798 2210 2503 141. The Languages are confounded at Babylon, and the People are dispers'd according to their Families into different Nations.

1799 2209 2504 142. Ham and the greatest Part his Posterity come to Canaan and settle there, leaving some of them behind to take Care of the Government of Babylon, and the Country round about.

1810 2198 2515 153. The Posterity of Cush settle in the South East Country near the Land of Canaan, and from thence they extend themselves into Arabia.

1852 2 56 2557 195. Ham being of an aspiring and an ambitious Temper, not only keeps Possession of what he had in Asia, which was allotted to Shem; but he resolves also to incroach upon the Territories of his Brother Japhet. And having settled the Children of Mizraim in Egypt, he takes a Part of the Ludim, who were the Sons of Mizraim, and plac'd on the Southern Part of the Nile. With these he sails along the Mediterranean Sea, and seizes on the Country, which is call'd Lydia.

1870 2138 2575 213. Ham sails about this Time from Lydia into Italy, where he reigns for a little while, and then leaves a Colony there, who from him were call'd עַמִּי or, The Umbri.

1877 2131 2582 220. About this Time Ham sails into Sicily, where he also reigns for a little While, and leaves a Colony there.

1880 2128 2585 223. About this Time Ham returns into Canaan.

1882 2126 2587 225. About this Time Ham returns to Babylon.

1892 2116 2597 235. Ham resolving to revenge his Father's Curse, and being jealous that his Father Noah intended also to plant others of his Sons in Countries near him, by which Means he might be straightned in his own Dominions, he sets upon his aged Father by Surprize, and expels him by Force from his own Country. Upon this Noah retires into China: Hence arose the Story of Jupiter Hammon's driving his Father Saturn out of his own Country into Latium, so call'd a latendo, because he lay hid there and it was not known whither he went.

1902 2106 2627 245. About this Time Cush brings a Colony with him from his own Country, and settles there on the South Side of Babylon in a Country call'd Chuduca, but formerly Chusca.

- 1905 2103 2610 248. Ham finally retires from Babylon into Canaan, and leaves his Son Cush, or Belus the Second, to succeed him in the Government of Babylon, where he reigns 55 Years.
- 1920 2088 2625 263. About this Time Cush invades Persia and seizes upon the Country, which was call'd Chuzestan, or the Province of Cush.
- 1954 2054 2259 297. About this Time the Families of Shem being made uneasy by the Incroachments of Cush, Jochan, with his numerous Family, passes into Arabia Felix at the Streights of the Persian Gulf, where he founds a Kingdom, and divides it among his Sons.
- 1960 2048 2665 303. Cush, or Belus the second, dies, and Ninus or Nimrod's Son succeeds him in Babylon. He builds the Cities of Erec, Accad and Calneh in the Land of Shinar, and went out from thence into Affyria and built Nineveh, and the City

- call'd Rehoboth and Calah. Gen. 10. 8. to 11. He marries Semiramis, settles the Affyrian Monarchy, and reigns two and fifty Years.
- 2012 1996 2717 355. Semiramis succeeds her Husband Nimrod. She made great Enlargements of the Empire. Plutarch saith, That she built Navies, and sailed round about the Red Sea, overthrowing the Ethiopians and Arabians. She assisted the Phœnician Pastors against the Kings of upper Egypt, hoping by this Method to bring that Kingdom into Subjection to her Empire. The Egyptians call'd her Ajo. She reign'd two and forty Years.
- 2054 1954 2759 397. Nimias Zameas the Brother of Semiramis succeeds her in the Empire, who is said to have kill'd her, on Pretence that she would have lain with him. He and all his Successors are said to have giv'n themselves to Ease and Luxury.]

The Grecian History : Or, The History of the Families of Japhet.

- 1697 2311 2402 40. Some make Nereus to be born about this Time, as one of the Sons of Japhet, if he was not Japhet himself.
- 1701 2307 2465 44. Some place Prometheus about this Time, as one of the Sons of Japhet, born also after his seven eldest Sons. Gen. 10. 2.
- 1705 2303 2410 48. About this Time Pontus might also be born unto Japhet.
- 1745 2253 2540 88. About this Time Poseidon might be born unto Pontus, who was call'd Neptune, and oftentimes mistak'n for Japhet.
- 1788 2210 2503 141. Japhet comes from Babylon Westward.
- 1800 2208 2505 143. Japhet and his Families settle themselves between the Tigris and Euphrates; but being straightned for want of Room, they soon extend themselves Westward.
- 1805 2203 2510 148. So that about this Time Part of Japhet's Family, together with himself, might settle in Natolia or Asia the Less, being parted from the Posterity of Ham by the Mountains of Libanus, Antilibanus and Amanus. Sometimes they live peaceably with the Posterity of Ham, and sometimes they have Wars, which are generally of a short Continuance; the grand and famous Scene of Action being between the Upper and the Lower Egypt.
- 1810 2198 2515 153. About this Time the Posterity of Japhet might settle themselves in Lydia.
- 1815 2193 2520 158. About this Time they might people part of Phrygia.
- 1820 2188 2525 163. About this Time they might enlarge their Dominions as far as the Hellepont.
- 1830 2178 2535 173. About this Time some of the Posterity of Japhet might pass over into Greece by the Hellepont, and settle the Countries after their Families, and according to their Names. And soon after the Rest of the Families, which lay upon the Ægean Sea, hearing that there was a Country to be inhabited, might sail from their respective Harbours, and take Possession thereof accordingly in the opposite Countries. And this was the first peopling of Europe.
- 1831 2177 2536 174. There seems at present to be a good Agreement between the Families of Ham and Japhet, which had lasted to this Time, because it was their common Interest to improve as much - Land as they could, for the Maintenance of their Families, and to destroy the wild Beasts.

- 1832 2176 2537 175. About this Time Ham being desirous to enlarge his Dominions, goes into the Country of Japhet, and settles a Colony there, being some of the Ludim by his Grandson Mizraim, which is accordingly call'd Lydia. Here Ham governs for some Time. And it is probable, that to prevent a Misunderstanding between him and Japhet on this Occasion, Ham quietly permits some of Japhet's Posterity to settle in Berytus, and Mizraim the Son of Ham, marries Isis the Daughter of Japhet.
- 1840 2168 2545 187. About this Time Mizraim passes over into Europe, where he leaves one of his Sons to be King of Macedonia.
- 1842 2166 2547 185. About this Time Ham goes into Greece, where he gives Attica to his Daughter Athens; but he could make no good Title to it, because it had been inhabited before by the Sons of Japhet, or, as they said, Neptune had seiz'd upon it by the Stroke of his Trident. During his Travels he leaves his Son Mizraim to reign over his Posterity in Lydia, and soon sails from Greece to Italy Athens being thus peopled partly by the Posterity of Ham, and partly by the Posterity of Japhet, was therefore call'd Athens in the Plural Number.
- 1850 2158 2555 193. About this Time the Phœnician Pastors being quiet, Mizraim and Isis his Wife, sail to Greece to enlarge their Dominions on that Side; but the Egyptian Wars breaking out, they make no long Stay there, and the Colonies planted by Mizraim, are either soon driven out again, or else they mix with the Posterity of Japhet, and so they are all lost except Lydia.
- 1860 2148 2565 203. About this Time Mizraim sends Triptolemus to take Care of and improve the Tillage of Attica, and probably to be accountable to his Son in Macedonia.
- 1865 2143 2570 208. At this Time Wars break out between the Families of Japhet and Ham, which Sanchoiabo thus describes, Demaroon (who was born in the House of Ham) invades Pontus (the Son of Japhet) but Pontus puts him to flight, and Demaroon vows a Sacrifice for his Escape.

The History of Canaan the Son of Ham and his Posterity, intermix'd with more of the History of Ham.

1758 2250 2463 101. Ham and Japhet come from Noah to Babylon, where they resolve to build a City and a Tower, and so to settle there.
1798 2210 2503 141. Their Languages are confounded, and they disperse from thence.
1799 2209 2504 142. Ham and his Posterity come toward Canaan, and first settl'd in that Country, which was call'd Ham, or Hamath, and where he built a City since call'd Hammath.
1805 2203 2510 148. Sidon was built about this Time by Sidon the first born Son of Canaan.
1807 2201 2512 150. Phut settles in Africa.
1810 2198 2515 153. About this Time the Land of Canaan is distributed among the Sons of Canaan according to their Families.
1810 2198 2515 153. Ham lives in Peræa beyond Jordan.
1812 2196 2517 155. About this Time the Horites settle near to Mount Seir, being Hivites of the Posterity of Canaan.
1821 2187 2526 164. The Phœnician Pastors go in great Numbers from Canaan, and settle in lower Egypt. These were partly Hivites and partly Jebeu-sites, and were joyn'd with some of the Horites, and some of the neighbouring Parts of Arabia, whom the Egyptians call Hyc-fi, that is, King's Shepherds, who dwelt in Hazerim or small Villages. See their History in lower Egypt, Col. 10.
1825 2183 2530 168. Hebron is built about this Time.
1832 2178 2537 175. About this Time Ham being ambitious to enlarge his Dominions, goes into Lydia the Country of Japhet, and settles a Colony there, where he resides for some Time, and then makes his Son Mizraim King over these Ludims or Lydians, being his Posterity. This Country is accordingly call'd Meonias from Maon, Menes or Mizraim. And it is probable, that to prevent a Misunderstanding between him and Japhet on this Occasion, Ham quietly permits some of Japhet's Posterity to settle in Berytus, a Town on the Borders of both Countries, and his Son Mizraim marries Issi the Daughter of Japhet.
1835 2173 2540 178. About this Time the Cabiri settle at Berytus, who were certain Priests appointed to take Care of the Affairs of Religion, and with whom Shem and Melchisedek is suppos'd to have afterward held a fair Correspondence. Ham quietly yields up the Town of Berytus to this Branch of the Family of Japhet. They build Ships, and improve the Art of Navigation. Phut or Apollo the Inventor of Physick, and the Son of Ham, is among them, and also Esculapius the Son of Phut or Apollo, who afterward brought Physick to a greater Perfection. Thoth the Son of Mizraim, and Grandson of Ham, who is frequently call'd The Egyptian Mercury, because he was afterward King of Egypt, is with them as their President. He invents Letters, which in all Probability were the ancient Samaritan Characters. He was a Man eminently learned, and a great Restorer and Encourager of Learning. He gives an Account to the Cabiri or Priests of all the Transactions since the Creation of the World, which he order'd to be written or kept in the Records of that Town, from whence Sanchoiatho transcrib'd his History. The Cabiri consecrate the Relicks of Pontus, who is suppos'd to be one of the Sons of Japhet, and being drown'd by Adventuring too far to Sea in a Ship, caus'd the Sea to be call'd by his Name Πόντος. The Cabiri are also call'd Corybantes and Dioscuri, Διόσκουροι; so that they soon fell into Idolatry, and first worshipp'd Ham or Jupiter, and after that Pontus or Neptune.

1837 2171 2542 180. About this Time some of the Cabiri having built some tumultuary and other Ships, sail into the Mediterranean Sea, but being over-against Mount Cassius, they are call away, and coming to Shore, they consecrate a Temple there.
1840 2168 2545 183. About this Time Mizraim being ambitious to enlarge his Dominions, passes into Europe, where he leaves his Son to be King of Macedonia, and returns to take Care of his other Kingdoms.
1842 2166 2547 185. About this Time Ham goes into Greece, where he gives Attica to his Daughter Athens, but he finds the Country inhabited before he came thither. He leaves his Son Mizraim to reign in Lydia. Pausanias calls Ham by the Name of Porphyron, or a King wearing Purple, and affirms that he built for the Lydians the Temple dedicated to Venus Urania, or to his Wife Astarte after her Decease.
1845 2163 2550 188. About this Time Mizraim conquers Part of Phrygia, and settles some Inhabitants there.
1849 2159 2554 192. Ham sends his Son Mizraim to be King of Egypt, and makes Demaroon Governor of Lydia and Phrygia.
1850 2158 2555 193. About this Time Ham sails from Lydia into Italy, and reigns there for some Time. He leaves a Colony there, who are call'd the Umbri or Ὀμβρι the Hammites, and by some The Aborigines.
1852 2156 2577 195. About this Time Ham sails into Sicily, where he reigns for a little while, and leaves a Colony there.

- 1854 2154 2559 197. About this Time Ham returns into Canaan, and some Philistins or Cherethites take Possession of Crete.
- 1862 2146 2567 205. Ham sets himself up as independent from, and undutiful to his Father.
- 1865 2143 2570 208. Demaroon the Son of Ham invades Pontus on the South Part of the Euxine Sea, with a Design to enlarge the Dominions of Ham in Asia; but Pontus puts him to Flight, and Demaroon vows a Sacrifice for his Escape. This Defeat puts a Stop to all future Attempts on that Side.
- 1890 2118 2595 233. Ham going from Babylon, his Wife Astarte governs in his Absence, and accordingly she wears upon her Head a Bull's Horns, as an Emblem of Power and Sovereignty.
- 1892 2116 2597 235. Ham drives his Father Noah out of his own Country; and there being a Pestilence and a great Death of his Subjects, he offers up his only Son, whom he had by Anobret, a Nymph of that Country, to appease the Ghost of his Father Noah, who was then consecrated as a GOD, being suppos'd to be kill'd at this his Expulsion. The Reason of this Consecration was, because Ham thought, that it would be more honourable to himself to be believ'd, whilst he liv'd, to be the Son of a Deity; and that after his own Death it would also pave the Way for his own Consecration.
- 1895 2113 2600 238. About this Time Melchartzus or the old Phœnician Hercules, who is reported by Sanchoiatho to be the Son of Demaroon and great Grandson of Noah, liv'd. He was in part contemporary with Noah, and famous for finding out the purple Dye. This Dye being first appropriated to Kings in the Reign of Ham, is a sufficient Reason why the Greeks might call him Porphyryon, that is, A King wearing Purple. This Hercules leads a Colony to Cadis, sailing through the Straits of Gibraltar, where he built a Temple upon the Island, to which he gave the Phœnician Name Gadira, that is, a Place hedg'd in by the Sea that he could go no farther. Since that Time it was call'd Gades, and now Cadis. He plac'd no Images in the Temple.
- 1900 2108 2605 243. About this Time, whilst Astarte thus reign'd, she built the City call'd Ashtaroth Carnaim, or Astarte with two Horns, as a farther Testimony of her Authority and Power. Here Chedorlaomer smote the Rephaims or Giants. Gen. 14. 5.
- 1905 2103 2610 248. Ham quits Babylon, resigning the Government to his Son Cush, or Belus the second, and returns into Canaan.
- 1906 2102 2611 249. About this Time more Canaanites go into lower Egypt, and joyn with the Phœnician Pastors.
- 1911 2097 2616 254. Mizraim is slain in Egypt by a Conspiracy. His Wife Isis puts his Body into a Coffin, and sails with it to Ham (who was then at Byblus) for Directions. Upon this Ham sends Thoth or Athorhes to be King of Egypt, and Corys succeeds him, as the second King of Lydia.
- 1915 2093 2620 258. About this Time some of the Phœnician Pastors might return into Canaan.
- 1925 2083 2630 268. Ham dies about this Time, and leaves his Son Canaan to be the Governour of that Country, which was afterward call'd from him The Land of Canaan. After the Death of Ham, the eleven Tribes, which descended from him (being encourag'd by the Example of the Philistins, and the Phœnician Pastors, who settl'd among them in distinct Bodies) set up for themselves, and so they are divided into eleven Kingdoms distinct from each other.
- 1926 2082 2631 269. About this Time Salatis King of the lower Egypt, having beat'n the Philistins, or one of the Tribes of Egypt, which dwelt about Caphor, Abaris or Pelusium (from whence they took their Name) and tak'n their strong Pass they compound with him to retire out of the Country, who accordingly retreat into Canaan, and in Revenge for their Sufferings they fall upon the Avites or Hivites (whose Ancestors came into The lower Egypt leaving these behind them) and destroy their Country, Deut. 2. 23. These divide themselves into five Lordships, under five Lords, who settle in five distinct Cities, viz. in Ashdod, Gaza, Askelon, Garh and Ekyon. Jos. 13. 2, 3. Jud. 3. 3. 1 Sam. 6. 17, 18. who sometimes had a King over themselves, Gen. 20. 2. as Abimelech was in Abraham's Time.
- 1951 2057 2656 304. About this Time Atys the third King reigns in Lydia, whose Successors were call'd from him Atyada.
- 1991 2017 2696 344. About this Time Tyrrhenus or Tyrseus the fourth King, reigns in Lydia.
- 2011 2997 2716 364. Tyrrhenus or Tyrseus brings a Colony of the Lydians into Italy, where he settles in Tuscany, and expels the Umbri.
- 2063 2245 2768 416. Cres builds Gnostus and the Temple of Cybele in Crete.
- 2064 2244 2769 417. Cres is made King of Crete.
- 2082 2926 2787 435. The Phœnician Pastors being under some Disadvantage in Egypt, remove in a greater Eddy into Canaan, which so weaken'd the Rest, that their Power afterward seem'd to decline, until they were totally dispers'd. These Pastors keep together in large Bodies for some Time, so that they did not streighten Abraham and Lot at their first coming into Canaan.

The History of Upper Egypt and Africa.

- 1798 2210 2563 141. The Languages are confounded at Babylon, and the People are dispers'd according to their Families into different Nations.
- 1802 2206 2705 142. Ham and his Posterity come from Babel and settle in Canaan.
- 1805 2203 2510 148. After they had been but a little Time in Canaan some of the Posterity of Mizraim enter into Upper Egypt, and settle there under the Government of Ham, who dwells in Canaan, and keeps his Son Mizraim with him. Hence Egypt is so often call'd The Land of Ham, Psal. 78. 51.
- Psal. 105. 23, 27, and Psal. 106. 22. The Children of Mizraim disperse, and settle there according to their respective Families. Gen. 10. 13, 14. And particularly the Castubim (out of whom came the Philistim and Caphrorim, Gen. 10. 13, 14.) settle themselves about Sin or Pelusium. Thus the Upper Egypt was peopl'd sooner than the Lower Egypt, because it was not subject to such great Inconveniencies by the Overflowings of the Nile, as the other was, it lying much higher, and yet lying so as to receive a great Benefit, and less Trouble from its Overflowings.

Col. 10.

1810 2198 2515 153. About this Time some of the Posterity of Japhet might settle themselves in Lydia.

1815 2193 2520 158. About this Time some of the Posterity of Mizraim might probably begin to people that lower and most fruitful Part of Egypt, which is call'd Delta, and this being obnoxious to the annual Inundation of the Nile, there was a Necessity for them to make Banks and raise Mounts in the most proper Places, where they might build such Houses or Cities, which they might inhabit safely, when the greatest Part of the Country was cover'd with Water.

The Egyptians bring with them the Skill in Astronomy, which they had at Babylon, and for this Reason they soon fell off to the Worship of the Sun, Moon and Stars; and according to them the Great Bear was call'd Typho, which lay northward from them toward Canaan, from whence came their Enemies the Pastors. Isis was consecrated into the Dog Star call'd Syrius, and Mizraim into Orion. And when the Affairs of Upper Egypt were almost reduced to Destruction, it is probable, that then the Phœnicians their Enemies, might begin to call this Constellation כסל or The Fool.

1825 2183 2530 168. About this Time Atlas, who is reckon'd by some to be the Brother of Prometheus, and consequently the Son of Noah, or who might be rather one of the Sons of Ham, plants Ethiopia by bringing thither the Posterity of Phut and Lud, the Sons of Ham, from whence came the Atlantide.

1832 2176 2537 175. Ham takes a great Part of the Ludim, who were the Sons of Mizraim, and with these he sails along the Mediterranean Sea, and seizes on that Part of the Country of his Brother Japhet, which was since call'd Lydia.

1848 2160 2553 191. The Canaanitish Pastors make War against the Inhabitants of the Upper Egypt, and distress them, who accordingly send into Canaan to Ham for his Direction. This is the Beginning of a most famous War, which lasted above three hundred Years, in which the Fighting with Bows and Arrows, and also on Horseback and in Chariots of Iron, which were arm'd with Scythes on each Side, were first invented; and if we could have a full Account of this War both by Land and Sea, it would be, perhaps, in all its Circumstances, the most famous History, which we have in the World.

1849 2159 2554 192. Ham sends his Son Mizraim to govern in Upper Egypt, who is accordingly made their first King, and is call'd Menes by Herodotus and other Authors, and he is also sometimes call'd Osiris, Isiris, Tammuz and Adonis. He was a Lover of most Arts beneficial to human Life, and a good Judge of the Usefulness of such Inventions. He builds Memphis, and makes it the Capital City. And his Wife Isis builds Abaris, which is also call'd Pelusium or Sin, which guarded the Passages by Land from Egypt into Asia. And as it also stood on the Taanitick Mouth or Osium of the Nile; so it was a great Pass by Water, and was always esteem'd and fortify'd, as the great Frontier Garrison of the Kingdom of Egypt, and is by the Prophet Ezekiel, Chap. 30. 15. call'd The Strength thereof.

1851 2157 2556 194. About this Time Mizraim and Isis his Queen sail into Greece, the better to secure their Government there.

1853 2155 2558 196. About this Time Mizraim takes Possession of the Island of Crete, and leaves some of his Offspring the Philistins to keep it, who gave the Name to the Island, and were call'd Cere- thites, because they were us'd to fight with Bows and Arrows. Mizraim seeming thus to neglect his own Dominions, and being intent upon new Acquisitions, the Pastors in Egypt take this Opportunity to send for more Forces from Canaan, who accordingly come down into Egypt, and joyn with the rest, so that they are now grown very formidable. This turns the Thoughts of Mizraim from farther Travels to enlarge his Dominions in Europe.

1855 2153 2560 198. About this Time Mizraim returns into Egypt.

1860 2148 2565 203. About this Time Mizraim sends Triptolemus into Attica to improve it by Sowing of Corn.

1862 2146 2567 205. Mizraim makes great Alterations in the Egyptian Religion by Allegorizing, and for this Purpose he had the Assistance of Thabionides the Author of the Sect of Zabiu. This new Method of Religion he first learn'd, before he went from Canaan to govern Egypt, whilst Thoth was at Berytus, recording the historical Part of their Religion.

1890 2118 2595 233. About this Time Mizraim invents three Letters. It is probable, that he receiv'd the other Letters from Thoth at Berytus; which, tho' sufficient for the Canaanitish Language, yet it could not serve for the Egyptian, without a further Addition.

1905 2103 2610 248. About this Time the rest of the Coptick Letters seem to be invented 15 Years before Egialeus.

1907 2101 2612 250. About this Time it is probable, that more Pastors come from Canaan, and settle in Lower Egypt.

1909 2099 2614 252. About this Time the Kingdom of Upper Egypt is reduc'd to the utmost Extremities.

1911 2097 2616 254. The Canaanitish Pastors flush'd with Success, form a Conspiracy by the Assistance of some of Mizraim's Subjects, by which he is slain. The Egyptians compose a Song, which is call'd Linus, or in their own Language Maneros, whereby they lamented his Death every Year. This occasion'd the Lamentation of Venus for Adonis among the Greeks, and the Weeping for Tammuz among the idolatrous Jews. Isis brings his Corps to Berytus in a Coffin to Ham, where he is bury'd, and she desires Directions from Ham, what she should do in the present Difficulties. Ham sends Thoth or Athothes, the first Son of Mizraim, from Berytus to succeed his Father as King of Egypt, Mizraim is consecrated into the Constellation of Orion, and Isis into the Dog Star after her Decease. Thoth is accus'd of Bastardy by the Pastors of Lower Egypt, so that they absolutely refuse to pay him any Allegiance. He prepares to attack his Enemies, and finds out the Way of Fighting on Horseback, whereas before they fought only upon Asses. He fights three Battles with the Phœnician Pastors, the first of which lasted for several Days; and thus he revengeth his Father's Death, and reduceth the Pastors to Extremities. After his Death he was consecrated into the Planet Mercury, and was call'd by the Greeks Hermes. He makes some Alteration in the Egyptian Religion by causing the plain Historical Account of the Allegories to be writt'n. And his Statue was made with a Dog's Head, the Symbol of his Sagacity, intimating him to be like a quick scented Hound.

 1918 2990 2523 261. Several Battles between Upper and Lower Egypt.
 1920 2988 2625 263. The Pastors of Lower Egypt having chos'n Salatis to be their King, who was a stout Warrior, he puts another Turn to the Face of Affairs. He overruns the Lower Egypt and Part of the Upper, and lays the Country under Contributions. He rifles their Temples, and plunders them of their Gods, and kills the Dogs, Cats and other Animals, which were worshipp'd as the Representatives of their canoniz'd Kings. He takes the Women Captives near Thebes in the Province of Thebais, and sells them for Slaves. Particularly he sells one of them, being a Priestess, into Lybia, who founded the Oracle of Jupiter Hammon there.

 1940 2068 2645 283. Thoth having formerly settled the publick Records at Berytus, it is probable, that he about this Time endeavours to do the same in Upper Egypt, whereby they might have an historical Account of all the memorable Transactions from the Beginning of the World.
 1955 2053 2660 268. Thoth rectifies the Egyptian Year.

The History of Lower Egypt, being a mix'd Multitude.

1821 2187 2526 264. The Phœnician Pastors, being a mix'd Multitude of all the Families of the Canaanites, but especially of the Hivites, joyn'd with some Horites, and others of the neighbouring Parts of Arabia, whom the Egyptians call'd Iyc-si, that is, Kings Shepherds, come into Lower Egypt, and settle in Goshen, and the other Parts adjoyning to the Mediterranean Sea, where they live peaceably for some Time, and are call'd Canaanites.
 1832 2176 2537 165. They build Zoan or Tanis at the Osium of the Nile, which is call'd Taniticum, Num. 13. 22, and make it their Metropolis.
 1832 2176 2537 165. About this Time these Canaanitish Pastors divide themselves into thirty six Nomi or Counties, whence they are call'd Nomades, and appoint two from each of the Nomi, being seventy two in all, as a grand Council to manage their whole Concerns, which Council the Men of Upper Egypt call'd Typho. These warring against the Kings whom the Egyptians deify'd, are therefore said to fight against the Gods. And hence sprang the first Stories of the Wars with the Gods, and of Typho in the Greek and Latin Writers. And this without Doubt was a Part of the Heroick Age, which Hesiod mentions.
 1848 2160 2553 191. These Canaanitish Pastors make War against the Inhabitants of Upper Egypt, and distress them.
 1853 2155 2558 286. The Canaanitish Pastors grow formidable. See a more particular Account of their Wars in the 9th Column.
 1906 2102 2611 349. More Canaanites go into Lower Egypt.
 1909 2098 2614 352. And reduce it to the last Extremities.
 1911 2097 2616 254. These Canaanitish Pastors so far prevail, as to reduce Upper Egypt to great Difficulties, when they form a Conspiracy, in which Mizraim falling into their Hands, is torn to Pieces Limb from Limb, τῇ διαμελῶσιν.
 1912 2096 2617 255. The Canaanitish Pastors accuse Thoth of Bastardy, and then they absolutely refuse to be govern'd by him.
 1915 2093 2620 258. About this Time these Pastors make an Inroad into the Provinces of Upper Egypt, and encamping there, they at first take some Towns by Force, and thus striking a Terror into the People, they enlarge their Conquests with little or no Resistance, putting their Princes in Chains, cruelly laying their Cities in Ashes, demolishing their Temples, and miserably oppressing the Inhabitants, of whom some were cut to Pieces, and others with their Wives and Children were sent into Bondage. Manetho in Josephus against Apion.

1920 2088 2625 263. These Pastors set up Salatis for their first King, who was a formidable Warrior 1925 2083 2630 268. Salatis marches into Upper Egypt as far as Memphis, and having subjected the Upper and Lower Provinces, he puts them under Contribution. He puts Garrisons into all tenable Places. He overthrows their Temples, kills some of the Egyptians, and carries away others into Slavery. Among them he takes two Priestesses, and sells one of them into Africa and the other into Greece, who first founded the two famous Oracles of Jupiter Hammon and Jupiter Dodonaus.
 1926 2082 2631 269. Salatis takes the Pass of Abaris or Pelusium from the Inhabitants of Upper Egypt. The Philistines or Inhabitants of Pelusium compound with him to leave the Country, who accordingly go into Canaan, and seize upon the Country of the Avites or Hivites, Deut. 2. 23.
 1927 2081 2942 370. Salatis takes Pelusium
 1939 2069 2644 272. Salatis dies, and Beon succeeds him, who carry'd on the War vigorously. He conquers Thoth, and tears him in Pieces Limb from Limb.
 1983 2025 2688 316. Beon dies, and Apachnas succeeds him, who was also a stout Warrior.
 2020 1988 2720 353. Apachnas dies, and Apophis succeeds him, who built a great Navy, and invaded the Sea-Port Towns.
 2025 1983 2730 358. About this Time Semiramis Queen of Babylon builds a Navy, and sails about the Red Sea, overthrowing the Cushites and Arabians. She assists Apophis against the Kings of Upper Egypt, with a Design to bring those Countries under the Power of the Assyrian Empire.
 2081 1927 2786 414. Apophis dies, and Janias succeeds him, who takes to himself the Title of Pharaoh or King, which Title his Successors also constantly maintain'd.
 2082 1926 2787 425. Great Numbers of his Subjects depart from him, and return into Canaan their Native Country, which weakens his Power.

OBSER-

C H A P. VII.

OBSERVATIONS upon the WHOLE.

HA V I N G thus finish'd the historical Part of the most obscure Time of the World, I shall now gather such Observations from the Whole, as will be necessary for the Uses, which were formerly mention'd, and so conclude this Book.

2. And here it may be observ'd, that tho' this second Book contains but five Chapters of the History of Genesis; yet there are several Particulars mention'd herein, which will confirm the Authority of these Books, and that Moses, who wrote them, was a divinely inspir'd Writer.

3. First, No one, but such an Author, could give us such an Intimation, as (a) he hath done, whereby we might guess, from what particular Seas this general Inundation came, that so we might the better find out the Course of the Ark, and the Place of its Landing.

4. Secondly, No one but such an Author could give us (b) a particular Account of eleven remarkable Days during the Time of the Flood, from all which we are the better enabled to find out the true Time of the Antemosaic Sabbath, and the Year of the World in which the Flood happen'd by Astronomical Calculations.

5. Thirdly, There were anciently many Disputes concerning what Part of the World was first inhabited. This (c) seems to have been at first begun between the Egyptians and the Scythians, when each Nation brought particular Arguments to support their Pretensions. After this other Nations, particularly the Babylonians, the Phœnicians, the Greeks, and the Chinese laid in their several Claims, and for this Purpose extended their Chronological Accounts in a most fabulous Manner, insomuch that it was impossible for the Wit of any meer Man to find out the Truth: But Moses, by telling us (d) on what Mountain, and (e) in what Part of the World the Ark rested, hath given us an Opportunity to know certainly, what Country was inhabited immediately after the Deluge, and how (f) the whole earth was gradually overspread from thence.

6. Fourthly, It may seem strange to some, that Moses should be so particular, as he was in (g) Setting down the Genealogies, not only before, but also immediately after the Flood; but he who considers, that this was the ancient Method of Recording History, may conclude, that there was a very good Reason for what he did, viz. that he might give a full Satisfaction to that present Age. And if we farther add, that all the other sacred Historians have gone on in the same Method, whereby all the Genealogies (h) are kept exact until the Birth of OUR BLESSED SAVIOUR, and may easily be computed from thence to this present Age, may plainly discern the Effects of divine Wisdom to be display'd therein, in Settling such a Method from the Beginning of the World by Moses, and Carrying on the same by the Prophets, as might have been of Use, as long as the World should last. And as this gave Occasion to the Jews to keep an exact Account of all their Genealogies; so when CHRIST came into the World, it was evident beyond Dispute, that he was of the Seed of Abraham, of the Tribe of Judah, and of the Posterity of David, according to the Promises, which had been from Time to Time recorded of him.

7. Fifthly, It may seem strange to some, that Moses should be so particular in Recording the (i) Ages of the Patriarchs, when they died both before and after the Flood, and even to his own Time. But there is great Reason, why he ought to be so exact. First, That we might observe, that as the (k) Sin of our first Parents brought Death into the World; so the Sins of succeeding Ages did proportionably shorten the Lives of future Generations. Thus for Example. Before the Flood Men (l) frequently liv'd to be nine hundred and sixty Years old. The Wickedness of Men, which brought the Flood, shortn'd their Lives one half, so that they, who (m) were born after that, seldom arriv'd to the Age of four hundred and eighty Years. The Revolt at the Building the Tower of Babylon shortn'd their Lives another half; so that they, who were born after, (n) seldom arriv'd to the Age of three hundred Years. The general Falling off to Idolatry, about the Time of Abraham, shortn'd the Lives of Men another half, so that they, who were born after, (o) seldom arriv'd to the Age of an hundred and fifty Years. And the (p) Murmuring of the Israelites in the Wilderness (who were GOD's only People) shortn'd their Lives, and the Lives of others, so that seventy five Years of Age was look'd upon as equal to the usual Number. And thus Moses reckon'd (q) the Days of our Age as seventy Years, but that fourscore were more than could be expected: And thus it hath continu'd from that Time 'till now. Secondly, From hence we may guess at the Time (r) when Job liv'd, and his Age, when he was afflicted with sore Boils. And lastly, we may the better guess from hence concerning the Antiquities of other Nations, it being observable, that in the eastern Countries toward China, as also in Babylon and Egypt, and perhaps in other Countries, the Age of Men was usually the same with their Contemporaries recorded in the sacred Scriptures, and their Agreement therein is of wonderful Use to confirm unto us the Authority of those Particulars, which Moses hath mention'd.

8. Sixthly. It may seem strange to some, that Moses should take up a whole Chapter, in (s) Recording the Names of the Posterity of Shem, Ham, and Japhet; but when we consider how (t) they were divided in their families, after their tongues, in their countries, and in their nations, we find such an exact Account of the first Peopling of the World, which otherwise could never have been thought of, and sufficiently confutes the Pretensions of other Nations to be the first Original, or to be sprung out of the Earth: And herein we shall find Cause to admire the Providence of GOD, that after so many Ages, the Change of Languages, and the Alteration of Names brought in by various Conquests, there still are such Footsteps of these Names, that by them we are able to find out the most ancient Nations, from whom they were descended, and how they came to be inhabited, which was never guess'd at by the Heathen World with the least Shadow of Reason.

9. Seventhly. Tho' the Tower of Babylon was standing in the Time of Herodotus, and some other ancient Writers, and they give us some small Accounts of the Building of it; yet none of them tell us the Occasion or Design of erecting so vast a Fabrick, which was really one of the Wonders of the World: Much less do they tell us, by what Means the Variety of Languages in the several Nations did first happen. But here we have an exact Account of this Particular, as coming (u) from that GOD who did first occasion this Variety for the Obstinacy of the World, who knew all Things which had happen'd, before this Confusion was introduc'd, and whose Providence brings Good out of Evil, in'somuch that on the Day of Pentecost, when the Apostles were inspir'd, (x) Persons out of every nation under heaven heard them speak in their own tongues, wherein they were born, the wonderful works of GOD, which surprizing Story being told in all Countries, made a more easy Way for the Propagating of the Gospel among them; and the early Translation of the Bible into their several Languages made it impossible, that it should be corrupted by the Malice or Craft either of Men or Devils.

10. In this Part we may also observe a Plurality of Persons in the Deity. When GOD (y) made man, who alone was to be endu'd with Speech, he said, Let US make man. This the ancient Christians look'd upon as a plain Intimation of a Plurality of Persons in the Godhead. Ephraïmus particularly saith, (z) This is the Language of GOD to his WORD, and only begotten, as all the faithful do believe. And (a) Adam was form'd by the Hand of the FATHER, and of the SON, and of the HOLY GHOST. The Jews to avoid the Force of these Words fancy a Senate or Council of Angels, without whom, they say, that GOD doth nothing, whereas there was not then the least Signification of any such Being, much less, that they had any Hand in the Making of Man, who was not made in their Image, but in the (b) image of GOD. And at the Building the Tower of Babylon, GOD is pleas'd to use the same Expression. (c) And the LORD said, Go to, let us go down, and there let us confound their language. This Novatianus, one of the Primitive Fathers, expounds, That it was spoken of GOD the FATHER to his SON. Here the Rabbins also Acknowledge a Plurality, but have Recourse to the same Shift as before. Thus Jonathan explains the Text. The LORD said unto the seventy Angels, who stood before him, Come now, and let us go down, and there confound their Language. But it is beyond the Power of Angels so to alter Men's Minds in a Moment, that they shall not be able to understand what they did before; and no one but he, who at first taught Men to speak, could in an Instant make that Variety of Speech, as was sufficient to scatter so many People abroad throughout the Face of the Earth, and yet to do it in so regular a Manner, that the Posterity of Noah should disperse to distant Parts according to their Families, in their respective Nations. So that GOD the FATHER spoke to GOD the SON, and to GOD the HOLY GHOST, and this Phrase implies, that there are more Persons than One in the Godhead. The Chaldee Paraphrase goes farther, and saith, The WORD of the LORD was reveal'd against that City, and his seventy Angels with him, and he (not the Angels) wrote with his Hand, and dispers'd them from thence over the Face of the whole Earth into seventy Languages. And from thence did the LORD JEHOVAH mix the Tongues of all the Inhabitants of the Earth, and from hence did the LORD JEHOVAH disperse them over the Face of the Earth. Here the Paraphrast speaks of the Word of the LORD or the second Person, as the Confounder of the Languages, and the Disperser of the People. And tho' his Angels were with him; yet no Part of this Work is ascrib'd to them, but to him alone, whom the Jews also own by the Name of JEHOVAH. And therefore St. Pau', who was brought up at the Feet of Gama'iel, and well skill'd in all the Jewish Traditions, knew very well, that he spake their own Sentiments, when (e) he spake of the SON of GOD, as one, who was appointed Heir of all things, and by whom also he made the worlds, Who was the brightness of his glory, and the express image of his person, and upheld all things by the word of his power. Who was made so much better than the angels, as he had by inheritance obtained a better name than they. Of whom he said, (f) Thou art my son, this day have I begotten thee. And again, (g) I will be to him a father, and he shall be to me a Son. And again, (h) Let all the angels of GOD worship him. And he also knew, that he could accordingly vindicate his (i) Applying those Texts to the SON of GOD, in which he is call'd GOD and LORD, and own'd to be most just, omnipotent and eternal. And that GOD the FATHER said to his SON, or his WORD, (as (k) the Paraphrast expounds it) Sit thou on my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

11. Lastly, the remarkable and short Prophecy of (l) Noah, concerning what should happen to the Posterity of his three Sons from that time to this, and perhaps to the end of the World, plainly shews, that it came from that GOD, who knew all things, and to whom alone all future Transactions are present. When Ham and his Son Canaan had beheld the indecent Posture of their Father, and seem'd to make but a Sport of it; but Shem and Japhet cover'd him in a modest manner, and Noah being recover'd from his Drunkenness knew what had happen'd, he pronounc'd their future Fate in the following Manner.

12. First, he saith, (m) Cursed be Canaan, a servant of servants shall he be to his brethren, that is, the vilest of Servants. These Words are spok'n primarily of Canaan, whose Name is mention'd, and secondly of all the Posterity of Ham, who must be imply'd in the Curse, because all the Posterity of Shem and Japhet are expressly mention'd in the following Blessings. Thus the Canaanites were first made Slaves to the Israelites, who were of the Posterity of Shem, when they took Possession of their Land, subduing one and thirty of their Kings, killing most of the Inhabitants, laying heavy Taxes upon the rest, and using the Gibconites (who sav'd themselves by a Stratagem) tho' not as Servants to them, yet to be Hewers of Wood and Drawers of Water, and performing such laborious Works for the Service of the Tabernacle. And (n) Solomon made all the Remainder of the People of Canaan subject to servile Labours, when all the Israelites were free. Besides, they were also Servants to Japhet. The Greeks under Alexander the Great conquer'd Canaan, and the Romans afterward; and whatever Remains there were of the Canaanites in any Place (for Instance at Tyre built by the Sidonians, at Thebes by Cadmus, or at Carthage by Dido) they were cut off by the Greeks or Romans. The learned Mr. Mede hath observ'd, (o) that there have been never yet a Son of Ham, that hath shak'n a Scepter over the Head of Japhet. Shem hath subdu'd Japhet, and Japhet hath subdu'd Shem; but Ham never subdu'd either. This made Hannibal a Son of Canaan (p) cry out with an Amazement of Mind, I acknowledge the Fate of Carthage. So that as it was thus with Canaan in particular, it was also the same with the whole Race of Ham in general.

13. It is true that the first Monarchy was begun by the Race of Ham, which we call the Assyrian, but more properly the Babylonian Monarchy. But whoever considers the Time, when it began, may easily observe, that they could enslave few or none except their own Family. It was begun by Nimrod the Grandson of Ham in a Time, when the World was not very populous, and they had but lately been separated to plant new Colonies, so that they could easily go farther, and avoid their Enemies, when they were press'd with any Difficulty or Danger. Accordingly when Cush the Son of Ham invaded the Country of Elam, and took from him the Country since call'd Chuzestan, or the Province of Cush, there is no Doubt but the Inhabitants went northward, and settl'd in the Country call'd Ehmais. And when Nimrod took Possession of Babylon, and afterward went northward into the Country of Assur and Aram, two other Sons of Shem, they cross'd the Tigris, and one of them with his Posterity seated himself in the Country call'd, in Hebrew, Assur or Assyria; the other settl'd himself in the Country call'd in Hebrew, Aram between the Rivers or Mesopotamia. And whatever Authority the Successors of Nimrod might have over them was afterward broken to Pieces by (d) Tiglath Pileser, who set up a distinct Kingdom from that of Babylon, and fix'd his Royal Seat at Nineveh, where it continu'd (e) under his Successors. And the Babylonian Empire was afterward torn to Pieces by Cyrus, who founded the Persian Monarchy: After this Alexander the Great, who was of the Race of Japhet, conquer'd all those Parts, and resided particularly at Babylon to keep the rest in Subjection. And Lastly, the Romans, who descended originally from the same Stock, made themselves Masters of the same Country. So that what the Prophet Joel (f) spoke more particularly concerning the Jews in the Land of Canaan may in some Measure be apply'd to the whole Posterity of Ham; That which the palmer worm (the Assyrian Monarchy under Tiglath Pileser) hath left, hath the locust eaten; and that which the locust (the Persian Monarchy) hath left, hath the canker worm (the Grecian Monarchy) eaten, and that which the canker worm (the Roman Monarchy) eaten. And at this Time the Blacks, which are brought from Africa into Europe, are all of them in a servile Condition; and the vast number of Slaves, which are bought every Year at Guinea and the adjacent Countries, and carry'd into America to manure and improve the European Plantations there, is a full Confirmation of the Truth of this Prophecy.

14. Noah having thus curs'd Ham and his Son Canaan, he afterward proceeds to bless his other two Sons, and (g) begins with Shem. And he said, Blessed be the LORD GOD of Shem. Shem seems to be the first Person concern'd in Covering the obscene Posture of his Father, and probably perswaded his Brother Japhet to assist him in it. For which Reason the Right of Primogeniture is conferr'd on him, tho' he was younger than the other. The LORD was the GOD of Shem after a peculiar Manner, as he was afterward the GOD of Abraham one of the Posterity of Shem, because of the gracious Covenant made with him. For GOD settl'd his Church in the Family of Shem. His true Religion and Worship continu'd among them, when the rest were over-run with Superstition. CHRIST was born of his Posterity; and he himself in all likelyhood was Melchisedeck the Priest of the most high GOD, who kept up his Worship, and oppos'd Idolatry, which increas'd in other Places. Accordingly GOD would bestow all manner of Blessings upon his Seed, and the Posterity of Canaan should be subject to them, as it hath been mention'd already

15. After this Noah blesses Japhet in (h) these Words. GOD shall enlarge Japhet. His Posterity should be very numerous, and take up a great Tract of Land, particularly all Europe, the most fruitful and populous Part of the World. To this may be added Asia the less, Media, Part of Armenia, Iberia, Albania; and the vast Regions toward the North, as Muscovy, and that which anciently the Scythians; and now the Tartars, do inhabit. And to give a later Instance of his Enlargement, since the Discovery of America, the vast Tracts of Land, which have been peopl'd there from other Countries, have been only peopl'd by his Posterity the Europeans. Beside this it is also said, That he shall dwell in the tents of Shem. His Posterity shall be so enlarg'd, that in future Times he shall possess some of his Brother's Countries. This also was prophecy'd of by (i) Balaam, where he said, That ships should come from the coast of Chittim, and should afflict Ashur, and should afflict Eber. They should afflict the Assyrians and the Hebrews, who were of the Posterity of Shem. And thus both the Greeks and the Romans in their Turns did invade and conquer those Parts. But as for Eber, the Hebrews or the Jews, that People should be dispers'd and scatter'd throughout the Face of the Earth. The Romans shall come and take away both their Place and Nation; as it is at this Time; and thus they should perish from being a People, if not for ever, as we translate it, yet during the Time of their Obstinacy and Infidelity, and until the Age comes, in which they shall be converted, as may be plainly gather'd from the Hebrew Text.

16. Beside this, these Words may also be tak'n in a spiritual Sense. Japhet shall dwell in the Tents or Tabernacles of Shem. When Balaam spoke these Words, the publick worship of GOD among the Israelites was in the Tabernacle, which was made for that purpose, of the best Materials which could be had, and was the (k) tent, which he placed among men; and to this he himself alluded, (l) when he said, How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob! and thy tabernacles, O Israel! So that to dwell in the tents of Shem may signify to be of the true Religion, and frequent accordingly the publick Worship. Thus the Chaldee Paraphrase renders these Words. The Gentiles shall come into the Church, which was in the family of Shem. CHRIST should publish, and the Apostles preach the Gospel to all Nations. And that, which is observ'd by (m) our learned Mr. Mede, is very remarkable, that all the Offspring of Japhet are at this Day Christians, Magog, or the Turks only excepted, whom GOD seem'd to reserve for a great while, as he did some of the Canaanites in the Land of Israel, to prove and punish us by them. However, as Asia generally belongs to Shem, and Africa to Ham, and Europe to Japhet; so Africa at this Time is totally involv'd in Mahometanism and Paganism: And it is generally the same in Asia, only that there are many poor Christians in that Country; but every true National Church is either in Europe, or those Parts of America, which are inhabited by Europeans; and Mahometanism or Paganism prevails in none of these Countries. Thus doth Japhet at this Day dwell in the Tents of Shem in such a Manner, as none, but a divinely inspir'd Writer, could have foretold it in the Days of Noah, or would have recorded it in the Time of Moses.

17. Lastly, There being no Chronological Dislocations in that Part of the old Testament, which is the subject of the historical Part of this Book, read Gen. Chap. 7, 8, 9, 10, 11; only with Gen. Chap. 10 read 1 Chron. 1. 4 to 24, and with Gen. 11. 10 to 27. read 1 Chron. 1. 24, 25, 26, 27.

BOOK III.

CHAP. I.

From the Promise giv'n to Abraham until the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt.

FROM the Promise giv'n to Abraham (a) upon his Departure from Ur of the Chaldees, in the Year before the Death of his Father Terah in Haran, to (b) the Deliverance of the Children of Israel out of

Egypt, and (c) to the Giving of the Law in the same Year from Mount Sinai, is so plainly mention'd in the sacred Scriptures, to be four hundred and thirty years, that there can be no Dispute about it.

2. This Sum being added to that in the former Table of two thousand and eighty three years, proves, that the Israelites were deliver'd out of Egypt, and that the Law was giv'n to them from Mount Sinai, in the Year of the World two thousand five hundred and thirteen, and is the Year assign'd for these Occurrences by the most Learned Arch-bishop Usher, Dr. Lightfoot, and all the best of our Chronologers.

3. This Space of four hundred and thirty years between the Promise and the Giving of the Law, the Divine Wisdom and Providence hath divided into several Parts.

Particularly, one year from the Beginning of the Promise to Abraham, and his Departure from Ur of the Chaldees, to the Death of his Father Terah, and his Departure from Haran, as (d) before.

Five and twenty years between (e) the Giving of the Promise and the Birth of Isaac.

Sixty years between (f) the Birth of Isaac and the Birth of Jacob.

An hundred and thirty years between (g) the Birth of Jacob and his Going down into Egypt.

Ninety four years from Jacob's (b) Going into Egypt to the Death of Levi.

Forty years from (i) the Death of Levi to the Birth of Moses.

Eighty years from (k) the Birth of Moses to the Deliverance of the Israelites out of Egypt.

4. As there is a certain and fix'd Ipocha of four hundred and thirty years from the Promise giv'n to Abraham to the Departure of the Children of Israel out of Egypt; so there is another Epocha of four hundred years, which must begin thirty years later, because it ends at the same Time. This is (l) call'd the Time, when the Israelites should be strangers in a land, which was not theirs, and should both serve the Egyptians, and be afflicted evilly by them. This must begin, when Isaac was five Years of Age, and therefore there is no doubt, but it commenc'd from the Time, (m) when he was weaned, and when Abraham made a great Feast upon that Occasion. For then Ishmael the Son of Hagar the Egyptian, not being able to endure such a Respect shewn to the Younger Brother, mock'd at him and derided him in so cruel and reflecting a Manner, that St. Paul calls it (n) a Persecuting of him that was born after the Spirit, by him that was born after the Flesh. There is no Doubt, but it was manag'd in a very severe and insulting Manner, insomuch that (o) Sarah could not endure it, but required of Abraham, that he would cast out the bondwoman and her son; for the Son of the bondwoman should not be heir with her son Isaac; to which Abraham submitted by the express Command of GOD, tho' otherwise it would have been more grievous to him. What this Mocking was is not expressly describ'd. The Jews, who make Isaac older than he really was, look upon it as a Mocking of his Piety and Devotion. Others (p) form different Conjectures from the different Sense of the Hebrew word in Scripture. Some say, (q) that Ishmael endeavoured to draw him off to Idolatry; others (r) that he us'd many obscene and unfit Expressions; and others (s) that he severely beat him, and endeavour'd to kill him. But the most probable Opinion is, that he boasted of himself as the Heir, being the first born, and by the Right of that to have the Privilege of Fulfilling the Promise of the Messiah, and so he despis'd Isaac as the younger Brother, or like Esau (t) resolv'd to kill him, who had the Blessing, rather than lose the Inheritance; so that there was a Necessity of Separating them to a sufficient Distance. However, be it what it will, it fixeth the Time, when Isaac was wean'd, at the Head of the above mention'd Epocha.

5. When Jacob was threescore and seventeen Years old, he covenants with Laban to serve an Apprenticeship of seven Years for one Wife, and soon after that to serve another Apprenticeship of seven Years more for another. He was an old Man to endure such a Fatigue even in those Days; since his Father Isaac, and his Brother Esau were both (u) married at forty Years of Age, and (x) his Son Judah and his Grandchildren Er, Onan and Pharez were married much sooner, and most probably before they were twenty Years old. That this was the Year of Jacob's Age at this Time, will appear by Computing the Story of his Life backward, in this Manner. Joseph the Son of Jacob was (y) thirty Years old, when he stood before Pharaoh. Then came (z) seven Years of Plenty, which made Joseph seven and thirty Years old. Then there were (a) two Years of Famine, before Jacob came into Egypt. And now Joseph was nine and thirty Years of Age. When Jacob came, and (b) stood before Pharaoh at the End of the two Years of Famine, he was an hundred and thirty Years old. Now take the thirty and nine Years of Joseph out of the hundred and thirty Years of Jacob, and it appears that Joseph was born when Jacob was ninety and one Years old. But Joseph was born (c) in the last Year of the second seven, or in the fourteenth Year of Jacob's Service with Laban, and in the Conclusion of that Year. Take therefore fourteen Years out of ninety one, when Joseph was born, and the Remainder seventy seven was the Age of Jacob, when he enter'd upon these fourteen Years Service.

6. When Jacob had serv'd (d) seven Days as an Earnest for seven Years, Leah was giv'n him for a Wife; and when he had serv'd seven Days more in the same Manner, he was also married to Rachel. They who suppose, that he serv'd seven Years, before he married Leah, and especially that he serv'd seven Years more, before he married Rachel, involve themselves under unsurmountable Difficulties in Fixing the Births of the twelve Patriarchs; but in this Method we may easily account for the whole as (e) in the following Table. And that it was thus, seems clear from the Text it self. Jacob (f) covenants to serve seven Years for Rachel. But (g) he demands her as soon as the seven Days were fulfilled, which he serv'd as an Earnest. When he saw that he was deceiv'd by Laban in Placing Leah instead of Rachel, he (b) covenants for seven Years more, but (i) serves only a Week or seven Days as a second Earnest for the remaining Time. The Reasons why (k) Reuben, Simeon and Levi were so call'd, appears to be, because Rachel was then married, and they rival'd each other in Jacob's Affections. And GOD gave it as a Recompence to (l) Leah, that she bore even her first Son, because she was hated. Neither could Rachel, if she had continu'd single for seven Years, (m) have envy'd her Sister's Bearing only four Sons (when she bore more afterward) because she her self was barren; nor could Jacob have answer'd to Rachel's complaint, as (n) he did, if that had been her Case.

7. It is impossible absolutely to fix the Time, when Job labour'd under his severe Afflictions. I have plac'd his Death in the Year before the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt. And consequently (o) his Troubles were in the hundred and forty first Year before it, or in the 289th Year of the Promise; so that his Death about this Time might make his Story to be more fresh in the Memory of the Israelites in the Wilderness. His Years, as well as Substance, are supposed to be doubl'd, and that (p) the Hebrew Phrase doth plainly intimate the same. And if so, then as (q) he liv'd an Hundred and forty Years after his Troubles; so he must be seventy Years Old, when his Troubles began, and consequently was born in the 219th Year after the Promise, and died at 210 Years of Age, the longest Liver born since Terah, whereas (s) a less Age was very old in the Time of the Patriarchs. And since that, in the Time of Moses (t) the Life of Man was the same as in the present Age; and we read not of any one in Scripture born afterward, who liv'd an hundred and forty Years, and but (u) one, who exceeded an hundred. So that the Length of his Life shews him to be born before the time of Moses. That Job was of a considerable Age, when his Troubles happen'd, is plain, because (x) he had seven Sons and three Daughters, (y) who had Houses of their own to dwell in at that Time. And that he was not very old is as evident, because Elihu, who gave Way to Job's three Friends to speak what they had to say, because (z) they were elder than he, did yet think himself to be of a sufficient Age to reprove Job very smartly. And Eliphaz tells him (a)

that with them were both the grey headed, and very aged men, much older than his father. And therefore if we can suppose, that when GOD gave him a new Life as a Reward for his Piety and Patience, by Recovering him out of his Afflictions, he lengthen'd that Life to the usual Length of that Age, he must then live between the time of Abraham and Moses, because it was the usual Age of the Patriarchs in those Days, when they died. However that he liv'd about that time is very plain from other circumstances. It is evident, that these things happen'd, (b) when the Chaldean Monarchy was settl'd, and had extended its Conquest near to the Land of Uz, and when (c) they, and the Sabeans, and others plunder'd their Neighbours. Such Practices were common in (d) the time of Ephraim the Son of Joseph, since some of his Sons (whom (e) Joseph liv'd to see) were slain by the Men of Gath, who came to rob them of their Cattle. That his Misfortunes happen'd before the time of Moses, is as evident, because (f) he, and (g) his three Friends being the Fathers of their Families, offer'd Sacrifices, as Priests, for themselves and their Children, which (h) was the Antemosaic Method. Secondly, Job liv'd in or near Idumea, and was most probably of the Posterity of Esau, and he also liv'd in a time, when Religion flourish'd there (as appears from the Discourse of himself and all his Acquaintance) which was soon lost in that Country. Thirdly, The (i) Land of Uz took its Name from (k) Uz the Son of Dishan the (l) Son of Seir, the (m) Horite, which were Names of the Countries, before Esau came to inhabit there, and some of them might probably be soon chang'd into the Names of his Posterity. Fourthly, Eliphaz the Temanite is suppos'd by most Commentators to be the Son of Teman, and Grandson of Eliphaz (keeping up his Grandfather's Name) and so he was (n) the great Grandson to Esau. Bildad the Shubite is (o) suppos'd to be descended from Shuah the Son of Abraham by Keturah, whilst the name of Shuah continu'd fresh in Memory. Elihu the (p) Buzite was probably descended from (q) Buz the Son of Nabor, Abraham's Brother. Hence there are many, who suppose (r) Job to have been Jobab the second King of the Edomites, who was succeeded by six more, none of them being hereditary, and the last of them probably dead before (s) the Form of Government was settled in the time of Joshua. Lastly, The Matter contain'd in the Discourses between Job and his Friends may help us to fix the time. Zophar alludes to (r) Isbmea's savage Way of Living, as it was (u) prophesied of him. Others speak more plainly of (x) the Creation of the World, and (y) of Man, and of (z) Adam's Hiding himself after the Fall. They also (a) speak of the Flood, of (b) the Drying up of the Waters, with the Promise that they should return no more to destroy the World, of (c) the Overthrow of Sodom and Gomerrah, and (d) the Death of the first Tyrants in the Chaldean or Assyrian Monarchy. They speak of (e) the Dwelling in Tents and Tabernacles, as it was the (f) Custom of the Patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, with others in those Times, and of the (g) Law being deliver'd by Revelation from GOD, as the only Way, whereby they knew his Will. And in the whole Book there is not the least Hint of the Jewish Religion, of the Law or of the Prophets, of the Troubles of the Israelites in Egypt, or of their Wandering in the Wilderness, when the Mention thereof would have been so much to their Purpose, and they could not but have heard of it, had they liv'd either then or since, (e) because they werewell acquainted with Idumea, Egypt, (b) Jordan and the Parts adjacent. And when Job vindicates his Innocency, he speaks only of the Worshipping of (r) the Sun and Moon, the first method, whereby they denied the true GOD that is above, and fell off from his Service; but he saith not a Word of Idolatry, tho' (k) it was the constant Abomination of the Canaanites, and (l) of the Egyptians, and other Nations near them in the Time of Moses. And tho' it might have been before his Time among the Posterity of Ham; yet it had not taken any Footing in Idumea, where he liv'd, and whose Ancestors had been taught better things from the Patriarchs Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, from whom they descended. Besides, if Job's Troubles happen'd about an hundred and forty Years before the Delivery of the Israelites out of Egypt, they must be ended, before the extreme Servitude of the Israelites began; since (m) Joseph died but 144 Years before their Deliverance, and their Bondage did not begin (n) until a King reign'd, who knew not Joseph, and (o) in whose Time Moses was born, who was but (p) eighty Years old, when he was the Instrument to deliver them. So that the Troubles and Death of Job could not be far distant from the Years, in which they are plac'd.

8. There have been some of an Opinion, that the Troubles of Job lasted a great while, and some say near seven Years, because he is (q) recorded as so great a Pattern of Patience. But it is more probable, that they did not last above a Month, and that his Patience was tried, not so much by the Length, as by the Severity of his Affliction. GOD doth not (r) afflict willingly, nor grieve the children of men, especially his faithful Servants, any longer than Necessity requires it. Besides, the History it self shews, that it could not be long. His (s) first Troubles came immediately one upon the other. His three Friends were without Doubt great Men in the Country, where they liv'd, and had a great Deal of Business of their own, so that they could not stay long in a single Visit, and especially upon so melancholly an Occasion; and they (t) came to visit him as soon as they had heard of all the evil, that was come upon him, and (u) stay'd with him, 'till his Troubles were over. They liv'd near one another, because all this was done by an appointment; and liv'd near to him, because they were his intimate Friends and Acquaintance. It could not be long, before they heard of it, nor could it be long after they heard of it, before they came to him. When they came, they (x) spent seven Days in Silence. After this they discours'd with him for some Time, as it is recorded in the whole Book. Immediately upon this (y) GOD speaks to Job; upon which (z) Job humbles himself before GOD, and then his Troubles were ended. And therefore the Nature of the Fact is such, as could not require so long a Space of Time, as hath been generally imagin'd.

9. The (a) Book of Job seems to have been penn'd by Elihu, one of the Speakers in it, as may appear from these two Reasons. First, because (b) when Job's Friends, who came to lament with him, and to comfort him, are number'd by name, Elihu is not nam'd among the Number, because he himself was the Historian and Penman, who gave this Account, and therefore he nam'd not himself, when he nam'd the Rest. And as he probably liv'd near; so he could know more exactly the certainty of what he wrote. And secondly, because (c) he seems to speak of himself as of the Historian. They were amazed, they answered no more, they left off speaking. When I had waited, for they spake not, but stood still, and answered no more; I said, I will answer also; I also will shew my Opinion. And it is generally suppos'd, that after it had been written originally in Arabick, the Language of that Country, it was translated into Hebrew by Moses, and by the Direction of the HOLY GHOST, whilst the Israelites were in the Wilderness, to teach them Patience under their Afflictions. If so, then this is the Reason, that the Style is not like to the rest of the Books of Moses, or indeed to any other Parts of the Old Testament, but more concise and obscure, and that there are (d) such a vast number of Arabick Words and Phrases to be found in it. Neither is it strange, that the Language was not more alter'd from the Time of Job to the Time of Mahomet, it being an inland Country, subject to no Commerce, fully peopled, and therefore incapable of receiving new Inhabitants, and situated among other Languages of the greatest Affinity to it. And tho' our modern European Languages have been vastly alter'd in a few Centuries; yet it was not so in those Parts. The Greek remain'd the same from the Time of Homer to the Time of St. Chrysostom. The Hebrew remain'd the same from the Time of Moses to the Time of Malachi; and more particularly, the Chaldee remain'd the same from the (e) Time of Jacob to the Date of the Babylonish Talmud.

10. It is certain, that (f) all the ten Plagues of Egypt happen'd in one Year. Moses was (g) eighty Years old when he stood before Pharaoh, before any of the Plagues were begun. He was (h) an hundred and twenty Years old when he died, and he (i) was with the Israelites in the Wilderness forty Years. So that had the Plagues continu'd longer, either he must have been younger when they began, or have liv'd to be older than the Age which is mention'd. The Jews make these Plagues to continue a whole Year, and put particular Distances between them. But (k) others more probably make them to end in less

11. At this Time (m) the Beginning of the Year is chang'd, but there is not the least Intimation of any Change in the Months. The Command was not given until the first Month was began, and therefore it went forward in the usual Method. But as they had began their Year from the Autumnal Equinox; so they begin it for the future near the Vernal. And as they made their former Observations in the Autumn, so now they make them in the Spring. And when the Year was begun, each Month consisted of thirty Days, except the last, as it did before. And thus it is probable, that it continu'd until the Days of Solomon, who being the wisest of all Men, and consequently having better Skill in Astronomy than others, and being about to dedicate the Temple at the Feast of Tabernacles in the seventh Month, might, in order to be more exact, make an Observation of the Moon's phases or first Appearance near the Autumnal Equinox, and so introduce the Method of observing at that Time, as it was used in after Ages; and thus began the Distinction among them of the Sacred and Civil Year.

12. That the Observations made at Autumn, in the same manner with all the Eastern Nations (who reckon'd their Years by Lunar Months, and consequently rectify'd their Months every Year) was very early among the Jews, is evident. First, because this seventh or Autumnal Month had many more solemn Feasts than any Month besides. The (n) first Day was a more solemn new Moon than the rest, and therefore call'd The Feast of Trumpets. The tenth Day (o) was the solemn Expiation, when the High Priest enter'd alone into the Holy of Holies, and bless'd the People in the most solemn manner, when he came out from thence. And (p) the fifteenth Day began the Feast of Tabernacles, which lasted eight Days, whereas no other Feast lasted above seven. And secondly, tho' the Jews observ'd their sacred Year from the Vernal Equinox; yet they observ'd their civil Year from the Autumnal. Thus it was settled by Rabbi Hillel according to the Ante-Mosaical Custom; so that it seems that their sixth and last Months were antiently about two or three Days shorter than the rest; but that all their other Months were equal, and consisted of thirty Days as before. And this Method was probably observ'd by the Jews until the Babylonish Captivity, when they were oblig'd to compute their Years, according to the manner of reckoning in use among them, whose Captives they were; and so they laid aside their Vernal Observations, and alter'd their Months, (q) which before only consisted of thirty Days, so that afterward one of them consisted of thirty Days, and the next of nine and twenty. However, that in the Days of Solomon the Jews rectified their Year at the Autumnal Equinox, will appear from an Astronomical Calculation in its proper Place.

13. And as the beginning of the Year was alter'd from one Season to another; so the Day of the Sabbath was also alter'd from one Day of the Week to another. That which was (r) the seventh Day from the Creation was the first Day of Adam's Life, and so it was the first Day of the Week according to their Computation. But now it is alter'd to the seventh Day of the Week to be observ'd by the Israelites as a Sabbath in Commemoration of their Deliverance (s) out of the Land of Egypt, and out of the House of Bondage. The fourth Commandment, as it (t) was deliver'd by GOD in Exodus, contains the Reason, why one Day in seven should be observ'd by all Mankind, For in six days the LORD made the heaven and the earth, the sea and all that therein is, and rested the seventh day. Wherefore the LORD blessed the seventh day, and hallowed it. And it hath been accordingly observ'd in all Nations, and by all Persons, whoever observ'd any Sabbath, the Israelites only excepted. The fourth Commandment as it was deliver'd by Moses in Deuteronomy, contains the Reason, why the seventh Day of the Week should be observ'd by the Israelites alone, and not by any other Nation, and is so full to this purpose, that one would wonder how it can admit of any Dispute (u). And remember that thou wast a servant in the land of Egypt, and that the LORD thy GOD brought thee out thence by a mighty hand, and by a stretched out arm: therefore the LORD thy GOD commanded thee to keep the sabbath day. The Sabbath, or one Day in seven, was not at first instituted in Commemoration of this Deliverance, because it was set apart from the Creation of the World for another Reason. But now another particular Day of the Week was set apart to be observ'd for the future, instead of the former Day. And this was the Day, in which the Israelites were finally deliver'd from the Egyptians. In which (x) GOD shewed his wondrous works in the land of Ham, and terrible things by the Red sea. This Day, in that Year, happen'd to be on the twenty first Day of the first Month, after they had passed the Red sea by a hard March all that Night, and rested the next Day from so great a Fatigue, and when in the Morning they saw their Enemies dead upon the Shore, and sang the first Song, which is recorded in the sacred Scriptures for so glorious a Deliverance. How this Alteration came, is evident from the Command concerning (y) the Feast of unleavened Bread. Seven Days (the first of which was always the Day after the Passover, or the fifteenth Day of the first Month) shall ye eat unleavened bread, even the first day ye shall put away leaven out of your houses: for whosoever eateth leavened bread from the first day until the seventh day, that soul shall be cut off from Israel. And in the first day there shall be an holy convocation, and in the seventh day there shall be an holy convocation to you; no manner of work shall be done in them, save that which every man must eat, that only shall be done of you. And ye shall observe the feast of unleavened bread; for in this self same day have I brought your armies out of the land of Egypt; therefore ye shall observe this day in your generations by an ordinance for ever. In the first month on the fourteenth day of the month at even, ye shall eat unleavened bread, until the one and twentieth day of the month at even. This first Day of unleaven'd Bread was the Day which follow'd the Passover, and was the fifteenth Day of the first Month, even the (z) Day in which they came out of Egypt. They eat the Passover at three of the Clock in the Afternoon (the Time when our blessed SAVIOUR died) on the fourteenth Day; the fifteenth Day began in that Evening at Sun-Set; and at Midnight the first-born of Egypt were all slain. Upon this (a) the Egyptians were urgent upon the people, that they might send them out of the land in haste; for they said, we be all dead men. And the people took their dough before it was leavened, their kneading-troughs being bound up in their cloaths upon their shoulders. In Commemoration whereof (b) the fifteenth Day was observ'd as an holy Convocation, being the first Day in which this Feast began, and the twenty first Day was observ'd as an holy Convocation, being the seventh Day on which the Feast ended. This first Day was the Day of their old Sabbath, or Sunday, and this seventh Day was the Day of their new Sabbath, or Saturday. And so it appears to be by (c) Astronomical Calculations. This first Day was an holy Convocation according to Custom, in an Age where we have not the least Hint, that any such Days were observ'd except their Sabbaths ; and the seventh Day was an holy Convocation by divine Appointment, because their Deliverance was then completed : And thus, as GOD before made the World in six Days, and when it was finish'd he rested on the seventh Day and sanctified it ; so the Israelites travell'd and were in danger during the six Days after the Passover ; but when they saw their Enemies dead on the Sea-Shore, they accordingly rested on the seventh Day, and sanctify'd it. And the first and seventh Days were observ'd in the time of the Jewish Law in Commemoration of the old Sabbath, which ended on the one, and the new Sabbath, which began on the other. And the more effectually to prevent the future Observation of it, GOD by his Providence order'd it on this Year to be a Day of extraordinary Labour, that (d) such an absolute necessity as their Marching out of Egypt should drive away their old Sabbath, and cause it to be observ'd no more among them, and so bring in the new to succeed in its Place.

14. But for the Proof of this by Astronomical Calculations. Jerusalem (b) is plac'd by our best Geographers in the Latitude of 32 Deg. 50 Min. and the Difference of Longitude between London and Jerusalem is 38 Deg. 20 Min. But Rameses, the Place whence the Children of Israel march'd, seems to be distant from Jerusalem in Latitude about 1 Deg. 30 Min. and in Longitude toward the West about 3 Deg. 14 Min. so that the Latitude of Rameses is 31 Deg. 20 Min. and its Longitude from London is 38 Deg. 5 Min. which converted into Time is 2 H. 32 Min. 20". It appears also from (f) these Tables, that the Year of the Departure of the Children of Israel out of Egypt, was in the 3218th Year of the Julian Period, which (g) Number divided by 28, the Remainder is 16, so that the Dominical Letter for that Year is C.

15. It appears also by (b) Calculation, that in the preceding Year, being a Bissextile Year, the Sun came to the Autumnal Equinox on the sixth Day of October in the Longitude of Rameses, and that in that Year the Moon was visible on the twenty eighth Day of September in the Evening ; so that the twenty eighth Day of September was the last Day of that old Patriarchal Year. And therefore it appears by (i) Computation, that the fifteenth Day of the seventh Month in the old Year, or the fifteenth Day of the first Month, as the Year was then chang'd, happen'd to be on the eleventh Day of April at their Departure out of Egypt, whose Dominical Letter was C, which shews, that this Day happen'd on the Day of the Antemosaic Sabbath as aforesaid. Thus (k) the first Day of that Week was an holy Convocation, or a Sabbath, and the seventh or last Day of that Week was an holy Convocation or a Sabbath, and so the Sabbath was alter'd.

2513 Saturday April 3.	1 7	2512	2512		This Day of the Week being soon to be observ'd as a Day of Rest, Moses hath no Commands to execute.
2513 Sunday April 4.	1 8	2512	2512	Exod. 10. 1 to 12.	This Day Moses threatens Pharaoh and his Servants with the eighth Plague, being that of Locusts, when probably they were at their publick Worship, as it was seven Days before.
2513 Monday April 5.	1 9	2512	2512	Exod. 10. 12 to 21.	The Locusts are sent and remov'd.
2513 Tuesday April 6.	1 10	2512	2512	Exod. 12. 1 to 21. and 13. 1, 2, 3, 4.	The Solar Egyptian Year is chang'd to a Lunar Year, in Commemoration whereof the Feasts of the new Moons were afterward observ'd, and the Year appointed to begin in the Spring. This Day the Paschal Lamb was set apart to be kept for a Sacrifice.
2513 Wednesday April 7.	1 11	2512	2512	Exod. 10. 21. to the End.	On these three Days there was a total Darkeness in the Land of Egypt.
Thursday April 8.	1 12	2512	2512
Friday April 9.	1 13	2512	2512
2513 Saturday April 10.	1 14	2512	2512	Exod. 11 and 12.	The Death of the first-born is threatned, the Passover is observ'd, and the Day spent like a Sabbath in holy Exercises.
2513 Sunday April 11.	1 15	2512	2512	Exod. 12. and Num. 33. 3, 4, 5. Compare Gen. 33. 17.	The first-born of the Egyptians are slain, the Israelites are driven out in haste, and spend that Day in a long March, which otherwise would have been a Day of Rest. This is the first Day of unleaven'd Bread, and appointed to be a holy Convocation in Commemoration of their old Sabbath now abolished. On this Day they depart from Rameses, and come to Succoth, where they build Booths for their Conveniency for a little while.
2513 Monday April 12.	1 16	2512	2512	Exod. 13. 20, 21. and Num. 33. 6.	Here they probably stay in Booths for one Day, till the whole Nation could be got together.
2513 Tuesday April 13.	1 17	2512	2512		Now they probably come to Etham.
2513 Wednesday April 14.	1 18	2512	2512	Exod. 14. 1 to 11. and Num. 33. 7.	Now they come to Pi-hahiroth, and Pharaoh begins to pursue after them.
2513 Thursday April 15.	1 19	2512	2512	Exod. 14. 5 to 10.	Pharaoh pursues after them.
2513 Friday April 16.	1 20	2512	2512	Exod. 14. 10 to 21.	Pharaoh overtakes them.
2513 Saturday April 17.	1 21	2512	2512	Exod. 14. 19. to the End.	The Israelites pass thro' the Sea in the Night, the Egyptians are drown'd, and the Israelites spend the following Day in the Service and Praise of G O D. This was the seventh or last Day of the Feast of unleaven'd Bread, and appointed to be an holy Convocation in Commemoration of their new Sabbath now established. Exod. 12. 15, 16, 17. An OBJECTION Answered.

HERE is one material Objection against this Part of the Chronology, which deserves to be consider'd, viz. The Number of Men at their Coming out of Egypt, which is expressly said (a) to be six hundred thousand besides children; or as we may reasonably conclude from (b) a parallel Text, to be so many, who were able to go forth to war in Israel, besides Women and Children; since when these alone were number'd in the Beginning of the next Year, they were found to be 632850.

2. To give this Objection its greatest Weight, it must be own'd, that when Jacob went into Egypt, the Number of his Posterity, who went with him, were but (c) three-score and ten in all, and the Sojourning in (d) Egypt was but four hundred and thirty years, and it seems strange, that in such a Space of Time there should be so great a Nation from so small a Beginning. But it is stranger still, when we consider, that these 430 Years must be reckon'd from the Time of the Promise given to Abraham; and that from the Time when Jacob went into Egypt, to the Departure thence, it was but half so much, or 215 Years. It seems stranger still, that (e) Judah had but two Sons and two small Grandchildren living at that time, and yet his Tribe was increased to be 74600; and that (f) Dan had but one Son, whose Tribe was increased to be 62700: And the strangest of all, that Ephraim the Son of Joseph could not be above seven Years of Age, when Jacob went into Egypt, and yet the Number of Males above twenty Years old at the Departure thence, which had been descended from him, were no less than 40500 in all.

3. To answer this Objection, which at first Sight looks very formidable, it must be own'd, that if a fair Account can be given of the Posterity of Ephraim, all the other Parts thereof will fall of course. To do this it must be allow'd, that there was a particular Blessing promis'd to the World immediately after the Flood, that (g) they should be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth. This general Promise was more particularly (h) confirm'd by GOD to Abraham, and afterward (i) to Isaac, and then (k) by Isaac to Jacob. After this (l) Jacob blessed Joseph, that he was, or should be a fruitful bough by a well, whose branches ran over the wall, and the arms of whose hands were made strong by the hands of the mighty GOD of Jacob. And when (m) he blessed both the Sons of Joseph, and foretold, that they should grow into a multitude, or increas as Fishes do, in the midst of the earth, he gave Ephraim the preference before Manasseh, and said, that he knew that Manasseh should become a people, and he also should be great; but his younger Brother should be greater than he, and his seed should become a multitude of nations. And it is said of the Children of Israel in Egypt, that they were (n) fruitful, and increased abundantly, and multiplied, and waxed exceeding mighty, and the land was filled with them. And (o) the more the Egyptians afflicted them, the more they multiplied and grew. So that considering the many Promises, which were given to that Age of the World in general, and to that People in particular, whatever can in such a case be granted without a Miracle, may be allowed to the Children of Israel in Egypt, and more especially to the Family of Ephraim. I will therefore suppose these following Particulars : First, that Ephraim and all his Posterity might marry, and have Children at thirty Years of Age. This may reasonably be granted, since it is particularly mention'd, that immediately after the Flood several of (p) the Patriarchs had Children at that Age, even when they liv'd much longer ; and we are not sure, that any of those, which were mentioned, were their first born ; and it is certain, that Judab, Er, Onan, and Pharez were married when they were not above twenty Years of Age. Secondly, I suppose that each of these had but one Wife at the same Time, tho' many of them might have more. Thirdly, I suppose that the common Age of Mankind at that Time was about an hundred and twenty Years. This was the Age of (q) Moses, and (r) Caleb might live as long, or (s) Aaron something longer ; Joseph and Joshua (t) came but little behind it ; the other Patriarchs, whose Names are mention'd, did exceed it ; and it was not till their being in the Wilderness, when the Age of Man was shorten'd (u) eighty Years, as it hath continu'd ever since. Fourthly, I suppose that the Men had Children till they were arriv'd to half their Age, or were sixty Years old ; and therefore if they were married at thirty, they might have Children for thirty Years. Thus it is possible, for Men in this Age of the World to marry and have Children from the Time when they are sixteen Years of Age, until they are six and forty. Thus Noah, who (x) did not live to be a thousand Years old, had his three Sons, who were preserv'd with him in the Flood, (y) after he was in his five hundredth Year. Terah liv'd (z) but two hundred and five Years, and he was (a) Father to Abraham at an hundred and thirty Years old. Moses (b) was born in the 135th Year after the going down into Egypt, and yet he was the second Generation ; for (c) Amram was born to Kohath, and (d) Moses to Amram. Achan the Troubler of Israel could not (e) be twenty Years old when he came out of Egypt, and his Father Zerah,

(f) being a Twin with Pharez, could not be less when he went thither ; and yet there seems to be but three Generations between them in that space of time, which was about 215 Years. For (g) he was the Son of Carmi, the Son of Zabdi, the Son of Zerah, of the Tribe of Judab. Joseph was born to Jacob, when he was (h) ninety and one Years old, and Benjamin after that, and it is very well known, that (i) Jacob was above seventy Years old, before he was the Father of any Child. Besides, if we reckon the Time, in which (k) the children of Abraham were to be strangers in a land that was not theirs, from the Time when Jacob went into Egypt, we must allow more than sixty Years for some Generations. GOD told Abraham, that (l) in the fourth Generation they should come again into the Land of Canaan. Now it was two hundred and fifteen Years from the going down of Jacob into Egypt to their Deliverance from thence, and forty Years after that to their Entrance into Canaan, or 255 Years in all ; and therefore these four Generations, according to this reckoning, must contain sixty four Years one with another, or some more, and some less. So that the Generations in the same Family might be many more or less, according as we reckon by the elder or younger Branches. For the better Illustration hereof I shall lay down the Genealogies of Caleb and Bezaleel, and the Age at which each respective Person may reasonably be suppos'd to be born. These two were both active Men, and Contemporaries in the Wilderness ; the one a Searcher of the Land, and the other a famous Workman in the Tabernacle. It is certain, that (m) Caleb was forty Years old, when they were both employ'd in the same Year, and (n) the Character of the other gives Ground to conjecture, that he must be near the same Age ; so that the one was, and the other might be born in the 176th Year after Jacob went into Egypt ; and the Genealogies, with the Texts of Scripture that prove them, will stand thus,

4. Fifthly, I suppose that these Patriarchs might have a Child once in two Years, and consequently a Son once in four Years. This may be more readily granted, since many of them might have a Child every Year. Benjamin, the Brother of Joseph, could not be less than seven Years younger than he, and some think much more. Joseph was born (o) six Years before Jacob departed from Laban, and there were many (p) Occurrences, which happen'd afterward before the Birth of Benjamin, and could not all happen in one Year. And therefore as Joseph was nine and thirty Years old, when Jacob came into Egypt; so Benjamin could not be above two and thirty: and yet he had (q) ten Sons at that Time. So that if we may suppose him to be married at two and twenty Years of Age, he must have a Son every Year, even altho he had no Daughters. To make this Allowance more reasonable, I also lay aside all others, which might be crav'd from Twins, and also from their having Children sooner; since it is evident from the preceding Genealogy of Caleb, that it was very common to have Children at twenty Years of Age. I also suppose, that the Number of Daughters were equal to the Number of Sons, whereas GOD by his Providence might have so dain'd it, that there might have been on such an Occasion a greater Number of Sons. And as Moses married a (r) Midianite, or (s) a Cushite, so they might marry Egyptian Women, and increase their Families by such a Method. I also lay aside all such as may be suppos'd to be born, after their Fathers were sixty Years of Age. And I also suppose Ephraim (t) to be born the Year before the Famine, whereas he might have been born four or five Years sooner. And according to these Suppositions, the Number of Men of twenty Years old and upwards, which might have been born to Ephraim, when his Posterity (u) was number'd by Moses, will appear to be in every Year as in the following Table.

The half whereof suppos'd to be Males is 87,897.

5. According to these Suppositions it is evident, by Adding of the Years of the Promise from 311 exclusive to 411 inclusive, that the Number of Ephraim's Children from twenty Years old and upward, even to 120, might without a Miracle have been 175794 at the Going out from Egypt, the half whereof being suppos'd to be Males, is 87897, which is above double the (x) Sum mention'd by Moses, or 40500; and therefore more than half may at last be abated for uncertain and accidental Casualties.

(x) Num. 1. 33.

6. The manner of Calculating this Table is thus, In the Column for the Children of Ephraim place the Number 1 opposite to the Year, in which Ephraim is suppos'd to be thirty Years old, and continue them on for every second Year, until he is suppos'd to be sixty Years old, then add together, as occasion requires, all the Numbers which are in all the preceding Years, not less than thirty, or more than sixty inclusive of both, and the Total shall be the Sum for the Year desir'd.

C H A P. III.

Of the EGYPTIAN Year.

AS Moses in this Interval confines himself principally to the Egyptian History, so I suppose that it will not be unacceptable to give an Account of the Egyptian Year, by which they computed and settled the same in a Chronological Order.

2. Adam being created on the sixth Day in the Evening, began to compute Days, Weeks, Months, and Years from the Beginning of his Life. This is the Reason that the Day began in the Evening, and so an Evening and a Morning (a) made up a natural Day, which Method continu'd in most of the Oriental Countries, and in all other Places, where they observ'd the Lunar Year. Adam being created soon after the Sun had touch'd the Autumnal Equinox occasion'd those Countries to begin their Year from the same Time. And being created when the Moon was a great Light, and very near her Full, occasion'd these Countries to begin the Year from the Change of that Moon, whose Full happen'd immediately after the Autumnal Equinox. He being also created on the sixth Day of the Creation, the first Day of his Life was the seventh, from whence he began to compute his Days, and Weeks, and Months, and Years, and so according to the Example of GOD, who (b) rested on this Day, blessed it, and sanctified it, Adam observ'd it as a holy Rest, in the Praising and Adoring of his great Creator, and so he spent his first Day, or the first Fruits of his Time, in the Exercises of Religion. From hence began the Computation of Weeks (as it hath been before observ'd) and so the first Day thereof was the Antemosaical Sabbath. And as the Moon was originally design'd to determine the (c) Seasons; so from her first Appearance after the Change they began the Months, whilst the Revolution of the Sun from Setting to Setting made a natural Day, and its Revolution from the Autumnal Equinox to the same, made a natural Year: And this Method continued in Babylon till the Æra of Nabonassar, where the plain level Country gave them greater Opportunities to make their Astronomical Observations for this Purpose in those early Times.

3. But when the Posterity of Mizraim or Misôr came from thence, and settled in Upper-Egypt, which was a mountainous uneven Country, they could not so well observe this Method. Such, who lay more open toward the West, could observe the Appearance of the Moon a Day sooner than others, who had Mountains or Hills toward that Part of the Heavens, which occasion'd a Confusion in their Beginning of the Year, and consequently in all the subsequent Days and Months. To remedy this Inconvenience, they laid aside the (d) Lunar and invented a Solar Year, consisting of as many Days as they thought would exactly contain the Number, in which the Sun pass'd from one Point of the Ecliptick to the same again, which they thought at first to be three hundred and sixty Days. Whether this was begun, before Mizraim the Son of Ham was establish'd as their first King, or since, is uncertain; however, it was confirm'd by him, and in Commemoration thereof one of the Egyptian Months was call'd Mesori, by a small Variation from his Name introduc'd by Length of Time. And as Thoth succeeded Mizraim in the Kingdom; so the Month following was called Thoth, in the same manner as July and August were so call'd from Julius and Augustus Caesar, upon the Settling of the Julian Year among the Romans.

(b) Gen. 2. 1, 2, 3.

(c) Gen. 1. 14.

4. Thoth,

4. Thoth, the second King of Egypt, and Successor of Mizraim, who is often call'd Hermes or Mercury, being the greatest Philosopher that ever govern'd that Kingdom, finding that this Method was not exact, applies himself to rectify it. The Time, when this Rectification was made, may be observ'd from Herodotus, who tells us, that (e) in the Time of their oldest Kings, or from their first Settling in Egypt, the Sun had twice chang'd its Rising and Setting. That is, the Beginning of any particular Month had so chang'd its Place, as to run twice thro' all the Signs of the Ecliptick, and return to the Point, where it was at first, which was only caus'd by a Variation of their Months, and not by any Alteration of the Course of the Sun. The Egyptian Year being five Days less than the real Solar Year, this Alteration must happen twice in 137 Julian Years. For this Number being multiply'd by 365, the Days of a common Julian Year, the Total is 50005, to which add 35 for Bissexile Days, and the Total is 50040, which divided by 360, the Quotient is 139 without any Remainder, from whence it appears, that in 137 Julian Years there are 139 Egyptian Years of 360 Days, or that the Beginning of any Egyptian Month had ran twice round the Ecliptick Line in such a Space; so that this Alteration was made by Thoth about 137 Years after Egypt was first inhabited. And therefore if to 1807, or the Year of the World when Egypt was first inhabited, there are added 137 Years for the Time of these Alterations of the Months, the Total is 1944, or the Year of the World, when the Calendar was thus fix'd by Thoth, which was the Year before CHRIST 2064. And according to all these Accounts, the Egyptian Chronicle will stand thus.

	Year of the World.
The Flood	1657

5. When the Egyptians perceiv'd this Defect in their Year, they remedied it in a great measure by Adding five Days to the End of it, which they therefore call'd επιμαρτυρια or superadded, thereby implying, that they were not antiently in use among them, but afterward added to make up the Course of the Year. Of this (f) the Egyptians give an Account, (as Plutarch tells us) under this Fable; Mercury being once at Dice with the Moon, he got from her a 72d Part of the Year, and added it to the 360 Days, which were antiently the Days of the Year, which were call'd εμαρτυρια, and in which they celebrated the Festivals of their Gods. Thence the Names of the several εμαρτυρια were taken from their Gods, as dedicated to them; the first to Osiris, the second to Αρηνης, the third to Typho, the fourth to Isis, and the fifth to Nephtha, the Wife of Typho, and the Sister to Isis. The only Difficulty is, what is meant by the second of these. Now Sanchoniatho tells us, (g) that in the next Generation before the Flood except one, there was Αγρηνος, which Name implies a God of Husbandry, like Pan, Pales and Sylvanus among the Greeks and Romans, who had a much worshipp'd Statue, and a Temple carried about for that purpose. And Plutarch mentions not only Pan, but also Aroueris, as a most antient Deity among the Egyptians, and intimates, that it is uncertain, who he was; tho' from the Likeness of the Name we may suppose him to be the Agrouerus mentioned by Sanchoniatho. The first was Osiris or Mizraim the Father of Thoth. The fourth was Isis the Wife of Mizraim or Osiris. The fifth was Nephtha the Sister of Isis, and Wife of Typho, and the third was Typho himself. So that four of these were in the immediate Generation before Thoth, being his Father, Mother, Uncle and Aunt, and the other was an antient Deity worshipp'd before the Flood, and is a farther Sign, that the Days dedicated to them were superadded to the Year by Thoth their Successor. And there is no Doubt, but other Days were also dedicated to other Deities, either before the Flood, such as Tubalcain or Vulcan, or immediately after, such as Noah and his Wife, whom they call'd Ουρανός and γη, or Heaven and Earth, as also to Ham or Jupiter Hammon, and his Wife Astarte or Ashtaroth, who was afterward the great Goddess of the Zidonians; and also others to later Deities, such as Thoth himself, and his Successor Thoth the second, and other Kings of Upper Egypt, who were likewise deified after their Decease, and of whom Moses upbraided the Children of Israel, (h) that they sacrificed to devils, Demonibus, or to Men departed, and not to GOD, to gods whom they knew not, that came newly up, and whom their fathers feared not. Of this Idolatry the Israelites were guilty in the Wilderness, when (i) they joined themselves unto Baal-peor, and did eat the sacrifices of the dead. And therefore when the Israelites offer'd the Basket of the first ripe Fruits in the Land of Canaan, they were oblig'd every Year to purge themselves of this Sin with this solemn Expression; (k) I have not eaten thereof in my mourning, (that is for Menes, Mizraim or Tammuz, according to the Custom of the Egyptians) neither have I taken away ought thereof for any unclean use, nor given ought thereof for the dead.

6. As the other Nations, which computed by Lunar Years, began them from the Autumnal Equinox; so when the Egyptians first settl'd their Solar Year, they began it from the first Approach of the Sun toward them from the Winter Solstice, which could be observ'd in those early Times. So that when the Egyptian Rites of Mourning for the Death of Menes, Osiris or Mizraim, their first King, were observ'd on one of these Days, which they call'd Ἐπαιθμενας, the Song (as Herodotus (l) tells us) which they us'd on this Occasion, was call'd Linus, or in the Egyptian Language Maneros: And when the Year was thus settl'd by Thoth, the first Month of it was call'd Thoth by his Name; so that the preceding Month of Mesori was the last, and the Days call'd Ἐπαιθμενας were insert'd between them.

7. However this Rectification made it not so exact, but that in four Years Time they lost a Day, and in the Space of 1461 Years, the Beginnings of each Month went backward thro' all the Signs and Seasons to the same Point, from whence it began, as it did before in a much less Compass, which Defect Julius Caesar observing, rectified the Roman and introduc'd the Julian Year by adding a Bissextile or Leap-Day once in four Years, according to the Method, which is now in use among us, and this was done Anno ante Christum 46.

8. The easiness of Computing the Days and Months of this Year, without the Trouble of Astronomical Computations, occasion'd the Introducing this Method in the Babylonish Monarchy at the Beginning of the Reign of Nabonassar, and hence arose that famous Era call'd by his Name, which began Anno ante Christum 746, by which Method Ptolemy hath given us an Account, in his Canon, of all the Assyrian Emperors, from that Time to the Death of Antoninus the Roman Emperor in the Year of CHRIST 161, containing in all 907 Years. And it is probable, that this Method was soon after settl'd in the Roman Empire by Numa Pompilius their second King, and it continu'd without Alteration until the Reign of Julius Caesar.

9. However the Introducing of this Method into the Assyrian Empire in this Manner was a particular Providence of GOD, that thereby we might be able more certainly to infer the Time, when Thoth fix'd the Egyptian Year, and consequently when he reign'd, in such a Method as is agreeable to the Scripture History of that Kingdom, compar'd with the Catalogue of those Kings mention'd by Eratosthenes, and with the Observations made on this Subject by Bishop Cumberland, that they all serve to explain and confirm each other.

10. For when the Era of Nabonassar was settl'd in the Year before CHRIST 746, both the Babylonish and the Egyptian Year began on the twenty sixth Day of February according to the Julian Account; and therefore by Computing it (m) backwards it is easy to know, when it began, at the Time that the Regulation was suppos'd to be made in the Reign of Thoth, by which it will evidently appear, that they did not begin from the Sun's Approach to either Equinox, but rather from the Winter Solstice. Now when Menes or Mizraim was dead, and deify'd, he was consecrated into the Sun, or reckon'd to be that intelligent Being, which regulated the Sun's Motion. And therefore when the Egyptian Rites of Mourning for the Death of Menes or Mizraim their first King were first observ'd on the first of those Days call'd Ἐπαιθμενας, it was a kind of Weeping out of the old Year, or a Lamentation for the Sun's utmost Distance, and when they rejoic'd on the first Day following it, it was a joyful Ushering in of the new Year, occasion'd by their being first sensible of the Sun's Approach toward them. This made the Israelites fall into that Idolatry of (n) Weeping for Tammuz, or the Sun, which the Jews call'd תקופת תמוז Tekuphath Tammuz, or the Revolution of the Sun, or of the Year. And therefore when Thoth, Anno Mundi 1944 (as it is suppos'd) settl'd the Year, the Beginning thereof, or of the Month Thoth was as near to the Winter Solstice, as the Approach of the Sun Northward from thence could be observ'd in those early Times, as will appear from the following Calculation.

11. Thus also when Julius Cæsar rectify'd the Roman, and introduc'd the Julian Year, Anno ante Christum 45, he settl'd the Beginning on the first Day of January, when the Sun was in ♊ 08 Deg. 20 Min. 0". and the Distance of its Declination from the Tropick 00 Deg. 18 Min. which probably was as little, as could be commonly observ'd at that Time.

13. From hence we may observe the great Wildom of GOD in the Alteration of the Year among his own People the Israelites at their Departure out of Egypt. The principal Design was to prevent their Participating with the idolatrous Nations in any Part of their Worship, and therefore it was alter'd in such a manner, that the particular Days appointed for such Festivals could not be so well known and observ'd. The Egyptian Year being Solar, consisted of 365 Days: The Jewish Year being Lunar, consisted sometimes of 354, sometimes of 355, and sometimes of 384 Days; so that the Days, which were fix'd in the one, were moveable in the other, and consequently could not be so easily known and distinguish'd. Had the Jews observ'd the Egyptian Year, the Days of their idolatrous Worship would have returned among them in their proper Order. When the Lunar Year was introduc'd, had they began it from the Autumnal Equinox, the idolatrous Worship of the Babylonians might also have return'd in the same Manner. But by Fixing it at the Spring, the Time of their Deliverance, it put them directly in Mind of the LORD their GOD, who brought them out of the land of Egypt, and out of the house of bondage, that so they might learn to have no other gods but him. And when the Antemosaical Sabbath was every where profan'd by the Worship of the Sun, and was therefore call'd Dies Solis or Sunday, GOD was pleas'd to alter it from the first Day of the Week to the seventh, that so his Worship and Service might be ended, before the other began, and his own People might be under the less Temptation either to quit the Service of the Creator, or to join in the Worship of the Creatures; according as it hath been already insisted on, and shall also be mention'd in its proper Place.

C H A P. IV.

AS the Scripture History confines it self from the Calling of Abraham to what happen'd principally among his Posterity ; so I suppose, that it will not be unacceptable to the Reader, to begin this Chapter with the best Account which we have of him, from his Birth until that Time. He was the Son of Terah (a), and the tenth from Noah. And thus, as there were ten Generations inclusive from Adam to the Flood ; so there were ten Generations inclusive from the Flood to Abraham. Moses mentions him as the first among his Brethren, as he mention'd Shem the first among the Sons of Noah, because he was the first in Dignity, the Promise being given to him and to his Seed, and the sacred History being principally confin'd to him, and to his Family ; but not because he was the eldest : For his Brother Haran was born when (b) their Father Terah was seventy Years of Age, but Abraham was not born until he was an hundred and thirty Years old, it being evident, that (c) Abraham was but seventy and five Years old, when his Father died, who was at that Time two hundred and five Years of Age. The Place where he was born is expressly said to be Ur, a City lying between Nineveh and Nisibis, on the north Side of the River Mygdonius, Southward from the River Tigris, and in the Country of Mesopotamia. And as (d) the Assyrian Monarchy is often called the Land of the Chaldeans, and St. Stephen expressly calls the Land, where Abraham dwelt, (e) the Land of the Chaldeans ; so we may infer, that either Nimrod, who (f) built Nineveh, or his Successor Semiramis had before this Time conquer'd that Part of Mesopotamia, and their Successor was in Possession of it in the Time of Abraham, as a Part of that Monarchy ; and that this occasion'd the Sons of Japhet to flee from thence, and to people the lesser Asia first, and Greece afterward, in so early an Age as Moses mentions. There is another City of this Name, which lay near Babylon on the North, and a third call'd Urchoa, which lay Southward of it in the same Country. But neither of these was the Place, from whence Abraham came ; because no good Reason can be given, why he should go so far round about toward the North thro' Mesopotamia and Haran, when there was a much shorter Way to the West thro' Arabia, if he had come from Babylon to go to Canaan.

2. The Country of Chaldea, where Abraham liv'd, was strangely addicted to Superstition, insomuch that the (g) Chaldeans in Daniel's Time were reckon'd as a distinct sort of Diviners from the Magicians, Astrologers, and Soothsayers or Sorcerers. And it is probable, that from such Sort of Men the Ancestors of Abraham might be infected with the Errors of the Country. Joshua expressly charges them with it, when (h) he said to the Israelites, Your fathers dwelt on the other side of the flood (or of Euphrates) in old time, even Terah the father of Abraham and the father of Nahor, and they served other gods. The (i) Jews tell us, that it is certain, that Abraham was bred up in the Religion of the Zabii, who in those early Times made Images, or Representations of the Sun, Moon and Stars to worship them ; and that his Father Terah was a Maker and Seller of those Images. That Abraham being well skill'd in the Astronomy of those Times, learn'd from thence that those Bodies could neither make nor move themselves by their own Power, but that there was one only GOD, who created, preserv'd, and govern'd all other things, and that therefore they ought to worship him alone. That his Father Terah going from home about particular Business, and leaving Abraham in the Shop to sell the Images, he in his Father's Absence broke them all except the largest of them. Upon this Terah being angry, brought Abraham before the chief King of the Assyrian Monarchy, to be punish'd for this Crime. This King being one of the Magi commanded Abraham to worship the Fire, and upon his Refusal he made this Answer : Since thou mockest me, who only worship the Fire, it is my Resolution that thou shalt be thrown into it, that I may be a Witness, whether the GOD whom thou worshippest, will come and deliver thee. Upon the Refusal of Abraham, he was immediately cast into the Midst of a burning fiery Furnace, but came out unhurt, in the Presence, and to the Admiration, of all. Some (k) think, that this Story rose from Taking the Word Ur to signify the Fire, as it is in Hebrew, and therefore they interpret the (l) Saying of GOD to Abraham thus, I am the LORD, that brought thee out of the Fire of the Chaldeans, to give thee this land to inherit it. But since it is expressly said, that (m) Terab, Lot, Abraham, and Sarai his Wife came forth together out of Ur of the Chaldees; it may therefore more properly be taken as a City dedicated to the Fire, which was principally worshipp'd there, and so call'd by this Name in Commemoration thereof. One (n) of the Arabick Historians tells us, that Nimrod the first Affyrian Monarch, was the first who worshipp'd the Fire, and having seen a Flame at a great Distance in the East, ascending out of the Earth, he ador'd it, and appointed a Priest, who should continually attend it, and throw Frankincense in it; and that from his Time the Magi began to worship and adore the Fire in a set and solemn Manner. And (o) he farther adds, that Terab was the Father of Abraham by his first Wife, whose Name was Tuna, and after her Decease he married another call'd Tobwait, by whom he had Sarab, whom Abraham married; and this is the Reason, that (p) Abraham said of her, Indeed, she is my sister, the daughter of my father, but not the daughter of my mother; and she became my wife. Another (q) Arabick Historian saith, that in his Time the Country of the Chaldeans was very much infested with Magpies, which laid it waste, and eat up all the Seed, that was sown in the Ground; and when the Chaldeans pray'd to the Sun, Moon, and Stars, and their Images, as also to the Fire, and had no Redress, Abraham afterward pray'd to the true GOD, who heard his Petitions, and deliver'd the Country, and upon this Abraham burnt the Idol Temple in Chaldea, which his Brother Haran endeavouring to extinguish perish'd in the Flames. And thus (r) Haran died before his father Terab in the land of his nativity, in Ur of the Chaldees; where (as Josephus tells us) there was to be seen in his Time a Monument erected in Honour of his Memory.

3. This bold Attempt of Abraham enrag'd the whole Country against him and his Family, so that there was no Staying any longer there for them. Upon this GOD himself appears to Abraham, and Anno commanded him (s) to depart from Mund his country, and from his kindred, 2433. and from his father's house, and to dwell in a strange Land. Abraham communicates this Vision to his Father Terab, and his Resolution thereupon, who probably communicates it to the rest of the Family, and they resolve not to stay behind him, but to accompany him in his Journey. It is probable, that they fear'd the Rage of the Country, who might suspect them as guilty of Favoursing Abraham's Escape; and that Terab and his Family, tho' they had been Idolaters, were now convinc'd by the Miracles, which they saw, and the Arguments, which they heard from Abraham, and brought over to the Worship of the true GOD. For it is hard to guess what else should move them to accompany Abraham, except an Obedience to the divine Direction, which he had receiv'd, to which they would not have agreed, if they had not believ'd in the same GOD. Terab himself being old and infirm, seems to encourage all the rest, and to be the principal Agent in their Removal. For Moses saith, (s) that Terab took Abraham his son, and Lot the son of Haran his son's son, and Sarai his daughter in law, his son Abraham's wife, and they went forth with them from Ur of the Chaldees to go into the land of Canaan; and they came to Haran, and dwelt there. And tho' there is no mention of Nabor in the Text, because he did not go into the Land of Canaan with the rest; yet there is no doubt, but he came with them at this Time to Haran, since (t) there we find him afterward with his Posterity. And it is as evident that he forsook the Idolatry of the Country, since his Grand-daughter Rebeccah was married to Isaac, and his Great Grandchildren Rachel and Leah were married to Jacob.

4. They had not travell'd far, before the Death of Terab drawing nigh, he was visited with such Sickneses, as made him incapable of Travelling any farther. Upon which Abraham resolves to settle in that Country, as long as his Father liv'd. For this Reason they built a City, which they call'd (u) Haran, or (x) Charran, in Commemoration of their Brother Haran, whom they left behind them. It was call'd in Latin Charræ in the plural Number, because its Inhabitants came from more Nations than one, consisting partly of the old Inhabitants, and partly of Abraham's or rather Nabor's Family, and was afterward remarkable for the total Defeat of the Roman Army under Crassus by the Parthians. And here (y) Terab died, being two hundred and five Years old, which was a great Age in those Days; and more than is recorded of any one in Scripture since his Time, Job excepted.

5. Josephus seems to agree with others of the Eastern Writers in some of these Transactions. He tells us, (z) that Terah the Father of Abraham had contracted such an Aversion to Chaldea for the Loss of his Son Haran, that he went away, and all his Family into Haran in Mesopotamia, where Terah died and was buried. And (a) he gives him this Character, that he was a Man equally wise and eloquent, of a piercing Judgment, and an universal Knowledge, and famous for his celestial Observations. That he had the Reputation of an Understanding beyond other Men. And as he wanted no Skill; so he had also the Courage to attack the most daring Iniquities of the Times, and by Dints of Authority as well as of his Reasoning to tear up false Opinions in Religion by the Roots, and to terrify wicked Men into the Love and Fear of that GOD, whom they despis'd. That Abraham was the first, who adventur'd to preach up the Doctrine of one GOD, the Almighty Maker and Creator of all things both in Heaven and Earth, and that we stand indebted to his infinite Goodness, and not to any Power in our selves, for all the Comforts, which we enjoy in this World. And this he argued from the orderly Course of things both by Sea and Land in their Times and Seasons, and from his Observations upon the Motions and Influences of the Sun, Moon and Stars, insomuch that without an overruling and an administering Providence to keep the Wheel going, the whole Frame of the Universe must drop into Confusion, and consequently that all, which we have to trust to for Matters either of Profit, Pleasure or Necessity, depends singly upon the good Will and Bounty of the first Mover: so that it is to him alone, that we are to render all Honour and Thanksgiving, without Assuming any thing to our selves. And that the People of Chaldea were ready to fly in his Face for this Doctrine, so that by GOD's Order and Assistance he convey'd himself from thence. And he adds, that Nicolaus of Damascus, who might well know what pass'd in the neighbouring Country of Haran, saith of Abraham, that he, tho' a Stranger, commanded in Damascus, to which Place he came with a great Train from a Country call'd Chaldea. And that at Damascus the very Name of Abraham was in his Time had in great Veneration, and that there was also a Village, which even then bore the Name of Abraham's Habitation. And another Author (b) informs us, that Abraham took an House, which fronted Haran, where according to the antient Piety, he kept great Hospitality, and invited those who came in or went out of Town to refresh themselves, if they pleas'd, and endeavour'd to teach them, whilst they eat and drank with him, That there was but one GOD in the World.

6. Abraham had not been long there, before the Inhabitants (c) rose against him, as they had done in Chaldea, for the Sake of his Doctrine, and therefore having no Promise from GOD that he should inherit the Land, where he then was, but rather the contrary, and (d) probably GOD appearing again to him, commanded him to depart from that Country also, and to go into the Land of Canaan. Upon this Abraham remov'd from Haran, not only with his own Relations, but also with all the Slaves born in his House, or bought with his Money, and (as the (e) Chaldee Paraphrasts add) all the Profelytes, which he had gain'd over to his Religion. It was a wonderful Effect of Abraham's Faith to move him to leave his own native Country, and go to Haran. It was more wonderful, that he should quit Haran, where he was settl'd, and remove farther. And it is also as strange, that all these should be so unanimous as to go with him (for we read only of Nahor and his Family, who stay'd behind) that they should go three hundred Miles from thence, to a Country of which they had no Manner of Knowledge, nor had sent any Body before them to discover it, under the Conduct of a Foreigner, whom they had not known a Year before, and having nothing to support them but the Promise of GOD. However they took their Journey thro' (f) the dangerous and barren Desarts of Palmyrena, climbing over the high Mountain either of Libanus, Hermion or Gilead, and fearing no Dangers, but surmounting all Difficulties, they at last came to the Land of Canaan, the Place of their Rest and settl'd Abode. And to assure Abraham hereof, there (g) came a Voice to him from the Shechinah or Divine Glory which appear'd, and told him, that this was the Country intended to be bestow'd on his Posterity. So that having left his own People and his Father's House, he should become the Lord of the whole Land of Canaan, and his Seed should become a mighty Nation, which mov'd him accordingly to offer up a solemn Sacrifice to GOD, and build an Altar for such a Purpose.

7. In the mean time the Canaanitish Pastors in Egypt under the Command of Jannias their fifth King, had not such good Success in Carrying on the Wars, as they had before, but being defeated and streighten'd by the Courage and Conduct of Toegar Amachus the sixth King of Upper-Egypt, many of them willing to live in Quiet quitted the Country of Lower-Egypt, and retir'd into the Land of Canaan. These having been call'd Canaanites in Egypt, call themselves by the same Name at their Return from thence, and either not knowing to which of the settl'd Tribes in the Country they did belong, or the others being not willing to receive them, or perhaps they being not willing to separate for Fear of more Wars, they settl'd themselves upon the (b) Coast of the Mediterranean Sea, and upon the western Banks of the River Jordan. This Retreat of theirs so weaken'd those which were left behind them, that they could never afterward make Head against their Enemies, as they had done before, but declin'd more and more, until they were utterly expell'd from that Kingdom in the next King's Reign.

7. For the better Understanding of this History, it will be convenient to observe, that among the Sons of Canaan there is mention made by Moses of (i) the Sinite. These lay in the most southern Parts of Canaan towards Egypt, where they built the Town of Sin, on the most western Branch of the Nile, near the Mediterranean Sea, and extended their Country as far as Mount Sinai. In the Beginning of the Egyptian Wars, the (k) Caslubim their Neighbours being under Mizraim King of Upper-Egypt, took this Town of Sin from the Canaanites, because thereby they might more easily prevent the Bringing in of Reinforcements from that Country, and so was a Pass of the utmost Consequence, which they could not be without, and therefore it was often call'd Abaris, or a Passage, from the Hebrew Word עבר Abar, which signifies to pass over. When Salatis, who was a formidable Warrior, was made the first King of the Canaanitish Pastors in Lower-Egypt, and began to extend his Conquests, his first Care was to retake this Pass, to open a Communication between him and the Land of Canaan, which he did accordingly; and in Commemoration thereof he alter'd the Name, and call'd it Pelusium, from Peles, which, in the Samaritan and Aethiopick Languages, signifies a Removing or Wandring from one Country to another; to shew, that the present Possessors were not the antient Natives. And from the Name of this Town the Inhabitants of the Country were call'd Philistines. This is the Reason that among the Inhabitants of Canaan, which were to be destroy'd, Moses never reckons the Sinites; because they had before been conquer'd, first by the Egyptians, and then by their own Country Men, who had taken Possession of their Land, and call'd it by another Name. And as the greatest Number of those who return'd into Canaan came from thence; so they are also frequently call'd Philistines in that Country, and the Sea-Coast on the Mediterranean was from thence call'd Palestina. Thus Moses tells us, (l) that from the Country of the Caslubim came the Philistines, and (m) the greatest Number of them settl'd near Beersheba in the Southern Parts of the Land of Canaan, and consequently not far from the Country from whence they came. And he also reckoning up the eleven Sons of Canaan the Son of Han, according to their Tribes, saith not only that their (n) dwelling was from Zidon, the most northern Part of the Land, to Lashab near Egypt; but that (o) after their first Settlement the Families of the Canaanites, who return'd out of Egypt, were spread abroad among them; and so it was, for (p) when Abraham came into Canaan, these Canaanites were just then enter'd into the Land. These Canaanites kept themselves in great Bodies, and carried on a considerable Trade with their Neighbours, and for this Reason seated themselves near the two great Seas; and therefore the Word Canaan in Hebrew signifies a Merchant, and keeping together did not streighten Abraham and Lot at that Time.

8. These Canaanites or Philistines (for they went by both Names) well knew the fatal Consequence of Admitting a foreign Nation to enter peaceably and dwell among them, since this was the Cause of the Egyptian Wars in the former Century, which continu'd with great Violence at that Time; and therefore they resolve, if possible, to prevent it in the Beginning. For this Purpose they chose a King, whom they call (q) Abimelech, who dwelt at Gerar, since call'd Asbkelon on the Bank of the Mediterranean near the River Sorek: And as the Name in Hebrew signifies My Father the King; so it seems to be a common Name to all the succeeding Kings of the Philistines. Upon his Accession to the Government he chuses (r) Phicol to be the General of his Army, and puts himself in a Posture of Defence. But Abraham hearing how the Philistines had seated themselves, and of their Military Preparations, resolves not to travel into their Country, and therefore takes the middle Way between Jordan and the Sea, and intended accordingly to settle at (s) a considerable Distance from them in the Plain of Moreh near Sichem; and for this Purpose he builds an Altar here, and offers a solemn Sacrifice to GOD. And it being the first that he built in this Country, it was accordingly the first Place which was establish'd for publick Worship, after the Israelites had conquer'd the Land of Canaan. A (t) learned Author of our own Nation gives good Reasons to conjecture, that Abraham built on such Occasions as these a Place like the Proscuchæ, or Places of Prayer among the Jews, so that the Ground whereon the Altar stood was encompass'd with a Wall or some such Enclosure, and open above, but shaded with Trees, and so set apart for the other Exercises of divine Worship. The Septuagint (u) speaks of the high Oak at Shechem, or a Grove of Oaks on an Hill which was there, where Jacob purg'd (x) his Household of their Idols, and (y) here was the Sanctuary of GOD in Joshua's Time, near this very Grove where Abraham first pitch'd his Tent and built an Altar, and (z) it continu'd famous in after Ages. Such was the Care in those early Times, that Places consecrated or set apart to the Worship of GOD should not afterward be profan'd by common Use. In the same manner Abraham (a) did afterward plant a Grove at Beersheba as a Place for divine Worship, and there he called on the Name of the LORD, the everlasting GOD; and more particularly the Antients very much reverenc'd an Oak. The Angel of the LORD (b) appear'd to Gideon under an Oak, which seems to be a Place where they did offer Sacrifices. And (c) of all other Trees an Oak was held most sacred by the Heathen, and particularly by the Druids.

9. But the Temper of the People, who inhabited those Parts, making it very inconvenient for Abraham to settle there, he goes about twenty Miles farther southward, and resolving to fix in that Place, he builds another Altar in the same Manner upon a Mountain, where they antiently chose to sacrifice rather than in other Places. And here he offer'd Sacrifices of Thanksgiving to GOD, and implor'd his continu'd Favour. For which Reason the Place was call'd Bethel, or The House of GOD. And as he offer'd no Disturbance to others, so they gave him none; and therefore being very rich in all Sorts of Cattle, he could not think fit absolutely to fix here, but he made a farther Progress into the southern Parts of the Country, partly for the Conveniency of Pasturage, and partly that he might see the rest of that good Land, which GOD had promis'd to give him.

10. He had not been long in the Land, but (d) there happen'd a very great Famine, which made him think it convenient to go into Egypt for some Time, and to return again, when the Famine was over. Josephus (e) tells us, that Abraham, understanding that there was a great Plenty in Egypt, resolv'd upon a Journey thither, not only to get a Part of their Plenty, but also to consult the Priests in their Profession about divine Matters, with an impartial Desire and Disposition to find out the Truth, and either to give or receive Satisfaction, according as the Subject in Question did require. Pharaoh Janias the King of Egypt being weaken'd by the Departure of his own Subjects so lately into Canaan, and reduc'd to Difficulties by an overpowering Enemy, was glad to encourage others to come and settle in his Kingdom at any Rate, and therefore admits them to live near him; by which (f) Means he was inform'd of the Beauty of Sarah, and intended to have made her one of his secondary Wives or Concubines, according to the Custom in those Days. But GOD to prevent this Design visit'd him (as (g) Josephus saith) both with a Plague and Sedition at once. In this Distress Pharaoh consulted his Priests to know the Cause of such Calamities, and what ought to be done to remove them. The Priests after Sacrificing gave this Answer, that it was a Judgment upon him, for the Violence and Abuse which he design'd upon the Wife of a Stranger. Upon this Pharaoh restores Sarah to Abraham, and excus'd himself by Disclaiming all Intentions of Abusing another Man's Wife (for even these Idolaters had a Sense of Virtue and Morality) and declar'd that he only desir'd a fair Alliance, without the least Thought of any scandalous Indignity to her Person. Josephus also adds, that after this he made Abraham a Present of a considerable Sum of Money, and gave him the Liberty of Associating himself with the most learned and excellent Men in his Dominions, by which Means he became better known, and consequently more esteem'd for his excellent Qualities and Virtue. By the Allowance of which Freedom of Conference and Communication, Abraham had an Opportunity of Observing all their Divisions about Rites, Ceremonies and Opinions, their Factions and Animosities, and their reciprocal Contempt and Hatred one of another; so that upon the Whole he made no Difficulty to pronounce them to be Men, who acted in Contradiction to themselves, as well as to one another, and without any Foundation of Truth to build upon. By such Discourses as these, he gain'd to himself a very great Credit, not only for the Solidity of his Judgment, and an admirable Felicity of Elocution, but also for his instructive Method of Informing and Convincing his Auditors; and he also read to them Lectures of Astronomy and Arithmetick. Pharaoh also gave strict Orders, that none should hurt him, nor any thing belonging to him. And when the Famine was ended in the Land of Canaan, he gave him a free Liberty to return, whenever he thought convenient.

11. During the Time of the Famine in Canaan, the Canaanites, who had kept together in great Bodies, were very much streighten'd for Want of Provision and Pasturage, and therefore several of them, who had Flocks and Herds, divided from the Rest in smaller Companies, and call'd themselves by the Name of Perizzites, which Word in Hebrew signifies such Men as live in small and open Towns, and were thus distinguish'd from the Canaanites, who dwelt in Fortifications, or (as (b) the Scripture expresseth it) in cities great and fenced up to heaven. These Perizzites, having been us'd to a pastoral Life in Egypt, carry on the very same Way of Living, and probably, like (i) the Rechabites, dwelt in Tents, and mov'd from Place to Place for the Conveniency of Pasturage; so that their Memory was not preserv'd by the Name of any Place in the Country, the Names of (k) Baal Perazim, and (l) Perez Uzzab being given for other Reasons: So that when Abraham and Lot return'd out of Egypt, they found, that (m) both the Canaanite and also the Perizzite were then in the land. These with their Cattle had eaten up their Pasturage, so that Abraham and Lot could not subsist together, but they were also (n) oblig'd to separate into smaller Bodies, as the others had done before them. Hence appears the (o) Reason, why Moses (when he reckons up the Hivite, the Girgashite, the Amorite, the Jeubusite, and the Hittite, among the Sons of Canaan, being the Nations whom the Israelites conquer'd) doth not mention the Canaanites and the Perizzites, tho' they make up the seven, and were (p) always mark'd out for utter Destruction. For these were but late Inhabitants, and coming from the Egyptian Wars were the more formidable Enemies, if they should have been suffer'd to live among them. And thus when Simeon and Levi had (q) destroy'd the Shechemites for the Indignity done to Dinah their Sister, Jacob seems only to be afraid of the Canaanites and the Perizzites, lest they should come against him in an hostile Manner; but he expresses no Concern for the other Tribes, who had been long before settl'd in the Land of Canaan; because they had not been train'd up to War like these.

12. When Abraham and Lot were return'd into this Country, they (r) intended to settle at Bethel, which was the second Place where they dwelt after their first Entrance, that so he might be near that Ground which he had devoted to the Service of GOD. The first thing that he did was to repair the Altar, which seems to have been fall'n or thrown down, and to offer Sacrifice thereon, commending himself and all that he had to the divine Protection, who had before promis'd to bestow this Country upon him; and then to seek out for Sustenance for himself and his Cattle. But here he finds a Difficulty; the Canaanites continu'd in their old Posts, but the Perizzites had scatter'd themselves abroad in all the adjoining Lands, had eaten up some of the best Pasturages, and seiz'd the rest, so that they could not live together in that Part of the Country. This occasion'd a Contention between their Servants, each endeavouring like the Perizzites to get the best Pastures, and the best watering Places for their Flocks; which being told to Abraham, and he being inclin'd to Peace, and resolving to yield in order to preserve it, makes an Offer to Lot to take his Choice, and live where he thought fit, with a Promise to separate from him. Lot on the other hand not willing to take the Advantage of his Uncle, but knowing that it was the Custom, in Peopling of the World, for the Younger to separate from the Elder, pitch'd upon Dwelling in the Plains of Jordan near Sodom, as being a very fruitful Country, and where he could not want Water for his Flocks in the driest Season. So that Lot remov'd, and Abraham seems to continue still at Bethel; because he might be near the Place of religious Worship.

13. It is observable, that GOD never gave to Abraham the Promise of this Land whilst Lot was with him, except at (s) his first Coming to Shechem. When he first commanded him to depart out of his Country, and told him, that he would (t) make him a great nation, the Text plainly intimates, that he was alone. When he was (u) first at Bethel, and when (x) he return'd from Egypt thither, he had no such Promise; and the Reason seems to be this: Had the Promise been repeated, whilst Lot was with him, the Children of Lot might have had some Pretence to it, as well as the Children of Abraham; but whatever was done in his Absence, could no Way affect them. But (y) as soon as Lot was separated from him, the Promise was repeated in a most ample Manner. And tho' this was a sufficient Encouragement for him to continue at Bethel, in Hope of more Manifestations of the Divine Being; yet it was not long after, that he remov'd to (z) the Plain of Mamre, which was in Hebron, where he also built an Altar unto the LORD, with a Design to settle there, that he might be near to Lot, and they might be ready to assist and succour each other upon any Occasion, which happen'd soon after.

14. For (as (a) Josephus observes) whilst the Empire of Asia was in the Hands of the Assyrians, in the latter End (b) of the Reign of Zameis or Ninyas the Successor of Semiranis, and about four Years before the Departure of Abraham from his native Country, when Sodom was in a Condition so rich and populous, that five Kings had the Administration of the Government, who (c) in Scripture are call'd Bera King of Sodom, Birsha King of Gemorrhah, Shinab King of Admah, Shemeber King of Zeboim, and the King of Bela, which is Zoar, and whilst each of these Kings was absolute in his own Territory, in those Days the Assyrians took the Field with a mighty Army, and march'd against Sodom in four strong Bodies, well officer'd and disciplin'd, gave them Battle, and after a bloody Fight utterly defeated them. Zameis being an old and unactive Prince, makes Chedarlaomer, then his Viceroy in Elam or Persia, to be Governor of this Country, and lays heavy Taxes upon them to keep them in Subjection.

Zameis dying soon after, was succeeded by Arius, who reign'd thirty Years, and is in Scripture call'd Tidal King of the Nations, or all those Countries subject to the Assyrian Monarchy, and the Samaritan Version calls him The Sultan, or Emperor of the Hammites, or of the Empire erected by Nimrod the Son of Ham, a Part of which was Elam, where Chedarlaomer first govern'd, since (d) Erec and Accad, the Beginning of this Monarchy, or the two first Cities, which Nimrod built, were in Elam on the Banks of the Euphrates near the Persian Gulph. Arius or Tidal succeeding Zameis in the Empire, confirms Chedarlaomer as Governor over these Countries, and seems to have his chief Residence at Nineveh, where Nimrod spent his latter Days, so that he makes (e) Amraphel his Deputy at Shinar, who, as the Samaritan Version plainly intimates, dwelt at Babylon, and Arioch the Governor of Cælofryia, who dwelt at Ellasar, or (f) Ellas, a City in those Parts on the Borders of Arabia.

15. In this Posture the Assyrian Monarchy continu'd for (g) twelve Years, when all the neighbouring Country near Sodom enter'd into a Confederacy to shake off the Yoak; the five Kings before-mention'd seem to be the Principal, and were join'd for this Purpose by the adjacent Country. The most resolute of these were the Horites, who were a Colony of the Hivites, planted there by Canaan the Son of Ham almost two hundred Years before, who to maintain themselves in their ancient Possessions, following the Example of the Philistines, being a Barrier to them, and therefore expecting to be succour'd by them, set up (h) a King of their own, call'd Bela the Son of Beor, who liv'd afterward in a City call'd Dinhabab, of which he was probably the Governor, before he was made their King. Chedarlaomer sends to Tidal the Emperor, and to the other Governors already mention'd, to join him with all the Forces, which they could get together, to suppress this Insurrection in the very Beginning, who accordingly join him with the utmost Expedition, and supposing that they had Forces enough for their Purpose, they wait not for more, but quarter the rest in such Places, as might best secure the other Countries from the like Revolts; and Tidal himself, tho an unactive Prince, marches at the Head of them the better to encourage his own Army, and be a Terror to the Enemy. Upon this they march immediately against the Rephaims, a warlike People (i) of the Posterity of Canaan, who dwelt on the other Side of Jordan in Bashan or Batanea; the Name signifies Men of a Giant-like Stature, and therefore the Septuagint calls them Giants. They seem to be gather'd together to oppose their Passage into Sodom; so that these were first attack'd, that the Conquering of them might strike a greater Terror among all the rest. After this they fall upon the Zuzims, which was a populous Country, full of large tall and warlike Inhabitants, whom (k) the Ammonites their Neighbours call'd Zamzummins, from their Dreadfulness, the Word in the Arabick signifying a Rattling like Thunder. From thence they set upon the Emims, who were also a (l) gigantick People, who possess'd Ar and the Fields of Kirjathjearim, until they were driven out by the Moabites, and so the Country was call'd Moab; and having subdu'd them, they also attack the Horites, in Revenge for their setting a new King over them, who dwelt in Mount Seir, until they were driven out by the Children of Esau, and so their Country was call'd Edom. ter this they return back again, and fall upon the Country of Emishpat; so call'd, because (m) GOD did here judge the Israelites for their Murmuring against Moses; and thus they pass thro' the Country, which afterward belong'd to the Amalekites, and so to the Amorites, who dwelt in Hazazon Tamar, or Engaddi, near the Dead Sea; so that now the Country of Sodom lay open before them, and they had no other Enemy near them, which could give them any Disturbance.

16. The King of Sodom and the four other Kings knowing themselves to have been the first Occasion of these Misfortunes could expect to fare no better than their Neighbours, and therefore they join all their Forces together, with a Resolution to hazard a pitch'd Battle, and so to regain or lose all. They knew, that all these Conquests must cost the Affyrians a great many Men, and they were tir'd out with long Marches, and therefore these Kings march out to the (n) Vale of Siddim, which was full of Slime-Pits, and encamp there, expecting an Attack, and hoping, that their Enemies might in the Heat of Battle fall into those Pits, and so perish, and others to avoid them might break their Ranks, and so the whole Army might be easily put into Disorder, not being acquainted with the Nature of the Ground.

17. But the Success did not answer their Expectation. The Affyrians after a terrible Battle gain'd an entire Victory, so that the other Army was forc'd to fly away to any Places of Defence, which they could meet with; and leaving all open, their Enemies plunder the Country, and take not only all the Prisoners, whom they could light upon, but particularly they take Lot with his Goods and Cattle, and carry him off among the rest. Tidal finding that he had lost a great many Men in this Battle, that many more were wounded, and the rest fatigu'd with so long a Campaign, the Winter approaching, and being on the West Side of Jordan, in an Enemies Country, where it would be difficult to raise Recruits, they march Northward thro' Canaan, and passing by Abraham, who had not interested himself in the Quarrel, they give him no Disturbance, and take the direct Road to Nineveh, where Tidal their Emperor formerly liv'd, and seems to have spent the Remainder of his Days. However, (o) Abraham hearing that Lot his Brother's Son was taken Prisoner, arms all his own household Servants, being 318 in Number, and persuades his three Neighbours Aner, Eshcol and Mamre to join with him, who had before enter'd into a League offensive and defensive for their common Interest. What Number of Soldiers they had is uncertain, but marching all together with the utmost Secrecy, they pursu'd them to Dan, situated on the north Part of the River Jordan, and having Intelligence where they were, Abraham divided his Army into four Parts, and so with his (p) fresh Men, well train'd up to War, he fell upon them by Surprize (q) in the Night, when they had been tir'd with long Marches, and an heavy Battle, and most of them wounded, and were careless and secure at the Running away of the other Army, and their being march'd to so great a Distance. Thus they were attack'd at once in the four Quarters of their Camp, that they might be the more distracted, and apprehensive that their Enemies were much more numerous than indeed they were; when they knew not who were Friends or who were Enemies; and so many of them were kill'd in their Sleep, and might kill one another in Disorder at their first Waking; and Abraham gain'd an entire Victory, and pursu'd them to the Borders of their own Country, when he did not think fit to follow them any farther, lest his own Retreat should be intercepted; and so he return'd with all the Spoil, and all the Prisoners, which had been taken. Hence we may see, that in antient Times there was Policy in War, and many favourable Circumstances attended Abraham in this Expedition. But the chief Cause of all his Success was the Providence of GOD, who had (r) promis'd to bless Abraham and preserve him, to prosper his Friends, and confound his Enemies, who could easily so order it, that (s) one man shall chase a thousand, and two put ten thousand to flight, and to him (t) was the Glory of all ascrib'd.

18. The Consequences of this signal Victory were in all Respects very great and glorious to Abraham. For first, it confirm'd all the neighbouring Kings in their own Possessions, and they could not but acknowledge him to be their great Preserver, and treat him always after that with the utmost Respect and Esteem. Secondly, it put an end to the Power of the Affyrian Monarchy on that Side, and thus (u) Daniel saith) tho' it had been before as swift as an Eagle in its Conquests; yet now the southern wing was pluckt, and the Feathers taken away. And tho' Cush, the Son of Ham and Father of Nimrod, had been seated here with all his Family; yet his Removal from thence to Chuscha on the south of Babylon, when that Monarchy began, so weaken'd those which were left behind, that they were an easy Prey to their Neighbours, first the Horites, and then the Ishmaelites and Edomites, that we hear but little more except the Name, which might continue in the Country even whilst possess'd with other Inhabitants. And as for Tidal or Arius the Emperor, he was sufficiently dishearten'd by these Misfortunes, and glad to be at Quiet in his own Country, rather than march again to a Place at such a Distance, when he had Cause to think that the Success would be uncertain, and that another Defeat would be attended with the most fatal Consequences. And this is the Reason, that the Scriptures speak so little afterwards of the Assyrian Monarchy, not only because it did little, the Kings for thirty Generations (as Diodorus Siculus tells us) giving themselves wholly up to Ease and Luxury; but also because that little which they did, was without the Bounds of the sacred Story. And lastly, it gave Abraham a Right to take Possession of those Countries, as he had recover'd them out of the Hands of the Assyrians; so that when Abraham sent (x) the Sons which he had by Keturah eastward, to settle themselves in Arabia, they had a free Liberty to travel thither. And when he afterward sent the Ishmaelites to take Possession of that Country, the King of the Horites his Neighbours was so sensible of his Obligation to Abraham on this Occasion, and of the Right which Abraham had by Conquest, that he gave them no Disturbance, which we read of.

19. However we must not conclude from the Scripture Silence, that there was no Assyrian Monarchy at that Time. The Jewish Writers, and all the Latin, Greek and Arabick Historians are full in this Case, and Moses himself may be call'd in as a farther Evidence, who not only tells us, how it was founded by Nimrod; but (y) when he describes the Country in which Ishmael's Children were settled, between Havilah, which is near to Babylonia, and Shur, which is near to Egypt, and is the Country thro' which was the Passage from thence into Babylon, and Nineveh, and even to the Persian Gulph, he saith, It is the Country thro' which is the Passage to Assyria. The Septuagint renders it, to the Assyrians, or Part of their Dominion; for so Babylonia was from the Beginning of its Plantation to that Time; either when the Ishmaelites were settl'd, or when Moses wrote Genesis. The Assyrians had two Royal Cities Babylon and Nineveh; and the Way for Commerce between the two old Kingdoms was then so well known, that Moses chuses to describe the Country of the Ishmaelites by that Road. Or if we render the Words thus, The Sons of Ishmael dwelt from Shur, which is toward Egypt, unto Havilah, which is toward Assyria in the way from Egypt thither, it will plainly intimate, that the Parts near Havilah was call'd Assyria, as under that Monarchy; and therefore tho' they lost some of their Country toward the South of Arabia, yet they lost none toward the East.

20. When (z) Abraham return'd from this signal Victory, the King of Sodom, whose Crown and Kingdom he had thereby secur'd to him, went out to meet him, and congratulated him upon the same, and generously offer'd to Abraham the whole Spoil, which he had retaken (since had it not been for him it must have been carry'd off) and only desir'd that the Persons might remain his Subjects. Abraham readily granted the latter Part (and so Lot return'd to dwell in Sodom) and as generously refus'd the other, declaring that he was absolutely resolv'd to make no Advantage of the Booty to himself, more than to supply his Men with Provisions; reserving also the Right of his other three Confederates to deal with their Country Men as they pleas'd, because he could not give away their Right, when he so generously parted with his own.

21. But before this Concession to the King of Sodom, Abraham had made a Present to Melchizedeck, which could not be recall'd. Who this Melchizedeck was is uncertain. Some think him to be the Son of Shem, others the Son of Peleg. The Jews unanimously reckon him to be Shem himself, who according to the Scripture Account liv'd till Isaac (who was not born at this Time) was fifty Years old. The Scripture tells us that (a) he was the Priest of the most high GOD, and King of Salem, which the Jews also unanimously reckon to be Jerusalem. It lay near to Abraham's Road, at his Return from the North of Canaan, and was (b) antiently call'd Salem. Josephus saith, that (c) he treated Abraham's Followers and Soldiers with great Bounty and Hospitality, (the Scripture only saith, that (d) he brought forth bread and wine, which may comprehend all sorts of Provision for their Refreshment) and that he extoll'd Abraham himself, at the Table, up to the Skies for so noble an Enterprize, and glorify'd GOD's holy Name for the Blessing of so signal a Victory, in a Thanksgiving worthy of his sacred Character. And Abraham on the other Hand presented Melchizedeck with the Tenth of the Spoils that he had taken, which he thankfully accepted of. It is certain, that he was a Type of our blessed SAVIOUR, of whom David saith, (e) Thou art a priest for ever, after the order of Melchizedeck. CHRIST himself (f) applies this Psalm as spoken of the MESSIAH, which the Jews never deny'd, when the Denial thereof would have been very much to their Purpose. St. Paul (g)

expressly quotes the Words of David in this Sense, and (b) carries on the Parallel to this Purpose. Melchizedeck was the Priest of the most high GOD; so was CHRIST. His Name in Hebrew signifies the King of Righteousness, or the righteous King; such a one was CHRIST. He was King of Salem, which signifies Peace; such a one was CHRIST. He was without father, and without mother, that is, He (i) was born of such Parents, by whom he could lay no Manner of Claim to any Priesthood in the Land of Canaan, no more than if he had no Parents at all; and the Apostle (k) saith of CHRIST, It is evident, that our LORD sprang out of Judah, of which tribe Moses spake nothing concerning priesthood. And it is far more evident; for that after the similitude of Melchizedeck there ariseth another priest, who is made not after the law of a carnal commandment, but after the power of an endless life. He was ἀγενεαλόγιστος, His Name was not mention'd in the Genealogies, which Moses reckons up, and therefore he might be thought to have none at all; and thus CHRIST had no earthly Father, but was the Son of GOD. He was without Descent or Pedigree. There is no Mention made of his Offspring; and thus CHRIST had none at all. He had neither beginning of days, nor end of life. Moses doth not tell us, that he was ever born, how long he liv'd, or that he ever died. Thus (l) who shall declare the generation of CHRIST, he being from and to all Eternity? He abided a Priest for ever, that is, as long as the true Worship of GOD continu'd in Palestina; and CHRIST hath such a Priesthood, which is never to be succeeded by any other. And he brought forth Bread and Wine, which some look upon as a Type of the Sacrament of the LORD's Supper. The (*) Arabick Historian adds, that when the Fame of Melchizedeck was known to the twelve neighbouring Kings (whose Names he reckons up) they came to him, and when they had seen, and talk'd with him, they desir'd, that he would go and live among them, who answer'd, that he could not go from that Place. Upon this they took Counsel together to build a City, saying, This Man is indeed the King of all the Earth, and the Father of all the Kings. And when the City was built, they made him King of it, and afterward Melchizedeck call'd it Jerusalem. And when the Fame of Melchizedeck came to Machul the King of Teman or the South, he came to see him, and brought him a great Quantity of Wealth, and after this Melchizedeck was greatly respected among them.

22. After this great Victory, the second Person (m) of the Trinity, who is frequently call'd The WORD, and The WORD of the LORD, who is also (n) call'd The LORD, and (o) The LORD GOD by Abraham, appear'd unto him, encouraging his Hope in GOD, and assuring him, that he and Lot should be safe from any new Invasion by these or any other Enemies; for GOD would protect and defend him, and give him far more than what he had so lately refus'd. And GOD, according to his Promise, so restrain'd this mighty Empire, that we hear but little of it for some Centuries, except the Names of the Emperors, and the Time when they reign'd, as it hath been handed to us (p) by Ctesias, in his first six Books of the History of the Assyrians and Babylonians, from the Time of Ninus and Semiramis to that of Cyrus, out of which Photius hath written Extracts, which are all the Remains that we have of his Writings. It is true, that (q) there is but a poor Account of him among the Antients, who generally speak of him but as a fabulous Writer. However, something may be said in his Behalf. He was a Native of Cnidos, a City of Caria, in Asia the less. He was taken in a Battle by Artaxerxes Mnemon King of Persia, who made use of him as a Physician, to cure him of the Wounds which he had receiv'd in that Battle, and having had good Success he continu'd as the chief Physician to that King for seventeen Years; so that whilst he resided at the Court, he took the best Care, and had the best Opportunities to inform himself in the Histories of those Countries. His Works were probably written in the Persick Language, and the Extracts of them were in Greek. So that the Objection against him, that the Names mention'd by him have no Affinity with the Names mention'd in Scripture, is of no Weight. The Persians descending from Shem, worshipp'd none of those Gods, which were us'd in Babylon among the Posterity of Ham, and therefore might not call the Assyrian Kings by the Names of their Idols, as the Babylonians did, but by other Names, which they had in the Persick

Language,

Language, and these might again be alter'd, to fit them to the Humour of the Greeks at that Time. The Author might suffer in his Character by being translated, and much more by being abridg'd, and the best Proofs of his History might be omitted; and therefore the Greeks, who were not well acquainted with these Histories, might call them fabulous, tho' they were really true. Diodorus Siculus, and Trogus Pompeius (of which Justin is an Epitome) took most of that from him, which they had written of the Assyrian Affairs. And it is certain, that there were royal Records then in Persia, in which all the Affairs and Transactions of the Government were faithfully recorded; for (r) the Books of Ezra and Esther give us a particular Account of them. It is also very probable, that the Assyrian Monarchy kept Records of the same Nature either in Sippora or Babylon; and therefore when this Empire was subdu'd by the Persians, their Historians might be well acquainted with both. And therefore as Ctesias (s) professes his Sincerity, and appeals to the publick Records, as a Testimony of the Truth of what he wrote, he may be allow'd as an Author of Credit, especially because he exactly agrees with the Scripture Chronology.

23. But to return to the History of Abraham. He (t) having no Child prays to GOD for an Heir, upon which GOD repeats his former Promise, with this Addition, that his Posterity should be as the Stars of Heaven for Number. Accordingly he believ'd (u) in the second Person of the Trinity, who appear'd to him; he relied and depended upon him and his Promise, who in due Time should be made Man of his Seed, whose (x) Righteousness should be imputed to all those who are justify'd, and whose Death should be a Satisfaction for their Sins, and in Commemoration hereof he offer'd Sacrifices at the same Time. Thus the Promises were sign'd and made over to him; and as he is call'd the Father of the faithful, so he is propos'd as an Example, to shew that we must be justified by such a Faith which (y) hath good Works join'd with it. And GOD farther declar'd to him, that his Posterity should be (z) afflicted by the Egyptians four hundred Years, which began at (a) the Weaning of Isaac, and ended at their Passing over the Red Sea. Upon this GOD repeats his Promise, to give to Abraham's Posterity not only all the Land of Canaan, which the Israelites possess'd, but other Places which fell to his other Sons. The first of these, which are mention'd, are (b) the Kenites. These may be suppos'd to be of the Posterity of Cush, who were first seated between the Red-Sea and Jordan near Egypt, and were much weaken'd by their Father's Going off toward Babylon to establish the Assyrian Monarchy, and so they became an easy Prey to the Children of Esau the Son of Isaac; after this some of them dwelt among the Family of (c) Amalek the Son of Esau, whilst others of them remov'd to the Country of Midian, where they were again conquer'd by (d) another of the Sons of Abraham. This is the Reason that (e) Hobab, or Jethro, the Father-in-Law of Moses, who dwelt in Midian, is call'd in Hebrew (f) a Cushite; and of these Balaam (g) had a full Prospect from the Top of Peor. They were call'd Kenites, either from the Word, which in Hebrew signifies a Nest, and the Reason (h) is given by Balaam, when he said, Strong is thy dwelling-place, and thou puttest thy rest in a rock. Or else in a reproachful Manner, as descending from Ham, who married Naamah the Daughter of Lamech of the Race of Cain. And therefore (i) what we render Nevertheless the Kenite shall be wasted, is in Hebrew, But Cain shall be wasted.

24. The next is the Kenizzite. These being mention'd (k) by Moses between the Kenites and the Kadmonites may make us think, that they were also situated between them. And it is the more probable, because they were afterward subject to the Israelites and Edomites, the Posterity of Abraham by Isaac, as well as the Kenites and Kadmonites themselves. It is not likely, that the sacred History should pass them over in Silence; and if he mention'd them, they must be mention'd by the Name of the Kenizzites. And it is also probable, that one of the Grandsons of Esau was (*) nam'd Kenaz, to ingratiate themselves the more with these People, who at that Time were their Subjects.

25. The other is the Kadmonites. This Name in Hebrew signifies the Inhabitants of the East; and therefore they must lie opposite to Hebron on the other Side of Jordan. This is the Reason, that Abraham (l) sent thither the Sons whom he had by Keturah, during his Life Time, as knowing it to be the Country which GOD had promis'd to give him.

The Kenizzites and Kadmonites being thus conquer'd, their Names seem to be quite extinct between the Time of Abraham and Moses; and not being given to the Israelites, we find no Mention of them by Joshua in the Division of the Land of Canaan, nor in the Account, which he gives us of any Country, that they inhabited. As for the (m) Rephaims, or Men of gigantick Stature, as their Name signifies in Hebrew, and as they (n) are expressly call'd in Scripture, they (o) dwelt at Ashtaroth Karnaim in Bashan, and the Israelites conquer'd their Country, when Og was their King, and gave it (p) to the half Tribe of Manasseh.

26. After Abraham (q) had dwelt ten Years in the land of Canaan, waiting for the Fulfilling of GOD's Promise of a Son, but not seeing as yet any Fruit of it, it being deferr'd for the greater Trial of his Faith, and being not yet inform'd, whether the Promise should be fulfill'd by Sarah his Wife or not, he also having acquainted her with it, and she being impatient to have it fulfilled some Way or other, gives Hagar her Maid, an Egyptian by Birth, to Abraham to be a secondary Wife. But she being with Child, and despising her Mistress upon that Account, was so hardly treated by her, that she ran away with a Design to go to Egypt, and came to a Fountain in the Wilderness of Shur, which is upon the Borders of that Country. Here (s) the second Person of the Trinity, whom Moses calls, The angel of the LORD, and (t) afterward the LORD himself, and whom Jacob calls, (u) The angel which redeemed him from all evil, appears to her, and commands her to return again, with a Promise that she should have a Son, who should be the Father of a numerous Offspring; and in Commemoration that GOD had heard her Affliction, his Name was to be call'd Ishmael, which signifies in Hebrew GOD will hear, and the Well, by which she sat, was call'd Beerlahairoi, or The Well of him who liveth and seeth me. Of this Ishmael it was not only prophesied at the same Time, that (x) he shou'd live near the rest of his Brethren, which was in a great Measure in Abraham's Power to perform; but also that he should be (y) a wild Man, as fierce and ungovernable as a wild Ass, which loves to ramble in Desarts, and is not easily tam'd to live in Societies. That he should also be very warlike, and infest his Neighbours, and be infested by them. And tho' this Prophecy was spoken almost five hundred Years before Moses wrote it, and above three thousand Years ago, yet it is such an exact Description of the Posterity of Ishmael formerly, and of the Turks, who boast that they are descended from him, who dwell in the Desarts of Arabia and other Parts of Asia, who have been continually at Wars, and have been generally inclin'd to Insurrections and Mutinies, that the Prophecy shews it self to have come from that God, who knew what should happen from that Time to this, and who alone hath over-rul'd and govern'd them ever since, and according to whose Promise, Ishmael was born in the next Year. And two Years after this (z) Arphaxad the first Person recorded to be born after the Flood dies.

27. For some Years after there is nothing recorded either in sacred or profane History. The next Occurrence is, the Institution of (a) Circumcision. When GOD was willing to call out of the World a peculiar People to himself, he instituted this as a peculiar Rite, by which they and their Children should be initiated. So that here was an outward and visible Sign instituted by GOD himself; and an inward and spiritual Grace represented thereby. The Cutting off a small Part of the Flesh signify'd the Casting off of the inherent Pollution of their Natures, occasion'd by the Transgression of our first Parents, and the Conformity to the outward Act was a Sign of a more inward and spiritual Conformity to the whole Law; whence Moses commands them (b) to circumcise the foreskins of their hearts, and to be no more stiffnecked. Thus in the Christian Church Baptism is appointed for our Admission into the Church, and to seal unto us (c) the Remission of our Sins. And from hence our Church affirms, (d) that it is certain from God's Word, that Children which are baptized, dying before they commit actual Sin, are undoubtedly saved. For as the Guilt of Original Sin is thus wash'd away (it being impossible, that the Sacrament could be ineffectual to the End design'd) and they have nothing else to answer for, they must be the Objects of GOD's Favour and Mercy to their eternal Comfort. And Baptism is a Preparation for an holy Life, since hereby we are made Partakers of the Benefits, which CHRIST hath procur'd, (e) that like as he was raised from the dead for the glory of the father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. And therefore as Children were admitted into Covenant under the Law; so they may be admitted under the Gospel, since CHRIST came to open a Way for (f) all, and not to exclude any. There are indeed some, who deny this; but their Arguments are not conclusive. They say, that in Circumcision there was a Mark left always in the Flesh; but in Baptism there is none. And indeed there was a good Reason for it: When GOD would have his Will revealed only to the Jews, he took Care that they should be distinguish'd from the rest of the World; but now he is willing to bring all Nations home to himself, it is more proper that such Marks of Distinction should be laid aside, and something else appointed in its Place. Secondly, They say, that only Men could be circumcised, but Women are baptized. And there is good Reason for this, that when GOD instead thereof appointed an Ordinance so plain and so easy, both Sexes should equally partake of the Benefit and Comfort thereof. Thirdly, They say, that Circumcision was only administer'd on the eighth Day, but Baptism is administred on any Day. And there was a particular Reason for it. At that Time there were several legal Impurities, which incapacitated any Person from Partaking of the holy Things, particularly if a Woman had brought forth a Man Child, (g) she and her Child should be unclean seven days, and in the eighth day he should be circumcised, which was as soon as possible. And therefore since all these Uncleanesses and Separations are abolish'd by CHRIST the Argument turns thus: Under the Law they were admitted into Covenant by Circumcision as soon as possible, without Omitting a Day, and therefore under the Gospel they should be admitted without Delays, lest Danger of Death should happen in the mean Time. Fourthly, They say, that Children ought to be taught before they are baptiz'd. But that is a Mistake: The (h) Word, from whence they ground this Notion, signifies only making Disciples, or Admitting them into the School of CHRIST, which (i) St. John tells us, is done by Baptism. And indeed we admit of Children into Schools, not because they are taught, but that they may be taught. So that the Command of our SAVIOUR to his Apostles runs thus, Go ye, and make disciples of all nations, Men, Women and their Children, by Bap- tizing them in the name of the FATHER, and of the SON, and of the HOLY GHOST; and as soon as they are come to Years of Discretion, then teach them to observe all the other things, whatsoever I have commanded you. And lastly they say, that none ought to be baptiz'd but Believers; but Infants cannot believe, therefore they ought not to be baptized. But to this it may be answer'd, That CHRIST tells us, that (k) little Children do believe. Little Children are Sinners by Adam's Sin imputed to them, and little Children are Believers by the Faith, which either of their Parents profess imputed to them; so that since (l) the Promise is given to Parents and their Children, and (m) they have a Federal Holiness by Virtue thereof, they ought as certainly to be admitted Partakers of such Promises as more aged Persons.

28. At this Time Ishmael the Son of Abraham was circumcis'd, being thirteen Years of Age. He is reckon'd to be (n) the Father of the Arabians, particularly of Mahomet, and the Saracens: And as the Mahometans are circumcis'd at this Time; and they boast much of their being Ishmaelites; so it is probable, that we had never known the Original of this Custom among them, if it had not been recorded by Moses. And as the Jews continue to circumcise at eight Days old, according to the Command given to Abraham, and the Example of Isaac; so the Turks even at this Time do not circumcise until they are thirteen Years of Age, according to the Example of Ishmael.

29. But the Continuance of it among the Jews is more remarkable, as they descended from Isaac, and so are the Sons of Abraham. GOD hath promis'd great and glorious things, (o) which shall happen to them as a Nation, when they shall be converted to the Christian Faith; and therefore when other Nations incorporated into one another, and the Families intermix'd, so as not to be distinguish'd after their Dwelling in other Countries; yet the Jews, by Means of this Rite, being also of a different Religion, and a different Language, have always been kept distinct and separated from all others. So that the Appointer of Circumcision must be an all-wise Being, who appointed it so many Ages, or even thousands of Years since, to be a Means in due Time of Explaining those Prophecies, which are yet to be fulfill'd.

30. At this Time the Name of (p) Abraham is chang'd as a farther Confirmation of the promis'd Blessing. He was before call'd Abram, which in Hebrew signifies (q) a glorious father. And now he is call'd Abraham (r) from Ab a Father, and the Arabick Word Raham, which signifies a thick and continual Rain, and metaphorically such a vast Multitude, as like the Drops cannot be number'd. Thus GOD himself (s) explains it, Neither shall thy name any more be call'd Abram; but thy name shall be call'd Abraham; for a father of many nations have I made thee. And (t) GOD himself alludes to a like Metaphor, I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth; so that if any man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thy seed also be number'd. And Sarah's Name was also chang'd from Sarai, which signifies My Princess, as of one, to Sarah, a Princess in more general and universal Terms. Upon this (u) GOD promises, that Abraham thou'd have a Son of her, that she thou'd be a Mother of Nations, that many Kings, and probably the Messiah should come of her, in whom all the Nations of the Earth thou'd be blessed. Abraham receiv'd this Promise by Faith, relied and depended upon it, and therefore he fell upon his Face and laugh'd. For this Reason he had a Command to call his Son Isaac, which signifies He shall laugh, because (x) a Covenant should be establish'd with him, and especially with the MESSIAS his Offspring. Thus (y) Abraham in the supernatural Birth of Isaac, foresaw the supernatural Birth of CHRIST, and rejoic'd. And Isaac was not so nam'd only because of Abraham's Joy for him, but especially because of his Joy in him, who was to come after, and said to the Jews, (z) Your father Abraham rejoic'd to see my day, and he saw it, and was glad.

31. Soon after this, (a) in the Middle of the Summer, there was another Appearance of the divine Majesty to Abraham. It is observable, (b) that when he looked, he saw three Persons standing by him, and yet he speaks to them (c) as to one, from whence some infer it to be a Representation of the Trinity in Unity. Abraham (d) calls them My Lord, and Moses (e) calls them the LORD. The (f) first Person seems to talk with Abraham, and reveal to him, that he thou'd have the promis'd Seed in its due Time, and also, that Sodom and the neighbouring Cities were in great Danger of being destroy'd for their Wickedness, with whom Abraham interceded as with GOD, and of whom it is said, (g) And JEHOVAH, or the LORD, went his way, as soon as he had left communing with Abraham; which (h) the Paraphrasts interpret of the Glory of the LORD, or the divine Shechinah. The other two, when with Lot, seem (i) plainly to acknowledge another, We (say they) will destroy this Place; because the cry of them is waxen great before the LORD, and the LORD hath sent us to destroy it. The second seems to be the Person, who destroy'd those Cities, of whom it is said, (k) that the LORD rained upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah brimstone and fire, from the LORD out of heaven. He is call'd by (l) the Chaldee Paraphrasts, the Word of the LORD, as he was before call'd (m) in Scripture, and is said to rain Fire and Brimstone from the other out of Heaven, who (n) had so lately seem'd to ascend thither. The third seems to come to deliver Lot and his Family, of whom it is said, that (o) the LORD was merciful to him, and (p) GOD remember'd Abraham, and sent Lot out of the midst of the overthrow: And tho' (q) at first he spake to both as unto two; yet now (r) he speaks to this alone as unto one. And as Abraham pray'd in general for all the Cities, and had his Petitions granted, as far as he presum'd to ask; so Lot pray'd (s) for one, that he might escape thither because it was a little one; for which Reason, the Name of it was alter'd (t) from Bela to Zoar, which Word in Hebrew signifies little, and was preserv'd accordingly, when the (u) other Cities were destroy'd with Fire and Brimstone, and were made examples unto those, who should live such ungodly Lives as they did. And it is observable, that (x) many Heathen Historians speak of the same Cities, as destroy'd by Lightning. The Country is since turn'd into a large Lake, sometimes call'd the Lake of Sodom, sometimes Lacus Asphaltitis or The Lake of Brimstone, sometimes the Salt-

Sea, and sometimes the Dead-Sea, because they say, that no Fish can live in it. And we are told by (y) one, that the black Ground being turn'd into Ashes, is a Sign that it was struck with Lightning. And that the Apples which are there, tho' they look very fine, cannot be eaten, for when they are touch'd, they partly vanish into Smoke, and partly dissolve into Ashes. And (z) Josephus agrees with (a) the Scripture in telling us, That the Wife of Lot, who went out with her Husband, whether out of Curiosity or Tendernefs, could not forbear looking behind her, tho' directly contrary to the Command of GOD, and was turn'd into a Pillar of Salt; or as others will have it into a firm and durable Pillar, compar'd (b) to Salt: There being, as some tell us, a (c) Mettallick Salt, which keeps out Rain, and upon the Account of its Firmness is useful in Building, and (d) is digg'd like Marble out of the Mountains. Josephus tells us, (e) that he had seen it himself, and it remain'd in his Time. Another saith, that (f) even to his Time the waste Land that smoaks, and Plants bearing fruit, that never come to Ripeness, is an evident Testimony; and a standing Pillar of Salt, remains for a Monument. And there have been (g) much later Travellers in those Parts, who testify the same.

32. Upon this Abraham (as some think) not able to endure the very Stench of the Lake of Sodom, which was offensive to him in Mamre, but more probably fearing that the just Judgments of GOD might fall upon other Parts of the Country for their Wickedness, from which his Piety might not be able always to secure them, any more than that of Lot's, he goes from thence, and dwells in Gerar, the Metropolis of the Philistines on the Coast of the Mediterranean Sea, since call'd Ashkelon. Here he was in Danger of having his Wife Sarah taken from him by Abimelech King of the Philistines, in the same Manner as before by Pharaoh King of Egypt, which was also prevented by the same Providence of GOD, that continually watch'd over him. This made him afraid to stay there any longer, or return toward Sodom, and therefore he travels southward, and dwells at Beersheba, a Town (h) well known to be the utmost Limits of the Land of Canaan. Here he digs a Well for the Watering of his Cattle. And (i) after that, Abimelech finding that GOD did prosper him in all his Undertakings, comes thither with the General of his Army to enter into a League with him, that one would neither molest or injure the other, which was confirm'd with an Oath at this Well; for which Reason it was call'd Beersheba, or The Well of an Oath. This encourages Abraham to settle there for a considerable Time. And here accordingly he builds an (k) Altar, and plants a Grove for a solemn and retir'd Place in which he might worship GOD.

33. Lot had not been long in Zoar, but he was afraid, that a new Storm should come from Heaven and destroy it after the rest; and therefore (l) he removes from thence into a Mountain (which is generally thought to be in the Land of Moab, and since inhabited by his Posterity) where he dwelt a solitary Life, with his two Daughters, by whom he was so impos'd upon, that they were with Child by him; which unnatural Acts made him live a more solitary Life, or probably to shorten his Days, that this is the last Act which we hear of him.

34. But GOD not suffering his Truth to fail, Abraham had a Son the next Year according to the Promise, whom he circumcis'd on the eighth Day, that he might be admitted into Covenant, and call'd him Isaac according to the Command. And it was not long after, before the two Daughters of Lot had each of them a Son. The Son of the eldest was call'd Moab, which signifies in Hebrew, Of my Father, who was the Father of the Moabites: The Son of the youngest was call'd Ben-ammi, which signifies, The Son of my People, who was also the Father of the Children of Ammon; both which Nations were afterward situated near the Isbmaelites on the East side of Jordan, (m) and the Country of Moab extended it self to the Banks of that River. And we may suppose, that Lot was dead when they were born; for otherwise he would never have suffer'd them to have had such Names, which would have kept his Sins in perpetual Remembrance. And soon after this Tidal or Arius the Emperor of Assyria dies.

35. When Isaac was (n) five Years old, he was wean'd; on which Occasion Abraham made a great Feast, which so provok'd Isbmael, that he could not bear it, so that he mock'd and derided Isaac, and probably boasted, that he was the Heir, and either attempted or threaten'd to kill him. (k) Gen. 21. 33.

(l) Gen. 19. 30 to the End.

(n) Gen. 21. 8.

St. Paul saith of it, that (o) he who was born after the flesh, persecuted him, that was born after the spirit. So that from hence began (p) that famous Epocha of 400 Years, in which Isaac and his Seed should be evilly treated, and afflicted by the Egyptians. Upon this (q) Sarah was importunate with Abraham to expel Hagar and Ishmael out of the Family. Abraham yields to it with some Reluctancy, and perhaps had never consented, if GOD had not appear'd to him, and perswaded him to it, with a Promise, that he would protect his Son Ishmael in all his Difficulties, and make him a great Nation; but that Isaac ought to have the Pre-eminence, because (r) the promis'd MES-SIAH should be of his Posterity. Upon this Abraham sends them away the next Morning, with such Provisions as were necessary to support them, until they came to the Place, where he intended they should settle. Accordingly they went southward, and dwelt for some Time in the (s) Wilderness of Paran: And his Mother took him a Wife out of Egypt, being her own Country, where she was best acquainted. An (t) Arabick Historian tells us, that he inhabited the Country of Tathreb, where Mecca is situated, and Taman or Arabia Felix, where he dwelt, and had Sons by his Wife. But these two Countries are too far distant to be so easily join'd together. The Turks, who derive Mahomet from Kedar the Son of Ishmael, are glad to place him there, it being the Place where Mahomet also was born. But the Tents or Country of (u) Kedar, so often mention'd in Scripture, lie too far distant, and too near the Land of Canaan for such a Situation. They also make a great Noise concerning the Wilderness of Paran, and quote (x) the Words of Moses in Favour of Mahometanism, where he saith, The LORD came from Sinai, and rose up from Seir unto them, he shined forth from mount Paran, and he came with ten thousands of his saints; from his right hand went a fiery law for them. Upon these Words they say, that (y) Sinai was the Mountains where Moses appear'd, Seir was the Mountains at Jerusalem, where Jesus appear'd, and Paran was the Mountains at Mecca, where Mahomet appear'd. By this we may guess at the Weakness of their Arguments. Mount Seir lay in Idumæa; so that GOD's Rising from Seir signifies no more than the March of the Israelites thro' the Wilderness, after they had (z) compass'd the Land of Edom. Thus (a) Deborah and Barak speak of it, LORD, when thou wentest out of Scir, when thou marchest out of the field of Edom, the earth trembled, and the heavens dropp'd, the clouds also dropp'd water. The mountains melted from before the LORD, even that Sinai from before the LORD GOD of Israel. And therefore it is so far from Jerusalem, as not to be in the Land of Canaan, or in any Place, where our SAVIOUR preach'd the Gospel. Mount Paran was a Mountain in Arabia Petraea not far either from the Red Sea or the Borders of Egypt and Palæstina, where (b) the Cloud rested, and the Israelites encamp'd, and from whence they sent forth Spies to search the Land of Canaan. It was five hundred Miles distant from Mecca, and a Place which Mahomet never saw in his Life. And therefore the Prophet Habakkuk, when he tells us, (c) how gloriously GOD came from Teman, and the holy One from Mount Paran, and seems to paraphrase on the before mention'd Verse, he only relates the Acts of the Israelites under the Command of Moses and his Successor Joshua.

36. The Jewish Writers (d) tell us an odd Story, That three Years after the Expulsion of Ishmael, Abraham by the Leave of Sarah went into the Desert to visit him, taking an Oath, that he would not come off from his Camel's Back. When he came to his House, he found his Wife, whose Name was Ayesha (a Name of one of the Wives of Mahomet afterward, who was the Daughter of Abubeker) and asking of her where Ishmael was, she answer'd, that neither he nor his Mother was at home. And Abraham asked her to give him some bread and Water, because he was weary; which she churlishly denied. Upon which Abraham mention'd some Expressions, by which Ishmael might know who he was, and she telling him upon his Return, he gave her a Bill of Divorce, sent her away, and married another, whose Name was Phatimah, the same Name also with one of Mahomet's Daughters, who was afterward Wife to Hali his fourth Successor. In the same Manner after three Years more, Abraham returns to Ishmael's House, where she entertain'd him civilly and gave him what he wanted. Upon which Abraham pray'd to GOD for Ishmael, who hearing of these things at his Return, was glad to find that Abraham had a fatherly Affection toward him. And accordingly Ishmael, when he was 50 Years old, went to visit his Father Abraham. It is not improbable, but Abraham might go to see how his Son liv'd, or that Ishmael might sometimes wait on him; or that Ishmael finding the Country possels'd by the Horites, and the neighbouring Parts to be barren, might come back again, and even live with Abraham in the Land of Canaan. That which gives Ground for such a Conjecture is, that (e) Abraham in his Life-Time gave Gifts to the Sons of the Concubines, which he had, and sent them away eastward into the east Country from Isaac his Son; and we find the Habitations of the Ishmaelites to be in those Parts, and not only in the South near Paran. It is certain, that (f) Ishmael as well as Isaac took care of Abraham's Funeral, which shews, that they had some Correspondence, and that Ishmael, tho' of a savage Temper, retain'd a filial Affection to his deceas'd Father. And (g) the Mention of the Hagarenes, as a distinct Nation from the Ishmaelites, hath (h) afforded a Conjecture, that Hagar was afterward married again in that Country; so that the Hagarenes descended from Hagar by another Husband, and not by Abraham.

37. About this Time Ægydrus (i) succeeds in the Kingdom of Sicyonia: the (k) Phœnicians being streighten'd for want of Room, send more Colonies into more distant Places of Asia, and also into Europe; (l) Stoechus succeeds Toegar Amachus, in the Kingdom of Upper-Egypt, and six Years after Gosformies succeeds him, of whom there is not any thing recorded sufficient to interrupt the Thread of the sacred Story. Salah (m) the great Grandson of Noah dies being 433 Years old, or 403 Years after the Birth of Eber; and (n) Hercules Affis succeeded Janias as King of Lower-Egypt among the Canaanitish Pastors, who carried on a vigorous War against Gosformies and his Successor Mares the Kings of Upper-Egypt, (o) for the Space of 49 Years and two Months, and at last retreated with his Forces into the Land of Canaan, which put a final End to the Wars in those Parts. He was call'd Melcartus by the Phœnicians, a Word compounded of (p) מלך Melech a King, and קרְתָּא Kartha a City; because he was the King of a City among them, most probably Zidon. A (q) learned Country-Man of our own faith, that he was call'd by the Greeks Palæmon. He was suppos'd to have been drown'd, and afterward deify'd to be one of the Gods of the Sea, or more particularly of the Sea-Ports and Havens; from whence he was call'd by the Latins Portu-

mus, and the Isthmian Games were celebrated in Memory of him. Perhaps his being made a God of the Harbours was only because he was King either of Tyre or Sidon, which was a large Sea-Port Town. His Solemnities were perform'd in the Night, because a Haven receives a Ship tofs'd by daily Storms as into a quiet Rest from Labour, and a sleeping Place. As Melech signifies a King, and Baal a Lord; so these Words might easily be chang'd one for the other. And therefore he is suppos'd to be (*) Baal the God of the Zidonians, whose Worship Ahab introduc'd into Israel, when he married Jezebel out of that Country. Sanchoniatho (s) makes him to be the Son of Demaroon, who was, as he saith, a Grandson of Noah. Herodotus, who liv'd long in Egypt, tells us, that Hercules was an Egyptian Name, and therefore Manetho in Africanus uses the Name Arcales, as best known in his own Country. The Name הֶרְקֻלֵס Hercules in (t) Chaldee signifies a swift or hasty Man. Josephus, in quoting Manetho, calls him (u) Affis, which signifies the strong or valiant; and as both Names signify a stout Warriour, so Josephus only calls him by a Name of the same Meaning, but better known in Phœnicia or Syria than the other. He therefore seems not to have been a Canaanite by Birth, and to be chosen King of Lower-Egypt for his Valour and Conduct; since in those Times, which were troublesome from the Beginning of Kingdoms, they did not succeed by Inheritance, but such were chosen, who might be most likely to do Service to their Country in the greatest Difficulties. He was famous for (x) Finding out the purple Dye, which was first made with the Liquor of a Shell-fish, call'd in Latin Murex. This was the Colour, with which the Kings were adorn'd in those Days, and therefore a King was call'd Porphyrius, or one who wore Purple, and Hercules himself was sometimes call'd Hercules Tyrius, sometimes Hercules Ægyptius, and sometimes Hercules Phœnicus. And the Country near Tyre and Sidon, and especially the Sea-Coast, where they caught these Fish, and carried on the purple Trade, was call'd Phœnicia. Hence appears the great Mistake of some, who affirm'd, that these Phœnicians came from Idumæa, which was groundless upon the Likeness of the Names, because both signify Red. But Idumæa had its Name from Esau or Edom the Son of Jacob, who long'd (y) for red Pottage, which made him so call'd; and Phœnicia had its Name from the above-mention'd Reason. Idumæa was always call'd so from the Hebrew Word, and Phœnicia from the Greek; so that Idumæa was never call'd Phœnicia, and Phœnicia was never call'd Idumæa. The antient Name of the Red-Sea adjoining to Idumæa throughout the Hebrew Bible is the Sea of Reeds and Bulrushes, and I suppose, that it was call'd the Red-Sea from the Sands on the Shore being of that Colour. And secondly, they infer it from (z) the Testimony of Herodotus. But Herodotus first tells us the Story only as he had it by Hearsay, or granting it to be true it is nothing to the Purpose. The Greeks call'd their neighbouring Shore first Phœnicia, and then call'd the Shore as far as Egypt by the same Name. Now Herodotus expressly speaks of the Phœnicians, who dwelt in Palaestina, even as far as to Egypt, and not of those, who liv'd northward about Tyre; and saith, that they formerly liv'd near the Red Sea. This is true, for they came from Pelusium, and the Country round about as far as the Red-Sea, about the Time when Abraham came into Canaan, as is already mention'd; so that Herodotus speaks of some who came from Egypt, not from Idumæa, and came into Palaestina strictly so speaking (it being his own Word) but not into the Parts near Tyre and Sidon.

38. Another thing observ'd of this Hercules or Affis is, that (a) knowing the Kings of Upper-Egypt to use a Year of 365 Days, and finding it to be more exact according to the annual Motion of the Sun, he introduc'd the same Way of Reckoning into his Kingdom, which continu'd the same for many Ages afterward; and shews him to be a Man well acquainted with the Philosophy of those Times,

39. In the Time of this Hercules King of Lower-Egypt, (b) Jubab the Son of Zerah of Bozra, the second King of the Horites, began to reign at the Death of Bela their first King. The Time is thus computed: When (c) Chedarlaomer over-ran the Horites, as is already mention'd, they set up Bela their first King, having learn'd by what they suffer'd in that Invasion to have a Monarch, under whom they might be better united to defend themselves in any Difficulties, which should follow. Now from the Time when the Horite Kingdom began, Anno 2093, to the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, Anno 2513, are 420 Years, in which Time there happen'd ten Successions, viz. eight of Kings, and two of Dukes. This Number equally divided allows 42 Years to each Succession; and it is pitch'd upon, not because it is so in Truth and Reality, but because there is no Foundation to go upon, by which a more accurate and real Division can be made; and because even such a Division may afford a little Light into the Times, in which the Life and Death of Esau and of his Sons Eliphaz and Revel might happen in the Land of Seir; and therefore supposing the first King of the Horites to be as above-mention'd, the Reign of the second King will begin nearly as in the Margin.

40. The next thing, which follows in the History of Abraham, is his Intention of Offering his Son Isaac upon the Altar. What Time this happen'd is uncertain. Some think it was when Isaac was thirteen Years old; but we can hardly think, that he could (d) carry on his Shoulders at that Age, as much Wood, as was sufficient for a Burnt-Offering; Josephus (e) thinks that he was five and twenty, others (f) 30; the (g) Jews and (h) Arabians reckon him seven and thirty, and say, that it happen'd a little before the Death of Sarah, that (i) it was on the Feast of Expiation, and (k) that in Commemoration hereof the Turks observe a yearly Feast, not much unlike to that of the Passover. The Place, where this Offering was made, was at first call'd the Land of Moriab, which signifies the Doctrine or Fear of the LORD, or The LORD is my Teacher. The Divine Majesty appear'd to Abraham, and commanded him to go thither upon this Errand, which Abraham immediately obey'd. The Jews say, (l) that when GOD bade him go thither and offer his Son, he ask'd, How he shou'd know it? The Answer was, That wheresoever he should see the Glory of the LORD, that should be the Place; and accordingly he beheld a Pillar of Fire reaching from the Earth to the Heavens, and thereby he knew, that it was the Place. This was the Place where (m) David stay'd the Pestilence, and GOD answer'd him by Fire from Heaven, where he (n) pitch'd a Tabernacle for him, and where (o) Solomon after that built him an House. Josephus frames a long Speech, which he supposeth Abraham to have made to Isaac on this Occasion, and after that Isaac readily complied to lay down his Life, which had been effected, if the second Person in the Trinity, who is call'd here, (p) The Angel of the LORD, had not prevented it by a Voice from Heaven, and after that (q) swore by himself (which no Angel would do) that he would bless Abraham and his Seed. And that (r) in his Seed, that is (s) in CHRIST JESUS all the Nations of the Earth should be blessed; so that (t) he should not be the GOD of the Jews only, but of the Gentiles also. The Jews speak very particularly concerning the Binding of Isaac, which the Scripture only mentions in general Terms, (u) He bound him, and laid him on the altar on the wood. They add, that Isaac (x) said to his Father, Bind me, O Father, and tie both my hands and my feet, lest I should be provok'd to violate the Command, Honour thy Father. He therefore, say they, bound both his Hands, and both his Feet, and then laid him upon the Altar, and set the Wood and the Fire in Order, and plac'd him upon the Wood, and put his Foot upon him, as a Man doth when he kills a Beast, lest it should resist. When the Gentiles offer'd human Sacrifices, they (y) tied both their Hands behind their Backs; and tho' we cannot tell what Ceremony was here us'd, yet the Jews lay a great Stress upon it. Tho' they look not unto the Antitype, who was slain (z) to take away the sins of the world; yet they attribute a great Efficacy to the Type, even the Binding and Placing of Isaac on the Altar, for the Expiating of their Sins, and therefore on the yearly Day of their Expiation in the seventh Month, they (a) not only put GOD in Mind of the Blood of the Circumcision, and of the Paschal Lamb, but also of the Sacrificing of Isaac, that so he may blot out the Iniquities of his People; and they particularly mention, that GOD would remember the Binding, with which Abraham bound his Son Isaac upon the Top of the Altar. The (b) Arabian Writers say, that when Sarah heard, that Abraham took her only Son into the Mountain to sacrifice him to GOD, she fell into a very great Agony, which brought on a Fit of Sickness, and so cost her her Life; and if that could be prov'd, it would be plain, that Isaac was then in the thirty seventh Year of his Age. It is observable, that when (c) Abraham and Isaac went together, Isaac said, Behold the fire and the wood, but where is the lamb for a burnt-offering? And Abraham said, JEHOVAH Jireh, or GOD will provide. And soon after Abraham saw a Ram caught in a Thicket by his Horns, which he offer'd up instead of his Son. And therefore he call'd the Name of the Place JEHOVAH Jireh, or GOD will provide. Inasmuch that it became a common Proverb בהר יהוה יראה In the Mountain, or in Difficulties, GOD will provide, or as we commonly say, Man's Necessity is GOD's Opportunity. The Jews, who superstitiously leave out the Word JEHOVAH, say, (d) Abraham call'd the Place Jireh; Shem (by whom they mean Melchizedeck) call'd it Shalem. Therefore GOD said, If I shall call it Jireh, it will displease Shem the just; If I shall call it Shalem, it will displease Abraham the just; I will therefore put that Name upon it, which was put upon it by both, יראה שלם or יראו שלם He will provide Peace, or they shall see Peace, which tho' not literally true in the earthly Jerusalem, shall be compleated in the heavenly, even in that (e) Jerusalem, which is from above, and which is the mother of us all. St. Paul saith, (f) that By faith Abraham offered up his only begotten son. And the Reason was, because he counted, that GOD was both able and willing to raise him up from the dead; from whence also he received him ἐν τύπῳ in a figure, or as a Type of CHRIST. Thus (g) in Abraham's Seed all the families of the earth should be blessed, in his natural Seed Isaac, and in his spiritual Seed CHRIST. Isaac was accounted the only Son of his Father; so was CHRIST. He was the beloved Son; so was CHRIST. He was the Heir of all; so was CHRIST. Abraham and Sarah laugh'd at the News of his Conception, when suppos'd to be spoken by an Angel; and an Angel told the Shepherds, that the Declaring the Birth of CHRIST was Tidings of great Joy, which should be to all People. Isaac was born, when his Father was past Age, and so it was supernatural. CHRIST had no Father on Earth, but only one in Heaven. Isaac was given up by his Father to Death, and GOD so lov'd the World, that he gave his only begotten son for us all. Isaac bore the Wood, which was to bear him, and as (h) the Jews express it, like a Man, who bears his Cross, putting it upon his Shoulders, which was most true in CHRIST. Isaac was design'd for a Sacrifice in the 37th Year of his Age, and so was CHRIST. Isaac freely resign'd himself to Death, since it was impossible for his Father to force him, and CHRIST saith of his own Life, (i) No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of my self, I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again. On (k) the third Day after Abraham departed from his House, Isaac was restor'd alive to him; and CHRIST on the third Day after his Crucifixion rose from the Dead. Isaac was sacrific'd and yet liv'd, to shew that CHRIST should truly die, and truly live again. In Abraham's Intention Isaac died, in his Expectation he was to rise again, and in his Acceptation being spar'd he was receiv'd from the Dead. All which was acted to foreshew that the only Son of GOD was really and truly to be sacrific'd and die, and after Death was really to be rais'd to Life. So that what was the Intention of our Father Abraham, and not perform'd, the same was the Resolution of our heavenly Father, and actually fulfill'd. And (l) Abraham offer'd up the Ram instead of his Son, to shew that the Offering of CHRIST should be deferr'd for a Time, and in the mean Season the Offering of Beasts should be accepted; and the more lively to express this, GOD so order'd it, That the very Place, where the Ram was offer'd instead of Isaac, should be the Place of Sacrificing for Israel.

41. Upon the Death of Sarah Abraham, having perform'd a decent Mourning (m), bargains with Ephron the Hittite for a convenient Place to bury her, and the rest of the Family there. Accordingly this was the Place, where (n) he, Isaac, Rebecca, Jacob, Leah and Joseph were buried. When the Bargain was made, it is said, that he weighed the money, that it was all in Silver, and that it was not of any sort of Silver, but such as was current with the merchant, and cou'd not be refus'd when offer'd in Buying and Selling. So that here is some Silver distinguish'd from the rest by being current, which most probably must be by having some particular Stamp or Mark upon it by a publick Authority. These Pieces seem not at that Time to be of a certain Weight or Value, but valu'd by their Weight, the Standard whereof was a Shekel, and so they might have Weights of 1, 2, 4, 8, 10, 20, 30, or 100 Shekels, with which they weigh'd their Silver. This manner of Buying and Selling was (o) used before, and thus it is probable, that Abimelech (p) gave to Abraham a thousand (not Pieces of Silver, as in our Translation, the Word being not in the Original, but) Weight, and probably the Weight of a thousand Shekels of Silver. These Shekels (as Josephus (q) tells us) contain'd four Athenian Drachms, or about half an Ounce. So that these 400 Shekels seem to be about 50 Pound in the Value of our present Money. This Method lasted not long, it being very inconvenient for all Traders to carry Weights and Scales with them. And therefore they first coin'd such Coins as were of an equal Weight, which made (r) single Shekels, and half Shekels so common in the Wilderness, among the Israelites both rich and poor, and the Standards of these were (s) kept in the Sanctuary to prevent any Fraud. And thus in Process of Time they coin'd more different Pieces of different Weights.

42. Hence we find, that making Inclosures, and other Conveniencies for the Burial of Relations together, was as antient as Abraham's Time, not only in his Family, but (t) even among others. Among those who believ'd the Resurrection of the Dead they were call'd κοιμητήρια, or sleeping Places. And they were frequented by such, as Places where they perform'd many religious Acts of Devotion, to testify their hopes of Rising and Joining together in one Body in the other World to worship GOD in a more perfect Manner. Thus St. Paul argues from this Custom, (u) If the dead rise not at all, why should they, who are baptiz'd ὑμεῖς νεκρῶν, over the Graves of those who were deceas'd, meet there for religious Worship more than in any other Place? Or if the dead rise not at all, why should Men be baptiz'd in such Places rather than in any other? And thus when Churches were built and set apart for religious Worship, they were built in those Places, which were us'd in this Manner and for this Reason, or (as we commonly speak) in the Church-Yards.

43. Soon after this (x) Thurimachus succeeds Aegydrus as one of the Sicyonian Kings; and Hoamti the third Emperor of China begins to reign, and reign'd 100 Years, and therefore if we suppose him to begin his Reign at about 70 Years of Age, his Life will very well agree with the (y) Length of the Lives of Abraham and Isaac, with whom he was contemporary. In his Time (z) the Chinese us'd Lunar Years, and added a Month (as Occasion requir'd) to make them equal with the Solar. This, without Doubt, they had from Noah or Fohi their first King; and is an Argument that the Babylonians receiv'd the same Method from him as their common Parent. The Empire is now said to have extended it self to the East-Sea; so that we may conclude, that the History of China takes in the Countries which lay more eastward, until the Inhabitants came to settle there. And as the River Kiang, which now divides the Kingdom into two Parts, was the Bounds of the Empire at this Time; so it is almost certain, that the Parts southward thereof were not then inhabited. It is most likely, that when the Country became inhabited, the southern Kingdom was distinct from the northern, or govern'd by a Viceroy under the northern King, who being reckon'd as distinct Kings, tho' they liv'd at the same Time, extended their Annals above eight hundred Years beyond the true Account. The late Inhabiting of the southern Kingdom confirms the Report among them, that China was first inhabited on the north-west Side, which is most agreeable to the Scripture Geography. In the twenty eighth Year of this Emperor's Reign, his prime Minister Tanans invented a Cycle of sixty Years, to begin from his first Year, as a sure Method whereby to keep a Chronological Account of their History. This, like the Golden Number of nineteen Years, was first settl'd upon a Supposition that the Moon, in such an exact Space of Time, return'd to the same Point of the Ecliptick, whereas there is something above three Days and seven Hours Difference. Had they kept always exactly to this Cycle from the Beginning in the Account of the Years of their Kings Reigns, it would have kept them in the Truth; whereas the Alteration by some Person unknown confirms them in their Error.

44. When Abraham came from Haran into Canaan, he left his Brother Nabor in that City, where (a) his Posterity dwelt afterward. We hear nothing more of them, but that he had a numerous Family. They liv'd near together in the Country of Aram or Syria, and therefore (b) Bethuel his Son, and (c) Laban his Grandson are call'd Syrians. So that they all probably inhabited that Country. The (d) first-born was call'd Uz, and it is suppos'd by some (e) eminent Persons, that Job came from this Uz, and not from him, who was (f) of the Race of Edom. The Land of Uz is (g) frequently mention'd in Scripture. The (h) Septuagint calls it Ausitis, and Ptolomy calls the Inhabitants Ausitæ, who were a People of Arabia Deserta near Chaldea not far from Euphrates.

45. The next was Buz, from whom came (i) Elibu the Buzite. There was a People in the same Country, or near it, call'd in Jeremiah by this Name; but it being small, and the Name since extinct, it is impossible to give any farther Description of it.

46. The next is Kemuel, who left no Name in the Country behind him. He had a Son call'd Aram, who inhabited some Part of Syria, but there being another of that Name, who was the Son of Shem, and dwelt in those Parts, the Family of this Aram was soon mix'd, and so the Name was swallow'd up in the other.

47. The next is (k) Chesed. He was the Father of the Chaldeans who were call'd in Scripture Chasdim or the Chasdites from this Chesed. His antient Situation was in the Country round Ur, where (l) Abraham liv'd, which is therefore call'd Ur of the Chaldeans. The whole Babylonish Empire was afterward call'd the Chaldean, but it is difficult to assign the true Reason of it, which probably may be this: The Babylonians were famous for the Study of Astronomy, to which the Chaldeans added that of Astrology, for which they (m) were most famous. This made them invited to live in all Parts of the Kingdom, where they were generally respected by that superstitious People. Hence all that studied Astrology were call'd Chaldeans, and so from them the whole Country took its Name. There are other Sons of Nabor by Milcab, viz. Hazo, Pildash and Jidaph; and by his Concubine Reumah, viz. Tebah, Gaham and Thabash, of whom there is no Account where they settl'd, or whether they had any Posterity or no. Bethuel the Son of Nabor liv'd at Haran, and there (n) his Son Laban settl'd, but they left no Name behind them in any Part of the Country. And Maachab the Son of Nabor by Reumah, dwelt among the Syrians in those Parts. His Name also seems to be extinct, and the (o) Syrians of Maachab, who had a King over them, and the (p) Maachabites, who dwelt beyond Jordan among the half Tribe of Manasseh, are suppos'd (q) by the learned Bochart to have come from the Canaanites, and not from this Family.

48. When three Years were expir'd after the Death of Sarah, Abraham being willing to take a Wife for his Son Isaac, and resolving that he should not marry any of the Canaanites, he calls the (r) eldest Servant of his House (whom he had appointed to take Care of all his Concerns, and (s) who was probably Eliezer of Damascus, who had been his Steward above fifty Years before) and obliges him by an Oath to Fidelity in this Matter. As Oaths cannot be administer'd without some Ceremonies; so that which was us'd on this Occasion was remarkable. Abraham (t) said unto his servant, Put, I pray thee, thy hand under my thigh, and I will make thee swear by the LORD, the GOD of the heaven, and the GOD of the earth. And the servant put his hand under the thigh of Abraham his master, and swore to him concerning this matter. The same (u) Ceremony was us'd by Joseph, when he swore unto

Jacob, that he would not bury him in Egypt, and by no other Person, whom we read of in the Scriptures. And the Reason seems to be this: The Hebrew Phrase (x) to express the Children of a Man was frequently The souls which came out of his thigh. Now Abraham and Jacob had express Promises, that the MESSIAH should be of their Seed, and particularly of the Tribe of Judah, so that this seems to signify a Swearing by the MESSIAH who was to come (as the Hebrew Word expresseth it) out of their Thigh, and if so, then it is plain, that Abraham knew, that he would be true and very GOD, because he calls it, A Swearing by JEHOVAH, the GOD of the Heaven, and the GOD of the Earth. This being done, Abraham gives him his Commission and Instruction, with full Power and Authority to treat about, and conclude such a Marriage, furnishes him with rich and choice Presents, and all other Necessaries for his Journey, and so sends him on this Errand. Josephus tells us, (y) that his Way lay thro' Mesopotamia, which was very dirty in the Winter, and destitute of Water in the Summer, and where the Danger of Robbers was very great, if Travellers were not extremely cautious, and therefore it was a difficult and dangerous Journey. And beside this, Abraham (z) dwelt at Beersheba, near Beerlabairoi, so that he had the whole Land of Canaan to travel thro'. However he had the utmost Success which could be imagin'd, and return'd home with Rebecca the Daughter of Bethuel, whom Isaac married (a) in the fortieth Year of his Age.

49. Soon after this, Aralius the Emperor of the Assyrian Monarchy dies, and is succeeded by Xerxes, who reign'd thirty Years. And at the same Time (b) Inachus comes from Egypt, and founds the Kingdom of the Argives, where he reigns fifty Years. His Name is certainly deriv'd from the Eastern Word py, and signifies a Man, that wore a Chain of Silver or Gold as a Badge of Honour. The Children of Anak or the Anakims were a People (c) remarkably tall, who liv'd in the Land of Canaan, and probably descended from some of the Canaanitish Pastors; so that Inachus's Leaving them at this Time, must weaken them more and more. Archbishop Usher informs us from Eusebius, that this Kingdom was begun 1080 Years before the first Olym- piad, and that from the Time of Inachus to the Palilia, or Feasts dedicated to Pales, as Varro informs us, were 1102 Years. And it is remarkable, after he was made King he had a Son, who succeeded him, whom he call'd Phoroneus, which seems to be deriv'd from the Word Pharaoh, with the Addition of a Greek Termination, which was the Name of (d) the Kings of Lower-Egypt in Abraham's Time, and is a farther Proof of his Coming from that Country.

50. The Land of Canaan by this Time, and the adjacent Countries being full of People, and Abraham having a numerous Family not only by Ishmael the Son of Hagar, but also by another Wife, whom (e) he call'd Keturah, he was willing in his Life-Time to divide his Money and moveable Goods (f) among them, and send them into distant Countries. And it being natural to people the more fruitful Places first, Arabia the desert, and Arabia the stony was but thinly inhabited, and therefore Abraham sent them thither, and into the adjacent Countries, where we still find some antient Footsteps of their Names; and they speaking the Hebrew Tongue, brought thither so great a Number of Hebrew Words, which at this Time we find to have antiently been in the Arabick Language. For the Finding out of the Places which they first possess'd, it will be necessary to observe, that Ishmael was at this Time with Abraham, and whatever Misunderstandings happen'd they might be reconcil'd during the Life of Sarah, or much more probably after her Death. And therefore either he hearing that Abraham intended to divide his Substance among them, came thither of his own Accord with some of his Family, or he might be sent for on that Occasion. Abraham seems to have (g) divided his Goods among them at one and the same Time; they went all from him eastward into the east Country, or into Arabia Deserta, so that they went together and settl'd near to one another. As for Ishmael's Posterity, their antient Bounds are expressly declar'd, (h) that they dwelt from Havilah, which lay toward Assyria, unto Shur, which is before Egypt, that is, throughout Arabia both Petrea and Deserta. He first (i) dwelt in the Wilderness of Paran, in Arabia Petrea, where he left several Families, and after that he went with the Sons of Keturah eastward from Canaan into Arabia Deserta, and this is the Reason that we find the Ishmaelites in both Countries. As for Ishmael himself, our Translation saith, (k) that he died in the presence of all his brethren. The Hebrew saith, He fell, or rather (l) His Portion or Lot fell to him in Arabia Deserta near to the other Sons, which Abraham had by Keturah; there he afterward liv'd, there he died, and there we find the Remains of several of his Posterity. And as the Country was very barren; so when their Families increas'd, several of them remov'd from thence, and settl'd in other Places, which were not as yet fully inhabited, particularly in Arabia Felix, and where we shall find some Footsteps of their Names.

51. The first Son of Abraham by Keturah was (m) Zimran, and the second was Jockshan. If a Liberty of Conjecture may be granted after so many learned Men, who have written on this Subject, it should be this; that these Men coming into a barren and desert Country, soon found a Necessity of betaking themselves to some particular Business, the better to support themselves and their Families. The Word Zimran comes from a Hebrew Verb, which signifies to cut or prune Vines, and therefore may imply, that this was his Business, and accordingly we find (*) Abel-ceramim, or the Plain of the Vineyards, in the Country of the Ishmaelites. The Word Jockshan comes from a Hebrew Verb, which signifies to lay Nets for the Catching of such Birds and Beasts, as were fit for Food, and may also intimate, that this was his Business. These two Brethren having thus learn'd to get their Living in any Country, soon remove into Arabia Felix, where they might carry on their Employments with better Success. Zimran removes before he had any Family, or carries all with him, and therefore Moses mentions none of his Sons, and from him we may suppose, that the Zamareni, a People in Arabia Felix were descended, who (as (n) Pliny tells us) inhabited the Towns of Saiaces, Scantules, Bacascamis, and Riphearma.

52. The Name of Jockshan being soon alter'd into Joktan, the Name of the Brother of Peleg, who first inhabited Arabia Felix with a numerous Family, makes it very difficult to distinguish between them, and to find out the antient Situation of both. Theophranes (o) a Geographer of Note in the Beginning of the ninth Century speaking of Mecca, where Mahomet was born, immediately adds, that there were other People more in the Bowels of Arabia, who were not of their Tribe, but of Jektan, and these are they, who are call'd Amanites or Homerites; and (p) Euthymius tells us the very same. A learned Author of our own Country adds, (q) Perhaps it should be written Jockshan not Jektan. And (r) Philostorgius saith expressly of the Homerites, that they are one of the Nations descended from Abraham by Keturah. And there is this strong Proof of their Descent from some of Abraham's Family, that they retain'd the Rite of Circumcision, even when they were Idolaters, and they were also circumcis'd upon the eighth Day. These could not therefore be descended from Joktan the Brother of Peleg, who did not circumcise at all; nor from the Ishmaelites, who did not circumcise so soon, and therefore must be descended from Abraham by Keturah.

53. However Jockshan went not with his whole Family into those Parts; for he left two of his Sons behind him, whose (s) Names (as Moses tells us) were Sheba and Dedan. Now (t) there were two Sons of Raamah, and Grandsons of Cush, exactly of the same Name. And as these were settl'd near to their Father in the eastern Parts of Arabia Felix; so (u) it is easy to suppose, that these, having all Arabia then before them, would chuse the most fruitful and pleasant Parts thereof to dwell in. But the Descendants of Abraham going into the east Country from Canaan, or into Arabia Deserta, Sheba must settle there; and therefore since we find in Heathen Writers a People in those Parts call'd Saba, or Sabai, and there is mention made in the Book of (x) Job of the Sabaans, who liv'd not far from him, it may reasonably be concluded, that these were the Offspring of Sheba the Descendant of Abraham. The Land of Uz the (y) Son of Nabor, or the (z) Country of Ausitis as it is call'd by the Septuagint, in the southern Part whereof Job liv'd, extended it self southward from the Banks of Euphrates, even to the Country of Sheba or the Sabaans, who inhabited from thence, as far as to the Entrance of Arabia Felix. Strabo tells us, that they and the Nabatai were the very next People to Syria, and were wont to make Excursions upon their Neighbours. They were so inclin'd to Robbery, that the Devil knew them to be the fittest Persons to plunder Job of his Oxen and Asses, and consequently that his Suggestions meeting with their own Inclinations would be more readily comply'd with.

54. The other Son of Jockshan was Dedan, who is suppos'd to be the Founder of a People call'd (a) Dedanim in the Plural Number upon the Borders of Idumæa, the chief City whereof is (b) call'd Dedan. The Sons of this Dedan are said to be (c) Asburim, and Letushim and Leummim. If these were Heads of Nations or Families, the Memory of them is lost; and therefore as they are Words of the Plural Number, so they are suppos'd to be particular Trades and Employments. Onkelos supposes them to be Dwellers in Camps, and in Tents and Islands; the other Targums call them Merchants, and Artificers, and Heads of the People.

55. The next Son by Keturah is (d) Medan. These also remov'd into Arabia Felix, and planted themselves in the southern Part of it, near to their Brother Jokshan in the Country call'd Madiania, where there is the famous Town of Meccah, in which Mahomet was born.

56. The next is Midian. His Posterity are frequently mention'd in the Scripture History, and call'd the Midianites. They dwelt not far from the Israelites on the other Side of Jordan, and did very often oppress and annoy them; and therefore they seem to have kept their original Settlement in the east Country. They lay near to the Ishmaelites, with whom they had a good Correspondence, and the first Account, which we have of them as a Nation, is (e) their Trading into Egypt with Spicery, and Balm, and Myrrh, which they carry'd upon Camels. And as they join'd with the Ishmaelites in these Expeditions; so their Caravans or Companies, which went to Egypt, are (f) sometimes call'd Ishmaelites, and (g) sometimes Midianites. This occasion'd their Extending into those Parts, so that a great Number of them settl'd themselves to the South-east of the Salt-Sea, adjoining to the Moabites. Hence we read, that (h) whilst the Israelites encamp'd at Shittim, they committed Whoredom with the Daughters of Moab, and one of them with a Midianitish Woman; and (i) we find Moab and Midian mention'd together as a neighbouring People; and in the (k) Time of the Judges they join'd with the Amalekites, who (l) dwelt in the South, to invade the Tribe of Judah. Hence we read of the (m) Land of Midian lying in the Neighbourhood of Mount Sinai; and we find a City call'd Madiana in these Parts by the Red-Sea mention'd in Heathen Writers. So that in Process of Time, as his Offspring increas'd, they spread themselves farther and farther wherever they could find any Room, and so they came to that Tract by the Red-Sea, where Jethro the Father-in-law of Moses liv'd; and therefore it lay not distinct or quite separated from the first Settlement, but so as to be contiguous, and thus it all went under the common Name of the Land of Midian.

57. To make this more plain, Moses tells us, (n) that one of the Sons of Midian was Ephab. As this Generation was born so late, and when Asia was full of People; so the utmost, which we can expect, must be some single Town, that retain'd their Names, or a small Tract of Ground near it. However this Name continu'd for a great while; for Isaiab (o) mentions Midian and Ephab as near Neighbours, and adjoining to Sheba. (p) Josephus, Eusebius, St. Jerom, and (q) Abulfeda expressly mention a City call'd Madiana on the Shore of the Red Sea; near to which was Epha in the same Province. Epha or Hipha is in (r) the Arabick Language هيف Gaiphah. And therefore the Greeks have sometimes call'd it Γαιφα Gaiphah, and sometimes Γαιφαρ Gaiphah. The most common Name, by which they call it, is ἵππος Hippus, and Ptolomy mentions both a Village and a Mountain of this Name on the same Shore, a little below Madiana. The Prophet Isaiab (s) mentions the Camels as coming from Midian, and Ephab, and (t) no Country abounded more with them than this. So that Epha must be situated on the Red-Sea, his Father Midian lying to the West, and his Uncle Sheba to the North.

58. The next is Epher. It is probable, that he went with his Uncles Zimran and Jokshan into Arabia Felix, since there are no Remainers of his Family to be found except among the Homeritæ already mention'd, (u) whose Metropolis was call'd Tapharum. Arianus expressly calls the Metropolis of the Homeritæ by the Name of Aphar, which makes it the more probable, that it was so call'd from Epher.

59. The next is Hanock. He is also suppos'd to have gone with his Uncles, who filling the inland Country, he went farther into the utmost Parts of Arabia toward the south east, where we find a great Number of the Adramites and Homerites. In these Parts (x) Ptolomy tells us, that there is a great trading Town and a Promontory call'd Cane. And Pliny mentions (y) a Country in Arabia, which he calls Regio Canauna, and may be thought to have taken its Name from this Person and his Posterity.

60. The next is Abidah. If we invert the two last Syllables (as is usual in such Cases

(a) Isai. 21. 13. (b) Jer. 25. 23. and 49. 8. (c) Gen. 25. 3. (d) Gen. 25. 2. (e) Gen. 37. 25. (f) Gen. 37. 25, 27. (g) Gen. 37. 28, 36. (h) Num. 25. 1. (i) Num. 22. 4. as these) the Relicks of this Name will remain in the People call'd Dibeni, who liv'd in an Island call'd  $\Delta\iota\beta\epsilon\iota$  or  $\Delta\iota\beta\epsilon\iota$  between Arabia and India, and is said by several Authors to belong sometimes to one, and sometimes to the other. Philostorgius saith, (z) that they only bear the Name of Indians. Pliny (a) reckoning up the Tracts of Arabia, places the Isle call'd Devadæ (which we may suppose to be this) over-against the before-mention'd Region call'd Canaana. And Strabo, Agatharcides and others call'd it  $\Delta\iota\beta\epsilon\iota$ ; and therefore we suppose, that Abidah came into these Parts with his Brother Hanoah.

61. The last Son of Midian is Eldaah. He seems to have stay'd with his Father; tho' there are very little Remains of his Name, unless it is in the City Elana, which might easily be form'd from Eldaah, by leaving out the Daleth, and changing the Hebrew Guttural into a Nun, as is very usual in such Cases. This City was seated on the Red-Sea, call'd also Sinus Arabicus, toward the east Part thereof. Others (b) call it Ælanah; from whence the Bay it self was call'd Elanites, and the People who liv'd in it Elanitæ. A very learned Author supposeth it to be the same with Elath, (c) by which the Israelites pass'd, near Eziongeber, which (d) Azariah restor'd to Judah, and (e) Rezin the King of Syria took it away again, and it is (f) also call'd Eloth. But we have no Reason to think, that the Name was alter'd so much in Moses's Time, or if it was, that he would have took no Notice of it. And therefore we may conclude, that this Elanah was not on (g) the west Side of Eziongeber in the Land of Edom, but on the east Side of it in the Land of Midian.

62. The next to Midian is Ishbak. There are no Footsteps of his Name to be found, unless it is among the Bacascami, which Pliny saith (h) was one of the Towns of the Zamareni; who descended from his eldest Brother Zimran. He (i) also tells us, that there were a People not far from them, who were call'd Bachilitæ. And perhaps Ishbak might at first signify no more than A Man of that Country.

63. The last Son of Abraham by Keturah is Shuah. He is suppos'd (k) to have dwelt in that Part of Arabia, which lies next to Egypt, because Pliny mentions a Town there, which is call'd Suasa. And it is probable, that (l) Bildad the Shuhite, one of Job's three Friends, came from that Country.

64. These were (as near as we can guess) the antient Habitations of the Sons of Abraham by Keturah. It will now be requisite to consider where the Sons of Ishmael, the Son of Abraham by Hagar, seated themselves. Here also Moses must be our Guide, who tells us, that (m) he dwelt in the wilderness of Paran, and his mother took him a wife out of the land of Egypt. This Wilderness of Paran was to the south of Judæa near Egypt; and here we find a great Number of the Ishmaelites. When Abraham was old, he (n) gave gifts to the sons of the concubines, which he had, and sent them away from Isaac his son, eastward unto the east Country, that is, over Jordan, into Arabia Deserta. And as both (o) Hagar and (p) Keturah are call'd his Concubines; so he sent their Posterity together into those Parts. Of Ishmael it is said, (q) that his Lot fell for his Posterity to dwell in the Presence of all his Brethren, or near to the Sons of Keturah. And there we find a great Number of the Ishmaelites, and Hagarenes, or Posterity of Hagar by another Husband. When (r) Abraham pray'd to GOD, saying, Oh that Ishmael might live before thee! GOD gave him this Answer, As for Ishmael I have heard thee: Behold, I have blessed him, and will make him fruitful, and will multiply him exceedingly; twelve princes shall he beget, and I will make him a great nation. And therefore Moses, (s) to shew how GOD fulfill'd his Promise, reckons up the twelve Sons of Ishmael by their Names, according to their Generations, by their Towns, and by their Castles, and according to their Nations. Not that all of these had Towns, Castles and Nations; but that we might reckon up as many as possible by such Circumstances as these, and particularly as many as we have any Footsteps remaining of them. As the Canaanites, when they first came out of Egypt, kept some of them in great Bodies, and others liv'd a Pastoral Life without any settl'd Habitations; so when the Ishmaelites came first into these Parts, some of them fix'd there in Towns and Castles; others, whom they call'd Scenitæ, dwelt in Tents, fix'd no where, but went about from Place to Place, wherever they could find any Sustenance for their Cattle; and others, like the Sons of Keturah, travell'd to remoter Places for their better Conveniency, where they fix'd. And this is the Reason, that we meet with a great Number of them toward the south of Canaan, and a great Number beyond Jordan toward the East, several of them separated to a greater Distance; and others, whose Names are lost, that we know not where to find them.

65. The first born of Ishmael is expressly (s) said to be Nebajoth. The Right of Primogeniture in those Days, which was strictly observ'd, gave him an Opportunity to settle, where he pleas'd, and leave his younger Brethren to seek for more distant Habitations. Accordingly he and his Posterity took to the best Part of Arabia Deserta, and even Part of Arabia Petraea. Pliny, Strabo, and Ptolemy call it Nabatea, and sometimes other Authors call it Nabathis. Ovid (t) takes particular Notice of it, as lying directly east from Rome, and at a very great Distance. The Inhabitants were call'd Nabataei by Dionysius Periegetes in his Description of the World, and by Plutarch in the Life of Demetrius, who, as he saith, was sent to subdue the Arabians call'd Nabataei, when he was in great Danger of Losing the Army by Going into Places, where there was no Water. These are commonly in Scripture call'd Ishmaelites, as if they had been the sole Heirs of their Father. They dwelt near the Midianites, the Sons of Keturah on the one Side, being Neighbours and Copartners in Traffick; and thus in one Place Joseph is said (u) to be sold to the Ishmaelites, and (x) in another to be sold to the Midianites. And they lay near the Moabites on the other Side. For (y) Epiphanius speaking of the Countries, which lay beyond the Dead-Sea, mentions the Region of Nebajoth, Iturea, and Moab. It seems to be one of the best Countries for Pasture, and therefore the Prophet Isaiah (z) mentions at the same Time the Flocks of Kedar and the Rams of Nebajoth. It is probable, that some of them stay'd in the south Country, and others went with their Father to the East, and by Extending their Colonies one toward the other, they came at last to be united.

66. The second Son of Ishmael is Kedar. It is certain, that his whole Family stay'd behind in the south Country, and were seated in Arabia Petraea near to some Part of the Country of their elder Brother Nebajoth, which makes (a) the Prophet Isaiah to join them together. The sacred Scriptures take more Notice of this Name, than of any other, and the Prophet Isaiah, speaking of the burden of Arabia, expresses it among other things by the (b) fall of the glory of Kedar. And some Authors call the whole Country by this Name. Thus the Language of Kedar is the Arabian Language; and when David (c) complain'd, that he had long dwelt in Kedar; the Chaldee expounds it, in the Dwellings of the Arabians; and it is particularly call'd (d) the wilderness of Paran, which was (e) Ishmael's first Place of Settlement. These are they, whom Ptolemy calls Pharanitæ. Pliny saith, that Pharanitis lay on the Borders of Arabia, and (f) later Writers make Paran and Arabia Petraea to be near Neighbours. Here the Israelites (g) encamp'd, when they sent the Spies to search out the Land of Canaan; so that it was situated near it, and southward toward the Red-Sea. They are (h) also mention'd by Pliny under the Name of Cedreni or Cedareni, and plac'd by him next to the Nabathæans. They like the Perizzites led a pastoral Life, and dwelt in Tents for that Purpose, and therefore we read of (i) the tents of Kedar; and (k) the flocks of Kedar, with which they not only supplied the neighbouring Country, but even (l) the Markets as far as Tyre, and others of them were also (m) excellent Soldiers.

67. The next Son of Ishmael is Adbeel. Of him and also of Mibsam, Mishma and Massah, we find no satisfactory Account, and therefore may suppose them to have led a pastoral Life, and to have dwelt in Tents for that Purpose; of which there were many Sorts, some (n) near Euphrates, and others in Arabia Felix, whom they call'd Scenitæ, who fixing in no particular Place left no Memory of their Name behind them. They were call'd, (o) the men who dwelt in tents; their (p) Tents are call'd Tents of Cattle. We read of them among the Cushites and Midianites, where they are call'd (q) the tents of Cushan, and the curtains of the land of Midian, and from their Example (r) began the Order of the Rechabites.

68. The next is Dumah. The Prophet Isaiah (s) places him near to Seir or Idumea, or in the Forests of Arabia, where Stephanus the Geographer mentions a City call'd Dumatha, which the Chaldeans might so call from Dumah, by the bare Addition of the Feminine Gender, as it is in their Language.

69. The Word Ishmael signifies in Hebrew, GOD will hear, and he was so nam'd by the (t) Angel of the LORD, before he was born, and the Reason was given to his Mother Hagar, because the LORD had heard her Affliction. He had three Sons, (u) which are mention'd all together in one Verse: Mishmah, which signifies Obedience; Dumamah, which signifies Silence; and Massah, which signifies Patience. And this may teach us, that when GOD doth hear us in Afflic-tion, or when we trust in him, that he will hear us, we should learn from thence to be obedient, silent and patient. And if Ishmael intended this Lesson, when he gave them their Names, it shews, that in his latter Years he was a good Man, and had probably (x) learned obedience by the things which he had suffered.

70. The next is Hadar. Some think, that the Athritæ, who liv'd in Arabia Felix came from him. And therefore he must be one of the younger Brothers, who remov'd to a considerable Distance. The (y) Inhabitants of Arabia Felix make a Distinction between the Arabians, who were the Sons of Jokshan the Brother of Peleg, whom they call Arabians of the Natives, and the Sons of Ishmael, whom they call Arabians from Strangers; and it will be hard to find, that any of the Sons of Ishmael settl'd there except these. It is also said, that there is a City call'd Tema from the next Son of Ishmael; but it will be hard to prove, that any of the Prophets spoke of a Country so far distant. As therefore there is the Country of Tema joining to the Sabæans the Posterity of Jokshan their Brother; so we may suppose this to be the antient Settlement of this Son of Ishmael. Job speaks of the (z) troops of Tema and the companies of Sheba as joining to each other, and well known to him; and it is probable, that (a) Eliphaz the Temanite liv'd here, and that he was not descended from (b) Teman the Grandson of Esau. The Prophet Isaiah mentions (c) Tema as a Part of Arabia Deserta, or Petræa, and therefore joins it with Seir, Dumab, Dedan and Kedar, which lay in those Parts. And the Prophet Jeremiah (d) mentions Tema with Edom, and Moab, and Ammon, and Dedan and Buz; whilst he takes no Notice of those in Arabia Felix, unless (e) it is in general Terms. So that here we suppose was the City of Tema mention'd by Ptolomy, and that it is the same, which Strabo calls Tamna.

71. The two next Sons of Ishmael are (f) Jetur and Naphish. Of these it is said, that (g) the Reubenites and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh made war with them. And the children of the half tribe of Manasseh dwelt in the land from Bashan unto Baal-hermon and Senir, and unto mount Hermon. So that they were situated on the northern Parts of Canaan, and on the Borders both of Arabia and Syria. And therefore it is evident, that the Country of Ituræa mention'd by St. Luke, of which Philip Herod's Brother was Tetrarch, was so call'd from Jetur the Son of Ishmael. The Name of Naphish seems to be extinct; however it is probable, that he first inhabited the Country of Trachonitis, which was join'd to the other to make one Province. It lay near to the Country of Bashan, and from hence the adjacent Lands were call'd Batanæa: (b) Strabo and (i) Pliny mention it. And Josephus (k) adds, that Herod by his last Will gave Gaulonitis and Trachonitis and Batanæa and Paneas to Philip, who was his own Son, and the Brother of Archelaus, to be a Tetrarchy.

72. The last Son of Ishmael is Kedemab, who is suppos'd to have dwelt near his Brother Kedar not far from Mount Paran, in the antient Settlement of his Father Ishmael. That which gives Ground to this Opinion, is the (l) Words of Jeremiah, Go up to Kedar, and spoil the men of Kedem, which we translate the men of the east. This is spoken of the Kingdoms, which Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon should conquer, and would be very ill apply'd to Kedar, because it lies south west from Babylon; and therefore it may rather signify this other Son of Ishmael, whom he might leave in the Country, when he first came from thence.

73. But to return to the History. Soon after Inachus had founded the Kingdom of the Argives in Grecce, Go-

74. The World being now grown populous, and the Earth being (o) replenish'd according to the Blessing of GOD, there seems not now to be so great an Increase as before, unless on some particular Occasions. Abraham was 86 Years of Age before he had Ishmael, and he was an hundred Years old when Isaac was born. Isaac was forty Years old when he married Rebecca, who continu'd barren for twenty Years longer. Isaac (p) knowing that the MESSIAH was to come of his Seed, but not know-fervent Prayers for a Son, and putting GOD in Mind of the same Promise which he had here made, that (r) he would multiply Abraham's Seed as the Stars of Heaven. Upon this Rebecca conceiv'd, and knowing it to be so, she went to the Place of Worship to enquire about her Case. Eutychius (s) saith, that she went to enquire of Melchizedeck, who gave her an Answer; but it is probable, that he was dead before this Time. Maimonides (t) is of the Opinion, that she went to the School of Heber, the great Grandchild of Shem, who was then alive, and he answer'd her. The Scripture only saith, (u) that the LORD said unto her, Two nations are in thy womb, and two manner of people shall be separated from thy bowels, and the one people shall be stronger than the other people, and the elder shall serve the younger.

When the younger was born, it is said, (x) that he took his elder brother by the heel, which made those who were present to think of the Prophecy, and call his Name Jacob. The Word in Hebrew which signifies a Heel, comes from a Verb which signifies to supplant, and the Word Jacob is in the future Tense, and signifies He will supplant. And thus his elder Brother Esau (y) when he lost the Blessing, said to his Father, Is he not rightly called Jacob? For he hath supplanted me these two times: he took away my birth-right, and behold now he hath taken away my blessing.

75. We must now return toward Egypt, and take the Horites in our Way, where we find, that (z) Jobab their second King dies, and is succeeded by Husham their third King. Mares King of Upper-Egypt being of a great Age, and not fit to go to War, keeps his Son Anoyphes with him at Thebais, to succeed him in the Kingdom in Case of Mortality, and sends Tethmosis or Amosis, who we may suppose was his second Son, to carry on the Wars against the Canaanitish Pastors of Lower-Egypt. Of this Manetho, as (a) he is quoted by Josephus, gives us this Account, That these Pastors had kept the Government of Lower-Egypt in their own Hands for the Space of (b) five hundred and eleven Years. But the King of Thebes, and the Country of Upper-Egypt, which was not as yet subject to these Shepherds, made a violent and an obstinate War upon them, and routed them under the Command of Halisphragmuthosis, which was also the Name of Mares: And when the greatest Part of them were driven out of Egypt, the rest withdrew into a Place call'd Abaris, of ten thousand Acres in the whole. And this the Shepherds (according to Manetho) inclos'd with a strong substantial Wall, which secur'd them all Necessaries within themselves. He saith farther, that Tethmosis the Son of Halisphragmuthosis laid Siege to it with (c) four hundred and eighty thousand Men, but when he found that the Place was not to be carried by Assault, they agreed upon Articles that they might depart Egypt, and to have safe Convoy to go whither they would. Upon these Terms they march'd out with their Goods and Families to the Number of (d) two hundred and forty thousand Souls, by the Way of the Wilderness into Syria; and for Fear of the Assyrians, who were then Masters of Asia, they retir'd into a Country, which is now known by the Name of Judaea, where they built several Cities large enough in the whole to receive this vast Multitude. Manetho saith, that they only built one City large enough for this Purpose, and call'd it Jerusalem. The small Quantity of Ground which they inclos'd, not being enough to maintain such a vast Number of Men, makes it probable that they were not only much fewer in Number, but also that they had Store of Ships; by which they were supplied with Provisions from the Land of Canaan; and this made them the more willing at their Expulsion, to go into a Country, with whose Inhabitants they had been well acquainted for some Time before. By their Coming in so great a Body into the Land of Canaan, they soon fully peopled that fruitful Country; and therefore it is often mention'd as an Act of GOD's signal Providence in Dispossessing them, that they were (e) much more in Number than the Israelites, and much more mighty, as having been train'd up to Wars, and accordingly they took Care to (f) fortify their Towns, to prevent a Surprise, and make the better Defence in Case of an Attack. And this occasion'd the Disputes concerning the Right of Pasturage never known before, but which soon happen'd upon the following Occasion.

76. When Abraham (g) dwelt at Gerar, the chief Town of the Philistines, his Servants digg'd several Wells for the Convenience of Watering their Cattle. Soon after this, he (i) removes to Beersheba, near to the Well call'd Beer-labairoi, where he lives a pastoral Life (k) with his Son Isaac, and his Grandson Jacob. When these Canaanitish Pastors return'd out of Egypt, they settl'd among the Philistines, being their old Acquaintance, who formerly return'd from the same Place, who had been engag'd in the same Wars, and now had a King over them of their own Kindred. About three Years after their Coming thither Abraham dies. And these Pastors being willing to prevent all future Claims from his Posterity, (l) stop up all these Wells with Dirt, and dig others in other Places, to give them a better Title to them as being their own. The Effect whercof will be mention'd in its due Place.

77. In the mean time Tethmosis having driven out these Pastors from Lower-Egypt is made their King, where he governs them 25 Years, and four Months, and so begins a new Race of Kings, who being related to those of Upper-Egypt, and of the same Religion, and tir'd out with these long Wars, were willing to live peaceably with each other; so that we hear of no Disturbances between them. When he came there, he found a vile Practice of Sacrificing Men to the Gods of Lower-Egypt. There were two Reasons for this: One was, that the Inhabitants of Upper-Egypt having dcify'd their Kings, who fought for them in the Defence of their Country, the Inhabitants of Lower-Egypt did the same, and having taken Captives in the Wars, they thought that there could be no more grateful Oblation to their Ancestors when dead, than the Lives of such, who gave them so much Disturbance, whilst they were alive. The other was, that (as (m) Sanchoiatho tells us) formerly when there was a Plague and a Mortality, Ham made his only Son, which he had by a Nymph of that Country call'd Anobret, a whole Burnt-Offering to appease the Ghost of his Father Noah; and from hence they learn'd to offer up even their Sons and Daughters to these their Deities. However Tethmosis abolish'd by a Law this vile Practice of Sacrificing Men, which had there taken Place in the Times before him, and caus'd Men of Wax to be offer'd instead of Men of Flesh and Blood. From hence our learned Bishop Cumberland hath (n) very justly inferr'd these Particulars.

78. First, That Tethmosis having been of Thebais or Upper-Egypt, before his Conquest over the Phœnicians, who dwelt in Lower-Egypt, might (as Plutarch informs us) be a Worshipper of their God Cneph, whom they own'd to be an infinite and eternal Being, the sole Maker, Governor and Preserver of all things, and from the Dictates of natural Religion toward him had learn'd to abhor such cruel Sacrifices. However it is probable, that he had some Mixture of Idolatry in him, or otherwise he would not have substituted these Men of Wax to be sacrific'd to those Deities, who formerly had real Men offer'd to them.

79. Secondly, This Custom being remov'd out of Egypt, either before, or about the Time that Abraham died, gives us the Reason why Egypt was never accus'd of this Crime (tho' (o) their Neighbours the Canaanites often are) either by Moses or any of the Prophets. And it is also a Reason, why the Israelites neither did nor could learn this Practice in the Egyptian Bondage, tho' they did learn other Parts of Idolatry there.

80. Thirdly, It serves to confute an Opinion, which (as he saith) some have taken up without sufficient Reason, viz. that the Canaanites or Phœnicians follow'd the Example of Abraham in their inhuman Sacrifices of their Children. The Trial of Abraham was a Secret between GOD and himself and his Son, and no one knew besides, how far he went toward the Obeying of that Command, which GOD solemnly rescinded, before it could be effectually executed, and it was but 46 Years before the Conquests of Tethmosis in Egypt, and the Expulsion of such Sacrifices from thence. It was well known, that Isaac liv'd long after, which must effectually confute a Custom of Murdering others from his Example, and therefore must be taken from Ham's Sacrificing his Son. And it seems to be too little a Time for the Settlement of such an unnatural Practice, which had taken such deep Root among them, that even when by Law it was barr'd, yet the Lawgiver thought fit so far to comply with it, as to substitute Men of Wax in the Place of true Men.

81. Fourthly, From hence some Light will break out to clear the State of the Times, which were before the Expulsion of this Phœnician Power by this Thebaick King. For it's rational to think, that these Phœnicians or Canaanites, who had reign'd in Egypt, all those six Successions already mention'd, had for the most of their Time, if not all along, practis'd this great Inhumanity of Sacrificing Men in Egypt, which Tethmosis thought fit to abolish, when the Introducers of that Barbarity were cast out by him. Now this Phœnician Dynasty continu'd in Egypt 259 Years, according to Josephus's Account, which being subtracted from 2179, the Year of the World in which Tethmosis expell'd the Phœnicians, there will remain 1920 for the Beginning of the Reign of Salatis, which is the very Year, where it is plac'd according to Eratoſthenes's Canon. And if they then began to uſe ſuch Sacrifices there, it is plain, that they uſ'd them long before Abraham was born, his Birth being Anno Mundi 2009, and therefore they could not learn it by Imitating him.

82. Our Learned Primate of Armagh (p) obſerves, that Ptolomæus Mendefius, a learned Egyptian Prieſt (whom Voffius (q) affirms to have liv'd in Auguſtus Cæſar's Time, and who is cited ſoon after by Apion in Tiberius's Time) doth affirm, that this Tethmoſis took and ruin'd Avaris or Abaris the laſt Hold of the Paſtors, and was contemporary with Inachus the firſt King of the Argives, who was now in the eighteenth Year of his Reign, and reign'd fifty Years. This Teſtimony is alſo cited by (r) Clemens Alexandrinus, Tatianus, and Juſtin Martyr; ſo that it was valu'd as credible both by the Heathen Apion, and the Chriſtian Fathers. Now (s) our learned Biſhop Cumberland exactly agrees with Archbiſhop Uſher, in the Year when Tethmoſis expell'd the Paſtors, as already mention'd, and hath ſo fully confirm'd it by many Arguments, particularly by the Catalogue of his Succeſſors taken from Manetho, until the Time of Pharaoh Amenophis who was drown'd in the Red-Sea, as may ſet this Matter without Diſpute.

83. The Egyptian Hercules, having carry'd off his Men with their Arms and Goods into the Land of Canaan, ſtay'd not long there, but went to Tyre, and afterward ſail'd into Greece to conſult the Oracle of Jupiter Dodonaus. His Succeſſors ſeem to have honour'd him with the Title of Hercules the Saviour; and we are told of a Coin among the Thaſians, on which he ſtood with this very Title inſcrib'd on it in Greek Characters. He had Temples built to him both at Tyre, in the Iſle of Thaſus, and at Gades or Cadis; all which are evidently prov'd to be much elder than the Theban Hercules's Time, and to be for the Honour of this Phœnician or Egyptian Hercules. From Greece he went to Italy, France, Spain and the Coaſt of Africa, leaving Colonies behind him in moſt Places, to whom the Phœnicians ſent Reinforcements, as Occaſion required, and by whoſe Example they alſo learn'd to ſettle new Plantations; which is the Reaſon of ſo vaſt a Number of Towns, Seas, Rivers, Mountains and Countries, both in Europe and Africa, whoſe Names were derived from the Phœnician Language, as the learned Bochart hath prov'd throughout his Treatiſe call'd Canaan. It is particularly mention'd, (t) that his Son Sardus came from Africa with Ships, and ſettl'd in Sardinia, ſo calling it from his own Name; whereas before it was call'd (u) Sandaliope and Ichneuſa from the Sole of a Foot, which the Figure of this Iſland repreſents. And this muſt be done in this Expedition; ſince we cannot ſuppoſe, that the Father would leave his Son in Egypt, or that the Egyptians would let him ſtay there, when the Father was expell'd. And thus Biſhop Cumberland ſaith, (x) that from this Retreat of Hercules or Aſſis into Phœnicia, he judges that the Foundation of all the Colonies muſt be laid, which are deriv'd from the Phœnicians, either in the neighbouring Part of Canaan, or in the Iſles of the Mediterranean Sea, or in the Continent of Greece eſpecially in Argos; tho' he could not deny but there were ſome Phœnicians, who fled later into the Parts of Mauritania about Tangier, when Joſhua conquer'd the Land of Canaan, and he ſuppoſes they went ſo far (as ſome of them certainly did) becauſe the Iſles, and the more neighbouring Countries, were inhabited by the more antient Colonies brought out of Egypt and Phœnicia.

84. When Hercules came to Tangier, he had ſeveral ſharp Engagements with Antæus the King of that Country, who had lately taken Poſſeſſion of it. He is reckon'd by ſome to be the Son of Atlas (whom Sancho-niatho makes to be one of the Sons of Noah) and to have been in Favour with Mizraim the Son of Ham in Upper-Egypt, and ſent from him to govern Ethiopia and Africa. But this is inconſiſtent with Chronology. It is more probable, that the Poſterity of the firſt Antæus might people Africa from the Parts of Ethiopia toward the Weſt, by the Banks of the River Niger, as before mention'd, till they came to Cape St. Verde, where one of their Rulers might be call'd Atlas, and from him the high Mountain in that Country, ſo fam'd among the Poets for Bearing up of the Heavens, might take its Name. This Atlas might have a Son, whom like the other he call'd Antæus, and ſo the Hiſtorians might eaſily miſtake the one for the other. This Antæus (y) was the Founder of Tangier. He is ſaid to have been a large Giant, and of vaſt Height, who wreſtled with Hercules, and as often as he was weary or faint, he would but touch the Earth and be in perfect Strength again; but Hercules crush'd Antæus to Death between his Arms, and after that carry'd the Axle-Tree of the Heavens to relieve Atlas. The Meaning of which mystical Story can be no more than this: That Hercules landed in those Parts; that Antæus was a famous Warriour, and almost a Match for him, and when he was conquer'd in several Battles, he went into his Country, where he rais'd Recruits, which enabled him to hazard several other Battles, until at last he was conquer'd, and so Hercules took Possession of the Country, and sustain'd the Weight of the Government, which Antæus and his Father Atlas had done before. And in Commemoration hereof, the Country thereabout is call'd by the antient Geographers Hercules's Promontory. From hence he pass'd thro' the Streights, and came to the Island of Cadiz, which being bounded with the western Ocean, he thought to be the farthest Part of the World, where he set up the two famous Pillars ever since call'd by his Name, as a Sign, that it was impossible to sail any farther. Here was a Temple built to him, of whose Antiquity there is this Token, that antiently no Images were found there; and the learned Bochart hath (z) fully prov'd from several Authors, that all the Customs us'd in this Temple were deriv'd from the Egyptians, and not from the Grecians. Here he slew Geryon, whom the Poets feign to have three Bodies, either because he was King of the three Spanish Islands, or because there were three Brethren of that Name, who rul'd so lovingly together, as if their three Bodies had been enliven'd by the same Soul. After this, being willing to return into his own Country, he carry'd off several Cattle from that Island, and came back as far as Greece, from which Time we hear no more of him. Herodotus tells us, that there were (a) eight Gods of a superior Order, by which he probably means Noah, his Sons, and their Wives, the (b) eight Souls who were saved from the Flood, and by whom the whole Earth was re-peopl'd; and that this Hercules and three more were added to the Number, so that afterward they had twelve in all, and therefore the Kings both in Upper and Lower-Egypt, who had been deify'd before, were only advanc'd to a lower Degree of Godship, or into the Number of the Heroes, as (c) Hesiod expressly mentions of the Men of that Age. The Grecians, who would allow no People to be more antient than themselves, have so confounded the Stories of this Egyptian and their Theban Hercules, who was concern'd in the Argonautick Expedition, that it is a hard Matter from their Authors to distinguish between them. Herodotus (d) tells us, that he could not hear a Word of the Grecian Hercules in any Part of Egypt; that the Name was of an Egypt-

tian Derivation; so that the Egyptians did not take it from the Greeks, but the Greeks from the Egyptians, and especially they, who gave this Name to Hercules the Son of Amphitryon, or rather of Jupiter by Almena the Wife of Amphytrion. He adds, that being (e) willing to be satisfy'd as well as he could concerning this Hercules, he sail'd to Tyre a City of Phœnicia, because there was (as he had heard) a Temple dedicated to him. Here discoursing with one of those Priests he ask'd, How long it was that the Temple was built? but he could only learn from them in general Terms, that it was built at the same Time with the City. When he was at Tyre, he found another Temple dedicated to Hercules by the Name of the Thasian. Upon this he went to the Island of Thasus, where he found a Temple built by the Phœnicians, who went abroad to search for new Colonies in Europe, and he was inform'd, that they had inhabited Thasus five Ages, or five hundred Years, before the other Hercules appear'd in Greece. So that from what hath been mention'd, we may learn some other Arguments to fix the Time of this Egyptian Hercules. He reign'd near fifty Years in Egypt, and as he must be in the Prime of his Age when he began to reign, so we cannot suppose him to be less than forty at that Time, and therefore he must be ninety when he went from thence. His many Voyages along the European and African Shores, and his many Wars, shew him to be of a strong Constitution, insomuch that he might live eighty or ninety Years longer, and so be (f) about the Age of Abraham or Isaac at his Death, and also contemporary with him, as he is plac'd. And if so, then he might live till within five hundred Years of the Argonautick Expedition, as it is plac'd by Marshall, and others of our best Chronologers, which exactly agrees with the Account that Herodotus mentions.

85. We may now the more readily return to the History of Abraham and his Posterity, since we shall find but little more to interrupt the Account thereof, which the Scriptures give us, and which is so plainly recorded by Moses, that it will need the less Explication. The first thing mention'd after the Expulsion of Hercules or Affis out of Egypt, is (g) the Death of Abraham, when he was 175 Years of Age, and consequently his Son Isaac was 75, and Jacob and Esau 15. He was bury'd by his Sons Isaac and Ishmael, in the Burial Place which he had formerly bought for that Purpose; so that there seems to have been now a good Understanding between them, and that they both liv'd with their Father. The Particulars, which were nearly Contemporary with his Death are these: Armamitres was made Emperor of the Affyrian Monarchy, and reign'd

The eastern Writers mention him as a Prophet. Religion staid in his Family, when all the World lost it besides, and he lives to see it gloriously settl'd in the Families of Abraham and Isaac. And Anno Mundi 2196. Eratus succeeds Messapus in the Sicyonian Kingdom, where he reigns 46 Years.

86. The first thing remarkable, which happen'd in the Family of Abraham after his Death, was Jacob's Getting the Birth-right from Esau. We have only a bare Conjecture concerning the Time, when it happen'd, which is this: Moses, in Giving an Account of this History, calls them (b) Boys or Lads, a Word which generally signifies a Person very young, and sometimes (i) a Child. The oldest, that we are certain of, is (k) thirty Years of Age, as appears in the Case of Joseph, or thirty three, as in (*) the Case of Benjamin; and therefore we may venture to place it about that Time. Esau endeavours to gain the Affection of his Father Isaac, and Jacob endeavours to gain the Affection of his Mother Rebeccah. Jacob dwelt in the Tent at home with his Mother to please her; and Esau hunted for Venison to entertain his Father with it at his Table to please him. It happen'd, that Esau had over-tir'd himself with too violent and long Pursuit of his Sports; so that he was faint at his Returning home, and seeing some Pottage made of (l) Egyptian Lentiles, which were in great Esteem and much (m) commended by the Antients, and gave it a red Colour. Esau begs some of Jacob, in such a Manner as shews him so faint, that he could not tell how to bring out his Words. Edom in Hebrew signifies Red, and (n) in the Speech of Esau the Word Pottage is left out; so that in Hebrew it runs thus, Feed me, I pray thee, with that Edom, with that Edom, that, that; therefore his Name, most probably in Derision, was call'd Edom, and from him the City which he built, and the Country which his Posterity inhabited, was call'd Edom, and by the Greeks Idumæa. There were several Privileges which were annex'd to the Birth-right in those Days, among which some reckon the Promise of the MESSIAH as coming from the elder, and the Priesthood, and to have a double Portion of the Father's Estate. Jacob would not part with his Pottage, unless Esau did part with all these to him, and also bind it with an Oath for the greater Security, to which Esau thinking himself ready to die consented; and therefore he is said to despise his Birth-right, and that afterward, when he knew what he had done, (o) was sorry for his Folly, (p) and lamented his Misfortunes with many Tears to no Purpose; for what was done was irrevocable.

Anno Mundi 2198. 87. There are some, who vindicate this Fact of Jacob's, and also his Gaining the Blessing afterward by Imposing on his Father Isaac, because it was design'd to bring about what GOD had promis'd, and because the Scriptures always represent him as a good Man. But we need not carry Matters so high. Moses, who records the Stories, doth not commend him for them, and therefore we are left at Liberty to judge of them, as we shall think most reasonable. The Promises will not warrant us to take any ill Method to obtain them; for then David might have kill'd Saul in the Cave. And tho' GOD can and often doth bring Good out of Evil; yet we are not to do Evil that Good may come out of it. Neither can we excuse Jacob, because he is represented as a good Man; for the Scriptures have carefully recorded the Failings of the best Men, with this View, that we may learn from hence, that all are Sinners.

88. Soon after this (q) there was a famine in Canaan, and at the same Time a great Plenty of every thing in Egypt. Isaac, upon the Death of his Father Abraham, having probably remov'd to Mamre near Hebron, where his Father had often dwelt, was afflicted with it, insomuch that hearing that there was great Plenty of every thing in Egypt, he resolves to go thither, as (r) Abraham his Father had done in the like Case; but the Glory of the LORD appear'd to him, and diverted him from it, and directed him to stay in the Country at Gerar near Beersheba, which lay in his Way to Egypt, with a Promise to provide for him, to give him all the Blessings which he promis'd to Abraham, and particularly that the MESSIAH should be of his Seed. This being an hundred Years after Abraham was there, it cannot be suppos'd, that the same King govern'd at that Time, tho' he was call'd by the same Name, or Abimelech; but that it was rather a Son or a Grandson, and that Abimelech was only a common Title, as in David's Time (s) Achish

the King of the Philistines was call'd Abimelech, and consequently that (t) his General Phicol was not the same with the other, but only one who succeeded in the same Office: and it is the more probable, because the Word in the Arabick Language signifies, In every thing, or In every Place, and shews that a General ought to be concern'd in all publick Transactions, and to have a watchful Eye in every Place. Isaac trusting in GOD's Providence, and being obedient to his Command, goes not down into Egypt, as he first intended, but stays among the Philistines, where like (u) Abraham he saith of his Wife, that she was his Sister, or his Cousin German, as the Word is frequently us'd in those Languages. We need not excuse the Fact in either. The best Men have their Failings, and it was an Equivocation occasion'd by Fear, which led the Philistines into an Error in Abraham's Time, and might have done the same now, had not the other Example and the Effect thereof continu'd in their Memories, and therefore when Abimelech discover'd it, he gave strict Charge to his Subjects, that none should do them any Injury. Isaac varying here by GOD's Appointment grew very rich, and had great Possessions of Flocks and Herds, and a great Number of Servants, some of whom he employ'd to open the Wells which his Father had digg'd to water the Cattle, and call'd them by their former Names, the better to secure his Title. These being not sufficient, they digg'd more, and the Herdsmen of Gerar having fill'd the Country by the Retreat of the Canaanitish Pastors out of Egypt, disputed his Title, and contended with him, saying, The Water is ours; and therefore he call'd it Esek, or Contention. In the same Manner they contended for another, and he call'd it Sitnah or Enmity; and from this Word the Devil is call'd Satan, or an Adversary. It is probable, that Isaac for Quietness sake yielded up what Right he had to those Wells, and digg'd another, which they on the other hand yielded to him; and therefore he call'd the Name of the Place Reboboth, which signifies Room or Enlargement, or Streets; For now, saith he, the LORD hath made room for us, and we shall be fruitful in the land. Near to this Place there was afterward a City built, which was call'd (x) Reboboth by the river; by which we may observe, that it lay by the River Sorek, which runs to Askelon or Gerar, and there empties it self into the Mediterranean Sea, and was famous for the Birth of one of the Kings of Edom.

89. After the Famine was over, Isaac remov'd from thence to Beersheba, where he and his Father had antiently liv'd. Here GOD appear'd to him, encourag'd him, and promis'd to bless him, and multiply his Posterity for the Sake of his Father Abraham. Here he re-built (y) the Altar which Abraham had before built, and was now destroy'd, and set apart for a Place of divine Worship, and Isaac accordingly dedicates it to the same Purpose. Here he also digs again (z) the Well of Beer-sheba, which seems like the rest to have been fill'd with Dirt by the Philistines, to prevent his Claim to it. And (a) at this Well Abimelech and Phicol make a new League with him, and confirm it by an Oath, in (b) the same Manner as their Ancestors had done with his Father Abraham.

90. Soon after this Amosis or Tethmosis King of Lower-Egypt dies, and is succeeded by Chebron, who (c) reign'd thirteen Years. And within a few Years (d) Esau being forty Years old marries Judith the daughter of Beer the Hittite, and Basemath the daughter of Elon the Hittite. His very Marrying with them greatly afflicted his Father and Mother, which Grief might be increas'd by their Idolatry and undutiful Behaviour. Josephus saith, that (e) they were Persons of great Fame and Blood among the Canaanites. He adds also, that Esau did this upon his own Head and Fancy, without ever Consulting his Father, or if he consulted him, yet he had no Consent; for his Father had taken up a firm Resolution never to enter into any Sort of Alliance with that People. But however the thing being done, could not be undone; and Isaac thought it his best Course rather to pass it over in Silence, than to put it to the Extremity of Turning his Wives away. The Names of these Wives are not the same with those whom he is afterward (*) said to have married, viz. Adah the Daughter of Elon the Hittite, and Abolibamah the Daughter of Anah the Daughter of Zibeon the Hivite; and therefore it is probable, that these died without Issue. And so he took another Daughter of Elon, when Judith was dead, call'd Adah; and the Daughter of a Man call'd Anah, by whom he had (†) several Children.

91. It may here be ask'd, Why Esau should be call'd (f) a profane Man, and especially (g) a fornicator, when no Act of this Nature appears, except his Marrying of these two Wives, and yet Jacob, who marry'd two Sisters and their Handmaids, was never branded with any Mark of Infamy for the same Reason? To this it may be answer'd, That the Canaanites were abominable Idolaters, under the Curse of GOD, and devoted to utter Destruction. For this Reason (b) Abraham made his Steward swear, that he would not take a Wife for his Son Isaac from the Daughters of the Canaanites, among whom he dwelt. Isaac gave the (i) same Charge to Jacob, and no doubt to Esau also, and it was (k) afterward forbidden the Israelites to take any of their Daughters, or indeed to make any Marriages with them. And then it was a very undutiful, and even a wicked thing to marry with those People, who were under the Curse of God. So that the Scripture might well call him profane, who as before he had despis'd the Blessing, so now he seems not to value the Displeasure of his Father. And as the Reason of this was to prevent Idolatry; so for the Preserving of the true Religion in their Families there seems to be another Command, that they should particularly marry their near Relations. Abraham is generally suppos'd to have marry'd his Brother Nabor's Daughter; however she is (l) own'd to be a near Relation; and (m) he commanded his Steward to go to his own Country and to his Kindred, and take a Wife for his Son Isaac, and Isaac (n) gave Jacob the same Charge: And therefore Esau's Marrying of such as were at that Time prohibited, seems to be the Reason of his being call'd a Fornicator.

92. Among the Rest of the Colonies planted in Europe at the Expulsion of the Pastors, there was one in Greece, which was brought thither by Ogyges, who is reckon'd to have been the Builder and King of Thebes, which was sometimes call'd from him by the Poets Ogygiæ. His Name seems to be of an Oriental Derivation, and the same with Og, afterward King of Bashan, by a Doubling of the last radical Letter, as it is very common in those Languages. In his Time there hap-pen'd a very great Flood in Greece, which some have confounded with Noah's Flood. Cedrenus, a Grecian Monk, (o) places it 32 Years after the aforesaid Expulsion, and our learned Primate exactly agrees with him, in (p) Placing it 1020 Years before the first Olympiad.

Six Years after Amenophis the first succeeds Chebron as King of Lower-Egypt, who reigns (q) twenty Years and seven Months: And Cnubus succeeds Syrius as King of Upper-Egypt. After Abraham had been dead 40 Years, Husham (r) the third King of the Horites died, and Hadad the Son of Bedad reigned in his stead, and the name of the City, where he dwelt, was call'd

Arith. Of him there is this remarkable Passage, that he smote Midian in the field of Moab. Moses probably recorded this, because it was a Calamity to the Ancestors of (s) Jethro his Father-in-law the Priest of Midian. Our learned (t) Bishop Cumberland adds, that from this Circumstance, we may make an Approach either to the End, or to the Beginning of the Reign of this Hadad, and see about what Time of Midian's Age this fell out, which he endeavours to prove after this Manner.

93. According to what he had before laid down, which is mention'd at the first Rise of the Horite Kings 126 Years before this Time, he supposes, that the End of Hadad's Reign was about the Year of the World 2261. Now Midian being the Son of Keturah, whom Abraham is suppos'd to have marry'd about the Year 2148, and being the fourth Son might probably be born about the Year 2152; and by Deducting this out of 2261, there remains 109. This assures us, that Midian must be smitten by Hadad, before he was 109 Years old; tho' this Blow should be given in the last Year of his Reign, but probably it was done much sooner. And this Prelate farther adds, that this Example gives us an Argument to prove that the Kings of Seir are justly plac'd before any of Esau's Family were Dukes there, which he supposes to have began about the Year 2429; so that there was Room enough left for four Kings to reign after Midian was smitten, and before the Aristocracy under the Dukes began.

94. It is recorded (u) of Ishmael, that he was to be a fierce Man, engag'd in Wars against others, and others against him; and therefore he probably commanded in this Expedition to invade the Inhabitants of Mount Seir, and took his Brother Midian with him, and when they came into the Fields of Moab, with a Design to possess themselves of the neighbouring Country, Hadad march'd out and met them upon his own Frontiers, and so gain'd a great Victory over them. And if we suppose, that Ishmael was slain in the same Battle, when (x) he was 137 Years, it will fix the Time with a greater Certainty to be when Midian was 79 Years of Age, and in the twelfth Year of Hadad's Reign. It is observable, that from Adam even to Levi the Age of them, who descended to him in a direct Line, are only mention'd, except Ishmael. This being therefore a very particular Case, must be mention'd for a particular Reason, and perhaps no particular Reason can be given but this: If we allow, that (y) the Words,

He fell in the presence of all his brethren, may intimate his being slain in the sight of his Relations, as (z) the Word frequently signifies, it may strengthen this Conjecture. And if some of his Sons were slain with him at the same Time, this may be a good Reason, why we hear nothing of any from his two first Wives, or of the Settlements of (*) some others in the eastern Countries.

95. After this Amenophis dies, and (a) Ameffis his Sister succeeds him in the Government of Lower-Egypt, where she reigns twenty Years and seven Months; and Euechous (b) sets up a new King in Chaldaea among the Arabians, which (c) plucks the Feathers of the Affyrian Monarchy, or weakens its Power on that Side, and was providentially ordain'd by GOD, that the Israelites might afterward travel in the adjacent Countries without any Disturbance.

96. Isaac being now 137 Years old, (d) intended to give the Blessing to his eldest Son Esau, whom he lov'd best. This Blessing is suppos'd to be the Land of Canaan, with which GOD promis'd Abraham, that he would bless his Posterity. For the last Benediction of these great Men was the Settling of their Inheritance, and Making those their Heirs, upon whom they bestow'd it. So that tho' the Birthright, which Esau had sold Jacob, gave him a Right to (e) a double portion of Isaac's Estate; yet the Land of Canaan was to be dispos'd of by him according to the divine Direction. Rebecca, who lov'd Jacob best, puts him upon a subtle Design to supplant his Brother, which he effected by a Disguise, by several Lies, and obstinately Persisting in some of them. Isaac, by a prophetick Instinct, foretells what should happen to Jacob's Posterity, long before Moses had recorded it; that (f) they should dwell in the Land of Canaan, where there would be Plenty of all things, and GOD's Providence should watch over them for this Purpose; that they should make (g) the Canaanites hewers of wood and drawers of water; that in the Time of David they (h) should conquer the Moaabites, Ammonites, Syrians and Philistines, and that (i) the Edomites also should be subdued by him. He also tells Esau, that he should inhabit a poor Country, destitute of Corn and Wine, (as some think that (k) the Hebrew expresses it) that he should live upon the Spoil, and maintain himself by the Sword, and be in perpetual Wars to defend his Country. He makes no Mention of the Plenty of Corn and Wine; only that in Length of Time they should grow stronger, and shake off their Subjection to the Israelites, as (l) they did in the Time of Joram. Esau being thus disappointed, resolves to kill his Brother Jacob, when a convenient Opportunity should present. This being told to Rebecca, she takes Care to prevent it, by (m) Persuading her Husband Isaac to send him into Syria to take a Wife from among his own Relations. Isaac accordingly blesteth him with a solemn Blessing, in which he ratifies what he had done before, settles the Land of Canaan more fully and distinctly upon him, and prophesies, that he should be the Father of the promis'd MESSIAS.

97. When Jacob was gone upon this Errand, Esau finding (n) that his Marrying the Canaanitish Wives was a great Trouble to his aged Parents, who (o) often reflected upon it, and that Isaac had sent Jacob to marry a first Cousin, he goes also into the Country of Nebajoth, and there he marries a first Cousin, who was call'd Mahalah the Daughter of Ishmael. Some think, that there was a prudent Design in this to please his Father, in hope of Obtaining the Blessing. However he shew'd himself to have no great Regard to the Divine Revelation; for he could not but know, that this Family, being descended from a Bondwoman, was not to inherit the Promises made to Abraham and Isaac, and it looks as if he went about to set up the Pretensions of that Family, who was the elder by Birth, in Opposition to the other. She is also call'd (†) Bashemath. And the Reasons of it are suppos'd to be, that she might have two Names given her at the first; or that Esau chang'd her Name from Mahalah, which signifies sickly and infirm, into Bashemath, which signifies aromatick and fragrant, either because the Name better pleas'd him, or because he thought, that it would better please his Father, or else she might grow more healthy after Marriage.

94. After (p) Jacob had parted from Beer-sheba, where his Father Isaac liv'd, he happen'd on a certain Place, which was call'd Luz from the many Almond Trees, which grew there; for the Word Luz (q) in Hebrew signifies an Almond-Tree. These Trees affording a cool and large Shade, and being a Covering in case of Rain, Jacob took up his Lodging there, and chose one fit Stone from among the rest for a Pillow. Here he had a Dream to comfort him in his solitary and poor Condition, which was this: A Ladder was set upon the Earth, the Top of it reach'd to Heaven, the Angels of GOD ascended and descended upon it, and (r) the divine Glory or Majesty appear'd on the Top of it, which assur'd Jacob of his Protection, and confirm'd to him all the Promises, that had before been made to Abraham and Isaac. Maimonides (s) tells us, that in this Vision every Word hath its Weight, and accordingly expounds it thus: The Ladder represents the divine Providence, which governs all things, and particularly now directed Jacob in his Journey, every Step whereof was under the divine Guidance. Its being set upon the Earth signify'd the Stedfastness of Providence, which nothing is able to shake. The Top of it reaching to Heaven shews, that it extends it self all the World over, to every thing great or small, high or low. The several Steps in the Ladder signify the various Motions of the Divine Power and Wisdom. The Angels which went up and down are the great Ministers of GOD's Providence, by whom he manages all things here below, who are never idle, but always in Motion to succour and assist the Servants of GOD. Their Ascending shews their Going to receive the divine Orders and Commands, and their Descending the Execution of them. Or to speak more particularly of Jacob's present Condition, one signify'd their safe Conduct of him in his Journey to Padan-aram, and the other their Bringing of him home again. And GOD appear'd above it as the unmovable Mover of all things; from whom all things come as the first Cause, and return as the last End. Here was the Place, which Abraham dedicated to the Worship of GOD by (t) Building an Altar there, and Calling on his Name; tho' it is (u) more than probable, that Jacob knew nothing of it at that Time. When he awoke, he was possess'd with an awful Apprehension of the divine Presence, and said, This is no other but Bethel, or the house of GOD, and this is the gate of heaven. The (x) Presence of GOD in one Place more than another, consists in his Train or Retinue. A King is there, where his Court is; and GOD is there especially present, where the Angels keep their Station. And the (y) Opinion, that the Angels were present in the publick Assemblies, occasion'd a greater Reverence for those Places by the primitive Christians. The Gate was also usually the Seat of Justice, where the Kings and Senators usually sat, attended by their Guards and Senators. And the Gate of Heaven signify'd only the Court of GOD.

95. To consecrate this Place more effectually (z) Jacob takes a stone, and sets it up for a pillar upon the Top of some other Stones, which he had heap'd up together, that it might remain as a Monument of GOD's Mercy to him, and preserve the Memory of this heavenly Vision, and that by this Token he might know the Place, and commemorate GOD's Goodness to him, whenever he return'd hither again. And perhaps before the Building of Churches our Ancestors might have some Respect to this, when in Places appointed for religious Worship they erected some Crosses, as we now call them, with Steps to go up, and a Pillar on the Top; of which there are several, which remain to be seen in many Parts of Great Britain at this Time.

96. From the Word Bethel came the (a) Word Bætulia among the Heathen, by which they meant some unpolis'd Stones, which they worshipp'd as Symbols of the Deity, or as true Gods animated by some heavenly Power. The Jews (b) were of the Opinion, that the Phœnicians first worshipp'd this very Stone which Jacob set up, and afterward consecrated others in Commemoration of it. Sanchoniatho, whose Business it was to frame an antient History for the Encouragement of Idolatry, saith, that (c) Noah devis'd Bætulia, or Stones that mov'd, as if they had Life. And he saith, that (d) in the fifth Generation before the Flood two unpolis'd Stones or Pillars were consecrated by Ufous to Fire and Wind, who worshipp'd them, and pour'd out to them the Blood of such wild Beasts, as had been caught in Hunting. And when this Generation was dead, they who remain'd alive, consecrated other Pillars and Stumps of Wood, and kept anniversary Feasts to them. So that the Conversion of these Pillars to an idolatrous Use before the Time of Moses, was the Reason, that (e) GOD forbid the Israelites to erect any.

97. To consecrate it more effectually, Jacob (f) pour'd oil upon the top of it. From whence it appears, that the Setting apart of Things, and perhaps of Persons, by Anointing them with the holy Oil, was a Custom more antient than Moses's Time, who most probably retain'd it as he found it. It was an Act of Jacob, with which GOD was well pleas'd, and therefore he said to him at another Time, (g) I am the GOD of Bethel, where thou anointedst the pillar, and where thou vowedst a vow unto me. Prophets, Priests and Kings were anointed among the Jews, as Types of CHRIST. Kings were anointed usually at their Coronation. The Tabernacle and its Utenfils were anointed at their Dedication. The Name, by which our SAVIOUR is called, is in Hebrew (h) MESSIAS, and in Greek CHRIST, and in both Languages signifies The Anointed; and it is said of him, as of the Antitype, (i) The LORD thy GOD hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows.

98. The first religious Act, which we read of, that Jacob did afterward perform in this Place, was a solemn Vow, that if GOD (k) did protect and preserve him, supply him with Necessaries, and bring him back to his Father's House in Peace, he would suffer no Idolatry in his Family; the Place, where this Pillar stood, should be always dedicated to his Worship, and he would constantly give the Tenth of all, which he should have, the more effectually to support it. He knew, that Abraham when (l) he came from the Slaughter of the Kings, did voluntarily make this Offer to Melchizedeck the Priest of the most high GOD, and now he obligeth himself by a Vow to perform the same. Jacob promis'd to pay them to GOD, that is, to the Person who was GOD's Representative in his Family, either in a spiritual or temporal Respect, that is, to Isaac, who being the common Father was both King and Priest in his own House. This he did no Doubt to Isaac, as long as he liv'd, the better to support him in his old Age; but when Isaac died, the Obligation ceas'd; because as he succeeded his Father in both these Respects, so he could neither receive them from, nor pay them to himself. Hence arose the ancient Custom among the (m) Kings of the Eastern Countries, and particularly (n) at Babylon, to receive the Tenths from their Subjects, which afterward was (o) also at Athens tho' a Commonwealth, and also (p) among the Romans; and GOD himself had particularly appointed, that in the Land of Canaan (q) the Tythes should be paid to the Tribe of Levi.

99. From Bethel Jacob sets forward to go to Mesopotamia, which the Scripture now calls (r) the Land of the children of the east. This made some think, that he travell'd eastward; but that was a Mistake; because Mesopotamia and particularly Haran lay northward from Bethel. The Truth is this, Babylon lay eastward from both Countries. The Babylonians might therefore well be call'd the People of the East, so that Jacob only went into a Country, of which they were Lords and Masters; and plainly shews, that whatever Loss they had sustain'd in Arabia, yet their Empire still remain'd absolute in those Parts.

100. Jacob (s) coming to the Well of Haran, soon grew acquainted with Rachel, by Assisting of her to water the Sheep. Upon this he tells her who he was, and she brings him to her Father's House. Here he stays a Month, and being very serviceable among them as a Shepherd, Jacob being 77 Years old, makes a Bargain with Laban to serve seven Years Apprenticeship for Rachel, and having serv'd seven Days, as an Earnest for the seven Years, he claims his Bargain, but was put off with Leah. He had deceiv'd his Father with a suborn'd Person, taking upon himself to be Esau, when he was Jacob; and he is deceiv'd by his Father-in-Law with a suborn'd Person, and so embraces Leah, whilst he thought that he had embrac'd Rachel. In his Thoughts and Intentions the Birthright was to belong to the first-born of Rachel, and so it really was in due Time, for (t) it was given to Joseph.

101. When Jacob saw that he was thus impos'd upon, and that there was no Remedy, he covenants with Laban to serve another seven Years Apprenticeship for Rachel, and serves seven Days for an Earnest as before, after which he takes her also. Thus Rachel and Leah are Figures of the two Churches, the Church of the Jews under the Law, and the Church of the Gentiles under the Gospel: The youngest is the more beautiful, and was more in the Thoughts of CHRIST, when he came in the Form of a Servant; but the other like Leah was first embrac'd and taken to Wife.

102. They who reckon, that Jacob serv'd seven Years before he had either of his Wives, involve themselves in endless Difficulties to settle the Births of the Patriarchs. It could not be fourteen Years before he married Rachel, because at fourteen Years End (u) Joseph was born, and then Jacob had eleven Sons and a Daughter. It could not be seven Years between the Marriage of Leah and Rachel; for (x) Leah's first Son was given her because she was hated, whilst Rachel was barren, and consequently married also. And therefore if (y) the Fulfilling of a Week was thought sufficient to make a Bargain for seven Years in the Case of Rachel, the (z) Fulfilling of as many Days might be reckon'd as sufficient in the Case of Leah. And therefore taking it for granted, that Jacob married both in six Weeks after he came to Haran, the Births of the Patriarchs may be computed in the following Manner.

In something more than the Space of a Year Leah had a Son, (a) whom she call'd Reuben, that is, Behold a Son; For she said, Surely the LORD hath looked on my affliction; now therefore my husband will love me.

At a convenient Distance after this, Leah had a second Son, (b) whom she call'd Simeon, that is, Hearing; For she said, Because the LORD hath heard that I was hated, he hath therefore given me this son also.

At a convenient Distance after this, Leah had a third Son, (c) whom she call'd Levi, that is, Joined; For she said, Now this time will my husband be joined unto me, because I have born him three sons.

At a convenient Distance after this, Leah had a fourth Son, (d) whom she call'd Judah, that is, He shall be praised; For she said, Now will I praise the LORD.

Upon this (e) Rachel gives her Handmaid Bilhah to Jacob, who bears a Son, whom Rachel calls Dan, that is, Judging; For she said, GOD hath judged me, and hath also heard my voice, and hath given me a son.

At a convenient Distance after this, Bilhah bears Jacob a second Son, whom (f) Rachel calls Naphtali, that is, My Wrestling; For she said, With great wrestlings have I wrestled with my sister, and I have prevail'd.

Leah all this while having (g) no more Children, gives Zilpah her Maid to Jacob, as Rachel had done before, who in due Time bears a Son, whom Leah calls Gad, that is, A Troop; For she said, A troop cometh.

At a convenient Distance after this, Zilpah bears (h) Jacob a second Son, whom Leah calls Asher, that is, Happy; For she said, Happy am I; for the daughters will call me happy.

At this Time Reuben being nine Years old goes into the Field, and finds a Fruit which we call (i) Mandrakes, perhaps because we have no Name in English, whereby to express it. It is (k) a Fruit, which in Syria they call Manz, growing upon a Plant, on the Top of which there are great Bunches of it like several Cucumbers. It had (l) a very pleasant Smell, and a most delicious Taste. From their Growing together in Branches, they were call'd in Hebrew Dudaim, which signifies properly Kinsmen, Neighbours and Friends, and is metaphorically apply'd to this Fruit, as growing together in Clusters, and sprung from the same common Branch or Stock. Reuben brings them to Leah, Rachel desires to eat some of them, which Leah refuses, but upon Condition, that Jacob should be with her that Night; which Leah told Jacob saying, (m) I have hired thee. Leah having on this Occasion another Son, calls him (n) Issachar, that is, There is the Hire; For she also said, GOD hath given me my hire.

At a convenient Distance after this Leah bears Jacob (o) a sixth Son, whom she calls Zebulun, that is, Dwelling together; For she said, Now will my husband dwell with me, because I have born him six Sons.

At a convenient Distance after this, (p) Leah bears a Daughter, whom she calls Dinah, that is, Judgment. What Words she us'd are not mention'd; but they must probably be like those of Rachel at the Birth of Dan.

Soon after this Rachel bears a Son, whom (q) she calls Joseph. There (r) are two Hebrew Verbs, from whence this Word may be deriv'd. If from one it signifies, He shall take away; If from the other, it signifies, He shall add. Rachel alludes to both, and saith, GOD hath taken away my reproach, and, The LORD shall add to me another son. There are several other Names, as we go along, which may seem to be of an oriental Derivation. Laban in Hebrew signifies White, and in Arabick Milk; and may seem to intimate, as if at the Time of his Birth the chief Part of his Parents Estate consisted in great and small Cattle, and their Product. Rachel signifies a Sheep, perhaps for the same Reason, or that she was intended to take Care of the Sheep, or to recommend to her the Virtues of Meekness and Patience, which is in Sheep. And for such Reasons others (s) had Names from other Animals. Leah signifies For a Brother, as if her Father intended her from the Beginning to marry a Relation. But where the Scriptures do not give us an Account of the Reason of the Names, it will be to little Purpose to be over curious about them.

103. Jacob having now serv'd (t) two Apprenticeships, and being above ninety Years of Age, is willing to return home to his Father. Laban desires him to stay longer. Jacob consents by Making a cunning Bargain, by which he gets all Laban's Cattle for his own. Laban agrees to the Bargain, thinking to trick Jacob, whereby he is trick'd himself. It is a Question, whether Jacob got all his Riches honestly; because Laban did not think of Using any Art, but only of a bare casual Production. Some say, that whatever was not directly against the Contract, may be thought to be allow'd by it. But this Answer will leave too great a Latitude for every Buyer, or Seller, or Maker of Bargains to impose upon the Ignorance of the other. Others say, that he did that which was really evil, but GOD turn'd it to his Advantage. The best Excuse is, that (u) GOD appear'd to him, and directed him by his Angel to use this Method, or at least testified his Approbation of it, when it was done, and thus gave him a Reward for what he did at Bethel, when he anointed the Pillar, and where he vow'd his Vow. So that GOD intended by that Method to transfer to Jacob the Wealth of Laban, as (x) he gave the Riches of the Egyptians to the Israelites. And therefore as (y) the whole World is his, and the fulness thereof; he may justly dispose of every thing in it, as he pleases, and his Commands will justify us in Acting accordingly. So that Jacob's Example will not excuse the like Practice at this Time, because GOD doth not appear to give Directions now in such Cases, as he did in former Ages; but instead thereof hath left us his holy Word to direct us, which positively forbids all such Methods as these.

104. At the End of (z) twenty Years, he had so many Affronts, that he could not bear them. Laban's Sons utter'd many discontented and threatening Speeches, and so spoke of him, that they made him suspect he would be us'd accordingly. He also saw by Laban's Looks, that things were not likely to go well with him, if he stay'd there any longer. But above all, the divine Majesty appear'd to him, and order'd him to return, with a Promise to protect him. Upon this he resolves to be gone, and consults his two Wives Leah and Rachel about it; and finding them as willing as he, he immediately marches off with all his Family and Goods, and passes over the River Euphrates. Laban had a Knowledge of the true GOD, whom he calls (a) JEHO-

Anno

VAH, (b) the GOD of Abraham, and the GOD of Nabor, and the GOD of their Father: However he superstitiously fell into the Idolatry of the Country, and had a Tera- phim or Set of Idols for this Purpose. They had in their Temples large Images, which they publickly worshipp'd, and they had the Pictures of these cast or engrav'd in Brass or Silver, as People were willing to pay for them. These Josephus calls, (c) the Images of the Gods of the Country, and the Romans call'd them their household Gods. A Set of these exactly like the Pictures in the Book call'd Pantheon, being about four Inches high, was lately digg'd up in Wiltshire, and shewn about the Country. The beloved Rachel steals away these Images, and carries them with her. Josephus saith, that (d) she did not this out of any Respect, which she had for the Idols, for her Husband had taught her better things, and to contemn them; but she fancy'd to her self, that in Case they should be pursu'd and overtaken, by their Help Matters might be brought to a Composition. It is more likely, that she retain'd a Mixture of the same Superstition, which her Father had. For if she had thought them to be of no Efficacy, she needed not to have taken them away. If she knew that they could do no Good; she could not but know, that the Taking of them might have been discover'd, and that must have done Harm. She might have sent them back again, if she had no Value for them; and besides, she kept them till GOD's Judgments had overtaken the Family, and upon that Jacob forc'd her to part with them.

105. At the End of seven Days after Jacob's Flight, Laban overtakes him, and after some Debates, and several hard Words on both Sides, they mutually agree to forgive all past Injuries, and to commit none for the Time to come, and confirm this Agreement with an Oath. For a farther Testimony hereof they set up a Pillar, and (e) lay together an Heap of Stones, which Laban calls Jegar Sabadutha. This Expression in Chaldee signifies, The Heap of Witness, and is an Argument of the Antiquity of that Language; and Jacob calls it Gilead, which signifies the same in Hebrew. After this they call it (f) Mizpeh, which probably signify'd A watch Tower in both Languages at that Time, saying, The LORD watch between us both, when we are absent one from another. After this they feasted together, and Laban return'd to Haran, and Jacob went on his Journey.

And Mesapus succeeds Leucippus as King of Sicyonia, where he reigns 47 Years.

107. When Jacob was gone to Haran, Esau finds that Isaac had blest'd him again, and sent him thither for a Wife, that he grew more and more in his Father's Affections, and especially that the Land of Canaan, where Isaac now dwelt, was given by GOD to Jacob and his Posterity for an Inheritance; so that if Esau had staid in that Country, a Time would come when his Family must be all destroy'd, and therefore he leaves his aged Parents, and goes into the Country of the Ishmaelites to his last Wife's Relations. He knew, that (g) his Posterity should be a great Nation, and finding that Country too strait for him, being in Effect encompass'd by several other neighbouring Nations, so that the Ishmaelites had not Room for themselves, but some of their Families were forc'd to remove and settle at the east Side of Jordan in Arabia Deserta; and finding also that the Horites had a more open Country toward Arabia, he resolves to settle among them, particularly at Mount Seir; so that the Country was afterward from him call'd Idumæa. It is also probable, that Isaac had sent him thither, as Abraham had done before by his other Sons; especially finding that since the Return of the Egyptian Pastors into Canaan, they had not Room for all their Cattle, but were forc'd to seek out for something at a farther Distance; and that Jacob and Esau might part from their Father about the same Time. The Scripture (h) mentions this Separation much like to that of Abraham and Lot. Esau took his wives and his sons and his daughters, and all the persons of his house, and his cattle, and all his beasts, and all his substance, which he had gotten in the land of Canaan, and went into the country from the face of his father Isaac. For their riches were more than that they could dwell together: and the land wherein they were strangers, could not bear them because of their cattle. And so Esau dwelt in Mount Seir. Hadad the King of the Horites seeing a single Family come to live with him with so much Wealth, was glad to receive them; especially since the Egyptian Pastors came not into those Parts, there was Room enough in the Land, they were contented to live in a mountainous and barren Part, and Hadad might think this to be a Strengthening against a future Invasion, of which he had Cause to be apprehensive. Esau therefore comes in quietly and peaceably at first, and gets the Love of his Neighbours, by which Method his Family had afterward a Share in the Government, which prov'd (i) in the End to be the Overturning of it.

108. The Mountains of Libanus, Antilibanus and Amanus, in the Way from Haran to Canaan, being hardly passable with Flocks of large Cattle, Jacob chules to travel on the east Side of Jordan. As he came along, GOD, who had promis'd to be with him, gave him a visible Token of his Presence and Assistance; for (k) the holy Angels met him in a visible Shape like two Armies. Jacob knew them, and said, This is GOD's host. And he accordingly call'd the Name of the Place Mahanaim, which signifies two Armies or Camps. It was (l) also the Place, where David encamp'd when he fled from Abshalom. Jacob being encourag'd by this, sends Messengers to the Land of Seir to Esau, to court his Friendship, and to spy out the neighbouring Countries, whether or no he was like to meet with any Opposition. In the mean Time he encamps at Mahanaim, having the River Jabbok on his Front, that he could not easily be attack'd, which ran into the River Jordan a little below the Lake of Gennesaret. In the mean Time, Esau had rais'd an Army of 400 Men, with whom he marches to destroy Jacob. The Messengers return in all Haste with this News, which puts Jacob into a terrible Fright, and makes him take all Precautions for his Security. Jacob particularly prays to GOD, and it is probable, that GOD gave him a farther Promise of Success; for immediately upon this he quits his strong Camp, and marches forward to meet his Brother. Having (m) tried the Ford, and found it passable, he return'd, and caus'd all his Company to pass over, and staid behind them to (n) recommend himself and his Family to GOD by Prayer, as he had done before. When he had ended his Prayers, an Angel encountred him in the Shape of a Man, with whom he wrestled, taking him for one of Esau's Attendants come to surprize him. For it was so dark, that he could not see what Kind of Countenance he had. Many look upon this not to have been a created Angel, but the Angel of the covenant, or the eternal Δεσμός or WORD, and it is plain, that Jacob afterward took him so to be, for he prays to him to blest him, and said, that he had seen GOD face to face, and his life was preserved. The End and Design of this Combat was to shew, that Jacob (o) having such Power with God as to prevail at this Time, needed not to fear his Brother Esau. However by a light Touch upon the Thigh he made him know, that he could as easily have overthrown him as he made him halt. This discover'd to Jacob, that it was more than a Man, and therefore he did not prevail by his own Strength, but by the Power of GOD. Upon this it was also reveal'd to Jacob, that he must not depart from him without his Consent, and Jacob answer'd, that he would not let him go without a Blessing. To this it was reply'd, That his Name should be call'd Israel, and (p) his Posterity Israelites, or the Children of Israel, which Word signifies, (q) A mighty Prince, or A Prince with GOD, and the Reason is added, (r) For as a prince thou hast power with GOD, and with men, and (s) thou shalt prevail. And as a farther Proof, he (t) renews the Blessing, which GOD had so often promis'd to Abraham and his Seed, and (u) particularly to Jacob himself, which was still a farther Demonstration, that he and his Family should be preserv'd. For this Reason (x) Jacob call'd the name of the place (y) Peniel, which signifies, I have seen GOD. When he overtook his Family, he was probably told, that they had also seen a Vision of the same Nature, which made Jacob call that Place (z) Penuel, or, They have seen GOD. The Name Peniel was lost, and we find it in no other Text, to shew, that (a) no Scripture is of any private interpretation. But the (b) Name Penuel remains; because the Promises belong to all.

109. When (c) Jacob met Esau, he found accordingly that GOD had turn'd his Heart, for he (d) receiv'd him with all the Demonstrations of Love and Affection. When (e) a man's ways please the LORD, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him. Jacob urg'd Esau (f) to accept of a Present. Esau refus'd it, saying, I have enough. Jacob urg'd him with this Answer, (g) I have every thing, as the Hebrew expresseth it. Esau's Portion was in this World, and having Plenty of worldly Goods, he thought he had enough; for he look'd no farther. GOD was Jacob's Portion, and in GOD he had every thing, which could be desir'd. Esau was willing to accompany Jacob in his Journey, or at least to leave some of his Forces with him for his Security. Jacob was afraid to trust them, and desir'd their Room rather than their Company. Upon this Esau returns to Mount Seir; and Jacob came to a Place, where he built him an House, and made Booths for his Cattle, and for this Reason he call'd it Succoth, which in Hebrew signifies Booths. After this, he came (h) to Shalem, a City of Shechem, or as some render it, He came peaceably to the City of Shechem, or the City where Shechem liv'd, and which was (i) afterward call'd by his Name. Others say, He came perfectly safe and sound thither, that is, his Leg was so perfectly well, that he halted no longer. Here he buys a Field for a Sum of Money, (as (k) St. Stephen calls it) more particularly (l) an hundred pieces of money. In our Margin, it is an hundred Lambs, and signifies (m) a Piece of Money with the Picture of a Lamb stamp'd upon it. So that by this Time they were grown more exact in their Coining. The Value of it is uncertain, but as before they traded by Exchanging of Goods, particularly living Cattle; so it seems by the Stamp to be about the Value of a Lamb, and therefore was a fit Standard for all the Rest. Here Jacob resolves to settle; and accordingly he lays aside a Part thereof as a Place for divine Worship, where he builds an Altar, and calls it El Elobe Israel, or, The mighty GOD, the GOD of Israel.

110. Whilst Jacob was here, his Son Judab being about fourteen Years of Age, (n) marries a Canaanite from the Town of Adullam, which (o) afterward fell to his own Tribe, and was famous for the (p) Cave, where David hid himself. This is the first Instance of the Patriarchs Marrying out of their own Kindred,

(o) Thus the Vulgar Latin translates, Gen. 32. 28. For if thou hast been strong against GOD, how much more shalt thou prevail against Men? (p) For they were never call'd Jacobites, or The Children of Jacob. (q) The Hebrew Word Israel comes from ישראל a Prince, and is plainly contain'd in the Verb ישראל, Thou hast had power like a Prince, to which it alludes, Gen. 32. 28. Some reckon, that the Jod in the Beginning is but the common Note of a proper Name, and then it signifies, A Prince with GOD; Others make it a compound Word, thus ישראל, and then it signifies, There or He is a Prince with GOD, or A mighty Prince. The Word in the Hebrew, He kissed him, is mark'd in the Bible with four unusual Points over it, to shew four things; He ran to him, he embrac'd him, he fell on his neck, and he kissed him. But this is so plainly mention'd, that there needed no such Mark. The Jewish Commentators allow it to signify something remarkable, and some of them take it to mean the Sincerity of Esau's being reconcil'd to his Brother. If this is so, then there is no Ground to believe the Wars, which others say, did afterward break out between them. (e) Prov. 16. 7. (f) Gen. 33. 9. יש לי דבר. (g) Gen. 33. 10. יש לי כל. especially those to whom the Promises of the MESSIAH were given. Whether he did well or ill in it is not said, and therefore every one is at Liberty to conjecture as he pleases. Rachel had before stol'n the Images, and the Family was not yet purg'd from them; so that they seem not to have that Aversion to Idolatry as they ought, and therefore were the more easily reconcil'd to marry one of an idolatrous Nation. Judah had three Sons, Er, Onan, and Shelah, Er was a wicked Man, and perhaps by his Mother's Example; and Onan was but little, if any better. Judah marries his Sons at fourteen Years of Age, which was very young, especially in that Age of the World. The Reason hereof might probably be this, that Judah might have had some particular Promise, that the MESSIAH should be born of his Posterity, and therefore he was resolv'd to have a numerous Posterity as soon as possible. But it could not be otherwise, as appears from the following Account.

 1111. Some Time after this, Dinah the Daughter of Jacob being about fifteen Years of Age, went into the City of Shechem (as (q) Josephus tells us) to see the fine Sights and the Fashions of the Place upon a great Festival, which happen'd to be there. Shechem (r) the Son of Hamor fell in Love with her, took her away with him, and ravish'd her. This gives Cause of Tears to (s) the tender Eyes of her Mother Leah, and was the first Miscarriage in Jacob's House. It is no Wonder if GOD

overtakes him with some Scourge, when he is so slack to purge his Family, and to perform that Part (t) of his Vow, that the LORD alone should be the GOD of his Household. It is now seven or eight Years since GOD brought him from Haran, and yet he thought not of the Vow which he made twenty Years before, when he went thither. However Shechem begs his Father's Leave to marry Dinah, who not only consents to it, but goes himself to Jacob to treat for his Son. Jacob consulting with his Sons about it, they propose the Condition of Circumcision to the Shechemites, who accepted of it by the Persuasions of Hamor and Shechem. Simeon and Levi the Brethren of Dinah by the same Mother, resolv'd to be reveng'd for this Fact, without speaking a Word to their Father about it; and therefore upon the third Day after, when they were feverish and disorder'd with their Wounds, and (u) it being another Festival, they fell upon the Guards late in the Night, and easily master'd them, finding them drunken and secure in their Revels. They took Possession of the City, and kill'd all the Males which they could meet with, the King and his Son being of the Number, sparing only the Women: and upon this the (x) rest of Jacob's Sons, who were able to bear Arms, came to the Assistance of their two Brethren, help'd to plunder the City, and upon the Finishing of this Exploit, they brought home their Sister again to their Father. Jacob was highly incens'd against his Sons for what they had done, and struck with Horror at the Barbarity of so bloody an Action, insomuch that he resented it (y) even upon his Death-Bed; and he was more particularly afraid of the Canaanites and the Perizzites, those veteran Soldiers in the Egyptian Wars, lest they should revenge the Quarrel, and destroy both him and his Family. His Sons excus'd themselves, because the Injury done was against the Law of Nations, and the seven Precepts given to the Sons of Noah, and that they had no other Way to right themselves but by the Sword. Upon this, (z) GOD appear'd unto Jacob, and commanded him to go Bethel, and dwell there, and erect an Altar unto him alone, who would have no other God to be worshipp'd but himself. Jacob immediately purg'd his Household of all their Idols, broke them in Pieces, and hid them under an Oak, that they might never be found again. The Jews thought he had not Time to destroy them, and so he hid them; and particularly that (a) there was one Idol, which had the Shape of a Dove, which the Samaritans found afterward, and plac'd upon the Top of Mount Gerizim. Upon this, Jacob immediately marches off, and whatever Wars there might be before, GOD struck his Enemies with a panick Fear, that they did not think it adviseable to follow them any farther. Here were many Accidents, which happen'd in this Journey, and they were all probably in the same Year. Jacob comes to Bethel, and (b) builds an Altar there, which he calls El Bethel, or the GOD of Bethel. Rebekah's Nurse died, and was bury'd under an Oak, which (c) was call'd Allon bachuth, or The Oak of Mourning. GOD (d) appears to Jacob, blesteth him, and tells him, that his Name should be Israel, and he should inherit the Land of Canaan. Jacob dedicates a Pillar in Commemoration hereof, as (e) he had done before in the same Place. From Bethel, there was but (f) a little more than half a Mile to Ephrath, where Rachel died in Child-Birth. She had before said (g) to Jacob, Give me children, or else I die, and when she had more than one, they cost her her Life. Rachel call'd this (h) Son Benoni or The Son of my Grief, and Jacob call'd him Benjamin, or The Son of the Right-hand.

112. It may here be observ'd, that Judah and Pharez had each of them a Son at fifteen Years of Age, but Jacob had not this Son till he was 106 Years old, at a Time when the oldest Liver or Isaac was (i) 180 Years at his Death, which shews, that they had Children very young, and continu'd to have them until they were of a great Age; and therefore it seems to be the visible Method of Providence, by which the Earth was replenish'd so soon after the Flood.

113. Jacob travels with the Corps of Rachel until he comes to another Place, call'd also Ephrath near Bethlehem, and from whence Bethlehem is (k) call'd Bethlehem Ephratah in the Land of Judah. There he buries her, and sets up a Pillar over her Grave, which is since call'd The Pillar of Rachel's Grave. And then he pitch'd his Tent at a little Distance, in a Place call'd The Tower of Edar, where he stays for some Time, perhaps (l) about forty Days, until his Mourning for Rachel was ended. Whilst he was here, Reuben, Jacob's eldest Son, lay with Bilhah the Handmaid of Rachel, whom she gave to Jacob for a Wife, which entail'd the Curse of his Father upon him instead of a Blessing; so that he lost all the Rights of Primogeniture, or (m) the double Portion of the Estate, which was given to Joseph; the Priesthood, which was given to Levi; and the Kingdom, which was given to Judah: It was also foretold of him, that he should not excel, there should nothing great be said to be done by this Tribe in all the Scripture; because he had debas'd himself and his Family in so scandalous a Manner.

114. The Tower of Edar, where Jacob pitch'd his Tent, was about a Mile Distance from Bethlehem. It was call'd so, or The Tower of the Flock, perhaps from Rachel's being buried there, whose Name signify'd A Sheep, and the great Number of Cattle which Jacob brought with him thither. The Prophet Micah (n) speaks of the Tower of the Flock, the strong hold of the Daughter of Zion; but this is not suppos'd to be the same, but only to have taken its Name from hence. The (o) Chaldee Paraphrast observes, that the Tower of Edar is the Place, from whence the King MESSIAS shall be reveal'd in the last Days. And (p) one of the Antients tells us more than once, that the Tower of Edar was the Place, where Jacob fed his Flocks, that it had its Name from thence, and that the Shepherds watch'd there by Night, at the Time of our SAVIOUR's Birth, when (q) they heard the heavenly Host praising GOD, and saying, Glory be to GOD on high, and on earth peace, and good will toward men. However after Jacob had stay'd here a convenient Time, and after near thirty Years Absence from his Father, he returns to him with his Family and Substance to Hebron, the Place which he then inhabited, and where his Father Abraham had liv'd long before him.

115. Jacob had not been long with his aged Father, before the (r) Amonites, who dwelt near Shechem, resolve to revenge themselves upon him for the Murder of the Shechemites. Accordingly they seize upon that Piece of Land, which (s) he had bought of Hamor, and resolve not to part with it. Upon this Jacob arms all the Men, whom he could get together, marches on a sudden, gives them Battle, forces them to quit it, and so recovers by Force of Arms, that which he had before purchas'd with his own Money. The better to secure his Title, he (t) digs a Well, which was afterward call'd Jacob's Well. And when he was near his Death, he gives it (u) by a verbal Will to his Son Joseph. And calls it (x) a portion of ground, which he took out of the hand of the Amomite, with his sword, and with his bow. And the (y) Jews tell us, that there happen'd to be grievous and cruel Wars between the Amorites and the House of Jacob on this Occasion. This is the Reason, why (z) Joseph was bury'd here in his own Ground, and not in the Cave of Machpelah with his Ancestors and Relations.

116. About this Time the Ammonites, the Children of Lot, begin to stir. Whilst they were but few in Number, they were quiet; but now they grew populous, they destroy the Inhabitants, and seize upon the Land for their own. The Scripture saith, (a) that it was formerly accounted a land of giants, giants dwelt therein in old time, and the Ammonites call them Zamzumims, or thundering Fellows, a people great and many, and tall as the Anakims; but the LORD destroy'd them before the children of Ammon, and they succeeded them, and dwelt in their stead.

117. Neither were the Moabites, the other Branch of Lot's Family, idle about the same Time. They also growing numerous, (b) seize upon the Country of Ar, and destroy the antient Inhabitants, who were famous in Abraham's Days; and so take Possession of that Country also. The Scripture describes them thus, The Emims dwelt there in times past, a people great, and many, and tall as the Anakims; which also were accounted giants as the Anakims, but the Moabites call them Emims. Most of these Emims being thus cut off, they who remain'd, retir'd into the Wilderness of Idumæa, which border'd upon Moab. And there Anah (c) the Horite met with them, as he was feeding the Asses of Zibeon his father, and gave them such an Overthrow, that we hear no more of their Names in any future Action. Our English Translation, following the Paraphrase of Jonathan and the Arabick Version, renders it thus, This is that Anah, who found the Mules in the wilderness. And it is commonly interpreted, that he invented an unnatural Mixture, and so produc'd this very Kind of Creature. But there was no Occasion to record this Act in Scripture. Onkelos saith, that he found the Giants in the Wilderness. The Samaritan Version calls them Giants, or Emathites, a Word of near Affinity with the Emims. In the Hebrew it is the Yemims, from whence the other Word may be form'd by (d) the Change of a Quiescent Letter, as it is usual in the Oriental Languages. And therefore (e) the learned Bochart hath confirm'd this Opinion with many substantial Reasons; That by Yemim we are to understand Emim, a gigantick Sort of People, mention'd in Scripture, and next Neighbours to the Horites. These Anah is said to find, or to meet withal and encounter, or rather to have fall'n upon them on a sudden and unexpectedly, as this Word frequently signifies in Scripture.

118. The Reason, why these Actions are plac'd about this Time, is this, Jacob was now 106 Years of Age, and Esau being a Twin with him must be of the same. Esau (f) at forty Years of Age marry'd Adah, by (g) whom he had Eliphaz his eldest Son. Eliphaz marry'd Timnah the Daughter of Seir the Horite, who first inhabited Mount Seir, and call'd it by his Name. Timnah had (h) two Brothers, Lotan and Zibeon, and Zibeon was the Father (i) of this Anah: So that he was Contemporary with the Grandchildren of Jacob and Esau. If his Grandfather Seir came up with the rest of the Canaanites from the Egyptian Wars, when they first took Possession of the Country, he must be older than them; and consequently his Grandson Anah might be of a fit Age for such Exploits at this Time.

119. Jacob being now at Hebron, carried on a great Trade of Pasturage, and employs all his Sons about this Affair except Benjamin, who was too young, being but eleven Years of Age. The ten eldest feed their Flocks at Shechem, and so being at a considerable Distance, Jacob sends Joseph backwards and forwards to them for Intelligence. As their Flocks increas'd; so they enlarg'd their Pasture, but they continu'd mostly here, that they might secure this Ground, which was their own by Purchase, and afterward by Conquest, from any fresh Pretence or future Invasion. However the Amorites streighten them very much, so that they are forc'd to go to Dothan, a Place situated twelve Miles southward from the City of Samaria. The Ishmaelites, whom Abraham had sent to live on the other Side of Jordan eastward, having extended themselves to the north, carry on a great Trade from Mount Gilead (where Laban overtook Jacob) into Egypt, and cross Jordan into Canaan, chusing much rather to travel in a plentiful Country than in the Desarts of Arabia. Accordingly they came near to the Place where the Sons of Jacob were, who resolving to do Joseph a Mischief, they, by the Advice of Judah, sell him to be a Slave, as CHRIST was sold by the Villany of Judas, another of the same Name. And so the Ishmaelites carry him to Egypt, and sell him to Potiphar, an Officer of Pharaoh, Captain of the Guard, who bought him for a Slave, little thinking that he should afterward be his Lord and Master. To deceive their aged Father they kill a Kid, and dip his Coat in the Blood, and send it to him, who knowing it, concluded that

Joseph was torn in Pieces by some wild Beast. So that Jacob is deceiv'd by the Blood of a Kid, instead of Joseph's, by his own Sons, as he had deceiv'd his own Father with the Flesh and Skin of a Kid, instead of Venison, and his own Skin. Judah who depriv'd his Father of his beloved Son, was not long after depriv'd of his two eldest Sons, Er and Onan, before they came to the Age of Joseph. And he who had lost the two, who were born in the Beginning of his Strength, had two others incestuously by his own Daughter-in-Law to keep his Shame in continual Remembrance; the eldest of which might well be call'd (k) Pharez, or a Breach in his Family, tho' his Name was given for another Reason. And at this Time, according to the Computation of the Arabick Historian (l), Kobath the second Son of Levi, and Grandfather of Moses was born.

120. Joseph benign (m) in his Master's House, his Mistress would fain have lain with him, which he peremptorily refuses. Upon this she accuses him to his Master of In-continency, with such Circumstances as could not fail of being credited. His Master throws him into Prison.

The Keeper puts him into (n) the Dungeon, which was the lowest and most dismal Part of all, so that (o) they hurt his feet in the stocks, and the iron enter'd into his soul. However, that GOD who succours the Injur'd, and relieves the Oppressed, gave him Favour in the Sight of the Keeper; so that instead of a Prisoner, he makes him an Officer, and commits the rest to his Care, among whom there was the chief Butler and the chief Baker of the King of Egypt. They dream two Dreams, which Joseph interprets, viz. That at the End of three Days the Baker should lose his Life, and the Butler should be restor'd to his former Dignity, which happen'd accordingly. Of these, like the two Thieves with CHRIST, the one is sav'd, and the other is condemn'd. Joseph saith to one of these, Remember me, when it shall be well with thee, and he was forgotten; but when the other said to CHRIST, LORD remember me, when thou comest into thy Kingdom, he was regarded. Thus as the Telling the Meaning of two other Dreams had brought Joseph into Misery; so the Interpreting of these proves in Time to be the Means of his Delivery. However as yet the chief Butler fills and drinks Wine in Bowls; but (p) he is not griev'd for the Affliction of Joseph.

121. The Year after this (q) Isaac dies, being an hundred and eighty Years of Age. The (r) Arabian Histo- Anno rians say, that in the Time of Isaac Mundi Jericho was built by seven Kings, 2288. and surrounded by seven Walls, each of them building a Wall. The Scripture (s) saith, that when Isaac was dead, his Sons Jacob and Esau bury'd him, as Isaac and Ishmael bury'd Abraham, in the (t) Cave of Mackpelah, which had been bought for that Purpose. So that at Isaac's Death, Jacob and Esau seem to be good Friends. The Jews and Arabians tell us, (u) that Jacob and Esau soon parted upon the Dividing of the Inheritance, upon which Esau went off and rais'd War against Jacob, until in a Battle Jacob kill'd Esau with a Dart, and so brought it to a final End; for they who were with Esau, immediately fled away. If this is true, and (*) that the Arabick Historian can be depended on, who saith, that Esau liv'd 129 Years, then his Death happen'd nine Years after Isaac's Death, or the Year before Jacob went into Egypt.

122. From this Time, to the Departure out of Egypt, the Scripture is principally confin'd to the History of Jacob, Joseph and Moses. Joseph was now in Egypt. Pharaoh dreams two Dreams, (x) which all the Magicians and wise Men of Egypt could not interpret. The chief Butler remembers how exactly Joseph had interpreted his and the Baker's Dream in the Prison. Joseph being thirty Years old is now sent for, and interprets the Dreams to signify seven Years of great Plenty of Corn, and seven other Years of Famine, which should immediately come upon the whole Land. Upon this Pharaoh makes him Governor over all the Land of Egypt, and calls him (y) Zaphnath Paaneah, which most Interpreters mention to signify The Revealer of future things, or The Interpreter of Secrets. There are some, (†) who have endeavour'd to make out this Sense from the Hebrew Language, and think that they have done it with Success; but their Derivations seem to be strain'd too far. Josephus saith, (z) that it is taken out of the Egyptian Language. And (a) as the Egyptian Kings gave Names of Honour and Glory to their Favourites in Token of their Greatness and Authority; so it was most for the Reputation of their own Nation to give them Names out of their own Language. From hence a learned (b) Prelate judges, that the antient

Hebrew and Egyptian Languages might have a great Affinity with each other. This Conjecture is the more probable, because Egypt and Canaan sprang at first from one common Father Ham, who sometimes liv'd in one Country, and sometimes in the other. And if (c) the Word Abreck, which we render Bow the knee, was also taken out of the Egyptian Language (as some will have it) it might farther strengthen this Opinion. On the other hand it seems very probable, that the Language of Canaan and Egypt might be distinct ever since the Dispersion from Babylon, which occasion'd Mizraim and his Family to separate so early from his Brother; and that the Words, which are common to both Languages, were brought into Egypt by the Coming of Abraham first, and his Posterity afterward into that Country from the Land of Canaan.

123. Immediately upon this the seven Years of Plenty begin, and Joseph like a prudent Governor takes Care to provide for the worst. Accordingly he (d) gathers a fifth Part of the Corn for the Use of Pharaoh, to be sold whenever Occasion should require it. It is not probable, that he did it by an arbitrary Power according to the Custom of Kings in those Times; for then it would have made him hated by all, especially being a Foreigner; and yet we find that he was in great Esteem (e) after that, and his (f) good Deeds were gratefully acknowledg'd, as long as he liv'd; and it would also be an Injustice in him to have sold to them, that which he never bought of them, which they would not have endur'd for so many Years together. The Scripture therefore not mentioning by what Method he procur'd this fifth Part, we may suppose it to be thus: The Kings of the eastern Countries had (g) a Right to one Tenth Part by ancient Custom, as their own. During those seven Years, when Corn was so plenty, every one had an Occasion to sell, and none to buy, which made it very cheap. Joseph therefore takes the Advantage to buy the other Tenth for Pharaoh, and so both Parts belong'd to him, one by Right, and the other by Purchase. This stops all Ground for Complaint, and made them easy. During this Time Joseph marries the Daughter of Potipherah the High Priest of On, or Helopolis, which, as (h) Josephus observes, was a Match of the King's making and a very great Honour, and she was probably a near Relation to the King, or otherwise there had been no need of his Consent, because Parents might marry their own Daughters as they pleas'd, and it was usual in those Times even for Kings (i) to be Priests themselves, much more to be related to those who were Priests.

124. Joseph now prospering in Egypt hath (k) two Sons. The first of them he calls Manasseh, which signifies Forgetting, For GOD (saith he) hath made me forget all my labour, and all my father's house. The other he calls Ephraim, which being in the dual Number signifies two fruitful Persons, and intimates also, that each of these should have a numerous Posterity, For GOD (saith he) hath caused me to be fruitful in the land of my affliction.

125. When the seven Years of Plenty were ended, the seven Years of Famine began. They had liv'd as if they should never have wanted, and therefore they want the sooner. And expecting every Year as good an Harvest as before, they were streighten'd soon after the first Disappointment. Upon this they come to Joseph, who sells to them, what he had before bought of them. The Famine being also in the Land of Canaan, Jacob sends the rest of his Sons, Benjamin excepted, to buy Corn of Joseph. Joseph charges them (l) with being Spies, and coming from Canaan to see the Nakedness of the Land. This Charge was most heavy, and it was necessary to clear themselves from it. The Canaanitish Pastors had came into this Country before, had carry'd on a long War, committing all Sorts of Outrages, and were expell'd in the Memory of many then alive: And therefore there might be just Cause of Jealousy, that they came to view the Passes, the Weakness and Discontents of the Nation; and if so, then they could not be watch'd too narrowly, lest they should involve them in the same Troubles, from whence they were so lately deliver'd. When they endeavour'd to clear themselves, Joseph tho' a good Man, being corrupted by bad Examples, swears twice to them, (m) By the life of Pharaoh, that they were Spies. The Egyptians had before deify'd their Kings after their Deaths, who had fought against their Enemies in the Defence of their Country, and so they fall from one Error to another, and Flattery or Fear makes them treat others (n) in the same Manner, whilst they were alive.

alive. Upon this he puts them into Prison, and then at about two and twenty Years Distance, they reflect upon their Cruelty to Joseph, which we read not that they did before. Thus Afflictions bring our Sins to Remembrance, and they in particular observe their Guilt in their Punishment. As they had thrown Joseph into a Pit; so now they were thrown into a Prison themselves. And as nothing which he could say, would incline them to spare him; so now they found Joseph inexorable to them. Joseph hearing them mention their younger Brother born of the same Mother with himself, makes the Bringing of him into Egypt the Proof of their Sincerity, and for Security seizes on Simeon, and binds him, and sends the rest home with Corn to their Father. The Jews say, that Simeon was the Person who put Joseph into the Pit, and now Joseph serves him in his own Kind. It is certain, that Reuben was resolv'd to save him, and Judah spoke favourably of him, so that if Simeon had join'd with them, their Authority as being the eldest Brethren might have prevail'd upon the rest. Joseph's Brethren returning to their Father, persuade him to send Benjamin with them, when they went next. For this Reason Joseph receives them kindly, brings out Simeon to them, and makes a Feast to entertain them, in which there was this remarkable (o) Ceremony: They set on for him by himself, and for them by themselves, and for the Egyptians, which did eat with him, by themselves; because the Egyptians might not eat bread with the Hebrews, for that was an abomination to the Egyptians. They reckon'd all to be Hebrews, Passengers or Runagates, who came out of Canaan into Egypt, and so pass'd over the River Sihor; and (p) Joseph himself was known to be of the Number. As those People by their Coming thither before had rais'd such a bloody War; so they justly hated them, and kept them at the utmost Distance. They shunn'd their Company, and would not eat with them, lest they should be suspected of Carrying on a Conspiracy against the Government. And the Egyptians were so tenacious of their Customs, that they seem to observe this in the Case of Joseph, even whilst he was the Governor of the Land.

126. Immediately upon this, Joseph orders his Steward to send them away with every thing to their Minds, but to put the Cup, which they had drank out of, into Benjamin's Sack. This he did (saith (q) Josephus) to try whether the rest would stand by Benjamin in Case he should be charg'd with the Theft, or forsake him in Danger, and so return to their Father without him. When they were gone a little Way, the Steward overtakes them, charges them with the Theft, and asks them, (r) Is not this the cup, in which my lord drinketh, and whereby indeed he intended to make an Experiment, by Laying it in your Way, when you feasted with him, whether you were honest Men, as you pretended to be, or Thieves, as ye are found to be? And thus Joseph speaks in the same Language, (s) Could not you imagine that such a man as I would certainly make some farther Trial, and not depend upon your bare Words? The Cup being found in Benjamin's Sack, they return all to the City, and Joseph seeming to demand him for a Prisoner, Judah makes a most passionate Speech in his Behalf, which oblig'd Joseph to make himself known to them, confessing (t) that he was exceedingly delighted to find them so friendly and compassionate to his Brother, which he was doubtful of, considering the former Circumstances of his own Case. Benjamin at this Time was three and thirty Years of Age, and (u) the Father of ten Children, so that like Judah himself he was married when he was but young. And if we allow a Year and an half between every Child, we may suppose him at that Time to have been about eighteen. However Judah in his Speech calls him (x) a Lad, (y) a Child, and (z) a little one. But neither of these Expressions are sufficient to interrupt the Chronological Order. A Lad or a Youth may mean any Person not yet arriv'd at the fourth Part of the Age of Man, which then was about 160 Years. And his Brother Joseph was call'd (a) a Lad, when he was thirty Years old. Joseph was not call'd barely a Child, but a Child of Jacob's old age, or born when he was old, and so he was; and the Word a little one, in the Hebrew signifies only the youngest of all, and so was Benjamin, not only then, but for ever after as long as he liv'd.

127. Upon this Joseph invites his Father to come into Egypt, and dwell with him, sending him, by the Consent of Pharaoh, all Necessaries for the Journey. Jacob finding Joseph to be alive, sets out accordingly from Hebron, where he then liv'd, and came to Beersheba, in the southern Parts of Canaan, near the Wilderness which leads to Egypt. Here was a particular Place, which (b) his Grandfather Abraham had dedicated to the Worship of GOD, and where (c) GOD had appear'd to Isaac, and given him the Promise of a Blessing. Here therefore Jacob chuses to offer Sacrifices, recommending himself and his Family to GOD's Protection in their Journey to Egypt, and to his Preservation when they came thither. And here also GOD appears to Jacob, promising to protect and preserve him, to make him a great Nation, and bring them from thence in due Time; that he should die in Peace having his Children about him, and particularly Joseph should outlive him, so that all things should be safe under his Authority. When Jacob came to Egypt, he (d) did not think it proper to live in the Heart of the Country, or even at Court with Joseph, because he would give no Occasion of Umbrage to the Egyptians. He knew, that they (e) mortally hated Shepherds, and they knew them to be such. They contemn'd them as People of very mean Employments, and took Care that they should never rise any higher, nor be about the Court. They well knew, that the Phœnician Shepherds, who came out of that Country, had rais'd a Rebellion in Egypt, set up a King of their own, and erected that which was call'd the pastoral Kingdom; and therefore it was no Wonder, if they hated all Shepherds, particularly Strangers, and more especially such as came from Canaan. For this Reason Jacob, by the Consent of Joseph, chose to be in Goshen, as a Place which was liable to the fewest Exceptions.

128. There is a considerable Variety in the several Accounts of the Number of those, who went down into Egypt at this Time, which makes some Difficulty; and this Difficulty is increas'd by Reckoning up the Names, which Moses mentions as a Proof of his Account. In (f) one Verse in Genesis he reckons them to be threescore and ten. In the (g) Verse immediately before it, he reckons threescore and six; and St. Stephen (h) mentions threescore and fifteen. If we compute the Numbers, which Moses gives us, we shall find, that Jacob and his Wives are excluded, when he reckons up the seventy.

The Sons of Leah	33.	Gen. 46. 15.
The Sons of Zilpah	16.	Gen. 46. 18.
The Sons of Rachel	14.	Gen. 46. 22.
The Sons of Bilhah	7.	Gen. 46. 25.

Total is 70

If we also look into the Account of the Children of Leah, we shall find them to be thirty three, beside Dinah, who is particularly mention'd; tho' afterward Serah the Daughter of Asher must be reckon'd among the Number. And on the other hand, Er and Onan are are reckon'd among those, who went down into Egypt; tho' they both died in the Land of Canaan.

129. To obviate all these Objections, which are very considerable, we must observe, that Moses, in Reckoning up the Seventy, mentions all the Sons of Jacob both dead and alive, and only those Daughters of his, who went into Egypt. For this Reason Dinah, tho' mention'd in the Text, must be excluded; because it is probable that she was married and settl'd in the Land of Canaan: And Serah the Daughter of Asher is mention'd, because she was single, and so went with them. And it is but reasonable to think, that after Dinah had been defil'd by Shechem, her Father might be willing to marry and part with her at any Rate. As to the Reckoning of Seventy, tho' Er and Onan were dead, it is plain, that Moses mentions (*) their Death in express Terms, and therefore can be the less suspected of any Mistake. He added them in the Text only to make up the full Number, as is usual on other Occasions. Thus in a College, Hospital or other Societies, we usually say, that there is such a Number there as was intended to be when full, tho' there may be a Vacancy of one or several at the same Time; and (i) our SAVI-OUR is said in the Evening to come with the twelve, tho' (k) Judas was gone from them to the chief Priests and Captains. As for the Number of threescore and six, we must take them (l) as Moses states them. All the souls, which came with Jacob into Egypt, and which came out of his loyns; besides Jacob's sons wives, all the souls were threescore and six. So that we must exclude those, who were in Egypt before he came. Now (m) Joseph and his two Sons were in Egypt at that Time, and (n) Jacob had sent Judah before him to give him Notice of his Coming, that so he might meet them upon the Frontiers of Egypt, and particularly in Goshen; and therefore if we subtract these four, who were then in Egypt, out of seventy, the Remainder, according to this Way of Reckoning, will be threescore and six. As for the threescore and fifteen mention'd by St. Stephen, he computes in another Manner, and particularly mentions all the Kindred of Jacob, ἄπαν τὴν συγγένειαν αὐτοῦ, all the People of his own Genealogy and their Offspring, including their Wives, and excluding Jacob and his Wives, if he had any, for (o) Rachel and Leah had been dead long before, and we read nothing of the other two. It is (p) particularly mention'd, that the sons of Israel carried Jacob their father, and their little ones, and their wives, in the waggon's which Pharaoh had sent to carry him; so that he brought with him into Egypt his sons, and his sons sons, his daughters, or Daughters-in-Law, and his sons daughters, including their Wives, and all his seed. From these sixty six let us then subtract Er and Onan, who were dead before, and the Number will be sixty four. To these let us add the twelve Wives of Jacob's Sons, and the Number will be seventy six. Out of these we must again subtract three, viz. Joseph's Wife, who was in Egypt; secondly, the Wife of Judah, who (q) was dead; and (r) Tamar his Daughter-in-Law was discarded after her Incest; so that (s) Shelah had no Children. And (t) Simeon's Wife was dead, so that he had afterward a Son by a Canaanitish Woman, who went not with them into Egypt. So that subtracting the three Wives of Joseph, Judah and Simeon, from the former Number of 76, the Remainder is 73: And as (u) Pharez and (x) Beriah, the Grandchildren of Jacob, had Children; so if their two Wives are added, the Number who went with Jacob into Egypt, will appear to be exactly threescore and fifteen, as St. Stephen mentions.

130. The Famine having continu'd two Years, and the Egyptians having Anno in this Time eaten up all the Stores, Mundi which they had of their own, they 2299. now buy Corn of Joseph, as long as they had any Money left, which (y) 2300. supported them the third, and prob- 2301. ably the fourth and fifth Years. 2302. The sixth Year (z) they sold their 2303. Cattle, and the next Year, or the last, (a) they sold themselves and their Lands. This being therefore the last Year of the Famine, he not only gives them Food, but (b) also Seed to sow their Land; and makes a Law, that as a Token of their Subjection, they should every Year bring the fifth Part of the Product to Pharaoh, whereas before he had but the Tenth. In this Law he excepted all the Lands of the Priests. Some think, that he did this because of their great Authority at Court, that so he might keep their Favour, by Countenancing those who were devoted to the Service of Religion. But as their Religion was Superstition and Idolatry, we cannot suppose this to be the Reason, because he might be in Danger thereby of Losing the Favour of GOD. Others think he had a particular Respect to them, because he was married into the chief Family among them. But there is another Reason for this: The Priests were generally of the royal Family at that Time, and therefore they had a royal Allowance out of the publick Revenue; they were Princes as well as Priests. They had (c) a portion assigned them of Pharaoh, and did eat their portion, which Pharaoh gave them, and therefore they were under no Necessity to sell their lands. The Country of Egypt was (d) divided into three Parts, of which their King had one, their Priests a second, and their Soldiers a third, and under them they had Herdsmen, Artificers, and Husbandmen, who spent all their Time in Manuring their Ground for small Wages. This is probably (e) the publick Maintenance, which Herodotus and Diodorus tell us did belong to them. The Priesthood being confin'd to certain Families, they were held in such Veneration, that they were all not only free from paying Tribute, and next to the King in Honour and Power; but receiv'd this ample Income, out of which they maintain'd the publick Sacrifices and their Servants, and provided for their own Necessities. But beside these three Parts, there were Estates which belong'd to private Persons, as in other Countries. And there is Reason to believe, that the Portion which was given to the Soldiers, was not settl'd in Joseph's Time; but by Sesostris, after the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt.

131. Thus have we brought another Century to an End, in the Conclusion of which we have been principally confin'd to the sacred Story. The other Occurrences, which happen'd in the mean Time, are chiefly these: Saophis succeeds Biyris in the Kingdom of Upper-Egypt, where he Anno reigns 29 Years, and is succeeded by Mundi 2272. Sensaophis, who reigns 27 Years. 2301. Misphragmuthosis succeeds Mephres 2273. in the Kingdom of Lower-Egypt, 2299. where he reigns 25 Years and 10 2296. Months, and is succeeded by Thmosis, who reigns 9 Years and 8 Months, beginning his Reign the Year after Jacob came into Egypt. Eratus succeeds Mesapus in the Kingdom of Sicyonia, where he reigns 46 Years. Cambrivius succeeds Marfius in Germa- Anno ny, where he reigns 44 Years. Saul Mundi (f) succeeds Samlab in the Kingdom 2297. of the Horites, and is suppos'd to 2303. reign 42 Years. And Altadus suc- 2311. ceeds Balaus as Emperor of the As- 2309. syrian Monarchy, where he reigns 32 Years. And Amenophis succeeds Thmosis in the Kingdom of Lower-Egypt, where he reigns 30 Years and 10 Months.

him in the Land of Canaan; and (b) in his Sickneſs Joſeph brought his two Sons to him, that he might bleſs them. Jacob was then ſo weak, that he could not ſit upright upon his Bed, and therefore (i) he ſupported himſelf, by Leaning upon his Staff. St. Paul (k) expounds it thus, By faith Jacob, when he was dying, bleſſed both the ſons of Joſeph, and worſhipped upon the top of his ſtaff. Our Tranſlation hath very judiciously added the Word leaning, that is, He worſhipped GOD, leaning upon the top of his ſtaff. The Vulgar Latin moſt ridiculously hath it, he worſhipped the top of his ſtaff; but all the other Tranſlations keep exactly to the Original. It is plain, that he repeated the Promiſes which GOD had formerly given him, and gave him the Glory of all his Succeſſes. In Bleſſing Joſeph's two Sons, Jacob ſaith, that (l) Ephraim and Manaſſeh ſhould be his. That is, they ſhould be reckon'd as if he had begotten them; and accordingly they ſhould each of them have a diſtinct Inheritance with the reſt of his Sons, and be diſtinct Tribes. Thus they (m) were number'd diſtinctly by Moses, and (n) St. John reckoning the twelve Tribes mentions both of them, tho' he omits another, leſt they ſhould be thirteen. He foretold, (o) that Ephraim, tho' he was the younger Brother, ſhould be more fruitful than Manaſſeh, and ſo (p) he appear'd to be at the Numbering of the People. And ſaith to Joſeph, (q) The iſſue, which thou begetteſt after theſe, ſhall be thine. He would make no diſtinct Provision for them, as he had done for theſe two; but they ſhall be called after the name of their brethren in their inheritance. They ſhould not make diſtinct Tribes like Ephraim and Manaſſeh, but be comprehended in them. This ſeems to be a Prophecy, that Joſeph ſhould have more Children, tho' we have not the leaſt mention of their Names; and if ſo, then we may the better account for (r) the vaſt Number of the Sons of Joſeph, and particularly of Ephraim, who came out of Egypt about two hundred Years after. At laſt Jacob concluded with (s) a ſolemn Benediction of them both: And when he pronounc'd it, he worſhipp'd GOD, leaning ſtill on the Top of his Staff. Thus he was ſupported from Falling, of which he would have been in Danger when he bow'd, if he had not reſted upon it.

133. Upon this (t) Jacob calls all his twelve Sons together to bleſs them, and tell them what ſhould happen in future Times, and very probably he uſeth the ſame Poſture and Gestures as before with Joſeph. He (u) puts Reuben in Mind of his Inceſt with Bilhah, and ſaith, that for this Reaſon he ſhould not excel. He ſhould loſe all the Benefits of his Birthright. The double Portion ſhould be given to Joſeph, the kingly Power to Judah, and the Priesthood to Levi. There ſhould be nothing great ſaid to be done by this Tribe in Scripture, but that (x) they ſhould be weaken'd by their own Diviſions. And (y) they were not ſo numerous by more than a third Part, as Judah, Joſeph or Dan, when Moses took the Sum of all the Congregation, and allotted their Inheritance accordingly.

134. He reminds Simeon and Levi of (z) their Cruelty when they kill'd the Shechemites, and therefore he foretels, that they ſhould be diſperſed among the reſt of the Tribes. This was evidently accompliſh'd in Levi, who had no Inheritance allotted them among their Brethren, except eight and forty Cities with their Suburbs, ſcatter'd about in every Part of the Land of Canaan. As for Simeon, it is a conſtant Tradition among the Jews, that a great many of the Tribe wanting a Livelihood, applied themſelves to the Teaching of Children, and were diſpers'd as Schoolmaſters among the reſt of their Brethren. When they enter'd Canaan, they had not a ſeparate Inheritance for themſelves, but only (a) a Portion in the Miſt of the Tribe of Judah, or rather in the ſouthern Part adjoining to Egypt, and accordingly (b) they aſſiſted each other to enlarge their Border; and this being ſtill too ſtrait for them, they in after Times acquir'd Poſſeſſions for themſelves wherever they could, tho' at a great Diſtance from the reſt, and particularly (c) 500 of them under ſeveral Captains went to Mount Seir, and there ſettled themſelves among the Idumeans.

135. He alludes to the Name of (d) Judah, which ſignifies Praise; and tells him, that his Brethren ſhall praise him accordingly. His Name was (e) given him by his Mother in Thankfulneſs to GOD for him. And his Father gives another Reaſon for his Name; becauſe all his Brethren ſhould praise GOD for all the noble Acts perform'd by this Tribe. That he ſhould overthrow his Enemies, and bring them under, (f) which was eminently fulfilled in David; that the other Tribes ſhould acknowledge him their ſuperior, and their Kings ſhould be regularly of this Tribe. That he ſhould give an early Proof of his Valour when he was very young, or like a lions whelp: And thus he was the (g) firſt, who went against the Canaanites after the Death of Joshua. That he should be like a Lion of a warlike Temper and undaunted Courage, and that having subdued his Enemies, he should live in Peace, free from their Incurfions, when none should dare to invade him, That his Country should abound with Vineyards and Pastures, That the Vine of Sorek, which was the most choice and noble Vine of all, should be in their Country, it being but a Mile and an half from the Valley of Eshcol, from whence the Spies brought the large Cluster, which was carried on a Stick between two. And their Vines and Cattle should be so fruitful, that they should have great Plenty of Wine and Milk. And more particularly, that tho' the ten Tribes should be carried away Captives, and their Names should be extinct, yet Judah should remain (b) as a Tribe, and the royal Power, which should be establish'd in their Posterity, should not be utterly taken from them, or at least, that they should not be destitute of Rulers and Governors, when they should be in their declining Condition, until the Coming of the Messiah. And after that he was come, there should be no Difference between the Jews and other Nations, who should be obedient to him, but they should be gather'd into one Church. But after that, the Posterity of Judah should have neither King nor Ruler of their own. But the whole Commonwealth of Judah should lose all Form, and never recover it again, until by their Conversion they should be re-admitted into the Church of CHRIST.

136. He saith of (i) Zebulun, that he should dwell near the Lake of Tiberias, which is call'd in Scripture, The Sea of Galilee, and should extend to Mount Carmel, which border'd upon the Zidonians, and particularly should trade with them by Sea, as (k) it was easy for them so to do.

137. He foretold of Issachar, that (l) he should be like a strong Ass, very patient and unwearied in all rustical Employments. They submitted to the most toilsome Labour, finding the Land which was allotted to them to be exceeding pleasant and fruitful. In particular, (m) the famous Valley of Jezreel was in this Tribe, whose Border extended as far as Jordan. They took a great Deal of Pains to till the Land, and to carry in the Corn, and other Fruits of the Earth. They submitted to the heaviest Taxes rather than lose their Repose, and were content to give any Money to redeem their Services in the Wars, or otherwise by large Contributions. And thus as (n) Zebulun did rejoice in their Ships,

138. He alludes to the Name of Dan, which signifies a Judge, and saith, (o) that tho' Dan was the Son of an Handmaid, whereas the rest before-nam'd were the Sons of Leah; yet that should not hinder him from the Privileges belonging to all the rest, but he should judge his People, like any other of the Tribes of Israel; and that (p) Sampson of this Tribe should be an eminent Judge and Deliverer of his People, and tho' he should not overcome the Philistines with a numerous Army, and in pitch'd Battles, yet he should destroy them subtilly, when they were least aware of him, like a Serpent by the Way, or an Adder in the Path; and thus the whole Tribe did manage the Wars rather by Cunning and Craft than by open Hostility.

139. He (q) alludes to the Name Gad, which signifies a Troop, and saith, that a Troop should invade him, but he should overcome them. As they lay on the other Side of Jordan; so they were expos'd to the Incurfions of the Ammonites and Moabites, and the rest of those Neighbours, who dwelt in and near Arabia. But as the Gadites were a fierce and valiant People; so Jephthah the Gileadite, who was of this Tribe, (r) fought with the Children of Ammon, and subdued them before the Children of Israel. And at another Time this Tribe, (s) together with their Brethren of Reuben and Manasseh, made War with the Hagarites, subdued them with a great Slaughter, possess'd themselves of the Country, and dwelt in it until the Captivity, because the War was of GOD.

140. He (t) prophesies of Asher, that in his Country there should be excellent Provision of all Sorts for the Sustenance of human Life. And (u) as Part of it lay about Mount Carmel, where there was a most delicious Valley; so it should yield the choicest Fruits, fit to be serv'd up at a King's Table.

141. He saith of (x) Naphtali, that he should be a People ready to encounter with others, like a Hind let loose. They (y) jeopard'd their lives unto the death in the high places of the field, when (z) Barak their Kinsman commanded them against Jabin King of Canaan. And as they were not rash in making War, so they were tractable and willing to live at Peace, being (a) contented with their Lot, and so far from provoking others to quarrel, that they were courteous and civil in their Conversation. The Septuagint altering the Punctuation of the Hebrew Words, render it thus, Naphtali is a well- spread tree, which puts out beautiful Branches. And the Situation of this Tribe suits very well with this Comparifon. It was (b) fituated upon the Waters of Jordan, and the Lake of Gennesareth, which Name hath been obferv'd to be fo call'd from Words in the Hebrew, which fignify the Gardens of Noblemen or Princes.

142. He prophesies of Joseph, that (c) he fhould have a very fruitful Offspring, and they fhould be feated in a very fruitful Country, and this we find to have been literally fulfill'd, even in (d) Joshua's Time. That from him fhould come (e) many famous Men to rule, govern and protect the People of Israel, fuch as (f) Joshua, who fucceeded Moses, and Abdon one of the Judges of the Tribe of Ephraim, and Gideon, Jair and Jephthah, who were of the Tribe of Manasseh. And as his Sons fhould be fruitful to increafe their own Tribe; fo their (g) Daughters fhould go even to the Enemy, or to repair the hostile Tribe of Benjamin, who otherwife had decay'd for Want of Wives.

143. He alfo compares (h) Benjamin to a Wolf, for his warlike Courage and Succefs againft his Enemies, who in the Morning of their Commonwealth, or Beginning thereof, fhould alone (i) maintain a War againft all the other Tribes, in which they overcame them in two Battles, tho' they had fixteen to one againft them, and kill'd more Men of the Israelites than they had in their whole Army. Thus (k) Ehud destroy'd Eglon King of Moab. Thus Saul (l) destroy'd the Ammonites, the Amalekites, the Philiftines, and (m) others, and (n) rag'd about like a Wolf in Pursuit of David, the great Shepherd of his Flock, and his little Company; and in the Evening, or (o) latter Part of their Polity, (p) Mordecai of this Tribe, and his Adherents, destroy'd Haman and all the Enemies of the Jews, like fo many unfatiable Wolves, when befet and ftanding for their Lives.

144. Soon after this (q) Jacob dies, and Joseph (r) clofeth his Eyes as one of the neareft, and deservedly the beft belov'd of the Family. And they who were ufually employ'd to embalm Bodies, (in which Art, (s) the Egyptians were moft eminently famous) employ'd the beft of their Skill about Jacob's Body. Herodotus (t) gives us the Receipt, which they follow'd, thus, They took out the Bowels of the dead, then they cleansed them, and washed them with the Wine of Dates, and after that again with Odours. Then they fill'd the Bowels, and perhaps all the hollow Parts of the Corps, with pure Myrrh beaten and Caffia, and other Odours, except Frankincense. This Method, it is probable, might laft (u) forty Days, and during this Time they took out the Spices, and added fresh, as they knew that there was Occafion. Then they sewed up the Body, and after this they cover'd it with Nitre feventy Days, and not longer. During thofe feventy Days, the Children of Israel made a great Mourning for their Father, according to the Custom in thofe Times. After feventy Days they wash'd the Corps, and wrapp'd it in fine Linen Cloth gumm'd, which Gum the Egyptians often us'd inftead of Glew. And then they (x) deliver'd the Body to the Kindred of the Deceas'd, intire in all its Features, the very Hairs of the Eye-lids being preserv'd. The Charge was ufually computed at a Talent of Silver, or in Value according to our Coin 187 Pounds and 10 Shillings. Several of fuch Bodies remain to this Day, and are brought into this Kingdom under the Name of Egyptian Mummies. During thofe laft feventy Days, they made a great Mourning for their Father, according to the Custom of the Country, which for a King was (y) feventy two Days. Thus as they gave to the King the fifth Part of the Increafe of the Land, when he was alive; fo they thought it requifite to beftow the fifth Part of the Year in Mourning for him, when he was dead. And as a Father was a King in his own Family; fo the Sons of Jacob might the better join to fhew this Refpect to him; efpecially as his Son Joseph was next to the King, and the Governor over the whole Land. When this was ended, Joseph by the Leave of Pharaoh went with a numerous Retinue to bury his Father in Canaan among his Anceftors. It is generally allow'd, that he went thro' the Defarts, which was very much round about, and fo pafs'd over Jordan as the Israelites did afterwards; for which two Reafons may be given, The firft is the Danger of Wars, if they had gone the neareft Way: For the Canaanites having been lately expell'd out of Lower-Egypt, had a violent Antipathy againft all its Inhabitants, and the ftoutest Men among them liv'd in the fouthern Parts. Thus it is exprefs'd in (z)

another Case. When Pharaoh let the people go, GOD led them not thro' the land of the Philistines, altho that was near, For GOD said, Lest peradventure the people repent, when they see war, and so return into Egypt. Another Reason might also be, that they might have several others of Jacob's Relations, as the Idumæans, the Moabites, the Ammonites, and the Ishmaelites to accompany the Corps, and make the Solemnity so much the greater. When they came into Canaan on the west Side of Jordan, to a Place call'd, The threshing-floor of Atad, so nam'd in Hebrew, either from the Number of Brambles, which grew in it, or from the Name of the Man, who was the Owner of it, they spent seven Days in a publick Mourning. Why they made it at this Place rather than at the Grave, is not easy to determine. Perhaps they might not think proper to march directly into the Country, lest the Inhabitants might conclude, that they came to invade them; and therefore they were willing to stay, till by this Ceremony they might fully shew to the World their real Design. It was so exceeding great and publick, that the Inhabitants of the Land alter'd the Name of the Place, and call'd it Abel Mizraim, or The Mourning of the Egyptians, for this very Reason.

145. When the Funeral was over, Joseph's Brethren, being sensible of their former Guilt, send a submissive Message to him, and he returns an Answer full of Affection, and so they live peaceably together in the same Country. The Scripture tells us, (a) that he was an hundred and ten Years old when he died, and therefore he liv'd four and fifty Years after his Father. The Anno Mundi 2369.

Scripture gives no Account of any Transactions during this Time. The (b) Arabick Historians tell us, that Joseph set up Stones for Way-marks, and made Contrivances to measure the River Nile at Memphis, and digg'd a River for that Purpose, which was call'd Monba. That (c) there is a Fabrick supported round with Pillars, and in the Middle of the Court there is a large deep Cistern, to which there is a Descent with marble Steps. In the Middle of this Cistern there is a marble Pillar, where there are plac'd the distinct Number of Cubits: That the Water comes into this Cistern by a large Channel, cut from the River Nile, and begins to enter, when the River is up to the Bank. Such a Contrivance as this must be of excellent Use, if, as Pliny saith, it could serve to foretel Dearth and Plenty. For (d) he observes, That when Nile rose only twelve Cubits, a Famine follow'd; when thirteen, great Scarcity; when fourteen, they had a good Year; when fifteen, very good; and if it rose to sixteen, it made a luxuriant Plenty; and the greatest Increase which they ever knew, was to eighteen Cubits. The Arabick Geographer adds, that (e) when it riseth to eighteen Cubits, it overflows all the neighbouring Country, and if it increases more than eighteen Cubits, it brings Damage, because it plucks up even the Trees by the Roots.

146. A little before the Death of Joseph, he spoke of their Deliverance out of Egypt, and was so confident of it, that he desir'd his Bones might remain in Egypt till that Time, upon Condition they should be remov'd then, which (f) was perform'd accordingly; tho' Josephus tells us, (g) that the Bodies of the other Patriarchs were buried soon after their Deaths in the Land of Canaan. It is said, (h) that he liv'd to see the Great Grandchildren of his Son Ephraim, which was not improbable. Anno Mundi 2296. For as Ephraim was born when Joseph was at most but 37 Years old; so 2316. if we allow 20 Years to each Generation, in the Line of Ephraim, 2336. the first-born of the fourth Generation from Joseph would have been thirteen Years of Age at his Death. Thus Jacob's Prophecy of Ephraim's Fruitfulness, (i) began to be fulfill'd in Joseph's Time. The Arabian Historian (k) tells us of a Report, that he was put into a marble Coffin, and laid in the River Nile. But that was very unlikely. We are (l) sure, that he was embalm'd like his Father, and such Bodies ought to be kept in the dry to secure them from Putrefaction. And it would have been impossible, in such a Case, for the Israelites to have fetch'd his Body from the nearest Branch thereof, when they march'd in haste from Rameesses, the contrary Way toward the Land of Canaan.

147. Among all the Sons of Jacob, Moses only tells us the Age of Joseph and Levi. Joseph was 110 Years old when he died; so that Levi being about ten Years older than he, must be 120 Years old at that Time; and as he was (m) 137 Years of Age Anno Mundi 2386. when he died, so he liv'd seventeen Years after Joseph. Some of the Jews have thought, that Joseph died the soonest, and (n) Levi liv'd the longest of all the Patriarchs; and if so, the other ten died in a very little Compass of Time. That Joseph died first, they conjecture from the Words of Moses, (o) who puts Joseph first when he saith, And Joseph died, and all his brethren, and all that generation. But it is more probable, that his Name and Age is mention'd there, because of his Authority and Pre-eminence in the Land, than for any other Reason. And the (p) Eastern Writers tell us, with greater Probability, that the Reason why the Age of Levi was mention'd, and not his Brethren, is because Moses and Aaron were descended from him, and the Priesthood was continu'd in his Line. The Jews observe, that from the Death of (q) Levi the Servitude of the Israelites began; and they ground it from this (r) Text of Moses, Joseph died, and all his brethren, and all that generation. And the children of Israel were fruitful, and increased abundantly, and multiplied, and waxed exceeding mighty, and the land was filled with them. Now there arose a new King over Egypt, who knew not Joseph. And he said unto his people, Behold, the people of the children of Israel are more, and more mightier than we, Come on, and let us deal wisely with them: lest they multiply, and it come to pass, that when there falleth out any war, they join also to our enemies, and fight against us; and for this Reason they did set over them task-masters to afflict them with their burdens. However the Jews allow, (s) that this Bondage might not begin immediately from the Death of Levi, They say, (t) that it could not last above 116 Years, which they reckon from the Death of Levi, nor be less than 87 Years, which they reckon from the Birth of Miriam, who, they say, was seven Years older than Moses, and (u) big enough to watch what might happen to him, when he was laid in the Flags by the River Side. The Occasion of this Cruelty seems to be this: The King of Egypt was very sensible, from the Records of this Country, what Mischief the Wars occasion'd by the Canaanitish Pastors had done in a former Century. He knew, that Jacob and all his Family came from Canaan, and might suppose them related to others, who were left behind. He knew, that what had happen'd once, might happen again; and therefore he resolv'd to keep the Israelites low, that if another War should break out, they might not be capable of doing much Mischief.

148. But the Time when the Bondage of the Israelites began, may be the better guess'd at by two other Texts of Scripture. The first is (x) the Account of St. Paul, where he saith, that when GOD had destroy'd seven nations in the land of Canaan, he divided their land unto the Israelites by lot; And after that (as we translate it) he gave unto them judges for about the space of four hundred and fifty Years, until Samuel the prophet. If we begin to compute these four hundred and fifty Years, from the Time when Joshua divided the Land by Lot, in the Year of the World 2560, it will bring us up to the Middle of Solomon's Reign, and therefore we must begin this Date from some Time in Samuel's Life. The last Action, which we hear of him, was, that (y) he and David dwelt together at Najoth in Ramah, Anno 2943, and he was dead before Saul (z) consulted the Witch of Endor, Anno 2949. If then we count these Years backward, from the Time when the Israelites gather'd together at Mizpeh, and Samuel by his Prayer obtain'd a signal Victory (a) over the Philistines Anno 2908, it will bring us to the Year of the World 2458, which is 25 Years after the Birth of Moses; so that we must begin it sooner. The Jews reckon that Samuel liv'd 98 Years, and therefore might be born about the Year 2850, in the Beginning of the High Priesthood of Eli. And therefore these 450 Years could not begin before the Year 2400, but might begin soon after. So that the Words of St. Paul may be thus render'd, (b) *The Children of Israel dwelt as strangers in the land of Egypt, and GOD with an high arm brought them out of it; he suffered their manners in the wilderness, he divided the land of Canaan to them by lot. Kai meta taûta, and about the time of these things, or whilst these things were transacted, he set over them Officers, Taskmasters and Judges, who continu'd four hundred and fifty Years until Samuel the Prophet. St. Stephen farther explains this in the other Text; (c) When the time of the promise drew nigh, which GOD had sworn unto Abraham, the people grew and multiplied in Egypt, till another king arose, who knew not Joseph. The same dealt subtilly with our Kindred, and evil intreated our Fathers, so that they cast out their young children, to the end they might not live; in which time Moses was born. From whence I think we may infer, that the King of Egypt, who knew not Joseph, and began the Oppression of the Israelites, was the King in whose Time Moses was born. Now it appears from (d) Manetho's Catalogue of the Kings of Lower-Egypt, that Pharaoh Aménophis, who was drown'd in the Red-Sea reign'd 19 Years and 6 Months, and his Predecessor Ramesses Miamun reign'd 66 Years and 2 Months, so that both together might make near 86 Years; and therefore Moses being 80 Years old when they pass'd the Red-Sea, was born in the sixth Year of this King's Reign, who immediately began to oppress the Israelites, and set the Officers over them for this Purpose. The Scripture seems* plainly to intimate the great Length of this King's Reign, and that his Successor was as bad as he, in these Words, (e) And it came to pass in process of time, (or after a long Time, as the other Translations do more fitly express the Sense of the Hebrew Language) that the king of Egypt died, and the children of Israel sighed by reason of the bondage, and they cried, and their cry came up to GOD by reason of their bondage. And therefore (f) the Jew was very near the Truth, who said, that the Oppression began at the Birth of Miriam 87 Years before the Deliverance out of Egypt, whereas it really began the Year following, Anno Mundi 2427. To this let us add the 450 Years mention'd by St. Paul, and the Total is 2877, or the 29th Year of Eli's Priesthood, when Samuel, as the Jews reckon, was about 27 Years old; and consequently this might be the Time, when (g) Samuel prophely'd against Eli, and GOD directed him in other Predictions, insomuch that all Israel from Dan even to Beersheba knew, that Samuel was established to be a prophet of the LORD. The Time of the Decree to destroy the Israelitish Children may be more nearly guess'd at. It is certain, that it was after the (h) first Setting the Task-masters over them to afflict them with their Burdens, and we read nothing of it when Aaron was born, who (i) was but three Years older than Moses, and therefore it seems to be order'd the Year after the Birth of Aaron, so that it was of full Force when Moses was born, which occasion'd his being plac'd in the River, if possible to preserve him.

149. The Arabick Historians (k) tell us, that Amram was born to Kobath when he was sixty Years of Age, and Miriam was born to Amram at 73, Aaron at 77, and Moses at 80; and consequently as Moses was 80 Years old at the Deliverance of the Israelites, so Kobath must be born 220 Years before that, which was five Years before (l) Jacob went with him into Egypt, according to the Scripture History. We are told also, that Kobath liv'd 133 Years, and Amram 130, which agrees well with the Ages of the Patriarchs, who were contemporary with them.

150. Another (m) Arabick Historian gives us a long Account of the Kings of the Persians about that Time. This is an Argument, that the Feathers of the Affyrian Monarchy were also pluck'd from it on that Side, which still made it so much the weaker. He tells us, that Aphridoun was made King of the Persians about the Time of the Death of Terah, the Father of Abraham, and in the four hundredth Year of the Monarchy of Nimrod. Now as Terah really (n) died, when Abraham receiv'd the Promise in the Year of the World 2083, the subtracting of 400 Years from thence will bring it to the Year 1683, which is but 15 Years after the Flood. To reconcile this Account, we must consider, that this Author makes Terah to live (o) 265 Years, whereas the Scripture plainly saith, that he liv'd only 205 Years: So that he puts his Death 60 Years later. Secondly, the Arabians in their Chronology follow the Septuagint, and not the Hebrew Bible. Now the Hebrew Bible saith, (p) that Nabor was twenty nine Years of Age at the Birth of Terah, but the Septuagint saith, that he was 179 Years old at that Time. And consequently, according to this Reckoning, the Monarchy of Nimrod began when Nabor was 44 Years of Age. The Account is thus:

From the Birth of Nabor to the Birth of Terah	179
Terah's Age at his Death	265

Total is	444
Duration of the Affyrian Monarchy subtract.	400

The Age of Nabor 44
Which according to the Hebrew Account was the Year of the World 1894, and differs but seven Years from the Time where it is really plac'd.

Aphridoun reigns 95 Years, and dies at 140 Years old (q).
Shaharnaz, his Son, succeeds him, and reigns 93 Years (r).
Asphidbaz, his Son, succeeds him, and reigns 71 Years (s).
Rustan, his Brother, succeeds him, and reigns 65 Years (t).
Washliman succeeds him, and reigns 77 Years (u).

In which Catalogue it is observable, that the Years of their Lives and of their Reigns do well agree with the Lives of the Patriarchs their Contemporaries, especially if we only suppose, that they began to reign, when they were of a mature and an active Age.

dom; yet we do not find, that they had a King over them till now. However they now (y) take their Advantage, and (z) pluck off more of the Feathers from the Chaldean Monarchy; so that having conquer'd them, they now set up a King of their own call'd Mar-docentes, who reign'd 45 Years. Our (a) learned Primate supposes him to have been call'd Merodach, who was afterward accounted (b) as a GOD among the Babylonians, from whom also their Kings Merodach-baldan and Evil-merodach took their Names. This happen'd within fifty Years of the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, and was a particular Providence of GOD to weaken the Power of the Babylonish Monarchy, so that neither Kingdom was in a Condition to attack them in the Wilderness. Our learned (c) Countryman Dr. Pocock reckons 22 of these Kings until the Time of the Queen of Sheba, who came to hear the Wisdom of Solomon: and as that was 550 Years after; so one with another each of them might reign about five and twenty Years. And therefore it is probable, that the Arabians might mistake, who report, that Taarab, who was their first King, was the immediate Son of Joktan; and that they take no notice of all the intermediate Space, only to raise the Antiquities of their Nation as high as possible.

152. Soon after the Death of Joseph, a Misfortune beset the Posterity of Ephraim. He must at that Time be above seventy Years of Age, and had a numerous Family, of whom there are nineteen Sons and a Daughter reckon'd up in (d) the sacred Scriptures. The Text saith, (e) that the men of Gath slew them, because they came down to take away their battle. The learned Dr. Lightfoot (f) supposes the Men of Gath to have been the Plunderers. But others (among whom is the (g) Author of the Jewish Targum) more justly lay the Blame on the Posterity of Ephraim. The Scripture seems to me to determine the Case, which saith, that the men of Gath, who were born in the land, where the Battle happen'd, slew them. Had the Battle been in Egypt, the Men of Gath must have been the Invaders; but as Gath was in the Land of Canaan, and the Battle there, the Ephraimites were the first Aggressors. The Jews think, that (h) they mistook their Computation of the End of the Years, in which they were to be Slaves in Egypt, and imagining them to be near expir'd, made an Inroad into the Land of Canaan to take Possession of it before the Time. But as they liv'd in that Part of Goshen, which border'd upon the Land of Canaan, and applied themselves to Pasturage; so it might rather proceed from a Desire of Prey and Spoil, which they thought they might lawfully get from those, whose Country they were to possess: And they presum'd the more to make this Attempt, because they were valiant Men, and proud of the great Power and Authority, which their Grandfather Joseph had in Egypt. And it is probable, that these Philistines had formerly infested them in the Land of Goshen, which provok'd these Sons of Ephraim to break into their Country, and make Reprials upon their Cattle. Ephraim their Father on this sad Occasion mourneth for them many Days; and the more, because he might think, that it would frustrate the Prophecy of Jacob concerning his being more fruitful than his Brother. However he soon after had another Son, whom he call'd Beriah, that is, In an ill State, because it went ill with his House at that Time.

153. But the most remarkable Occurrence in this Epocha is that of Job, which takes up a whole Book in the sacred Story. In the Account hereof, there are two things to be consider'd, viz. the Place where, and the Time when he liv'd. The Place where he liv'd is generally suppos'd to be Idumæa; because we meet with a Person (i) call'd Uz among the Sons of Esau, from whom (k) a Part of Idumæa was antiently call'd, The land of Uz. We meet also with (l) Eliphaz the Son of Esau, and (m) Teman his Son, and therefore it is probable that Eliphaz the Temanite the Friend of Job, might be the Son of this Teman, and Grandson of the other Eliphaz; and therefore many think, that Job might be (n) Jobab, one of the Kings that reign'd in the Land of Edom. But in answer to all this, it may be consider'd, that there is another (o) Uz the Son of Nabor, (p) Abraham's Brother, who married (q) Milcah of the same Family, from (r) which Family Isaac and Jacob took Wives by the Direction of their Parents, and consequently most likely to be a Family, in which Religion might be kept up in that Purity, as we find it to be in Job. As to the Land of Uz, (s) the Septuagint calls it Ausitis, but never calls (t) that Uz in the Land of Edom by this Name. Nabor liv'd at Haran on the South of Euphrates, and no doubt his Son might live with him, and his Family give a Name to this Country. ta, which the learned Bochart (u) supposes should be written Ausita, who extended themselves from the River Euphrates, southward into Arabia Deserta, and here both he, and Bishop Patrick (*) our excellent Commentator, supposes Job to have been born. Besides, Job is said (x) to be one of the greatest of all the men of the east. Now the Land of Uz in Idumæa can in no Respect be call'd the east. It lay almost north from Egypt, and south from Canaan, and southwest from the Country of Midian, where Jethro the Father-in-Law of Moses liv'd. But the south Part of the Country of Ausitis or Uz lay not only east from Canaan, but eastward from all the Countries in which the Israelites travell'd, whilst they were in the Wilderness. As for the Name of Eliphaz, it is not impossible, but two Men in different Countries might have the same Name, and then Eliphaz the Friend of Job might not be the Son of Esau from Teman, but the Son of Ishmael from (y) Tema, whom Abraham (z) in his Lifetime sent eastward to inhabit the east Country, and where we find them in the neighbourhood of Uz. In these Parts it is probable, that Bildad (a) the Shubite, or (b) Son of Abraham from Shuah by Keturah, might live, who was also (c) sent thither with the rest of his Brethren. And as (d) Buz was the Brother of Uz; so Elibu (e) the Buzite being of that Family might well live in those Parts, especially since he seems to be of a religious Family, the Son of Barachel, that is, He bleisseth GOD, or GOD bleisseth. Besides, this Elibu was of (f) the Kindred of Ram or Aram, that is, a Syrian, as Laban (g) was also call'd, who dwelt with his Ancestors in (h) Padan Aram, or the Country of Aram. To this may be added, that (i) the Sabeans, who took away Job's Oxen, and (k) the Chaldeans, who took away his Cattle, were near Neighbours to this Part of the Country of Uz the Son of Nabor, but lay so remote from Uz in Idumæa, that they could not make an Excursion thither. It is allow'd also that Job spoke the Arabick Language in Perfection, whence he is call'd, The Divine of the Arabians, and the Book which goes under his Name is full of Arabick Words and Phrases, and we may more rationally expect this Language to be spoken in Arabia it self than in Idumæa. And therefore there is little Reason to think, that Moses would call him Job in one Place, and Jobab in another, where the Difference of Words is not only evident in every Translation, but in (l) the Hebrew Language they do not begin with the same Letter.

154. As for the Time when Job labour'd under his severe Afflictions, it is impossible absolutely to fix it. I have plac'd his Death in the Year before the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, and consequently (m) his Troubles to be in the hundred and forty first Year before it, or in the 289th Year after the Promise; so that his Death about this Time might make his Story to be more fresh in the Memory of the Israelites in the Wilderness. His Tears as well as his Substance are suppos'd to be doubled, and that (n) the Hebrew Phrase doth plainly intimate the same. And if so, then as (o) he liv'd an hundred and forty years after his Troubles; so he must be seventy years old, when his Troubles began, and consequently born in the 219th Year after the Promise, or four Years after Jacob's Going down into Egypt: He died (p) at 210 Years of Age, the longest Liver born since Terah, whereas (q) a less Age was very old in the Time of the Patriarchs. Since this, in the Time of Moses, (r) the Life of Man was shorten'd, to what it is in the present Age, and we read not of any one in Scripture born afterward, who liv'd an hundred and forty Years, and (s) but one who exceeded an hundred. It is evident, that Job was of a considerable Age when his Troubles happen'd, because (t) he had seven sons and three daughters, who (u) had Houses to dwell in at that Time. It is plain, that these things happen'd before the Setting up of the Arabian Monarchy, and when (x) the Chaldean Monarchy was establish'd in these Parts, and had extended its Conquest near to the Land of Uz, and when (y) they and the Sabeans and others plunder'd their Neighbours; and this in all Probability occasion'd the Revolt of the Arabians. Such Practices were common in (z) the Time of Ephraim the Son of Joseph, since some of his Sons (whom (a) Joseph liv'd to see) were slain by the Men of Gath upon the Account of their Cattle. That Job's Misfortunes happen'd before the Time of Moses is evident, First, because (b) he, and (c) his three Friends, being the Fathers of their Families, offer'd Sacrifices as Priests for themselves and their Families, which (d) was the Antemosaic Method. Secondly, Job liv'd in the Middle of Arabia Deserta, (e) among the Children of the East, and he also liv'd in a Time, when Religion flourish'd there, as appears by the Discourse of himself and all his Acquaintance, which was soon lost in that Country, as lying so near to Babylon. Thirdly, The Land of (f) Uz is suppos'd to take its Name from (g) Uz the Son of Nabor, who was Brother to Abraham, and lying among the rest of their Brethren, and the Sons of Abraham, the Name might be soon lost; and yet Job liv'd, when it retain'd its first Name. Fourthly, Eliphaz the Temanite may be suppos'd to have come from (h) Tema the Son of Ishmael, from whose Name (i) the Land which he possess'd was afterward call'd. Bildad the Shubite is (k) suppos'd to be descended from Shuah the Son of Abraham by Keturah, whilst the Name of Shuah continu'd fresh in Memory. Elihu the (l) Buzite was probably descended from (m) Buz, the Son of Abraham's Brother, whose Name was soon extinct. Lastly, The Matter contain'd in the Discourse between Job and his Friends may help us to fix the Time. Zophar alludes to (n) Ishmael's savage Way of Living, as it was (o) prophesied of him. Others speak (p) more plainly of the Creation of the World, and (q) of Man, and of (r) Adam's Hiding himself after the Fall. They also speak of (s) the Flood, of (t) Drying up of the Waters, with the Promise (u) that they should return no more to destroy the World. Of (x) the Overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrab, and (y) the Death of the first Tyrants in the Chaldean or Assyrian, and perhaps in the Persian Monarchy. They speak of (z) the Dwelling in Tents and Tabernacles, as it was the (a) Custom of the Patriarchs Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and of (b) the Law being deliver'd by Revelation from GOD, as the only Way whereby they knew his Will. And in the whole Book there is not the least Hint of the Jewish Religion, of the Law, or of the Prophets, of the Troubles of the Israelites in Egypt, or of their Wandering in the Wilderness, when the Mention thereof would have been so much to their Purpose, and they could not but have heard of it, had they liv'd either then or since, because (c) their Neighbours traded into Egypt, and they were well acquainted with (d) Jordan and the Parts adjacent. Besides, when Job vindicates his Innocency, he speaks only of the Worshipping of the (e) Sun and Moon, the first Method whereby they deny'd the true GOD that is above, and fell from his Service. But he saith not a Word of Idolatry, tho' (f) it was the constant Abomination of the Canaanites, and (g) of the Egyptians, and other Nations near them in the Time of Moses. As therefore the Troubles of Job could not be much more or less than an hundred and forty Years before the Delivery of the Israelites out of Egypt; so they must be over before their extreme Servitude began, since Joseph died but 144 Years before their Deliverance, and (h) their Bondage did not begin until a King reign'd, who knew not Joseph, and the (i) Decree to destroy the Infants took Place but immediately before the Birth of Moses, who (k) was but eighty Years old, when he was the Instrument to deliver them.

155. It is probable, that when Moses kept the Flock of Jethro the Priest of Midian, he might meet with this Book of Job written in Arabick Verse, the Language of that Country, which he translated into Hebrew, and added (l) the Historical Part, from what he had heard of the Story, to teach the Israelites Patience by so eminent an Example. The (m) poetical Part of the Book seems to have been penn'd by Elihu one of the Speakers in it, as may appear from these two Reasons: First, because (n) when Job's Friends, who came to lament with him, and to comfort him, are number'd by Name, Elihu is not nam'd among the Number, because he himself was the Historian and Penman, who gave this Account; and therefore he nam'd not himself, when he nam'd the rest. And as he probably liv'd near, so he could know more exactly the Certainty of what he wrote. And secondly, because he seems to (o) speak of himself as of the Historian, They were amazed, they answered no more, they left off speaking; when I had waited, for they spake not but stood still, and answered no more; I said, I will answer also, I also will shew my opinion. Its being written originally in Arabick is the Reason, that the Style is not like to the rest of the Books of Moses, nor indeed to any other Parts of the Old Testa- ment, but more concise and obscure, and that there are (p) such a vast Number of Arabick Words and Phrases to be found in it. Neither is it strange, that the Language was not more alter'd from the Time of Job to the Time of Mahomet, it being an inland Country, subject to little Commerce, fully peopled, not capable to receive any new Inhabitants, and situated among other Languages of the greatest Affinity to it. And tho' our European Languages have been vastly alter'd in a few Centuries; yet it was not so in these Parts. The Greek remain'd the same from the Time of Homer to the Time of St. Chrysostom. The Hebrew remain'd the same from the Time of Moses to the Time of Malachi. And more particularly the Chaldean Language remain'd the same from the Time of (q) Jacob to the Date of the Babylonish Talmud.

156. There are some, who think, that the Troubles of Job lasted seven Years, and others, that they lasted but one; but it is not probable that they lasted so long. The News of the Misfortunes which attended his Goods and Family, came (r) immediately one after the other, and we cannot suppose a long Space before (s) he was afflicted in his Body. His three Friends seem to have been his near Neighbours, and (t) they came to visit him, as soon as they heard of the ill News, which usually flees apace. When they saw his Misery, they (u) sat with him seven Days in Silence. After this they enter'd into Discourse with him, and at the End of this Discourse, which could not well last above another Week, GOD heal'd his Sores, before (x) his three Friends were parted from him, who, we may suppose, were Men of great Authority in the Country, and had Business of their own to call them home, and therefore would not stay longer on so melancholy an Occasion, after they had been tired with Arguing, and (as they thought) to little Purpose. And therefore it is probable, that all his Afflictions did not last above a Month: So long might be necessary to try his exemplary Patience, and shew, that GOD, who (y) doth not afflict willingly, nor grieve the children of men, would not suffer so faithful a Servant to be tormented much longer.

157. Job's three Friends and Elihu seem to be Men of great Piety and Knowledge. They all speak with the utmost Veneration of GOD and his Attributes, and advance many noble and useful Truths, as Occasion offers; so that their only Mistake was in the Application of them. They concluded that all Punishments in this World were for Sin; and therefore as Job was the greatest of Sufferers, so he must have been the greatest of Sinners. Job's own Conscience did not accuse him of any ill Practice, and therefore he vindicates his own Innocency, which occasion'd many sharp Speeches and Answers between him and them. When he had (z) lost his Goods and his Children, and four Messengers came immediately after one another to acquaint him with the ill News, he bore it patiently, and blessed GOD for the Prosperity which he had formerly enjoy'd. When he was smitten (a) with sore Boils, he was submissive for seven Days, from the Time that his three Friends came to visit him. His Wife in the mean Time (b) persuades him to lay aside all Manner of Religion, Dost thou still (saith she) retain thine integrity? And adds, as we translate it, Curse GOD, and die. That is, Provoke him by the most flagrant Impieties to cut thee off. The Hebrew Word having a contrary Signification hath been also render'd by some, Bless GOD and die; and then it is an Ironical Reflecting on his former Expression, (c) The LORD gave, and the LORD hath taken away; blessed be the name of the LORD. And the Meaning is this, Do as you did before, if you can, and see what will be the End of it. This he severely (d) reprov'd, and piously represented to her, that the more Good we have receiv'd from GOD, the less Cause we have to complain, when we suffer any Evil. And for these Reasons St. James saith, (e) Behold, we count them happy which endure. Ye have heard of the patience of Job, and have seen the end of the LORD; that the LORD is very pitiful and of tender mercy. At the End of these last seven Days, his Patience (*) was tired out, and then he bitterly curses the Day that he was born, and in some Discourses with his Friends is so outrageous, as to (f) wish that he could come and plead before GOD himself, to ask him the Reason of such Afflictions, declaring that in such a Case he would vindicate his own Innocency, order his Cause before him, and fill his Mouth with Arguments for this Purpose. But when GOD in Reality appears to him, he is so far from justifying his Conduct, that he only saith, (g) Behold, I am vile, what shall I answer thee? I will lay my hand upon my mouth. Once have I spoken, but I will not answer: yea, twice, but I will proceed no farther. And,

(b) I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear; but now mine eye seeth thee. Wherefore I abhor my self, and repent in dust and ashes. In the (i) Conclusion GOD vindicates Job in all that he said; he doth not blame Elihu, but severely reproves his three Friends, for not speaking of him the thing that was right. Job's Innocency can be vindicated by considering, that GOD winks at, and takes no Notice of the Failings, which we are guilty of in deep Afflictions: (k) He knoweth whereof we are made, and remembers how weak and frail we are, and what strong Temptations there are to such Failings at such Times. And secondly, let our Sins be ever so great; yet when we humble our selves for them, and repent of them, GOD pardons them all, and looks upon them, as if they had never been committed. Eliphaz, tho' he was justly provok'd at Job's Cursing the Day of his Birth, and his impatient Desire of Death, only to be eas'd of his Anguish; yet he was under a Mistake in his Discourse. He thought, that as Afflictions do not come by Chance, but by the Providence of GOD; so they are (l) only sent for the Sins of Men: And therefore without Doubt Job was a very great Offender, which was the Cause that he was handled in this Manner; tho' in Conclusion he (m) owns, that all the Ways, whereby we deserve Punishment, do not appear to Man. This is contrary to that great Law since reveal'd, (n) Judge not, that ye be not judged; and speaks of GOD, as if he had but one Design in all his Afflictions. Bildad goes into the same Opinion; but adds, that (o) the Evils which Job endured here, should, if he prov'd innocent, be chang'd into good things (as they really were) and in the End be highly serviceable to him in the other World, and be recompens'd there. This Doctrine, apply'd in this Manner, favour'd too much of Merit, which was afterward the Error of the Jews, and is the same at this Time in the Church of Rome. Zophar seems to advance another Notion, which was, (p) That GOD acts according to his own Pleasure, and that we are not to search for any Cause of his Actions except his own Will; nor to ask, Why he doth this, and not that? So that we are not to seek the Way of Equity, and the Decree of Wisdom in his Doings; for it necessarily belongs to his Essence, that he may do what he will; and our Understanding is too shallow to comprehend the Secrets of his Wisdom, whose Right and Property it is, that he may do according to his own Pleasure. This was wrong, because it was not qualified with this Expression, That tho' GOD may do what he will; yet he only doth that which is just in it self, and good for his Servants. Elihu, tho' he (q) blames Job as a Sinner like Eliphaz, and (r) carps at his former Words taken in the worst Sense; yet he was not reprov'd, because his Advice to Job was good, which was, (*) to humble himself before GOD: For tho' he might be just in the Sight of the World, and in his own Conscience; yet, (as (s) Bildad observ'd before, and (t) David since) no flesh could be justified in the sight of GOD. And when Job had taken (u) this Advice, GOD was appeas'd, and the Affliction remov'd. At the Healing of his Sores, GOD doubled to him all that he had before. Before he had (x) seven thousand Sheep, now (y) he hath fourteen. Before he had three thousand Camels, now he hath six. Before he had five hundred Yoke of Oxen, and five hundred She-Ases, and now he hath a thousand of each. And as (z) he liv'd an hundred and forty Years after this; so it is probable, that he was seventy Years old when it began, and two hundred and ten when he died. His Wife (a) also became very fruitful, and brought him as many Children as (b) he had lost; that is seven Sons and three Daughters. And to preserve the Memory of so marvellous a Deliverance, and of which there were many living Monuments, he call'd the Name of the first Jemima, that is, the Day, because of the Felicity in which he now shone, after the sad Night of Affliction in which he had lain. He call'd the second Keczia, that is, A Spice of an excellent Smell, because GOD had heal'd his stinking Ulcers, which made even (c) his Wife refuse to come near him. And the last he call'd Kerenbappuch, which the Septuagint calls The Horn of Amalthæa, and is in Hebrew, The Horn of Plenty, to shew the wonderful Increase of his Substance. So that the whole Scope of the Book is to teach us, that the Providence of GOD orders all things; that the Devil can do us no Harm, but when, and in such a Manner, and as long as GOD gives Leave; that GOD hath several Designs in sending Afflictions upon us, as particularly for Trial of our Faith, Patience and other Graces, and if we behave our selves well under them, he will in his due Time give us a happy Deliverance out of all. And that the Preserving a good Conscience in Time of Prosperity, is the best Method to enable us to bear Adversity as we ought, and to cause GOD to be our Friend in the midst of all. So that such an Example, and such Doctrines as these, were of excellent Use to the Israelites, whilst they travell'd in the Wilderness.

158. We cannot well return from the Land of Uz into Egypt, but we must take the Country of Edom in our Way, which we left govern'd by Saul of Reboboth at that Time. He (d) was succeeded by

Anno Mundi 2303. Baal-hanan the Son of Achbor, and at his Death (e) Hadar, who was the last King of that Country, reign'd 2345. in his stead. During this Time the 2387. Country was call'd, The Country of Seir, from the People who possess'd it. In the Samaritan Version (f) it is call'd Gabalab, in Jonathan's Targum Gebal, and in Josephus Gobelitis, which Words, being deriv'd from גבול Geboul, signifying a Border, shew us, that it lay as the Boundary of the Land of Canaan on the eastern and southern Parts thereof. Esau and his Posterity had now no Share in the Government, which is the Reason, that neither he nor (g) his Sons Eliphaz and Reuel are ever call'd Dukes, tho' the succeeding Generations have that Title given them by Moses, they being dead before the Monarchy of these eight Kings were dissolv'd, out of whose Reigns the Aristocracy under the Dukes began. During this Time, Esau and his Posterity dwelt in a (h) Part of this Country, which was call'd from him, The Field of Edom, and there they employ'd their Time in Feeding Cattle, as Jacob did in Canaan, and his Posterity at first in Egypt; so that they dwelt as mere Sojourners in the Land. There is no Account, that Esau or his Successors as yet made the least Disturbance in Seir. And tho' he had 400 Men with him, when he met Jacob; yet it was not a Quarter Part more than his Grandfather Abraham had not long after his Entry into Canaan, who made no Conquest of the Canaanites, but liv'd among them by Permission. However the two potent Families of Esau and Seir, being link'd together by Intermarriages, agree to hinder the Election of another King. For upon the Review of the Succession it appears, that no Son or near Kinsman came next to the preceding Monarch, but succeeded either by Election or a forcible Entry upon the Government. Thus they dissolve the Government in the Vacancy, and alter it from a Monarchy to an Aristocracy, consisting of one and twenty Dukes, seven of (i) Seir's Race, and (k) fourteen of Esau's; and these made the first Succession of Dukes. But Esau's Dukes, like their (l) Father, living by the Sword, and being double in Number to those of

Seir, were easily tempted to grasp the whole Government of the Country into their own Hands, without any Associates. Hence follow'd a Civil War, by which they dispossess the seven Dukes of Seir of all their Authority, and chose (m) eleven more Dukes to govern the Country, who were all of the Family of Esau, and were therefore call'd by Moses (n) the Dukes of Edom. These getting the Power into their own Hands, (o) fall upon the Horites and utterly dispossess them, and so become sole Masters of the Country. However at the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, they again alter'd their Form of Government, and set up a King over them of their own, who should take Care of their Country, being apprehensive of Danger from the Approach of so great a Body of Men as the Israelites were. And this was probably the nameless King of Edom, to whom Moses sent an Embassy, when he was near his Death, to desire that (p) they might pass thro' his Borders, which was refus'd, knowing by the late History of the Country, how dangerous it was to admit of Strangers, especially at a Time when their Constitution was so lately settled, and its Settlement in this Manner was occasion'd by the Fear of the Israelites. And thus the Country of Seir, as it was formerly call'd, alter'd its Name with its Constitution, and was afterward only call'd the Land of Edom.

159. At this Time, and before it, the Israelites were under a most cruel Bondage and Oppression in Egypt. Josephus saith, (q) that the Egyptians forc'd them upon the learning of several painful Trades, and tied them up to a perpetual Restlessness of Labour. They put them upon Draining of Rivers into Channels, Walling of Towns, Casting up of Ditches and Banks to keep off Inundations, and even to the erecting of fantastical Pyramids. There are other Authors, who make the Pyramids of a later Date, and say, that Cheops built one for his Sepulchre, Cephron builds a second, and Nitocris finish'd a third. But all this may be easily reconcil'd with the other. There are several Pyramids great and small, which some count to be about an hundred, and therefore most of these might be built at this Time, and some since. It is generally allow'd, that Amenophis built several, and (r) this according to Manetho in his Catalogue, is the Name of him who was drown'd in the Red-Sea, who reign'd nineteen Years and six Months, and is describ'd by him as a Man easily and strongly deluded by their superstitious Priests, even to his own Destruction. There are (s) three Pyramids, which are most remarkable, being much larger than the rest, of whom two are shut, and the other, which is the biggest of all, is open, and is that which Travellers mount, and enter into. And it is a Tradition among (t) all the Inhabitants of the Country, that the King, who order'd that Pyramid to be built, was that Pharaoh, who by the just Judgment of God was drown'd in the Red-Sea, and so was never bury'd in it. Pliny saith, that (u) this Pyramid was built in twenty Years Time, which is near the Time of Pharaoh Amenophis's Reign, and that 360000 Men were employ'd therein, which probably were as many Israelites, as could be spar'd from other Employments. Diodorus Siculus saith, that besides these there are other Pyramids, every Square of which are 200 Feet in the Basis, and in all things like unto the other, except the Bigness. And he adds, It is said, that these three last Kings built them for their Wives. Yet, saith he, concerning the first Builders of these Pyramids, there is no Consent either among the Inhabitants or Historians; as that the greatest was built by Armeus, the second by Amassis, and the third by Inaronas. And since in the Catalogue of (x) the Kings of Lower-Egypt, the Order of Armais, and his immediate Successors, stands thus,

	Years.	Months.
Armais reign'd	04	01
Rameffes reign'd	01	04
Rameffes Miumun reign'd	66	02
Pharaoh Amenophis reign'd	19	06
who was drown'd in the Red-Sea .

I cannot but suppose, that Diodorus Siculus by Armeus means Armais, by Amassis he means Rameffes Miumun, and by Inaronas he means Pharaoh Amenophis, because it so well agrees with the Scripture History. The Scripture saith, (y) that the Egyptians made the children of Israel to serve with rigour. And they made their lives bitter with hard bondage, in mortar, and in brick, and in all manner of service in the field: and all their service, which they made them to serve, was with rigour. And as the Pyramids were built with brick; so (z) the Working therein was the greatest Part of the Slavery of the Egyptians at that Time, as (a) Grotius and other Commentators affirm. We are also told (b) that they built for Pharaoh two treasure cities among the rest, whose Names were Pithom and Raamses. The Word Pithom among the Rabbins signifies a familiar Spirit, and seems to intimate, that this City was built for the Study of Magick and Sorcery, which made them so famous for these diabolical Arts in the next Century. And Raamses (c) is call'd Rameffes, which keeps up the Name of Rameffes Miumun, in whose Reign it was built, and is a farther Proof of their Slavery at that Time.

160. But there was another Accident, which made the Malice of the Egyptians against the Israelites more implacable; so that they resolv'd to root them out from the Face of the Earth. The Jews (d) say, that Pharaoh King of Egypt dream'd, that he saw an old Man standing before him with a Pair of Scales in his Hand, who bound all the Elders of Egypt, and plac'd them in one Scale, and a Lamb in the other, which outweigh'd them all. And calling the Magicians to him in the Morning, he was told, that it signify'd, that one should be born, who should deliver the Israelites from the Egyptians. Josephus takes no Notice of this Dream, but saith, (e) There was a certain Scribe, a Man in great Credit for his Predictions, who told the King that there was a Hebrew Child to be born about that Time, who would live to be a Scourge to the Egyptians, and advance the Glory of his own Nation; and he would also be an eminent Man for Virtue and Courage, and make his Name famous to Posterity. This did so startle the King, that by the Counsel of the Scribe he order'd the Egyptian Midwives carefully and strictly to attend the Labours of all the Hebrew Women, preserving the Females, and casting the Males into the River. He committed this Trust to the Egyptians as the least likely to be partial, and upon Pain of Death to them and their Family, who should presume to conceal any Child, or act contrary to this Command.

161. However the Midwives (f) feared GOD, and did not as they were commanded, and when question'd for their Disobedience, they made their Constancy more remarkable; which was so acceptable to GOD, that he preserv'd the Midwives from their Enemies, gave them a numerous Issue, and blessed their Substance, and (g) in a most signal if not miraculous Manner, preserv'd those Children, whose Deaths were thus threatned; and a Child, which the Scribe had foretold, was born, and brought up privately and safe in Despight of all Precautions, and liv'd to make good the Scribe's Predictions.

162. The Promises of a Deliverance were so (h) clearly reveal'd to Abraham and (i) Jacob, and mention'd by (k) Joseph, that it was the constant Belief of the Israelites during their Bondage. For this Reason Kobath the Son of Levi calls his Son Amram, that is, A glorious People. This Amram, (l) Josephus saith, was a Man of eminent Quality and Credit, who found himself in a great Straight upon this Decree, both publick and private; one Way, out of Respect to a whole Nation, who was to be rooted out by it; and the other in Regard to his own particular Case, for his Wife was then with Child, and Pharaoh not being able to effect this by the Midwives, had newly commanded all his People to do the same, and appointed other Officers and Searchers to take Care of the Execution of this Command. In this Distress, Amram offer'd up a Prayer to Almighty GOD, that he would look down in Pity upon a People, which had never departed from his Worship; that he would guide and protect them, and in his good Time put an End to a Calamity, that struck at no less than the Rooting out of the whole Stock. His Prayer was heard, and GOD appear'd to him in a Dream, telling him, that as he had not forgotten the Piety of his Predecessors, so neither would he fail to reward them, as he had done their Ancestors, encouraging Amram to hope for better things. He had also an Assurance at the same Time, that GOD would provide for the common Good of the Nation in general, and his own Family in particular. And that the Child, which the Egyptians stood in such Fear of, and for whose Sake all the Hebrew Males were to be put to Death, should be born to him, come happily into the World, escape all Spies, have an Education provided for him, beyond what could be expected, and in good Time deliver the Israelites from the Egyptian Bondage, and make his Name famous to all Generations far and near. This and more (saith the Vision) will I do for you and yours; and there shall be another Brother, whom I will honour with the High Priesthood, and it shall descend from him to his Heirs for ever.

163. When Amram waked, he told (m) his Wife Jocbebed the whole Vision, which puts them both into a great Perplexity; for they were now not only solicitous for the Child, but also very incredulous of the wonderful good things, which were promis'd to the Family. However, soon after his Wife was safely deliver'd of a Son, before the Egyptian Midwives could have Notice of it; by which Providence they were brought to have more Faith in the Vision, and (n) soon became less and less fearful of the King's Commandment. The (o) Eastern Writers represent him as of little Stature, of a lean Constitution, and a ruddy Complexion. However we are told by better Authority, (p) that in his Infancy he was a goodly Child, and (q) exceeding fair or beautiful; so that his Parents hid him in the House three Months. After this Amram being afraid of a Discovery, that would destroy Father, Mother and Child at once, and also disappoint the Prediction, resolv'd to leave all to Providence, arguing in this Manner. If the Child could be conceal'd (as it was very difficult to do it, and very dangerous to attempt it) they must lie in Danger every Moment; but as to the Power and Veracity of GOD, they did not doubt of it, but were assured, that whatever he had promis'd he would certainly make good. Upon this Discourse they came to a Resolution, and procur'd a little Basket large enough for their Purpose, made of light Wood or Wicker, which is (r) the proper Meaning of the Word that we translate Bulrushes. One Author tells us, that (s) it was made of the Paper Reeds, which grew on the River Nile, and of which (t) Vessels of small Burden were often made; so that it is most probable, that when (u) they daubed it with slime and with pitch, they fasten'd the Paper round it, to keep it from Letting in the Water. However they put the Child in it, and the Mother laid it in the Flags by the River's Brink, and order'd Miriam his Sister, then above seven Years of Age, to watch it at a considerable Distance.

164. Thermuthis the King's Daughter, who was of an advanc'd Age without any Child, and having now little Hope of one, came down at this Time to wash her self at the River, and happening to see this Basket among the Flags, she sent one of her Maids to fetch it. And when they had open'd it, they saw the Child, which immediately wept, and caus'd her to have the greater Compassion on him, and so she became exceedingly delighted with him. Such (saith (x) Josephus) was the Grace and Favour of GOD to Moses, that he was preserv'd, brought up and provided for by those very Persons, who were in the Plot of Cutting off the whole Race of the Hebrews for his Sake. Upon this Thermuthis orders a Woman to be call'd to give it suck, but several being brought and tried one after another, no one could make it take the Breast. The (y) Story goes, that Miriam being there present, and seemingly more out of Curiosity or Chance, than any thing of Concern or Business, she told the Princess, that this would never do. For if the Child was of one Country, and the Nurse of another, it is possible, that the Milk of a Stranger would not agree with it: but if there was a Hebrew Woman, the Child would perhaps allow that to suckle it. And that which she said seem'd so reasonable, that the Princess order'd her to try, if she could get such a Nurse her self. If this was true, she must be of a greater Age, or had a Judgment far beyond what could have been expected. However she went away immediately to look after a Nurse, and call'd the Mother (x) her self (whom no Body knew) and she with good Success made the former Experiment. The Princess observing it, order'd her to take Care and nurse the Child, promising to give her Wages for it, which she gladly perform'd, and in due Time brought him to Thermuthis the Daughter of Pharaoh, who adopted him for her own Child, and gave him a suitable Education. Philo the Jew (y) gives this Account thereof: That he shew'd a Modesty and Gravity beyond his Years, and chiefly applied himself to those things which were profitable. And accordingly he had many Tutors, some coming of their own Accord out of the neighbouring Countries of Egypt, and others being hired with great Rewards from Greece, whom he excell'd in a little Time, having so great a Capacity to learn, that his Learning seem'd only to be a Remembrance of what he had learn'd before. Thus he learn'd from the Egyptian Masters, Arithmetick, Geometry, and all sorts of Musick, Rhythme, Harmony and Metre, and the Speculative as well as the Practical Part. He learned also their occult Philosophy contain'd in Hieroglyphick Characters, or Pictures of such Animals, which they ador'd for Gods. The Greeks taught him all their liberal Arts and Sciences. The A Assyrians taught him their Way of Writing, the Chaldeans taught him Astronomy, which also he learned of the Egyptians, who were very studious in all the Mathematical Arts and Sciences. If this can be depended on, it is very evident, that (as (z) St. Stephen saith) Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians. Josephus saith, (a) that he had a Name given him according to the Event of the Providence, and was call'd Mo-Yses; Mo in the Egyptian Language signifying Water, and Yses being Preserv'd, so that putting both together, Mo-Yses is the same as preserv'd out of the Water. The Hebrew Text only derives his (b) Name from (c) the Verb, which signifies to draw out. And she called his name Moses; for she said, Because I drew him out of the water.

165. As (d) he grew up, he shew'd a Pregnancy of Understanding much above those of his Years. Nay, the very Gaiety of his little Plays and Sports was not without something serious and instructive in it: doing every thing with such a Grace, that in his very Childhood he gave the World to understand, what might be expected from him in Time to come. After three Years of Age, he was such a Miracle of a Child for Beauty and Comeliness of Stature, that People would stop and stand gazing at him with Delight and Admiration, wherever they saw him; and his Way was so taking, that it wrought upon the most unfociable and morose Sort of Men: nor did he so much as move any where, but all Eyes were upon him; and let People be ever so busy, or so much in haste, yet they could hardly leave him.

166. Thermuthis being as much delighted with him as any other Person, wanting Issue of her own, and having resolv'd to adopt him for her Son, brings him to her Father, and merrily tells him, that she came to present him with a Successor, in Case he should want one. This, saith she, is the sweetest, prettiest temper'd Child, that ever was born. I have brought him up my self, and it was the Bounty of the River Nile, that deliver'd it into my Arms. This Child I do intend to adopt, and make you a Present of it for your Successor. And with these Words she gave the Child into the Hands of her Father. The King receiv'd him with an affectionate Tenderness, and pressing him toward his Heart, took off his Crown to gratify his Daughter, and plac'd it upon the Child's Head, who wantonly turning it up and down, the Crown fell to the Ground, and after that the Child trampled upon it with his Feet. This Action was look'd upon to be an ill Omen to the King and his Government, insomuch that the Scribe being then at Hand, cried out to have the Child kill'd. For this is the Child, saith he to the King, that I foretold to you, would be the Destruction of Egypt; and he hath now confirm'd the Prophecy, by the Affront which he hath put upon your Government, in Treading the Crown under his Feet. In short, this is he, by whose Death alone you can promise your self to be secure; and take but him out of the Way, the Hebrews shall have nothing more to hope for, and the Egyptians nothing more to fear. Another (e) Jew adds, that in the Midst of this Outcry GOD sent the Angel Gabriel in the Form of one of the Senators, who advis'd the King to take a Jewel and put it into one Vessel, and put Fire into another, and lay both before the Child; adding that if the Child took the Jewel, it was a Sign that all which he did was knowingly, and then he should die; but if he took the Fire, he should be freed. They follow'd this Advice, and the Angel in an invisible Manner so directed the Hand of Moses, that he took the Fire, and put it to
